Oil price moves erratically

NEW YORK (AP) - Oil prices are behaving erratically because of apparently conflicting comments by the Reagan administration over whether Vice President George Bush will pressure Saudi Arabia to reduce

In late-morning trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange today. contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, were rallying after an earlier low of $10.90 per 42-gallon barrel to levels near Wednesday's $11.52 close.

Due to comments

That settlement was up 25 cents from Tuesday's close, but down significantly from the day's peak of Today's late-morning prices for refined products were down about a half a cent from Wednesday, when May contracts for unleaded gasoline rose nearly 3 cents to 41 cents a gallon before dropping back to close at 39.75 cents, up a penny from Tuesday. May heating oil contracts closed at 37.35, down from the day's high of 39.40 cents and Tuesday's 37.46 cent

William Byers, an analyst at the Bear, Stearns & Co. securities firm, attributed the day's closing figures to "the White House's clarification of George Bush's previous statements."

On Tuesday, Bush told reporters

he planned to tell Saudi Arabian of-ficials during a Mideast trip that U.S. national security is threatened by the stresses put on the American oil industry because of the continuing price free-fall.

U.S. Energy Secretary John S. Herrington told reporters that the Saudis, dominant members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, "need to be aware of the dire straits the American oil and gas producers are in" and the related industries and banks as well. (See OIL, Page 2)

Alien arrests along border up 40 percent in quarter rests along the Texas-Mexico border are on the increase, up 40 percent the first three months of 1986, and federal officials predict the increases will continue.

A mild Texas winter and Mexico's soured economy contributed to the increase, which amounted to 196,549 illegal immigrants arrests in Texas this year from January through March, U.S. Border Patrol officials

That number is 56,916 more than the 139,633 arrested during the same period in 1985, officials said earlier this week.

"I don't know when it's going to slow down, if ever," said Border Patrol spokesman Joe Aubin of the El Paso sector.

"Worsening economic conditions in Mexico is the only thing we can attribute it to. People are giving up and coming to the United States to find work," he said.

Victor Villarreal, intelligence officer at the Laredo sector, attributed the heavy migration from Mexico to Texas' mild winter this year and noted that illegal aliens usually cross

Accident kills local resident

Jim Stanley Greenwood, 32, died Wednesday evening from injuries he received in a one-vehicle roll-over on Austin Road, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Westbound on Austin Road (FM 1259), Greenwood apparently lost control of his 1969 Chevrolet pickup. The DPS report said the pickup crossed the road two or three times, then hit a cement culvert. Impact caused the vehicle to roll 11/2 times, throwing Greenwood from the pickup. He was not using seat belts. Greenwood was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital, and died of head injuries there at 6:50 p.m.

County deputies and city police were dispatched to the scene and blocked the intersections of U.S. 60 and Dairy Road, and Park and Avenue K for rescue units to pass.

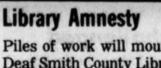

Funeral services have been set for p.m. Friday in Avenue Baptist Church conducted by the Rev. Clarence Powell, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church. Burial will be in Restlawn Memorial Cemetery under the direction of Gililland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Greenwood was born Sept. 26, 1952, in Matador, Texas. He moved to Deaf Smith County in 1955 from Afton, Texas. He was a farmer and a member of Avenue Baptist Church.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Greenwood of Hereford; a brother, Jimmie Lynn of Hereford; three sisters, Gloria Casey of Hereford, Louella Manning of Hereford, and Terri Johnson of San Jon, N.M.; 10 nieces and nephews; and three great-nieces and

GOP asks for special session

Republican House members and four senators urged Gov. Mark White today to call a special session this summer strictly to cut state spending.

"Now is not the time to be playing games with the state's cash flow," Rep. Fred Agnich, R-Dallas, told a news conference. "Now is the time for the state's leadership to face reality and redraw our budget to get it in line with available resources."

Agnich said the Republican lawmakers were suggesting a 30-day session in June, after the party

RELATIONSHIP

Hall - This school serves as the heart of our nity. It is vital to the growth and develop-a "community" or "country" school. The Board of Trustees is comprised of leaders of this community. There is a great deal of community in-teraction in this school for this school is, in fact, the central gathering point for community func-tions as well as the education of the children of this community. When there are problems, the members of this community hold meetings in mass or individually with the leadership factions to work "hand in hand."

