USDA official blasts pending farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the view of one of the Reagan administration's top agricultural policy-makers, Congress may be on the verge of adopting a bloated, ineffective farm bill that will do little to solve the problems of American producers.

Randy Russell, who is executive assistant to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, says in a position paper that "Congress has not learned from the lessons of the past or has chosen to ignore them" when it comes to farm legislation.

"The 1985 farm bill is quickly becoming a backdoor mandatory supply management program," he said. "It is arguable that we could not design a better farm policy to the benefit of our competitors than the existing programs that Congress is now ready to extend."

But defenders of traditional programs say farmers still need substantial guarantees and income protection to help them survive in a world of depressed land values and financial restructuring that has sent thousands of farms to the auction block.

In Congress, supporters of that

He urges philosophical shift view are running head-on into administration "market-oriented" advocates such as Russell, who say the time is more than ripe for a major shift in farm program philosophy.

The House and Senate Agriculture committees are proposing that the secretary of agriculture have discretionary authority to lower price support loan rates on major farm commodities to make wheat, corn, cotton and the other crops more competitive as exports.

But Russell said the committees have agreed to lower supports "by trading off price competitiveness for maintenance of existing levels of income support" provided through target price mechanisms for the various crops.

Two main features of crop support programs are loans and "deficiency payments" to farmers who cooperate in the federal programs. Often, in the past, those benefits have been linked to farmers cutting back on the acreage of certain crops, those that are in such surplus that prices are depressed.

Price support loans are made to farmers at relatively low levels, often with the idea that if market prices rise later on the farmer can repay the loan and sell his crop for cash. If market prices don't improve, farmers have the option of keeping the loan money and letting the government have the crop in lieu of repayment.

The target price is a bookkeeping goal used to determine the amount of federal subsidies farmers can get. If market prices drop below the target during a designated part of the marketing year, so-called deficiency payments are made to make up the difference.

In effect, the price support loan rate serves as a market floor price because the government will sop up all the surplus that cannot be sold at prices above the loan level. It also serves as a floor price of U.S. crops moving into export.

The administration wants lower loan rates to encourage a "market-oriented" flow of commodities from the farm to end users.

Russell said in his paper, which was made available to The Associated Press, that target prices need to be scaled back beginning in 1986. The House and Senate committees want to freeze them at current levels for at least two years.

The approach taken by the Senate and House committees, he said, "will not fundamentally change our current agricultural policy." Faced with growing farm program spending, the government will again be forced to implement large annual production control programs. In the last five years, those programs have idled 30 million acres annually.

"While our farmers reduced their planted acreage, the rest of the world increased its planted acreage, on average, by 15 million acres per year," Russell said. "During this period, U.S. agricultural exports of the major program commodities fell 30 million metric tons, while the rest of the world increased exports 20 million metric tons."

Russell also noted, "By lowering price supports, and thus market prices, and at the same time maintaining high income supports (through target prices) the legislation favored by the ... committees will establish programs for wheat, corn, cotton and rice which producers could't afford to turn down."

The result will be continued surplus production, followed by massive land-idling programs to trim output, he said.

"Foreign competitors will continue to increase their production and market share while we cut back and store our surplus — all at minimum cost to their taxpayers and producers, and enormous cost to our Treasury."

Cy Carpenter, president of the National Farmers Union, told members shortly after Congress left on its August recess that lawmakers need to be told insistently that "a positive

Japan sends four-man team to inspect grain purchase prospects in Panhandle

By MARGARET BELL
Staff Writer

Taking advantage of the opportunity to brag on Panhandle-grown wheat, Farmers Elevator manager Harold Dillehay pronounced it to be some of the best produced anywhere in the world. This was in response to a query by Paul Sone, associate director of Japan-United States Wheat Association and a resident of Tokyo, when he and other members of a trade mission team visited the elevator near Dawn Friday afternoon.

The four-man team, representing the government of Japan, came to Amarillo and vicinity to inspect local facilities and to learn more about the quality of grain grown in this area, according to a local host, Leo Witkowski.

"Although these men did not actually negotiate for the purchase of grain during this visit, they are the representatives who are responsible for buying wheat for Japan and the sale will come later," Witkowski said.

Earlier on Friday, the four were guests of the Amarillo Grain Exchange which gave them a guided tour of their facilities to demonstrate not only the excellence of local grains but also to convince them of the quality control methods used to assure the very best product possible. After their stop at the area elevator, the group returned to Amarillo to be honored guests at a dinner there. This social gathering afforded opportunity for informal visiting and questioning.

Area grain producers are pleased, Witkowski says, to have the team come directly to the Texas Panhandle for their information-gathering visit. More often, he says, they stop first at the grain exchange in Houston or go on to New York before coming into the actual areas of the United States where the grain is produced and harvested. By making their inspection tour informative as well as pleasant, the Amarillo Grain Exchange hopes to make such direct contact a regular occurrence. Japan buys about 60 percent of its grain imports from the United States, which makes them a highly valued customer for area crops, states Witkowski, a former president to the Texas Wheat Growers Association and presently a director.

Others in the tour group included Kenichi Ito, Yukio Kamei and Takeshi Nishihama. These men are associated with the Japanese Food Agency and with the Animal Industry Board.

Sone's questions reflected a keen awareness of the plight of the American farmer. For example, he asked, "What has caused the financial problems faced by this area's farmers?" Another query was, "Do the American farmers expect the Reagan administration to develop a good new farm program?"

Dillehay and Witkowski were quick to assure Sone and his team that area grain producers have experienced set-backs because of the high interest rates and low prices for their commodities, but also that the farmers have strong hopes that a program will come forth to help them during this time of adjustment.

Dillehay, in further presenting area products to the potential customers from Japan said, "I have tested the protein quality of our grain

Congress back to work on major economic overhauls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress eases back to work this week with a fresh call from President Reagan for an overhaul of the federal tax code, but many legislators say their constituents have other, more pressing, economic priorities.

