RALIEGH HOUGH

Visit home brings back dusty memories

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Raleigh Hough just had to come back home to see if the wheat crop is as bad as he had heard it was.

It was. Hough was born and raised in the Wyche community south of Hereford. He's been gone for many years, and has been a successful wheat producer in the Fort Morgan, Colo. area for many years. At 78, he's still active with the Hough Wheat, Land and Cattle Co., 22 miles south of Fort Morgan.

He's in the middle of a tour through the wheat country. He went south from Fort Morgan, in the heart of the eastern Colorado plains, down to Hereford. He'll circle back to the south and east, up through Oklahoma and Kansas, then back west to Fort Morgan.

"Up there, in Fort Morgan, we're having a great year," Hough said. But you can draw a line east and west through Limon, Colo. Everything north of there is in good shape. Everything south of there, it's almost as bad as I've ever seen it."

He's seen plenty of bad, and plenty of good.

"Hereford was a little of 'bitty cowtown when I was growing up," Hough said. "Dr. LeGrand came out to our ranch to deliver me. He told my daddy to hang a lantern on our gateposts so he'd know where we were. He was a grand old man. He delivered babies all over the county, and had a drug store here, too."

the first bad years he remembers were during the teens.

"We were in a drought from the last of 1914, all through 1915, 1916, and 1917, then we had a three-day blizzard beginning Nov. 11, 1918," Hough said. "We had one snow right after another. Never saw the top of the ground 'til April."

Hough recalled how a man in the Friona area came to Hereford on a sled.

"He had plumb walked out of his overshoes," Hough laughed. "That ice was so rough, it cut the soles out. All he had were the four-buckles."

Much of the equipment the Houghs and others used on farms and ranches were still horse-drawn, but Hough remembers when the Model T became popular.

"Shoot, I remember when they put the two lightposts up in Hereford," he said. "We had one over here," he said, pointing to a spot on a desk, "and another one way over here. We drove from one to the other, just making a circle."

Just like kids making the drag today?

"You bet it was. And if you had a girl with you, you'd better take her and buy a nickel Coke, or she wouldn't ride with you anymore."

Later, he and his folks moved to Oklahoma. "I survived the depression by shining shoes and cooking."

Then he caught a break, driving for a man that was a scenic artist in the last days of the chautauquas. "I drove him around, and sold and collected advertising for him for seven years before the chautauquas folded."

He had a longing to come back to his old home, perhaps to buy the old home place with the $10,000 he had saved from his commissions.

"It was 1934, and I got out of my car and the dust came up over my shoe tops," Hough said. "I came back again in 1936. They'd just had a big rain, and things were going great."

But Hough didn't want to move back here. He floated around a bit, then finally settled on eastern Colorado, where he went into business in 1944.

"I was the fourth person in Washington County to summer fallow wheat," Hough said. "I decided a long time ago I wouldn't stick a plow in dry ground. I've only missed three crops in 44 years."

"We've had 20,000 bushel years some years. Of course, we're in a big wheat-production area up there. It's better there than in some Kansas counties, but some Kansas counties have the jump on us, too."

Hough, a former president of Colorado Wheat Growers, is a firm believer in "store as you harvest," and usually doesn't sell any wheat until the winter following harvest.

"I haven't sold but a quarter of our '88 crop, and I've still got some of the '87 crop in storage. I'm just waiting for a real good price, and I'm in no hurry to sell it."

Especially if the wheat up there is as good as he thinks it'll be, and the wheat here is as bad as it is.

"I know all of the country from Vernon, Texas, to Crosby, N.D., like you know the back of your hand," Hough said. "I know that if it doesn't get a bunch of rain soon, it's going to be like the Dust Bowl in a lot of places."

"But I don't think it'll hurt Hereford a lot. Not like some places. When we moved from here, this was a windmill town; there were windmills all over the place. When irrigation hit, mad, it changed. I've been here enough to know that it's come from nothing to something."

RAIN!

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

It wasn't a drought-buster, but every drop of rain that fell Thursday evening and early this morning was welcomed.

Hereford had officially received .88 of an inch of rain as of 7 a.m. today at the official rain gauge at KPAN, and most other rainfall reports in the area were in that neighborhood.

At Northwest Grain at Milo Center, Cal Mitts recorded .90 inch of rain and some small hail that fell in the storm that hit at about 4 a.m. today.

Other reports included .70 of an inch at the J.E. McCabe's near Dawn, .85 of an inch near Bootleg, and .60 of an inch at Easter Grain.

Dimmitt received .92 of an inch officially, while Flagg, about 25 miles south-southwest of Hereford, received three inches of rain.

Military beefed up in Panama

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) - Hundreds of American military dependents evacuated their homes in Panama after President Bush stepped up his offensive against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega by ordering in nearly 2,000 combat troops.

