Conservation honorees

Roy Carlson, left, and Gertrude Grotegut, center, were named 1987's top conservation farmer and homemaker, respectively, at the annual Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District awards ban-

Carlson, Grotegut honored

Roy Carlson, Gertrude Grotegut and Jenny Davis were honored for their efforts Wednesday at the annual Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District awards banquet at K-Bob's Steak House in Hereford.

Carlson was named 1987 Conservation Farmer of the Year; Grotegut was picked as the Conservation Homemaker of the Year; and Davis, a sixth grader at St. Anthony's School and the daughter of Walt and Beverly Davis of Hereford, was honored for producing the top conservation poster in the district's recent poster contest.

Carlson is a Deaf Smith County native and has been a district cooperater for 17 years, operating 1,500 of irrigated land, two sections of dryland crops and CRP land, and was honored for operating one of the most efficient irrigation systems in the district. Carlson was recognized for his 1987 work with the Soil Conservation Service and the Tierra Blanca district, the High Plains Underground Water District, and the Extension Service.

Grotegut, a native of Germany, takes an active part in the family's farming operation and in the lives of their four children. She is active in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger, and is active in the Hereford Community Concerts Association and as a 4-H parent leader.

Group made millions after MS salary deal

WASHINGTON AP — A real estate developer whose family pays for the salary of Attorney General Edwin Meese's wife, Ursula, was granted a $50 million lease renewal on a building the government said risked the health and safety of Justice Department workers.

Thirteen days after obtaining the new lease, the developer and his partners sold the building for $22.6 million more than they had paid for it two years earlier — a 60 percent profit, according to District of Columbia land records.

The developer, Howard S. Bender, was the principal owner of the building in late 1985 when the Bender Foundation, his family's tax-exempt philanthropy, donated $120,000 to the Multiple Sclerosis Society to hire Ursula Meese at $40,000-a-year for three years, the society's lawyer said.

The lease — a renewal at more than three times the previous rent — was signed even though the landlord had not cleaned up an air system environmental inspectors said was a health hazard that could explain above-average sickness there, according to government documents.

And the lease was signed even though the easy public access required by another tenant jeopardizes Justice's ability to provide adequate security — and increases the opportunity for sabotage and other covert activities, a government document said.

An attorney for the Meeses denies any wrongdoing on their part in the transactions, but acknowledges that the Benders and Meeses know each other. The Benders refuse to discuss the matter. A key government official said Meese played no role in the real estate decision.

But the MS society's records on Mrs. Meese's job have been subpoenaed by independent counsel James McKay as part of his investigation into whether Meese committed federal crimes, according to James Bierbower, attorney for the MS Society.

Federal law makes it a felony for a federal official to take any governmental action that would affect the financial status of his spouse. Further, a presidential order forbids federal officials from conduct that might give the appearance of a conflict of interest, even where one does not exist.

The seven-story Chester Arthur Building on the rundown fringe of downtown Washington houses the headquarters of the Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service.

In March 1985, Bender, vice president of the Bender Foundation, and other investors acquired the building at an apparently inauspicious moment in its history.

Public records show that Bender and his associates paid $37.5 million, nearly twice the assessed value — for the building.

At the time, the building's most valuable asset was the federal lease, which was due to expire within a year and would be put up for bids by other landlords.

In fact, the federal government had already taken steps to move out.

On Aug. 8, 1984, Congress had approved a Reagan administration plan, pushed by then-Attorney General William French Smith, to begin moving some federal offices out of the building. The plan called for a new lease there in 1986 for only 63 percent of the space the government had before.

However, three months after the Bender partnership bought the building, the administration told Congress that its plans had changed dramatically.

In June 1985, the General Services Administration — the government's housekeeping agency — notified Congress it wanted to keep the immigration service in the full 264,000 square feet at Chester Arthur.

That same month, immigration officials complained of illnesses among INS employees apparently caused by the building's air system.

On Sept. 26, 1985, assistant immigration commissioner James Kennedy formally requested an environmental inspection from the General Services Administration.

Against this background, in the fall of 1985, the Benders made two separate efforts to get Mrs. Meese on a payroll.

First, they tried to interest Mrs. Meese in a public affairs job at their radio station, WWDC, which has a rock-and-roll format, but Mrs. Meese declined, MS attorney Bierbower said.

Then, in October 1985, the Bender Foundation indicated it would contribute $120,000 to the MS society for a development director, Bierbower said.

There was no question that MS had in mind that Ursula would become the development director at the time the Bender Foundation put up the money for the position, Bierbower said.

Howard Bender's wife, Sondra, is president of the family foundation and a member of the MS Society board.

It's been a hot political year in Texas. One reader proclaimed that we were "too dern conservative with your politics and to dern liberal with your comments."

Accurately describing a liberal or a conservative usually depends on the issue — and more specifically on how it is going to affect the pocket-book.

One so-called conservative recently put together a glossary of political terms that take some shots at the Jesse Jackson-type liberal. The terms appeared in a Michigan publication.

—Equal opportunity: preferential treatment.

—Compassion: The use of tax money to buy votes.

—Insensitivity: Objection to the use of tax money to buy votes.

—Demonstration: A riot by people you agree with.

—Mob violence: A riot by people you disagree with.

—Public service: Gaining power to make people do what you want them to.

—Simplistic: Argument you disagree with but cannot answer.

—A matter of principle: A political controversy involving in the convictions of conservatives.

—Moderate Arabs: Mythical beings to whom State Department officials make sacrificial offerings.

—A proud people: Chauvinists you like.

—Bigots: Chauvinists you don't like.

Campfire supper is Friday

The Hereford Campfire will host its annual Taco and Bean Supper Friday from 5-8:30 p.m. at the Hereford High School cafeteria. Tickets are $3 per person for the meal, which will include tacos, beans, salad, chips, hot sauce, cobbler, coffee and tea.

Slight rain chance

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms. The low will be 48 with south winds 10 to 15 mph.

Friday will be cooler with a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms. The high will be 65, and south winds will be 10 to 20 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 44 after Wednesday's high of 84.

Cheese distribution is April 21

Cheese and other government commodities will be distributed to eligible persons on April 21, according to Panhandle Community Services.

Eligible senior citizens will receive commodities from 8 to 11 a.m. at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Other eligible recipients may obtain their commodities from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

Mail tax returns early

Mail posted Friday, especially tax returns, must be deposited at the Hereford post office before 5 p.m. Friday to have an April 15 cancellation date, according to Postmaster Charles Brittain.

"Anything deposited at the post office after 5 p.m. won't leave until Saturday afternoon, so we will change the cancellation date to April 16," Brittain said.

Brittain said the only way to get an April 15 cancellation date on tax returns after 5 p.m. would be to take them to the Central Post Office in Amarillo, where the magic cancellation date will be stamped on mail until about 11 p.m. Friday.

Police arrest five

Hereford police arrested three Hereford men at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Blue Water Garden Apartments, 612 Irving St., on charges of unlawful carrying of a weapon.

