1981 net farm income figures take big plunge in Oklahoma last year sank to an average of $14 per farm, the lowest of any state in the nation. In 1980, the average And in 1979 - one of the peak years - the average climbed

Oklahoma was exceeded at the bottom of the heap by: Montana, $32 last year, $1,687 in 1980 and $4,133 in 1979; West Virginia, $43 last year, $38 in 1980 and $965 in 1979; and New Mexico, $71 last year, $19,560 in 1980 and $10,993 in 1979. All other states showed 1981 net income per farm at levels over $100, with most in the thousands of dollars.

Nationally, net income per farm averaged $8,042 last year, down from $10,057 in 1980 and $11,002 in 1979.

The figures are for net income of farmers before any adjustments in the value of unsold crops and livestock still in their inventory.

Under the USDA's accounting method, total or gross farm income includes proceeds from actual marketings - cash receipts plus government payments, and allowances for so-called non-money income, which includes a rental value placed on farm dwell-

The gross also includes other farm income earned from machine hire, custom work and recreational fees.

Using a national farm balance sheet for 1981, the report showed that farmers had cash receipts of about $143.47 billion. Their farm production expenses totaled $141.64 billion.

Considering only those two factors - sales minus expenses - farmers netted only $1.83 billion last year, comusing the same basis.

But USDA says the gross, in addition to sales, also included government payments, $1.93 billion; nonmoney income, $13.9 billion; and other income - which government equaled payments - $1.93 billion.

That boosted total gross income to about $161.2 billion. ting method, by deducting production expenses, net sometimes do not add up to the exact fraction because of "rounding" off during the tabulations.

Looking more closely at what happened in Oklahoma last year, compared to 1980, the report showed:

Cash receipts from farm marketings were about $2.88 in 1980. Government payments were $124.5 million and $34.9 million, respectively; non-money income, $266.6 million and $237.5 million; and other income, $56.8

million and $45.3 million. That left a net farm income of about $1 million to be shared by approximately 71,000 Oklahoma farms — an average of about $14 each in

Shuttle crew ready to launch second satellite

By HOWARD BENEDICT Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The crew of shuttle Columbia reported for work today, preparing to dispatch a second satellite to its "geosynch" outpost 22,300 miles high. The maneuver will fulfill NASA's first commercial contract - a $17 million commitment to deliver the satellites to space.

The first gleaming purple satellite was sent spinning out of Columbia's cargo bay just eight hours after Thursday's liftoff and Mission Control told the four astronauts this morning: "It's going to be awfully hard for you guys to top yesterday."

The crew was determined to do so, because NASA officials believe double success will give the space agency a pean Space Agency and others competing with the shuttle for commercial launch services.

The astronauts awakened to a loud rendition of "76 Trombones" from Broadway's "The Music Man," and Mission Control suggested that the crew might review the overnight messages. "Joe's reading the news to us," Overmyer said of mission specialist Joseph Allen.

Allen was to monitor the afternoon deployment of Telesat Canada's Anik-(' communications satellite. The flight plan also listed spaceship system checks and some scientific tests today.

Before retiring after a long and accomplished first day in space, Brand thanked the decided edge over the Euro- launch team for "a great ride" and said his crew was looking forward to four more days in orbit. They return to Earth next Tuesday.

With Allen and Overmyer are commander Vance Brand and mission specialist William Lenoir.

Lenoir launched the first communications satellite, SBS-C, from the shuttle's cargo bay Thursday afternoon, just eight hours after Columbia blazed away from Cape Canaveral on its inaugural mission for hire.

Okay, Houston, we delivered; we got SBS off on time," Lenoir told Mission Control, noting the satellite was popped into its own orbit. A voice replied: "You got a lot of happy people down

"It's going to require some action, not just words," the president said at the nationally televised news conference Thursday night, less than 24 hours after the death of Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev was announced.

Early today, the Soviet government announced that Yuri V. Andropov, the former head of the KGB secret police, had taken over Brezhnev's other post, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party - the most powerful job in the Soviet Union.

Asked about the development, Deputy White House press secretary Peter Roussel said, "We look forward to working with the new Soviet leadership." He said there was no other immediate comment but that White House officials might have more extensive reaction later

For his part, Reagan said. "I want to underscore my intention to continue working to improve our relationship with the Soviet Union." But he said the Soviets must also make an effort. "We are prepared and ready. It takes two to tango."

Lebanese rescue workers said they counted 60 bodies.