Perrin - Community involvement and relation-ship is at an all time low. Every effort needs to be de to heal the wounds and bring everyone back

E. Brown - In the past, our school has served to draw the community together. I would like to have our school board work together in a more friendly atmosphere for the good of our school

OTHER COMMENTS

Hall - There is currently a lack of trust in the board and/or the administrator. There is a divi-sion within our community. The school's reserves are dwindling, and state support is being cut. It's going to require alot of study and planning for this school to survive, but if we all work together, we can save our school and community. Remauer - I feel that in the recent past the nbers of the community as well as the leadership have, to a degree, forgotten the meaning of "community interaction." Individual ideas are the basis of all institutions acted upon by the community. We must strive to work "together" and not as individuals. As the old "cliche" states: United we stand, Divided we fall. When I speak of the leadership, I am referring to the Board of Trustees, not the employees of the school. In the future I would like to see more compromise on matters, more understanding of others views, more unity in the Board, more Community-Board meeting. In essence, I would like to see Walcott forget "personal differences." The whole purpose of people involved with this school whether they be teachers, parents, Trustees, or tax payers is for the betterment of education at a sensible cost. Individual conflict CANNOT come into play.

Perrin - No Comment

E. Brown - The short-coming of our school is our school board which seems to me wants to be too far into administration of the school and allows outside influences and friendships to deeply affect the right decisions for the good of the

D. Brown - The short-comings of our school is the board in general. When a board makes a deci-sion it doesn't need to be a "railroad job." And when it's all said and done it should be if possible an unanimous decision with all board members headed in the same direction for what's best for the students and the community.

Blasingame - I feel some members of the staff and board have become too involved in politics and have forgotten the real reason they serve Walcott, the children.

ROME (AP) - A known Arab terrorist believed to be an expert in explosives had flown on a TWA jetliner hours before it was rocked by a bomb, airport security officials said today. They would not give the man's name, but said he had boarded the as whooping cough, is still a serious illness in the United States. In Texas, the number of cases jumped more than 400 percent from 1984 to 1985. Because of this, it is essential that infants be immunized against this disease. These and other facts on childhood immunizations appear in the March issue of Texas Medicine.

Writing in the official journal of the Texas Medical Asociation, Dr. Philip A. Brunell, San Antonio,s tates that the risks and benefits should be weighed carefully. "It would be prudent to defer immunization of children who had a personal history of seizures." However, he adds that the risk of contracting the disease and the reason for not immunizing should be reexamined. "If continued observation reveals that the child has had no further seizures or that the risk of exposure outweighs the risk of post-immunization seizure, the child should be immunized, "according to the author. He adds that immunization of these children against pertussis, even after the first year of life, is worthwhile since the disease can be serious in older infants and children. University gets unique archive of commercials

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Julian Kanter still gets excited about the 1964 presidential election when Lyndon B. Johnson trounced Barry Goldwater.

And he could talk for hours about Nelson Rockefeller's successful campaign for a third term as governor of New York.

It's not so much the politicians or their policies that hold Kanter's interest after all these years. It's their political commercials - films, videotape and audiotape — which he's been collecting for the last 30

The 60-year-old retired commodities broker has collected up to 30,000 political commercials dating back to 1950, when television was first used in a political campaign by Sen. William Benton of Kentucky.

"It was a personal project of mine starting in 1956, although at the time I had no idea of what it would become," he says.

By his own reckoning, Kanter had 16,000 television commercials and 11,000 radio commercials prior to 1984, when he says he last made an accurate count. He estimates he's acquired another 3,000 commercials since then,

It finally got to where the collection was running him out of his suburban Chicago home, "I had reached the point where I had no room," Kanter says from his office in the University of Oklahoma's Kaufman Hall, where both collection and collector have found a home.

Kanter says he was approached in 1982 by the Smithsonian Institute in Washington and the next year by the university about acquiring his collec-

Other universities also were interested, "But under terms I could not live with" - for example, no job for Kanter, he says. "I was serious about getting to where I could work with the archives full time."

The university paid Kanter $300,000 for the collection and hired him as curator and adjunct professor of communication. The collection arrived in boxes around Thanksgiving, followed in January by its curator.

Kanter's immediate work has been unboxing, cataloging and arranging the collection on metal shelves in a small, carefully secured room a floor below his office.