While tax overhaul is first on Reagan's list, lawmakers say the public is more interested in seeing remedies for soaring federal budget deficits, the nation's trade imbalance and the faltering farm economy.

"Nobody's talking about tax simplification and reform. N-O-B-O-D-Y, nobody," Sen. Alan J. Dixon, D-Ill., said of meetings with the public in his home state. "The president's trying to make it a national crusade and nobody cares."

"Are people jumping up and down and saying let's have tax reform tomorrow? No," said Rep. Bill Emerson, R-Mo.

"Not one person is talking about taxes. Not one," said Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Mich. "What they want to know, No. 1, is what in the hell are those crazies in Washington doing about the deficit?"

After a recess that began Aug. 1, the House convenes Wednesday to conduct routine business while the Senate is waiting until Sept. 9 to resume work.

The indications are that Congress will be returning in a sour mood over its difficult autumn agenda and the prospect of a series of confrontations with the White House. Legislators also are still smarting over the budget brawl that produced an unpopular spending blueprint just before the recess.

Democratic leaders, seeking to avoid White House charges of being obstructionists, have promised to move a tax bill through the House in October.

French researchers find Titanic wreckage

PARIS (AP) — A French government institute says searchers using the latest technology have found the wreckage of the Titanic, the luxury liner that sank on its maiden voyage from England 73 years ago, killing more than 1,500 people.

The wreck was found 13,120 feet under water, about 560 miles off the Canadian province of Newfoundland, the Institute for Research and Exploitation of the Sea said Monday.

It was identified by a French-made submarine sonar system and American underwater cameras.

Owners had claimed the Titanic, the largest ship afloat when it was launched from Southampton, England, was unsinkable because it double-steel hull was divided into 15 watertight compartments.

Cave-in of ditch kills city employee

The sides of a five-foot deep ditch caved in late this morning, killing a 25-year-old city employee who was working in the ditch.

Danny Gallardo, 25, was cleaning an old sewer line on the east side of Hereford Ford Lincoln Mercury when the cave in occurred around 11 a.m.

Gallardo had worked for the city since January of 1980. He is survived by his wife, Donna, and a baby daughter.

Major crimes increased 10 percent

AUSTIN (AP) — Major crimes in Texas increased 10 percent during the first half of 1985, Col. Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety, said today.

All types of crime increased 8 percent for the same period. All of the four major crime categories showed increases. Aggravated assault was up 9.6 percent, murder up 8.7 percent and robbery up 3.1 percent, Adams said.

"Compared to the first six month of 1984, the crime rate for the first half of 1985 was up eight percent to 3,111.7 crimes per 100,000 population," Adams reported.

Motor vehicle thefts rose 12.4 percent, burglary increased 8.3 percent and theft was up 10.6 percent.

Adams said statistics show that 21 percent of the total crimes reported were cleared by arrests.

The value of property stolen during the six months was more than $565 million, with about $230 million recovered by police.

Adams said two Texas law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty and 1,733 assaults were made on officers during the first six months of 1985.

Driving while intoxicated arrests totaled 68,717, an increase of 2.6 percent. Drug arrests were up 14.4 percent to 31,913.

Gays gather to protest sodomy law

DALLAS (AP) — The light from their candles flickering against the sloped windows of City Hall as more than 1,000 people gathered to decry a court ruling they said spells doom for gays throughout the nation.

"I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it any more," the crowd chanted at the Dallas Gay Alliance rally Monday night held to protest a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that upheld Texas' sodomy law.

Alliance president Bill Nelson, urging people "don't let anybody tell you you are a criminal," applauded the large turnout in a city of predominantly white-collar, non-militant gays who still shy away from television cameras at rallies.

The gathering came only hours after an anti-pornography rally, led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell to protest the sale of adult magazines in 7-Eleven stores, marched down Dallas streets singing hymns and shouting anti-porn slogans.

Ironically, both the Falwell and gay groups sang the civil rights song, "We Shall Overcome."

Gays gathered from all over Texas — Austin, Amarillo, Tyler, Houston, Marshall and Wichita Falls ("Yes, there are gays in Wichita Falls," Nelson said.) — for the rally.

The New Orleans-based appeals court reinstated Texas' sodomy law, overriding its own three-judge appellate panel and a Dallas federal judge who said in 1982 that the law is unconstitutional.

The judges said the law is constitutional "in view of the strong objection to homosexual conduct, which has prevailed in western culture for the past seven centuries..."

"In 1½ pages, the court of appeals decided a major constitutional issue of our time," said Neil Cogan, a constitutional law professor at Southern Methodist University.

"We have been waiting — those of us who teach constitutional law and those of us who do civil rights work — for many, many years for a learned court of appeals opinion about this subject," he said. "We'll have to wait a little longer."

U.S., Canada haggle over lumber

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas foresters, hoping to boost the state's lumber business, are backing a Washington-based coalition's effort to persuade Congress to impose quotas, tariffs and duties on Canadian lumber.

But Canadian officials and some U.S. businessmen say the legislation favored by the National Coalition for Fair Lumber Imports will only raise prices for wood products such as newsprint and construction materials.

"Canadian foresters aren't the only ones that will be hurt by this legislation. Industries in the Southwest stand to lose as well," Canadian Consul General Douglas Branion of Dallas told the Houston Chronicle.

Branion's objections are shared by the Manufactured Housing Institute and the National Association of Home Builders, which told Congress in a letter that higher lumber prices would mean fewer housing starts and hurt the construction and trade industries.

Ron Hufford, executive vice president of the Lufkin-based Texas Forestry Association, said Canadian wood accounts for 30 percent to 35 percent of the lumber market in Texas and 32.7 percent of the national market.

Canadian timber shares an even larger portion — about half — of the timber market in Georgia and more than 50 percent of the Florida market, according to the Southern Forest Products Association, which has headquarters in New Orleans.

"We are very concerned and have notified our congressmen that TFA would like to see a resolution of the problem," Hufford said. "It will affect the person out there growing timber, along with 74,000 people employed here in East Texas."

