U.S. justifies fight as self-defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says it acted in defense of international seaways and U.S. forces when it continued to pound Libyan naval vessels and an anti-aircraft base hours after Libya stopped firing the missiles the Americans say started the fight.

Calm prevailed into the early morning hours today in the disputed Gulf of Sidra. But for a second straight day Tuesday, the U.S. 6th Fleet directed missile fire against Libyan forces. Four Libyan ships were hit in the two days of fighting, three of them sunk. And a Libyan radar site was struck Monday, then hit again less than four hours later.

U.S. officials in Washington issued conflicting and admittedly erroneous reports early Tuesday that the Libyans continued to fire on U.S. warplanes. They later justified the second round of firing by saying the Navy's 30-ship armada had orders declaring any Libyan plane or boat approaching them to have hostile intentions.

"We have been given ample evidence of hostile Libyan intentions ... and we will defend ourselves," Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims declared, referring to Libya's launching of ground-to-air missiles against U.S. planes on Monday.

In disclosing new confrontations Tuesday, the Pentagon and White House initially said as many as 12 missiles had been fired at U.S. planes and that some of the additional missile launches had occurred Tuesday.

Later, however, both the White House and Pentagon said Libya had not fired any missiles at U.S. planes since 1:14 p.m. EST Monday, or 7:14 p.m. in the Mediterranean. Only six missiles can be absolutely confirmed as having been fired but there were probably more, Sims said.

"We are asserting the right of passage, one of the oldest American foreign policy positions," said Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the third-ranking Democrat in the House leadership.

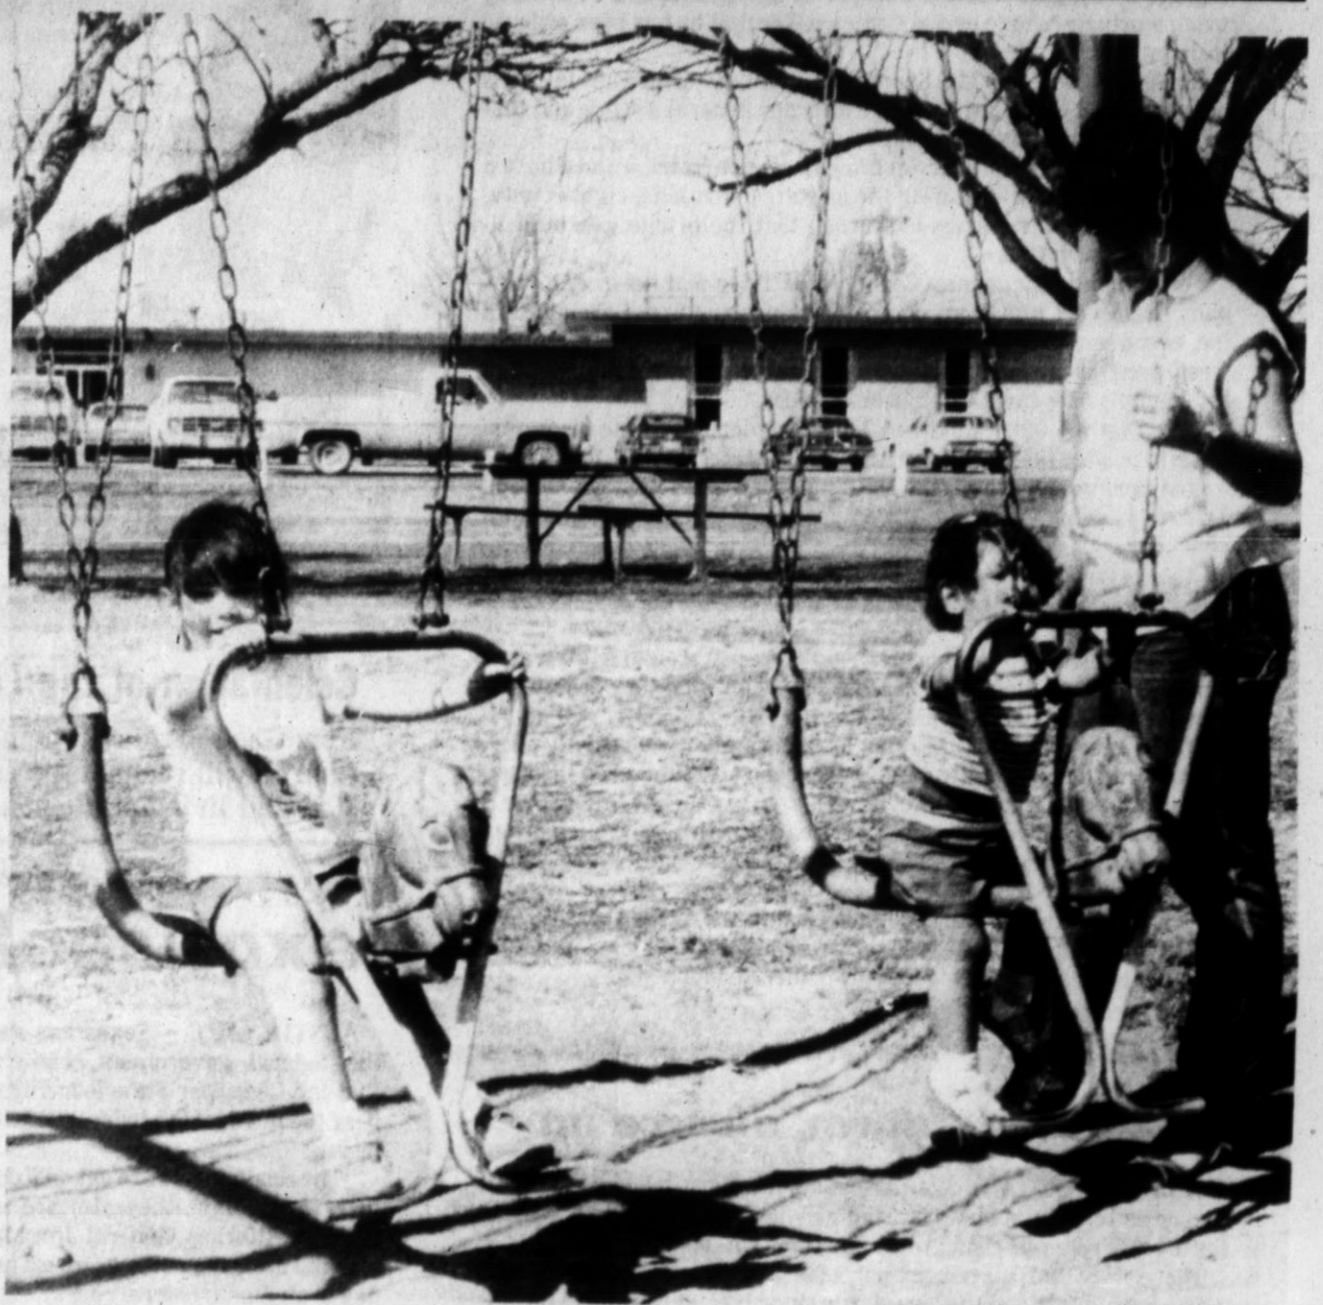

Libya claims the 120-mile gulf as its own. The United States regards it as international waters, recognizing only a 12-mile territorial limit along the Libyan coast.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes insisted the United States used force Monday only because the Libyans fired Soviet-built anti-aircraft missiles at American planes operating over the gulf.

He said it was not President Reagan's intent to punish Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy for supporting international terrorism, a charge the United States had repeatedly leveled against him.

However, when asked if the United States wanted to put Khadafy "back in his box," Speakes replied: "Certainly, if the man would conduct himself within the norms of international behavior, he could run his country. But when he starts exporting terrorism and expanding and expanding, that's when he needs to be put back in his box."

The New York Times reported today that White House officials have said the plan to engage Libyan forces in the gulf was approved after intelligence reports disclosed Libya was "zeroing in" on American diplomats as potential terrorist targets. It did not identify the officials.

Balanced-budget amendment short one vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — After coming up just one vote short, backers of a balanced-budget constitutional amendment say they missed a crucial opportunity to win Senate passage that may not come again for several years.

"Unless we replace some of the members who voted against this, I don't see any way we are going to pass this in the next Congress," Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said Tuesday after the Senate voted to kill the proposal he helped sponsor.

Senators voted 66-34 for the amendment, but supporters needed 67 votes — two-thirds of the Senate's 100 voting members — to win passage. The proposal would have required Congress to spend no more each year than the government collects in revenues.

"It's a big disappointment," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., another sponsor. "It's going to be a long time before we get an opportunity to pass it again."

Both supporters and opponents said the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, passed last December on a 61-31 Senate vote, was a significant factor in the amendment's defeat.

Hidalgo County company ordered to rehire activist

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today ordered a Hidalgo County company to rehire a farmworker who was fired for becoming active in a union and complaining about sanitation conditions.

Maria Guadalupe Vasquez was fired by Bannworths Inc. on Nov. 5, 1982, after two Hidalgo County Health Department officials came to check on her complaints.

Mrs. Vasquez had complained that all Bannworths' workers were required to share a common drinking cup and that the portable toilets in the fields were filthy.

She had become active in the United Farm Workers union earlier in 1982. Mrs. Vasquez had worked for Bannworths periodically since 1973, usually for 10 hours a day at minimum wage, according to court records.

After she was fired, she filed a lawsuit against the company. A

Hidalgo County jury ordered Bannworths to pay her $3,000 in lost wages to cover the period from when she was fired until she filed the lawsuit. The trial court also barred Bannworths from discriminating against Mrs. Vasquez if she was ever rehired.

The Corpus Christi Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court.

The Texas Supreme Court today said the lower court rulings did not go far enough. In an opinion written by Justice Sears McGee, the unanimous court said Bannworths had to rehire Mrs. Vasquez.