Bush on Thursday also recalled U.S. Ambassador Arthur Davis to protest the annulling of Sunday's election and the beating of the opposition presidential and vice presidential candidates by supporters of Noriega.

The crisis convulsing this strategically important country occurred after the government halted the counting of ballots Wednesday after claiming its presidential candidate, handpicked by Noriega, held a 2-1 lead.

A team of international observers headed by former President Jimmy Carter said the opposition presidential candidate, Guillermo Endara, had won by a 3-to-1 measure despite widespread fraud.

Endara, who was severely beaten Wednesday during a street protest by a group of thugs wielding two-by-fours and metal pipes, remained hospitalized today.

Several hundred U.S. diplomatic and military families on Thursday packed up emergency supplies of clothing and treasured keepsakes to seek refuge in one of the 10 American military bases.

"The problem is regime-directed gangs," said Terry Kneebone, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy.

Kneebone said there were no direct threats against U.S. personnel but that in the past the Panamanian government has publicized the neighborhoods where Americans live.

U.S. government figures put the number of embassy dependents in Panama at 152. There are about 10,600 military dependents, 972 of whom live off-base, according to U.S. Southern Command figures.

In addition, there are another 20,000 American civilians living in Panama, most of them retirees or in private business. Representatives of American businesses based in Panama, once a leading international financial center, were urged to evacuate their families.

Opposition vice presidential candidate Ricardo Arias Calderon, who was also beaten Wednesday, called the sending in of American troops "a U.S. policy provoked by Noriega and not sought by us."

Arias said action should be taken by the Organization of American States.

The 1,881 troops, making up a light division and a standard mechanized division, will join about 10,000 U.S. forces already stationed in Panama. Officials said it will take about a week to send all the reinforcements.

Panama's Defense Forces, headed by Noriega, number about 15,000.

Panamanian government television said Thursday the troop deployment is "within the framework of the aggressive policy" of the United States.

Rigoberto Perez, former secretary-general of the Revolutionary Democratic Party, the main pro-government party, said the government has no plans to get rid of Noriega.

"He is our leader. You don't change leaders in time of war," Perez said.

Drought's not over, but showers give relief

Hereford received an on-and-off drizzle during the day Thursday, with a couple of brief showers. Then about 4 a.m. today, many area residents were awakened by a thunderstorm that included rolling thunder, a brilliant lightning display and gusty winds. More showers fell in Hereford today, beginning about 9 a.m.

It was the first appreciable rainfall in the Hereford area since last August, and the forecast was calling for a chance for more rain today and a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms before skies become fair later tonight. Saturday will be sunny during most of the day with a 20 percent chance of late afternoon and evening thunderstorms.

The showers were in advance of a frontal system that was moving slowly eastward from the east side of the Rocky Mountains. The front provided enough instability, along with a good moisture supply, to build up the showers.

Band 'Pancake Day' is Saturday

Jeryl Baker, left, and his son, Jarrett, offer tickets to the all-day pancake and sausage meal to be served Saturday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. The meal will be served from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m., and tickets are $5 for one meal and $10 for three meals. The proceeds will benefit the Hereford High School band's trip next month to Washington, D.C.

Manor hosting open house

King's Manor of Hereford will be hosting an open house Sunday from 1:30-3:30 p.m. in celebration of Older Americans Month.

Hosted by the King's Manor auxiliary and staff, the reception will be held in the main hall. "The public is invited, and we especially encourage people who have volunteered time over the year to be in attendance," said Jim Conkwright, director of development for King's Manor.

Other events will be held during the month in observance of the month, including the choir from the Hereford Senior Citizens Center performing at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, and the Merry Mixers Square Dance Club performing at 7:30 p.m. that same day.

Many residents of King's Manor will be treated to meals by K-Bob's

Steak House and Sirloin Stockade during the month as well.

King's Manor features four levels of service, including child care that encourages interaction between the generations; cottages that allow independence for the residents; the manor's residency apartments; and Westgate, which provides total long-term nursing care.

Workers, TRLA file suit

Texas Rural Legal Aid has filed a lawsuit in federal district court in Amarillo on behalf of 23 migrant and seasonal farm workers who claim they did not receive minimum wage during the 1987 onion planting season.

The suit was filed against Americo de la Paz, a Dimmitt crewleader, and DeBruyn Produce Co., a Michigan-based company that was operating produce sheds in Hereford and Floydada during the 1987 season.

The suit charges that during the 1987 planting season, the workers did not receive the minimum wage of $3.35 an hour

Endowment dinner set

A fund-raiser dinner for the Deaf Smith General Hospital Endowment Fund will be held here Saturday night with State sen. Teel Bivins as guest speaker.

The $100-a-plate dinner will start at 7 p.m. at Hereford Country Club. Dr. Nadir Khuri is chairman of the event.

