Earth Summit develops into rich, poor battlefield

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - In a country whose rain forests are a major ecological battlefield, the first-ever Earth Summit has developed into a fight between rich and poor over how to halt destruction of the environment.

The 12-day meeting that opens today is expected to be the largest-ever gathering of heads of state, with President Bush among more than 120 world leaders scheduled to attend.

U.N. Secretary General Boutros Ghali and President Fernando Collor de Mello of Brazil were to open the summit, officially called the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development.

Other keynote speakers were to include conference general secretary Maurice Strong of Canada, King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden, Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland of Norway, and President Mario Soares of Portugal.

Negotiators will address seven critical issues: global warming, technology transfer, ocean pollution, forest protection, population control, the preservation of species and environmentally safe development.

The summit at the Riocentro convention center on the city's southern edge begins a day after environmentalists launched their own meeting under brightly colored tents in a downtown park along the beach.

The vibrant atmosphere of the Global Forum, where delegates strolled among colorful booths on Tuesday, contrasted with the more sober mood among Earth Summit delegates.

The delegates have been struggling to salvage a number of key agreements threatened by disagreements between the wealthy industrialized countries of the Northern Hemisphere and developing countries of the south.

The southern nations, like Brazil, are demanding the north more generously help foot their cost of environmental protection.

The Brazilian government, for example, has come under pressure from industrialized countries to more vigorously discourage farmers and ranchers from hacking away at the oxygen-producing rain forest.

Like other developing countries, Brazil wants industrialized countries to provide the funds to help the Third World conquer poverty, which the developing world argues is the root cause of environmental degradation.

Among agreements expected to be signed when the summit concludes on June 14 is one on limiting emissions of carbon dioxide, the leading contributor to global warming. Another focuses on preserving the world's threatened plant and animal species.

Environmentalists and delegates from a number of countries have criticized the United States for severely weakening the global warming treaty and for announcing that it would refuse to sign the treaty to protect biological diversity.

President Bush, who is expected for the end of the summit, says stiff conservation legislation would hurt U.S. industry and stunt recovery of the recession-mired American economy.

On Monday, Bush announced that the United States will contribute $150 million toward preserving rain forests in developing countries if other nations join in the effort.

Environmentalists criticized Bush's "Forests for the Future" initiative as a reforestation instead of a conservation measure, as well as a tactic to blunt criticism of U.S. actions on the treaties.

"He wanted to have something to say to take attention away from biodiversity and global warming," said T.J. Glauchter, a policy analyst with the World Wildlife Fund.

On Tuesday, feminists, ecologists and native Indians gathered in a seaside park to kick off the Global Forum.

The first of 12,000 expected participants met in the 36 green-and-white-striped tents set up on 25 acres in Flamengo Park.

Hereford office opened in 1987*Education is key for domestic violence

In the early and mid 1980s, domestic violence had reached nearly epidemic proportions in Deaf Smith County. There were no referral agencies in the county for battered wives or others.

From 1983 to 1986, domestic violence calls went up 156 percent in Hereford, with 243 domestic violence reports filed in 1986. In 1987, domestic violence calls went up another 26 percent, with 305 reported.

Enough was enough. In February 1987, a group of city leaders, criminal justice and social workers met to plan for victim services. On May 1, 1987, the Hereford Outreach Office of the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center was established.

The Hereford office is staffed by one full-time professional, Michelle Hughes, and a secretary, Patty Valdez. An 18-member advisory board is a liaison to the community and helps with fund raising, and 20 well-trained volunteers handle domestic violence and sexual assault calls on a rotating basis 24 hours a day. The volunteer deal with answering the 24-hour crisis line, intervene in crises, provide transportation in some cases and work to accompany victims through the justice system. Volunteers and professionals also help with counseling for victims and children, and help arrange for shelter or other social, medical and legal services.

Volunteers also teach the WHO program to children in Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro and Oldham county schools. Over 5,200 children have been reached in the area school systems in four years. Junior high and high school students also get specific instruction about dating violence.

The Hereford office is a part of the Amarillo agency but is funded separately. Hereford donations stay in Hereford. The local office has served 1,600 victims of domestic violence and sexual assault.

"We also present public education programs to civic groups, study clubs, anyone anywhere to spread our message," Hughes said. "The programs are designed to make people aware of the issues and facts on domestic violence and sexual assault."

"Education is the key to success for our agency. It's not enough to just educate the victims of these crimes; society must be educated and learn about what we can do to stop the vicious cycle of violence."

"The last five years would not have been possible without the wonderful and caring people of Deaf Smith County and the surrounding area. We appreciate the donations, contributions, time and energy given our agency. We look forward to the next five years."

Bill Clinton locked up the Democratic presidential nomination with a six-state sweep and quickly promised to wrest Washington from the "forces of the status quo." But Ross Perot showed fresh strength on Clinton's victory night.

President Bush added six more wins to his undefeated streak against Patrick Buchanan in Tuesday's coast-to-coast balloting, another topsy-turvy day in which voters sounded a call for change but appeared uncertain about how to trigger it.

"I am going to give you a campaign with a vision of an America that works again, that rewards work, that invests in people, that insists on responsibility and that pulls us together as one nation under God," a triumphant Clinton promised.

His next big task: selecting a running mate.

The Arkansas governor's final flourish closed a roller-coaster nominating contest and included a win over lone primary rival Jerry Brown in California, where Brown served eight years as governor.

Brown, winning four out of every 10 votes in his home state, could take satisfaction from a respectable showing; he called it "a miracle ... a revolution." But he was trounced everywhere else Tuesday.

Clinton was getting 68 percent of the vote in Alabama, 59 percent in New Jersey, 61 percent in Ohio, 52 percent in New Mexico, 47 percent in Montana and 48 percent in California. Brown's best showing was 20 percent in New Jersey, and in Alabama, Montana and New Mexico he polled behind uncommitted.

Long-gone rival Paul Tsongas, the former Massachusetts senator, chose Tuesday to endorse Clinton. But Brown would not.

Faring even worse than Brown was Buchanan, who spent the night in the state where he peaked - New Hampshire.

Bush rolled up 83 percent in New Jersey and Ohio, 75 percent in Alabama, 72 percent in Montana, 67 percent in New Mexico and was pulling 74 percent in California. Like Brown, Buchanan trailed uncommitted in the three states with that option.

But even as the voters handed Bush and Clinton more wins, they sent warning signals that the parties will study closely as they prepare for their summer conventions and a fall campaign that billionaire Perot assures will shape up unlike any other.

Without being on one ballot, the independent Perot showed the potential of assembling a winning coalition, attracting support from both Democrats and Republicans who were polled after they voted. But voters appear confused about Perot too. In California, the exit interviews suggested he draws more from Bush than from Clinton; in Ohio it was the opposite.

And Perot's unfavorable ratings shot up from past surveys, particularly among Democratic voters, a sign that scrutiny may be taking a toll.

California made another piece of history Tuesday. Its two Senate seats were up together for the first time, and women - Dianne Feinstein and Barbara Boxer - became the candidates in both races, another first.

Elsewhere, there were few surprises. In one closely watched race, Democratic Rep. Mary Rose Oaker of Ohio withstood a strong challenger who repeatedly slammed

'Perot factor' emerges from polling voters in primaries

WASHINGTON (AP) - In several states from coast to coast, Republicans and Democrats, especially white males, acted in anger. You could see it on television, in colorful charts. It was called the Ross Perot factor.

After weeks of reporting that the voters were not satisfied with the candidates, the television networks tried a new tactic in polling voters in Tuesday's primaries. The survey at polling places in effect was advertised as a shadow election that included Perot on both parties' ballots.

His support in the survey ranged from 29 percent among Democrats in New Jersey to 46 percent among Democrats in Ohio and Republicans in California.

As an actual write-in candidate, where that was allowed, Perot collected less than 10 percent, the networks estimated.

Richard Hunt, 61, of Pasadena, Calif., a psychology instructor, told a reporter he didn't vote for anyone in the presidential primary because he supports Perot.

"I think he brings a strong sense of business to government and statesmanship qualities that would rise above the political infighting," he said.

The matchup spotlighted regional variations in Perot's support. He led Bill Clinton by 11 points in Ohio, was neck-and-neck with a 2-point lead in California and trailed by 8 points in New Jersey, CBS reported.

An analysis of the figures in today's Washington Post found that "the vast majority of Perot's supporters are white," and that he did better with men than women in both parties.

Perot was reported to have run best among Democrats who consider themselves conservative, and among four sometimes overlapping groups of Republicans:

- Those who supported Patrick Buchanan as a protest against President Bush;

- Those who think the economy is getting worse;

- Those who call themselves liberals;

- Those who believe, as Perot does, that abortion should remain legal.

The exit polls found 73 percent of California Republicans oppose their party's anti-abortion stand, as do 72 percent in New Jersey and 62 percent in Ohio, CBS reported.

The abortion issue and dismay at the process by which Justice Clarence Thomas was confirmed contributed to a strong turnout of women in California. Exit polls showed women "solidly backed" Rep. Barbara Boxer and former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who won Democratic Senate nominations, The New York Times reported.

But the pre-eminent issue in California has been the Los Angeles rioting. A majority of Democratic voters surveyed said it was caused by government neglect of the cities, but three in four Republicans blamed a breakdown in family values, ABC reported.

Two in three Ohio voters, and majorities in California and New Jersey, said the country would be better off if all the incumbents were thrown out and the country started over with new officeholders, CBS said.

Bush and Clinton were rated unfavorably by sizable numbers of their own parties' voters. California Democrats split 51 percent favorable, 45 percent unfavorable on Clinton. Bush did a little better, 59 percent favorable, 38 percent unfavorable, CNN said.