Rodolfo Davila, 29, Juan Jose Davila, 24, and Lucio Zavala Sifuentes, 33, were discovered in possession of an automatic pistol after police found the weapon in the men's vehicle.

Nick Whatley of 416 Barrett St. said the three started a fight with him while Whatley was parked outside the apartments. The scuffle ended with Whatley attempting an escape in his car and being chased by the three in their vehicle. Whatley said he then heard four shots from the men's vehicle.

Police also found a policeman's club in the back of the vehicle.

The three are now in the Deaf Smith County Jail with bond set at $2,000 each for Rodolfo Davila and Juan Davila. A $1,000 bond was set on Sifuentes.

Others arrested Wednesday include a 23-year-old woman on charges of no liability insurance (second offense) and running a stop sign; and a woman, 38, on charges of shoplifting $20 worth of merchandise.

Painting is a pleasure for the Whitakers

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

In a way, Hereford artists Jena and Jerry Don Rawley-Whitaker have developed a marriage which works in much the same way that a mural is pleasing to the eye.

He provides the subtle grays and browns, giving the canvas depth, while her dollops of fuchsia and white spark the piece to life.

Jerry Don, 43, lazily slumps back into the sofa as Jena explains the contrast. "He's very logical, succinct, self-disciplined and analytical, whereas I'm always full-speed-ahead emotional."

This sharp contrast in personalities surfaces in each artist's choice of subjects. Jerry Don is currently doing some architectural rendering in which an architect's line drawings are put in color. He recently finished a rendering of the Nazarene Church and is working on one for the Community Church's new building.

Architectural renderings bring in the money, but Jerry Don's true love is painting antique homes.

Because he is so analytical and steady, he does an excellent job at painting these houses. But that kind of work would drive me up the wall," said Jena, a perky 35-year-old who would do well as a story teller on Sesame Street.

That's why Jena prefers to paint portraits, especially if the subject matter is a child.

"I love children. Once you get them away from their mothers their whole personality changes," said Jena, who photographs the child before any paint hits the canvas. "I usually take 24 exposures of them and it's just the two of us. Once I get them talking and let them forget the camera, it's amazing what you learn."

But Jena, who obtained her art degree from Texas Tech University, is branching out to painting portraits of adults with a portrait of U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, being the latest feather in her cap. (See PAINTING, Page 2)

Two artists in sync

Jerry Don Rawley-Whitaker studies one of Jena's watercolor portraits as she puts the finishing touches on the girl's dress. Jena says she doesn't mind his criticism because it's more constructive than a lay person's opinion.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

One question that I hope will be answered during all of this surveying and brainstorming that will help the Economic Development Strategy Council develop a plan is this:

Are we so complacent with what we have now that we don't care about the future?

Dan Scoggin of TGI Friday's, a nationwide restaurant chain, talks about the Success Syndrome that attacks almost every business. There are corrections needed at every stage lest the business be out of business.

At Stage One, you open the doors unsure of how you'll do. You can't fail, so you go out of your way to attract new customers and make doubly-darned sure you keep the ones you get.

At Stage Two you have a steady, growing clientele—maybe more business than you can handle. You might have been short with a customer, but that's no big thing, because customers are like buses—they come in on a regular schedule.

At Stage Three you find out you're the last one to realize your service and performance have fallen. Sales are off and the bus schedule has been cut back. The factors include competition, the economy, the weather—anything you can blame it on without looking around for more than five seconds.

You try to save money by going to a cheaper product, laying off some employees, try flashy techniques and cut-rate deals, but it doesn't work.

Yogi Berra once said, "If people don't wanna come out to the ball park, nobody's gonna stop 'em."

How can we correlate that to us—me and you—in Hereford? What stage are we in as a town? If we're as independent as we seem to be, what stage are we in as a person, a business, a church, a club?

Some have made their fortune, or are at least satisfied with where they are, and maybe don't really care.

Fine—you're a third stager, and we'll honk our horn and blink our taillights when we pass you by.

Most of us are in the first stage. Everything I seem to read and hear says there is no more middle class, you're either rich or poor. That means there are probably fewer in the second stage.

Most of us are either in the first stage, and if we're going to be successful the rest of the community needs to be in a first-stage mindset.

We must take stock of what we have to offer. We must know that we don't have it made, that we need, as a community, to all be like that young couple trying to meet mortgage payments, that knows if they don't aggressively pursue "customers" that we'll be eating Big Macs instead of Big Steaks.

We must realize that failure is out of the question—we must make what we have, whatever the business, better, larger, more attractive to more people, while trying to entice new people to make Hereford their home. There is not enough we can do to make Hereford a better place—a place for people to stay, a place for people to move.

That doesn't mean we need to give any old prospect the kitchen sink—you have enough common sense to know that if you make something too good the only people that will benefit will be the "customers" and you'll be groveling at your banker's desk asking for another $5,000 so you can pay your bills and eat something besides the baby's creamed spinach.

We must decide that it's not the time to be the writer-producer-director that Robin Williams told about on the Academy Awards show.

Let's quit blowing smoke up our own kazoo and get down to doing something.

If nothing else, let's all do something to get into a Success Syndrome so we can figure out 12 years from now to keep our newly-found riches.

Reagan says he never knew Speakes faked his quotes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan insists that he was never aware his spokesman concocted quotes for him and says he is getting tired of "kiss-and-tell books" written by his former aides.

Reagan, answering questions at a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, also said Jesse Jackson's policies have not been scrutinized adequately in the Democratic presidential race because it might be "misinterpreted into some kind of racial attack."

In a wide-ranging question-and-answer session on Wednesday, the president commented for the first time on two issues — the sensitive topic of race in the 1988 presidential race and the controversy over the new book by his former spokesman, Larry Speakes.

Speakes, in his book "Speaking

Out," reveals that he twice gave quotes to the press corps claiming the words were Reagan's when in fact they were not. One incident occurred after the downing of a Korean Air Lines jet in 1983, and the other came during the 1985 Geneva summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

When the story surfaced earlier this week, Reagan aides described the president as angry to learn of the deception. Speakes, however, said in subsequent interviews that Reagan knew at the time of the practice and did not object.

On Wednesday, Reagan said, "I was not aware of that and just learned it recently, as all the rest of you did, and I can tell you right now that I have no affection for these kiss-and-tell books that are being written, and I find it entirely fiction."

Reagan did not directly answer the question of whether he approved of the practice or would allow it to continue. His current spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, has condemned the practice.

Reagan's reference to "kiss-and-tell" books evidently refers not only to Speakes' book, but to "Behind the Scenes," written by his former deputy chief of staff, Michael K. Deaver, and a forthcoming volume by former chief of staff Donald T. Regan.

The president also was asked about Speakes' contention that he "does not read many newspapers thoroughly."

"Well, I begin with the comics," Reagan said, confirming part of Speakes' account and drawing a laugh from his audience in the process.

Money mail-in joke turns profit for DJ

DALLAS (AP) — A disc jockey who asked his listeners to send him $20 as an experiment, says he doesn't know what to do with the $240,000 that poured into the station.