Counties want work on prison reform bill

AUSTIN (AP) - The Senate version of a prison reform bill that recently passed the House is a "much improved" plan, says a representative of Texas Counties, but work is still needed to address county concerns.

"We applaud the outline of what appears to be a much improved version," said Jim Allison, general counsel for the County Judges and Commissioners Association, which has been critical of proposed prison legislation.

But, he added, "There are many more steps required ... We need to keep in mind, this is only half of the equation ... the other half must come in the form of appropriations."

The Senate Criminal Justice Committee began work Thursday on its prison package, changing portions of the House bill that counties feared would indefinitely keep some state prisoners in county jails.

The Senate's changes must be approved by the House before final passage, and legislative budget writers must find money to pay for it.

"The purpose of the endowment fund is to secure future financial security for the hospital," said Dr. Khuri. Before the fund was initiated, he added, there was no way for people to make tax-deductible gifts in their wills or to make memorial gifts to the hospital. The principal in the fund cannot be used, only the interest.

Committee chairman, Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said public testimony would be heard on the Senate package Tuesday.

The House and Senate plans each call for construction of at least 10,000 new prison beds at costs up to $600 million.

The main differences involve the amount of bonds issued to pay for the prisons and new programs; quotas of prisoners the counties can send to the Texas Department of Corrections; and penalties that could be assessed for going over those allocations.

Clements says no to raise in cigarette tax

AUSTIN (AP) - Although some lawmakers say they think the state's short of cash to balance the 1990-91 budget, Gov. Bill Clements disagrees.

Clements also says there's no reason to consider raising the cigarette tax - or any other levy.

With some legislative leaders saying they might need to find $300 million to $600 million more to balance the 1990-91 budget they are writing, Clements was asked Thursday if that problem made a cigarette tax hike more attractive.

"It doesn't to me," he replied. The House has approved a $46.5 billion two-year budget, while the Senate's spending plan totals $46.75 billion. But lawmakers working on the final version this week said they still are short some of the money needed to adequately fund all state services.

Comptroller Bob Bullock several months ago suggested that raising the state cigarette tax by 7 cents a pack - from 26 cents to 33 cents - would generate about $166 million more for the two-year budget period.

If spent on certain human services programs, that money could bring the state an additional $274 million in matching funds from the federal government, Bullock said.

That would total $440 million, most of the total lawmakers this week said they still need.

Clements, during a brief news conference Thursday, disputed the $300 million to $600 million figure.

"I think if you will question the people who are active in the appropriations process in both the House and Senate, the difference in the budget is really not of the magnitude you are talking about," he told reporters.

"It's more like, maybe, $100 million. I think there's plenty of money," the governor said.

Wright aide resigns after victims tell of brutal crime

WASHINGTON (AP) - John P. Mack's desk at the Capitol is empty today, but questions remain about the balance between justice and forgiveness following his resignation amid a furor over his brutal attack on a woman 16 years ago.

A top aide to House Speaker Jim Wright and one of the most powerful staff members in Congress, Mack resigned Thursday, saying, "I wish I could rewrite the past, but unfortunately I can't."

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., co-chair of the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues, called the resignation "very sad" but "necessary."

"I believe in rehabilitation, but not when it leads to such a high position," she said.

While many people on Capitol Hill knew the Mack story, it resurfaced last week when The Washington Post published fresh details of the unprovoked 1973 attack in an interview with the victim, Pamela Small.

Small recounted how Mack, then a 19-year-old store manager, attacked her with a hammer, stabbed her with a steak knife and then left her for dead in her car. Doctors said she was lucky to survive.

At the time, Wright's daughter was married to Mack's brother.

Although he was sentenced to 15 years in prison, Mack served just 27 months and was given a job by Wright following his parole. He rose steadily from a $9,000-a-year mail clerk's position to become the $89,500-a-year head of the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, which sets the majority party's agenda in the House.

Wright said in a statement that he had been "willing to give this young man another chance, and in the intervening years I have never had occasion to regret it." The speaker, already under fire and the subject of a House ethics investigation, said Mack resigned without being asked.

Rep. Beryl Anthony, D-Ark., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said that after the victim's account was published, "There was an immediate reaction that went nationwide."

"I can understand the emotional outcry," he said. "I heard it from my staff. ... We heard it in congressional committees."

As executive director of the steering committee, Mack was a visible figure in the House, often working on the floor and running meetings for Wright.

House Majority Leader Thomas

Foley, D-Wash., said he was "very sorry" that Mack resigned, and called him "one of the most able and dedicated employees" in Congress.

"This society believes in forgiveness," added Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the House majority whip and a close friend of Mack's.

The two were even investors together in Dairy Management Associates, a business in Merced, Calif., Coelho's hometown, according to David Dreyer, Coelho's spokesman.

Others were less sympathetic, especially in light of Small's declaration that Mack had never apologized or made any restitution for his attack on her.

