US shoots down plane

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - An American jet fighter shot down an Iraqi Su-22 warplane near Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit in central Iraq today.

It was the first reported air engagement between U.S. and Iraqi forces since fighting ceased in the Gulf War on Feb. 27.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the incident did not mean a resumption of hostilities, even though it was a clear violation of terms set down in the informal cease-fire.

Lt. Cmdr. David Knox, spokesman for the U.S. Central Command in Riyadh, said the Iraqi jet fighter was one of two planes that were detected by an American AWACS early warning plane. The other Iraqi fighter "landed on its own after the engagement," Knox said.

He said a U.S. Air Force F-15C jet fighter shot down the Iraqi Su-22 at about 1:50 p.m. (5:50 a.m. EST) near Tikrit, 110 miles north of Baghdad. "The Iraqi attempt to fly these two fighter aircraft is a violation of terms agreed with Iraqi military officials during talks at Safwan, Iraq, on March 3," Knox said in a telephone interview.

In a second round of cease-fire talks on Sunday, allied military commanders met with Iraqi commanders and warned them they cannot move their warplanes in Iraqi for any reason.

Saddam is battling twin rebellions by ethnic Kurds in northern Iraq and Shiite Moslems in the south. Thousands of people have been reported killed.

U.S. Maj. Gen. Robert B. Johnston warned the Iraqis that the use of warplanes would be a clear violation of the terms of temporary cease-fire set by Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the U.S. commander in the Gulf, at the first round of talks two weeks ago in Safwan, near the Kuwait-Iraq border.

President Bush was informed by aides this morning that "we did shoot down an aircraft... an Iraqi plane," said Fitzwater.

He noted that Schwarzkopf had warned the Iraqis that the allies would shoot down any Iraqi warplanes that continued to fly.

"Schwarzkopf said during the cease-fire discussions they could not fly fixed wing aircraft. They did. We shot it down," Fitzwater told reporters at the White House.

However, he said that the single incident did not represent a resumption of the war against Iraq.

"We're not resuming hostilities. We're not re-engaging," he said. "We're simply proceeding with the cease-fire as we outlined it to the Iraqis."

DSGH endures bad February

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN

The average daily census at Deaf Smith General Hospital dipped to 12.9 in February and the numbers were down in almost all areas of service, hospital district directors were told during a regular monthly board meeting Tuesday night.

Directors formally called the annual election for board members and named election officials at the meeting. Directors heard the administrator's report, heard a special report from the radiology department, and heard a report on a new "swing bed" program at the hospital.

The financial statement showed a net of $76,133 in February, but controller Phillis Morrison pointed out that a cost report for 1990 was understated and the hospital received about $100,000 more than anticipated for third-party contractual allowances. Without that addition, the hospital would have shown a loss for February.

The hospital board election will be held May 4. Three terms expire on the board--those of Raymond Schroeder, Ralph Detten and Dr. A.T. Mims. Filing deadline is April 4, and interested persons should pick up a petition form at the hospital or the county clerk's office. Cecil Boyer and John Warren were named as election judge and alternate.

Administrator Gary Moore reported the state health department checked the hospital's new swing bed program and found four items that need to be corrected. The program is provided for patients not ready to go to a nursing home but who still need skilled nursing care.

He also reported that a doctor had been interviewed for a position here, but he is not a U.S. citizen and problems have arisen on him moving to Hereford. Moore also announced the hospital is negotiating with Excel Corporation on a preferred provider plan, which could attract more patients to the hospital.

Claudia Smith, head of the radiology department, outlined the work of that department to the board. She has 21 years experience and has been here 16 years. At present, she has one assistant, Carrie Shirley. The department provides five areas of service--radiology, nuclear medicine, CAT scans, ultrasound and mammography.

Moore praised the work of the department, saying that two people were doing almost the same amount of work that three and a parttimer did last year. He said the hospital had a fine working agreement with High Plains Baptist, which sends five radiologists here on specified days to read and evaluate the radiology results.

After hearing directors discuss the hospital's business, six senior citizens in attendance at the meeting expressed concern about the loss of doctors and the utilization of the hospital.

Juanita Coker, spokesperson for the group, said, "We're here on a positive note--as the old song says, we want to accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative." Mrs. Coker added that the group was not looking to place blame. "We want to know what we can do to help the doctors and the hospital, and also, what can the board, the administrator and the doctors do to help solve the problems?"

Moore led off the response by saying that "We are dealing with a set of circumstances that are beyond the control of the board and the community."

He added that many of the problems here are "symptoms" of what's happening to rural hospitals across the country. He said it appears the Medicare and Medicaid have set out to close small hospitals by paying smaller fees to doctors and hospitals in small towns.

He said Medicare reimbursements cover about 70 percent of costs, and Medicaid covers about 60 percent. Moore said doctors are affected by economics, and that almost all doctors who left here in the last two years did so because of financial reasons.

Moore said he and the board were very concerned about the loss of doctors. "Dr. (Howard) Johnson told me recently that 45 doctors have left

"63% of the patients pay less than the cost of medical service. That leaves 37% to carry the load and they can't carry the load."
--Gary Moore, DSGH

Hereford, or retired or died, since 1965."

Doctors have also been harassed by legal problems, said board member Dr. Stan Fry Jr. "I was visiting with a physician from out of town the other day and he remarked that felt like he was practicing law more than medicine."

Moore pointed out the board was actively pursuing the recruitment of doctors, but that the local record on Medicaid reimbursements, the percentage of non-paying patients and indigent care made it a difficult situation.

"Sixty-three percent of the patients at Deaf Smith General Hospital pay less than the costs for medical service," stated Moore. "That leaves 37 percent to carry the load and they can't make up for the loss."

At the close of the meeting, board chairman Raymond Schroeder thanked the group for their interest and for attending the meeting. The group was told by Moore, Schroeder and other board members they could help by being positive about use of the hospital and by contacting their state and national representatives about the plight of rural hospitals.

Reps near school deal

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislative negotiators on school finance are near agreement on a plan to meet the Texas Supreme Court's order for reform, leaders in the talks say.

House-Senate conference committee members on Tuesday looked at a proposed framework for shifting local property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts within about 200 new taxing regions.

"There appears to be a good deal of agreement," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who heads the House-Senate conference committee on school finance reform.

His House counterpart, Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, agreed. "I think we're 95 percent there," she said.

Staff members planned to draft a bill based on the framework, so that the conference committee could vote on a measure to present to the Legislature.

Ms. Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said she expected a vote to come today. Parker said he was unsure when the committee would meet again.

Conference committee members are trying to work out differences between so-called Robin Hood school finance reform bills passed by the House and Senate.

Bullock 'lonely' on income tax

AUSTIN (AP) - Calling a personal income tax too unpopular to pass right now, House Speaker Gib Lewis says lawmakers must look at other taxes.

"The votes are not in the House at this point for a personal income tax. So if you do not have the votes, you don't sit there and just grind away. You start looking for alternative methods," Lewis said Tuesday.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who began the income tax push two weeks ago, said it's been lonely out in front.

"I found out that there haven't been many followers," Bullock said. "I think before long somebody will say, 'Wait, wait Bullock. Let me catch up. Let me lead this group.' I am looking for that person in the ranks."

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the personal income tax was "not a sellable item. I think he (Bullock) understands that."

Asked if the tax could be sold, Bullock replied, "It doesn't look like it at this time."

Bullock

The lieutenant governor proposed starting both personal and corporate income taxes to help the state cover its projected $4.6 billion budget deficit and pay additional costs for schools, prisons and welfare services.

The Senate leader said he was "somewhat disappointed" in business groups that had told him they would support a state income tax.

"As the old saying goes, talk doesn't cook rice. And they haven't cooked any rice yet," he said.

However, Bullock said, public opinion may change once taxpayers learn just how much the school finance reform bill now being written will cost.

He said early indications of its price were "astounding, shocking," but didn't provide specifics.