Labor Day traffic claim 399 lives

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents around the nation claimed the lives of 399 people over the three-day Labor Day weekend, the National Safety Council says.

The council had estimated in advance that between 450 and 550 people could die in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday.

The Labor Day holiday is traditionally one of the heaviest driving periods of the year, according to the council.

About 400 people could be expected to die in traffic accidents during a three-day, non-holiday weekend this time of year, council spokesman Bob O'Brien said.

The toll last year was 441 over the Labor Day weekend.

The highest Labor Day death toll was in 1968, when 688 people were killed during the three-day holiday.

Life restored to satellite

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts swooped out of orbit to a pre-dawn desert landing today to end a sensational space salvage mission that restored life to a derelict $85 million satellite.

Commander Joe Engle and pilot Dick Covey guided the 100-ton space plane to a touchdown on a hard-packed sand runway at 6:15 a.m. PDT, nine minutes before sunrise, after a 2.9 million-mile journey.

High-intensity xenon lights had illuminated the runway at this flight test center earlier but were turned off before landing because it was light enough for the astronauts to see the strip.

"Looks like this bus is coming home," Engle commented an hour earlier as he fired braking rockets high above the Indian Ocean to drop the shuttle out of orbit and start it on a fiery dive through the atmosphere on a course over the Pacific and across the California coast north of Los Angeles.

Two loud sonic booms cracked as Discovery descended, its fuselage glistening in the rays of the rising sun as it circled overhead and made its approach.

3,000 jobless due to fire

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — A spectacular blaze that destroyed the industrial center of Passaic wiped out the jobs of up to 3,000 workers and left 500 people homeless, officials said today.

The fire, which one official said could prove to be the worst in the city's history, was controlled shortly before 1 a.m. today, about 10½ hours after it was reported Monday afternoon, said firefighter Robert Weiss.

Tests by the state Department of Environmental Protection and the federal Environmental Protection Agency showed that smoke billowing from gutted warehouses contained no toxic substances "beyond the normal range," Weiss said.

He said fears that burning chemicals could have produced toxic smoke heading toward neighboring Wallington in Bergen County prompted reports of an evacuation in that community, but officials there said no evacuation had been ordered.

Blue Law, seat belts

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

Okay, so we can shop on Sunday now.

Surely some churchmen will discuss this new temptation to desecrate the sabbath — while seated for Sunday dinner at a nice restaurant.

Somehow it's different, though, for the little waitress to go to work when the rest go to Sunday School than when the churchman's wife is asked to put in a few hours at the store on Sunday afternoon.

But no matter where we go on Sunday, we now have to wear our seat belts.

One time a local attorney from you guess which agency asked me if I felt any discrimination against me at The Brand since I was a "female" reporter. I assured her that there was no problem in that area.

But now, if she is still looking for a discrimination case I have one for her. She can sue those who have so blatantly disregarded women in their design of seat belts.

Now that it is the law to wear seat belts, it is the concern of many of the Jane Russell types for which Texas is famous that they will be outlaws if they don't or invalids if they do.

The shoulder strap does not cross-your-heart.

It does not lift, but it certainly separates.

And I can believe it is a seat belt.

It crosses about three fourths of the way over to the right, causing the natural cleavages from Palo Duro to Tierra Blanca to be flattened out like Nebraska. It feels like Death Valley, not the Grand Tetons.

Lingerie may revolutionize. The industry will have a boom because every woman in Texas will need new brassieres. The standard number and letter sizes will change to a number, left letter and right letter. The right letter will be significantly smaller than the left letter. The design will be fitted for the left's traditional form, but be revamped for an angular right.

Outer clothing will be styled to cover up the hash mark on the neck of short women where the "shoulder" strap winds itself into the jugular vein.

Evolutionists may speculated that the species of the next female generation will be born with one less of something other than ribs.

But I'm sure with fewer fatalities of car wrecks there will be someone who can design a safe, yet comfortable seat belt for the future.

CONGRESS

brainstorming retreat in rural Virginia next weekend with Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, will begin drafting tax legislation Sept. 17.

But Senate leaders are lukewarm to the idea of action this year, citing an agenda for the remainder of the year packed with explosive issues.

Other hot economic topics facing Congress include:

—Farm programs. Congress must renew a variety of federal farm programs that expire at the end of the month. The administration has insisted on billions of dollars in farm-program cuts, but legislators, Democrats and Republicans alike, have said that with weak commodity prices, plummeting land values and tightening credit, this is the wrong time to save money in the farm budget.

—National debt limit. Treasury Department officials are scheduled to appear before a Senate Finance subcommittee Sept. 10 to officially request an increase in the current debt limit of $1.824 trillion. The budget Congress adopted Aug. 1 estimated the government's borrowing needs would require a debt limit of $2.078 trillion for next year and up to $2.5 trillion by 1988.

John Niehenke, acting assistant Treasury secretary for domestic finance, has said the administration will be seeking the increase because the government likely will hit the limit of its authority to borrow money by the end of September.

farm bill to increase farm income" is needed.

"They need to do what is necessary and not to fold under the budget pressures which are being used to force farm prices even lower," Carpenter said.

"Whatever the budget cost may be," he said, "what the nation can't afford is to let the economic crisis on the farms get even worse."

Paying the price for busing

Someday surely an enlightened generation of Americans will recognize the futility of crosstown school busing; meanwhile we are paying a terrible price for it. California—just to rebuild or replace old, unsafe school buses—will have to tax itself another $400 million!

The highest price is the indignity of it. Prof. Walter Williams says the education establishment should be ashamed of itself for promoting the noxious notion that "to educate black kids you have to go out and capture white hostages to sit beside them..."

Another black educator, Prof. Bruce Hare, remembers that the original litigants in the 1954 and 1955 cases never intended to oppose neighborhood schools.

And even today, most black parents would much rather have their children in educationally defective integrated schools.

Supporting this conclusion is the fact that some of the highest achieving schools in the city of Chicago—with the best grade averages—are all black.