New Mexico rancher wins big lottery prize

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - A New Mexico rancher has become the first out-of-state winner of $10,000 in the Texas Lottery, said spokesman Andy Welch.

Danny Witt of Moses, N.M., traveled to Dalhart to go to the dentist Tuesday morning. He stopped at a convenience store and bought 10 "Lone Star Millions" lottery tickets.

The third one Witt scratched off was a $10,000 winner.

Witt then drove to the Amarillo lottery claim center for his prize. The Internal Revenue Services gets $2,000. Witt received a check for $8,000.

Lottery officials say Witt told them his first purchase will be a new cowboy hat.

The Texas Lottery started last Friday.

Two assessed prison terms

Prison terms have been assessed two defendants in 222nd District Court and a third defendant placed on probation for five years. Judge David Wesley Gulley pronounced sentences.

Richard DelaCerde, 44, was sentenced Tuesday to 20 years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division for felony driving while intoxicated. He also was fined $10,000. He was on parole from TDCJ at the time of his arrest on Feb. 8 on the felony DWI.

A 10-year sentence in TDCJ-ID was assessed Mary Jones, 42, who entered a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled substance, cocaine. She was arrested March 27.

A five-year probated term in TDCJ was given Ernest Chance Jr., 58, who entered a guilty plea to felony driving while intoxicated. He was arrested on Dec. 8, 1991.

Jones and Chance appeared in court Monday.

Morales' remark about lawyers in prison suit called 'political'

HOUSTON (AP) - Attorney General Dan Morales' charge that plaintiffs' lawyers in the longstanding Ruiz prison lawsuit are getting rich at Texas' expense is "just another piece of political baloney," one of the attorneys has said.

"The only thing standing in the way of a settlement is Dan Morales," attorney Donna Brorby said Tuesday. "He's off on a political venture. Like the rest of the American people, I'm not thrilled with politicians these days."

Morales said Tuesday that he was ready to go back to court to settle the case. Although a settlement had been reached earlier this year, Morales repeated his claims that the plaintiffs' attorneys have made additional demands he now cannot approve.

"I now see no viable or realistic prospects for resolution outside of litigation," Morales said at a news conference before he spoke to a graduating class at Houston's Charles Eliot Elementary School. "And I have directed our lawyers to gear up for trial."

The attorney general made repeated references to the "attorneys from San Francisco" who have been representing the inmates and he questioned their motives. Ms. Brorby and William Bennett Turner, based in San Francisco, are chief attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Morales said plaintiffs' attorneys have made more than $6 million in the case - money paid by Texas taxpayers.

"Good Lord, they have become millionaires in this litigation. And we have people dying, literally dying, Texans dying on our streets. And we have a couple of San Francisco lawyers on the West Coast over there counting their money," Morales said.

"Given the fact that they have made so much money in this litigation, I just have to question their motivations. I'll tell you this. If we end up indeed going to trial on July 6, or whenever we go to trial, our lawyers are going to kick their $6 million butts."

But Ms. Brorby accused Morales of twisting facts and stymieing the settlement for his own political gain.

She said she did not know whether Morales' $6 million figure was correct, but said $300,000 a year, including costs, for the 20 years attorneys have been representing prisoners in the case would be "a deal" for the state. In the early 1980s, the state paid a corporate law firm over $1 million for several months' work on the appeal, she said.

CLINTON

her over her House bank overdrafts.

California lacked decisiveness as a primary event - Clinton and Bush pulled to insurmountable leads in delegate totals weeks ago - but it was a harbinger of the fall campaign.

At his celebration, Clinton sought to cast himself in the outsider's role that is giving impetus to Perot's candidacy.

"I am tired of seeing the people who work hard and play by the rules get the shaft," Clinton said. "We want to put the forces of the status quo and short-term greed on notice: The party's over. We're in for a change. We want our country back."

Clinton entered the night needing just 86 delegates to clinch the nomination and was leading for 458, which would push his total to 2,517 - well above the 2,145 needed to fashion a majority.

Bush issued a statement thanking all Americans who voted - even those who chose another candidate, and framed the November elections as two big questions: "Who has the best ideas for America? Who do you trust to lead this country?"

Perot got into the mix as well.

In a CBS interview, Perot promised if elected to "move heaven and earth to stop the deficit spending" but didn't say how, and said he would not raise taxes except as a last resort. But he refused to take the "Read My Lips: No New Taxes" pledge Bush made four years ago.

"You can't ever quote me as saying anything that stupid," Perot said. Democrats saw hope in the Feinstein and Boxer victories, predicting both would win again in November and perhaps help Clinton in California by energizing the women's vote.

Feinstein, the former San Francisco mayor, faces Sen. John Seymour, who was appointed to the seat when former Sen. Pete Wilson was elected governor. Boxer, a liberal member of Congress, awaited word on her opponent.

Conservative Republican Bruce Herschensohn, a former television commentator, defeated moderate Rep. Tom Campbell in a tight race. Palm Springs Mayor Sonny Bono finished a distant third.

In Iowa, Jean Lloyd-Jones won the Democratic Senate nomination but was a long shot against GOP incumbent Charles Grassley.

Still, the Democrats, counting Carol Moseley Braun in Illinois and Lynn Yeakel in Pennsylvania, now have five female Senate nominees. The current Senate includes only two women.

Investors are losers in illegal bond sale

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Thousands of investors paid more than $250 million in church and corporate bonds sold illegally, federal regulators say in a civil complaint filed against a Texas company.

Investors are losing money on the bonds, Spencer C. Barasch, Securities and Exchange Commission trial counsel in Fort Worth, said Tuesday. But he said an exact figure was unavailable because many bonds have not yet matured.

"Many investors were church parishioners and the elderly," said Barasch. "A lot of the money invested was retirement money."

The civil complaint named AMI Securities Inc. of Amarillo and seven current or former officers and directors or registered sales agents.

The seven are James A. Gates, Ronald E. Gilbert and Benjamin C. Powell, all of Amarillo; Gene Armstrong and Willard May, formerly of Amarillo and now living in Birmingham, Ala., and Alpharetta, Ga., respectively; Auda Ashley of Tulsa, Okla.; and Claude Downs of Dunwoody, Ga.

The SEC accused AMI and the seven other defendants of violating anti-fraud provisions in the Securities and Securities Exchange Acts, said Jeanetta Hetrick, deputy clerk to U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson.

The complaint contended the securities firm, Gilbert and May violated registration provisions in the Securities and Trust Indenture Acts, Ms. Hetrick said.

Amarillo-based AMI is no longer in business, Barasch said. Dick Hewitt, a Dallas defense attorney in the case, and individuals named in the complaint did not immediately return telephone calls Tuesday from The Associated Press.

Commission attorneys contend that AMI's offerings of more than $200 million in church bonds and about $27 million in non-profit corporation bonds between 1986 and 1989 were fraudulent.

Student dancers, wearing mortar boards, were led into the room by Ed and Leona Schilling, presidents of the Hereford dancers, and Gary and Kathy Cole, presidents of the Dimmitt club. The students were presented with name badges, club by-laws and diplomas.

The graduates included Bill and Willa Mae Flippin, Bill and Billie McDowell, Clarence and Kay Behrends and Forrest and Ruth McDowell, all of Hereford. Graduates from Dimmitt were Shawn Ballow, Wayne and Pat Davis, Sam

Hardy, Julia May, Meredith Morgan, Kaci Schulte, Lori Schulte, Lloyd White and Shawn White.

Refreshments of sandwiches, chips, vegetables, assorted dips and decorated cakes were served. The evening's festivities concluded with dancing.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The 17-year-old daughter of a co-worker took a home pregnancy test and the result was positive. When she told her parents she was pregnant, they were very supportive, but her boyfriend became enraged and said he wanted nothing more to do with her.

A few evenings later, the girl attempted to hang herself. She was discovered and rushed to the hospital where she lay in a coma for three days. After several brain scans revealed no response, the life supports were removed and she quietly passed away.

The double tragedy is that the home pregnancy test was wrong. Hospital tests showed that the girl was not pregnant.

Although these do-it-yourself pregnancy tests advise seeing a doctor for verification, not everyone reads the fine print. But they do read your column, Ann. Please tell your readers that no matter what the circumstances may be, one should not rely on the positive or negative results of a home pregnancy test.

Many lives have been affected by this young girl's death, but maybe through your column some good will come out of it.--L.M. in Florida

DEAR L.M.: What happened to your young friend was a needless tragedy. Home pregnancy tests are not always accurate and should be confirmed by a doctor. Regardless of the outcome of the pregnancy test, however, that unfortunate young woman had several options.

The real value of this letter is to remind women everywhere that they DO have choices, as of this writing. If Roe vs. Wade is overturned by the Supreme Court, their options will be sharply limited--but that's another column.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a major gripe: When you are waiting to be served in a business establishment and the phone rings, the salesperson always answers it immediately, and you are left standing there like a dummy.

When that happens to me, I tell the salesperson, in a pleasant voice, that I was ahead of the phone customer and will she please take care of me first. Invariably she will terminate the call quickly, apologize and serve me.

The phone company has conditioned the public to answer that ring no matter what. Even when showering, you get out like a fool and run to the phone. Never mind how many people have broken an arm or a leg in the process. Please tell them how ridiculous it is to do this. They will listen to you.--Miami Beach

A blacksmith is someone who strikes while the iron is hot for a living.

DEAR MIAMI: Don't blame the telephone company for "conditioning people" to answer the phone. This is a decision that each individual makes for him or herself.

Of course, rushing to answer the phone is foolish, but that element known as curiosity lives in all of us: Who's calling? The only way you'll ever know is to answer the phone, unless, of course, you have an answering machine which not everyone wants--including me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: No, no! Please don't advise guests to fold the bedsheets nicely and cover the bed with the spread.