"The people of Texas at this point really haven't been given an option. The money either must come from local school districts or it must come from the ... (state) Treasury," Bullock said.

While a personal income tax may not be moving, the chief House tax writer said some form of business income tax may be enacted.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman James Hury, D-Galveston, said he expects the House to pass a plan combining the franchise tax corporations pay on capital investment with an income-based tax on businesses which don't pay franchise taxes. That primarily would be service-oriented companies, he said.

"I believe the House will vote out combination franchise base-income tax," Hury said. "To those people that don't pay a franchise tax, that would be taxed under an income tax identifier."

Such a tax likely would exempt the first $45,000 of income, he said.

Criticized Kuwaiti cabinet quits

KUWAIT CITY (AP) - The crown prince has dissolved the Cabinet in response to public anger over its inability to provide leadership and services after the devastation of Iraq's seven-month occupation, a government minister said today.

Crown Prince Saad Abdullah al-Sabah, who is also prime minister, offered the resignations late Tuesday, said Sulayman al-Mutawa, minister of planning.

He said, however, that the country's ruler, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, would probably ask the prime minister to form a new government immediately, indicating the ruling al-Sabahs do not intend to relinquish any power.

Besides being criticized for delays in restoring essential services and providing food and water, the al-Sabahs have been under pressure both at home and abroad to implement democratic reform.

Al-Mutawa said the 22-member Cabinet decided to resign because of the "criticism of us. Many people kept on saying 'What have you been doing?'"

"It may ease the pressure that is building up," he said. "Let us hope it speeds up the return to parliamentary changes."

The ruling family has promised democratic reform, but has been vague on when it might come.

Kuwait's ambassador to the United Nations, Mohammad Abulhasan, said in New York that the Cabinet resignations were immediately accepted by the emir. He said the new Cabinet should be named in about a week.

"This is the first step in putting the house in order," he said.

Reacting to the announcement, a pro-democracy activist, Eman al-Bedah, said: "That's good news. Maybe something will get done now."

The al-Sabahs suspended Parliament in 1986 and many Kuwaitis who braved the Iraqi occupation - including women who have never had the vote - are now demanding they have more of a say in how the country is run.

Al-Mutawa said the massive destruction inflicted by the Iraqis had made it virtually impossible for any government to lead effectively. He cited the setting alight of 550 oil wells and extensive damage to power stations.

But many say the damage is no excuse and that, three weeks after its liberation, oil-rich Kuwait should not still be short of food and largely without power and water.

The emir did not return from exile in Saudi Arabia until Thursday - and then received only a lukewarm welcome from his citizens, some of whom thought he should have returned sooner to take charge.

Most reconstruction work is being done by the allied military forces and private foreign organizations, and there is little sign of government activity in rebuilding.

Government ministers have been criticized for bringing in huge stocks of water and food for their private use while ordinary citizens linger in lengthy food and water lines.

The governor of the Central Bank, meanwhile, said that Kuwait would reopen its banks Sunday and issue new money to replace more than $2 billion of gold and currency looted by the Iraqis.

Salem Abdulaziz al-Sabah told a news conference that Kuwaitis would be entitled to the full amount in their accounts on Aug. 1, the day before Iraq invaded the emirate.

Also Tuesday, a prosecutor said Kuwait would seek to hang most of the 600 Iraqi, Palestinian and other prisoners being held for alleged war crimes.

And the government will try in absentia hundreds of Iraqi officers who fled Kuwait when the allied forces closed in, said Khalid al-Mudaf, an undersecretary at the Ministry of Justice.

Babbling Brooks

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has raised the interest, if not the ire, of many Texans just by saying two words.

Income tax. In its history, Texas has never had any sort of income tax for individuals and businesses. Political careers have been based on pledges of "no state income tax." For many years, Texas taxes have been inappropriately balanced in outmoded ways on the backs of individuals and businesses. Bullock, during his many years as state comptroller, pined long and loud for a restructuring of the tax structure for individuals and businesses to no avail. Instead of redoing the tax structure, broadening the base of taxable services while lowering the rate, the state has instead been patching the works with higher sales taxes and corporate franchise taxes.

Today, even as one of the few states with no income tax for corporations or individuals, we still take one of the biggest tax bites in the nation.

Many businesses are required to pay a corporate franchise tax of $5.25 per $1,000 of taxable worth. That may be a sizeable sum for anyone, and must be paid no matter how well, or how poor, a business performed during a given year.

Wouldn't a tax based on how well a business performed make more sense? Even at eight percent, you would be a little less begrudging to pay taxes if you made some money. As it stands now, you pay no matter how well you do. For individuals, the income tax would be a simple five percent. It wouldn't kick in until someone had made $25,000, and the deductions are higher than on federal taxes.

An added benefit of a state income tax is that it would be fully deductible on federal income taxes (unless the feds change the rules on us again). We cannot deduct sales taxes anymore.

The only reason to even consider an income tax is if we get an accompanying cut in the other taxes we pay. Under Bullock's plan, there would be caps placed on property tax rates, and the franchise tax would be eliminated.

There would also be a revamping of the sales tax. The sales tax is considered a great tax by some, a tax too heavy for the poor and middle class by others. It is one that is assessed on everyone, any time they buy items that fall under the sales tax umbrella. In many cities, that tax is over eight percent. Texas has one of the highest sales tax rates in the country.

The current tax system was established when the oil and gas business was flush, back when the state never talked about budget deficits. It must be revamped, and the implementation of a state income tax may be the only way that we will ever get taxes properly assessed and balanced in the state.

DHS's problems 'out of control'

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards joined a Texas Senate committee in saying that the state welfare agency's board members should resign if they don't want to put in the time to cure the department's spiraling fiscal problems.

The Senate Finance Committee Tuesday approved a report saying the Department of Human Services' financial woes are "out of control," threatening both its clients and the state's fiscal health.

The panel said the Legislature "should undertake a complete reorganization of Texas' health and human services system, including the system's funding and service delivery."

"Frankly, I just don't think the present organization will work," said Sen. John Montford, chairman of the committee. "I think the committee sensed a very immediate need to get something done."

Montford, D-Lubbock, said the wide fluctuations in budgetary needs the agency had presented had been a sore spot with lawmakers, helping prompt the report. The state welfare agency has requested a $3 billion budget increase in 1992-93.

"I think the recommendations from the committee ranged all the way from empaneling a lynch mob, to a more tempered response," he said.

The committee charged the agency with failing to adequately control spending practices and possibly circumventing state spending laws. It called on members of the DHS board to resign.

Committee members said the three board members still on the board who served in 1990 should be replaced, charging that they had failed to maintain adequate scrutiny of the agency.

"I think the board needs to seriously consider where they are, and make a decision as to whether they're willing to give it the time and effort necessary," Montford said.

Richards concurred late Tuesday, releasing a statement that said, "DHS board members must take responsibility for the management of this agency. This task will require major commitments of time and energy. Board members who cannot make this commitment should resign."

The three board members remaining from last year are David Herndon of Austin, Ida Papert of Dallas and Maurice Barksdale of Arlington.

Herndon said he did not intend to resign from the board, and did not feel the committee had put pressure on him to do so.

"They're entitled to their opinion. I simply don't agree with them," he said.

Herndon said he could not comment on specifics because he had not seen the committee report, but said he did not agree that board members had failed to put in adequate time overseeing the agency.

Neither Barksdale nor Mrs. Papert returned telephone calls Tuesday from The Associated Press.

Board members scheduled to be sworn in today are Bob Geyer of El Paso, Yava Scott of Houston and Cassandra Carr of Austin.

DHS spokesman Mike Jones said Commissioner Ron Lindsey and other agency officials had not seen the report, and could not comment on it. The board was scheduled to meet today, after three new board members were sworn in.

Montford said the Legislature immediately should consider whether to put Medicaid and child protective services into organizations separate from DHS.

"I don't want to wait. I don't think we can wait until after this session," he said.