"The trial court abused its discretion in failing to order Mrs. Vasquez's rehiring because, in effect, the court's order allows Bannworths to continue to discriminate against Mrs. Vasquez by refusing to hire her because of her union membership," McGee said

State asks probe on private bridge

WACO, Texas (AP) — McLennan County officials have asked the state to investigate whether John Trice is violating court orders by using a private bridge on the Brazos River that he has been ordered to dismantle.

But Trice, owner of J&J Sand and Gravel Co., said Tuesday he is not concerned with a probe by the attorney general's office and that he is operating within legal boundaries.

The saga of the controversial bridge between Patrick and Gholson is well-documented, capturing the attention of at least eight county, state and federal agencies concerned that the bridge was built illegally in March 1985.

The state and McLennan County sued Trice and his gravel company to prevent him from completing the structure. Officials said the bridge was built without authorization, impeded navigation, trespassed on the public right-of-way on the river bed and violated the county's 100-year floodplain ordinance.

State District Judge Derwood Johnson ordered Trice to dismantle the bridge after jurors ruled in favor of the state during a July trial.

Last spring, Johnson issued a temporary injunction prohibiting Trice from using the bridge, except to cross it to remove debris from beneath it.

Truck load of laxative stolen

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities said whoever stole a semi-tractor trailer from a Dallas warehouse probably got what they deserved — but not what they were looking for.

The trailer was stolen Monday by someone who apparently drove a tractor to a Sterling Drug Inc. warehouse and hitched up the rig in early morning darkness, officials said.

Authorities at first assumed it was loaded with prescription drugs. Whoever took the trailer probably assumed the same thing, police say.

However, officials learned later, inside the trailer was $61,000 worth of Milk of Magnesia, a laxative.

Police said they expect to find the trailer abandoned.

Marriage rate down, divorce up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans were about twice as likely to marry as to divorce last year, but new government statistics show the divorce rate was rising while marriage was on the decline.

There were 10.2 marriages per 1,000 Americans in 1985, down 3 percent from 1984 and the lowest rate since 1977, according to the annual statistical summary from the National Center for Health Statistics.

At the same time, the divorce rate climbed 2 percent to 5 divorces per 1,000 people to match the rate of 1983.

The center reported 2,425,000 marriages in 1985, down from 2,487,000 in 1984. And there were 1,187,000 divorces, up from 1,155,000.

Overall 1,665,000 people were added to the United States population last year as a result of natural increase — the excess of births over deaths. The rate of increase was 7 per 1,000 people, the same as a year earlier.

The center said there were 3,749,000 births during the year, the most since 1965.

Warning labels law on snuff passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate sponsor of a new law requiring health warning labels on smokeless tobacco says a ban on snuff and chewing tobacco could not now be imposed, but he hopes a landmark surgeon general's report detailing the products' cancer risk will persuade people to avoid them.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, praised a surgeon general's report released Tuesday as providing evidence that snuff and chewing tobacco are not a safe alternative to cigarettes.

The study, described as analogous to the famous 1964 surgeon general's report on smoking, declared snuff and chewing tobacco to be "a significant health risk" that can lead to addiction, dependence, mouth disease and cancer.

But Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, said he doubted the report would prompt Congress to take further action against the products.

Congress already has passed legislation to require health warnings on smokeless tobacco containers and to ban their broadcast advertising. President Reagan signed the bill into law last month.

"I think it's the best we could have done at the time," Hatch said. "We'll just have to watch it and see what happens. But I don't think Congress has the desire to tell anybody ... at this point that they have to go out of business."

"We are not in the business of trying to put people out of business," Hatch said. "What we want to do is give people the right to make the correct and proper choices."

Hatch made the comments at a news conference where he and Surgeon General C. Everett Koop released the smokeless tobacco study.

The report concludes that "the oral use of smokeless tobacco represents a significant health risk. It is not a safe substitute for smoking cigarettes."

Car bomb kills at least eight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded outside an office of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party in Christian east Beirut today, killing at least eight people and wounding 39, officials said.

Moslem militias rocketed two Christian neighborhoods after the car bomb exploded. Rockets crashing into the residential Ashrafiyeh neighborhood, where the car bomb exploded, and the Dikwani area killed two people and wounded 15 others, the police reported.

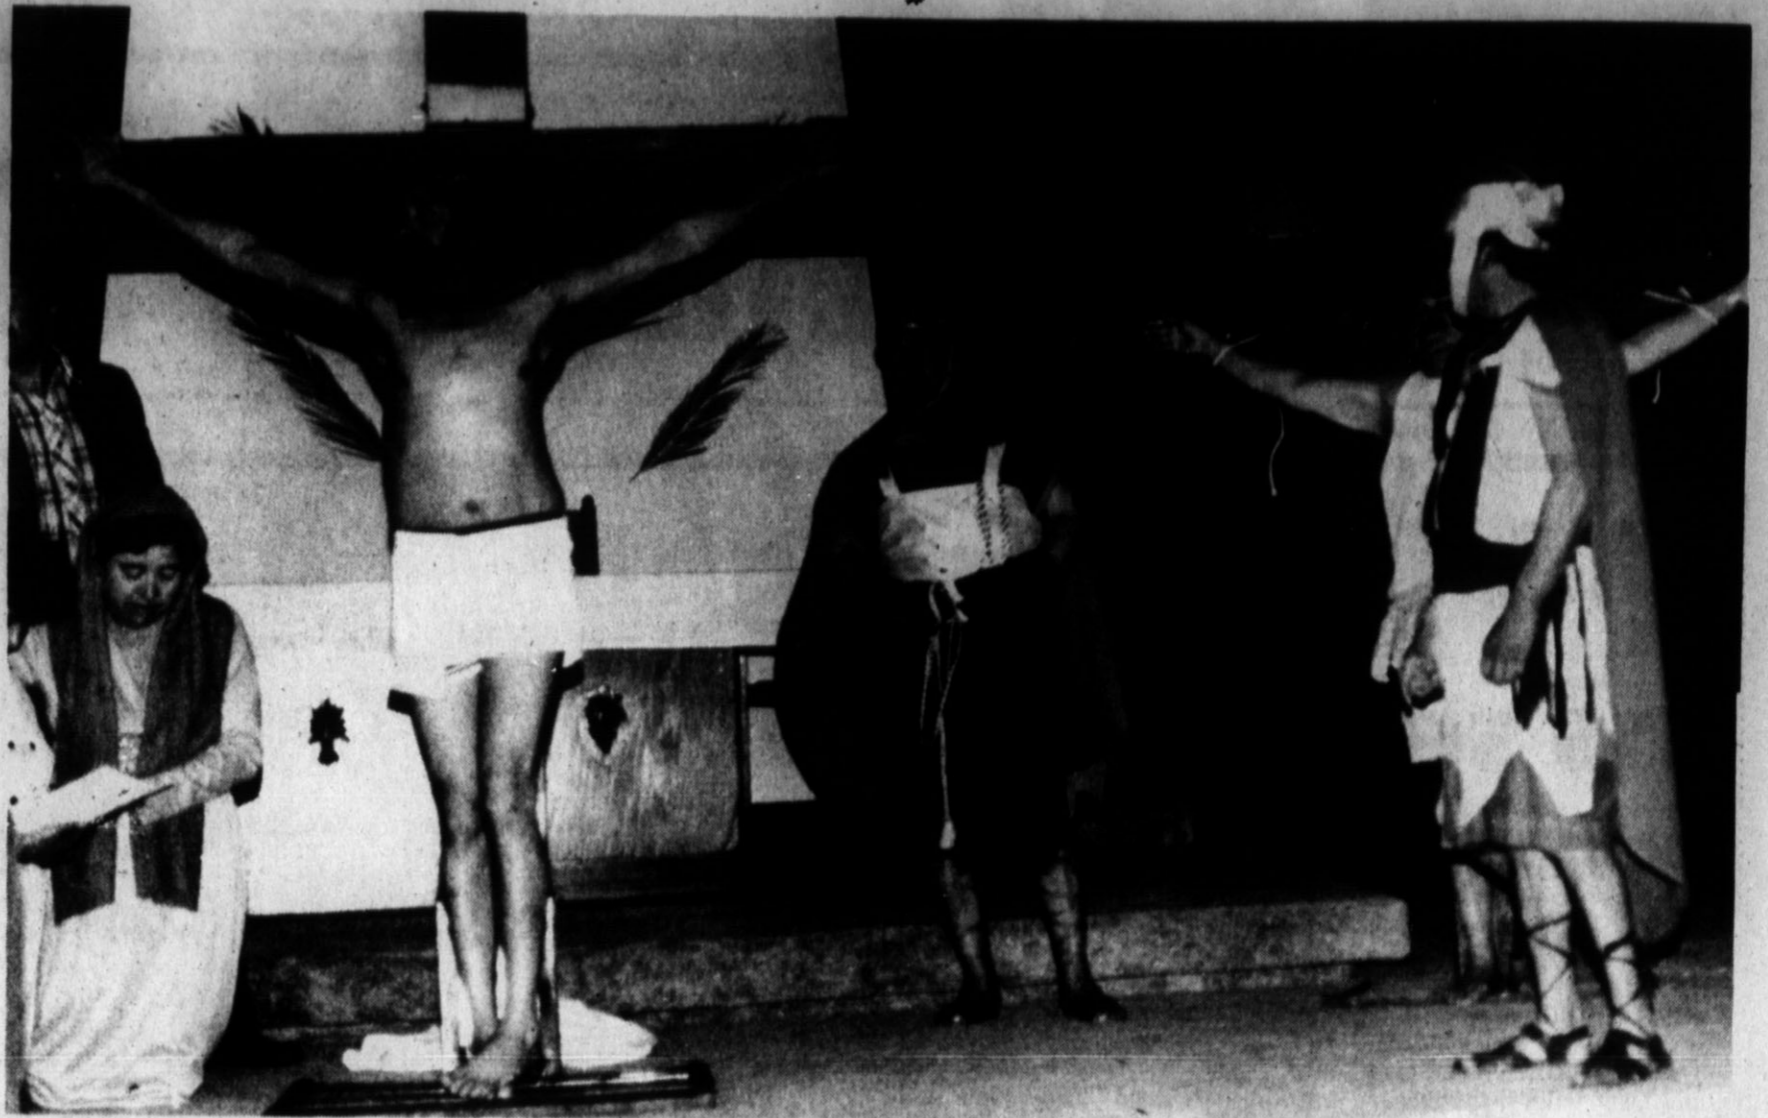

Beirut radio stations also reported that earlier today a bomb exploded in a six-story apartment block housing a Phalange center in another east Beirut neighborhood, injuring six people. Police reported seven people died and 30 were wounded in overnight battles between Christians and Moslems in Beirut and the hills east of the capital.

