Six hurt in Friday wreck

Six persons were injured, four seriously, in a two-vehicle accident Friday afternoon south of Hereford. A 1985 Lincoln driven by Carlos Chavez, 41, of Hereford collided with a 1984 Jeep Wagoneer driven by Samuel Sheffield, 15, of Hereford. The accident occurred at the intersection of U.S. Highway 385 and a county road three miles south of Hereford.

The Lincoln was going south on U.S. 385 when Sheffield pulled out in front of the Lincoln. The Wagoneer struck the right front of the Lincoln, which came to a stop just south of the impact point. Sheffield was alone in the Wagoneer. With Chavez in the Lincoln were his wife, Anna Maria Chavez, 40; his brother, Robert Chavez, 36, of Houston; his father, Francisco Chavez; and his mother, Elija Chavez, 63.

Department of Public Safety Cpl. Bill Scott said Francisco and Robert Chavez were riding in the back seat of the Lincoln, with the others in the front. Cpl. Scott said he was unsure whether anyone in the Lincoln was wearing a seat belt.

All six were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital. Three were taken in Hereford EMS ambulances, two were transported in Suburbans of the Hereford volunteer Fire Department, and another was transported in an ambulance called in from the Dimmitt EMS. Emergency workers, because of the severity of the injuries, were at the scene for over 30 minutes treating the injuries.

Precious liquid flows freely

Hereford water taps supply residents with the precious liquid but depletion of the source is a constant concern for officials. During the 1991 summer, though, demand was lower than the previous summer because of good rainfall amounts.

4-H luncheon slated Sunday at Bull Barn

Some of Deaf Smith County's top young people will be honored Sunday at the annual Deaf Smith County 4-H achievement banquet at the Bull Barn. In the past the event has been held at night, but has been moved this year to Sunday afternoon. Serving will begin at 12:30 p.m. The highlight of the banquet will be the presentations of the Gold Star Awards to a 4-H boy and girl. Also to be presented are the "I Dare You" awards, recognition of state and national awards, and honors for the best record book, top rookie, year pins and project completion certificates, and the "Friend of 4-H" award.

Emergency attendants at Friday wreck scene

Emergency workers help pull an injured woman from a battered Lincoln at a two-vehicle accident Friday south of Hereford. Six people were injured in the wreck. Hereford volunteer firefighters had to use the Jaws of Life rescue tool to get to the five people in the Lincoln.

Fire department plans events

Is there anywhere a youngster who hasn't dreamed of riding a shiny red fire truck? If there is one in Hereford, the chance to realize the dream will come next Saturday.

Between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., the Hereford Fire Department will load antique fire trucks with children and drive them on city streets. The special occasion is the climax of an observance of Fire Prevention Week here which will be highlighted for five days, also, by tours of the fire station by school groups.

"We have more than 600 kids in groups signed up for the tours, starting Monday," said Jay Spain, Hereford fire marshal. While the emphasis is on teaching the youngsters the importance of fire prevention, the fire department apparently does not discount the value of making the education a fun experience, too.

"Every child that comes Saturday with a parent may take a ride," Spain continued. No rides will be given during the weekday tours, he stressed. He emphasized the requirement for children to be accompanied Saturday by a parent, noting that the parent will be asked to sign a release for the child to ride.

The stars of the day will be a 1928 fire truck and a 1948 truck. The '48 vehicle was bought for Hereford firefighting and has been kept in good condition through the years.

But a special story is behind the '28 model American-LaFrance truck. "It's like one that Hereford owned but it was given to us by a woman, Dorothy Griffin, who bought it in Canyon," Spain reported.

The original 1928 truck owned by the City of Hereford was given to Shriners who use it for parades and other occasions.

Although the volunteer firefighters would have liked to have the old truck back, that was not possible.

Spain remembers that Mrs. Griffin called him and asked if the fire department would like to have her truck.

"I told her we didn't have the money to buy it," he continued. "Then, she said she'd give it to us." Spain and his volunteers jumped at the offer.