. The search teams still combing the wreckage were joined today by investigators try-

All major Lebanese newspapers focused on the bombing theory in their front page accounts and reported massive Israeli roundups in the search for the alleged bombers. The politically independent daily An-Nahar said Syrian and Palestinian forces in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley went on maximum alert in anticipation of an Israeli reprisal.

The Israeli Cabinet met in emergency session today to discuss the blast.

Israel television also theorized that a small charge attached to one of the building's foundation pillars might have brought it down.

Situation normal at plant despite threat

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) - The atmosphere at an Amoco Oil Co. refinery here is "business as usual" despite threats against the facility, a spokesman for the firm says.

The plant still is operating normally. despite "a threat of unspecified nature," spokesman John Vesey said Thursday night.

Amoco Oil Co.'s Texas City refinery has received a demand that terminated employees be reinstated in their jobs. Threats against Amoco facilities were made if Amoco did not comply," Vesey said.

We do not have a bomb threat," he said.

The demand comes about a month after Gulf Oil Chemical Co.'s largest chemical plant was shut down for about five days by a threat to blow up the facility unless extortionists were paid $15 million.

Union official Billie Jones Jr. said there have been discharges but no layoffs at the Amoco facility, but declined to detail the "discharges.

"I know something about it (the threat)." said Jones, secretarytreasurer of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Local 4-447. "But I won't comment any further. I just have nothing to say.

In Houston, Charles Craft, a spokesman for Amoco's parent company, Standard Oil of Indiana, refused to disclose when the demand was made, how many facilities were involved, or whether monetary demands were made or deadlines set.

Letter to the Editor-

Dear Editor:

During this holiday season when feelings of good will, caring and sharing abound, I am proud to be part of an organization which works year-round to spread the spirit and true meaning of Christmas to all .. the American Lung Association of Texas .. the Christmas Seal

People. As a volunteer of the Lung Association, I want to remind all Deaf Smith County area residents to answer their 1982 Christmas Seal appeal letters. Thousands of individual contributions to Christmas Seals enable the Lung Association's work - the control and prevention of lung disease - to continue here in Texas.

The American Lung Association of Texas is part of one of the oldest voluntary health agencies in the nation. Formerly the TB and Respiratory Disease Association, we were part of the to all to join our crusade and medical miracle that brought TB under control. Today, we work for the control and prevention of all lung diseases, including emphysema, asthma, and chronic bronchitis, and some of their associated causes, including smoking, air pollution and occupational lung hazards. This past year the Lung Association completed 64 new Family Asthma Programs; 19 new anti-smoking education programs; 17 new Better Living, Better Breathing Clubs (attended by over 500 Texans,) and developed an innovative educational package in the form of an 18-minute audio-visual proaction.

We also provide lung health curricula and educational services to our schools, in the hope of bringing up a new generation free from preventable lung diseases. I appeal answer your Christmas Seal letter; to use Christmas Seals and this year's exciting new matching gift tags on your cards and gifts. Please give generously and "seal it with love."

It's a matter of life and breath. Signed,

Jewel Smith

Dear Editor, The Easter Lions Club wishes to thank all those who participated and made the Annual Carnival and Spook House a success. We would especially like to thank the merchants who donated prizes for the carnival. We had over 800 people attend the event this year, and made over $2,500 to go to local charities and the Texas Crip-

Ann Landers Are bankers sexier?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to pose a question in all sincerity. This is not a gag.

Is it true that men in the banking business are sexier than physicians, lawvers, professors, engineers, architects, artists or blue-collar workers? Since I moved to Omaha I have heard any number of stories about the terrific succes local bankers are enjoying with women, both married and single. I have concluded it is not just Omaha, it must be all over.

Do women have the idea all bankers are rich? Is money the aphrodisiac? Or, is it the age-old concept of bankers are classy and influential that makes them so desirable? Plaase comment. -High Interest In Nebraska

DEAR NEB: There are bound to be clinkers in any group but, generally speaking, bankers tend to be attractive to women.

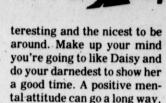

Maybe it's the way they dress - or the suave manner. Then again it could be the thought of all that money in the vaults. Whatever, it's a turn-on, not only in Omaha,

This cousin (I'll call her Daisy) is an all-A student, but she could be a linebacker for the Chicago Bears and has the personality of a dead salmon. I haven't seen her for three years, but my brother saw her during the Easter holidays. He says she is one gross kid.