Police explosives expert Roland Jawdeh estimated the car bomb contained as much as 440 pounds of TNT.

A reporter for the Voice of Lebanon radio on the scene of the car bombing outside a shopping center said there were "dozens of casualties, and more people trapped in burning buildings."

Phalangis militiamen fired automatic rifles in the air to clear traffic for ambulances in the narrow, smoke-filled street.

The explosions were the latest in a chain of bombings in east Beirut, many of them against Phalange offices, amid a campaign by Syrian-backed leftist, Moslem and Christian factions to oust Gemayel.

Texas seeks court order against budget cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas has sued the federal government, claiming that the Lone Star State is having to bear too much of the federal deficit's brunt.

"The funding cuts are not only contrary to the law, they also are immoral," Attorney General Jim Mattox said after the suit was filed Tuesday in an Austin federal court.

The suit says funds for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program and the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Block Grant were supposed to be cut only 4.3 percent across-the-board for all states as a result of the Gramm-Rudman deficit cutting provision.

But Mattox said the federal Department of Health and Human Services cut funds to Texas by 12 percent and did not cut the funding at all for some other states.

Under the budget cuts ordered April 1 by the federal government, the state would lose $6 million for a program to aid the elderly in paying their utility bills. Another $2.5 million would be slashed from alcohol and drug abuse programs.

"The normal cuts under Gramm-Rudman would have been serious enough for Texas," Mattox said. "But then the Department of Health and Human Services drags out of a closet some convoluted and bizarre formula to cut Texas by 12 percent."

"We had 109 heat-related deaths in Texas last year. We have had a mild winter, which may mean we will have a long, hot summer," Mattox said. "Some of the states that had no funds cut include Alaska, Maine, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota and Wisconsin. Surely no one believes those states will have a hotter summer than Texas."

The suit asks for a temporary injunction against the United States, Secretary of Health and Human Ser-VICES Otis Bowen and related Washington agencies. No hearing date was set.

Mattox made the announcement at a Capitol news conference where he and Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, protested another proposed budget cut they said would result in Texas losing $2.5 million for its Child Support Enforcement Program.

"Losing our direct federal funds this year may force us to lay off as many as 75 child support enforcement employees, out of 520 we now have on the staff statewide," Mattox said.

Ragsdale said the Gramm-Rudman method of cutting the national budget across-the-board was "penny wise, pound foolish." He estimated dependent children will lose $11.5 million that otherwise could have been collected from responsible parents.

Ragsdale, chairman of the House Committee on State, Federal and International Relations, said money to enforce new state laws on payment of child support would have a high priority in the 1987 Legislature.

"We definitely have to look at ways of increasing our state revenue," Ragsdale said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

It is a shame and sad about the manner of which some political candidates and certain supporters of theirs are going about in Hereford and Deaf Smith County registering people to vote. People are actually being sought.

Some of the people who are being registered seem to be illiterate and can't even sign or write their name, and there are those who are ignorant of what is happening and are being manipulated.

People who tend to be unconcerned, disinterested and could care less of what transpires in the community have no business voting. City, county and state government in conjunction with community interests are usually the farthest things from their minds. People who are sought and talked into registering merely for a candidate's sake, again, have no business voting.

Why seek them? Is it so that when election time come they are taken to the polls? Then people wonder why do people in the community think and feel the way they do?

This is America — greatest land in the world. Citizens, either by birth or naturalization, 18 years old or older, I strongly encourage you to register so you may exercise that great privilege of voting during the upcoming elections. But do it freely, voluntarily, and of your own free will and vote for the candidate of your choice.

Sincerely
Lupe Chavez

Dear editor,

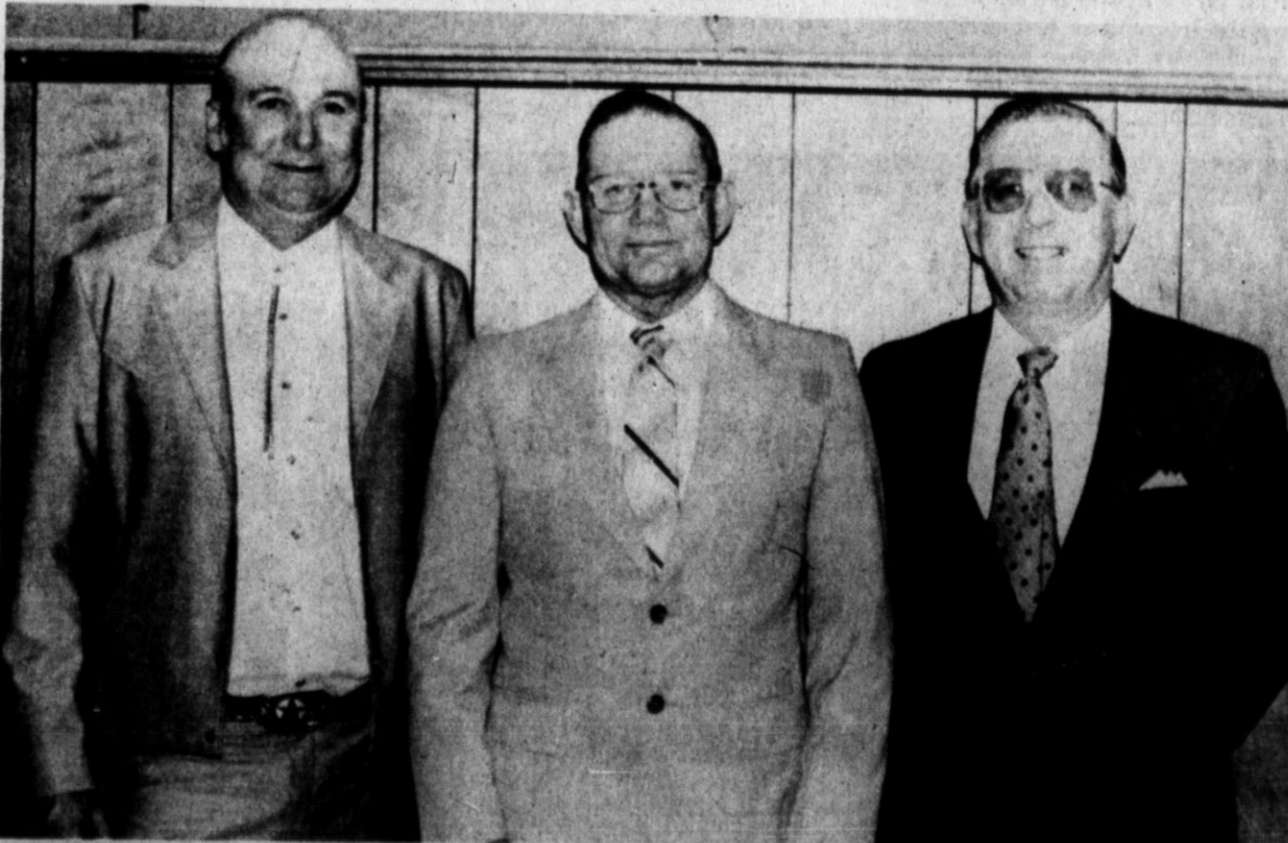

We, the City of Hereford, owe Clint Formby, KPAN, and the Sesquicentennial Committee, Garth Thomas and Argen Draper a great big vote of thanks for bringing "Up With People" to Hereford.

It is certainly a "feather in our cap" to have such a distinguished and internationally known group here. They are an outstanding cast of talented and chosen youth. They are beautiful ambassadors of good will.

"Love" is power. If all our world could take a lesson from them there would be no "Libyas" — world peace would be in the bag. I highly commend them.

And thank you Clint, and all others responsible, for getting them to come here.

Sincerely,
Roberta Caviness

Americans see potential for increased terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of Americans believe the U.S. attacks on Libyan patrol boats and a radar site will result in increased terrorism against U.S. citizens around the world, according to a poll published today.

The poll, reported in today's editions of USA Today, found that more than 78 percent of those questioned saw the potential for increased terrorist activity following the confrontations between Libyan and American forces Monday and Tuesday in the Gulf of Sidra.

The poll also found that 67 percent supported U.S. military retaliation although Libyan missiles failed to hit American planes. Sixty-four percent said the Libyan incident increases the chance of war in the Middle East, but the respondents were split over whether the incident increases the chances of war with the Soviet Union.

Seventy-four percent agreed that showing the U.S. isn't afraid to use its military strength will promote peace in the long run, and 83 percent agreed with the phrase, "I'm glad that the USA is standing up for rights around the world even if it means taking some military risks."

President Reagan fared well, with 59 percent rating his handling of foreign policy "good" or "excellent," 28 percent "fair" and 11 percent "poor."

Abundant Life

WHAT OTHERS THINK

By Bob Wear

IT IS NORMAL AND wholesome for us to care about what others think of us, but this concern must be tempered with wisdom and good judgment. We can care too much. We must never go so far as to let this desire to impress others favorably become the controlling influence in our behavior. If we do, we will be fragmenting our lives with some dishonesty, some hypocrisy, some boasting, some compromising, and some undermining of our own integrity and character. We can go so far with this that we become the kind of person that no one has any confidence in, no one believes and no one trusts.