"I said we'd be there in an hour to pick it up," Spain laughed. For three years, volunteer firemen worked on the truck. Spain said he (See FIRE, Page 2A)

City's water usage down

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Water is a good news-bad news subject in Hereford and, indeed, most of Texas. If there's rain in the summer, the water supply isn't drained. But, if there is little, or no rain, usage skyrockets and wells are depleted.

Municipalities providing water to residents base budgets on projected revenue from sales. If income does not live up to expectations, something has to give.

Such is the case in Hereford. Summer water consumption in Hereford was much lower this year than in 1990. That's the good news, from one point of view.

The bad news -- from one perspective -- is city revenues from sale of water also are down.

Typically, income is higher early in the budget year because consumption peaks in hot and dry summer weather.

"With 33 percent of the year gone, we have collected 41 percent of the projected revenue from the water department," says Chester Nolen, Hereford city manager.

Ted Coleman, water production superintendent for the City of Hereford, keeps a record of average rainfall and water consumption on a monthly basis. He records rain amounts from gauges on city property and averages them.

The difference between 1990 and 1991 is revealing.

A summer of pretty good rain has a profound effect on water consumption and, obviously, revenue.

Coleman's records show that in June 1990, there was no rain to help residents take care of their yards and gardens: City wells were pumped for 213,218,000 gallons of water.

Revenue from sale of water was $152,017 for June last year.

By contrast, June this year saw consumption more than 100 million gallons less than during the same period last year, 112,200,000, with 4.65 inches of rainfall. A corresponding drop in revenue was recorded by the city with billings of $101,281.

July 1990 was wetter than June. Coleman reports rainfall in his gauges averaged 3.1 inches, allowing the city's wells to lower pumping to 152,328,000 gallons, considerably less than the previous month. City revenues from water sales amounted to $135,993.

But, this year, Mother Nature contributed 6.29 inches of rain during July and revenue dropped to $98,290, based on consumption of 131,925,000 gallons of water.

Coleman reports 1.15 inches of rain in August 1990 and 5.62 inches during the same month this year.

Water consumption figures also reflect the higher amount of precipitation.

In August a year ago, the city pumped 133,665,000 gallons of water for customers. Use this year was 105,826,000 gallons.

Water billings this year were $97,908 in August. Revenue for the same month in 1990 was $104,570.

For the three months, Coleman's (See WATER, Page 2A)

Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain checks the bell on a 1928 model fire truck which will transport youngsters on city streets next Saturday. The Fire Department will host an open house from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as a climax to Fire Prevention Week. The '28 fire engine was restored by Hereford volunteer firemen.

VEGAS POKER

EDITOR'S NOTE - If you can hold your own in a friendly poker game back home, chances are you won't lose your shirt playing with the regulars at a Las Vegas casino. And it's the only game in town in which you're not playing against the house odds. Here a reporter with a penchant for poker shoots down some myths.

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS (AP) - You're in Las Vegas. You're in a casino. You'd just love to get in on a poker game. But you envision "Tex" and "Shorty" and "Vegas Fats" seated around a table flipping cards and chips just like they do in the movies. Wow! Are you intimidated? Don't be.

Because if you can hold your own in your hometown Friday night poker game, you can go to Las Vegas and - in LOW-LIMIT play - match skills with "Fats" and "Tex" and not lose your shirt or the proverbial ranch and maybe even win a few bucks.

A little-divulged Las Vegas secret is that live-action poker is the only legal gambling game in which you don't face the house odds that inexorably make the casino a winner and the players losers.

In poker, instead of playing against the casino, or house, you play against the other players.

According to David Hricsina, the poker room manager at Las Vegas' Gold Coast Casino, "The astute home poker player definitely can hold his own against the locals in low-limit play here."

"In fact," he adds, "we have skilled amateurs who come out here for fairly high-stakes games and frequently go home with the Vegas regulars' money."

Many Americans have a falsely exaggerated impression of casino card playing.

In the movies, the "Topeka Kid" pushes a mountainous stack of chips into the pot, takes a swig from a bottle of rotgut whiskey, chomps on his cigar, and snarls, "Well, sucker, are ya in or are ya out?"

The nervous tenderfoot, holding four aces, calls the bet by signing over the deed to his farm and throwing in his faithful dog Rex. The Kid lays down a straight flush - an almost perfect hand and the only thing that can beat four of a kind.