Departing guests should make up the bed so that if the hostess doesn't launder the bedding that day, the room will at least look tidy.

I was once mortified when a guest stripped off the coverlet and sheets and left them in the middle of the bed, which let me know that she had seen the badly worn but still comfortable old mattress underneath--Red-Faced in Sacramento

DEAR SACRA: You've made a good point. My face is redder than yours.

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (This includes postage and handling ) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-5062.

Dieting when younger may cause alcohol problems

WASHINGTON (AP) - The kind of dieting many college women do puts them at risk for problems with alcohol, and the more severe the diet the higher the risk, new research suggests.

A study of female college freshmen found that the more severe their dieting, the more often they got drunk and the more frequently they reported bad consequences of drinking such as unintended sex.

The reason for the relationship is not fully understood, said the study's co-author, Dr. Dean Krahn. Perhaps a woman who deprives herself of good-tasting, high-fat food is making herself vulnerable to the rewarding aspects of alcohol, he said.

Krahn said he has no data on whether the results also pertain to older women or to men. "There is no reason to believe it wouldn't apply to men," at least in college, he said.

Krahn is an assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Michigan. He did the work with colleagues Adam Drewnowski, Edith Gombert, Candace Kurth and Mark Demitrack.

Krahn presented the study Tuesday at a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association and spoke in a later interview.

The study, funded by the government's National Institute on Drug Abuse, included a survey of 1,420 incoming freshmen women at Michigan. Their average age was 17.8.

Eight percent of the group reported not dieting at all. Twenty-six percent reported casual dieting, which Krahn described as perhaps skipping dessert or a meal occasionally and only sometimes feeling negatively about one's body.

Twenty-three percent reported intense dieting, which includes occasional binges, frequent dieting and often feeling poorly about one's weight and shape. Twenty-one percent were classified as severe dieters, who make their weight, shape and dieting an important and virtually constant part of their lives.

Finally, 20 percent were classified as being at risk for bulimia and 2 percent as having bulimia. The disorder includes binge eating an average of twice a week over three months; persistent exaggerated concern about body shape and weight, and behaviors to counteract the effects of eating, such as vomiting or an overly strict diet.

The results show that more than half the women were following an intense diet or even more severe, Krahn said.

Researchers interviewed 305 randomly selected women, with some drawn from each dieting group, to study their alcohol behavior.

Forty-eight percent of the non-dieters reported drinking alcohol in the previous month, and that number increased steadily to 75 percent of the near-bulimic group. Bulimics themselves reported a 45 percent rate of drinking, although during the year they increased more than any other group did, Krahn said.

Less than 10 percent of non-dieters said they got drunk on most or nearly all occasions of drinking. The number rose to about 20 percent for casual or intense dieters, about 30 percent for severe dieters, about 40 percent for near-bulimics and more than 40 percent for bulimics.

Seven percent of non-dieters reported ever having alcohol-related blackouts in which they could not recall events that occurred during a period of time. The rate was 8 percent for casual dieters, 11 percent for intense dieters, 20 percent for severe dieters, 22 percent for near-bulimics and 27 percent for bulimics.

Unintended sex because of drinking was reported by 9 percent of non-dieters, 8 percent of casual dieters, 15 percent of intense dieters, 13 percent of severe dieters, 18 percent of near-bulimics and 35 percent of bulimics.

Asked if they had experienced three or more negative consequences of alcohol in a 13-item list, about 2 percent of non-dieters, 5 percent of casual dieters, 10 percent of intense dieters, 15 percent to 20 percent of severe or near-bulimic dieters and more than 20 percent of bulimics said yes.

Calcium vital ingredient for growing children, adults

Kids are often told to drink milk to build strong bones and teeth. Adults should heed the same advice.

The body is constantly in need of calcium. As children grow, they need calcium for proper growth and bone development. During their growing years children are actually building the physical foundation for their future and calcium is an important ingredient.

Children, ages one through 10, need three servings of milk every day. Serving milk with every meal is an easy way to make sure kids are getting the calcium they need.

For adults, it's important that bone health not be overlooked. The skeletal foundation built as a child needs constant attention. Between the ages of 11 and 24, a person needs four servings of milk to build maximum bone density.

Perhaps one of the most important reasons for getting enough calcium in the diet is to provide insurance against osteoporosis, the brittle bone disease that is manifested in the elderly.

Osteoporosis is a disease for which there is no cure but there are preventative steps that can make a difference. It's as simple as getting the recommended number of milk servings every day.

Osteoporosis can leave the bones weak and brittle and incapable of holding up the body. The spinal column begins to deteriorate and fine cracks develop that weaken the skeleton. When this deterioration occurs a person may actually become shorter because the spine is not strong enough to hold the up; they may develop a stoop.

The bones are a storage place for calcium is both deposited and withdrawn. If a person does not get enough calcium in his diet the body will withdraw calcium from the bones to meet the need for calcium elsewhere in the body. In addition to building bones and teeth, calcium also helps regulate muscle contraction and relaxation and helps the blood coagulate.

Honor roll students named

One hundred forty-four West Texas State University undergraduates were named to the President's List and 650 earned mention on the Deans' List for the 1992 spring semester.

Students earning President's List recognition achieved a semester grade point average (GPA) of 3.850 (of a possible 4.000) or better with a minimum class load of 12 undergraduate hours.

Students on the Deans' List achieved GPAs of at least 3.250.

Those from Hereford on the honor roll were: Kirsten Abney, undeclared; Sophia Boldeaz, general special education; Angela Banner, mathematics; Lori Barndt, reading; Kerri Debord, English; Terri Debord, interdisciplinary; Shelly Elam, nursing; Reagan Frye, biology; Suzanne Gaitan, mathematics; Lucia Garcia, accounting; Andrew Gee, agricultural business and economics.

Rosalinda Gutierrez, Spanish; James Ingham, applied A & G; Shelly James, reading; Ann Lacey, earth science; Regan Lewis, accounting; Kari Malamen, undeclared; Daun Murray, nursing; Coby Perkins, pre-medicine; Lelsi Sliney, reading; Debra Tabor, generic special education; Gail Walterscheld, computer information systems; Jill West, theater arts.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A $1,600 guitar autographed by singer Garth Brooks is among the items being sold to help finance a police day camp for inner-city youths.

A compact disc and poster set autographed by Kenny Rogers are also up for grabs. Officer Allen Harold, an organizer of Saturday's police auction, said it is the only fund-raiser for the camp.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR DR. LAMB: My daughter is experiencing problems with acne. She has been using Retin-A, .025 percent, and Minocin, 50 mg, for over two years. I have read too many bad things about Accutane and refuse to let her take it.

She is very careful about keeping her face clean and wearing the make-up that her dermatologist suggested, but to no avail. Her acne has not gotten better. She is a very beautiful young lady inside and out and doesn't dwell on her acne problems. But I know deep down it does bother her, and I hurt for her. Can you make any other suggestion for my daughter and others like her?

DEAR READER: It sounds to me that short of Accutane therapy, your daughter is on a good program. Acne — pimples, blackheads and whiteheads — is caused by an excess production of oily sebum. This usually occurs at puberty and during adolescence and may disappear eventually. The trapped sebum may cause blackheads and whiteheads. The bacteria that live within the skin pores attack the sebum and break it down into irritating chemicals that cause redness and inflammation.

The treatment is to avoid oily skin, use a medicine that causes the surface of the skin to peel and let the accumulated sebum escape and use antibiotics to avoid the bacterial action.

Retin-A is one of the best peeling agents available and it also helps to dry the skin. It would be my first choice for such treatment. Your daughter should know that it greatly increases her sensitivity to the sun when she is using it and she needs to protect herself against exposure. Minocin is a good antibiotic to protect against bacterial action.

Some doctors have also used spironolactone, normally used for high blood pressure, because it has an antiandrogen hormone effect, and that may help decrease the excess sebum secretion.

I have discussed the medicines, including Accutane, that are used in the treatment of acne in Special Report 100, Acne and Rosacea, and am sending you a free copy. Others who want this special report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/100, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Accutane is a difficult drug and should only be used in severe cases that do not respond to other measures. Because it can cause birth defects, I am quite concerned about its use in any female of child-bearing age.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Do you get the same effect on a treadmill as you do walking? I usually walk at about 3.5 miles per hour on the treadmill for 30 minutes after a 10 minute warm-up. When I walk, I carry my one-pound weights and walk around 80 minutes.

DEAR READER: If the treadmill has a flat surface, and the road you walk is flat, you will use about the same number of calories and have the same benefit if you walk at the same speed. However, if the treadmill is inclined, that will greatly increase the work. Or if you walk up a hill, that will increase the work.

There is no one answer to your question, but you can get a good idea by checking your heart rate at the peak or near the end of your walk or on the treadmill. Whichever one causes the fastest heart rate will be requiring the most work. In terms of aerobics, that one would be the best to improve your heart and lungs. I prefer longer exercise periods at lower levels of exercise rather than vigorous exercise for a few minutes.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

In 1900, most people born in the United States did not live past the age of 50. Today, Americans live an average of about 73 years.

Dominant center no longer ticket to title

By MIKE NADEL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - Remember the Wilt Chamberlain-Bill Russell wars? Remember Willis Reed limping onto the court and willing the New York Knicks to victory? Remember Bill Walton and Moses Malone and George Mikan?

Remember when having a great center mattered?

Those days are long gone. The NBA has evolved. Its top players are do-it-all guards and point forwards - as the 1992 Finals, which begin tonight at Chicago Stadium, will illustrate.

Certainly Bill Cartwright of the Chicago Bulls and Kevin Duckworth of the Portland Trail Blazers will never be confused with Chamberlain and Russell.