WE DO NOT gain the good will of other people by trying to 'impress' them, just for the sake of impressing them a certain way. We gain their good will by behaving in the very best manner. This includes wise use of our power of speech, saying what is appropriate to the occasion and in the best possible way; remaining silent when this is the wise choice; and, in general, being the most worthwhile person we are capable of being.

MOST PEOPLE are not thinking about us, one way or the other; however, the people with whom we are associated do form certain impressions regarding us. This is something that just happens, but is something over which we have great control, and about which we should be sensibly concerned. Knowing that such is the case, we are wise to be thinking, talking and acting in the best way we can. In honestly doing the best we can do, we can let the impressions made upon other people take care of themselves; because they will be the best of which we are capable.

WHAT OTHERS THINK about us should be of concern to us, but not to the extent that we keep ourselves in a sustained strain by fruitless efforts to impress them favorably.

BEING WISELY CONCERNED about what others think of us speaks well for them and for us.

CHILDREN

LONDON (AP) — Car sickness, fairly common among children, can be avoided by taking certain precautions, says a doctor here.

No known taking of a grizzly bear has occurred in the American Southwest since 1935, when a two-year-old was shot in Arizona.

Make sure the children look straight ahead and not out of side windows, says Dr. James Bevan. On long trips, parents should make stops of at least 15 minutes every two hours and should make sure the children eat solid foods. The driver should avoid abrupt stops and starts which can upset the middle ear — the source of motion sickness in most cases.

Travel sickness pills are more effective if the dosage is begun the night before a long trip, Bevan says.

Schrempf angry over lack of playing time

By JAN HUBBARD
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) — As he assessed his rookie season, there was only the slightest trace of a smile. Detlef Schrempf acted like he was joking, but he also acted like he was serious. In 10 words or less, how does he feel?

"Confused, frustrated, angry," Schrempf said.

As Dick Motta assessed Schrempf's rookie season with the Dallas Mavericks, there was only the slightest trace of a smile. Motta said often that he wants to play Schrempf regularly. He has said several times that he would find playing time for Schrempf. But Motta has been unable to do that in the last 31 games.

"I just assume that he hates me," Motta said, smiling, "so I don't like to go where I'm hated."

Joking aside, it has been a difficult first year for Schrempf, the Mavericks' selection with the eighth pick in last year's NBA draft.

The 6-10 forward-guard was rated by some scouts as the third or fourth best player in the draft, yet in the last 30 games or so, Schrempf has averaged barely more than five minutes a contest, sitting out 16 of the games entirely.

At the time he made his assessment of life so far in the NBA, he had seen action in only one of the Mavericks' last seven games.

"Not knowing why you don't play at all, that's probably the hardest part," Schrempf said. "It's so much different when I started. I was playing a lot of minutes, and now I'm not playing any more."

Why? The Mavericks' record is a good indicator. When Motta was trying to go with his 10-man rotation early in the season, and often playing Schrempf ahead of Jay Vincent or Dale Ellis, the Mavericks struggled. They were 19-21 at the point that Motta tightened the rotation, sending Schrempf to the bench and challenging his veterans to produce.

Since then, the Mavericks are 20-11. They have won 10 of the last 13. Schrempf's inexperience was not the sole cause of the Mavericks' early-season problems, but there is little doubt that the veteran players have responded to increased playing time. Many feel the Mavericks are now playing the best basketball in the six-year history of the franchise.

Schrempf said he is aware of that, which is why he has not complained publicly. The inactivity has disappointed him, but he has not done anything drastic, such as demand a trade.

"I don't want to do anything to hurt the team. This year is almost over, and I don't think I can change a lot of things by saying things I might regret later on," Schrempf said.

"But next year, I definitely won't be quiet about it any more. If nothing happens in the off season, I'm definitely going to make some suggestions that might include me or someone else. Something has to be done."

Sam Jones, a former star for the Boston Celtics, played 12 seasons for that team and fouled out of only five games.

Motta agrees. "We've taken players (in the draft) that we have known were the best player (available), knowing full well that one day there would be a major trade that would bring us something," Motta said.

"Now is not the time to talk about next year, but I'm sure there are going to be some things done to get him some playing time."

Until next year, however, Motta said Schrempf has to live with his status.

"It's tough on him, but it's not the end of the world. It's like we've said all along. He's behind Ro (Blackman), and he's behind Mark (Aguirre), and no matter how you cut it, that's where his position is going to be — off guard or small forward," Motta said.

"(Right now) he's not as good as Mark, and he's not as good as Ro. We can't do anything about that. Gary Hogeboom can't do anything about being just a little under Danny White. I still think he has All Star potential, (but) my main obligation now is to win games," Motta added.

"When we were using him too much early, we were losing games and I lost (production from) Jay, and I lost (production from) Dale, because they knew way down deep that they should have been in the game first and they weren't. He's had a lot of chances."

Motta said Schrempf is trying hard to adjust and that he admires him for that, but insists he is not ruining him.

"You don't ruin a guy by sitting him on the bench for a while. More than anything, you test his competitiveness, and he's starting to respond in practice to Mark. He wasn't earlier," Motta said.

"I'd rather have him suffer a little bit now, because it will be amazing how soon he forgets how he was dumped on when he starts playing and gets into the rotation."

Until then, Schrempf will have to sit, and steam silently.

"It might make you a tougher person to sit on the bench, but it will not make you a better player," Schrempf said.

"Not playing also really hurts your confidence. I had my confidence up, but now I'm not playing at all, and I'm wondering why I'm here. I see other teams where people are playing, and I thought I was a better player than them. But they get a lot more minutes than I do, and that really hurts."

He added, "But we're successful right now, and I'm not complaining. I'm just waiting for my chance."

When Sir Barton won the 1919 Kentucky Derby the winner's purse was $20,285. Seattle Slew earned $214,700 in 1977. Both horses were Triple Crown champions.

For Texas Rangers

Pete Incaviglia is rookie phenom

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — This year's spring training phenom is Pete Incaviglia, a 22-year-old outfielder who is about to join the New York Yankees' Dave Winfield and Atlanta's Bob Horner as the only active players to jump directly from college to the major leagues.

Incaviglia, who has been named the Texas Rangers' right fielder, hit two more home runs Tuesday, one of them traveling an estimated wind-aided 600 feet, as the Rangers trounced the Cincinnati Reds 14-5 in an exhibition game.

"I really don't even think about that," Incaviglia said of his new status. "I just came here to make this ballclub and help this ballclub win."

Incaviglia, who set NCAA records with 48 home runs and 143 RBIs last season while leading Oklahoma State to the College World Series, is hitting .342 this spring — 13 for 38 — with a double, five homers and 13 RBIs in eight games.

"There was no doubt in my mind (that he could make the team)," Incaviglia said. "But I didn't want to come here and step on anybody's toes. If I can fit in with Larry Parrish, Gary Ward, Pete O'Brien and Oddibe McDowell and help this team win, that's all I want."

Not quite. "I want to hit 30 to 40 home runs and drive in 100 runs," he added. "That's what I'm here for."

Incaviglia hit his home runs in the seventh and eighth innings after Larry Parrish capped a seven-run fourth against Mario Soto with a three-run shot. Before Parrish unloaded, Soto walked in two runs and O'Brien hit a two-run double. Curtis Wilkerson also homered for Texas and Eric Davis hit one for Cincinnati.

Before the game, the Rangers learned that knuckleballer Charlie Hough, who had been scheduled to start the season opener against Toronto, suffered a broken little finger on his right hand. Valentine said Hough was injured while shaking hands with a friend and will be out for three weeks. Rookie Jose Guzman was named to replace him on opening night.

NIT championship game is tonight

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wyoming and Ohio State will be meeting on a basketball court for the first time in 41 years when they decide the championship of the 49th National Invitation Tournament.

Whether the Buckeyes win or lose tonight, it will cap the 10-year Ohio State coaching career of Eldon Miller, who was fired Feb. 3, effective at the end of the season. Miller already has been hired by Northern Iowa, while Gary Williams will be Miller's replacement at Ohio State.

"Winning would be a great way to end my career as a Buckeye," Miller said Tuesday. "Winning your last game of a season is a great feeling."

But Miller said he has thought little about the end of his Ohio State tenure. "I have no special emotion about this being my last game other than wanting to win this tournament and knowing that my players want to win it," Miller said. "I recruited these kids and want them to get everything out of the game that they can."

In the first and only meeting between the two teams, on Jan. 5, 1945, Ohio State won 42-36. Based on Monday night's semifinals at Madison Square Garden, the two teams might have that many points by halftime in tonight's championship game.

Ohio State whipped Louisiana Tech 79-66 and Wyoming defeated Florida

The coach at Riverdale High School in the comic strip, Archie, is Coach Cleats.

67-58 in games that saw both winners dominate the opposition inside.

Brad Sellers, who plays forward at 7-foot while shorter but heavier Keith Wesson and Clarence McGee share the center spot, had 23 points, 13 rebounds and nine blocked shots for Ohio State. Guard Dennis Hopson also had 23 points for the Buckeyes.

Broad-shouldered sophomore guard Fennis Dembo had 23 points on 10-for-15 shooting for Wyoming, with nearly all of his field goals coming inside against a Florida team with no player taller than 6-7. Eric Leckner, a 6-11 center, added 19 points and 12 rebounds for the Cowboys.

Wyoming Coach Jim Brandenburg calls Ohio State "a typical Big 10 team — big, strong and aggressive." Miller agrees that the game will be aggressively played, but he says the Big Ten's reputation for toughness is overblown.

The only college basketball team to win the NCAA and the NIT tournaments in the same year was City College of New York in 1950.

Wilkins returns, leads Hawks past Cavaliers

By The Associated Press
Dominique Wilkins, who missed Atlanta's previous game because of food poisoning, returned to action and gave the Cleveland Cavaliers a touch of indignation.

The NBA's second leading scorer tallied 34 of his 36 points in the first three quarters as the Hawks defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 97-91 Tuesday night. The setback sliced Cleveland's lead in the race for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot to 1½ games over Chicago, which defeated New York 111-96, and Indiana, which was idle.