The next step is to get all of it copied onto videotape and audio tape, which then will be available to students and other researchers, preserving the originals.

Kanter has long been lending material to students, colleges and even politicians, and one of the reasons he wanted the archive at the university is to make it accessible to even more people.

In addition, "I certainly want to see more material put together for classroom teaching use," he said.

Ultimately, Kanter hopes to oversee production of videotaped programs that teachers in high schools%and even elementary schools could use to interest students in political history.

The commercials "bring history to life," Kanter says. "The students of the future will get a much more per-sonal sense of the people involved in their country's history than they would from reading a book."

The political ads in Kanter's collection have changed over the years, and it's not just the candidates who are different.

For one thing, the old television ads are all on film, while those since about the mid-1970s are all on videotape. Kanter says that's not just a technical change - it has had important political implications.

Because videotaped commercials can be produced so much more quickly than those on film, candidates for the first time could address issues within hours after they arose, or could respond quickly to charges made by an opponent.

"The ability to produce overnight a commercial that is timely changed that aspect of campaigning," Kanter

The collection includes some commercials that Kanter considers real b%nchmarks in political advertis%ng. Among the best, he says, are those from the 1964 Johnson campaign.

"The LBJ people in 1964 realized two things," Kanter says. "One was that most voters most of the time make voting decisions based on feelings ... the other was that it's much more effective to capsulize an issue in an emotional way."

So the 1964 Johnson ads exploited yoters' preconceptions about Goldwater through heavy use of negative advertising, and they were presented in a dramatic, almost Hollywood-ish way, Kanter says.

Another benchmark campaign was Nelson Rockefeller's third run for governor of New York in 1966, Kanter says. "It was the best example of a really creative, affirmative campaign," he says.

"Most political advertising is to reinforce the attitudes you already have. It's very difficult to change the attitudes of voters, but that's exactly what Nelson Rockefeller's commercials did," he says.

Before that election, Kanter says, Rockefeller was perceived as having raised taxes and spent too much money. "His general perception according to the polls was so bad his people thought it would be counterin these ads. So he's not in any of the early ads. Then he appears in a voice-over and finally, at the end of the campaign, he came on in person to attack his opponent."

Rockefeller spent $16 million on that campaign, and he won big, Kanter says.

Although he's quick to talk about some of his favorite commercials, Kanter emphasizes that there is no right and wrong way to make a political ad and the archive's purpose is not to teach voter manipula-

"The more understanding we have into how people perceive the political process, the more the voting process will be helped," he says.

Geologists drilling test holes at likely radioactive waste dump

FORT HANCOCK, Texas (AP) -Geologists are drilling test holes on state land 11 miles northeast of Fort Hancock at what is currently considered the most likely site in Texas for a low-level radioactive waste dump.

The site is in rural Hudspeth County, about 75 miles southeast of El Paso.

Two other proposed sites in neighboring Culberson County were tested late last year but were not as suitable because of shallow bedrock. The Culberson County sites remain under consideration until the geological data have been collected and analyzed.

"The site near Fort Hancock appears to be the most favorable from the geological point of view," said Rick Jacobi, general manager of the state Low-level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority in Austin.

El Paso airport scrutinized

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - The security system at El Paso International Airport is under scrutiny after the break-up of an alien smuggling ring exposed a gaping hole, authorities said.

"People were boarding airplanes without ever going through the security check," said James Selbe, associate chief of the U.S. Border Patrol in El Paso. "Our main concern in breaking up the ring was not the volume of aliens being smuggled, because there weren't that many, but the security leak.

"This time it was aliens boarding planes. Next time it might be someone else."

George Perry, the airport's manager, said Wednesday "security as it is set up by the (Federal Aviation Adminstration) and the airlines is fallible."

'We're looking to see what we can do to prevent it," he said.

Selbe said the investigation into the alleged smuggling ring started about a month ago and culminated Tuesday with the indictments and arrests of three airport janitors.

Those indicted by a federal grand jury in El Paso were identified as Pablo Gallegos, 61,; Felix Botello, 55; and Jose Jaime Uribe, 30.

All three - charged with conspiring to transport, conceal, harbor and shield illegal aliens - are free on $10,000 bond each.

Perry declined to say if the Selbe said that because of the security risks to passengers on American Airlines and United Airlines, Border Patrol agents and airport security officers decided to break up the smuggling operation prematurely.