Ron Chapman asked his audience on March 31 to send him the money. "I told the audience that if I did it the next day, on April 1, they wouldn't believe it," he said. Chapman said the request was an experiment.

"We're absolutely stunned. We're flabbergasted. We never promised anybody anything. That's the joy of this. We just said send the money," he said.

The next morning, a Friday, 4,000 checks for $20 each arrived in the mail. On the following Monday, an additional 5,000 checks arrived.

"Obviously, it was getting out of hand," Chapman, a longtime morning disc jockey, said. "We went on Monday afternoon and said, 'Okay, folks, that's it. Don't send any more checks after today.'"

More than 12,000 checks ultimately made their way to KVIL-FM, Chapman said.

Ralph Blumberg, supervisor of investigations in the mass media division of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, said there is nothing illegal about such a solicitation.

"As long as they don't make any promises or say they'll spend the money one way and then spend it on something else, there doesn't sound to be anything fraudulent about that," he said. "There's nothing wrong with saying, 'Send us your money.'"

Blumberg found the promotion surprising.

"That's unbelievable. Unbelievable," he said. "I may have to move to Dallas."

Chapman said the station initially planned to return the checks, possibly with $2 interest and a T-shirt, but now is thinking about using it for a special event.

Listener Kelly Bain, of suburban Irving, said she understood when she mailed in a $20 check that nothing was being promised in return, but thought that "maybe they're going to have a drawing or something."

And Debra Hall, 28, of Garland said she wasn't concerned about what happened to the money.

"I really don't care what they do with it because I would have just blown it on bingo," she said.

BY TAKING MY PROBLEMS ONE AT A TIME, I CAN MAKE THEM LAST MUCH LONGER.

Painting

"It took her 1 1/2 years to finish that portrait and 12 sketches of his face before she ever started painting," said Jerry Don, who seems to have a knack for particulars. "And the paper had to be specially ordered from France because this 6-foot portrait required the heavier weight of paper you can't find here."

The portrait, which now hangs in the Agriculture Committee Room at the United States Capitol, is only one of several works Jena has painted for prominent people. Some of her other subjects include Vice President George Bush's grandchildren, T. Boone Pickens' grandchildren, and members of the Whittenburg family in Amarillo.

One would think that Jena's popularity might cause friction in the marriage, but Jena said she knows her husband should not feel inferior.

"I love for him to critique my work because he knows his stuff. He is much superior to me technically, and I trust his judgment," said Jena. "But the times he says the paintings are excellent is rare."

Jerry Don's distance from the subject matter helps his objectivity, too, he said.

"She's very involved with her subject because she knows that person. I don't know them and I could care less about the subject's personality whereas Jena is more involved."

The Rawley-Whitakers have a strong respect for each other's work, but working together is almost out of the question.

"Let's put it this way," said Jerry Don, "we don't have studios together. Her studio is in the house and my studio is on some land we have outside of Hereford. This helps us to spend time alone that we need."

Are there any problems with being married to an artist? Jerry Don quickly jumped from his casual sitting position to answer, "Yes—when she borrows my brushes and never returns them."

Jena, throwing her hands in the air, screams, "It's true! It's true! He's so meticulous about having all his brushes pointed and sitting straight up, and my palette looks like World War III with his and my brushes scattered everywhere."

Jena admitted that her flightiness caught up with her one time when she threw a painting on the floor to dry, and her six-year-old son, Jensen, wheeled across the fresh paint on his tricycle.

Jena's way of tackling a project carries over into her interior decorating which got her into hot water once with her husband when she painted the dining room wall "a Pepto Bismol pink," as Jerry Don describes.

"I had just gotten in from San Angelo at 2 in the morning so it was pitch black. She came to meet me at the door and said to go straight to bed, but the whole room glowed in the dark. It stayed that putrid color for a while, but I eventually won out and painted it white," said Jerry Don.

Their differing approaches to painting revolves around the same antithetical personalities which makes the marriage successful, according to Jena. For the Rawley-Whitakers, this style of living is pleasing to the palate—and the palette.

mostly volunteer work since coming to Washington with her husband in 1981.

Meanwhile, the Chester Arthur lease negotiations dragged on during 1986. Finally, on May 14, 1987, after the Bender partnership promised to clean up the air system, the government signed a new lease for 259,000 square feet.

The 10-year lease was worth $50 million. On May 27, the Bender partnership sold the building for $60.1 million cash, public records show.

One of the new owners, asking not to be identified by name, said the new lease "was clearly one of the most desirable things from our standpoint."

Bender family members referred all questions to attorney Seymour Glanzer, who said, "I'm not going to answer your questions. I have no comment."

James Rocop, an attorney for the Meeses, denied the attorney general played any role in the decision to renew the lease. "He was aware that the lease was up and so on, but that's it. He had no involvement in the lease matter in any substantive way. There is no indication that the Meeses had anything to do with his (Bender's) making $22 million."

At the immigration service, Assistant Commissioner Kennedy said it was his job to recommend to Commissioner Alan C. Nelson whether to stay in the Chester Arthur Building or move.

If Nelson, a close friend of Meese's from the days when they worked together in California, had demanded a move, the GSA would have found a new building, according to Kennedy and GSA officials.

Kennedy says no one pressured him, and that he never heard whether Meese had an opinion on the lease or about Ursula Meese's salary being paid indirectly by the building owners.

Meanwhile, the man who sold Chester Arthur to the Bender partnership still wonders why they bought it and gave him such a good deal.

"We are still laughing because we did a very good deal there," said Dirk van Westreenen, president of Dutch Property Investment, Ltd. The sale price more than tripled his $12 million investment five years earlier.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a successful engineer in my late 30s. For 11 years I was happily married to a wonderful woman who died two years ago after a long battle with leukemia. I am trying to raise a 12-year-old son alone.

I am just starting to socialize again. My job requires that I travel all over the United States, to Europe and to South America. While I don't date much, I do see what goes on, and it's the same all the world over.

Women are complaining that there aren't enough good men for all the fantastic females. Men complain that women today are too choosy, that they don't know what they want and they don't play fair.

I admit that there are a lot of rotten guys out there. I run into them all the time. The decent men hate the jerks because they give all of us a bad name. By the same token, there are more than enough rotten women to go around. True, many men look at women as "sex objects" but just as many women look at men as "success objects."

Am I being cynical, Ann, or is today's mating game simply a hunt for Mr. Megabucks instead of a search for a man with principles and good character? Sign this—Sounding Off in San Juan

DEAR SOUNDING OFF: I agree that there are just as many women looking for successful (rich) men as there are men looking for visual knockouts, complete with all the right measurements. They both deserve to be stuck.

There are plenty of women out there, bright, interesting, sensitive and caring, but not packaged in a way that catches the eye. The same can be said of men. Consequently, some extremely worthwhile candidates, both men and women, are passed over when choices are made by glands instead of brains.

It would be useful if these folks would get out the wedding pictures of their parents and compare them to what Mom and Dad look like today. Assuming that they aren't brain dead, something just might register.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since your anti-coupon correspondent was from Upstate New York, I know it wasn't me she was behind in the checkout line. Otherwise, the next time I was in front of her(him?), I'd give that character a poke. When you're out of work, coupons aren't "too much trouble" and 50 cents matters.