I have orders to fix Daisy up with sme nice guys or I have to stay home with her. Please tell me what to do. I consider this child abuse. -Miss No Name, No City, With No Ideas

DEAR MISS: You haven't seen Daisy for three years. You may be pleasantly surprised. Maybe your brother wasn't impressed, but not all guys go for the same kind of girl. Reach for some fellows who aren't the best-looking. Often they are the most in-tal attitude can go a long way, DEAR ANN LANDERS: I married a man I was crazy about five years ago. He is 12 years my senior. Orville is in terrific physical condition and could pass for 35 any day. The problem is I am pregnant and want to name the child, if it's a boy, after my husband.

He has a son by his first marriage who was named after him, but that boy is 3,000 miles away. Orville's ex-wife has poisoned the kids' mind against his father and he hasn't seen him in seven years. I'm sure they will never be close. My husband isn't crazy about the idea, but he says he will do whatever makes me happy. He also wants to know what you think. -- Flo In Dixie

Rose Bowl berth up for grabs

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Arizona State Coach Darryl Rogers, often prevented from going to bowl games in the past because his teams have. been on probation, will clinch a trip to the Rose Bowl if the Sun Devils can beat Washington Saturday night.

Arizona State, 9-0 and ranked third in the nation, plays host to the seventh-ranked Huskies with the Pacific-10 Conference championship and the accompanying spot in the New Year's day classic in Pasadena, Calif., on the line.

A victory by Washington would put it back into position to claim its third straight league title and Rose Bowl berth

"I probably haven't coached in a game of this magnitude because I've never been in a position to go to the Rose Bowl," said Rogers, a former coach at Michigan State of the Big Ten, which sends its champion to the Rose Bowl to meet the Pac-10 winner. "In six of the last seven years, we couldn't go to it."

Rogers' 1978 Michigan State team shared the Big Ten title, but was ineligible for postseason play due to NCAA probation, which started in 1976.

Arizona State, meanwhile, hasn't played in a postseason game since the Garden State Bowl against Rutgers in 1978. The Sun Devils are still on probation during the 1982 regular season, but are eligi-

River Road-Friona tangle tonight

BY LES GILES Sports Editor

Craig Harrington threw three touchdown passes, while a smothering defense throttled Farwell at every turn as New Deal coasted past the Steers, 26-0, Thursday night in a Class 2A bi-district before 600 fans in Whiteface

The game, for all intents and purposes, was decided in the first half as the Lions moved to a 12-0 lead.

Farwell, which was making its first playoff appearance since 1969, simply was unable to move the ball offensively. In the first half, the Steers were held to nine yards total offense. Their farthest advance was to their own 33, and that came on the final play of the half.

New Deal, back in the playoffs after a two-year absence, rolled up 273 yards in the first half, and for the Harrington, who had thrown for over 1,350 yards prior to Thursday, completed 12 of 19 for 160 yards. He threw TD strikes of 18 (to Robert Jackson), 5 (to Steve Johnson) and 7 yards (to brother Mark)

The Lions, who'll play the winner of tonight's Reagan County-CLint game in next week's area playoffs, marched 64 yards in six plays on the game's initial possession.

A 40-yard run by tailback Henry Ramirez on the second play from scrimmage gave the winners a first down at the Four plays later, facing a fourth-and-eight situation, Harrington tossed an 18-yard scoring strike to Jackson, coming out of the backfield. The TD came with just 2:25

New Deal went 55 yards in 14 plays, following a Farwell punt, for its next TD midway through the second period. The payoff came on Harrington's 5-yard flip to Johnson, and made it, 12-0, with 4:05 left in the half. After a scoreless third period, which the Steers dominated, New Deal hit paydirt again early in the final

Jackson, who led all rushers with 107 yards on 17 carries, capped an eight-play, 35-yard drive by cracking over from a yard out with 9:52 left to play

Moments later, Steer running back Paul Fulcher tumbied at his 20 and Lion defensive tackler Ken Richardson

Three plays later, Harrington connected with brother Mark from seven yards out to complete the scoring with 8:11 remaining to play

Farwell, which wound up with 147 yards total offense, spent much of the second half in New Deal territory, but

The loss ended the Steers' season at 7-4. New Deal moved to 9-1-1.

While Jackson gained 107 yards for the Lions, Ramirez added 92 yards on 22 carries. Mark Harrington caught four passes for 77 yards.

Fulcher was Farwell's leading rusher with 31 yards on eight tries. Quarterback Alan Eubank managed only four completions in 19 tries for 69 yards.

Tonight, River Road and Friona will meet in a Class 3A bi-district game at 7:30 in Whiteface Stadium.

The Wildcats are making their first-ever appearance, while Friona is making is making its first appearance in the playoffs since 1965.

River Road is 8-2 overall, compared to 6-4 for Friona. The teams met earlier in the season, and the Wildcats came away with a 21-6 victory.