If it is now agreed that crosstown busing for purposes of race mixing has diminished education opportunity rather than enhanced it...

If the purpose and promise of forced busing have proved self-defeating...

Let's consider the peripheral costs. The total output of more than 100 average oil wells goes into the tanks of school buses every day.

That drains energy reserves and strains school system budgets mercilessly.

And while the makers and replacers of our nation's enormous fleet of school buses will not applaud my mention of this next: THEY ARE DANGEROUS.

In 1972 more than a hundred schoolchildren were killed in or around school buses.

In 1973 60 were killed inside and 65 outside school buses.

Through the rest of the 1970s the numbers averaged a hundred-plus dead children per year.

The numbers are some less since industry improvements in the buses themselves but still enough so that Department of Transportation safety officials are recommending "backward-facing" all bus seats for added safety.

With members of Congress reluctant to take on any race-sensitive issue, what's needed next is a new grass-roots test case which somebody has the patience and the money to pursue all the way.

We are inclined to forget that the Supreme Court has reversed itself many times when one of its opinions proves to have worsened the condition it sought to correct.

Review courses offered locally

The Texas Classroom Teachers Association, in cooperation with the University of Texas, is offering an extensive review course locally to help prepare teachers for the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (called TECAT or competency test).

The course will be offered on either Sept. 21 or Sept. 28 in Hereford. To enroll for either of the dates, teachers should contact Tricia Sims at 364-2774 or Marc Williamson at 364-0606 before this Friday. The cost of the course will be $25.

Each teacher in the course will receive a comprehensive study guide and instruction.

CTA reminds that all certified teachers will need to take the competency test. Certified teachers not currently teaching in a state supported school will be expected to take the test before they can be certified for any state teaching position.

The test date for public school teachers is March 10, 1986. Those persons not currently teaching will be allowed to take the TECAT in the summer of 1986.

Child's eating habits discussed

A child's eating habits can be a source of constant worry for parents. If you think your child overeats, undereats, is overweight or too thin, it's a good idea to check with your family doctor. A physician can use growth charts and medical tests to determine your child's growth rate. If the child is found to be growing well with no weight problems, you can stop worrying.

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What can be done about itchy varicose veins? The prescribed ointments used to help, but the itching keeps getting worse.

DEAR READER — The skin over varicose veins usually has poor circulation, since not enough oxygen and nutrients are delivered. This sets the stage for a sequence of events starting with an itchy rash and culminating in sores or ulcers of the skin. Most of these skin changes can be managed by the use of elastic support stockings and anti-irritant moisturizing creams. However, if your legs are getting worse, you may have to consider having the varicose veins surgically removed by a stripping procedure. See a good surgeon and at least get his opinion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is there an antibiotic that can be purchased without a prescription? I have had septal reconstruction and allergy shots for years, but I still have a sinus infection all the time. I live on antibiotics.

DEAR READER — In the United States, antibiotics are available only by prescription. This is because they are powerful medicines and should only be used for specific conditions under medical supervision.

I am concerned that you "live" on antibiotics. While the drugs are useful, they are not necessarily the answer to everyone's prayer. In addition, their prolonged use can cause internal problems.

Although allergy shots may be a pain — both figuratively and literally — they are probably an important part of your treatment. If you do have chronic sinus infection, it may be due to continuing sinus blockage. This condition may be helped either by having your sinuses washed out or by correcting the obstruction. Both options can best be evaluated by an ear, nose and throat specialist. If your otolaryngologist has thrown up his hands and tossed your repeated prescriptions for antibiotics, you may wish to ask for a referral for a second opinion.

Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutrition specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says children often go on eating jags, eating mostly one or a few foods for several days.

"Eating jags are usually temporary," Cooksey says, "so continue offering good nutritious food in a pleasing way."

When a child doesn't eat much, this may be a normal "slowdown" stage of growth. Eating will increase as nutrient needs increase, she explains.

If obesity is a problem, check to see whether your child is eating too many high fat or sweet foods, or just too much food. Are snacks nutritious or do they contribute excess calories? Does your child get enough exercise? Is too much time spent at quiet activities that use few calories? The nutritionist points out that many overweight children have one or more overweight parents, and children often follow their parents' eating habits. If this is the case in your family, she advises including more fruit, vegetables and low-fat foods such as skim milk, lean meats and broiled or baked foods in the family meals instead of sweets and other high-fat, high-calorie foods.

Some parents think all children need extra nutrients from vitamin pills or drops. But most children who eat a varied diet of meat, poultry and fish; breads and cereals; fruits and vegetables; and dairy products; get enough nutrients, Cooksey says.

Children who have eaten poorly balanced diets for a long time may require supplements, but let your doctor decide whether vitamins or mineral supplements are needed, advises the specialist.

Five major food stores to participate in festival

The American Heart Association wants Texans to think twice as they walk down the aisle...the grocery store aisle that is.

From Sept. 8th through 14th, more than 700 supermarkets in Texas will participate in American Heart's Food Festival. Developed by the American Heart Association (AHA), the Food Festival focuses attention on the selection of foods that meet AHA dietary guidelines.

In Texas, H.E.B., Tom Thumb and Tom Thumb-Page, Kroger, Albertson's and Safeway stores will conduct Food Festival activities. They will provide "help your heart" messages on grocery bags, display window posters promoting the Festival, have their employees wear stickers to promote the event, use print ads and other literature providing nutrition messages.

Other activities will also be carried out within the stores. Activities can include cooking demonstrations, tours of the store to learn how to read nutrition labels on food packages, how to select a good lean cut of meat, and ways to make food substitutions for a more nutritious diet.

American Heart's Food Festival is the first national health awareness project held cooperatively by a national health agency and supermarkets. According to William L. Winters, Jr., M.D., President of the Texas Affiliate of the AHA, "The week-long event is aimed at creating awareness of nutrition. While a consumer will probably not make any major dietary pattern changes in one week, we hope that through this event people will become aware of the role diet plays in their overall health."