And they know it. "The stars are in the backcourt in this series," said the 7-foot-1 Cartwright, who averaged eight points and 5.1 rebounds during the regular season, 5.3 points and 4.6 rebounds during the first three playoff rounds. "It's the way basketball has become."

"Both teams don't get the ball inside," said the 7-foot Duckworth, 10.7 points and 6.1 rebounds during the season, 12.9 points and 5.1 rebounds in the playoffs. "Me and Cartwright might only get two shots each game."

While Michael Jordan and Clyde Drexler perform aerial stunts, while Jerome Kersey and Scottie Pippen run and gun, while Horace Grant bangs the boards and Terry Porter bangs home jumpers, Cartwright and Duckworth will do what most big men do nowadays.

Set a few screens. Grab a few rebounds. Take a few shots - usually outside the lane and only if they're wide open.

Mostly, they'll serve as decoys and dishmen for Air Jordan and Clyde the Glide.

"Basketball has changed in the last 20 years," said Bulls coach Phil Jackson, a former teammate of Reed. "Teams double-team the post so much. That was considered illegal defense when I played, but now it's in vogue."

"Duckworth and Cartwright are great centers. It's just that they don't get opportunities to go solo."

Calling Duckworth and Cartwright "great" is generous. Fact is, if they were, they probably wouldn't be playing in the NBA Finals.

Here's the latest great center scorecard:

- Hakeem Olajuwon, Houston, eight seasons, one Finals, no titles.
- Patrick Ewing, New York, seven seasons, no Finals.
- Brad Daugherty, Cleveland, six seasons, no Finals.
- David Robinson, San Antonio, three seasons, no Finals.

Today's four best centers, over a combined 24 seasons, have reached the Finals a total of once. And they have zero championships.

Meanwhile, Cartwright has been in two successive Finals, Duckworth two of the last three.

The message? Orlando had better find some great players to help Shaquille O'Neal.

This isn't a recent trend. Robert Parish won three titles with Boston, but Larry Bird and Kevin McHale were the stars. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar won five titles with the Lakers, but none until Magic Johnson showed up. Moses Malone was the last center to carry a team to an NBA title, back in 1983 with Philadelphia. And it didn't hurt that there was a decent Doctor in Malone's house named Julius Erving.

"When I was growing up, I always thought that great teams had to have dominant big men," said Will Perdue, Chicago's hard-working but talent-shy backup center. "In the past, centers took the majority of shots. Now, most of us are role players."

Correction: Partership

The annual Hereford Men's Partnership Golf Tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday, not Friday and Saturday as was reported in Tuesday's Brand.

The deadline is today for the tournament at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. Entries can be made until the Pitman pro shop closes. The entry fee of $70 per golfer includes a cart, but does not include green fees.

Hereford Rotary Club will hold its Hole-in-One Contest in conjunction with the event. Entry fee is $5 for three shots, and players can take their qualifying shots during tonight's Wednesday Scramble and from 5-6:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Immediately after the tournament concludes Sunday, 25 qualifiers will get one shot each at a hole-in-one and $20,000. If no one gets an ace in the finals, a consolation prize will be given to the finalist who is closest to the pin.

Golfers in the partnership tourney will have three shots at qualifying on No. 3 during Saturday's play. In addition, the Rotary Club will offer prizes to tourney golfers for hole-in-ones on the other par-three holes on Saturday. Prizes for the aces include: Hole No. 6--a set of Mizuno MSX metal woods; No. 9--four-day golf vacation for two at Sandestin Beach Hilton Resort in Florida; No. 10--two Lufthansa German Airline tickets to any destination in Germany; and No. 14--a half dozen Dirotts Sportswear golf shirts.

HMGA meets Thursday

The Hereford Men's Golf Association will meet at 7:30 Thursday at Hereford Country Club. Plans will be made for the Double Couples tournament, a joint project with the Hereford Women's Golf Association, scheduled for July 11-12.

Entries for the tournament are being taken at the pro shop at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Men battle rain at French Open

By DAVID CRARY
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) - For the women, it's rematch time at the French Open. For the men, it's hurry up and wait.

While rain delayed the men's quarterfinals, the four top-seeded women won their matches Tuesday to set up a re-run of last year's semifinals.

In one pairing Thursday, top-seeded Monica Seles, seeking her third straight title, will once try again to get past third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini. In the other, No. 2 seed Steffi Graf will try to avenge her worst defeat as a pro, a 6-0, 6-2 loss on center court last year to Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

The men have unfinished business today, including completion of a suspended match between top-seeded Jim Courier, the defending champion, and No. 8 Goran Ivanisevic of Croatia.

Courier raced through the first two sets as evening fell Tuesday, seemingly on course for an easy win.

But Ivanisevic, furious at himself for mistakes early on, settled down while Courier made some unaccustomed errors to lose his first set of the tournament. The match was suspended because of darkness with Courier leading 6-2, 6-1, 2-6.

"Can anybody see anything?" Courier asked as he tried unsuccessfully to halt play before Ivanisevic could win the third set.

The second of Tuesday's scheduled quarterfinals, between No. 3 Pete Sampras and No. 11 Andre Agassi, was postponed until today.

In the last two quarterfinals, originally scheduled to be played today, France's Henri Leconte met Sweden's Nicklas Kulti and Andrei Cherkasov of Russia took on Petr Korda of Czechoslovakia. Korda, seeded seventh, is the only seed left in the bottom half of the draw.

Among the women, Graf probably has the strongest motivation as she seeks to make amends for last year's semifinal embarrassment. That was the second time she had lost on the center court at Stade Roland Garros to Sanchez Vicario - the first was when the Spaniard won the title as a 17-year-old in 1989.

"This is a different year, and we're both playing well," Sanchez Vicario said. "I've beat her here both times on center court, and I feel very comfortable. I'm just going to play my game and try to be aggressive and see if I can win."

Graf found reason for satisfaction in her 6-3, 6-7 (7-4), 6-3 victory Tuesday over Natalia Zvereva, even though it included her first loss of a set in five matches.

"I am definitely in the shape I want to be," the German right-hander said. "I think I needed to have a tough, close match which will definitely help me for the next one."

Sabatini also lost her first set of the tournament and trailed 0-3 in the second set before making a spectacular comeback to beat seventh-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

In her first four matches, Sabatini had lost only nine games.

"Before, I didn't have any tough player to play against," the Argentine right-hander said. "Now that I've had a tough match, I'm more prepared for the next."

The next will bring her up against Seles, who had little trouble Tuesday beating error-prone Jennifer Capriati 6-2, 6-2.

Gambling bill passes Senate

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Senate-passed bill barring the states from authorizing gambling on sports is heading for the House, where its chief sponsor predicts approval this year.

The measure, which has the vocal support of major organized sports groups, swept through the Senate on an 88-5 vote Tuesday after sponsors said it was necessary to protect the games as well as the nation's youth.

"Gambling is a significant threat to American youth, who may grow to view sports gambling as acceptable behavior," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., author of the bill.

Should state-sponsored gambling on sports events become a way of life, every dropped pass or missed free throw would be questioned, added Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., a former college and professional basketball star.

The bill, he said, "will preserve the opportunity for all young people who desire to participate in sports to regard the game as theirs and not the gamblers'."

Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas, who introduced the ban in the House, said through spokesman Carlton Carl that he fully expects the bill to become law this year. Carl noted that a version of the ban is included in a compromise anti-crime bill that has passed the House but is stalled in the Senate.

The Bush administration objects to a provision that would allow sports organizations to go to court to block any state gambling but does not oppose DeConcini's bill.

The only senator to speak against the ban was Charles Grassley, R-Iowa.

"This bill is not about banning gambling," he said. "It's about the power of organized sports." If the big professional sports organizations were really concerned about the nation's youth, Grassley said, they would "stop allowing advertising for alcohol to influence young people."

He said the bill is unfair because it would allow five states - Nevada, Delaware, Oregon, North Dakota and Montana - to retain existing sports gambling schemes but deny a similar opportunity to other states hard-pressed for revenue.

Thirty-two states and the District of Columbia already operate lotteries, netting about $8 billion a year. Some are considering expanding into sports gambling.

"Under state-sponsored sports gambling, the only real winners would be the bookies and the private companies that encourage states to run the games in the hope of administering them," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

The bill would make it illegal for a state, city, county or Indian tribe to sponsor, operate or authorize any gambling plan that is based on professional or amateur sports.

In addition to the five states, the bill would exempt parimutuel animal racing or jai-alai games in any state.

The sports gambling ban has the backing of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, National Football League, National Basketball Association, Major League Baseball and the National Hockey League.

Tark hires assistants

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - San Antonio Spurs head coach Jerry Tarkanian announced Tuesday the hiring of Rex Hughes and Ron Adams as assistant coaches.

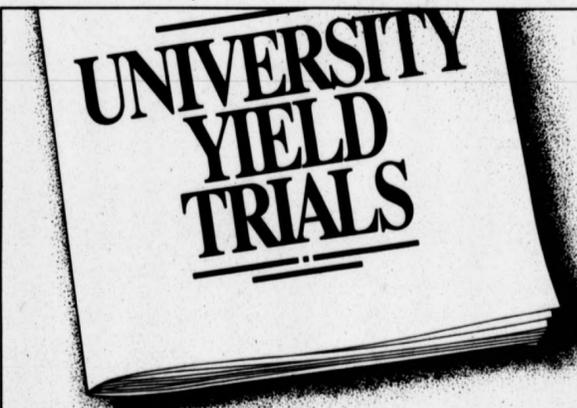

The pair, both former aides at UNLV at one time in their careers, are Tarkanian's first hirings since he was named head coach of the club in April.