The committee also recommended a review of the qualifications and performance of Lindsey and other top level agency officials, and asked Richards to establish special management teams for each of the agency's functions.

Officials request auditing change

WASHINGTON (AP) - White House officials proposed earlier this year to force the Internal Revenue Service to audit more low- and middle-income taxpayers but target fewer large corporations, documents obtained by House investigators show.

The Office of Management and Budget contended that stepping up simple mail audits - which affect mainly those with lower incomes - was the easiest way to boost tax collections quickly.

IRS Commissioner Fred T. Goldberg Jr. argued vehemently against that approach.

"IRS would not direct any additional effort into low-income, individual income tax audits as proposed by OMB," IRS officials wrote. "All resources provided for the examination (audit) program should be directed toward the high-asset business and corporate areas consistent with the service's overall compliance strategy."

The dispute came in late December and January as OMB was putting together President Bush's budget for the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1.

Papers relating to the discussions were obtained by the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee in preparation for a hearing today on the $6.7 billion IRS budget, which is up 10.2 percent from this year.

OMB officials refused to comment on the papers because they were internal documents. The budget office was invited to send a witness to the hearing but declined.

According to the documents, OMB proposed that part of the IRS enforcement budget for the current year be shifted "into individual income tax correspondence audits in order to realize the quick revenue payback of this investment."

The Treasury Department, parent of the IRS, eventually asked that an extra $77 million be earmarked in this year's budget for auditing upper-income individuals and big corporations. OMB cut that back to $58.7 million. An additional $35 million requested for 1992 was slashed to $6 million.

"The commissioner won a good part of the round but was unable to get all he wanted for high-income audits," said a Ways and Means Committee aide who follows the IRS budget and spoke on condition of anonymity.

"One immediate effect will be to reduce direct enforcement revenue (increased tax collections caused by higher audits) over the fiscal year 1992-1996 period by about $1 billion," an IRS document said.

"Unless the government as a whole makes a long-term commitment to improve the tax system, a substantial risk is erosion in voluntary compliance, which could cost billions of dollars in lost revenue."

Although the IRS collects 90 percent of the revenues on which the government operates, it was required to take spending cuts with all other agencies as the government tried to contract during the Reagan years.

The battle over the new IRS budget comes at a time when the agency acknowledges a long-term decline in the percentage of returns being audited. Only about nine of every 1,000 returns will be audited this year.

From 1981 through 1990, there was a more dramatic decline in audit coverage of big corporations, Goldberg told a House Appropriations subcommittee earlier this month.

Berlanga jailed for contempt

AUSTIN (AP) - State Rep. Hugo Berlanga said it was worth a few hours in jail to stand up for what he contended was a constitutional right to prevent a grand jury from looking at his records.

Berlanga, one of the state's most powerful legislators, spent about six hours in the Travis County Jail on Tuesday as he continued to challenge a grand jury investigating allegations of influence buying at the Capitol.

He was released on a personal recognizance bond at 5:25 p.m. under an order by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which agreed to consider Berlanga's appeal of the contempt citation.

Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said the records sought by Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle are personal and not subject to grand jury scrutiny.

"The question is principle in terms of whether or not this state, Mr. Earle in particular, has the right... to obtain a person's personal privilege records," he said after being released.

"I had always contended from the very beginning that this was a matter of principle. It was worth being held in custody for a few hours," he said.

Berlanga's incarceration is the latest development in a tug-of-war between the lawmaker and the special grand jury investigating ties between state officials and lobbyists.

Late last year, the grand jury indicted House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, on misdemeanor ethics charges that he accepted a gift from the prominent San Antonio law firm of Heard, Goggan, Blair and Williams. Lewis has denied any wrongdoing.

Berlanga was subpoenaed by the grand jury March 12 and ordered to bring his business records of Berlanga Business Consultants, Federal Civil Process Inc. and Title USA.

He appeared before the grand jury twice but refused to submit the records, invoking his right against self-incrimination.

Federal Civil Process, a now defunct company that did most of its business for the Heard, Goggan law firm, allegedly gave Berlanga Business Consultants a $20,000 fee in 1988. Berlanga served on the House committee that later killed a bill that would have hurt Heard, Goggan's delinquent tax collection business.

Berlanga, one of the Lewis' top lieutenants, is chairman of the powerful Calendars Committee which decides which bills reach the House floor for debate. The speaker appointed Berlanga to the House's No. 2 position, speaker pro tempore, in 1983. He held that position until last March.

Berlanga's lawyer, J.A. "Tony" Canales of Corpus Christi, said the lawmaker was required to go to jail so the appellate court would have jurisdiction to consider granting him relief.

"This is the first time that I have ever insisted that my client go to jail so I can appeal a matter," said Canales, a longtime friend of Berlanga.

State District Judge Bob Perkins had found Berlanga in contempt of court, fined him $500, giving him until noon Tuesday to pay up. Less than an hour before the deadline, Berlanga, accompanied by Canales, walked to the jail and was booked.

Canales said Berlanga will comply with whatever the Court of Criminal Appeals eventually decides.

Estate planning topic of sorority meeting

Ike Stevens of Edward D. Jones and Co. presented a program on estate planning when members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met March 5 in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service Co.

Stevens emphasized everyone's need for a will so that "survivors can continue on in a reasonably orderly fashion," and that it is best to consult a lawyer for this because they "ask the right questions" to make the experience less overwhelming. He also discussed the different types of investments and noted that investments need to be made for several years in order to realize a reasonable return.

President Gaye Reily presided over the business session. A letter was read from the Hereford Outreach office of the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center summarizing the assistance was provided during 1990. The letter expressed a need for volunteers and workshops to be held for those needs. A workshop is being offered March 26 to those interested in becoming a pager-carrying volunteer who helps to counsel victims.

Sharon Bodner read about the duties of members from the chapter bylaws. Also, Susan Shaw read a thank you note from Good Shepherd for the recently donated baby food.

City Council Representative Denise Hafliger reminded chapter members of the upcoming Beta Night at 8 p.m. April 13 at the Hereford Community Center. It will be a couple's party and there will be a nominal fee. Guests can be invited. Reily distributed Founder's Day literature to chairman Peggy Hyer so that planning can begin on the future event.

It was announced that the next meeting will be at Susan Cardinal's home at 6:45 p.m. March 26 for a progression party. Past presidents were asked to bring their scrapbooks. Because of the type of meeting, it was decided to postpone officer elections to April 2. Girl of the Year nominations need to be given to Reily at the April 2 meeting.

Reily announced that the state Beta Sigma Phi convention will be held June 13-16 in Houston. The theme will be "Celebrate A Space Odyssey."

Hostesses, Bodner, Deann Harris and Ruby Sanders, served pistachio creme cake, coffee and tea to those present. They included Linda Arellano, Cardinal, Danell Culp, Hafliger, Harris, Melinda Henson, Connie Matthews, Reily, Shaw, Hyer and Dalene Burns.

Extension meeting held

Members of the Bippus Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Mariellen Homfeld with Alta Mae Higgins serving as co-hostess.

The T.E.H.A. prayer and pledges to the United States and Texas flag were led by Kate Bradley.

Sue Thweatt led members in a game about snakes.

During the business meeting members voted to make arrangements to have the Bippus Community house roof repaired. The decision was made to have Easter sunrise services at the Bippus Community house and a breakfast and Easter egg hunt will follow. Each family should bring food such as bacon, sausage, eggs, canned biscuits, jelly, butter and etc. Also, bring one dozen eggs if your children will be hiding eggs.

A video on Texas wildflowers was presented. Some of the flowers that grow in the Texas Panhandle are bluebonnets, Indian blankets, buffalo beans, sun flowers and a milk weed called snow on the mountain.

Raising grapes and developing wineries was discussed. Members learned that many areas of the state have just the right soil climate requirements for raising grapes.

The next meeting will be in the home of Rhonda Hewitt at Rock Camp on Bridwell Ranch on April 10 at 2 p.m.