The American Heart Association's guidelines for wise eating patterns emphasize weight control; a limited intake of cholesterol, saturated fats, refined sugar and sodium; and the assurance that the diet includes a variety of foods.

An obvious place to begin to integrate these guidelines into a person's lifestyle is at the grocery store—the place where Americans make the majority of their decisions on food selection. The Food Festival will provide consumers with information on how to improve their diets yet enjoy a full assortment of delicious foods.

"This is the beginning of what we hope will become an annual nutrition awareness event," said Dr. Winters. "The project is one way the American Heart Association is able to provide service to the people of Texas."

Don't cater to him

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 17 years old. I would have been a high school senior if I hadn't quit six months ago. I moved out of my parents' house (after several arguments about late hours, etc.) and moved in with my boyfriend. Arnie and I became engaged.

After a few months I felt uncomfortable about so many things we decided to move a thousand miles away to the West Coast.

Suddenly I realize how immature I am and what a foolish thing I did. I miss my folks and my friends and want to go back home and be a kid again. The problem is that Arnie's parents live out here and they are counting on us getting married. They've made plans and I hate to disappoint them. Meanwhile my parents are begging me to come back and finish school.

Last night when I told Arnie I was going home, he said he would kill himself if I left. I'm terrified and can't think straight. I would never forgive myself if I was responsible for Arnie's suicide.

I've grown up reading your column and I really need you now. Please help me.—NAMELESS IN SUNNY CALIFORNIA

DEAR NAMELESS: People who threaten suicide in an attempt to control others should not be catered to. Don't go for it. Tell him you are leaving and he can do whatever he pleases. Then go.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We love spending time at our summer home on Lake Michigan. It's a heavenly spot. But we are disgusted with the slob who brings shampoo, soap and towels to take an entire bath in the lake. Their scum floats on the water where people are swimming. Gross! I maintain they are polluting the water and should be fined.

What can be done about these slob? I want them to be forced to wash their armpits at home, or face the penalty for polluting the lake. Any chance of the law getting into the act?—DISGUSTED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR DISGUSTED: We checked with Raymond Rimkus, General Superintendent of the Sanitary District in Chicago. He said the ordinance reads: "There shall be no discharge of sewage, industrial waste or other wastes of any kind into the waters of Lake Michigan. Anyone found abusing this ordinance could be cited and brought before a hearing committee."

The slob you describe can be nailed for contributing "other wastes" to Lake Michigan. Someone must report them and the authorities must catch them in the act. If you are sufficiently agitated to go to the trouble—do it.

Lung Association helps smokers get 'In Control'

"In Control" is the easy modern way to stop smoking in the privacy and comfort of your own home.

"In Control" is a stop smoking program on video cassette, produced by the American Lung Association, the Christmas Seal People. It's based on the most recent smoking and nicotine research available. It's easy to use.

First you decide when you want to quit. Then you are taught how to quit before you actually do it. You are given specific "tools" to use in coping with withdrawal symptoms—breathing and relaxation exercises, imagery, positive and negative coping thoughts and a wide variety of pleasurable alternatives to smoking.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say a few words to that idiot who wants to change the national emblem from the eagle to the owl, but I am not as good with words as you are, Ann. So please put it in your own language.

The idea I want to get across is that you cannot soar with eagles in the morning when you hoot with the owls at night.—BIRD LOVER IN NASHVILLE

DEAR LOVER: You don't need any help from me. You got the idea across just fine.

What are the do's and don'ts of teaching your child about the birds and the bees? Let Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex," give you the ground rules. For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The use of nicotine gum is discussed. You watch one nine-minute segment each day for 13 days. Each segment is different. Each gives motivation, encouragement, and specific techniques on how to become a permanent ex-smoker.

"In Control" includes a two-hour VHS video cassette, a 124-page Viewer's Guide and an audio relaxation tape. A $60 contribution is requested.

To get your smoking habit "In Control," contact the American Lung Association of Texas at 7701 N. Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin, Texas or call 1-800-252-LUNG. It's a Matter of Life and Breath."

Most colleges try to keep alumni within recruiting rules

By The Associated Press
Colleges and universities nationwide are reining in alumni and other boosters who might violate recruiting rules in trying to lure high school stars to their favorite campus, an Associated Press survey has found.

While no schools were found to be following the University of Georgia's lead of asking athletic boosters to sign statements pledging to not violate NCAA recruiting rules, many say they are taking serious steps to educate their followers about how to deal with young prospects.

"We're in a great morality kick and that's good," Michigan football Coach Bo Schembechler said.

Handing out probations to schools, Schembechler said, has not been enough to stop cheating.

"You've got to fire the people who do it," including school presidents, Schembechler added.

Under NCAA rules, alumni, boosters or other "representatives of the university's athletic interests" are limited to writing or telephoning prospects or meeting with them on the college campus.

"If the coaching staff takes a recruit to dinner off campus within a 30-mile radius, which they are allowed to do, a alumnus or booster cannot be at that dinner," said Janice Wenger, a member of the NCAA's legislative service staff.

Over the last five years, a majority of the cases resulting in punishment for recruiting violations have involved boosters or alumni, according to Dale Smith of the NCAA's enforcement office.

"Sometimes boosters are a major factor. Other times they are involved in minor circumstances," Smith said. "But it's fair to say that a majority of the cases involve representatives of the university's athletic interest."

At Michigan, Schembechler said he and Athletic Director Don Canham keep a tight hold on booster clubs.

"I've controlled my alumni since the day I walked in here (16 years ago)," he said. "These guys who say they don't know what their alumni are doing are unbelievable. They know."

Other schools say they don't worry about their booster clubs because they've been "clean" in the past.

"We don't really have the kind of boosters that get involved in what we're talking about (rules violations)," Penn State Athletic Director Jim Tarman said.

"We don't involve the boosters in our recruiting," University of Nebraska recruiting coordinator

Steve Peterson said. Southern California wants the help of the boosters at the same time it wants to control them.