Last week, Rep. Lyn Martin, R-Ill., talked with Schroeder and Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, the other co-chair of the women's caucus, about what course of action to follow, Snowe said. Martin also broached the subject of Mack with Wright, an aide said.

"I think Mr. Mack made the appropriate decision," Martin said following the resignation.

On Wednesday, Snowe, one of 26 women in the House, said she drafted a letter to Wright, telling him "he ought to reconsider John Mack." The message to Wright was that he ought to dismiss his assistant, she said.

Snowe, who had obtained signatures from several other female GOP House members, said she never gave the letter to the speaker because Mack resigned, making the suggestion moot.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, said Mack's success on Capitol Hill "obviously upset some people."

"We all believe in rehabilitation, that's everyone's goal," he said. But he said society wants rehabilitated convicts to be "carpenters and plumbers," not high-ranking congressional aides.

Rainbows may be seen at night. Just as the sun shines through a sheet of falling rain to cause a rainbow, the moon can cause the same effect.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to respond to your reader who suggested the word "liaisonnaire" to describe a person living with another person without marriage. Several years ago the U.S. Census Bureau coined a term to describe the partners in such a relationship. The word is POSSLQ (pronounced possell cue). It stands for "persons of opposite sex sharing living quarters." Enclosed is a poem by the inimitable Charles Osgood that I hope you will think is cute enough to print.—A POSSLQ in Augusta, Ga.

DEAR POS: I did and I will. Thanks for tossing it into my corner.

There's nothing that I wouldn't do

If you would be my POSSLQ. You live with me, and I wish you,

And you will be my POSSLQ. I'll be your friend and so much more;

That's what a POSSLQ is for.

And everything we will confess; Yes, even to the IRS

Someday, on what we both may earn,

Perhaps we'll file a joint return

You'll share my pad, my taxes joint.

You'll share my life—up to a point!

And that you'll be so glad to do, Because you'll be my POSSLQ.

Come live with me and be my love

And share the pain and pleasure of

The blessed continuity, Official POSSLQ-ity.

And I will whisper in your ear.

That word you love so much to hear. And love will stay forever new. If you will be my POSSLQ.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How does one cut off a nonstop phone pest without offending her? I have a number of such acquaintances and they think nothing of taking up an hour or more of my time with their drivel.

They digress, repeat, go into endless detail and drive me up the wall. I often think the telephone is more of a curse than a boon. There have been times when I would like to rip it off the wall.

I don't have the nerve to come right out and tell these people how I feel, nor would I sign my name to this letter, but I would be ever so grateful, Ann, if you would print this letter and give me some practical no-nonsense advice. I'll sign myself—A Bunion on My Ear in Los Angeles

DEAR BUNION EAR: Why do you allow this? That's right. You read correctly. No one could do this to you without your permission.

A simple sentence, such as "I really must run now, but I do thank you so much for calling," should put an end to the conversation. Try it. If that doesn't work, say, "I MUST hang up now." Then do it.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Remembering Mom

Remember mom on Mother's Day Sunday by giving her roses. Four Hereford churches will be selling the flowers that day and giving all proceeds to the Problem Pregnancy Center. Four-year-old Todd Briscoe gives his mother, Trisha, a bouquet of roses he purchased from First Christian Church. Also, participating in the fundraiser will be St. Anthony's Catholic Church, First Church of the Nazarene and Saint Joseph's Church.

Car wash planned Saturday

Education process for action vital in today's environment

Public policy education should be designed to increase the level of understanding among people so they have more complete knowledge for making decisions on public issues.

This definition was given by Dr. Barry L. Flinchbaugh of Kansas State University, state leader in agricultural economics for the Extension Service in Kansas, who addressed a conference of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service here last week.

Flinchbaugh said, "Public policy is an identifiable action course hammered out in the political arena to increase satisfaction of relevant interest groups and to improve the general welfare."

He said the process is developed through debate and compromise by diverse interests with divergent views about economic and social problems and the government's role in dealing with them.

Flinchbaugh said issues relating to public problems often are stated in terms of symptoms or even a solution, rather than as public policy.

The Kansas said, "The Extension Service is recognized as the only objective game in town when it comes to policy education."

Flinchbaugh said, "Public policy education is where the action is, but it takes guts to teach in this area because it can get highly controversial."

He said many special interest groups don't want public policy education taught to everyone, since success of these groups depends on keeping the public uninformed.

The Extension educator said public policy teachers, to be successful, should advocate a method of non-advocacy.

Flinchbaugh said an outline for an educational approach should include selection of a timely controversial subject, a search of the literature and scientific studies, creation of a decision-making environment, definition of the problem, examination of alternative solutions and their probable consequences, discussion groups and then leaving selection of "best" alternatives to the public.

"In public policy education, participants also should learn the proper role of government relating to the issue," he said.