"We only arrested the hired help," he said. "We do not have the ringleaders and organizers in custody. We will get those people later. We wanted to make the airlines safe first."

80-year-old Angels coach remembers Babe Ruth

By KEN PETERS AP Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) -He fell in love with baseball as a schoolboy, constantly sneaking into a minor league park near his home.

"They finally got so tired of chasing me out that they made me a batboy," he says, looking back to the days of the Pacific Coast League's Los Angeles Angels.

Sixty-eight years later, Jimmie Reese is still in baseball, his love for the game undiminished.

"If I had it to do over again, there is nothing I would change," says Reese, the California Angels' 80-year-old coach who has become an in-the-flesh baseball tradition.

Each spring, the man with the snow-white hair, sparkling eyes and warm smile is a favorite with writers in search of a feature story. He patiently talks with each, usually recounting the days when he roomed with Babe Ruth.

An infielder who played three years in the majors and 13 minor league seasons before stints as a manager, coach and scout, Reese remains an avid admirer of "The Babe."

He also says Ruth probably did more for baseball than any other

"He made the huge sum of $80,000, and that allowed other players to say to the owners, 'Let's see, if Babe's worth $80,000, I'm worth $20,000.' It changed everything," Reese said earlier this week at the Angels' training complex.

"And after the Black Sox Scandal, a lot of people stayed away from baseball. But they came back to see Babe. When he just walked onto the field, you could feel the electricity in the crowd."

Reese also said Ruth never denied a youngster an autograph.

"I was going to have dinner at their house one night, and I sat in the car waiting for him for more than an hour while he signed autographs outside the stadium," Reese said. "He signed them all.

"His wife was mad when we were late for dinner, but it was OK when I told her what he'd been doing." Another frequent Reese topic is how the game has changed: He says some of the obvious differences are today's big salaries, the improved facilities, and the use of technical equipment.

"The game is basically the same as always - batting, running, throw-

Something else that's changed, he said, is that the players are more educated and require a different type of guidance.

"I think John McGraw would have trouble with the players today," Reese said. "That old type of roughness, where the manager was king, just wouldn't work."

DOC

The Italian's attitude toward wine as a natural complement to meals and as a part of everyday life has led to a wide variety of wines. Although Italy has always produced excellent wines such as Barolo, Barbaresco, Brunello, Chianti Riserva and others, standards of quality largely were up to the individual grower. This casual approach to winegrowing and winemaking began to change in the early 1960's. The government stepped in to establish controls for the best wines from each region. Legislation enacted in 1963 created the Denominazione di Origine Controlata (DOC) laws. These laws outlined specific place names and define viticultural districts. Grape varieties and minimum alcohol levels were also prescribed. The result has been a general upgrading of wines at

Records are no big deal

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Basketball Writer

To K.C. Jones, records are no big deal, even when they are 36 years

"It is rest and preparation for the playoffs that are important," the Boston coach said Wednesday night after the Celtics established a singleseason record with their 28th straight home victory. "A team in 1934 broke a record. Who cares? Twenty years from now nobody will care about this record."

The Celtics beat the Detroit Pistons 122-106 with an overpowering performance by their front line of Larry Bird, Robert Parish and Kevin McHale, who combined for 83 points and 37 rebounds.

"It's something that happens to be here on the way to the playoffs," Jones said of the record that broke the NBA mark for consecutive home victories established by the Minneapolis Lakers in 1949-50. "I really can't get into the record. I can get into what we need to win the ballgame."

But Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said the Boston players wanted the record.

"I'm sure the winning streak was in the back of their minds because they all played very hard tonight," Daly said. "I would rather have come in here on another night."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Philadelphia 93, New York 87: Phoenix 110, Golden State 101; Los Angeles Clippers 97, Utah 94; and Portland 121, Seattle 109.

Parish had a season-high 30 points and 18 rebounds, Bird had 29 points, the Bullets and came to life in a hurry.

He has been a productive player for the Bullets and Shue had this comment: "Leon is a worker. When we used to play the 76ers last year we'd get to the gym early and he'd always be on the court working out. I once commented he was an early bird and somebody told me he had already been there for an hour. That's when I knew we wanted him for our team."