Vaughn presents program on grapes for extension club

"The New Texas Crop" was the program given by Tonia Vaughn when members of Draper Extension Homemakers Club met in her home March 15 for a luncheon and business meeting.

Vaughn spoke about growing grapes in Texas and the many uses of the plant. Following a brief history of grapes, she distributed a "grapeology" quiz to those present.

President Johnnie Messer called the meeting to order and the T.E.H.A. prayer was recited. The hostess gave the opening exercise by reading "Just a Thought For a Week." Roll call was answered with "my favorite wine or use of wine or grapes" and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Mary Beth Messer won the door prize.

The Council Delegate Carmen Rickman gave a report and the April 16 District I meeting to be held in Spearman was discussed. All extension homemaker club members from Deaf Smith County were urged to attend to vie for the attendance plaque which will be presented at the meeting. Club members will be campaigning for Johnnie Messer to be elected District I extension director.

It was announced that Mary Blinderman will be giving a program entitled "Mini Wheels" at 7 p.m. March 26.

Appreciation notes were read and members participated in a gift exchange. Those present included Johnnie Messer, Mary Beth Messer, Tonia Vaughn, Carmen Rickman, Sherrie Blackwell and Joanne Blackwell.

The next meeting will be held April 9 with Johnnie Messer serving as hostess.

Nothing goes right in Herd's 16-0 loss

The Hereford varsity baseball team had one of those days Tuesday, losing 16-0 to the Canyon Eagles in the late game of a double-header at Whiteface Field.

Here's the highlight for Herd fans: Hereford second baseman Max Mungia made a fantastic defensive play in the top of the third inning. He went to his right, dove for a hard-hit grounder and snagged it while he was stretched out parallel to the ground. He got up and threw the runner out.

That's it for the highlights. The 10-run rule was enforced after the fifth inning.

Actually, the game seemed more a case of Canyon being good than Hereford being bad.

The Whitefaces committed only three errors, and two of those came after most of the damage was already done. All the runs in the game were earned runs.

The Eagles pounded out 15 hits, but they were nearly equally divided among starting pitcher Ralph Holguin and relievers Andy Kalka, Chad Brummett and Sammy Casarez.

Those same four walked Eagle batters only seven times. That's a very small amount considering 16 runs scored.

Kalka and Brummett were each charged with four runs; Kalka in 2 2/3 innings and Brummett in only 2/3 innings. Holguin gave up five in 2/3 innings, and Casarez gave up three in one inning.

Holguin was particularly hit with hard luck. He walked Danny Martinez to lead off the game, but struck out the second batter. Then he coaxed a grounder to first out of the third batter.

Holguin's luck went bad when Hereford first baseman Ruben Ramos gambled on throwing Martinez, who had earlier stolen second, out at third instead of just touching first base for the second out. The throw to third was late, and Eagle runners stood on first and third.

When the next batter, Glen Woodard, doubled down the left field line, two runs scored. Next, Issac Padilla hit a high fly ball into left center field. The wind was gusting in that direction and seemed to catch the ball, blowing it over center fielder Matt Bromlow's head for an RBI triple.

After the second out, the Eagles' seventh hitter, Dan Cathey, hit a looper to shallow right field, where Chris Brummett dove and barely missed coming up with it. The ball rolled a few feet away and Cathey took second for a double, then went to third when Brummett's throw got away from second.

Cathey later scored to give the Eagles a 5-0 lead in the first. Cathey had three hits in the game, and the one time he didn't get a hit, it was on Mungia's fielding gem.

Meanwhile, Canyon's pitcher, Stephen Burge, set the first eight men he faced down in order.

Chris Brummett, the ninth batter, started something when with two outs he singled and stole second.

After Bromlow was hit by a pitch, Amado Lopez grounded into the hole at short for an infield hit. Eagles' shortstop Jason Jackson got a glove on it, saving a run. George Jowell popped out to third to end the inning.

Hereford got its third and last hit when Louis Mungia drove the ball to the fence in left center field to lead off the bottom of the fourth. He was thrown out trying to stretch the double into a triple.

The Whitefaces now stand 3-10 with only three games left to play before Dumas comes to town March 30 to start district play.

The Whitefaces next game is 1 p.m. Saturday at Lubbock Dunbar. The game at Dalhart which was rained out Saturday has been rescheduled for Monday at Dalhart.

They also get another shot at Canyon, at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Canyon, before district play begins.

No no-hitter

Hereford's Chris Brummett watches his single fall to break up Canyon pitcher Stephen Burge's no-hitter in the third inning. Brummett's was one of only three Hereford hits in the game, a 16-0 loss for the Whitefaces.

Arizona loses Super Bowl

KOHALA, Hawaii (AP) - The NFL has officially stripped Arizona of the 1993 Super Bowl and ended the debate over the state's failure to enact a paid holiday on Martin Luther King's birthday.

But it's a debate that's likely to spring up again a year from now.

On a day on which they approved instant replay for a sixth year by the 21-7 vote that has become customary, the owners ratified commissioner Paul Tagliabue's decision to take their showcase game from Arizona because the state's voters turned down a referendum to celebrate the King holiday.

It was awarded instead to Los Angeles and will be played at the Rose Bowl, which last played host to the 1987 game.

But they also tentatively awarded Arizona the 1996 game as the result of a compromise between Tagliabue and Arizona Gov. Fife Symington, agreed to in a long telephone conversation.

That, however, sets up the same kind of controversy that surrounded the referendum last fall, when proponents of the King holiday blamed NFL pressure to remove the game if it failed for the negative vote.

"I know we can support this important game and provide the amenities necessary for a gala on the scale of the 1984 Olympic Games," Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley said of the game. "In addition, the 1993 Super Bowl will provide an economic bonanza to the Southern California region as it embarks on the preparations for this incomparable event."

Bill Bidwill, the owner of the Phoenix Cardinals, said he wasn't worried about the "linkage" issue for next year's referendum.

"I believe the political situation in Phoenix has changed dramatically," Bidwill said. "I believe that the 1992 vote will pass."

Tagliabue said other factors would be involved in the final decision to give the game to Phoenix beyond the 1992 referendum. "Factors that go into our final decision will be determined when we make our final decision," he said, without specifying what that will be.

But Tagliabue said he was satisfied with what was done as a solution "to what was a difficult subject for everyone."

Asked if he thought the problem could be avoided, he replied: "That's Monday morning quarterbacking just as it would be if you questioned what was done in the league championship games."

The instant replay issue also will be next year after the owners once again approved it by the minimum vote of 21-7. A three-quarters vote is required on all major votes.

Tagliabue's aim on the Phoenix question has been to stay ahead of the civil rights issue.

On Monday he suggested that the NFL was being treated by Arizona as "carpetbaggers" who were being blamed for internal problems in the state. In fact, the King holiday first passed by the legislature was repealed by Gov. Evan Mecham, who was later impeached. Mecham also was behind the drive that put the issue on the ballot when the holiday was passed again.

White JV floods Canyon

Hereford's White junior varsity baseball team started off a Whiteface Field double-header Tuesday with a 16-6 thrashing of the Canyon JV team.

The Whitefaces scored in the first inning when lead-off hitter Richard Sanderson tripled and scored on an wild pitch. Richard Rodriguez also scored on an error in the inning to make it 2-0.

Canyon got one back in the second on consecutive singles and an error, but Hereford pulled away in the bottom of the third.

Kyle Hansen, Rodriguez, Fonzie Enriquez and Vallejo all scored after reaching first and stealing second. Rodriguez and Stacey Sanders each had RBIs.

The Herd's lead was 6-1 after three innings, 7-1 after four, 9-4 after five and 16-6 after six, when the game was called because of the 10-run rule.

The inning was highlighted by Jason Taterovich's RBI triple. Josh Tice's single brought home Shama Hernandez and Andrew Tijerina to give the Herd the 10-point lead.

Rodriguez started the game on the mound and picked up the victory. Tijerina came in in the fifth inning and shut down a Eagle rally.