Hughes most recently served as interim head coach of the Sacramento Kings, after taking over from Dick Motta last December.

In 57 games as head coach of the Kings, Hughes recorded a record of 22-35. He was named chief scout of the team last month when Gary St. Jean was named head coach.

Prior to joining the Kings as an assistant in 1990, Hughes was a scout with the Atlanta Hawks for one season after working as a part-time scout for the Kings during the 1987-88 season. He also did some work for Marty Blake and Associates during that same period.

A veteran of more than 20 years of international and collegiate coaching experience, Adams joins the Spurs' staff following a year as an assistant coach at Drake University.

Witt survives rocky start to beat Yanks

By The Associated Press

Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine says Bobby Witt is a better pitcher now that he has learned that he doesn't have to strike out every batter.

Witt rebounded from a bad first inning Tuesday night to hold the New York Yankees to only four singles and no runs over the next 7 2-3 innings as the Rangers took an 8-2 victory.

The Yankees jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

"Bobby made a nice adjustment after the first inning," Valentine said. "We expect Bobby to give us a good game every time he goes out. He's learning how to pitch and he's learning that he doesn't have to punch (strike) everybody out."

Witt's sixth victory came at the earliest point of the season of his seven-year major league career.

Witt, 6-4, reached the six-win mark in his 11th start. His best previous early-season performances came in 1987 and '88, when he recorded his sixth victory in his 15th starts.

Starting pitching was a major question mark for the Rangers going into the start of the season, but it is rapidly becoming the team's strong point.

Rangers starters are now 8-1 over the last 18 games as Witt lowered his ERA from 1.69 over his last four starts. Witt, Kevin Brown and Jose Guzman comprise a formidable trio and Ryan has kept the Rangers in games despite bad luck, little bullpen help and injuries.

Juan Gonzalez hit a two-run homer in the first and Dean Palmer had a three-run shot in the fifth to back Witt as the Rangers snapped a three-game losing streak.

"That gave us five runs on two hits and made our job a lot easier," Valentine said. "Gonzalez's homer was huge. He has to learn to hit the ball the opposite way. If he can do it, he'll be a monster."

Palmer's team-high ninth homer of the year expanded a 4-2 lead to 7-2 off loser Tim Leary (4-4). Dickie Thon, who singled, and Julio Franco, who reached on a fielder's choice, scored ahead of Palmer.

Leary, 2-8 lifetime against Texas, was battered for seven runs and five hits over five innings.

"I'm concerned any time one of our pitchers doesn't pitch to his potential," Yankees manager Buck Showalter said. "I think he was a little less aggressive with the forkball and the sinker tonight. He didn't have a finish on his pitches."

The Yankees put up a two-run first against Witt with the help an error.

Dion James led off the game with a four-pitch walk and scored on Danny Tartabull's double. Tartabull then scored on Mel Hall's sharp grounder when Rangers second baseman Al Newman made a throwing error. The error was Newman's first in 63 games carrying over two seasons and first in 136 consecutive chances.

Texas erased the 2-0 deficit with a four-run first aided by an error.

Julio Franco led off with a double, his first hit since returning from the disabled list on Monday. Leary walked Palmer and hit Rafael Palmeiro with a pitch to load the bases. Two runs scored on Kevin Reimer's fielder's choice, the second on shortstop Mike Gallego's wild throw to first while attempting to complete a double play.

"The key to the game was the bottom of the first," Showalter said. "We were one play away from getting out of it and we didn't make it."

Gonzalez, two-for-20 over his previous five games, followed with a two-run homer to right, his eighth of the season.

The Rangers have won seven of their last eight at home.

Texas has captured 17 of its last 20 over the Yankees at Arlington Stadium.

Orioles 4, Angels 2

Cal Ripken Jr. hit a two-run homer and Jeff Tackett added a solo shot as visiting Baltimore won its fourth straight.

Pirates 1, Dodgers 0

Pinch-hitter Dave Clark drew a walk in the seventh inning off Tom Candiotti to force in the only run, and Pittsburgh stopped Los Angeles' six-game winning streak.

Randy Tomlin (6-3), who had a 7.33 ERA in his previous six starts, allowed five hits in seven shutout innings for only his second victory since April 25.

Reds 2, Cardinals 1

Tim Belcher won for the fourth time in five decisions.

Cincinnati won for the seventh time in eight games by scoring two unearned runs off Jose DeLeon (2-5). Tom Pagnozzi's passed ball let in a run in the second inning, and right fielder Felix Jose's error set up Bip Roberts' sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Belcher (5-5) scattered seven hits over eight innings.

Cubs 3, Padres 2

Chicago's Andre Dawson hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning at Wrigley Field and Mark Grace a single for the winning run in the 13th.

Braves 5, Phillies 3

Terry Pendleton hit a two-run homer off Mitch Williams in the last of the ninth inning to give Atlanta its fifth straight victory.

Pendleton reached Williams (2-2) for his 10th homer after Otis Nixon had singled and stolen second base.

The Phillies had tied the game in the ninth when John Kruk scored on a wild pitch by Mike Stanton (1-2).

Blue Jays 7, Twins 5

Derek Bell broke a 13th-inning tie with a sacrifice fly off Gary Wayne (1-2) and Manuel Lee hit a run-scoring single as visiting Toronto rallied from a 4-0 deficit and won its fifth straight.

Royals 2, White Sox 1

Kevin McReynolds hit a go-ahead home run in the eighth inning at Royals Stadium, the first homer off Scott Radinsky (2-2) in 50 innings since last July 27.

Mark Gubicza (6-3) allowed four hits in eight innings, struck out three and walked four. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Athletics 5, Red Sox 3

Mike Moore allowed one earned run and seven hits in 6 1-3 innings, struck out five and walked three at Oakland. Dennis Eckersley, Oakland's fourth pitcher, got five outs for his 19th save.

Brewers 5, Tigers 4

Scott Fletcher singled in the go-ahead run with two outs in the seventh off Mark Leiter (3-3) as Milwaukee won after wasting a 4-0 lead. Visiting Detroit has lost six straight, matching its worst skid this season, and dropped a season-low nine games under .500.

Jesse Orosco (2-1), the third Milwaukee pitcher, threw 2 1-3 scoreless innings, and Doug Henry got five outs for his eighth save.

Ryan may pitch Thursday

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Nolan Ryan may be able to pitch Thursday against the Minnesota Twins if his hamstring keeps improving, Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine says.

Ryan's next start was scheduled to be Saturday, but Valentine said he might switch Ryan with Mike Jeffcoat, who was scheduled to pitch Thursday.

Ryan said Tuesday night it was too early to tell if he can pitch on Thursday or if he will have to wait until Saturday.

"It doesn't feel too bad," Ryan said after completing his normal post-start workout on Tuesday. "But it's too early to make any determination. I haven't talked to anybody, so I really don't know. I'm just going to finish today and evaluate how it feels."

Indians 4, Mariners 3

Glenallen Hill put Cleveland ahead with a two-run homer in the seventh off Erik Hanson (2-8) as the Indians won for the sixth time in seven games.

Dave Otto (4-3) gave up three runs and five hits in seven innings. Steve Olin pitched the ninth for his 11th save.

today and tomorrow and we'll take things from there."

"Nolan has had leg problems since he was 20 and I don't see that this is anything to worry about," Valentine said.

Ryan went on the disabled list after an opening-day start in Seattle with a strained left calf muscle and inflamed right Achilles' tendon. He returned April 30.

On Monday, Ryan walked Andy Stankiewicz as rain peppered the mound, making it slick. Ryan slipped on two pitches to Don Mattingly; the second time he grabbed his left leg, and Valentine rushed out to the mound.

Ryan tried a couple of practice pitches and then departed in favor of reliever Jeff Robinson, who proceeded to walk Mattingly. The walk was charged to Ryan. The Yankees went on to win, 7-1.

It was only the second time in Ryan's 775 major league games that he had failed to retire a batter. The other time was Sept. 28, 1971 against St. Louis when he was pitching for New York.

Ryan, stuck on career victory No. 314, is 0-1 with a 4.67 ERA in eight starts this year. He is winless in his last 10 starts.

This is the deepest he has ever gone into any of his 26 seasons without a victory, although his bullpen has blown three leads. He hasn't won a game since last Sept. 25 in Seattle.

D helps Portugal shut out Expos

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The Montreal Expos kept hoping Houston pitcher Mark Portugal would run out of gas. He never did.

Portugal (5-2) extended his Astrohome streak to four games with a six-hitter and he got outstanding defensive help Tuesday night as the Astros beat the Expos 6-0.

"He can pitch," Expos manager Felipe Alou said. "To have five wins at this stage of the game, you've got to be pretty good. Portugal has nine lives. Everytime I thought he was dead, he would come back and throw the hell out of the ball."

Portugal struck out three, walked four and became the second Astros pitcher to throw a complete game this season.

"He threw everything he had and didn't give in," Montreal's Tim Wallach said. "We hit some balls good but they caught them. Portugal got behind some hitters but he kept throwing off speed stuff for strikes when he was behind."

The Astros made a complete turnaround from Monday night when they played one of their worst games of the year in a 7-1 loss to the Expos. Manager Art Howe gave his team a stern lecture and they responded to his challenge.

"It wasn't anything that I said, they just came out and played an outstanding game," Howe said. "There were a lot of key plays tonight and it helped to have a pitcher out there putting zeros on the board."

Center fielder Steve Finley highlighted Houston's defensive performance with leaping and diving catches that robbed Arci Cianfrocco of two hits. A double play with the bases loaded ended the second inning.

Portugal reached behind his back to stab a grounder by John Vander Wal for the first out in the eighth inning.

Alou was as impressed with Finley's performance as he was with Portugal's.