Four of the players in the 1986 NBA All-Star Game were born outside the United States. They were Rolando Blackman, Panama; Patrick Ewing, Jamaica; Akeem Olajuwon, Nigeria; and Dominique Wilkins, France.

The Pistons played without guard Isiah Thomas, who missed his third consecutive game with a pulled left hamstring.

The Celtics now are 37-1 at Boston, equalling the mark for most home victories in a season achieved twice each by Philadelphia and the Los Angeles Lakers. If Boston wins its remaining six games, it will tie the NBA mark for best single-season record, 69-13, set by the Lakers in 1971-72.

Phoenix improved its playoff chances with a strong fourth quarter against Golden State.

Alvan Adams and Larry Nance, who had 31 points, 15 rebounds and seven blocked shots, scored eight points each as the Suns outscored the Warriors 37-22 in the fourth period to rally from a 79-73 deficit. 20 NFL players to do some wrestling

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Bill Fralic gets down into the trenches every Sunday of the National Football League season. Now he's headed for the ring, where the opposition won't be playing by the rules, and then perhaps toward a payday bigger than anything he'll earn for the Atlanta Falcons.

Fralic, an All-American tackle at Pitt before joining the Falcons last season, is one of five NFL players set to take part in a 20-man "Battle Royal" at 'WrestleMania II" next Monday hight...

Also scheduled to appear in the wild affair - in which 20 men enter the ring and the winner is the last one left after the other 19 have been thrown over the ropes - are William "Refrigerator" Perry and Jimbo Covert of the Chicago Bears, Ed "Too Tall" Jones of the Dallas Cowboys and Russ Francis of the San Francisco 49ers.

It is Fralic who has drawn much of the attention among the football players who will challenge the likes of Andre The Giant and Big John Studd. He's managed that through In a 1964 NFL game, Jim Marshall of the Minnesota Vikings picked up a fumble in a game against San Francisco and ran almost the length of the field to down the ball behind his own his verbal challenges to the wrestlers and his supreme confidence.

"I've been training for it and I think I'll be there," Fralic said, "much to the demise of the other 19 guys there."

Fralic could be sidelined for 'WrestleMania' by Falcons owner Rankin Smith.

"My owner is not sure if he will let me do it or not," Fralic told ABC Radio on Tuesday. "I'm going under the assumption I can. But there might come a time in the next week when he'll say I can't. If it comes to a point where there's a big disagreement between me and him, we'll have to sit down and think about it. As of now, he hasn't told me I can't participate."

Whether Fralic wins or not in the wrestling ring, he has another challenge on the board. Jim Abernethy, who is promoting

"Karatemania" on April 26 in Atlanta, has offered Fralic $50,000 if he will take on the winner of the Professional Karate Association world heavyweight title bout between champion Brad Hefton and Jerry Rhome. That fight is one of three PKA world championship battles set for the Omni during Karatemania.

A change for the better.

To be a good farmer, you've got to find the best products and stick with them. But when something better comes along, you know that in order to be the best, you've got to go with the best. That's why farmers all over the country are making a change to TR-3303 by Terra. It's a hybrid corn variety that always performs well at harvest time. Terra wouldn't put its name on it if we didn't think TR-3303 was the best corn seed available.

A better product. A high-yielding variety like

TR-3303 doesn't just happen, it starts with a good healthy plant. TR-3303 corn seed produces a medium tall plant with excellent stalk quality; its upright, erect leaves provide good ear retention that makes this variety produce strong, full ears of corn.

A better yield. At Terra, our corn varieties are proven best because we don't just settle for one year of testing. Terra's TR-3303 is proven dependable, because it consistently tests well year after year.

It's highyielding results make it one of the best to switch to if you're looking for maximum yields under a broad range of growing conditions. Farmers are taking their hats off to TR-3303 com seed by Terra, you'll want to, too.

Permafrost yields riches at mine

LUPIN MINE, Northwest Territories (AP) - Boom. A rumble from deep beneath the arctic per-mafrost shakes the hanging plants in the cafeteria of Canada's northernmost gold mine.

"Rub your hands together," advises Gary Garner, who has just finished his 12-hour shift in the mine. "That's money. Underground blasts, I like that sound."