Checkout lines in Manhattan can be a nightmare. The express line is a joke. When I go to buy a carton of milk and a loaf of bread and the lady in front of me is stocking up for a trip up the Amazon, or filling out forms to have her groceries delivered, or doing her banking (the bill is $9.55 and she writes a check for $29.55—cab fare and lunch money for tomorrow), I get teed off.

Tell your Upstate customer to let off a little steam by making a few choice remarks to the person up ahead, such as, "Anyone for breakfast?" or "If I knew it was going to be this long I'd have brought my jammies." I do it and it makes me feel much better. Of course, the other customers look at me like I'm not wrapped too tight, but I couldn't care less.—A Worm in the Big Apple

DEAR WORM: I don't recommend mouthing off to strangers in a checkout line or anywhere else for that matter. You just might get a clomp in the chops or worse.

A better approach is to complain to the store manager about customers who abuse the short line and insist that the checkout people make them go where they belong.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Preparing for district tournament

dy Connally are seeded No. 4 in the district tournament and will play a Frenship team in the first round. Hope and his doubles teammate Brian Thomas will go against a Pampa team in the first round. (Brand photos by Gary Christensen)

Kids Inc. boys' minor league needs more coaches

At least three more coaches are needed in the Kids Inc. boys' minor league, because of the large number of boys interested in playing in the league this year.

Anyone interested in coaching in that league may call Nacho Hernandez at 364-8527, or may go to the league tryouts scheduled Friday at the Kids Inc. complex.

The Deaf Smith County Kids Inc. boys' baseball league tryouts will start at 6 p.m. Friday.

The tryouts will be for the boys' major league and the Babe Ruth League, as well as the minor league. Boys need to bring their own baseball gloves to the tryouts.

Boys who did not register on Saturday or Tuesday at the Kids Inc.

signup sessions may still sign up for the minor league, major league or Babe Ruth League at the tryouts Friday.

Registration fees are $20 per child, with a maximum of $60 for one family. League seasons will begin on May 2.

Major-league players not named to the All-Star squads for the first game in 1933 had to pay their way into the ball park in Chicago.

DeShaies hurls two-hit shutout

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim DeShaies was in a joking mood after posting a two-hit shutout in his first major league start since undergoing surgery last fall.

"Those guys in Osceola have got to be shaking their heads," DeShaies said. "They're not going to believe their newspaper in the morning."

DeShaies, battered around by Osceola six days earlier, stopped Atlanta cold Wednesday as the Houston Astros handed the winless Braves their eighth consecutive defeat, 4-0.

"They're going to think it's all fixed," DeShaies said of the Florida State League team that posted nine runs and nine hits in six innings off him last Thursday. "They're going to think the league up there's a fix. They're going to be shaking their heads in wonderment."

DeShaies, 1-0, was never in trouble against the Braves, giving up a bad-hop single to Dale Murphy in the second inning and a fly ball single to left by Damaso Garcia in the sixth. He struck out five and walked two in lifting his lifetime record to 6-1 against the Braves, a team he will face again next week in Houston.

DeShaies underwent arthroscopic surgery for a slight tear in his left rotator cuff last Oct. 9.

"It never really crossed my mind," he said when asked if he'd thought he might not be able to pitch again.

"Last year my arm wasn't completely weak like a real bad rotator cuff," he said. "I knew it wasn't that severe. Coming out of surgery everything was optimistic from the doctor's standpoint."

DeShaies said he never felt any pain in Wednesday's game.

"Once I started to get loose in the bullpen and saw I had pretty good velocity I wasn't that concerned," he said. "My big concern was how well my arm would hold up over a course of innings."

It held up for the distance, a 101-pitch performance that gave him the second shutout and third complete game in his career.

"He threw great," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "He really had great command of his slider. He had a good fast ball from the first inning on."

The Astros struck for three first-inning runs off Pete Smith, 0-1.

Bill Doran had an RBI single and Denny Walling a two-run triple.

Alan Ashby's second homer of the year leading off the fourth inning closed the scoring in the game.

It's the most losses ever at the start of a season for Atlanta, which dropped its first seven in 1980. The team is only one loss shy of the National League mark of nine shared by four teams.

"It's frustrating," Murphy said. "I expect us to start hitting better every night."

DeShaies also was called for two balks, the second in the fourth inning resulting in the ejection of Lanier by first base umpire Bob Davidson when Lanier questioned the call.

"He dictated me the rule that you are not allowed to come out and argue," Lanier said. "I didn't go out there to argue. I really went out there to get Jimmy (DeShaies) away from him because I didn't want him thrown out. I think it was a pretty weak ejection."

Giants 5, Reds 1

Will Clark homered with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning to beat Cincinnati and halt San Francisco's three-game losing streak.

Clark's second homer of the season was a drive to right-center field off Pat Perry, 1-1, the Reds' fifth pitcher.

Don Robinson, 1-0, got the victory with two innings of relief. He allowed

YMCA summer volleyball signup begins

Summer volleyball leagues for men and women are planned at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

Leagues will include "AA," "A," and "B" divisions. Entry fees are $9 for each YMCA member on a team and $17 for each YMCA non-member on a team. The registration deadline is April 28.

Game days will be Mondays, Tuesdays and possibly Thursdays for co-ed divisions. The league season will be eight matches plus a single-elimination tournament.

League competition will start on May 2. For more information on the volleyball league and the league rules, contact the YMCA at 364-6990 or pick up a registration form at the YMCA.

one hit and struck out four.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3

Bob Horner hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the seventh inning to lift St. Louis over visiting Chicago.

Reliever Les Lancaster, 0-1, walked Tommy Herr intentionally to face Horner, who had reached base in his last nine plate appearances.

Danny Cox, 1-1, scattered eight hits over eight innings for the victory.

High school racquetball leagues planned

Four high school racquetball leagues are being organized at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

Registration is under way for a boys' singles league, a girls' singles league, a co-ed doubles league, and a boys' doubles league. Entry deadline is April 21, with registration fees of $8 for YMCA members and $17 for YMCA non-members.

Playing days will be singles leagues on Mondays and doubles leagues on Thursdays. The league season will be for six weeks, plus a single-elimination tournament. The season will start on April 25 for singles players and April 28 for doubles teams.

For more information on the high school racquetball leagues, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

Pirates 7, Phillies 0

Brian Fisher and Jim Gott combined on a five-hitter and Pittsburgh turned four Philadelphia errors in the first three innings into four runs.

Fisher, 2-0, had a three-hitter entering the eighth but allowed two singles and was replaced by Gott.

Jose Lind, batting 133 before the game, went 3-for-4 with an RBI and scored three times.

Dodgers 4, Padres 3

Pedro Guerrero hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to beat San Diego and give Los Angeles its sixth victory in eight games.

With the score tied 2-2 and two outs in the eighth Eric Show, 0-2, hit Kirk Gibson with a pitch and Guerrero hit a 3-0 pitch over the center-field fence.