"It was a nightmare out there tonight," Alou said. "That center fielder played like a mixture of Ted Williams and Maury Wills. He can hit, field and run the bases."

The Astros got off first inning runs off Bill Sampen (0-3) with singles by Jeff Bagwell and Eric Anthony.

Finley walked, stole second and scored on Bagwell's single to left field. Bagwell took second on the throw and third on the play on left fielder Matt Stairs' throwing error. Anthony's single to right scored Bagwell.

Craig Biggio walked and scored on Finley's triple in the fifth. Anthony and Ken Caminiti singled in the sixth and scored on Eddie Taubensee's double to right field. Bagwell's grounder scored Biggio with the final run in the seventh.

"I'm just doing my job," Finley said. "You don't evaluate your catches, you just catch. I try to catch everything even if I have to sacrifice my body."

Finley leaped against the wall to catch Cianfrocco's long fly in the fourth. In the seventh, Finley ran to his right and made a diving catch that robbed Cianfrocco of another hit.

Mets 4, Giants 3

The Mets loaded the bases off Trevor Wilson (4-5) in the third inning on a single and two walks with one out. Murray then hit the first pitch 403 feet over the left field fence to tie Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron and Dave Kingman for fifth place on the all-time grand slam list with 16.

Reliever Wally Whitehurst (1-2) worked 2 2-3 hitless innings for the victory. John Franco got the last four outs for his ninth save.

Longhorns eliminate Oklahoma

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Cal State Fullerton and Texas may have percentages on their sides if they can pull off victories in the semifinals of the College World Series tonight and Thursday.

Only once have both the teams that won the first two rounds of the modified double-elimination tournament made it to the championship game. That was last year when Louisiana State and Wichita State made it to the title game 3-0. LSU won 6-3.

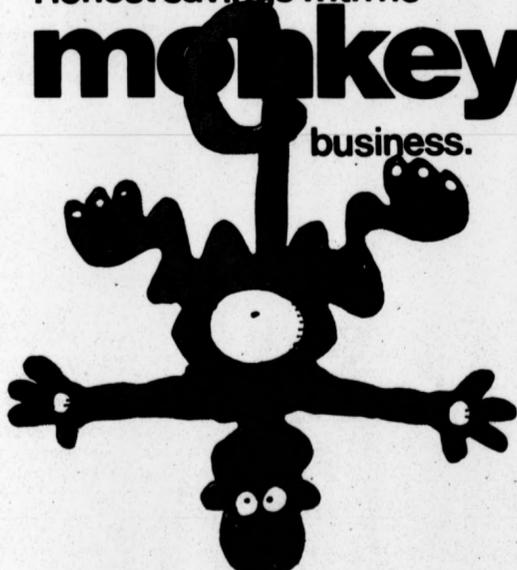

Fullerton, ranked fifth nationally, carries a 44-16 record into the 4:06 p.m. contest today against top-ranked Miami (55-8). The Hurricanes stopped Fullerton 4-3 in Sunday's second round. Fullerton came back to try again with a 6-0 shutout of Florida State in Tuesday's elimination round.

Texas, an 8-5 winner over Oklahoma Tuesday, takes a 48-16 mark against third-ranked Pepperdine (46-11-1), which shut out the Longhorns 7-0 Monday night.

Drafting baseball players is inexact science

NEW YORK (AP) - The Houston Astros think they've picked a good one.

With the top choice in Monday's draft, the Astros selected Cal State-Fullerton third baseman Phil Nevin, who has been compared to Montreal third baseman Tim Lincecum.

"He most closely fit the picture of what we wanted to help us build our ball club," general manager Bill Wood said. "This is a player who is close to the major league level. He should have limited development time."

Of course, on the day of the draft, every general manager thinks his scouts have come up with the next Mickey Mantle or Sandy Koufax. The picking process in baseball, however, rarely works out that way.

Consider Los Angeles' amateur draft since 1980. Since then, the Dodgers have used their first-round picks to take Ross Jones, Dave Anderson, Franklin Stubbs, Erik Sonberg, Dennis Livingston, Chris Gwynn, Mike White, Dan Opperman, Bill Bene, Kiki Jones, Jamie McAndrew and Ronnie Walden.

The first year of the amateur draft was 1965 when the Kansas City A's picked outfielder Rick Monday No. 1. They could have chosen Johnny Bench or Nolan Ryan, but at least Monday went on to have a productive major league career.

In 1971, the first five picks were Danny Gooden (Chicago White Sox), Jay Franklin (San Diego Padres), Tom Bianco (Milwaukee Brewers), Condredge Holloway (Montreal Expos) and Ray Branch (Kansas City Royals). Those teams could have picked Jim Rice, George Brett, Mike Schmidt or Keith Hernandez, who was chosen by St. Louis in the 42nd round.

Four potential Hall of Famers - Rickey Henderson, Wade Boggs, Ozzie Smith and Alan Trammell - were missed by the teams with the first four picks in 1976. Instead, they went for Floyd Bannister (Houston Astros), Pat Underwood (Detroit Tigers), Ken Smith (Atlanta Braves) and Bill Bordley (Brewers).

On June 5, 1982, the Minnesota Twins' future looked bright. They had the fourth pick in the draft that day, and when it came their time to select, the player they wanted was still available.

"It was an obvious choice," recalled George Brophy, then the Twins' vice president for scouting. "Bryan Oelkers had been the college pitcher of the year. He was exactly what we needed. So we took him."

The Mets had the next pick. They selected Dwight Gooden. "Sure, now everybody asks why we didn't get Gooden," said Brophy, currently a scout for the Astros. "But he was still in high school, and I'll bet there haven't been 10 high school pitchers to make it big. The Mets caught lightning in a bottle that day."

The Mets, of course, missed the lightning in 1966 when they picked catcher Steve Chilcott with the top pick instead of Reggie Jackson. Two years later, New York had the No. 1 pick again and selected shortstop Tim Lincecum instead of catcher Thurman Munson.

The Seattle Mariners thought they had a sure thing when they made Al Chambers the top pick in the 1979 draft. Chambers, a big hitter in high school, eventually made it to the majors for a few games but soon disappeared.

That same year, the Dodgers gambled in the 17th round on the third-best starter on the Bowling Green University staff. That was Orel Hershiser.

"He wasn't overpowering, but he had a good arm. Also, there was his makeup and continual pursuit of improvement," Dodgers general manager Fred Claire said.

"You've got to give credit to our scouting staff. He didn't come by accident," he said. "After all, the 17th round is a long way down, but at the same time, that is the 17th-best player you've put into your system in that given year. And that's not a throw-away draft."

In the 19th round the same year, the New York Yankees drafted a high school player from Indiana who had a pretty swing. He was Don Mattingly.

"At the time, I thought I should've been taken higher," Mattingly said. "But when I look back on it, I can see why I wasn't. I couldn't run and I couldn't throw. All I could do was hit, and no one knows if a good high school hitter will ever make it to the majors."

In recent years, more teams have selected college players, hoping to get immediate help without so much risk. The California Angels made Jim Abbott the eighth choice in 1988 and the Baltimore Orioles took Gregg Olson with the fourth pick. The No. 1 player picked in '89 was pitcher Andy Benes, selected by San Diego.

Many times, though, good players develop from late-round picks.

In 1982, Oakland waited until the 15th round to draft a still-developing high school star from Florida - Jose Canseco. Kansas City held off until the 19th round the same year before taking a high school pitcher from Los Angeles who had arm trouble - Bret Saberhagen.

Boggs went in the seventh round to Boston in 1976. Kent Hrbek was Minnesota's 17th-round choice in 1978 and Eric Davis signed after being taken by Cincinnati in the eighth round in 1980. Bobby Bonilla wasn't even drafted.

Philadelphia also found a gem in the 20th round of the 1978 draft, taking Ryne Sandberg. Unfortunately for the Phillies, they traded him to the Cubs in 1982.

Palmeiro reunited with brother from Cuba

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Rafael Palmeiro is making $3.85 million this year to play first base for the Texas Rangers.

His brother Jose is not impressed. "Rafael is a better person than he is a ballplayer," said Jose, who is visiting America on a six-month visa from Cuba.

"All his life, he's never had anything," Rafael said of the balding, 40-year-old visitor who stepped out of his dreams and into his arms six weeks ago.

"I am real glad to see him here, experiencing what life is all about," Rafael said. "But it doesn't matter that I have a nice car, a nice house. It doesn't impress him, really. He's happy with his health and that we're all healthy, and he's got his family back home. And that's all that is important to him."

When Rafael left Cuba for Miami in 1971 with his parents and two of his three brothers, Jose, then 19, was forced to stay behind because he was approaching military age. They grew up 90 miles and two worlds apart.

Jose flew to Miami on April 22 in a trip arranged by "This Week In Baseball." His parents and other brothers met him at the airport and hugged him for the first time in 21 years. That night, Rafael hit a grand slam and said, "That was for him."

Jose, a photographer who still lives in the Mantilla section of Havana that his family fled, saw Rafael play at Yankee Stadium that week and visited his mother and father last month.

He flew to Arlington on Monday to spend the rest of his time with Rafael, his wife, Lynne, and their 2-year-old son, Patrick.

"Now, it's like I'm living a dream," Rafael said. "But he's got to leave, and that's when it's going to hurt."

Asked if he could believe his brother was earning so much money, Jose laughed. "If I judge him by what he has done up to now this year," he said in Spanish, "well ..."

"He's dogging me now," joked Rafael, a career .302 hitter who's batting just .275 as he tries to shake a season-long slump. "That's all right, it's not over yet."

"I've seen tapes. I've heard radios," Jose said. "I know he is a great ballplayer. And you know what I am most proud of? I taught him his first swings in baseball."