Garner and his friends went back to watching a hockey game on television, one of an assortment of offerings available by satellite in the comfortable recreation center at the Lupin mine, named for a flower that grittier - dirty, cold, wet and noisy. Just 20 to 25 miners work on each shift, drilling holes, setting off exosives, carrying the broken rock in giant scoops to a crusher and hoisting it to the surface for processing in the mill and refinery.

"There goes another $500," says John West, the mine captain, as a load of crushed ore crashes down a chute after its 1,000-foot ride to the

"The money's good," said miner Ray Lavoie, when asked about his job. "It's dirty work, wet, but you get paid for it."

Lavoie worked 11 years in mines in his native Sudbury, Ontario, where he returns for his two-week vacation every month. Most of Lupin's employees work in rotation, 12-hour shifts for 14 straight days, followed by two weeks off.

bonuses, miners could count on an annual wage of as much as 90,000 Canadian dollars (about $65,000), mine officials said.

But because of stricter enforcement of government standards on worktime underground, the miners said they expected earn less this year, but still considerably more than they could make back home.

The ore at Lupin is richer than average — slightly more than a third of an ounce of gold per ton of rock. On international markets, gold sells for around $350 an ounce.

"You won't see any gold here," jokes geologist Ted Goettel, sitting in the lunchroom where hot meals are lowered 550 feet below the surface for each shift of miners. "Except in the bullion room. It's a nice sight, that 70-pound brick."

But still, the miners find a certain romance in the line of work.

"When I tell people what I do, they think of panning for gold," says Bob Gilroy, the mine manager.

During the 1985 Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Czechoslovakia, a Russian tank disappeared. The Soviets later discovered that four Soviet soldiers traded the tank to a tavern owner for 24 bottles of vodka.

TWA incident hurts tourism in Mediterranean region

By ROBERT BARR Associated Press Writer

Some vacationers canceled trips to the Mediterranean but travel agents said they were more concerned with the calls they won't get, from people who are too afraid of terrorism to plan foreign journeys this year.

plan foreign journeys this year.
Four Americans were killed Wednesday when an explosion tore a hole in a Trans World Airways Boeing 727 flying 15,000 feet over Greece, the latest in a string of terrorist incidents that travel officials said has increased fears of traveling abroad for many Americans.

The TWA plane, flight 840 from Rome, landed safely at the Athens airport 10 minutes after the blast and Greek tourism officials insisted that their islands were a safe destination and that security was now tight in the Athens airport.

Since last summer, a TWA jet has been hijacked to Beirut, 60 people died in the hijacking and attempted rescue of an Egyptair jet to Malta in November and 20 people were killed by gunfire at the Rome and Vienna airports in December.

"I just canceled two today because of what happened to TWA," said Roger Stratford of Murdock Travel in Sait Lake City.

"My problem is not necessarily canceling as not getting new bookings," he added. "We don't have near as much of that as business not coming in. And that (terrorism) is what we're attributing it to."

Greece, Italy, Egypt and Israel were reported to be especially affected by American concerns about tourism. Some agents reported a drop in bookings to all of Europe. Others reported a preference this year for Britain, Scandinavia and other posthers points.

other northern points.

"Greece is dead. That's completely out," said Catherine Ruttka, coowner of Robin Travel Agency in Edison, N.J., who said the only bookings she is getting are from GreekAmericans.

"After what happened in Greece strick today, I'm afraid all the money the Greek government spent trying to rebuild its tourism industry will be fice, it wasted," said Charles Bressler. York.

owner of Foreign Travel Inc. of Chevy Chase, Md.

But the Greek National Tourist Organization said it would continue with its advertising campaign urging Americans to visit.

"Americans' perception of the dangers of foreign travel are not based on the reality of actual terrorist activity, but are formed by what we see on television and in print in the immediate aftermath of a dramatic incident, such as today's, in which Greece was the safe haven for the stricken aircraft and not involved," Peter Martin, a public relations consultant hired by the Greek tourist office, told a news conference in New York.

He distributed a statement that said 5 percent of the 3,012 terrorist incidents reported in 1985 occurred in the Mediterranean and the Middle East, while 64 percent occurred in Latin America.

Citing reports by Risks International, a consulting company based in Alexandria, Va., Martin said that of the 27 million Americans who went abroad last year, 54 were killed in terrorist incidents.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHOM CAN YOU TRUST?