Well, in the true world of legal Las Vegas poker, you can choose the maximum limit you are willing to risk on any given bet. The amounts are written right on a little plaque next to the dealer.

This limit can be as low as $4. That's it, although it can be raised three, or at the most four, times, depending on each particular casino's policy.

So no matter how many thousands of dollars worth of chips "Vegas Fats" has in front of him, in this type of game, the most it can possibly cost you to stay in for a given betting round is $20.

At the "showdown," or final determination of the cards, the winning hand, in Las Vegas' most popular game, Texas hold 'em, likely will be not Hollywood's bigger-than-life straight flush but rather a humble pair of kings with a queen "kicker," or next-highest card.

(Also, in a real Las Vegas card game, "Fats" probably is not swilling 100-proof rye, but is sipping Mountain Valley Spring mineral water - Vegas' answer to Perrier. In lieu of a cigar - now banned in many Las Vegas card rooms - Fats quite likely has a little plastic, battery-operated fan on the table in front of him, to blow away still-permitted cigarette smoke.)

Here's how you get into a game: You go to the poker room and look for the floor manager or shift boss, who generally stands at a podium at the entrance. You ask him what games the casino is dealing - or in local parlance, "spreading" - and what the betting limits are.

Don't be afraid to say you are an amateur from out of town. You can even ask the floor manager if he thinks you ought to play in the game or if he feels the competition is too rough.

You will get a straight answer. Now that you're ready to plunge in, what game will you play?

Forget about those Old West favorites, five-card stud and five-card draw. They are virtually non-existent in Las Vegas. There is some seven-card stud, but "the" game these days is Texas hold 'em.

Yes, this is the big-action game in which the world's top players vie for a $1 million prize in the highly publicized annual "World Series of Poker."

But at some casinos you can play this very same game for limits of $3 and $6.

In a $6-limit game, casinos usually require you to buy $40 worth of chips when you first sit down. If you lose that, you generally can make further buy-ins for just $20.

Now to the game itself:

In Las Vegas only the house-employed dealer handles the cards. And every single hand is hold 'em (or whatever game is being "spread" at any given table.)

A white plastic hockey-puck-like disk that says "Dealer" indicates the symbolic dealer for each hand. In Texas hold 'em, as many as 11 people can play in the same game.

The player to the left of the Dealer disk - the "button" to the locals - must start the action with a $1 "blind" bet, even before seeing any cards. The player to his left then must put in a "big blind" of $3.

This might sound unfair, but that's the way it is. As the "button" circulates around the table during the course of play, each player in turn gets stuck with the mandatory "blinds."

Then the dealer gives two face-down cards to everyone.

The player to the left of the big blind has three choices: He can throw his

If you are successful in your 'friendly' game, you'll probably do well in Vegas. But don't plan on 'Dr Pepper' or any other wild-card games.

cards away, or fold, without paying anything. He can "call" - match the $3. Or he can raise it $3, making it $6 for the next player to stay in.

When all bets and raises have been matched, the dealer sweeps up the cards of those who folded and announces, "Five players," or whatever.

Then we come to the next - and according to many, the most important - phase, the "flop."

Here, the dealer "burns" - discards - one card and then exposes the next three cards from the deck in the center of the table. These cards count in everyone's hand and can be combined with each player's two initial hidden cards.

Now there is another round of betting. This time, though, the player to the left of the button can "check," or stay in the game without choosing to bet. If someone after him bets or raises, he must of course call to remain in contention.

The original checker also can raise when the betting comes back around to him.

Next comes a burn and a fourth upcard in the middle, which also counts in everyone's hand.

The betting pattern is repeated, but this time for double stakes: bets, calls and raises of $6.

Now we come to the finale, the fifth and final community upcard, known to Las Vegas as "the river."

(If a local player comments, "That dude flushed me on the river," he is not talking about some bizarre plumbing assault but rather about an amateur player such as you who defied the odds and made a flush on the final card. In Texas hold 'em, of course, you combine your two hidden cards with the five common cards on the board to make the best FIVE-CARD poker hand - ranging from royal flush to not even one pair.)

The betting unit after the final card is again $6.