River Road is led by running backs Gary Martin (1,095 yards) and Allen Sanders (597). Friona's leading rusher Charlie Morgan (1,080 yards), has been bothered by a hip bruise, and is listed as questionable for the contest.

Six NFL teams vote to accept proposal

By CHRIS DAHL Associated Press Writer

The early vote is in and players from six National Football League teams have decided to accept, with certain modifications, management's latest proposal to end the 53-day-old strike.

And there are more indications of possible erosion in the ranks of NFL Players Association even among the teams that did not vote, or would not reveal the results of a vote. A consensus shows that many players are willing to ease up on issues earlier said to be unalterable by the players union.

The teams voting to accept "in principle" the owners' offer of $1.31 million over five years are the New Orleans Saints, Miami Dolphins, Los Angeles Rams, Houston Oilers, Cincinnati Bengals and Denver Broncos. Voting to reject the offer were the Atlanta Falcons, St.Louis Cardinals, San Francisco 49ers and Tampa Bay Buccaneers

Other teams, including the New York Giants, New England Patriots, Green Bay Packers, Washington Redskins, Philadelphia Eagles, Detroit Lions, Baltimore Colts and Seattle Seahawks, did not vote but have voiced strong objection to management's offer.

Members of the New York Jets met Monday to discuss the management proposal. One player who asked not to be identified, said that the presence of the Washington Redskins' Mark Murphy, a players association executive committee member, inhibited open discussion. Two players were said to have asked Marvin Powell, the Jets' player representative, to have a secret ballot. Powell is reported to have refused the request stating that players polled by telephone had already rejected the offer.

The Pittsburgh Steelers first met Sunday, voting 20-3 to reject the latest management proposal. Then, Tuesday, between 30 and 35 sent the union.

The Minnesota Vikings did not vote. But player representative David Huffman said, "we feel we would like to see some significant movement on the union's part in regard to our wage scale and some other things. We're willing to make concessions on certain things to get back to negotiating.'

Wide receiver Ahmad Rashad said after the meeting, "It doesn't matter whose terms you talk on as long as you talk. Those guys (the owners) got all the money. You can't sit by your wage scale and say, 'That's it or nothing' and go broke."

The Los Angeles Raiders' Mickey Marvin said that while his team did not actually vote, no more than four or five players would have rejected the offer. The 49ers the offer, but did say that the owners' offer constituted a "framework" for further negotiation.

The Bills met Tuesday for three hours without taking a vote, but an envoy of Isiah Robertson, Phil Villapiano and Jon Borchard was sent to New York to meet with union officials. The Bills were to meet again today to discuss what transpired in the meeting and to possibly take a vote.

The Houston Oilers met Wednesday with a turnout of about 20 players, not enough for a vote. Player representative David Carter said that the players are prepared to accept the offer if player rosters could be frozen at 49 and adequate arrangements could be reached with regard to 1982 salary

Ed Fisher, a non-union member of the Oilers said, "If it's the union's job to negotiate the best contract possible, if they don't negotiate a contract and the season is ended, then I don't think we've been represented very well."

To the dismay of Buccaneers quarterback Doug Williams, his team voted resoundingly in rejection of the owners offer.

"I lost respect for a lot of people," he said. "This is the pits to me. I thought a lot ootball games: SMU ($4, 64 in SWC) at TEXAS TECH (4-5, 3-3 in SWC), 2 p.m. -

Mustangs' bid for No. I ranking fell short this week, but strong consolation is that a victory here would clinch SWC co-championship, with a win over Arkansas next week giving the Mustangs the outright title. A win over Tech, led with an Arkansas loss to A&M Saturday would clinch SMU's first Cotton Bowl spot since 1967. The Mustangs face one of nation's best turn-around records. Tech up to 4-5 after 1-9-1 record last year. SMU tailback Eric Dickerson needs 19 yards to pass Earl Campbells' career rushing record, 324 to better Campbell's single season mark and just eight more yards to have the second best single season, currently held by Dickerson (1,421 last year). Tech is second against the pass in SWC. Mustangs throwing less than 13 times per game, but one of every 4.9 completions is for a TD. SMU's Lance McIlhe (140.1) and Tech's Jim Hart (85.0) rank first and last, respectively, in SWC pass efficiency as Hart is second (9.6) and McIlhenny last (5.5) in compleons per game. Tech's leads all-time series, 18-11.