Jay Howell pitched two innings in relief for his first Dodger victory.

Local student to attend OEA conference

Jay Beene, a student of Hereford High School, will attend the April 28-May 1 National Leadership Conference of the Office Education Association in Louisville, Ky. For three days, the student will represent Hereford by participating in Computer Specialist I contest and serve as an official delegate during the Secondary Conference. He will be a part of the 1,000 students in 18 states attending the annual conference.

OEA's 22nd National Leadership Conference is for students interested in developing their skills for careers as business professionals. It attracts the top representatives from the 72,000 members nationally. This annual event is the highlight of the membership year for ambitious, career-oriented students to demonstrate competencies acquired during the school year.

The National Leadership Conference will begin with the participants attending an opening session featuring nationally recognized Judi Moreo as the keynote speaker.

The following days will be filled with activities including the election of the 1988-89 national officers, educational workshops, and general sessions. Members who have already achieved recognition during local, regional, and state competitive events will have a further opportunity to compete in Louisville on the national level. The top competitors will be recognized by their OEA advisors and peers during the Awards Session on the closing day of the conference.

Office Education Association members who compete in Louisville will have an opportunity to demonstrate proficiency in occupational areas such as office support assistant, data specialist, financial specialist, computerized accounting, administrative assistant, and computer specialist.

Business executives representing several major U.S. corporations will attend and actively participate in the conference. These corporate leaders will travel across the country to serve as judges in all areas of competition, and host receptions. They realize that OEA members are the business professionals of tomorrow and may one day become managers and employees of the corporations they are representing.

This one-on-one association between representatives of U.S. corporations and members of the OEA is mutually profitable because it helps develop a better understanding among students of the free enterprise system, establishes a stronger communications link between students and business leaders, and, most important, develops social, civic and business responsibility among OEA members.

Famed guitarist to appear April 23 at Amarillo College

The Amarillo College Student Association Distinguished Lecture Series and Chile Democratico will present famed Chilean folk singer/classical guitarist Angel Parra in concert April 23 at 6 p.m. in the AC Ordway Hall Auditorium. The program is sponsored in cooperation with the UCLA Center for the Performing Arts and is open to the public free of charge.

Angel Parra is the son of the great Chilean folklorist Violeta Parra and is a co-founder of the Latin American New Song. He works of such major popular U.S. artists as Paul Simon, Jackson Browne, Pete Seeger, Arlo Guthrie, Joan Baez, and Judy Collins reflects the influence of New Song artists such as Parra. Parra has written music for the Mass, opera, theater, and cinema.

Hawaii became a territory of the United States in 1900.

He was arrested and jailed for almost two years during the bloody military coup that overthrew Chile's last democratically-elected president, Salvador Allende. Angel has lived in exile for the past 13 years, in Mexico City and in Paris. The ruling military regime has recently issued a list of exiles to whom it is extending its pardon for past "crimes." On Christmas Eve 1987 Parra was informed of his pardon.

At first elated at the thought of returning home to Chile after 13 years, Parra was then slowly filled with angry indignation that a regime so cruel as to have murdered 35,000 people and exiled nearly one million others, including Parra for the "crime" of thinking and singing and caring for his people, would presume the authority to issue a "pardon." Parra's 1988 tour will include his lyrical response to his "pardon" by the Chilean military regime.

Get back to basics of a good diet

Dieting. The very mention of it conjures up thoughts of minute servings of bland foods. But it doesn't have to be that way.

For a successful approach to dieting and a good diet, get back to the basics—the basic food groups. Understanding the concept of the four food groups provides a sound foundation for modifying poor eating habits.

The healthy approach in losing weight is to choose a variety of foods providing the nutrients needed and to go easy on foods that supply mainly calories. Examples are sugars, sweets, fats and oils, foods that are high in sugars and fats, and, of course, soft drinks and alcoholic beverages. These are often the source of "extra" calories.

Deciding the best way to change what and how much you eat depends on your eating habits. If rich desserts are a problem, you can opt for no dessert, a very small portion, or fresh fruit instead.

If topping on your baked potato is a source of extra calories you can choose no topping, less topping to plain yogurt instead of sour-cream. The choice is up to the individual. The important thing is to make some changes that will make a difference over the long run.

Here is an example of how you can enjoy food selections from the food grouping system and not go overboard on calories.

Breads, cereals, and other grain products

- Breads, yes; but avoid spreads high in fat and sugar.
- Cereals with little or no sugar.
- Rice and pasta—but watch out for the sauces!

Fruits

- All except avocados and olives. But don't add sugar or whipped cream.

Vegetables

- All kinds, but go easy on butter, margarine, and other sauces or toppings high in fat.
- Avoid vegetables that are fried.

Meat, poultry, fish and alternates

- Lean parts of meat; poultry without skin; fish.
- Broil, roast, simmer. Avoid items that are breaded and fried.
- Eggs, dry beans and peas, and tofu are suitable alternatives.

Milk, cheese and yogurt

- Skim or lowfat milk and cheeses.
- Lowfat plain yogurt.

Fats, sweets, and alcoholic beverages

- Watch out for these. they provide calories and little else—not what dieters want.
- For dessert, try fresh fruit or choose baked products made with less fat and sugar—angel food cake, for example.

Reducing dietary fat is an especially good idea for those limiting calories. The fat in foods provides many calories but few vitamins and minerals. So, decreased fat intake results in fewer calories without a reduction in most nutrients.

In addition to the suggestions for reducing fat in the food group system here are some more ways to avoid too much fat:

- Try lemon juice on salads or use limited amounts of oil-based salad dressing.
- Try whole-grained flours to enhance flavors of baked goods made with less fat and cholesterol-containing ingredients.
- Trim fat from meat before and/or after cooking.
- Cook meat or poultry on a rack so the fat will drain off. Use a nonstick pan for cooking so added fat will be unnecessary.
- Chill meat or poultry broth until the fat becomes solid. Spoon off the fat before using the broth.

Winston Churchill was formally invested as a Knight of the Garter in 1954.

Donating Tickets

Several local businesses have purchased tickets for Friday's Camp Fire Taco and Bean Supper and will donate them to Hereford Satellite Center clients, Big Brother/Big Sister participants, and Hereford Senior Citizens. Gary Phipps, president of Hereford Camp Fire Council, presents the donated tickets to Alva Lee Peeler, executive director of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program. The supper, set for 5-8:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria, will feature tacos, beans, salad, hot sauce, cobbler, tea or coffee.

Poster, ad winners selected

Several youngsters at St. Anthony's School received prizes recently for their entries in a poster/ad contest publicizing the school's annual carnival set for Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

First place winners in the family poster contest was the Guzman family, who will receive a family dinner at the carnival. On hand to accept the award were Amanda and Jessica Guzman. Second place winner was the Guerrero family, recipients of five pounds of sausage. Student Martin Guerrero accepted the award.

Winning the fourth through sixth grade division for her efforts in drawing up a newspaper advertisement was Allison Farr; second place winner was Carol Hund. They were awarded carnival tickets valued at $10 and $5, respectively.