"We're trying to formulate a plan on how to approach alumni and make sure they are informed as to what the NCAA rules entail," said Dick Laguens, athletic recruiting coordinator at Southern Cal, "and at the same time have them involved in the recruiting process. We want them involved, we want them to be supportive, yet we want them to be informed of what they can do for us within the guidelines of the NCAA rules."

Most schools felt their boosters sincerely want to help their school while staying within the rules.

"We've found that our people want to help us any way they can within the framework of the NCAA," Arizona sports information director Butch Henry said. "I think the vast, vast majority of all the people we run into want to do only what's right to help us."

The major league baseball record for games played at the shortstop position is 2,218 by Luke Appling, who hit .310 for the Chicago White Sox (1930-50). Appling's nickname was "Old Aches and Pains."

Several major league baseball players to testify in drug trial

By ALAN ROBINSON AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Major league baseball players, including some involved in pennant races, are expected to testify under oath about cocaine use in and around major-league locker rooms during the trial of a former Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse caterer named in 16 drug-distribution charges.

Jury selection was to begin today in the trial of Curtis Strong, 38, known as "Chef Curt" and described by his lawyer as a man who valued his friendships with well-known players. Strong was one of seven Pennsylvania men indicted May 31 following a grand jury investigation of cocaine trafficking involving players.

Federal sources, speaking only on the condition they not be named, said an undisclosed number of players were asked by the grand jury from whom they purchased cocaine, the dates and approximate times of the deals and the location.

Players reportedly made frequent cocaine transactions in and around Three Rivers Stadium and at least three Pittsburgh-area bars known to be frequented by Pirate players and other National League players.

The indictment against Strong alleged the bulk of his cocaine sales were made while the Pirates were at home playing the Phillies, San Francisco Giants, Montreal Expos, St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Astros.

Prosecutors have only named one player — Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Rod Scurry — as being involved in the cases against the seven men, three of whom already have pleaded guilty.

Scurry, who underwent drug rehabilitation last year, was prepared to testify that he purchased cocaine from Dale M. Shiffman, 33, of suburban Pittsburgh, on at least 19 different occasions in 1982 and 1983, prosecutors said at an Aug. 19 hearing.

Scurry was suspended briefly by the Pirates this season for failing to follow his drug rehabilitation program.

Several of baseball's best-known players may be called away from their teams this week to give testimony, according to court papers filed by U.S. Attorney J. Alan Johnson last Friday before U.S. District Judge Gustave Diamond.

Johnson, who will prosecute the case along with assistant U.S. Attorney James J. Ross, said nine current players and one former player may be called to testify. All received immunity from prosecution in return for the testimony before a federal grand jury.

Included on the list were Dave Parker of the Cincinnati Reds, Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets, Dale Berra of the New York Yankees, Al Holland of the California Angels, Scurry, Lee Lacy of the Baltimore Orioles, Jeff Leonard of the San Francisco Giants, Enos Cabell of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Lonnie Smith of the Kansas City Royals and former Pirate outfielder John Milner, who is retired.

Parker, Berra and Lacy are former Pirates. Holland pitched for the Pirates this season, but testified before joining the team.

Strong, once called "a baseball groupie" by his lawyer, Adam Renfro Jr., worked for five days in April as a Phillies clubhouse caterer — reportedly on the recommendation of Holland — until being asked to quit.

Jury selection could be lengthy because of the heavy publicity the case has received. Player testimony won't be heard until at least Wednesday.

Three of the men indicted by the grand jury — Kevin Michael Connolly and Thomas Patrick Balzer, both 27 and from Pittsburgh, and Shiffman — pleaded guilty to charges rather than stand trial.

Connolly received a three-year jail term and Balzer a two-year term, while Shiffman has yet to be sentenced. Three other men indicted by the grand jury have yet to go to trial.

Grapevine faces growing pains

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Grapevine, only a small town until the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport was built in its backyard, is facing a population boom — and the problems that usually accompany growth, officials say.

Residents say they have enjoyed the benefits of small-town life, such as low taxes and sparse traffic, while having easy access to Dallas and Fort Worth.

"There's the feel of a hometown here, where people know each other and work together and live together," said Peggy Engholm, a homemaker and teacher.

"This is not a bedroom community," she said. "We do have people who sleep here and do all their living in Dallas and Fort Worth, but we also have a lot of people who want to invest their time and their lives here."

The population, which stood at 14,500 in 1981, has jumped to 20,900. By 1990, the town will have 29,000 residents, according to research by the North Central Texas Council of Governments.

By the year 2000, the population is expected to reach nearly 50,000, the council says.

The airport is located within Grapevine's boundaries and the city derives a large tax income from the airport's hotels and parking lots.

However, the City Council faces a vote today on a tax rate increase from 40 cents per $100 evaluation to 49 cents. Officials say the extra money is earmarked towards the increased upkeep demanded by the recent growth.

While the town is encouraging development, it also has enacted some measures aimed at avoiding some of the less attractive aspects of growth.

The Main Street program, now in its second year, is designed to pull in new businesses to Grapevine's downtown area. Business owners are stripping the paint from their brick buildings and putting up new awnings, giving the area a fresh turn-of-the-century look.

"We're starting to get aggressive in economic development," program director Mary Ellen Tamasy said. "This is not just cosmetic."

Other business developments include two large shopping centers.

Meanwhile, some residents have organized homeowner leagues in an effort to preserve the area's semi-rural lifestyle. The organizations actively back candidates for city office who favor low-density development.

Two years ago, the city declared a moratorium on new building permits until a new master building plan was approved. This year, Grapevine was given the merit award from the Texas chapter of the American Planning Association for outstanding contributions in planning.

"When it all started, people who owned land were mad and angry and apprehensive," said Sharron Spencer, who headed the planning and zoning commission during the study and later landed a seat on the City Council.

"Now, even realtors and developers have said that when this is all said and done, we'll look back on it as probably the smartest thing we could have done," she said.

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

PASADENA, Texas — More than seven years after he allegedly shot and killed a Pasadena man, Edward Harold Bell continues to be one of the most sought-after fugitives in Texas.