He said Texas is taking the lead in national rural policy work, with a massive effort by Dr. Ron Knutson, Extension economist-marketing and policy, and Dr. Dennis Fisher, Extension economist-business development, providing leadership through a series of state and regional rural development policy workshops.

Racing frogs

Students and teachers at Aikman School in Hereford try to prod "Pee Wee" and "Andre The Giant" to hop during a frog race held at the school earlier this week. The weather was a little too hot and dry for the frogs to go more than one heat.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

When a loved one passes, many families have the burdensome task of distributing keepsakes from the deceased. Wills are important and during these times serve as a guideline as to who will receive what, but a will does not mean that everyone will be pleased with the outcome. Sometimes a family member who really wants a special item will not receive it, resulting in hurt feelings, and possible family squabbles.

Certain family possessions hold special and fond memories. Some of these heirlooms can be of very little monetary value and others may be priceless. As one grows older or when the need for such items diminishes, they can end up taking much-needed space, not to mention the extra work and care they require in upkeep.

Many parents are finding much pleasure in giving their children family heirlooms earlier in life, while they can use and enjoy them. For instance, the silver service that is never used anymore because you don't entertain as you once did, would be a treasure to a married daughter who has admired it for years.

Give family possessions, when you feel the time is right, to the child or children you know will love, use and appreciate them. Doing this during happy occasions when all involved are present is a nice way to pass on the memories of a lifetime to the ones we love. Why not do it a little at a time, while you can enjoy the smiles and appreciation of the recipient.

My father and I "share" certain special treasures that we trade back and forth every so often. — Heloise

PLASTIC TRASH BAGS

Dear Heloise: As we all know, most plastic trash bags come in rolls. Here is what I do to save storage space and time looking for the roll when I need a bag.

I just drop the roll of plastic bags in the bottom of my kitchen trash can (I always make sure the trash can is clean), draw up the first bag, leaving it attached to the roll, open it and drape it around the top rim.

When it's full, I tie it shut, lift it up, and tear the plastic bag off of the roll, grabbing the next bag at the same time. The next bag needs only to be draped over the rim and it's ready to use. — Hyacinth Selders, Creighton, Neb.

LINT DISPENSER

Dear Heloise: I was tired of looking at a large waste basket by my clothes dryer which was near the entryway in my home. I finally removed it but then I had nowhere to throw the lint from the dryer lint screen.

Then I noticed a pretty designer square tissue box that was empty, grabbed it, wrote "dryer lint" on the top and placed it on the clothes dryer. That little box can hold quite a bit of lint and I can throw the whole mess away when it is full. It's much neater and nicer to look at than a trash can. — Margaret Durkee, Truman, Minn.

REMOVING CODES

Dear Heloise: I have found that the removal of the UPC (Universal Product Code) on plastic containers is easier if I partially soak the bottle in hot water or with a very wet cloth. I then pat it dry and affix a strip or two of transparent tape to the appropriate area, zip the UPC off and mail it in. — M. Vercauteren, Denmark, Wis.

Well, this does work most of the time, but we found we needed to rub over the area to be sure the paper adheres. — Heloise

Ryan dazes Royals, 6-3 All-Sport fete set Monday

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - After striking out 11 times against 42-year-old Nolan Ryan, the Kansas City Royals were left in a daze. "Great," third baseman Kevin Seitzer said. "Incredible," second baseman Frank White uttered. "Amazing," Manager John Wathan gushed. Striking out four of the first six batters, Ryan wound up with a complete-game, 6-3 victory for Texas on Thursday night in his first appearance in Royals Stadium in almost 10 years. He gave up five singles and walked only two. "He's just a great pitcher," said Seitzer, who had two of the singles. "It's fun to hit against a guy you know is going into the Hall of Fame." Ryan and Royals Stadium were both young in 1973 when he made the Royals the victims of the first of his five no-hitters. "He's still tough," Wathan said. "At 42, that is amazing to still be able to throw the ball that way." The Royals and their stadium will always occupy a soft spot in Ryan's heart. Thursday night's complete-game win raised his career record against Kansas City to 21-11 in 271 1-3 innings. That's more innings and more victories than he's compiled against any other team in his 22-year career. "I've always liked this stadium," said Ryan, 4-2 in his first season back in the American League after nine years with Houston. "I like the feel of this stadium. I've enjoyed playing in this stadium as much as any I ever played in." It was the 185th time in his career and the 12th time against the Royals in which he has fanned at least 10. "My fastball was working well tonight," said Ryan, who retired the last 13 batters. "I think I had command of the other two pitches, so I could go to one when I wasn't getting the other one over. If I rush a little bit, I don't have the strength I used to have to overcome it, and it shows." Mark Gubicza, 2-3, has suffered against the Rangers the way the Royals suffer against Ryan. With Pete Incaviglia jolting him for a two-run triple and a two-run single, Gubicza lost to the Rangers for the fourth straight time in his own park. "I didn't think Guby had his best stuff early," Wathan said. "After the four runs in the one inning, he threw the ball much better. Obviously, the balls Incaviglia hit were the keys." White was the only Royal who faced Ryan in 1973. He sees a little difference in style, but not results. "He threw harder in 1973. Obviously, he had to lose something over all these years," White said. "But what? He's incorporated a changeup and he has much greater command of his curve ball. He's a much more polished pitcher than he was in 1973." So, does that mean Ryan is easier to hit? "I don't think the word easy has any business in any statement about hitting off Nolan Ryan," White said. "He comes right after you. He says, 'Here, hit it if you can.'" After the Rangers took a 4-0 lead in the second, the Royals got two in the third on Seitzer's RBI single and Jim Eisenreich's sacrifice fly. In the fifth, the Royals had a run in and two on when Ryan fanned Eisenreich. The Rangers then got out of the inning when Kurt Stillwell was nailed at the plate trying to score from third on a double-steal. "When he got in that jam with runners at first and third, he was able to throw a little softer on Eisenreich," White said. "He threw him a changeup and then struck him out on the slow curveball. Those are things the old Nolan Ryan wouldn't have done. He would have just tried to blow you right out of there. The guy knows how to pitch." Bo Jackson struck out four times for the Royals.