"I was very surprised. When the game started I was in my rhythm and felt very good," Wilkins said. It also another was business as usual for the Sacramento Kings, who climbed out of the Midwest Division cellar by recording their 11th consecutive Tuesday night home-court victory, a 116-99 rout of the Portland Trail Blazers.

Elsewhere, it was the Los Angeles Lakers 121, Denver 115; Milwaukee 118, New Jersey 105; and Golden State 125, Detroit 121.

Kings 116, Trail Blazers 99

Reggie Theus scored 18 points and dished out 17 assists, the most for the Kings in the last 13 seasons. Terry Tyler and Larry Drew also had 18 points each for Sacramento, which moved into fifth place, one-half game ahead of San Antonio in the Midwest Division. Kiki Vandeweghe topped Portland with 23 points.

Lakers 121, Nuggets 115

James Worthy scored 11 of his 30 points in the final seven minutes as the Lakers ended Denver's three-game winning streak over the defending NBA champions. The Nuggets still won the season series 3-2, the only team besides Boston to claim that distinction, but fell 1½ games behind idle Houston in the battle for the Midwest Division lead.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 24 points for Los Angeles while NBA scoring leader Alex English hit his season average of 29 for Denver but had only two points in the final period.

Bucks 118, Nets 105

Craig Hodges scored 24 points and Sidney Moncrief added 22 in leading Milwaukee to its fifth consecutive triumph. Albert King led New Jersey with 34 points.

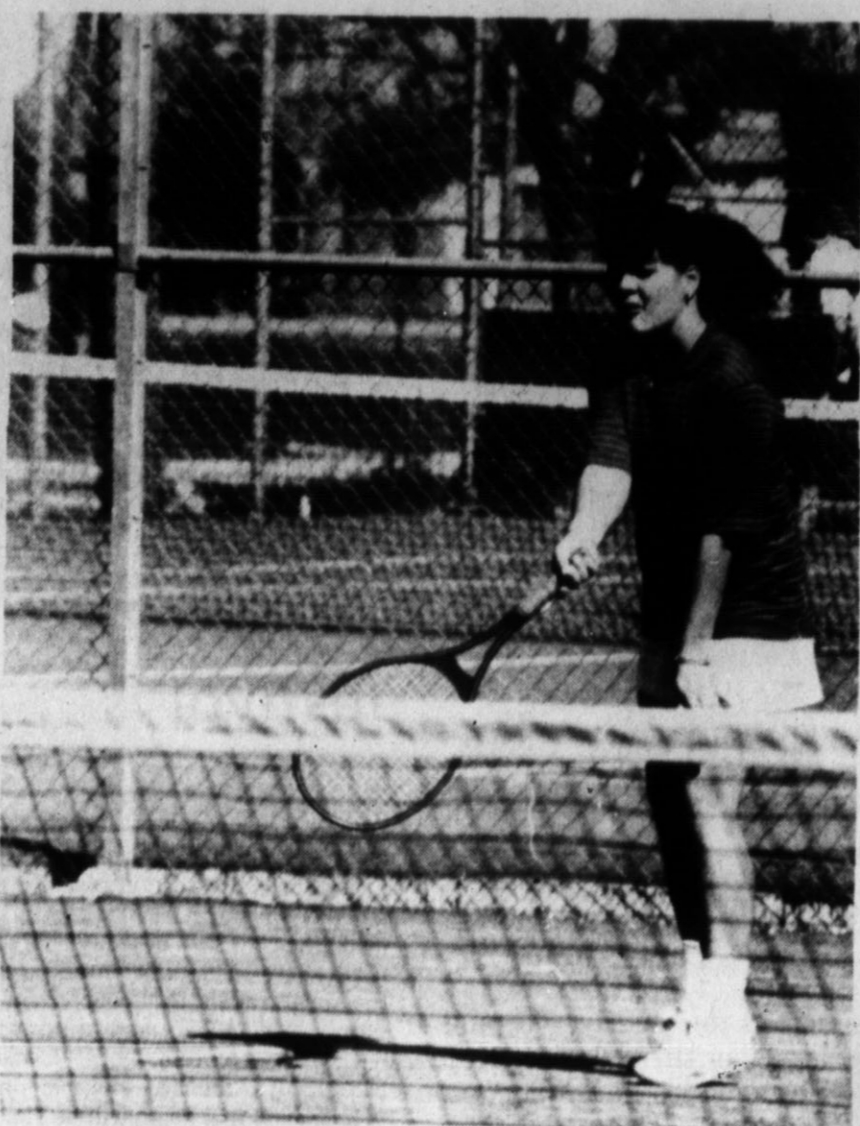

Warriors 125, Pistons 121

Joe Barry Carroll scored 24 points, Terry Teagle 23 and Eric Floyd 21 as Golden State won for the fifth time in six games in a late-season battle to escape from last place in the Pacific Division. The Warriors trail the Los Angeles Clippers by one-half game.

Isiah Thomas, Detroit's leading scorer, played only about half the game and scored six points.

Bulls 111, Knicks 98

Orlando Woolridge scored 22 points, Gene Banks added 20 and Michael Jordan had 19 as Chicago snapped a five-game losing streak. The Bulls, who had a 14-4 run late in the first half, put together a 14-6 spurt at the start of the second half to take a 66-55 lead. A three-point goal by Kyle Macy early in the fourth quarter made it 85-72 and the Bulls coasted the rest of the way.

LIKES EDUCATION

SEATTLE (AP)—Xavier McDaniel, the crack rookie of the Seattle SuperSonics, believes education ranks at least as highly as a pro basketball career. "I need two more semesters and I'll get my college degree," he said. "When I get it, that will be one of the highlights of my life. Even though I didn't get my degree in the customary four years, I still felt proud that I didn't take easy courses just to stay eligible. I wanted to show everybody then and still do that I can be a good athlete and a good student."

St. John's player has decision to make

Will Walter Berry turn pro?

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
Now the decision is Walter Berry's.

Does he stay in school for one last year and make St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca an exceedingly happy man? Or does he succumb to temptation, declare for the NBA draft, take the money and run?

Berry is in the process of sweeping Player of the Year honors. On Tuesday, it was the Eastman Award, voted by the coaches. Last week, it was the Wooden Award, presented by the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

These are the tributes usually paid to a senior, a man who has accomplished all there is to accomplish in college and is moving on to the pros. Berry, however, has one more year of eligibility remaining at St. John's and he says he's staying.

Unless... "It would have to be the No. 1 pick for me to go," Berry said, ignoring the fact that Berry would have to declare he was leaving St. John's by

May 3, while the lottery to determine which team will choose first isn't until May 11. "My decision is made (to stay), but if I was No. 1, that's once in a lifetime."

Berry's thinking is understandable. No. 1 is a flashing neon light, sitting out there promising a fat contract, no small consideration for an inner city kid who grew up poor.

The NBA allows players with college eligibility remaining to declare themselves eligible for the draft. The league does not require any credentials beyond athletic ability, something Berry has possessed since the days when he wore basketball legends in New York City schoolyards. He was called "Return of the Jedi," then, a nickname teammate Shelton Jones simplified last year to "The Truth."

And the truth is that Walter Berry cannot anticipate being the No. 1 pick in the draft. Not right now, at least, according to NBA super scout Marty Blake.

"He's not ready to play at our level yet," Blake said. "He'd better stay in school, work on his outside shot, handling the ball, shooting the jumper. Walter is an inside player right now. He can't do that in pro ball."

Holy Cross Coach George Blaney, a director of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, presented Berry with his latest award and offered a little advice to go along with it. "You're only a college senior once," he said. "I have a feeling that the guys who stay (for their final year) do better in the long run. They're not consumed by money. They're consumed by the game."

LaRouche candidates getting new attention

AUSTIN (AP) — The Lyndon LaRouche wing of the Democratic Party, fresh from two stunning upset wins in Illinois, is guaranteed at least two wins in the Texas Democratic primary in May.

Two Houston congressional candidates who support LaRouche's ultra-conservative views are unopposed for the nomination to run against incumbent Republicans in strong GOP districts.

In all, the LaRouche faction has about 200 candidates — a dozen congressional contenders, four for the Legislature, one for agriculture commissioner and a slew of local party position hopefuls.

State Democratic Chairman Robert Slagle of Sherman wants to make sure that "regular" Democrats know who the LaRouche backers are. So this week, he is sending out 18,000 copies of a list of the LaRouche candidates, who he says are not "real Democrats."

The list will include a message, Slagle said Tuesday.

"I'm not going to call anybody a lunatic fringe," he said. "But I'm going to describe what it is they say and I'm going to say I don't think it's healthy."

Slagle is wary of a replay of the Illinois primary in which LaRouche candidates were nominated for lieutenant governor and secretary of state, forcing Democratic gubernatorial nominee Adlai Stevenson III to consider a third-party race that will put some distance between him and the LaRouche people.

Slagle said Texas Democrats better vote for something more than just names on the ballot.

"Unless you know who it is you are voting for against an incumbent, you better vote for the incumbent," he said.

A top LaRouche backer in Texas said Slagle's decision to mail the list "smacks of Stalinism."

"But I thank him for sending out our names," said Harley Schlanger of Houston, a congressional candidate. "We've never hidden. Our candidates run as open LaRouche candidates."

Agriculture commissioner candidate Noel Cowling of Dublin is the only LaRouche candidate for a statewide post. He faces Democratic incumbent Jim Hightower, in the primary.

LaRouche congressional candidates Harry Kniffen and Susan Director of Houston are unopposed on the Democratic ballot. Kniffen will face incumbent Republican Bill Archer and Ms. Director will face Republican Tom DeLay of Sugar Land.

All of the LaRouche candidates, except Clyde Riddle Jr. of Dallas, are on the Democrats' ballot. Riddle is seeking the GOP nomination for the seat now held by Republican Dick Arme of Denton.