Bell, who was the first fugitive selected to the Texas Most Wanted list last January, is once again publicized by the program in hopes that new information might lead to his capture.

As a result of the publicity surrounding Bell when he was first selected to the Most Wanted list, the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council received a large number of calls from citizens throughout the state. Many of the calls involved people who looked very similar to Bell. Ironically, one tip assisted police in the investigation of a rape case in the Amarillo area.

Other tips determined that Bell had apparently been in the Dallas areas as recently as one year ago.

A former diesel mechanic, construction worker and pharmaceutical salesman, Bell is wanted for failure to appear in court on charges of Murder and four counts of Indecency with a Child.

The charges stem from an incident in Pasadena on August 24, 1978.

Police reports indicate that a heavy-set white male was exposing himself to children in a residential area of Pasadena.

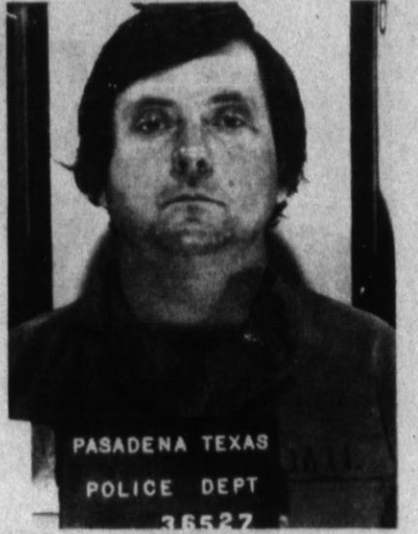

Larry Dean Dickens, 26, the father of a young girl, was visiting his mother's home and saw the man exposing himself. Dickens went outside and grabbed the keys to the suspect's truck in an effort to detain him for police.

It was a brave act that cost Dickens his life.

Police say the suspect saw Dickens and pulled out a pistol and began shooting at the young man. Dickens staggered into the garage at his mother's home and collapsed on the floor with his wounds. Witnesses say the offender then pulled a rifle out of his truck, walked into the garage and — ignoring pleas from Dickens' mother that her son's life be spared — shot the young father in the head at close range.

A short time later, police apprehended Edward Harold Bell as he was driving away from the area.

Bell is described as a white male, 5-11 220 pounds, with brown hair and hazel eyes. When he failed to appear in court to stand trial on January 8, 1979, Bell forfeited a $125,000 bond.

Fifteen-year-old Annie Moore was the first passenger to land at the Ellis Island immigration station in New York.

She arrived on Jan. 2, 1892, on the steamship Nevada which brought 148 passengers from Ireland. After she was registered as the first immigrant to arrive at the new station, she was presented with a $10 gold piece as a souvenir.

The historic immigration was operated until 1954 when it was declared surplus government property.

Professor Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, a Hungarian scientist, won a Nobel Prize in 1937 for his experiments with paprika. He discovered a group of substances in paprika called bioflavonoids which have been found valuable in maintaining the health of the body's capillary system.

Nearly half of Americans think there is life on other planets

NEW YORK (AP) — About half of Americans believe the search for intelligent life on other planets is worth the money, and why not? About half believe such life exists, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

Forty-seven percent of the 1,517 respondents in the nationwide telephone poll said they believed in what has long been the staple of science fiction writers — intelligent aliens from distant worlds. Only 36 percent did not believe intelligent life existed elsewhere.

Forty-nine percent of the respondents also said the search for life on other planets, such as the work done with radio telescopes, was a good use of research money. Forty-five percent did not think the money was well spent.

While half the respondents believed in intelligent life and supported research to find it, most weren't eager to send someone to another world. Asked if landing an astronaut on another planet should be a high priority or a low priority of the space program, only 36 percent said high priority. Fifty-four percent said it should be a low priority, and 10 percent weren't sure.

Riding on the space shuttle was also a desire of about half the respondents in the Media General-AP poll. Two-thirds of the men sampled and one-third of the women would like a space ride.

Three in 10 Americans said they thought the United States spent too much money on its space program, while about two in 10 believed more money should be spent. Four in 10 said the United States spent the right amount on its space program, and the rest were unsure.

Nearly 60 percent of the black respondents said too much was spent on the space program, compared with only 27 percent of the whites.

Men were more likely than women to support the space program: 37 percent of women said too much was spent, compared with 21 percent of the men.

On the question of life on other planets, younger and more educated people were more likely to believe in intelligent alien life than older and less educated people.

About half of the 18- to 54-year-olds thought intelligent life existed on other planets, compared with 43 percent of the 55- to 64-year-olds and one-quarter of the 65 and older group.

Fifty-two percent of college graduates believed in life on other planets, compared with only 27 percent of the high school dropouts. Forty-five percent of high school graduates said they believed life existed on other planets.

On the question about riding in the shuttle, younger people were more likely to want a ride than older people. Two-thirds of the 18- to 34-year-olds said they wanted to ride in the space shuttle, compared with nearly half the 35- to 54-year-olds, one-third of 55- to 64-year-olds and only 19 percent of those 65 and older.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,517 adults across the country July 5-13. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,500 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample.

Kerfeld responds in relief to lead Astros

By JOE MOOSHIL AP Sports Writer
Charlie Kerfeld no sooner had put on his uniform Monday when Manager Bob Lillis of the Houston Astros called on him for a relief stint against the Chicago Cubs.

Kerfeld responded with 4 1-3 innings of scoreless relief and the Astros went on to a 7-2 triumph over the Cubs.

"That was probably my best performance," said Kerfeld, who arrived in the second inning of the game after being recalled from Tucson.

"I was up before but I didn't do a good job and that's why I was sent down, but I was pleased with the way I threw today."

He relieved starter Bill Dawley, 3-2, who relieved starter Nolan Ryan, but Kerfeld needed ninth-inning help from Dave Smith.

Kerfeld retired nine in a row before allowing two hits in the eighth and then departed in the ninth after giving up another hit and a walk.