BAYLOR (3-5-1, and 2-3-1 in SWC) at RICE (0-9, 0-6 in SWC), 2 p.m. - Bears scored 24-17 victory last week over No. 4 Arkansas. Rice lost to SMU, but was able to cut the final margin to 27-14. Owls need victory here or vs. Houston Nov. 27 to escape first all-losing season in 71 years of football. Mike Brannan paced Bear comeback vs. Arkansas with 10 pass completions in 20 attempts for 230 yards and one TD, plus 52-yarder to Alfred Anderson to set up field goal that tied scored at 17-17. Baylor's 24 points matched total by four previous SWC foes against nation's No. 1 scoring-defense team. Baylor's Gerald McNeil is one catch behind Houston's Dave Roberson (41-40) for SWC pass receiving lead. Rice specialists are SWC leaders, Vince Courville with 20.7 kickoff-return average, Melvin Robinson with 12.7 punt return norm. Baylor has 33-27-2 series edge TEXAS (5-2, 3-1 in SWC) at TCU (3-6, 2-4 in SWC), 2 p.m. - Nine points have cost the Frogs three SWC wins, the latest a 16-14 loss to Texas Tech coming on a field goal with 26 seconds left. Texas pulled rare feat last week: 50-0 shutout of Houston, for only second time in the last 17 years a team has blanked two consecutive SWC foes. Discounting consecutive losses to Oklahoma and SMU, Texas is 5-0 and allowing 3.8 points per game to rank 20th nationally. Both teams are versatile on offense, Texas rushing for 253 yards per game and passing for 141, TCU rushing for 174 and passing for 158. Texas' Darryl Clark has 85.3 rushing yards a game to rank third in SWC, Frogs' Marcus Gilbert 71.6 to rank seventh. Texas leads the all-time series, 47-19-1. Defensively, TCU vulnerable vs. the run, alowing SWC high of 201 yards per game, while y Texas is third at 154. Longhorns lead SWC in pass defense (119 yards a game). TEXAS A&M (4-4, 2-3 in SWC) vs. ARKANSAS (7-1, 4-1 in SWC) at Little X Rock, 7 p.m. - Among the 97 NCAA Division 1-A football schools, Arkansas 2 was one of four with perfect records prior to 24-17 loss to Baylor last week. Razorbacks held 14-0 and 17-14 leads before falling to Baylor passing attack, now must face most prolific passing attack in SWC. Aggie QB Gary Kubiak. injured two weeks ago and doubtful this week, easily leads SWC with 139 completions, 15 TDs, 1,532 yards and throws to three of SWC's top nine receivers -Johnny Hector, Don Jones and Jimmy Teal. Arkansas leads SWC in offense (404 yards a game), defense (248) and rushing defense (85). Aggies lead in passing (208). Aggies last in SWC pass defense with yield of 217 yards per game and Arkansas third in pass offense with 169. Razorbacks fell to No. 10 nationally. Hector ranks eighth in SWC rushing, Razorbacks' Darryl Bowles

SWC thumbnails NCAA investigation shadows Clemson all season long

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) -If defending the 1981 national college football championship weren't enough, the Clemson Tigers have been shadowed all year by a longrunning NCAA recruiting investigation that's bred speculation and rampant rumors.

'We've got so many distractions right now, it's unfair for the kids," Clemson coach Danny Ford said in a telephone interview Thursday.

The subject of Clemson's possible probation heated up this week as sportswriters ran wild with tidbits tossed by unnamed sources claiming the National Collegiate Athletic Association and Clemson's Atlantic Coast Conference had already decided the Tigers' fate.

The 34-year-old Ford said the stories were making it just that much tougher to keep his players pumped up. We're trying like hell to do that," he said. "But it's getting harder and harder every day now because it doesn't let

"We're very close to having this thing resolved and we want to get it behind us so we can get on with our business," Atchley said.

Ford wouldn't talk about the reports, saying he has his players to consider.

"I'm not trying to be hard to get along with," he said. "But they don't need to be reading anything in the paper about me talking about it and taking my time away from "We're really just trying to put that out of our heads and concentrate more on the rest of the season," sophomore quarterback Mike Eppley "Coach Ford said he'd tell us as soon as he received official word," said Eppley. 'So we're just taking everything that's in the papers now as publicity and rumors. In other words, just wait for the final word before we worry about it.'

Despite reports published by The Washington Post quoting unnamed sources as saying both the ACC and the NCAA Committee on Infractions have voted to put Clem-

Asked about possible NCAA sanctions against Clemson, NCAA spokesman Dave Cawood said Thursday, "We have no plans to make any announcement on any school today, this week or any time in the near future.'

The investigation has put pressure on the team, but no worse than last year, said Clemson sports information director Bob Bradley.

'These things surfaced three or four times last year," Bradley said.