Julie Lueb and Julie Schlabs won first and second places, respectively, in the kindergarten through third grade competition. They also received carnival tickets valued at $10 and $5, respectively.

VERSATILE LANGER

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jim Langer, a center who was named to the 1987 class in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, was a linebacker at South Dakota State University.

He was signed as a free agent by the Cleveland Browns in 1970 and then cut loose. Langer caught on with the Miami Dolphins and in 1972 became their starting center.

During his career he went to the Pro Bowl six times and played on two Super Bowl champions. Jim was intelligent, quick and a diligent worker.

How Cellular One helped Gordon Whipple drive his cattle to safety.

Gordon Whipple owns and works a cattle ranch at the head of Palo Duro Canyon, 10 miles south of Amarillo.

One cold and snowy night this past winter, Gordon was out in his truck rounding up strays when he discovered five head of cattle had fallen through the ice on a frozen pond. Gordon was able to save precious time by using his Cellular One car phone to call his neighbors for help. And together, they pulled those steers from the icy waters to safety.

Gordon Whipple is sold on Cellular One. And we think you will be, too.

In fact, right now you can drive this essential business tool for just $29.95 a month.

Call now and Cellular One will install a full-featured phone in your car or truck for just $29.95 a month on a 36-month lease. You pay no money down. No money up front. Just $29.95 a month.

Plus you get $700 worth of Cellular One equipment, service, and options for free.

And at the end of the lease, you own your phone outright for just $150.

No deposit. No return. $29.95 a month. So call Cellular One of Amarillo today. And put your business on the road to success.

Advocacy workshop scheduled

Kay Lambert of Advocacy, Inc. will be in Amarillo to present a workshop to parents, advocates, teachers, administrators, and other interested persons.

She will concentrate her presentation of mainstreaming and integration as it relates to the state and federal laws governing education of handicapped persons.

The workshop will be held on Saturday, April 30 from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Snodgrass Hall of First Christian Church, 3001 Wolflin, Amarillo, on I-40 Exit at Georgia, then turn on Wolflin.

The workshop will acquaint those interested with programs and processes for special needs students. Advocacy Inc. is a government funded agency and Mrs. Lambert's office is in Austin. There is no charge for this event.

KIDS GET MANY COLDS

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — If your normally healthy child always seems to have a cold during the winter, is something wrong?

"Not really," says Dr. Caroline Hall, a professor of pediatrics at the University of Rochester. "The typical young child has between seven and nine acute respiratory infections — most often colds, sometimes influenza — each year, and most of these happen during the winter."

Hall says parents can't prevent colds from occurring, though they can take steps to diminish their child's exposure to cold viruses, particularly in the home.

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	14	2.80
2 days per word	24	4.80
3 days per word	34	6.80
4 days per word	44	8.80
5th day FREE

Ten days (2 free) is $16.80 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is $24.80 minimum; one month is $32.80 minimum.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS
Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Actor Gene Hackman, actor-dancer Donald O'Connor, comedians Dick and Jerry Van Dyke, and pianist Bobby Short are returning to their hometown to help raise money for a theater-renovation project.

The May 23 benefit, fetching $1,000 apiece for tickets, will raise money to help restore the abandoned Fischer Theater, where some of the stars began their careers, the sponsoring Vermilion Heritage Foundation said Wednesday.

Hackman and Jerry Van Dyke were ushers at the downtown theater and O'Connor made his first public appearance there, carried onstage as a 6-month-old baby during a performance by his mother, said spokesman Alan Thomann of the non-profit foundation.

Long-term plans call for transforming the ornate, century-old theater into a regional center for the performing arts, a project expected to cost more than $3 million. So far, $100,000 has been pledged.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rob Lowe, Tippi Hedren and a group of other entertainers are asking the California Fish and Game Commission to ban a proposed recreational mountain lion hunt.

Earl Holliman, president of Actors and Others for Animals and a former star of television's "Police Woman," called lion hunting "unethical and cowardly."

Packs of hounds chase the wild cats until they are exhausted, he said. When they climb trees to escape the dogs, they are shot by hunters.

Gretchen Wyler and Rue McClanahan joined the other celebrities at a news conference Thursday sponsored by the Mountain Lion Preservation Foundation in an effort to stop the first hunt proposed in California in 17 years.

The state Fish and Game Commission was scheduled to meet today in Long Beach in the last of a series of public hearings to consider the proposal.

BOSTON (AP) — Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg unveiled a 3-foot plaster model of a bronze statue of her late father, John F. Kennedy, that will stand in front of the Massachusetts capitol building.

"There are many memorials to my father in this country and around the world," Ms. Schlossberg said Thursday. "But of all of them, this one in the state he loved means the most."

On May 29, 1969, which would have been Kennedy's 72nd birthday, dignitaries and family members are slated to gather for the unveiling of an 8-foot-high bronze statue of Kennedy, striding forward, his eyes on the horizon.

The statue by artist Isabel McIlvain of Concord shows Kennedy in what members of the selection commission called a classic pose — mid-stride, eyes forward, elbows bent with his left hand tucked into his suit pocket.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Mr. T wasn't impressed with the fare during a recent meal at the famous Trumps here, but a waiter was impressed with him.

Mr. T, star of "The A-Team" and "T and T," was served dainty cucumber sandwiches, endive and other trendy food.

"Is this what we eat or is this just decoration?" he asked. "Do you have any real food, like bread?"

Scones were next.

"Scones. They taste like homemade biscuits with raisins. They just call them scones so they can charge an extra $10," he said.

He told the waiter to put his tea in a gold and diamond-studded goblet he brought with him.

"I wonder if they have any Lipton?" Mr. T asked. But the waiter brought the tea of the day — Earl Grey. "Earl Grey? You don't have no black tea?"

He left the restaurant by limousine, on his way to a chicken restaurant where he said he planned to get some "real food."

"God, he's such a charming man,"

Mr. T's waiter said. "He didn't know (about tea and scones) and wasn't trying to fake it."

NEW YORK (AP) — An 11-hour party-concert featuring Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, Peter Townshend and Mick Jagger will celebrate the 40th anniversary of Atlantic Records.

"It seems like only yesterday we set up shop in the old Jefferson Hotel on 56th and Broadway," said Chairman of the Board Ahmet Ertegun, who co-founded the company in 1948.

Among the past and present Atlantic Records performers scheduled to participate are ex-Who guitarist Townshend and his vocalist partner Roger Daltrey; Rolling Stones Jagger and Keith Richards; Blues Brother Dan Aykroyd; drummer Phil Collins as a solo and with Genesis; and former Led Zeppelin bandmates Robert Plant and Jimmy Page, according to a company statement.

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — Local officials are rolling up the welcome mat to show their distaste for actress Jane Fonda when the former anti-war activist comes to this mill town to film a movie this summer.

The board of aldermen, backing a local veterans' group, voted 10-3 Tuesday to not welcome Fonda because of her visit to Hanoi during the Vietnam War.