What the Cuban government didn't know when they refused to let Jose leave with his family in 1971 was that he was born with half a left arm, something that made him ineligible to serve in the military.

Something that should have allowed him to leave Cuba with his family.

"No, it doesn't seem fair," Rafael said. "It doesn't... but... No, no, I'm not going to say anything. You have to watch what you say."

Jose has a pregnant wife and young son he must soon return to in Havana. It's better not to say anything about Cuba.

"He's a proud guy and he's lived his life the way it's supposed to be. He doesn't regret it. He's not sad or mad that he had to stay back 21 years," Rafael said.

"There's a lot of things that happen in Cuba that you just don't say anything. You just keep quiet."

Jose said he is overwhelmed with America and would like to return with his family some day. But he is afraid to talk too much about those wishes.

Rafael and Jose get moist eyes when they talk about the day they will have to part once again.

"It's like losing a brother. But it's going to be tougher on my parents," Rafael said. "But he's got a family to go back to and that's more important. Hopefully, he can have a chance to come back."

Jose can only take 40 pounds of luggage back to Cuba. He said he will take a baseball, some photographs and a ton of memories from one unforgettable summer.

Rafael will turn his thoughts back to hitting. He has his health, his wealth and a new appreciation.

"Just thank God every day that you're in this country," Rafael said. "So what I'm hitting nothing? And we're not playing well? That's not important. Because look what he's gone through and look what I have here."

Rafael said before this visit, it was as though he didn't have a brother in Havana, only in his memories as a child. But the riches he now treasures the most have nothing to do with money.

"I was so young when I left that he didn't seem like a brother almost," Rafael said. "Now I feel like he's my brother all along, and I just hope that he can bring his family and stay with us and hopefully give his kids a chance to be what they want to be. Just like I had a chance."

Wiffle Ball lets anyone throw like big leaguer

SHELTON, Conn. (AP) - The curve ball that David A. Mullany threw 39 years ago launched his career - not as a Hall of Fame pitcher, but as co-inventor and maker of one of America's favorite backyard games, the Wiffle Ball.

Mullany, then 13, and his father, David N. Mullany, used packaging material and tape to invent the dancing plastic sphere that makes batters "whiff" - hence the name.

The ball, which makes it easy for even the most rag-armed pitcher to throw a curve, slider, sinker or screwball, has provided the family with a living ever since.

"No other ball compares to the Wiffle Ball," said Mike Palinczar, president of the New Jersey Wiffle Ball Association. "With a Wiffle Ball you can make it do just about anything."

Sales of the white perforated plastic balls and yellow plastic bats continue to grow, although figures are a family secret, said David A. Mullany, now 51 and company president. His father died in 1990.

It's no longer just a kid's game. Adults have formed a World Wiffle Ball Association with official rules and a championship tournament that last year drew 35 teams to suburban Boston.

There is a simple premise behind Wiffle's success: Everyone wants to throw a curve. Even President Bush tried to snap off one last year when he threw out the ceremonial first pitch for the Texas Rangers, but it hit the dirt.

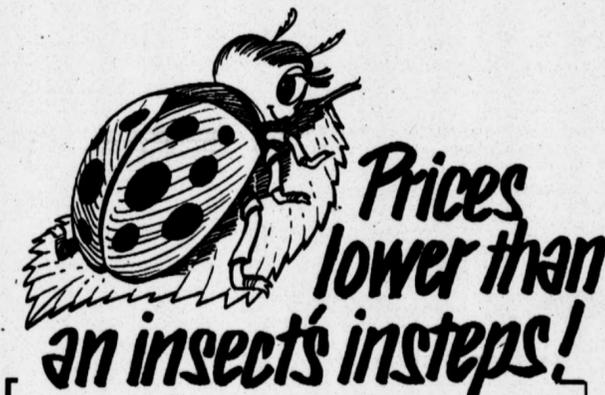

Mullany's father was out of work in 1953 and looking for a business venture when he dreamed up the Wiffle Ball.

"My father saw me and a friend using a plastic golf ball and a broom handle to play baseball in our backyard for hours on end, and he saw that we were always trying to throw curves," Mullany said. "He knew he'd have something if he could make a ball that would curve."

A baseball pitcher throws a curve by spinning the ball. The elder Mullany, who had played baseball in college, thought if he made one half of the ball lighter than the other, it should curve.

Using tape and some perfume packaging material, the Mullany quickly learned that the shape and configuration of the holes in the ball, not the weight, were the key to making it curve.

They determined that a ball with eight oblong holes on the top half and a solid bottom worked best.

Olympic team should be set after season

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

It's too late to do anything this year.

But here's a suggestion that might come in handy four years down the road, something that this time around might have spared Isiah Thomas 40 stitches in the face, Larry Bird a few months in a back brace and the United States another international embarrassment:

If we're going to continue sending pros, pick the Olympic basketball team AFTER the NBA season instead of before.

A decade from now, people may look back at the U.S. roster and what it accomplished in the upcoming Summer Games and remember it as the "Dream Team" it seemed at last September's unveiling. But examined in the harsher glare of present realities, it looks to be something less. And if the rest of the world isn't too fractured to come up with a stiff challenge or two in Barcelona, we may yet find out exactly how much less.

In case you misplaced the announcement, these were the 10 names originally selected for the Summer Games: Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen of the Bulls; Karl Malone and John Stockton of the Jazz; Patrick Ewing of the Knicks; David Robinson of the Spurs; Charles Barkley of the 76ers; Bird of the Celtics; Magic Johnson of the Lakers; and Chris Mullin of the Warriors.

(The roster was increased to 12 players last month with the addition of Portland's Clyde Drexler and Christian Laettner of two-time NCAA champion Duke).

Now, think back again to last fall and you'll recall that the only flap resulting from the announcement was the exclusion of Detroit's Thomas. And the only question being asked was whether Thomas' nemesis, Jordan, did some behind-the-scenes politicking to keep him there.

But if the same names were to be announced at the conclusion of the Chicago-Portland championship series sometime during the next two weeks, there would almost certainly be as much screaming as dreaming, as much second-guessing as counting of blessings.

As constituted, the roster includes four genuine small forwards - Bird, Pippen, Mullin, Barkley - and two others - Jordan and Drexler - who have put in some time at the position. But it only has two true point guards - Magic and Stockton. And so shouldn't a few members of the selection committee be probably kicking themselves (and rightly so) because Golden State's Tim Hardaway, the best point man in the pro game right now, will be left stateside when he might be desperately needed Over There?

There are other potential problems as well. Johnson's battle with the virus that causes AIDS forced him to retire and there are significant doubts about his ability to endure the grueling training regimen the Olympics will require. Ditto for Bird, who has been increasingly hobbled by a bad back and could certainly use the summer off if he plans to return for another NBA season.

Even the young and healthy Mr. Robinson is coming off surgery to repair torn ligaments in his shooting hand, which could leave his tandem at center, Ewing, leaving a lot of playing time. Meanwhile, Jordan, Pippen and Drexler, already severely tested by previous playoff series, could be playing for the NBA championship as late as June 17, only three days before they are scheduled to report to Olympic training camp in San Diego and barely a week after that, the U.S. team opens qualifying play at a tournament in Portland.

Supporters of Thomas' candidacy gripped in September that Stockton was awarded the spot on the U.S. team that rightly should have been his. And Thomas appeared determined to prove it when he lit up Utah for 44 points in a 123-115 Detroit win (Stockton had 20) in early December. The next time the two teams met, the game was barely seven minutes old when the 6-foot-9, 250-pound Malone flattened the much-smaller Thomas on a drive to the basket, sending him to the hospital for stitches and touching off a melee.

Malone denied he had retaliation in mind and the two later made their peace. But as this postseason has proven, the NBA is rough enough without giving these guys any more incentive to knock one another around.

Blackman may play for Panama

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Mavericks guard Rolando Blackman says he will decide Thursday whether to attempt to lead his native Panama to an Olympic berth.

Blackman was on the 1980 U.S. Olympic team that didn't go to Moscow because of the U.S.-led boycott.

He told The Dallas Morning News in Tuesday's editions that if insurance and accommodations matters are settled to his satisfaction, he will play for Panama in the Basketball Tournament of the Americas in Portland, Ore., June 27-July 5.

To qualify for the Olympics in Barcelona, Panama would have to finish among the top four in the 10-team field dominated by the U.S. team, which is stocked with 11 of the NBA's best players, and perennial power Brazil. Puerto Rico and Canada are the favorites to join those teams in Barcelona in July.

Blackman, entering his 12th NBA season, left Panama at age 7 and became a U.S. citizen in 1986. Because he was born in Panama, he is eligible to play for that country.

Besides the insurance fee of $40,000 that the Panama Basketball Federation would have to assume, Blackman said it still must be determined what accommodations

Luis Tiant, a winner of two games for the Boston Red Sox against Cincinnati in the 1975 World Series, was acquired as a free agent by Boston.

Tim Smith of the Washington Redskins set a record with 204 yards rushing against Denver in the 1988 Super Bowl.

and amenities will be provided for Panama's players.

"I want to make sure the standards are the same as we get playing for the NBA team," he said. "I don't want to settle for less. That's the main thing I'll find out Thursday. At this point, it can go either way."

The Mavericks said they'll give Blackman permission to play for Panama.

The first 14 runnings of the Hambletonian Stakes were held without mutuel betting.

Mutuel betting was introduced for the Hambletonian Stakes in 1940 at Goshen, New York.

The 1947 Hambletonian winner, Hoot Mon, was a son of Scotland.

Beef producers go with low-fat products

In the 1980s the beef industry was out-processed, out-produced, out-promoted and even out-muscled in the meat case by chicken.