A big question naturally is: What are good starting cards in Texas hold 'em?

The best obvious start is a hidden pair of aces. The worst two starting cards, according to computer research, are a 2 and a 7 of non-matching suits.

But - and this is crucial - just because you get a pair of aces it doesn't mean you automatically will win. If the three-card flop doesn't match up with what you have hidden, you must think twice about remaining in the game for further betting.

Suppose you have those two aces, but the flop comes up 7-8-9 of spades. You haven't improved your aces, but someone else certainly could be on the way to a straight or a flush.

Sure, your aces might stand up as the best cards all the way to the end. But as one longtime player cautioned me, "Don't fall in love with 'em, son."

Maintaining your concentration in a Las Vegas poker game can sometimes be difficult.

A scantily clad cocktail waitress is offering you your fifth free drink. A rock band in the casino lounge is belting out "Great Balls of Fire." The slot machines groan "clank-clank-clank." The video poker machines howl "whoop-whoop-bong-bong." Twelve TV screens on the wall are showing major league baseball and horse races for the sports bettors.

What about being cheated? Don't worry.

Video cameras hidden in the ceiling monitor all the card games. And the floor managers are constantly on the lookout for possible collusion.

"Once in a while, we get some attempts at hand tipping," says the Gold Coast's Hricsina. He explains that two players in cahoots signal each other as to whether they hold good or bad cards and then raise back and forth to trap an unwary newcomer in the middle.

Not only will you not be cheated, but you can get up from the table to go to the bathroom or get something to eat, and leave all your chips and even cash right at your spot on the table, and all of it will be there, exactly as it was, when you get back.

There are some cautions for beginners in the world of Las Vegas poker.

One thing you absolutely cannot do - if you get those wonderful aces as starters but have only two $1 chips left in front of you - is reach into your wallet, pull out a $100 bill and say, "Hey, wait a minute. I raise!"

You may only use the chips you had on the table at the start of the hand. But if you get great cards and run out of chips, you still can win something. You do not have to fold.

You bet whatever you have left and announce you are "all in." Your hand will contend for whatever was in the pot up to that point.

Other players who wish to continue raising may do so and challenge each other for extra money, which the dealer places in a side pot. Of course, if at the end another player beats your "all-in" hand, he gets the entire pot.

But generally, in legal Las Vegas poker, you can do almost anything you want.

Some players, waiting patiently for unbeatable cards - known as "the nuts" - pass the time as they fold one unpromising hand after another by listening to music on Walkman headphones. Others read newspapers, but this tends to be frowned upon.

Table chatter is permitted, although there is a fine line between conversation and obnoxiousness. A truly offensive player who uses crude language or insults the dealer may find himself quickly being escorted out of the casino by three 6-foot-5 hotel security guards.

Also, you may quit whenever you want. You won't offend anybody by walking away a winner. To the regulars it's all the same whether you made a killing or lost your stake.

Band parents plan meeting

Parents of all Hereford High School band students are urged to attend a meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the HHS band hall.

All band parents should attend the important meeting.

Boosters ready for more buttons

The Hereford High School Band Boosters will be taking pictures for picture buttons for Hereford High School tennis and golf participants from 7-8:30 p.m. Monday at the HHS band hall.

Others who would like picture buttons made may also attend the picture-taking session. Buttons are $4 each and must be paid for when pictures are taken.

Sophomore supper is Friday night

The Hereford High School sophomore class will sponsor a brisket supper Friday from 5-7 p.m. at the Hereford Junior High School cafeteria.

Brisket and the trimmings will be served for $4 per person. Takeout plates are an additional $0.50 cents. All proceeds will benefit class activities.

Tests begin Tuesday in HISD

Many Hereford students will be taking the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) tests Tuesday through Thursday.

The test will be given to all students in grades 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11. Students will need to bring two No. 2 pencils each day to take the test. The tests will assess writing (Tuesday), reading (Wednesday) and Mathematics (Thursday).

All juniors and seniors must pass all three sections of the test to receive a high school diploma in Texas. Also being given will be the TEAMS test for persons who have not yet passed that test but have fulfilled all other graduation requirements. The TEAMS test will be given Oct. 9-10.