Slagle says the LaRouche people are not "real Democrats" because they refuse to back the party's nominees.

"They said they were Democrats in 1984, but I saw them out there with their bullhorns hollering at Democratic crowds about Ted Kennedy and Walter Mondale," said Slagle.

Schlanger is upset at Slagle's suggestion that LaRouche backers are not "real Democrats."

"Who is he to determine that? Since he's been chairman there have been fewer and fewer Democratic voters. Instead of opening up a dialogue with us he is saying, 'These people are not real Democrats,'" he said.

Slagle's list will be part of a regular mailing to about 18,000 party officials in Texas.

Schlanger, southwest coordinator for LaRouche's National Democratic Party Committee, said he hopes Slagle "doesn't re-tell the same lies and slanders that some of the media have been putting out.

"The ridiculous charge that LaRouche is an anti-Semite. I'm Jewish. Nowhere have I seen evidence that Mr. LaRouche is an anti-Semite," he said.

Schlanger sought the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate in 1984, but drew only 13,000 votes in finishing sixth in a field of six. He sees more Texas being more receptive to LaRouche ideas this year.

LaRouche blames many of the nation's economic woes on a conspiracy of bankers. The LaRouche backers also support nationwide screening for AIDS, and a quarantine of AIDS patients.

Flood named to honor roll

The College of Business Administration at the University of Texas at Austin named 1,004 students to its 1985 fall semester honor roll.

Ernest Dion Flood of Route 4 was among students named to the list.

To qualify for the business administration honor roll, a student must have carried 12 or more semester hours of graded work, passing all courses, and must have earned a 3.5 average in all courses taken (A equals 4 points).

Ganges River pollution from sewage and partially burned corpses makes waterborne disease common, but faithful Hindus insist the water is healthful, according to National Geographic.

Anniversary reception set Sunday

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Dub Curtsinger, 501 W. Third St., are invited to attend a reception in their honor from 2-5 p.m. Sunday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger.

The couple will be celebrating their golden wedding anniversary at the event which will be hosted by their children and grandchildren.

Arts, craft festival is scheduled

On May 31, 1986 during the Wolf Creek Spring Festival at Lake Fryer an Arts and Crafts Festival will be held. The show will be located on the north shore of the Lake across from the Lobo Trading Post.

Only original arts and crafts will be accepted for the show. No food booths will be allowed. The cost for a 15 feet by 15 feet booth will be $15.

All interested persons wishing to reserve a booth for the show should contact E. John Rogers at P.O. Box 1271, Perryton, Texas 79070 or call after 5 p.m. at 806/435-4498.

Other events scheduled for the weekend are a horseshoe pitching tournament, blue grass-country music festival and a barbecue cook-off and bicycle races.

Going for a Sunday Drive

Elaine McNutt and her 4-year-old son, Eric, are going for a drive on Sunday, April 6, at St. Anthony's annual school carnival. McNutt built her caricature booth and will be taking photo portraits at the carnival. The carnival, auction, and bazaar will be held at the school from noon until 5 p.m. One item to be auctioned is a golf cart.

Residents receive degrees

Three Hereford residents were among 1,250 students at Texas Tech University who received degrees in commencement exercises at the conclusion of the 1985 fall semester.

They included Harishchandra R. Patel of Route 1, electrical engineering; Sharon R. Skaggs of 248 Centre, education; and Norman G. Hill of 211 Greenwood, finance.

1040 U.S. I.R.A. or I.R.S.?

With an I.R.A., your hard earned dollars will come back to you at retirement time, along with a tidy sum of interest. Because it's tax-deferred, you won't have to pay on the cash you contribute each year, or on the interest that continually builds up...you'll only be taxed for the money you withdraw at retirement time.

Open your I.R.A. before April 15 and get a break on your 1985 income tax return!

Ann Landers

No one's business

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three cheers for the writer who said people should not ask nosy questions about family planning.

I became pregnant three years after Jay and I were married. When I quit my job a great many people asked, "Was the pregnancy planned?" I responded, "Yes, we are thrilled." Inevitably the next question was, "How long did you and Jay try?" Actually we had been trying for over a year but I didn't think it was anyone's business.

Recently I discovered I am pregnant with a second child. This one was NOT planned. Everyone, from my sister and my in-laws to casual acquaintances, has asked, "What were you using?" It floors me that people have so much nerve.

Last week I heard a woman brag that she became pregnant both times "on the first try." She was telling this to someone who had had three miscarriages in five years. She laughingly added, "Maybe my husband should give yours lessons!" I thought I'd die.

Please, Ann, say it one more time. Family planning is an intensely personal subject. It's awful to be put on this spot or given unwanted advice about it. Say so!—WEARY OF LUNKHEADS IN FLA.

DEAR WEARY: What boggles me is not that there are so many brass-plated, four-door clods who ask nunuvyerbizniz-type questions and make tacky comments, but the number of imbeciles who believe they have an obligation to listen to them.

Anyone who asks, "How long did you try?" deserves to be left standing alone, staring at a blank wall.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know remarkable strides have been made in dentistry and I hope I can be helped. Please check this out.

I am a 52-year-old woman who has worn full dentures for several years. I have seen some excellent dentists in both Baltimore and Washington, D.C., but my lowers have a tendency to slip now and then—always, of course, at the most inopportune times.

I've been reading about complete implantation and it sounds marvelous. The thought of having teeth put in my gums, one at a time, and never needing to worry about dentures again would be pure heaven. Would you please contact an expert and let me know if this is a possibility? Also, what about the cost?—D.R.L.

DEAR D.R.L.: Dr. Paul Goldhaber, dean of the Harvard School of Dental Medicine, is one of the country's most knowledgeable men in the field of dental implantation. He told me the following:

Different types of implants are used for different problems. The cost depends, in part, on the complexity of the procedure required.

Your "dream" of having a complete set of implanted teeth and never again needing to see a dentist is totally unrealistic. A successful implant of a single tooth will last approximately five years. Also, you should be aware that risks with implants may include local infection, loss of bone around the implant, and sinusitis or numbness of the lower lip due to nerve damage during the surgical procedure. So you see it is not all beer and skittles, my dear.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Plainview women's club to sponsor Pioneer Round-up

The Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club has announced Saturday, May 17, as the date for the 1986 Pioneer Round-Up. This will be the 58th year the Club has sponsored this annual event, according to Doris Washington, President of the sponsoring club.

The Pioneer Round-Up was started as a method of honoring pioneers of this area. This continues to be one of the purposes of the event, but in addition, it has become an entertainment feature for people of all ages in Plainview, Hale County and surrounding areas.

"58 of 150", following the Sesquicentennial emphasis, has been chosen for this year's Round-Up theme and activities will be held in the Hale County Agriculture Center on the south edge of Plainview. The reception will be held in the meeting room at the Center and pioneers will gather for this at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday morning.

The traditional Pioneer Round-Up parade will roll at 2:30 p.m.

The Saturday's evening's program will begin at 6 p.m. when the chuck wagon supper will be served in the large assembly room at the Agriculture Center with the program to follow.

A square dance will conclude the day's activities.

All local and area people are invited to this Pioneer Round-Up for an evening of entertainment and to honor those pioneers who came to this country many, many years ago.

Texas Indians topic of program

Veleda Study Club members met Monday evening in the home of Margaret Zinser with President Marcella Brady presiding over the meeting.

Roll call was answered with an Indian legend or story. A business meeting was held and President Brady turned the meeting over to Joyce Ritter who gave the program on Texas Indians.

Ritter began her program with life in Texas some 15,000 years ago when the North American Continent was cold and a sheet of ice covered the Northern part of the United States while Texas was a lush, well watered region.

She told of some of the tribes that made their way to Texas and some of the history of each tribe. She said there were a lot of great chiefs but the most publicized and best known Chief was Quannah Parker. The story of his mother, Cynthia Ann Parker, is often retold in Texas.

She said that today, the only Indian Reservation in Texas is the Alabama-Coushatta Indians located east of Livingston in Polk County. Each summer evening (except Sundays) between June and August the historical outdoor drama of the Alabama-Coushatta Tribes of Texas is performed by 60 actors and technicians from the reservation and all over the United States.

She ended the program by saying that the archeology of the state lives in "Tales that dead men tell" and they are told by the things they made, used, and left behind hundreds of years ago.

Members present were Marcella Brady, Juanita Brwnd, Ruth Fish, Marjorie Lassiter, Donna Lindeman, Norma Martin, Joyce Ritter, Suzane Stevens, and Margaret Zinser. Guest were Nikki Lindeman daughter of Donna Lindeman, Taletha Brownnd, granddaughter of Juanita Brownnd, and Audry Martin.

Baptist Women meet

Members of Baptist Women of First Baptist church met Thursday evening in the waiting room of Deaf Smith General Hospital for visitation.

Ella Oglesby, leader of the mission action group, made assignments. The group then went to the home of Bea Hutson for refreshments.

Sadie Shaw and Faye Brownlow were hostesses to Costaline Lee, Oglesby, Grace Covington, Jennie Terrell, Eunice Boyer, Leta Curtsinger, Virginia Curtsinger, Lola Smalts, Leona Sowell and Lola Jewell.

George Washington was elected the first president of the United States in 1789.

Now You're Cookin'

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Greeting guests at the door with an edible Easter bunny, Carol Odom said she had been busy making the bunnies for her little friends down the street.

Odom wasn't kidding. On her table sat two of the big, fluffy white frosted bunnies and she was adding a final touch of licorice for its whiskers.

Being in the Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club, Odom has been busy for 12 years baking, making, and tasting cakes. But cakes are not all Odom does, she makes candy too.

Odom bakes special-occasion cakes not only for a hobby, but also as a part-time job. She's really a cake-baker on the side. "They're really easy to do," she says of one of her recipes. "Because if it wasn't, I wouldn't bake it. I like fast things."