Gill, Rattan vie to succeed Tolliver as Tech quarterback

LUBBOCK (AP) - Jamie Gill and Jason Rattan left Fort Worth-area high schools two years ago as two of the hotter quarterback prospects in the state. Gill led Hurst Bell to the Class 5A state semifinals his senior year. Rattan led Eastland to a 32-6 record during three seasons as a starter. Both have emerged as possible successors to Billy Joe Tolliver as the starting quarterback at Texas Tech. At the close of spring drills, Gill ranked No. 1 on the Red Raiders' depth chart. Rattan was No. 2. Coach Spike Dykes said the team should be in good hands regardless of how the quarterback situation unfolds. "Heading into the fall, Jamie Gill will be our quarterback," Dykes said. "He won't be field-tested until we have our first game, so we'll know more after that. We felt like he had a good spring and did the things we wanted him to do. "Jason Rattan made good improvement, too. So the book is not closed." Of the two, Gill is the only one to take a snap in a game. He completed 4 of 10 passes last year for 48 yards as Tolliver's backup. Rattan did not set foot on the field. Both were redshirted in 1987. Rattan admits Gill's experience from last season, plus his familiarity with the passing game, give his teammate the edge. "We ran the option at Eastland, so I hardly threw the ball," Rattan said of his high school days. "Adjusting to the passing game has been a big change for me. It's kept me behind. I've been playing catch up since I've been here." Rattan has progressed, Dykes said. But not at the same rate as Gill, who ran a pro-style offense in high school and threw for 1,752 yards and 13 touchdowns as a senior. At this point, coaches give Gill the edge in passing ability and reading defenses. Rattan is considered the better runner, although Dykes said he would not be afraid to run the option with Gill. Tech added more option plays to its attack this spring. "I think I fit into this offense pretty good," Gill said of the Raiders' wide-open attack. "I don't have as strong an arm as Billy Joe. But I've got better mobility and a pretty good arm." "The biggest thing for me is the mental part. In high school, you play on raw talent. In college, you have to develop every phase of your game to a higher level. I think I'm better at every phase of the game than I was in high school." Gill said he is prepared for the inevitable comparisons to Tolliver - an early-round National Football League draftee - if he wins the starting job. "You face adversity all the way through life," Gill said. "You just have to reach down and go for it." "It's a big jump from being a backup to being a starter, but I think I can handle it." Tech coaches are considering using both quarterbacks to some degree. Rattan, for instance, may become an option specialist who plays when Tech wants to grind down the clock with the running game. "That would be fine with me," Rattan said. "We both have an advantage over each other, so I think the coaches will scramble us around depending on the situation."

State track meet set

AUSTIN (AP) - Galveston Ball will have its "bionic arm" at the University Interscholastic League state track and field meet this weekend.

And the Tors hope their legs can fulfill their favorites' role to win the Class 5A team title for the sixth time since 1967.

Ball's Roy Smith will run on the school's 400- and 1600-meter relay teams with a broken arm he suffered in the regional meet two weeks ago.

Smith worked out on a stationary bike until Monday to allow swelling in his arm to dissipate but Ball coach Joe Denke says Smith plans to run in this weekend's events.

"He's wearing a brace and we call it the bionic arm," Ball coach Joe Denke said. "He says he'll run if nothing works but his legs."

State champions in all five classifications will be determined beginning tonight in the 79th annual event. State champions also will be determined in golf and tennis.

Class 4A girls' and boys' team championships will be named tonight. Teams titles in 5A, 3A, 2A and A will be determined Saturday.