In the 1990s, it's poultry's turn to look out. Beef has emerged in a new, lean fighting form that promises to make everyone forget its Eighties frailty.

Intent on regaining the top position as American's meat of choice, the beef industry had developed a new high-tech, low-fat ground beef that just now is entering Texas supermarket meat cases. The new products, each more than 90 percent fat-free, match the leanness of any turkey, chicken or ham product.

What caused this reversal? In the 1980s, beef producers provided $373,000 in beef check off funds to finance research to develop low-fat ground beef products. Ground beef was the focus for two reasons: External fat can easily be removed from steaks and roasts to make them lean prior to cooking. Also, approximately 40 percent of all fresh beef sold through retail or food service outlets is ground beef.

The industry-funded research, conducted at five universities and private laboratories, has resulted in many new formulations that launched the new low-fat ground beef revolution. All the formulations are in public domain, and all currently are being used by obvious meat companies.

Ninety percent or more lean ground beef has always been possible. A meat market manager merely removes the fat from beef before placing it in a grinder. However, the product's palatability suffers in the process.

Fat is a moisture carrier, and its removal makes cooked ground beef fry and flavorless. Most regular ground beef is 80 percent lean. The industry-funded research focused on ways to make ground beef that is more than 90 percent lean have the same "mouthful" as regular 80 percent ground beef.

The new products all started with lean ground beef. From there the research varied on how to return moisture to the product while leaving the fat out. Auburn University developed product with beef checkoff funds that used water to replace the fat and carrageenan, a plant-derived compound, as a binder to retain the moisture. Webb Laboratories achieved the same end by using oat bran and a binder.

Other formulations include hydrolyzed vegetable protein, another plant derivative, and modified dairy solids made from buttermilk solids and when protein concentrate.

The first product, using a lean beef-carrageenan mixture, reached Texas April 19 through McDonald's Corp. Supermarkets across Texas began selling low-fat products 30 days later.

This arrival of low-fat ground beef marks a huge reversal for the U.S. beef industry.

"The 1980s was an era of misinformation for beef," Anne I. Anderson, executive director of the Texas Beef Industry Council, said. "Chicken was perceived by consumers as being more healthy than beef, more convenient than beef, and more modern than beef. Beef producers learned through nuts-and-bolts competition that it was time for a change."

In order to change, the industry had to become leaner. The industry adapted new production and feeding practices. They introduced more muscular breeds from Europe and fed cattle shorter periods of time so they put on less fat. By the end of the 1980s, Texas A&M University's Beef market Basket Study shows that today's beef steaks and roast have 27.4 percent less separable fat and ground beef has 10.2 percent less fat on average than previously reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In addition, a 3-ounce lean serving of beef actually has the same cholesterol content as an equal portion of skinless chicken. Beef is the superior source of heme iron, an easily absorbed form of iron. And it provides a larger share of the U.S.A. Recommended Dietary Allowances (USRDA) of protein, zinc, iron and vitamin B-12 than of calories. Combine those inherent benefits with introduction of low-fat ground beef, and Americans can return to beef knowing they can find products as lean and fat-free as turkey and chicken.

"New low-fat ground beef is a great new breakthrough for the beef industry," Anderson said. "Ground beef lovers can now enjoy a hamburger or a bowl of chili or meatloaf or any other great American favorite tailor-made for their dietary needs. They won't miss any of the taste, flavor or eating pleasure that only beef provides. They'll only miss the extra calories from fat. That's the promise of the new high-tech American beef industry."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have read that most medicines have the possibility of doing harm to our bodies, but prescribed medicines are often necessary. I am taking one tablet of ibuprofen, 600 mg each day, for my arthritis in my knee. I have read that ibuprofen has not been thoroughly studied as to its effects on the human body and that Advil could cause kidney failure. Will ibuprofen do this?

I need one tablet during the day so I don't suffer so much with arthritis pain when I walk. Is there another medicine that will relieve my pain and is safer to use?

A friend of mine said she read that aspirin was the best medicine for arthritis. She has started taking three tablets a day and they are a lot cheaper. She sweats a lot. Is that from the aspirin?

DEAR READER: Ibuprofen is the generic name for Advil, Nuprin, Motrin and Rufen. They all have the same effect, but the amount of medication varies. Some can be obtained without a prescription.

All of these medicines and other medicines, as well as aspirin, may cause kidney damage when used in large amounts for a long time. That is particularly true if used in combination with other medications—especially if a person already has some kidney damage. Dr. Leslie Dronfeld, a kidney specialist at the University of California, Los Angeles, and Dr. Walter Flamenbaum, a kidney and hypertension specialist at Beth Israel Medical Center in New York called the availability of these medicines a "time bomb."

I wish there were better medicines, but it is a difficult problem. It means individuals with osteoarthritis should limit these medicines to the minimal amount required to control pain. I would recommend more reliance on physical medicine with stretching and heat to help relieve pain when possible.

I am sending you a free copy of Special Report 101, Aspirin, Tylenol and Related Medicines, for more information. Others who want this special report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/101, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, N.J. 08077.

Aspirin is not necessarily better, even though it is cheaper. Some of the related medicines may be less inclined to irritate the stomach or cause bleeding. Sweating is a complication of large doses of aspirin.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My sister has pernicious anemia. Her doctor gives her nerve tablets. She has asked for vitamin B-12 shots once a month. Her memory is not good. She cannot retain what she has been told. She seems to imagine things and is easily upset. Couldn't she take folic acid tablets? Isn't there any treatment for this or a cure? What is the difference between Alzheimer's disease and pernicious anemia?

DEAR READER: If your sister has pernicious anemia, her doctor would undoubtedly be giving her B-12 shots. Perhaps you should talk to the doctor yourself. Folic acid will correct some of the manifestations of pernicious anemia, but not all. It will correct the anemia while letting nerve tracts in the spinal cord degenerate, resulting in irreversible crippling. That is the danger in taking large amounts of folic acid.

A B-12 deficiency can result in mental changes that mimic Alzheimer's disease, but can be corrected with treatment. Alzheimer's disease is the degeneration of specific parts of the brain independent of vitamin B-12.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband has a habit of holding his breath while sleeping. I hear a pause after inhalation then several short catches in his throat as he attempts to exhale, then silence and finally a full exhalation. The interruption may take 30 seconds and occurs quite frequently throughout the night. He also snores frequently.

Is this condition called sleep apnea, and is it a threat to his health? He is thin and fit. He runs three or four miles a day, eats sensibly and monitors his blood cholesterol levels—which are within normal limits. His family does have a history of early heart disease.

Although his uneven breathing disturbs my sleep sometimes, it would bother me less if I could be assured that it was not damaging his heart. My husband is not concerned at all and claims to wake up feeling well rested. DEAR READER: Your description certainly sounds like sleep apnea, which may not be breath holding, but breathing stops followed by loud noises as breathing is resumed. These people usually do snore loudly and frequently.

Most often, sleep apnea occurs in overweight males, but you do not need to be overweight to have this disorder. Even some thin women have it. A few short episodes of stopping breathing are not so important, but frequent episodes are. They usually cause a person to be tired the next day and even sleepy, because it causes poor-quality sleep.

The episodes will not damage his heart structurally. But during the time he is not breathing, the oxygen level in his blood falls. When it falls enough, it can trigger a serious cardiac irregularity. And of course, if a person already had significant coronary artery disease, the fall in oxygen level could cause problems.

Have your husband read about sleep apnea in Special Issue 36-12, A Good Night's Sleep. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/36-12, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Sleep apnea is often associated with, and may cause, high blood pressure too.

Today, individuals with sleep apnea can use continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP), which is a mask over the nose while sleeping that keeps the airways open. It might help. Ask him to check in with a sleep center for sleep studies.

DEAR DR. LAMB: You mentioned the importance of exercise to maintain muscle tone. You said even facial exercises are important to maintaining a good facial appearance. Would you please elaborate on this and give me some idea on what facial exercises I could do?

DEAR READER: Any muscle that does not work against resistance will get weak and decrease in size. People lift weights and workout on machines for their body muscles and usually neglect their facial muscles. You exercise your facial muscles by forceful contractions. Use your fingers to identify the various muscles and feel them firm up as you contract them. Clench your jaws with your mouth partially open and feel the jaw muscle contract. Put your fingers above your eyebrows and lift your eyebrows against light finger pressure. Work your cheek muscles below your eyes, again using your fingers to guide you. With this approach you will soon identify what facial movements or expressions you need to make to work your facial muscles. Good firm facial muscles fill out your face and help you look younger.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 25-year-old woman with two children. My problem is that I've always been underweight. I have tried the pills and powdered drink mixes on the market, but they don't help. I can't eat a lot of fatty foods or junk foods because they bring up my cholesterol. Is there anything out there that can help?

DEAR READER: When a person gains weight, there is usually a tendency to increase the cholesterol level. Conversely, when a person loses weight, there is a tendency to lower the cholesterol. That is why weight control is so important in controlling your cholesterol. Nevertheless, some people who are skinny have high cholesterol levels and some who are overweight have low cholesterol levels. So regardless of what you eat that causes you to gain weight, you may have trouble with your cholesterol level.

I am not sure why you have a problem with your cholesterol. It is unusual for a 25-year-old healthy woman to have high cholesterol levels unless it is on a genetic basis. If your total cholesterol is high, or your HDL-cholesterol level is low, you may need more than diet to help you.

You don't need to eat fats to increase the calories in your diet. Starches are a good source of calories. So are sweets, although I don't usually recommend them because people usually already use too much of those foods. There is some controversy over how important fats, other than saturated fats, are in the diet concerning a person's cholesterol level. Such controversy brings one back to basics, to try it and see what it does to your cholesterol levels. That is the only final answer. What works for one person or a group may not work for a different person.