Grass root uprising only solution old, my football career end-

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Gale Sayers, one of football's most exciting ball carriers whose shifty legs carried him into the Hall of Fame, thinks an uprising from the grass root ranks is the only solution for the stalemated strike in the National Football League.

"I don't think most of the players know what's going on," the former University of Kansas and Chicago Bears running back says. "The union is giving them information piecemeal.

"I think it's a shame. The players are getting hurt worst of all. They have families, babies to feed, mortgage payments to be paid. There's a lot of money on the table. It seems to me the owners have made a decent

"I think players should demand that they be heard instead of leaving it up to Ed Garvey and the union reps. I'm not sure all of them are getting the right picture."

Even as Sayers spoke, player solidarity behind Garvey, the executive director of the NFL Players Association, was beginning to develop cracks. With the New Orleans. Saints leading the way, many players back home were showing increased impatience.

'Hey, let's take another look at the owners' offer," they seemed to be saying. With a little revision here and there, we think we could live with it." Garvey, meanwhile, maintained that his lines were holding firm in their opposition to the management figures on the table.

Sayers, who recently ended a five-year tenure as athletic director at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, was in New York pursuing his new career as a marketing director for Skil Power Tools, a Chicago-based company.

"I enjoy the academic atmosphere, said Sayers, who formerly served as assistant athletic director at Kansas. But I felt I had to explore new opportunities.

"I miss trying to steer kids in the right direction. Most of them think all they have to do

In 1968, Sayers' knees began to fold under the strain and he underwent a series of operations. He was forced to retire in 1972.

Tight-lipped on the Red Army's high frontier

United States and the Soviet Union, at great cost and technological effort, are enmeshed in a competition to establish extensive military capabilities in space.

But in talking to Soviet space officials here, you'd never know it.

The officials say the intent of their program is strictly peaceful and scientific and that it is the Americans who are forcing the increased attention that both militaries are giving space projects.

The American space shuttle is the only space weapon,' one of them stated in a recent interview, repeating an accusation often made by Soviet propagandists.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, recently charged: "American brass hats make no secret that they regard outer space as a potential theater of operations. The Pentagon also is planning to put laser weapons, spy satellites and anti-satellite systems into near-Earth orbit, and it plans to spread the arms race to outer space.

Such talk is cheap, but military space activity is not. U.S. officials say the Soviet Red Army is outspending the U.S. Air Force.

Military purposes consume 70 percent of the $18 billion Soviet space budget, according to a U.S. Defense Department analysis and a similar estimate by a specialist at the U.S Embassy

During a week of late-October briefings here, the Soviet government refused to make military officers available to discuss space. Asking civilian officials about military plans was not a fruitful exercise.

No matter what job or rank, the officials just didn't hear. Most commonly, a question drew a silence, maybe a slight shrug. If they said anything, it was that they resented such questions. The terse accusation on the shuttle was the sole excep-

It isn't only Soviet officials who have an aversion to discussing military space plans: the U.S. shuttle is, in part, a military vehicle, and Pentagon planners are equally secretive.

Officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are closedmouthed to an extreme when talk turns to military matters. Last month, in a NASA briefing at Johnson Space Center, officials handed out the names of four astronauts who will fly the shuttle's 10th mission, an Air Force flight next year. "Got a little onepage announcement here," one official told reporters. "Everybody hang onto it because it's also the press

But in the United States there are selective news' leaks - something unheard here. American military of in Soviet military circles space programs add up to 60 and Air Force space officers

Companies agree to pay family of drowned officer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -The family of a Marine lieutenant who drowned in a helicopter accident in 1980 has been awarded $650,000 in damages after claiming in a federal lawsuit that defective products contributed to the death

The Boeing Co. and Trans Technology Corp. were ordered to pay the damages to Karen Hensley of Greensboro, N.C., widow of Lt. James Oscar Hensley III, and other family members.

Boeing built the helicopter in which Hensley died, and Trans Technology built the tie-down assembly that broke and allowed the chopper to roll off the deck of an aircraft carrier and into the Pacific Ocean, attorney George Flemming said Thursday.

Flemming, represented Mrs. Hensley, said military personnel are not allowed to sue the U.S. government, but he said there is a growing number of cases in which they seek damages from private contractors.

"More and more, people in the military are becoming cognizant that a remedy is available to them in cases where defective products are entered into the stream of commerce by military contractors," Flemming said.

Public invited

The public is invited to attend the annual chili supper, sponsored by members of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228, from 5-8 p.m. Saturday at

You are beginning to see a recognition of those rights by people who have been injured or had a member of their family injured on a military base or in a military circumstance.