Ball, with a potential 68 points, will be challenged by defending champion Dallas South Oak Cliff and Sugar Land Willowridge, who could score 50 points each.

Ball and South Oak Cliff are headed for showdowns in the 1600- and 400-meter relays but Denke hopes to have a comfortable lead before the relays.

South Oak Cliff has the fastest relay times in the nation this year with 40.18 in the 400 meters and 3:11.55 in the 1600.

"We've got two entries in the long jump so we're hoping to get some points ahead and take the pressure off the relays," Denke said. "We'd like to go 1-2 in that event (long jump)."

Ball's Patrick Bates is the defending 5A long jump champion and he'll be joined in their year's field by D'Mentric Lacy.

Sophomore Tracy Bryant also qualified in the 400-meter dash for the Tors.

South Oak Cliff's Martin Cannon was the second leading qualifier in the 400-meter dash.

South Oak Cliff's chances in the two relays were dimmed by the loss of John Jackson, declared scholastically ineligible under the state's no pass, no play rule.

Johnson has been replaced on 400-meter relay team by senior Gabriel Crew and freshman Sheddric Fields will run on the 1600-meter relay team.

Willowridge's chances rest with Mike Miller in the 100 meters, Joseph Antoine in the 200 meters, Allen Aldridge in the discus and its 400-meter relay team.

Dallas Carter junior Doyle Jones, who has the nation's fastest times this year in the 100 and 200 meters, also is scholastically ineligible.

State District Judge Scott McGowan Thursday denied Jones' appeal for a temporary injunction that would have allowed him to compete.

Rose will get hearing

NEW YORK (AP) - Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti will give Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose a chance to defend himself against gambling accusations at a hearing in New York on May 25.

Giamatti, who Tuesday received a 225-page report on the allegations from investigator John M. Dowd, gave a copy of the report to Rose's lawyers on Thursday, along with "seven volumes of exhibits containing depositions, statements, documents, reports, transcripts and other materials."

"Pete Rose has testified but is owed, in my opinion, an opportunity to review the report and its accompanying materials, and thereafter to respond to me, if he wishes to do so," Giamatti said in a statement. "Therefore, I have set a hearing date for two weeks hence, May 25, at 9:30 a.m. in my office."

Giamatti said he would not make a decision in the case until after the hearing, which is required by baseball's administrative rules.

Reuven J. Katz, one of Rose's lawyers, confirmed Thursday that he had received the documents. Giamatti, in a cover letter, wrote that Rose should not copy or disclose any of the materials.

Rose met with his lawyers at Katz's office in Cincinnati on Thursday evening. Katz refused to comment when he left the building.

"This commissioner has instructed us not to talk," Katz said. "We are not going to make any comment whatsoever."

Giamatti, in his three-paragraph statement, defended himself against criticism that the investigation, which began in February, was taking too long.

"Forty witnesses were interviewed and many were re-interviewed, including Pete Rose, who provided testimony over two days," the commissioner said. "The complexity, the amount of effort and the intensity of the investigation is reflected in the report and its accompanying materials. I am confident that the amount of time it took to complete the investigation and prepare the report was appropriate."

If Rose is found to have bet on baseball, he would be suspended for one year. If he is found to have bet on games involving the Reds, he would be suspended for life.

Leach to rejoin Rangers today

NEW YORK (AP) - The Texas Rangers are expecting outfielder Rick Leach to rejoin the team in Kansas City, Mo., Friday after completing a medical evaluation, a Texas newspaper reported.

An unnamed source told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Leach was examined Thursday by a Manhattan physician, but does not appear to have a serious substance abuse problem.

Leach, 32, who failed to appear for Monday's game against the New York Yankees, resurfaced Tuesday without an explanation for his 24-hour disappearance.

Leach had been scheduled to be the designated hitter in the game, which the Rangers won 13-2.

The Rangers filed a missing person's report on Leach and an ensuing police search of his hotel room produced a small packet of marijuana.

Leach was served with a summons in lieu of an arrest and faces a court date tentatively set for June 9. The charge carries a maximum sentence of less than one year in prison.

The Star-Telegram reported the medical evaluation included a urine test and a psychological exam, according to the source. More testing is scheduled for Friday.

"I can't talk about it," Leach told reporters about the evaluation.

"I can't say anything right now." "It's in their hands," general manager Tom Grieve said. "I don't know what took place in the evaluation. I'm waiting to hear what they tell us."

In previous cases alleging drug use, players found to have a serious problem were prevented from rejoining their teams and were asked to enroll in rehabilitation centers.

The evaluation was agreed upon during a Wednesday meeting attended by Leach, Grieve, a Players Association representative and major-league baseball executive vice president Ed Durso.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: In your column you discussed Hashimoto's disease or thyroiditis. You explained that this disease caused low thyroid hormone production. This was confusing to me since I, too, was diagnosed with this disease in November 1986.