Odom explained that her club, Sugar Works, bakes cakes once a month for workers at the Satellite Center who have a birthday. She said this is their community service project and the workers just love it. The club also bakes for Golden Plains Care Center on special occasions.

Odom said she was retired. But seeing what all she can do with cakes, it's a wonder she can use that term.

"I was a dental technician for 16 years and I decided I would retire and do the things I didn't get to do when I was working," she explained.

Her husband, Robert, is retired from a 22-year military career and is now employed by Holly Sugar as an electrician.

While in the military, the Odoms made their home around the world, including England, Germany, South Korea, Vietnam, California, and New York.

"Of all the places we've traveled, our favorite place is El Paso," laughed Odom. She explained that El Paso was the place where her husband retired and that it was also the only place they were stationed in Texas.

"Too many people, too busy, people aren't friendly in New York, they're belligerent," said Odom of one of the places they lived.

"But Germany was a real friendly country," recalled Odom. "They'll try to help you with the language, what sights to see, and they're just real people."

Odom believes that Germany is the friendliest country overseas. After traveling abroad, how did they end up in Hereford?

"When we started to retire, Roger was fixing to go into junior high and Russ go into high school. We decided they needed to be raised in a small town and we moved to Hereford in 1972," said Odom.

Being an active club woman,

CAROL ODOM... here comes Peter Cotton Tail

Odom spends a lot of her time participating in Wyche Extension Homemakers Club. She was honored as Club Woman of the Year for 1985 and won a first place ribbon for a hamburger cake she threw together at the last minute.

"The Wyche club has adopted this little nanny over at Westgate," said Odom. "She's 94-years-old. She has a niece in Tulsa that's 77 and that's her only relative."

"We've adopted her... I never had a grandmother," she smiled. "Odom visits her nanny quite often. She helps her do her hair, she paints her nails, and reads for her."

"Sometimes we get off the subject when we're reading, but she'd rather visit anyway," Odom grinned.

Odom is also involved in the Extension Homemakers Council and holds the vice chairman's seat.

"We have a meeting once a month and let all the clubs know what's going on in county, district, and state," said Odom.

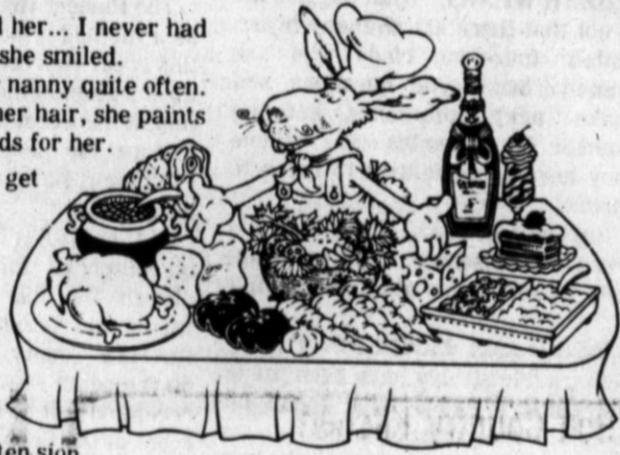

She said it works closely with the Extension agent in helping to give presentations to local clubs.

Hobbies for this lady include caring for her raccoon-looking cat, walking, cycling, and recently crocheting. Her latest project has been needlepunch.

"Needlepoint is done on a canvas, and this is done on material," said Odom. Odom had finished needlepunching a sweatshirt with a star in the top of Texas. She said this was her contribution to the Sesquicentennial.

Among all the business, Odom said she likes to play tennis, but is looking for a "left hand partner." What's this woman's favorite past-time? "Cake decorating is my favorite," she said as she added grass to the Easter bunny cake.

Odom shares a holiday Easter menu complete with bread, braised ham and Easter egg cookies.

'Color Purple' loss bemoaned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Motion Picture Academy's failure to bestow any Oscars on "The Color Purple" is "a slap in the faces" of producer-composer Quincy Jones and director Steven Spielberg, the NAACP says in a complaint.

The NAACP's Hollywood-Beverly Hills branch sent a letter of protest Tuesday to the academy, complaining about what pblcist Connie Watson called a "black-out" — an industry effort to suppress black film projects.

The film about a rural black woman's struggle for self-worth went into Monday night's awards ceremony with 11 nominations, the same number as "Out of Africa" which won seven Oscars, including best picture.

"The Color Purple" failed to win any, tying 1977's "The Turning Point" as the most-nominated film to lose in the awards derby.

A spokesman said the Academy would have no comment, noting that winners and losers were the result of secret balloting by its 4,244 members.

Masons honored by Eastern Star

The Hereford Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star honored the Masons with a dinner Saturday evening at the Masonic Temple.

Members and guests were greeted by the worthy matron and worthy patron. Approximately 50 members and guests were registered by Clara Brown and Norma Coffey.

Tables were decorated with Masonic and Eastern Star emblems and ivy was used as the focal point of each table. The menu consisted of ham, salads, vegetables, hot rolls, fruit cobbler, coffee and tea.

Worthy Matron, Dottie Darden, gave the welcome and Worthy Patron, Larry Knowles, gave the address for the evening on "Eastern Star Appreciation For Masonry."

He stated that Mason Dr. Rob Morris was the founder of the Order of the Eastern Star. He also explained that beginning over 100 years ago the Order has grown to over 112,000 members.

Knowles said that Masons have made America possible by writing into the Constitution of the country the priceless heritage of all men, life liberty and the pursuit of happiness. He stressed, "Never before have we had a greater challenge to work together accepting the responsibility as leaders, to make this a better world in which love for one another may become stronger and be exemplified in our daily lives."

The music was furnished by the Golden Age Quartet composed of Homer Garrison, J.B. Noland and Cecil Eunice Boyer.

In closing Bobby and Bera Boyd sang, "He Touched Me" and an "Evening Prayer" accompanied by Susan Scriber at the piano.

COGNAC, France (AP) — It's birthday time for cognac.

Jacques Martell, director of a cognac firm founded in 1715, says, "Unless our wine can be distilled into cognac by the stroke of midnight, March 31, it misses its first birthday."

He says all true cognacs celebrate their birthday April 1, and it is law that if the wine from the region's grapes is not made into cognac by that time, the brandy produced too late has to wait until April 1 of the next year to be officially registered as authentic cognac qualified for future blending.

For challenger victims

Singer John Denver writes song

HOUSTON (AP) — Singer John Denver has penned a song in memory of the seven Challenger victims and says he hopes to perform it at a special benefit for the astronauts' children.

Denver said the song, called "Flying for Me," may make its debut at the sold-out Challenger Benefit performance scheduled for Thursday night in Houston.

"I would like very much to sing it there," Denver said in a telephone interview from Hawaii, where he was putting finishing touches on the song. The final decision must be made by the Houston sponsors of the benefit, he said.

"I will perform it for them when I arrive in Houston, and if they think it is appropriate, then we will include it Thursday night," he said.

The benefit is for the children of the seven Challenger astronauts who died when the space shuttle exploded shortly after takeoff.

Denver said he had a special attachment to the Challenger crew, especially New Hampshire teacher Christa McAuliffe, because her presence made the event seem so much more personal.

"It was one of us up there. It wasn't an astronaut or a politician; it was another person. That was the incredible thing," he said.

"I knew all of those folks personally but not closely," he told the Houston Chronicle. "Those people signified the very best of America and our achievements."

Thursday's performance is sponsored by the Houston Symphony Orchestra, Houston Ballet, Houston Grand Opera, Society for the Performing Arts and Theater Under the Stars' Humphreys-School of Musical Theater.

The benefit's sponsors say the proceeds will be used to provide financial support and education to the astronauts' dependents and to any others of NASA employees or civilians who are killed or disabled during space flight.

Despite what happened to the Challenger crew, Denver said he still wants to go on a shuttle trip.

The singer said that in death, the astronauts gave the world something it needed — a sense of togetherness.

"For a little while around the world things stopped, and we forgot all about our differences and our problems," he said.

Names in the News

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bill Cosby, who portrays a doctor in his hit television series, will deliver the commencement address at Meharry Medical College on May 25, college officials say.

"We are delighted to have Bill Cosby keynote the important occasion," said Dr. David Satcher, the president. "He exemplifies the integrity, strong character and solid values, as well as the academic achievement we have tried to emphasize in our students."

Meharry, a predominately black school, was mentioned during a scene on "The Cosby Show" this season.

CHOTEAU, Mont. (AP) — It's never too late to stop smoking, says Pulitzer Prize-winning author A.B. Guthrie, who kicked his 65-year-old habit recently at age 85.

"I just got tired of being a slave to it and got tired of coughing, and also I didn't like to spend $10 a week for nothing," said Guthrie, who won the Pulitzer for "The Way West."

Guthrie, who had smoked up to 10 packs a week, quit with his stepson two days after Christmas. Nicotine gum was their only crutch.

"The absence of smoking sharpens your sense of smell and your sense of taste," Guthrie, who lives in Chateau, said Friday. "You relish things more."

DR. GOTT Rare syndrome affects nerves

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do you have any information on Guillain-Barre syndrome? I was hospitalized from May to October, completely paralyzed from the neck down. I still have no reflex actions from the knees down and no feeling in my hands, and my balance is poor. It's a very strange disease; I hope they find a cure for it.
DEAR READER — Guillain-Barre syndrome is a form of nerve swelling that can follow seemingly innocuous viral infections or immunization shots. No one knows what causes it. Some patients have a few mild symptoms, whereas others may be totally paralyzed and require critical care, including assisted respiration. There is no treatment other than supportive management during the active phase. After a few weeks or months, the disease resolves itself spontaneously, leaving no physical consequences.
DEAR DR. GOTT — Can flatulence be cured? I'm in my 70s and have suffered from this irregular condition for more than a year. My diet includes a great deal of bananas, oranges and other fresh fruit, with daily meat and little milk.
DEAR READER — Some perfectly normal people tend to have gas problems. Ordinarily, it is an embarrassing nuisance, but is not serious. Air swallowing, carbonated beverages and indigestible vegetable fiber are common causes.
 I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on digestive gas. Other readers who would like a copy should send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on DIGESTIVE GAS.
DEAR DR. GOTT — Some time ago I had pus in the corner of my eye. The eye doctor gave me some ointment and it cleared up, but he didn't tell me what caused it. I would like to know.
DEAR READER — Eyes, like other organs in the body, can occasionally become inflamed or irritated. When this happens, patients may notice some pus or increased secretions around the lids. The situation is usually self-limited and is not serious. If it recurs, have your doctor re-examine you.
DEAR DR. GOTT — At times the tip of my tongue gets very red and swollen, and then the swelling goes away. It's painful. Is this a sign of diabetes?