City tackles agenda Monday

The Hereford city commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at city hall.

The agenda includes awarding of bids for cleaning city hall and the police station, and for parking lot resurfacing; fencing of city property; a request for a bingo game at Dameron Park; hiring an engineer for an irrigation system for the "front nine" at the golf course; amending water tap fees; rules for the Hereford Community Center; board appointment; and presentation of the annual audit report.

Police field several reports

Hereford police fielded several reports Friday, including thefts at three convenience stores; criminal mischief in the 800 block of 25 Mile Ave.; a car taken by a "friend" was found near Hereford High School; criminal attempt in the 1000 block of Plains; theft of a tire, worth $600, in the 1500 block of E. First; and assault by threat in the 200 block of Ave. F.

Crimestoppers offers reward

Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers is offering a reward of up to $300 for information leading to an arrest and indictment in the crime of the week. The TNM&O bus station, 923 E. first, was burglarized Sept. 23-24. Taken were a 12-inch black and white TV; a jambox-type stereo; a portable clock radio; and a gumball machine.

If you have information about this or any other crime, call the Clue Line at 364-2583. If your information leads to an arrest and indictment, you will receive a cash reward of up to $300. You don't have to give your name; use a code name or number.

FIRE

has no idea how many man-hours of labor went into the restoration.

Fittings that were chrome-plated were sanded down and the resulting brass was polished to a high gloss.

New red paint was applied to the body by Spain himself and the fire department's maintenance man, Blane Provence did the woodwork.

"Blane did a beautiful job -- he's an artist with wood," declared the fire marshal.

The result is a fire engine that would do any city proud.

Both the 1928 and 1948 model trucks are in the "antique" category but the department has a garage full of equipment to deal with fires in Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Three pumper engines, three booster trucks, a 5,000-gallon tanker, a rescue unit and two Suburbans are in the equipment inventory.

The Suburbans are used to transport personnel to fire sites because regulations limit the number of persons who can ride on a truck.

WATER

records show the city wells provided an average of 4.3 million gallons per day in 1990.

This year, the amount fell off to 3.8 million gallons daily.

City Manager Nolen, who came to Hereford in August from a post as general manager of Harlingen Waterworks in the Rio Grande Valley, observes that a long-range water plan is a goal that Hereford should begin developing.

"We simply don't have a 20 or 30 or 40-year water supply," said Nolen. "And, we do need to look for more water."

"He said there is an 'abundant supply' of poor quality -- brackish -- water but consumers would not be

Sometime after the first of the year, a new pumper is due to arrive to replace a 1958 model now in use.

For comparison's sake, look at the cost of a fire engine in 1928 and one in 1991.

"That '28 probably cost $8,000, when brand new," Spain said. "The new pumper is costing the city more than $100,000."

Groups of children touring the fire station during the week and visitors during the open house Saturday will be able to look closely at the equipment used by the all-volunteer department.

The school groups will tour the station and see a film about fire prevention.

Members of the fire department auxiliary will serve refreshments during the tours as well as during the open house.

Except for the fire marshal and the maintenance man, the Hereford fire department is an all-volunteer force of 32 men who regularly participate happy with the water.

The city also might consider a search for a surface water supply, such as a lake, Nolen added.

Twice each year, Coleman and his assistant, Niles Culp, run surveys on the city's 31 wells to determine the strength of the well.

"We check the water level when the pump is not running and after it's run 24 hours, we check gallons per minute and pumping level," explained Coleman.

The city gets a fair idea of strength of the wells by conducting this survey in September, after the wells have been pumped through a summer, and again in February when the wells have "rested" through the winter.

Chamber plans seminar for disability compliance

A seminar to help local businesses and others comply with the American With Disabilities Act will be held Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The seminar is being presented by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Law Office of Sid Ham, Panhandle Action Center for Independent Living, and the Texas Rehabilitation Commission.

The Americans With Disabilities Act will take effect on Jan. 26, 1992.

The law has been dubbed "the Emancipation Proclamation for those with disabilities," and will provide civil rights protection for some $3 million Americans with disabilities.

The law has five major sections and will bar discrimination by both private business and state and local governments in employment, accommodations, public services, transportation and telecommunications. The Act requires handicap accessibility to virtually every area in which a business or service is conducted.