About that time the prophet Hanani came to King Asa and told him, "Because you have put your trust in the king of Syria instead of in the Lord your, God, the army of the king of Syria has escaped from you. Don't you remember what happened to the Ethiopians and Libyans and their vast army, with all of their chariots and cavalry men? But you relied then on the Lord, and he delivered them all into your hand. For the eyes of the Lord search back and forth across the whole earth, looking for people whose hearts are perfect toward him, so that he can show his great power in helping them. What a fool you have been! From now on you shall have wars."

Asa was so angry with the prophet for saying this that he threw him into jail. And Asa oppressed all the people at that time. (2 Chronicles 16:7-101

"God save the king" -- I know he does! He hears me from highest heaven and sends great victories. Some nations boast of armies and weaponry, but our boast is in the Lord our God. Those nations will collapse and perish; we will arise to stand firm and sure!

Give victory to our king, O Lord; oh, hear our prayer. (Psalms 20:6-9)

To you, O Lord, I pray. Don't fail me, Lord for I am trusting you. Don't let my enemies succeed. Don't give them victory over me. None who have faith in God will ever be disgraced for trusting him. But all who harm the innocent shall be defeated. (Psalms 25:1-3)

Budget cuts threaten 67,000 student loans

AUSTIN (AP) - The College and University Coordinating System Board says federal budget cuts may cost 67,000 Texas college students their student loans the next two years. According to an analysis prepared for the Select Committee on Higher Education. the federal budget reduction law will result in student aid in Texas being sliced by $54.3 million in the 1987-88 school

Gerald Hill, vice chancellor for governmental affairs for the University of Texas System, said the cuts will strip a portion, if not all federal aid, received by about 9,000 students at UT-Austin.

The coordinating board said the 4.3 percent spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman provision will eliminate increases in federal aid that had been scheduled for the 1986-87 school year.

State Sen. Carl Parker. D-Port Arthur, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said he doubted the state would take up the slack from the federal cuts because of the state budget crunch.

The coordinating board estimated 322,000 Texas students could have received student loans if the Gramm-Rudman provision had not been passed by Congress.

credited schools and to teach certain basic classes.

State to ease rules

Although the tighter rules were approved last month. they can be modified next week at the board's monthly meeting because they have to be approved at three consecutive meetings, Brumley said Tuesday.

The three Republican gubernatorial candidates have criticized the standards, but a spokesman for Gov. Mark White said there was no pressure put on the Board of Education to ease the regulations.

Brumley said the changes were initiated by Jack Strong, chairman of the board's Committee on Students, after several board members met separately with church school organization leaders to try to find a more acceptable alternative.

The new plan would require private schools to give their students standardized tests to prove they are being properly taught. A final draft of the changes has not yet been sent to board members, Brumley

"I think the new proposal will satisfy most of the people involved," he said.

Ronald Johnson, one of the top officials of Accelerated Christian Education of Lewisville, the largest supplier of Christian school material in the country, said students using the Christian program will do well on standardized tests.

"I really think this is a political issue," Johnson said. "Right now Mark White is being hit by the coaches and band leaders for no pass. no play. He's being hit by the teachers for the competency testing. He sure doesn't want to be hit by church fundamentalists, pastors and parents for these regulations."

Opponents claimed the original regulations would infringe of religious freedoms and force Christian schools to

Facility authorized to adopt wild horses

The Wild Horse Holding Facility near Muleshoe. Texas, has recently been authorized to adopt wild horses to qualified individuals. To announce this new feature, Paula and Randal Carr, operators of the facility, are holding a grand opening celebration on May 3

As part of this celebration a male, 2-year-old, red dunn, wild horse from Blue Wing, Nevada, will be given away to the winner of a "Name the Wild Horse Contest." All entries must meet the adoption requirements; entries meeting those requirements will then be judged on creativity and content.

(Each entry must include a completed application to adopt, the proposed name and 50 word or less essay on why that name was submitted and why the applicant wants a wild horse.) Children may enter if their parents or guardians submit the application and accept responsibility for the animal, if that entry is selected.

The celebration will also include an adoption of animals from yearlings to 2-year-olds. The adoption fee is $125 for each animal. There will be an antique swap show, an arts and crafts fair, tours of the facility, food concessions. demonstrations of horse breaking, videos of a wild horse round-up, entertainment in the evening and previous adopters will show their animals, andinterest groups and clubs will have displays and booths.