DEAR READER — The condition you describe is called glossitis. It can result from any mouth irritation, including chewing gum, smoking and wearing poorly fitting dentures. It is not usually a sign of diabetes. See your dentist.
DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 10-year-old girl and I've been taking piano lessons for six years. I crack my knuckles. Will this hurt my piano playing?
DEAR READER — No, cracking your knuckles will not hurt your piano playing. Some people feel that knuckle-cracking relieves tension in finger joints. The practice can be irritating to bystanders, but, to my knowledge, it is not harmful.
DEAR DR. GOTT — I hear of more and more people who are having distressing reactions to foods, especially when eating out. I've been told there are no allergy tests for this kind of situation. Could you give us some practical advice?
DEAR READER — There are various tests that can be performed by an allergist to determine if you are sensitive to certain foods and food additives, such as food coloring and monosodium glutamate. If you have had reactions to certain foods, try to play detective and figure out which foods caused your symptoms. If you need help, call on an allergist to guide your investigation.
If you have questions about MENO-PAUSE, you can get answers in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

O.K. Neal Suggests

Training Counts

YOUR Justice of the Peace has already been trained by attending nearly 600 classroom hours of schools on all aspects of the Justice Court system. This is important since the Texas Legislature has increased the jurisdiction of the Justice Court every year for several years. As the jurisdiction increases a sound knowledge of the law, as it pertains to Justice Court, becomes more and more necessary. The law requires a Magistrate to examine all requests for warrants and search warrants to see that probable cause exists for the issuance of the warrants. A good working knowledge of the difficult question of probable cause helps to insure the rights of YOU, the citizens of Deaf Smith County. I am proud to have served YOU as YOUR Justice of the Peace for the last seven years. I would appreciate your vote and support May 3rd in the Democratic Primary. Thank You.

Still O.K. for J.P.

Research challenges wisdom

Man isn't made for a diet of high-fiber meatless meals.

That's the crux of research which challenges many ideas entrenched in conventional wisdom about what is, and isn't, a healthy diet. The research doesn't come from nutritionists or dietitians—but rather from anthropologists, who study eating habits of preagricultural man and modern societies. The conclusions are surprising.

"Preagricultural peoples derived 35 percent of their calories from meat. For most of our history, our ancestors were adapted to the consumption of about 788 grams of red meat a day—10 times the amount the average American now consumes." So writes S. Boyd Eaton, M.D. and Melvin Konner, Ph.D. from the School of Medicine and Department of Anthropology at Emory University in Atlanta in the January 1985 issue of The New England Journal of Medicine. This is the pattern, they say, "for which human beings are in essence genetically programmed."

Due to high meat diets eaten by preagricultural man, modern humans evolved a digestive tract suited to foods of high nutrient concentration and low bulk—not the high fiber, meatless meals currently being espoused, contends Marvin Harris, Ph.D., Department of Anthropology at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

But while a diet high in red meat may have been fine for prehistoric man, what about their more sedate modern cousins? How about all the fat and cholesterol red meat supposedly contains? "Despite findings that link the overconsumption of animal fats and cholesterol to degenerative diseases, animal foods are more critical to sound nutrition than are plant foods," Harris writes in the January/February 1986 issue of The Sciences, published by the New York Academy of Science.

Further, research is challenging the notion that animal fat is a dietary villain. "Our data suggest that beef fat may not raise plasma cholesterol. Thus, the consideration of beef fat as saturated appears unwarranted." That's what Raymond Reiser, Ph.D., Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics at Texas A&M University in College Station; A.M. Gotto Jr., M.D., Baylor College of Medicine in Houston and others wrote in the August 1985 issue of The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

What's more, the amount of fat actually eaten may be overreported, says William Rathje, Ph.D., anthropologist at the University of Arizona in Tucson. Rathje studies modern societies through modern garbage and says almost all the separable fat on meat is discarded. However, raw weight is used to figure consumption. "There's no question that much attention has focused on fat as the smoking gun in the relationship between diet and health," the garbologist says. "I think a lot of information used to make these correlations may be inaccurate."

Nonetheless, many are avoiding animal fat. However, Harris cautions to not make the nutritional mistake of reducing consumption of animal foods. He suggests, rather than imprudently giving up the entire animal food package, modern man should prudently trim fat from meat. "It will never be in the best interest of any country to eat less animal foods as a health measure."

In addition to breathing through their lungs, freshwater turtles can absorb oxygen from water by using their mouth cavity in gill-like fashion, says National Geographic.

Videocassette recorders are now owned by one in three households, says Better Homes and Gardens.

If all the grizzly bears in the contiguous United States could stand shoulder to shoulder, they would cover less than half an acre.

Management expert warns Business faces mediocrity crisis

CHICAGO (AP) — Mediocrity is infiltrating American business management, and U.S. companies will lose worldwide competitiveness unless corporations put more priority on employee training and development, a management expert contends.

In recent years, severe cost-cutting and staff-slashing, a surge in mergers and acquisitions, and the "revolution" in computers and data processing have contributed to the coming crisis in management, said David Merrell, a management consultant at Rohrer, Hibler & Replegle Inc.

"If we do nothing new, the consequence will be a cadre of poorly trained, narrowly experienced and hopelessly short-sighted managers," said Merrell, whose Chicago-based firm provides psychological consulting services to industry.

In the latest issue of the corporation's newsletter, Merrell warns that by the end of the decade, there will be a shortage of good, experienced general managers "because they are not now being trained."

Budget-tightening in the recession-plagued mid-1970s forced "most manufacturing and many other industries to cut back anywhere from 20 to 40 percent in the last five years," Merrell said in an interview.

In addition, the growing trend of mergers and acquisitions over the past several years threatens to breed mediocrity, he said.

"Every time you get a merger or acquisition, many top jobs are lost. That cuts back on the number of positions you can move managers into," Merrell said.

Many of those positions also have been eliminated by "the data-processing and computer revolution," he said, resulting in less transferring and fewer growth opportunities for employees.

"Without people getting a broadening of experience, they're not going to have the background, the ability, to do strategic, long-range thinking," Merrell said.

"That means that business could do a poor job of new product development ... and could lose worldwide competitiveness," he said.

To avoid the threat of mediocrity, Merrell said, the companies should re-establish their internal management programs.

"They must do a much better job of assessing, evaluating, picking out the people who have the most potential and then set up specific developmental plans" and training programs, he said.

Industry also should give its managers a bigger obligation to coach and develop their subordinates through fundamental managerial apprenticeship and counseling, not just in technical or job-related teaching, he said.

All managers should be given the responsibility of finding and developing a suitable replacement, Merrell said.

The Newspaper BIBLE

ARE YOU READY?

Be prepared--all dressed and ready--for your Lord's return from the wedding feast. Then you will be ready to open the door and let Him in the moment He arrives and knocks. There will be great joy for those who are ready and waiting for His return. He Himself will seat them and put on a waiter's uniform and serve them as they sit and eat!

He may come at nine o'clock at night--or even at midnight. But whenever He comes there will be joy for His servants who are ready! Everyone would be ready for Him if they knew the exact hour of His return--just as they would be ready for a thief if they knew when he was coming. So be ready all the time. For I, the Man of Glory, will come when least expected. (Luke 12:35-40)

"The world will be at ease--banquets and parties and weddings--just as it was in Noah's time before the sudden coming of the flood; people wouldn't believe what was going to happen until the flood actually arrived and took them all away. So shall my coming be.

"Two men will be working together in the field, and one will be taken, the other left. Two women will be going about their household tasks; one will be taken, the other left.

"So be prepared, for you don't know what day your Lord is coming. (Matthew 24:37-42)

With handicapped child Camp gives relief to families

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A handicapped child who requires constant care can strain parents and siblings, and a special camp where volunteers watch over such children for the weekend is strengthening families by providing relief.

Forty-eight weekends a year, parents leave their handicapped children at Camp Aldersgate. Teen-agers, 14 and up, volunteer to care for the children.

"Many families will tell you how the respite care program saves their lives," said Anale Yarbrough, who coordinates volunteers at the camp.

The United Methodist Church owns the heavily wooded 120-acre camp, which was once a turkey farm. More than half of the $92,000 for the respite care program comes from state and federal programs, the rest from contributions.

Weekend respite care, one of five programs at the camp, began in 1982 after a survey showed that more than 10,000 families in central Arkansas needed relief from the demands of handicapped children.

Children who go to the camp generally range in age from 6 to 16 and are mentally retarded or suffer from cerebral palsy, seizure disorders, autism or spina bifida. Most are from central Arkansas, but some come from miles away.

The children get the constant attention they need and enjoy the games they play and the friends they make at the camp, Ms. Yarbrough said.

Moreover, she said, "By taking the children for the weekend, we give these families more time for other family members. It strengthens the families and gives them a chance to do things they otherwise couldn't do — whether it's going to a Razorback (Arkansas University) game, shopping or to church."

Camp officials tried to cancel the program one snowy weekend last year, but relented when a woman pleaded with them. "She said it was the first time she had been invited by her boyfriend to meet his family," Ms. Yarbrough said.

Julie Mills, a severely mentally handicapped 10-year-old with a speech impairment, attends the camp.

"It allows us to be together the whole weekend, to go shopping at our will or just sit