The seminar will introduce the provisions of the law and help develop strategies for cooperative implementation of the act's provisions through the use of available community resource groups. Economic means of compliance through imaginative business approaches will be emphasized.

To register for the seminar, call the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333.

Columbus' anniversary bittersweet

EDITOR'S NOTE - Though Columbus Day is celebrated Oct. 14 this year, Oct. 12 is the real milestone - the 499th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' landfall in the New World, the start of the Columbus quinqucentenary. But not everyone is in a party mood.

By ROBERT DVORCHAK
AP National Writer

Whither Columbus?
Explorer or evildoer? Discoverer or despoiler?
Nearly five centuries after his epic 70-day voyage, this native of Italy and agent of Spain is at the center of a tricky cross-current equal to any encountered when he headed West to find East in 1492.

Just consider some Columbus Day events this year. Replicas of the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria depart Spain Oct. 12 on a journey retracing Columbus' Atlantic route. In the District of Columbia, a ceremony at the Columbus statue and a reception at the Columbus Club kick off a year-long national observance.

But at sunrise, in another corner of the nation's capital, an American Indian group known as the 1992 Alliance will read the names of native tribes exterminated by sword or disease after Columbus landed. The memorial begins what is called "The Year of the Indigenous Peoples."

This time, it seems, the Indians are ready for Columbus, and they aren't laying down a welcome mat.

"Indians had a lax immigration policy back then," said Suzan Harjo, national coordinator of the 1992 Alliance and a Cheyenne and Creek Indian. She offered this short history: "They came, we welcomed, they killed."

Such are the sensitivities that the national Christopher Columbus Quinqucentenary Jubilee Commission will commemorate, not celebrate, what is called an encounter, not a discovery. Some call it an invasion.

Although Columbus died in relative obscurity, he is the world's best known explorer. More pieces of America are named for him than anyone other than George Washington, including 47 cities and towns in the United States, plus universities, rivers, streets and plazas.

But Columbus-bashers now blame him for genocide, slavery, colonialism, plunder of tons of gold and silver, and environmental destruction.

The National Council of Councils set aside 1492 as a year of repentance and reflection. The discovery of America, the organization asserted, brought "legalized occupation, genocide, economic exploitation and a deep level of institutional racism and moral decadence."

Columbus "makes Hitler look like a juvenile delinquent," said Indian activist Russell Means. "The Spanish conquest must be repudiated. Celebrating it would be shameful and the justification of a massacre," said Ecuadorian leader Manuel Castro.

Indian groups are greeting the replicas of Columbus' caravels with protest canoes, sailing to Europe to discover Spain and grieving the loss of life and lands with periods of silence.

Columbus' champions are pressing ahead with their celebrations. In addition to sponsoring an anniversary voyage that will end in San Francisco on Oct. 12, 1992, Spain is host to a world's fair. Italy also plans observances.

But the anti-celebrations have sucked some of the wind from their sails.

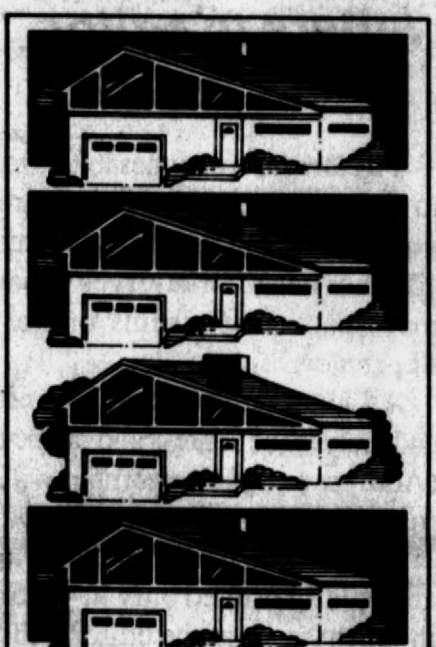

"These groups are seeking to associate Columbus with every ill that has beset the New World since it was introduced to the Old World," said Philip R. Piccigallo, executive director of the Order Sons of Italy in America.