"A traitor is not welcome anywhere in this country," said Bud Gagnon, director of the Chicopee Veterans' Services. "She went to Hanoi. She's a traitor. She did it while our POWs were there."

The aldermen did not comment on the symbolic gesture at a meeting attended by a small group of veterans.

Stephen Rivers, a spokesman for Fonda, called the vote "unfortunate but irrelevant." He said the board bowed to complaints from a few veterans, most of whom did not serve in Vietnam.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Eddie Rabbitt, whose 2-year-old son died of liver disease, will act as honorary chairman of the American Council on Transplantation.

Timmy Rabbitt died in July 1985 after a transplant at the University of Minnesota and four other operations.

The council is a non-profit federation of individuals and organizations concerned with improving the donation and delivery of organ and tissue transplants.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — If baseball slugger Don Mattingly reaches his goal of 240 hits in 1988, he'll not only break his Yankee record but will raise $24,000 for the mentally retarded.

For the third straight season, Municipal Bond Investors Assurance Corp. will donate $100 to the Westchester Association for Retarded Citizens and the Westchester-Putnam Special Olympics every time Mattingly gets a base hit.

Texas onions run rings around rest

(AUSTIN)—Remember the basket of french-fried onion rings everyone used to eat after school at the local hang-out, how sweet and satisfying each morsel tasted, dipped in the tiny paper cups of ketchup that came with every order?

Or those Texas-style burgers dressed with lettuce, tomato, dill pickle and a slice of onion as big as the bun? Or enchiladas that never came without cooked-but-still-crunchy onions in the filling.

As long as Texans can remember, food hasn't been food without onions. More than 40 years ago, a native recalls, the sweetly pungent scent of green onions permeating grocery stores meant spring had arrived. Small boiler onions came next and finally the crop of mature Bermudas, at that time the sweetest onions grown anywhere.

Back then, a youngster might snack on a biscuit and a green onion after school, and sit down later to a meal that included crisp onions kept fresh in a bowl of cool water. Spring onions were cooked in the oven with roasts, the first meal served after a calf slaughter was liver and onions, and no one put eggs in potato salad—just onions and dill pickle.

Though some native Texans argue that "Yankee infiltration" has diminished the importance of onions, especially in Mexican food, even today no self-respecting cook ever serves barbecue without the zing that only raw onion provides. And when spring arrives, the new crop of onions is as welcome as the bloom on a redbud.

Today Texas, which harvests the country's first crop of spring onions, ranks second in fresh onion production nationwide. Bermudas have been replaced by sweeter, milder Grano varieties, yellow, globe-shaped onions developed over the years by Texas A&M University plant breeders. The sweetest of these is the Texas 1015 SuperSweet, which for two years running garnered the "best raw onion" title in a national sweet onion competition.

Onion harvest begins in the Rio Grande Valley in early March and moves from there into South Texas. Around April 15 SuperSweets head for market. Large onions, they grow to a diameter of three inches or more. The bigger they are, the sweeter they are. Small SuperSweets, in fact, tend to be a little on the pungent side.

This spring the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) will promote SuperSweets during a media tour in two Midwestern cities, Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis, Ind. Carol Guthrie, TDA marketing specialist and home economist, will invite residents to write to TDA for a coupon good for a free SuperSweet from a supermarket chain. Texas growers will supply 10,000 onions for the promotion.

"The theory being if we can get people to taste a SuperSweet, they'll buy them every year," said Ery Sandlin, TDA promotional marketing specialist. "The onions have made tremendous inroads in out-of-state markets through the efforts of Texas Fresh Promotional Board and the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Association in Harlingen, but there's potential to expand sales even further."

All spring onions harvested in Texas have a high water content, one reason for their mild flavor. The extra moisture, however, shortens their shelf life to about two weeks. The 1015 seems to be an exception. It has kept up to 45 days when stored in a cool, dry place and two or three months when refrigerated. Never store any onion with vegetables that require high humidity. Dry, freely circulating air is necessary to maintain quality.

If you still fondly remember those after-school baskets of onion rings—and your children have picked up the habit too—SuperSweets are an excellent choice for deep-frying. Single center onions, they provide symmetrical rings and little waste. Their size is also a plus. A few onions will make enough rings to feed the family—and cut down slicing time for the cook.

Here are some TDA recipes ideal for SuperSweets and other Texas onions.

CRISPY TEXAS ONION RINGS

- 3-4 lg. Texas 1015 onions
- 2-3 C. buttermilk
- 1 C. all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2/3 C. water
- 1 beaten egg
- 1 T. vegetable oil
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 1/4 tsp. red pepper
- Vegetable oil for frying
- Salt, if desired

Peel and slice onions and separate into rings. Pour buttermilk into large shallow pan. Add onion rings and soak 30 minutes. Combine flour, baking powder, salt, water, eggs, 1 tablespoon oil, lemon juice and red pepper. Stir until smooth. Heat oil to 375 degrees F. Remove onion rings from buttermilk and dip into batter. Fry in hot oil until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with salt, if desired. Makes 6-8 servings.

ONION-PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH

- 8 bread slices
- Peanut butter
- Mayonnaise
- 1 sweet onion, sliced 1/4-inch thick

Spread half the slices of bread with peanut butter and half with mayonnaise. Sandwich onion slices between pieces of bread and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Betty Crocker Tips

Q. How can I prevent my custard pie crust from softening? M.W., Upper Sandusky, OH

A. Most custard pies have a moist crust. However, the most effective method to prevent a soft crust is to bake crust and filling in separate pie plates. Loosen edges of cooled custard with a knife and gently shake pie plate. Slide filling into a cooled crust.

Q. Please suggest desserts for children that are sweet but still nutritious. P.S., Bettendorf, IA

A. Milk and egg desserts as well as fruit and custard-style yogurt are rich in nutrients. Fresh or canned fruit also is a good choice. Dessert suggestions include: pudding, custard, tapioca, Angel food cake, baked apples and fruit compote.

Q. What is the best way to melt chocolate? C.B. Brillion, WI

A. To microwave place chocolate in a microwave-proof dish and melt two to three ounces of chocolate at 50% (medium) power for 2 to 4 minutes. Stir after half the time.

For range-top melting, use either a heavy saucepan or a double-boiler. Heat chocolate until it's of stirring consistency.

Q. What are the colors and proportions of food coloring that would result in peach-colored cream cheese mints? J.G., Oak Lawn, IL

A. Use four parts of rose pink food coloring to 1 part lemon yellow. In general when using food coloring, start with one drop, blend it in, and continue to add one drop at a time until you reach the desired color.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

Q. How does cream of tartar affect beaten egg whites for meringues? J.B., Bonham, TX

A. Cream of tartar stabilizes the foam and contributes to maximum whiteness of a meringue.

Q. How can brown sugar be softened? M.S. Reno, NV

A. Place half an apple or the heel from a loaf of fresh bread with the sugar in an airtight container and refrigerate for two to three days. To soften immediately, heat (250 to 300 degree oven), uncovered, in an over-proof container for a few seconds.