The White team plays at Palo Duro at 4:30 p.m. Friday. The Maroon JV plays Sanford-Fritch here at 4:30 Thursday.

Giants release Leach

By The Associated Press

Bo Jackson isn't the only name on the waiver wire. There's also Rick Leach, who was unsuspected just so he could be released.

Leach, 33, was placed on waivers Tuesday by the San Francisco Giants. He had been on the disqualified list since Aug. 6, when he was given a 60-day suspension for testing positive for drugs.

"That obviously entered my mind, but this was strictly a baseball decision," Giants general manager Al Rosen said. "We felt Mark Leonard surpassed Rick this spring and is ready to play in the big leagues. Leonard can do more things than Rick."

Leach, a former University of Michigan quarterback, was hitting 5-for-17 this spring. At the time of the suspension last season, he was batting .293 in 174 at-bats with two home runs and 16 RBIs.

Leach had two days remaining on his suspension, but was reinstated by commissioner Fay Vincent.

While he was with Toronto, Leach disappeared in Seattle from Aug. 25 to Aug. 27, 1987, after having an argument with his wife Angie. On May 8, 1989, Leach left the Rangers while the club was in New York. When he didn't contact the team, police searched his hotel room and found less than an ounce of marijuana.

On the Bo front, no team placed an immediate claim on the outfielder. Jackson and his $2,375,000 contract will remain available to any team for a bargain basement price of $1 until Friday afternoon. If he isn't claimed by then, Kansas City must give him 30 days termination pay - $391,483 - and he becomes a free agent able to sign with any team.

In exhibition games:

Rangers 9, White Sox 0
At Port Charlotte, Fla., Nolan Ryan pitched four no-hit innings and struck out six.

Pirates 6, Twins 0
At Bradenton, Fla., Doug Drabek allowed two hits in five innings, combining with three relievers on a seven-hitter.

Cardinals 11, Blue Jays 3
At Dunedin, Fla., Gerald Perry hit a three-run homer and St. Louis got 18 hits off four Toronto pitchers.

Astros 8, Royals 6 (10 innings)
At Haines City, Fla., Eric Yelding singled in one run off Archie Corbin and scored another in the 10th inning.

Dodgers 9, Braves 4
At West Palm Beach, Fla., Jose Gonzalez and Jeff Hamilton each singled in two runs in a six-run seventh inning off Doug Sisk.

Can UNLV be beaten? Lakers pull even with Trailblazers

By The Associated Press
Is UNLV really invincible?
The Runnin' Rebels, shooting for a second straight national championship, are ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, seeded No. 1 in the West region of the NCAA tournament, positioned in the Sweet 16 after the first weekend of the tourney and riding the crest of a 43-game winning streak.
But are they invincible?
Well, that depends on which coach you ask and what his proximity is to a game against Larry Johnson, Stacy Augmon and company.
Utah coach Rick Majerus has to play the Rebs on Thursday at the West Regional in Seattle. He sees them as an awesome team, bordering on the unbeatable.
North Carolina coach Dean Smith would not meet up with UNLV until the NCAA championship game if both get that far. He wonders where all this unbeatable stuff got started.

"I see no weaknesses," said Majerus, whose team goes into the game as a 16-point underdog. "You're looking at a premier team, some people are saying THE premier team in the history of the game. They're incredibly talented. They are well-coached."
That sounds like invincible.
Smith, however, doesn't quite buy it.
"I think Vegas will get beat - I don't know by whom - because everybody thinks they won't," he said. "People who say Las Vegas is unbeatable don't understand college basketball."
Smith is in the Sweet 16 for the 10th straight year and the 17th time in the last 25. North Carolina's draw against longshot 12th-seeded Eastern Michigan makes the Tar Heels round of 16 task somewhat easier than Utah's.

Being around that long means Smith remembers the "unbeatable" tag defending champion Georgetown carried before losing to longshot Villanova in the 1985 championship game.
He also remembers "unbeatable" Houston's skywalking Phi Slama Jamma team losing to undermanned North Carolina State two years before that.
And he remembers how Georgetown, with 7-foot-2 Dikembe Mutombo and 6-10 Alonzo Mourning patrolling the paint, lost by just eight to UNLV last Sunday.
Does that mean then that Utah has a shot at surprising the Rebs in the Sweet 16?
"Sure," Majerus said, "if I could get Mutombo and Mourning to transfer by Thursday."

Smith was impressed, but Utah was not encouraged with the success Georgetown had against UNLV, if you call losing by just eight points success. "We can't control the inside like Georgetown did," Majerus said.
Which explains why he'd like instant transfers by Mutombo and Mourning.
Does Utah have any chance, then?
"What we've got to do is try to stay close enough where we could win," Majerus said. "Georgetown did that."
And still lost.

While the Los Angeles Lakers head up, the Portland Trail Blazers head down. And the Sacramento Kings head way down.
The Lakers ended Portland's season-long reign atop the NBA's Pacific Division on Tuesday night with a 119-105 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers. The Trail Blazers lost 136-126 at Golden State, their eighth loss in 11 games.
But Sacramento really knows how to lose. The Kings set an NBA single-season record with their 29th consecutive road loss, falling at San Antonio 104-101.
"I don't want to talk about the ... record," Kings coach Dick Motta said. "You all ... perpetuate this thing. I've already talked about the record enough."
Sacramento, which clinched a playoff spot, pulled to 100-99 on Rory Sparrow's 3-pointer with 20.8 seconds left. The Spurs then converted four free throws in the final 17.3 seconds, with Robinson, who finished with 30 points and 15 rebounds, making the last two with 1.6 seconds remaining.
The Kings' mark of futility topped the record they shared with the New Orleans Jazz of 1974-75 and the New Jersey Nets of last season. The all-time record for consecutive road losses is 34 set by New Jersey, which lost its final 28 outings of last season and its first six of this one.

13-2 third-quarter run capped by Johnson's layup with 3:53 left.
Warriors 136, Trail Blazers 126
Mitch Richmond made his first 13 shots and finished with 40 points for Golden State.
The Warriors shot 71 percent in the first half (32-for-45), taking a 29-point lead.
Rockets 98, Timberwolves 85
Houston got 25 points and eight blocked shots from Hakeem Olajuwon.
Olajuwon scored Houston's first seven points - he had 13 in the first period - and the Rockets never trailed.
Minnesota stayed in the game on the strength of 19 first-half points by Tony Campbell, who finished with 32.
Knicks 97, Hornets 79
Patrick Ewing overcame early foul trouble and scored 25 of his 41 points in the second half.
Ewing, who had three fouls in the first half, totally dominated inside in the second. He scored 12 points in the third quarter and 13 in the fourth.
Hawks 104, Celtics 92
Spud Webb scored six points and Glenn Rivers five in a 19-6 fourth-quarter burst that created an 18-point lead for the Hawks.
Bucks 101, Heat 88
Dale Ellis scored 17 of his 29 points in the first half as Milwaukee swept the four-game season series.
Ellis scored six points in an 8-0 run at the start of the second quarter as the Bucks took control. They led 48-43 at halftime.

Arkansas meets Alabama

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - Alabama has some great athletes, but depth may be a problem, Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson says.
Arkansas, the top seed in the NCAA Southeast Regional, plays fourth-seeded Alabama tonight in the regional semifinals at Charlotte, N.C.
The Razorbacks (33-3) advanced to the Sweet Sixteen with a 97-90 victory over Arizona State. Alabama (23-9) got there with a 96-88 victory over Wake Forest.

"Alabama is a very talented team but the question is how deep can they go?" Richardson said Tuesday.
"From what I've seen, they've only got seven players who play a lot. But we have to respect them for the great athletes they are."
Richardson said the tough game against Arizona State was good for a Razorback team that routed three opponents in the Southwest Conference tournament and then beat Georgia State by 41 in a first-round NCAA game.