He said most of the fault for Hensley's death lay with the tie-down assembly, although he said there was a problem with the helicopter's tricycle landing pod and its "high center of gravity.

The parties in the suit agreed to terms before the matter came to trial, and the settlement was approved by U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts of Austin. It orders Trans Technology to pay $500,000, while Boeing must pay the remaining $150,000.

Attorneys for Boeing said the chopper met government safety-standards and denied its design was a cause of Hensley's death.

Hensley, 27, was one of six men in the CH-46D helicopter when it fell off the USS Okinawa and into the sea during training exercises off Guam Feb. 1, 1980. The other five men managed to scramble out and survived the acci-

Despite Soviet declarations of innocence, the United States has evidence the Soviet Union has field-tested a potent space weapon.

It is a "killer satellite" capable of destroying U.S. reconnaissance, communications, navigation and other vital military payload. It was tested successfully against Soviet space targets.

American analysts are also concerned about reports of Soviet research into laser and charged-particle beams.

Richard D. DeLauer, the undersecretary of defense for research and engineering, told a Senate subcommittee recently that the Soviet Salvut space station program "engages in military activities and may be the forerunner of a weapons platform.'

A recently released Pentagon document, "Soviet Military Power," says: "The Soviet goal of having continuously manned space stations may support both defensive and offensive weapons in space, with man in the space station for target selection, repairs, adjustments and positive command and con-

A U.S. official who asked not to be identified said there was evidence that a Soviet laser beam satellite could be launched as early as 1985. It probably would not be too effective against American payloads, he said, but it could have an effect as a psychological symbol.

By 1990, this analyst expects at least one Soviet space station to be armed with laser guns that could vaporize orbiting targets thousands of miles away. It is 'Star Wars' stuff, but U.S. officials say it's not too farfet-

Until recently, most U.S. and Soviet military space spending went surveillance and defensive systems. But Soviet development of the killer satellite and laser weapon research prompted the U.S. to become more aggressive.

In its first response to the killer satellite, the Air Force is scheduled early next year to test-fire an American antisatellite weapon - a device launched by rocket from a high-flying F15 jet fighter and equipped with sensors to search out and destroy a hostile quarry by crashing in-

Laser and particle-beam research is also underway. In both areas, superior American technology might eventually overcome the current Soviet lead. The Reagan administration has requested $140 million for space laser research in fiscal 1983, up from $90 million in 1981. The U.S. Space Command, established Sept. 1, will supervise increasing military operations aboard the space shuttle. About half the 300 shuttle flights planned through 1992 will be military missions.

Initially, military shuttle missions will carry out traditional defensive assignments hauling up satellites for such things as reconnaissance, navigation and communications. But by the end of the decade the shuttle ships are expected to test laser weapons and transport the building blocks for space stations to be used for both military and civil activities.

Smokeout planned

Up to 20 million Americans across the country are expected to try giving up cigarettes for at least 24 hours during the Great American Smokeout scheduled Thursday, Nov. 18.

Last year, the Gallup Organization reported that about 15 million of American's 52 million adult smokers tried to give up cigarettes for Smokeout day, and that 4.5 million of them made it through the day without smoking.

The Great American Smokeout appeals to many smokers because it asks for only a one-day commitment. Yet many participants discover that, having gone without cigarettes for 24 hours, they can try for 48 hours or more.

Holiday dishes served

The Kingdom Seekers Sunday School class of Avenue Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Velma Carroll Tuesday night for a supper of favorite holiday dishes and an exchange of recipes.

Mrs. Buck Barnett opened with prayer and Mrs. Ray Bain gave a devotional, "Security," from Psalms 46. Mrs. Billy Wall led in a Bible Duing the business session the group planned for a Christmas party to be Dec. 14 in the home of Mrs. Walls.

Others present were Mrs. Homer Thomas, Mrs. Benny Manley, Mrs. Johnny Townsend, Mrs. Coy Tice, Mrs. Joe Brown and Mrs. Don Houle.

Navy officer just getting his land legs

DALLAS (AP) - After 30 years at sea, Rear Adm. Jackson Parker say he's just now beginning to like a desk job. He's in charge of keeping the Navy's Atlantic Fleet battle ready.

"That sort of makes me 'the old man and the sea'." Parker said Thursday of his long naval tenure.

He was in Dallas for a Veterans Day speech to the Salesmanship Club. Parker joined the U.S. Navy as a seaman recruit in 1942 a month after the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. He intended to stay at least 20 years in the service.

but his goals were modest. "I intended to stay for a full career," he said. "I hoped I'd be a second class petty officer." the equivalent of a sergeant in the Army. But instead, he is probably the only admiral to have held every rank in the admiral, he said.