My sister had Graves' disease and my mother, low hormone production. I went to see my doctor four months after giving birth to my first child and he felt my neck and noticed an enlargement. Then I understood my sweating and nervousness and loss in just six weeks of the 68 pounds of weight gained during my pregnancy. It wasn't a normal weight loss but the beginning of my disease.

After surgery, the lab reported that I'd been suffering from Hashimoto's. The doctor seemed surprised.

I have read that Hashimoto's disease destroys the gland as you said and causes a low instead of a high thyroid function. Was it the early stage of my disease that caused this high hormone production?

My sister had to have surgery repeated as her gland grew back. I believe my first pregnancy activated my disease and am now five months pregnant with my second child. I'm concerned that my gland will also grow back. Are my fears justified?

DEAR READER: Hashimoto's thyroiditis is inflammation of the thyroid gland, apparently from antibodies produced by a person's own body which attack the gland itself. It is the most frequent cause of low thyroid function other than radiation or surgery to destroy the gland. But Graves' disease, which is an overactive thyroid gland (hyperthyroidism), is also caused by antibodies that a person produces. Patients with Hashimoto's disease often have a family history of Graves' disease. Strangely, a person may start with Graves' disease causing an overactive thyroid and subsequently develop low thyroid function, so your story is quite within the range of what can happen.

I know you will be interested in both hyperthyroidism and hypothyroidism, so I'm sending you Special Issue 32-04, Your Thyroid Gland. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-04, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

The regrowth of an overactive thyroid gland rarely occurs after surgical removal, so I can't tell you it won't happen. This is a fairly uncommon complication so there is a good chance this will not occur in your case.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Studies show that over three-quarters of customers say that if they buy a brand-name product that becomes defective, they will avoid making other purchases from the same retail outlet.

Roaring Rhododendron

Oyd Ellerd of 123 Ranger in Hereford kneels next to the rhododendron which finally blossomed this spring after a six-year wait. The flower is extremely rare in this area, and originally came from the Northwest, where the plant flourishes. Ellerd said another plant had died this winter during a freeze, but this plant not only survived but totally blossomed for the first time.

INEQUALITY IN THE CLASSROOM

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) - Women students often defer to men students in the classroom, according to David Bleich.

Bleich, a University of Rochester professor of education and English, says, "Most young women speak only when they are recognized in class. The classroom is hierarchically arranged: first the teacher, then men, and women last."

He says teachers have to make a concerted effort to upset this hierarchy.

"In the classes I've had where there's an equal gender balance and there are one or two assertive women, the women can really take over discussions. That's something people are surprised at, but teachers have to let this happen."

A total of 242 pitchers worked in American League games in the 1988 season, a major league record.

Panel: all suntans have potential hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) - Those summer days spent soaking up the rays to create a glorious tan may come back to haunt sun worshippers with cancer and aged, wrinkled skin, a panel of experts said.

A National Institutes of Health consensus committee on Wednesday said current health studies show that suntans can lead to skin cancer, a weakened immune system and skin that wrinkles and ages before its time.

Instead of uncovering to bathe in the noontime sun, the panel recommended Americans avoid the midday hours of sunlight, wear shading clothes and apply generous amounts of sunscreen lotions.

Children in particular should be protected from overexposure to sunlight because skin damaged early in life is more likely to develop cancer later, the panel said in a report.

"All forms of tanning are potentially hazardous to the skin," said David Bickers, head of the panel and chairman of the dermatology department at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. "Tanning is visible evidence of injury to the skin."

Larry A. Schachner of the University of Miami paraphrased

Noel Coward to note: "Only mad dogs and Englishmen go out in midday sun. There are no healthy tans."

Bickers said the panel recommended that:

-Everyone avoid direct exposure to sunlight, particularly during the hours of 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. when the ultraviolet rays coming from the sun are the strongest.

-People exposed to sunlight should wear sunscreen lotion with a rating of 15 based on protection from ultraviolet B solar radiation. The panel said ultraviolet A radiation also is hazardous, though much less so, and lotions that protect against both types of UV are best.

-Tanning parlors should be avoided. People who do use tanning parlors should wear goggles to protect their eyes and should be aware that tanning lamps can damage the skin and cause adverse reactions in people taking antibiotics, hypertensive or anti-inflammatory drugs, the panel said.

-Though some people react adversely to chemicals contained in lotion sunscreens, the panel said the "risk-benefit ratio" favors the use of such lotions for people who must be exposed to the sun.

-Though Retin-A and other vitamin A-based compounds are widely used to treat the wrinkles in sun-damaged skin, Bickers said the panel found there was insufficient scientific evidence about "the long-term safety" of such products.

The panel released the recommendations after reviewing studies and hearing testimony over a three-day period. The panel included 14 skin and cancer experts from nine states.