"We probably played harder than we played all year," he said of the victory over the Sun Devils.
"Arizona State just shot the ball well. They did a good job of staying in the game and making us work."
"When I stop and look at the stats, our team is incredible. I guess that's why, when we only win by seven, people wonder if something's wrong but that's not always true.
"We've made a commitment to what we want to do. Right now, the thing we're doing is working extremely hard on our mental attitude to prepare for the game. Our fans, our school and our state deserves a national championship. We can bring something back if we're mentally ready."
The Razorbacks reached the Final Four last year.

UVA sticking around

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) - Debbie Ryan has a feeling her Virginia Cavaliers will be sticking around as the NCAA tournament progresses, mainly because they've been sticking around somewhere else.
"At this time of year, usually when practice is over, everybody wants to run out of the gym and hurry and get dressed," Ryan said.
Not so with Ryan's latest team. It seems this group wants to get in one more scrimmage, one more drill, before calling it quits each day.
"That's a real good sign. That means we're hungry and we want to play," Ryan said. "They just seem like they're a new group at the start of a year, and that's what makes me feel good."
Ryan, now in her 14th season as Virginia's coach, has plenty to feel good about when she looks at this year's team. The Cavaliers spent all but three weeks of the season at the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press poll.

State, which was upset by James Madison over the weekend.
Virginia, given a first-round bye because of its No. 1 seeding, played 14th-ranked Stephen F. Austin in Sunday's second round. The Cavaliers built a 15-point lead early in the second half but needed a short jumper with four seconds left to salvage a 74-72 victory.

UH assistant wants Tech job

HOUSTON (AP) - University of Houston assistant basketball coach Tommy Jones said he is applying for the head coaching job at Texas Tech.
"I have not been talked to, but I am interested," said Jones, who formerly was head coach at Houston Baptist University.
Former Tech coach Gerald Myers, whose program has struggled in recent years, resigned last week at the request of Tech athletic director T. Jones. Myers is ending the first year of a five-year contract and likely will be reassigned within the Tech athletic department.
T. Jones told the Houston Chronicle he could not discuss the names of coaches being considered.
"I am cross-referencing possibilities with people across the country," he said. "I will try to arrive at a reasonably short list and go from there."
He did not disclose a time limit for the search.
Tommy Jones became HBU's head coach from 1985 until 1989, when the school dropped the sport for financial reasons. He has been an assistant at UH under Pat Foster since then.

Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union

You're Invited To Attend 54th ANNUAL MEETING

Hereford Community Center,
March 28, 1991
7:00 p.m.

Members

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I'm pleased to submit this 54th Annual report to the members of the Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union. Annual reports are meant to cast a reviewing eye over the just-ended year, and this report is no exception.

This report covers the operations of Your Credit Union and includes statements from both the Supervisory Committee and our auditors, Gerhardt & Puckett.

With the soft economy in our area, there was no external stimulus for Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union's growth. Assets grew 1978 savings 13.45%. Loans 14.00%. Our loan quality is good, but delinquencies continue at an uncomfortable level of 3.15 percent. We attribute the delinquency rate to the sluggish economy in Deaf Smith and Castro County. Reserves for loan default are set aside in an account called allowance for loans (reserves) is presently $281,243.71.

The loan to share ratio is in an excellent range at 63.60%; compare this with other financial institutions. Our goal is to raise this ratio with quality loans in both counties. This should help bolster Hereford Texas Federal Credit's earning margins in the near term, since loans, even after handling cost and losses, exceed investment yields. Hereford Texas Federal Credit's end capital ratio was a solid 4.83%. Capital to risk assets was 6.0%.

The Board of Directors is satisfied with the health and stability of the Credit Union. And we feel we are grateful with quality management. We do have a few problems and in order of priority they are being addressed in a prudent manner. National Credit Union Association (N.C.U.A.) is our insurance fund and it is very sound.

Barring a panic depression or national economic catastrophe, Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union moves into the 1990's on a solid foundation.

As always, we appreciate and expect your thoughts, observations, and opinions about ways to improve our Credit Union.

Respectfully,
Joe Kerr, President of the Board

The Atrium: a downtown mini-mall

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

It's like taking a breath of spring air to walk into The Atrium--a nifty mini-mall tucked in the very heart of the downtown Hereford business district.

Three retail shops, an optometrist office, a beauty salon and a coffee shop blend brick and mortar into a shopping funfest.

Light pastels having a hint of elegance turn mini-mall corridors into nothing less than a welcome mat for shoppers. And there's two options to enter this little world of fantasy and fashions--through Main Street coffee counters or through a parking lot entrance at 5th and Main.

Either way, every inch of The Atrium is designed for comfort and convenience in shopping...or perhaps just a leisure stroll through some of the finest gifts and fashions in Texas. And who knows, The Atrium Coffee Shop may brew the finest cup in the West, if not the best home-made biscuits or cinnamon rolls.

Professional eye care enhanced with a giant selection of glasses or "contacts" round out the east end of The Atrium Mall, with a couple of professional hairdressers and beauticians completing The Atrium shopping bloc with a spacious salon for men and women.

The Atrium is a marketing concept of Doug Manning of Hereford, a man of many talents who performs equally as well in the book-writing field as in the making of mini-malls. And when the Sugarland Mall on the northside of Hereford began to phase out under economic adversities of the mid-1980s, Manning held a number of the merchants in Hereford with the face-lighting job on an old grocery store.

"When Mr. Manning built, or you might say re-structured, this building into a mini-mall, about all of us here today moved from the old mall," said Barbara Kerr, owner of ETCetera, a retail store specializing in women's (and juniors) sportswear. "Downtown Hereford has really made a come-back in retail development in recent years. As a matter of fact, we believe that downtown Hereford is now one of the best shopping centers of the entire Panhandle."

But few Texas towns have a shopping mall on Main Street. Most are located in the hinterlands of suburbia. But not in Hereford. The Atrium is about as "downtown" as you can get--and the tenants like it that way.

The Atrium Coffee Shop, fronting on North Main, is owned and operated by Vera Berryman who opens for breakfast six days a week at 7:30 a.m., with her specialties being home-made biscuits and gravy...and all sorts of fresh rolls straight from the oven.

Her luncheon specials includes a number of plate-lunches and about every sandwich in the book. But she doesn't serve any meats requiring an open grill--"We all (Atrium tenants) live and work so close together that I don't cook anything over an open grill which sometimes produce various odors. I can cook you a chicken-fried steak but not a grilled hamburger."

Mrs. Berryman can seat 32 in the diner that looks much larger. And because of its convenience to the downtown business district, the coffee shop has in recent years become sort of meeting place for ranchers and farmers and their city cousins. She features a salad bar in the summer and stew bar in the winter... "I generally stay open in the evenings as long as there's any customers in the mall."

Mrs. Berryman said she has worked in restaurants for 31 years but this is her first swing at running one. Born near Abilene, Vera moved to the Hereford area with her parents when she was 5. Her mother, Vera Jones, lives in Hereford.

She spoke fondly of her farmer/rancher customers--"There's Austin Rose in here today getting his daily cup of coffee...he was the very first customer to walk through those doors when I opened back in 1989." She also makes her own pies and cakes and has developed a brisk "orders-to-go" business.

She and her husband, Richard, have a family of six--Teresa, Samuel, Mack, Randy, Wayne of Bryan and Alan of Houston.

Moving through the mall entrance of the coffee shop, the first store on the left is the "Pants Cage," owned and operated by Lajeane Henry which features ladies sportswear and accessories.

"I like to think of my line of clothing as being high-fashion for the most part, in the medium-price range," said Mrs. Henry. "Our age category ranges from junior high to senior citizens."

The store derived its named back in the late 1960s when the mini-skirt-fad sort of forced pant-suit styles into a marketing bonanza in women-wear. But as the mini-skirts faded out, pantsuits became a lasting mainstay in women clothing, from western denim to high-fashions in social circles. Though mini-skirts recently have come on strong in high-fashion of New York dressmakers, Mrs. Henry noted that the "in thing" this spring may run from short skirts to ones nearly ankle length--it's whatever you feel comfortable wearing for this season."