"I had just gotten off the plane and got to the ball park in the second inning," he said. "I didn't anticipate I'd pitch. But as soon as I got there, they told me to warm up and I went in."

Kerfeld decided to challenge the hitters this time.

"When I was up before, I think I walked nine guys and seven of them scored," he said. "This time I decided to challenge 'em. If they get you, they get you, if they don't, they don't."

Ryan took an 11-3 lifetime record into the game against the Cubs but had to leave in the first inning when his shoulder tightened up after allowing two runs.

"No use taking a chance," said Houston Manager Bob Lillis. "He was all right when he threw on the side the other day."

Cubs Manager Jim Frey called it "one of those strange days. When we got two runs off Ryan and I saw him walk off the mound, I felt pretty good. I thought we were in line for another good day, but everything stopped there."

Dawley retired the final batter in the first inning and gave up singles in each of the other three innings he worked. Rookie Glenn Davis tied it in the second with a two-run homer, his 12th.

In the fifth, Kevin Bass singled and Mark Bailey doubled. Lillis called on another rookie, Eric Bullock, who responded with a pinch, two-run double for his first major league hit off loser Jay Baller, 0-3.

"With a man on third, nobody out and the infield back, I just wanted to make contact and get the run in," said Bullock. "I'm glad I had a chance to help the team; we've been

Gary Matthews of the Chicago Cubs led the National League in walks with 103 in 1984. "It was the biggest farce in baseball," Matthews said. "Maybe it's because the umpires know that I'll swing at anything and I'm not up there to go for a walk. Which puts a different idea in their mind on close pitches. Once I said to an umpire, 'That was a terrible pitch you called.' And he said, 'Well, you swing at terrible pitches.'" struggling. I hope I get a couple of starts before the season is over."

He will, according to Lillis.

"We've been playing a lot of young guys," said Lillis, "and we're going to look at a lot of our people this last month."

Lillis said if Kerfeld had arrived earlier, he would have replaced Ryan instead of Dawley.

"But it all worked out well. We had some fantastic relief pitching today," said Lillis. "We got everything we could out of them."

Take the number of letters in the school of the NCAA basketball champions, multiply by the gold medals won by Mark Spitz in the Munich Olympics, subtract the number of rounds in an amateur fight and divide by the highest number of feet (plus 9 inches) cleared by a woman in the high jump.

PAYOFF: The above answer is also the uniform number of a record-setting quarterback who played in three Super Bowls. Who is he?

ANSWER: 9-3-3-2 x 6 x 6 = 108

Easler hits grand slam homer

Red Sox pound Rangers 11-2

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

It's been a long lost season for the Boston Red Sox, but they're on a power surge right now that they could have used earlier in the season.

The Red Sox battered four Texas Ranger pitchers for 19 hits Monday night in an 11-2 victory, including a grand slam homer by Mike Easler and a two-run homer by Jim Rice.

Boston has clubbed 14 homers in its last 9 games.

"We're hitting now, but it came a little late," said Manager John McNamara.

For Boston, it was the Red Sox's sixth victory in their last 24 games. Boston is 7-19 since the brief players' strike.

Easler is not the man you want to pitch to with bases loaded.

Easler clubbed a grand slam homer for the second time in three games. He now has five in his career. "Baseball is kind of a streaky game and I'm in one of those good kind of streaks right now," said Easler. "It's been a long season but a few good things are starting to happen."

"We really put the hits on the scoreboard. Some nights are like that. You hit and you just can't stop hitting. The whole team was doing it."

Tim Lollar went eight innings, allowing only two hits. Mark Clear gave up only one hit in an inning of relief.

Rice blasted a two-run homer in the first inning and Stewart loaded the bases in the third inning before being relieved by Chris Welch.

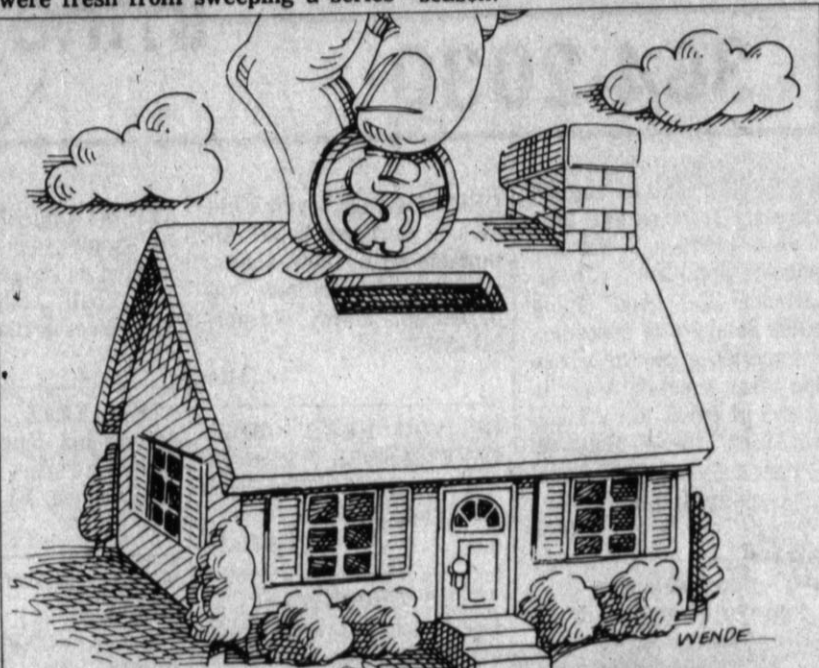

Easler hit a fastball just over the leftfield wall off Welch.

Bill Buckner went four for five with three singles and a double, and Wade Boggs had three singles to lift his American League leading batting average to .364.

Texas touched Lollar for two runs in the third inning. Wayne Tolleson singled and Oddibe McDowell drilled his 15th homer of the year over the rightfield fence.

against Kansas City. It was Boston's first victory in Arlington Stadium this year. Boston is now 1-4 in Arlington Stadium and 4-7 against the Rangers for the season.