Navy publicists call him the "best known 'tin can sailor'," because in his 40-year career, all but 10 years have been spent at sea. All but 15 were spent on destroyers, "tin cans," as sailors call them.

He has seen action in nearly every major operation or landing the Atlantic Fleet has made since he joined the Navy. He handled river operations in Vietnam for a year, and commanded two destroyers and later two 16-ship destroyer squardrons, until the Navy ordered him ashore two years ago. 'I'm beginning to like the land," he said. "Just now." Parker is now in Norfolk, Va., in charge of readiness and resources for the 250-ship That would have made him Atlantic Fleet and speaks to civic groups about what he sees as a increasing Soviet military threat.

The military "is the under-Navy, except of the two ranks pinning of political above him, vice admiral and negotiating in a dangerous

Gallbladder grief

DEAR DR. LAMB - A year ago I had my gallbladder and stones removed. An X-ray showed one stone remained After five weeks I had a T-tube cholangiogram and the stone was gone.

Now, one year later, I am again having slight gallbladder attacks after eating fatty foods. My doctor suggests more X-rays and possible surgery to remove the stone, if found. I do not wish to go through surgery again. He said I could also have a high acidity problem or maybe an ulcer but the symptoms had before surgery.

Is it possible to have another stone after one year? I heard on TV with Hal Linden that too many people opt for gallbladder surgery when a lot of the time the stones can be treated with a drug called CDCA. Do you know of this drug and is it available?

DEAR READER rarely new stones form in the bile ducts after gallbladder surgery. And sometimes a stone is missed at surgery even though a careful exploration is done. And some stones in the duct can be dissolved or extracted without in 1941.

Your story, however, reminds me of the many cases of people with symptoms who also have gallstones. The stones may be totally unrelated to the symptoms so the den correctly, he either didn't do his research properly or didn't wait for all the results from the national study. If so he did the public a disservice. CDCA was studied on a national basis for dissolving gallstones. The final report is that it is not very useful. After two years of treat-ment with CDCA there was no evidence of a decrease in stone size in 60 percent of cases.

A colorful pointer

Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - I'm writing to ask how to get a poinsettia to bloom for Christmas. My mother is growing it. -

DEAR MRS. J.N. - This information comes from Paul Ecke, one of the leading developers and growers of poinsettias. Immediately, start putting the plant in total darkness for about 14 hours every night. An easy way to do this is to cover the plant with a large cardboard box each night from 5 p.m. to 7 a.m. the next morning. Or just put it in a closet. Ideally, the temperature should be from 62 to 67 degrees. Cooler temperatures will slow the plant down. During the day, be sure your plant receives full daylight. Put it in a sunny window. Your plant should come into full bloom just around Christmas time if you start right now. As soon as it does turn a radiant red, discontinue the prolonged darkness treatment; it's no longer necessary. Hope the project is a success and you and your mother can enjoy a lovely, festive, living holiday decoration. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - When my daughter and granddaughter come to visit me with my two great-grandsons, we always go out to the shopping center for lunch or dinner. The youngest, Eric, would always start running toward the store from the parking lot as soon as he got out of the car. Since he was only four years old; it was hard to break him of the habit, even with a spanking. He really did have some close calls with cars. One day, I asked him before the car was stopped if he would wait and hold great-grandmother's hand so no car would run over HER. Now, after a year, he still holds my hand, stops and looks both ways before crossing the street, and is always proud of the good job he does protecting greatgrandmother. We never even have to remind him. - MRS.

DEAR MRS. C.R. - Thank you so much for sharing your lovely story and your Pointer with us. I'm pleased to send you the Pointer of the Week award, an autographed copy of Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer. Not only have you made life a little safer for Eric, but he's learning how nice it is to be responsible for the care and safety of his loved ones. You sound like a wonder mother, grandmother and great-grandmother.

FAITH WILL PROVIDE YOU WITH STRENGTH IN THE FACE OF MISFORTUNE

For some time, we have been regaled with dire predictions of recession, depression and other ominous terms that depict a general worsening of our economic situation; all of which must cause many of us to wonder if our own source of life's basic needs might soon be in jeopardy. The fancy words would indeed appear to forecast a grim future when translated into terms of next week's groceries or next month's rent. Throughout history, in time of trouble man has always turned to religion as a last resort, even when it should have been his first. There is no better time than now, to go to your Church and pray to God for His ever-present help and guidance.

I show you doubt, to prove that faith exists.