The Pants Cage originated at the Sugarland Mall in 1968 and the following year Mrs. Henry's mother, Blanche Latham, bought the store. Mrs. Henry began working for her mother in the store that same year. In 1975, Mrs. Henry and her sister, Rita, bought the store from their mother, and in 1977 Mrs. Henry took over full ownership. She moved to downtown Hereford when Manning opened The Atrium for tenants.

A native of the South Plains, she moved to Hereford in 1951. She and her husband, Joe, have two daughters, Melessa of Fort Worth and Dana of Denver.

The Pants cage opens at 9:30 a.m. six days a week, closing at 6 on week days and at 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

The Pants Cage sponsors a number of style-shows in Hereford each year, sometime in the store while at other times before civic organizations at the Community Center or the Country Club... "We go whenever and wherever we're asked."

Down at the end of the Atrium Mall, Dr. Harold W. Brigrance, a professional optometrist, has found that Hereford is an excellent business center for professional services.

"Hereford has been a good place for my profession," said Dr. Brigrance, in relating to his move to Hereford a few years ago. "My patients not only include folks from the immediate area, but also a number from outlying towns of Amarillo, Friona and Dimmitt."

In addition to fitting a person with glasses or contacts, Dr. Brigrance also does diagnostic work of the eyes. He refers all surgery to outside surgeons.

Dr. Brigrance has his offices equipped with the very latest in eye-care equipment, high-tech scopes which can literally see behind your vision. He has one of the largest sections of professional eye-wear and eye-styles to the Southwest, ranging from dark-rimmed business frames to high-fashions for social circles. Single lens glasses are ground to perfection in his own laboratories in the Hereford offices, with bi-focals handled by outside lens-makers.

Being from a military family, Dr. Brigrance was born in Missouri, graduated from High school in Junction City, Ks., lived in Europe for 11 years, attended the University of Kansas and graduated from the Houston School of Optometry in 1983.

"I came straight to Hereford after getting out of school at Houston and didn't know a single person here," said Dr. Brigrance. "I was wanting to move to a medium-size town that was close to a major city and I found it all in Hereford."

"I actually came up here to go to work for another optometrist but after looking over the town, I decided to go to work for myself, rather than someone else."

Dr. Brigrance also moved from Sugarland to The Atrium... "I saw my first paying patient on Aug. 22, 1983." He and his wife, Janet, are expecting their first child. He has a step-daughter, Tara.

"I've lived in Hereford 8 years and that's longer than any other place I've lived in my whole life," said Dr. Brigrance.

Dr. Brigrance gets most of his new patients through referral, frequently beginning with a child or an elderly person that leads to the treatment of an entire family. He noted that eye muscles, just as those in the arms or legs, gradually get weak with use or age... "As one gets a little older, he sometimes need a little help with his eyes just like her does with his limbs."

Though the Hereford eye doctor used many technical words and phrases in describing a day's run in his offices and laboratories, it all boiled down to a simple fact--if you can't see, he can tell you why...and if it's fixable, Dr. Brigrance and company can fix it. But one thing is certain, early detection of a problem may save a world of vision.

Dr. Brigrance office hours are generally from 9 to 5, with exceptions on Tuesdays when he is open until 7 in the evening and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

Barbara Kerr features ladies fashions at the ETCetera, from high-fashion in streetwear to the very latest in sportswear.

"My customers include the young girls from the junior sizes to the senior citizen range," said Mrs. Kerr, as she walked among the many displays. "We have what I believe are the top lines of ladies clothing, including a wide range of sweaters and handbags."

Mrs. Kerr pointed out that much of her inventory are, in a way, hand-picked by her customers--"We try very hard to stock the kind of fashions that our customers want, and I might add that our Hereford ladies have very good taste in clothing."

All of ETCetera clothing come straight out of the latest fashion selections in Dallas, Atlanta or New York. Thus, if Dallas merchants have it, so does Hereford. Plainly put, shoppers don't have to shop high-risers in downtown Dallas for the so-called, one-of-a-kind--they can find them at The Atrium in downtown Hereford.

"There's five stores in Hereford which features the very latest in ladies fashions and between the five, there's not much in Amarillo or Dallas that you can't find in Hereford when it comes to ladies fashions," said Mrs. Kerr. "There may be some real high-priced items which we don't have, but not in the medium-price range."

Costume jewelry and some silver lines make up a part of the ETCetera displays which are just as professional as the quality of clothing.

Born in Clarendon and reared in Borger, Mrs. Kerr came to Hereford in 1976 and opened a children's store at Sugarland Mall in 1977. But prior to coming to Hereford, Mrs. Kerr also had a children's store. Thus, she operated two children's stores for about 10 years in Hereford and Borger. Mrs. Kerr has worked in clothing stores since she was 17 and was a buyer for a number of years for Sanger-Harris out of Dallas.

Prior to opening her children's store in Borger, the Hereford merchant operated a ladies fashion store in Borger. She majored in Marketing at North Texas State University at Denton and following school, went to work for Sanger-Harris, a Dallas outlet that for many years was a leading outlet in women's clothing. She also attended Oklahoma State University at Stillwater where she majored in education.

Actually was raised in Phillips and graduated from Phillips High School in 1951," said Mrs. Kerr, in recalling her school days in Hutchinson County. She also lived for a few years in Germany and Oklahoma--"Most of my life has been spent in clothing retail, but I also worked for some lawyers one time."

She and her husband, Joe Kerr, make their home in Hereford. She has two children, Karen and Bill Thompson both C.P.A.s who live in Dallas and Fort Worth.

Mrs. Kerr operated Grandma's Corner at the Sugarland Mall from 1977 to 1989 when she closed it to purchase ETCetera which was also at the Sugarland Mall until the move to The Atrium.

"I just love to run a store, you know, get to meet people and get me out of the house," said Mrs. Kerr, with a jesting smile. "I guess it has become kind of a hobby, but Joe lets me do what I want to so I run this store."

Carol Gerke, owner and operator of "Wishes," sort of a high-fashion store in gifts, with gifts for the brides being her specialty...and this selection is just about as big as Texas.

"Our main interest here is the bridal registry," said Mrs. Gerke. "We like to cater to the brides in getting their new homes started. Our secondary line is what we are really known for...our fudge."

Lajeane Henry, owner of The Pants Cage

Mrs. Gerke has her own fudge-making kitchen adjacent to Wishes where the sweets are marketed side-by-side with a thousand-and-one gift selections.

"We make all kinds of fudge," said Mrs. Gerke. "There's chocolate, chocolate-pecan, chocolate-vanilla, chocolate-walnut or amaretto-chocolate. We sold 250 pounds for the last Valentine's Day."

Mrs. Gerke's gift store is not only packed wall-to-wall with unique items, but even the very air is spiced with aromatic fragrance. This, she says, came quite by accident after stocking an inventory of gourmet foods...potpourri of goodness packaged for the discerning taste. She also stocks many blends of gourmet coffee which may be purchased as whole coffee beans or ground in the store at the customers' wishes.

The gift store features a full line of fine china, from complete table settings to one-of-a-kind in table decorations. And matching the fine china in quality are the many brands of tableware, wicker-works and candle inventories.

"I believe we have the largest china and dinnerware selection of any store in this area," said Mrs. Gerke, as she pointed to a number of leading brands. "You can't find anything any better in Dallas or New York."

Mrs. Gerke started out in the retail business in Hereford about 10 years ago with a partner in an import brass line, then bought out the partner in 1985. She gradually expanded the brass business into a full line of gift "wishes" for the brides. She moved into The Atrium in May of 1988.

Mrs. Gerke has three daughters--Shelley of Lubbock, Shannon of San Antonio and Shyla, a first-year law student at Baylor.