Or soften brown sugar in microwave oven. Place in microwave-proof bowl. Cover tightly. Cook at 100% (high) checking every 30 seconds until softened.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

TIP OF THE WEEK: The standard size egg used in most recipe books is a large egg.

ONION RINGS TASTE as good now as they did in high school, when you make them with Texas SuperSweet onions.

Wheat allergy, special food needs can be controlled

When someone in the family is allergic to the wheat in bread, cookies, cakes, pastas and other foods, home baking becomes a must.

The substitutes for wheat flour include rice, soybean, oat, rye and barley flours, or potato starch. Knowing how to make best use of these flours can add variety to the allergy diet.

"The strong gluten in wheat flour helps to form the structure of breads and cakes," says Mary Kinney Sweeten, a nutritionist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

"Since nonwheat flours or starches contain weak gluten, or no gluten at all, baked products made with these flours tend to be heavier and more crumbly than the same foods made with wheat flour."

"Oat, rye, barley and buckwheat flours contain small amounts of gluten and should be avoided by people with a severe intolerance. Commercially baked rye and oatmeal breads will also usually contain some wheat flour," cautions Sweeten.

According to the nutritionist, the non-wheat flours have distinctive characteristics:

—Soy flour is light yellow and has a strong nutty flavor, so it's best mixed with other nonwheat flours. Nuts, spices or chocolate will also help mask the flavor.

—Rice flour is less strong in flavor and has a slightly grainy texture. Since rice flour takes on other flavors well, it can be used in a variety of baked products —Corn flour is similar to cornmeal, but ground much finer. It's not available in all areas.

—Rye flour has a dark color, distinctive flavor and a slight amount of gluten. It's often sold in combination with wheat flour, so check the label carefully.

—Oat flour has a mild flavor. It's available commercially or you can make your own by grinding dry-rolled oats in a blender or food processor.

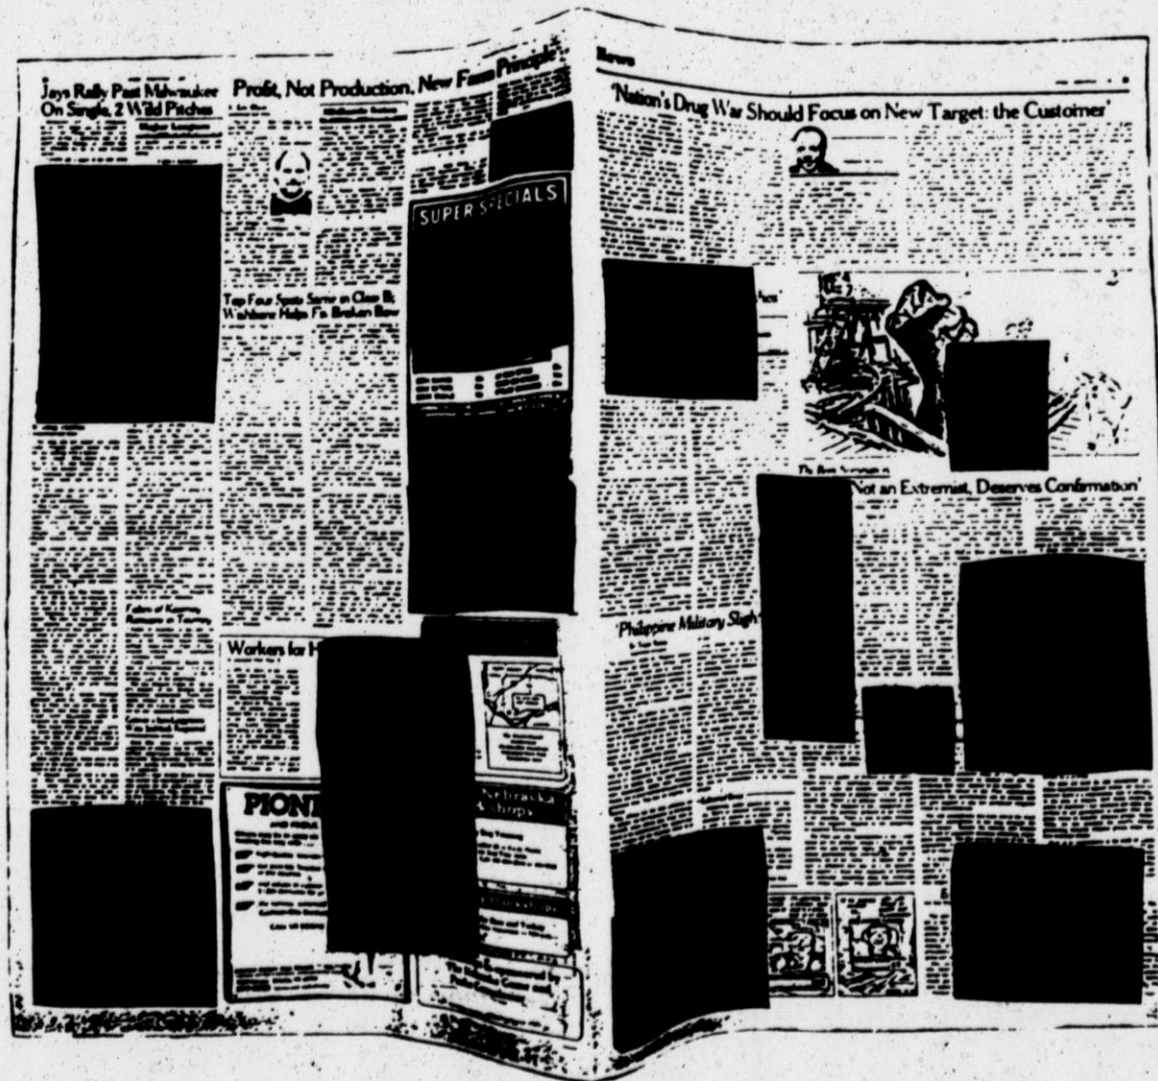

—Potato starch is a blend, white starch made from raw potatoes. It works best in baked products that have eggs to provide needed structure, such as sponge cake.

Sweeten says you'll get best results baking with a nonwheat flour if your stir it thoroughly before measuring. Nonwheat cookies or cupcakes will have less of a crumbling problem than layer or sheet cakes.

Nonwheat flours also work best in baked products when two or more are combined to make the most of the qualities of each, she explains.

"Cover nonwheat baked products tightly and store at room temperature for a short time or freeze for longer storage. These foods tend to become dry and pick up odors when stored in the refrigerator," she notes.

Our Best Friends Are Cutting Us To Pieces.

Our best friends don't always give us the best treatment. Typically, they invite us into their homes, read us like a book, take what they need from us, and put us aside to use again at their convenience.

It's a tough existence, but we don't mind. In fact, we like it. The news, editorials, and advertising coupons clipped from our pages provide our readers with knowledge, enlightenment, even an occasional 30¢ off on breakfast cereal. We're kind of flattered that people enjoy hanging onto bits and pieces of us - sometimes for years. That's something no other local advertising medium can offer.

So, although our friends keep cutting us to pieces, we'll keep showing up at their homes. Our only request: sharp scissors and a steady hand.