In addition to eloquent "Bride's Book" selections, Mrs. Gerke has several tables of gifts that were actually hand-selected by newly-weds--couples who picked from the store what they would like to receive...their fondest wishes. Thus, this allow shoppers a first-hand look at the "real" gift wishes of newly-weds.

A line of lead-based crystal adorns one display section, while in a center row, a rack of fine towels reveal the textile end of the business. Many of her displays are based on antique tables, some being round oak dinner tables--"I think the antiques give off a warm atmosphere."

"We carry some high-end things, but the bulk of my inventory is what the average person can afford," said Mrs. Gerke. "I look for things of high quality and medium-priced."

Joyce Duggan, owner and operator of "The Perfect Touch" beauty salon, can give most anyone a new look on life, from the latest in hairstyling to a facial of the finest. While Mrs. Duggan handles most of the hairdos, her daughter, Rhonda Banner, is at work on the manicuring tables. They also give pedicures to those with finicky feet.

Mrs. Duggan has been a hairdresser in Hereford for 26 years, while her daughter has been a manicurist for the past nine years. Mrs. Duggan's husband, Robert, is in the heat/airconditioning business. Their son, Bryan, and another daughter, Ginger, also live in Hereford.

In addition to hairstyling, skin and nail care, Mrs. Duggan also carries a full line of cosmetics and hair treatments.

"We carry the leading French lines of hair and skin care," said Mrs. Duggan. "Even the instructions on the labels are written in both, French and English."

Mrs. Duggan, who once worked in the mall on the edge of town, said the present downtown location has proven to be much better--"we really like it here downtown...this is where the action is, where people are doing things." Her hours are from around 7:30 in the morning to dark-thirty... "Twelve-hour days are not uncommon." The Perfect Touch is open Monday through Friday.

Located on the east side of The Atrium complex, The Perfect Touch has a room for everything--manicures in one area while hair washing and setting take up the far side of the salon. Dryers are strategically located close to magazine racks a few steps from the working areas. Mrs. Duggan is a graduate of the La Plata Beauty School of Hereford, while Rhonda attended a beauty school in Amarillo.

Along with a sizable clientele of women, Joyce and Rhonda have a number of men who are regular customers.

"We give a lot of haircuts and manicures to local men," said Mrs. Duggan, who takes great pride in her skills as a hairdresser, while giving due credit to her daughter's role as a working partner in the family business.

Though competition exists among retail merchants in downtown Hereford, The Atrium group reflect free enterprise at its finest--working almost elbow-to-elbow, then taking coffee-breaks at the same counter and dining at the same tables...Texas teamwork trying to make a place called Hereford a little better than before.

Hints from Heloise

Q. My children are now in college but I still like to give them something for Easter. Somehow a basket full of candy just doesn't seem appropriate. Do you have any ideas? — Lisa P., Baton Rouge, La.

A. There are so many great ideas I don't know where to start. If you're looking for a unique container, think about using a basket shaped like your state, a straw hat, a small trash can, a mug or unusually shaped glass, a vase, a candy dish, a shaving kit or a flying disk.

When you've decided what to use, try filling it with soaps and washcloths, cheese and crackers, fruit and nuts, travel-size cosmetics, packaged lunch snacks, cassette tapes or even a plant.

FAST FACTS

- Other uses for an Easter basket:
 - Fill it with fruit and put it on a table.
 - Use in the nursery to hold powder, lotion and pins.
 - On a bathroom counter it can hold clippers, scissors, etc.
 - In the kitchen, use it to hold spices and other baking needs.
- Put it on an end table to hold your remote control, TV listing guide and eyeglasses.

COINS

Dear Heloise: I travel a lot and after getting stranded a few times without any change, I started carrying a roll of quarters, dimes and nickels in my briefcase. There is nothing more frustrating than only having bills when you're in a hurry and desperately need a quarter. This makes my briefcase a little heavier but my life a bit less harried. — James H., Daytona, Fla.

I always toss a few extra quarters in my makeup kit for just the same reason! It makes life on the road easier. — Heloise

Here's An Idea That Can Strengthen Your Family

Tonight at the dinner table, read something out loud to your family. Tomorrow night, let another member read something. A news story. A Bible verse. A Robert Frost poem. A cereal box panel. History. Humor. Anything.

Each night a different family member can read a selection. Imagine the wide range of subjects your family will read in 365 days. What a stimulating way to have your children develop good reading habits. We have 23 million illiterate adults in America. We wouldn't have one, if each of them had been served reading as part of their nightly diet. It's non-fattening, but enriching. And it doesn't cost a dime.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read so many letters in your column from people who have no respect, let alone love, for their relatives. This one will be different.

When my mother died three years ago, she left a small amount of disability insurance that was divided in equal amounts among her six children. Since our eldest sister had taken care of Dad for eight years and then cared for Mom until she passed away, I felt that she should have my share of the money.

You can imagine how happy I was when I arrived at my sister's home and found that my brother had already sent her his check. He had decided quietly on his own, as I did, that our sister who took care of Dad and Mom should have his share of the inheritance.

Mom left no big estate. There was just the old house where we were all born and the little property it sat on. The property, with every family member's consent, was sold immediately after the funeral. The proceeds were divided between that wonderful eldest sister and another sister who had never married. Our unmarried sister had lived in apartments most of her life, and we decided that she should have a little home of her own. We all had dinner together one night and my brother greeted Sis like this:

"Well, they're breaking the ground for construction on your home. It will be down the block from us."

"Home? What home?" she asked. "YOUR home, Sis. Congratulations!"

There was a lot of whooping and hollering and a few tears. It was a thrill for us just to see the look on her face.

Last week I received a check in the mail from my unmarried sister. It was my share of Mom's government bonds. I called Sis and told her I was returning the check to her. She said, "You can't do that. My feelings will be hurt." Can you imagine? She insisted that I take the money, buy something lovely for my daughters and tell them it was from their grandmother, purchased with the last bit of money she had left behind for us.

Ann, we are not wealthy people. We are all underpaid Texas teachers who have always lived from paycheck to paycheck, but I consider myself very lucky to have been born into a family that is so loving and generous.

I know this letter is too darned long to publish, but I did have a lot of fun writing it. -- R.A. in S.A.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to say something to that smug male who bragged about drinking a gallon of water every day and not needing to leave his seat during intermission to use the facilities. He said, "Going is nothing more than a matter of habit."

I'd like to tell that jerk that if he ever went through a pregnancy with 30 extra pounds pressing on his bladder he'd sing a different tune. -- I.S., Queens, N.Y.

DEAR I.S.: You tell 'em, sister. I'm with you.

Gem of the Day: Don't give up. Keep going. There is always a chance that you will stumble onto something terrific. I have never heard of anyone stumbling over anything while he was sitting down. -- Charles F. Kettering

Musical talent from WTSU to be showcased April 5

The West Texas State University department of music and dance will stage its 11th annual reminder to local residents of the quality and variety of musical talent on the WTSU campus on Friday, April 5.

The curtain opens on this 90-minute "reminder," Showcase of Music, at 8 p.m. at the Amarillo Civic Center auditorium. An informal preconcert show in the lobby will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Variety has been the hallmark of previous Showcase concerts and 1991 will be no different. The musical extravaganza features approximately 300 students and faculty members in one or more of the 15-plus performances. Music will vary from classical to jazz, small groups to large, vocal to instrumental and the traditional to the seldom heard.

Although Showcase originated in 1981 to acquaint the community with the quality of WTSU's music department, it has become an important source of scholarship revenue. To date, income from Showcase has accounted for about $47,000 in music scholarships, aiding more than 150 students in their pursuit of a quality education.

Tickets, priced at $5 for adults and $1 for students, are on sale at C&D music, Tolzien Music and the WTSU music office. Tickets will also be available at the door the night of the performance. All seats are general admission.

For more information, call the WTSU music department at 1-656-2840.

"Watch Your Step," the first musical revue to feature a score completely by Irving Berlin, opened in New York in 1914.