Some scholars see the 500th anniversary as an opportunity to tell the unvarnished story. Maybe it's time to discover Columbus.

"The heat might lead to some light. No one holds the ultimate truth in this matter," said John Hebert of the Library of Congress. "Ultimately, the whole idea about the Leif Ericsson and the Vikings preceded Columbus. Discovery is a debatable choice of words; millions were already living on the lands they found, although Europeans and Indians were equally unaware of the other existed.

And Columbus blundered by thinking he was in Asia when he landed somewhere in the Bahamas. He named the new land San Salvador; the people living there called it Guanahani.

What Columbus did was boldly sail a course that no man had sailed before. In the process, he irrevocably linked two worlds, willingly or unwillingly, that were separated by continental drift eons before. The world is still trying to sort out the consequences.

"Basically, Columbus bumps into a strange place, calls the people he finds Indians, and tells them, 'Don't go away, I'll be right back.' Unfortunately for the Indians, he kept his word," said (See COLUMBUS, Page 5A)

"Do you want a strong and stable local economy?"

The answer to having one is not complicated. What it takes is a thing called local investment and reinvestment - your willingness to keep your savings dollars invested locally, and our willingness to reinvest your savings dollars in backing our High Plains economy. An excellent formula for economic health.

Hereford and the High Plains were built on local money, local money reinvested in our community by local financial institutions like ours, and local money provided by the savings deposits of people like you. Money that did not flow back into our community from the Wall Street stockbrokers, the eastern insurance companies, or the mutual funds!

Everyone wants a strong and stable local economy that all of us can count on now, and that our children and their children can count on for the future.

The concept of "hometown economics" is far from new. It's the foundation we've been building on for a lot of good years, and still the answer to our community's future.

We ask you to always think about investing locally first...and count on us for local reinvestment.

We're "The Bank That Banks With You."

Myths about on many wastes

We've got certain groups in this country who have learned how to capitalize on fears, real or imagined, to make a buck. The examples are as plentiful as federal dollars when it comes to cashing in on the public's perception of danger.

We've stunted the growth of the nuclear industry in this country for 20 years by listening to the anti-nuclear people and the fears they drum up. The WIPP site west of Andrews is a case in point. Millions of dollars have been squandered trying to answer all the imagined problems dreamed up by scientists seeking additional grants from Uncle Sam to research perceived pseudo-problems.

The latest in a long line of scary subjects are municipal landfills--and we've created another industry of experts who are willing to testify at the drop of a diaper, on how disastrous landfills are to our well-being.

But along comes a guy after our own heart. He's America's premier "garbologist"--archaeologist William Rathje of the University of Arizona, who argues that we have more accurate information about the surface of Neptune than we have about municipal solid waste.

Consequently, he says, we continue to make important political decisions on the basis of myths and old wives tales.

Myth #1: Our throw-away society is the root cause of the solid waste crisis.

Actually, the intensity of waste generation, a function of the gross national product and population growth, has not changed since 1970, according to figures based on data from the U.S. census bureau. Moreover, packaging's contribution to the waste stream has been declining every year since 1972. Today, packaging comprises only 30 percent of our nation's municipal garbage.

The truth of the matter is that packaging eliminates more solid waste than it produces. Professor Rathje has studied households in both Mexico and the U.S. and found that--although Americans discard twice as much packaging as Mexicans--Mexicans discard three times as much food waste as their American counterparts. The net result is that Mexican households generate one-third more garbage a day than American households.

Myth #2: Landfills pose a serious threat to groundwater resources. A few do, but most don't.

According to EPA's worst-case scenarios, 83 percent of all municipal solid waste landfills pose less than a one-in-one million lifetime health risk. To put it in perspective, you are 42 times more likely to die from a lightning strike than from leaking landfills.

Moreover, EPA concludes that 60 percent of all landfills pose less than a one-in-10 billion lifetime health risk under the same worst-case scenario. In other words, you are 170,000 times more likely to die from insect stings.

Myth #3: Waste incinerators are a dangerous source of toxic air pollution and generate hazardous ash residues which are difficult to dispose of safely.

Again, the EPA's own data fail to support the hysteria surrounding the incinerator issue. Modern incinerators pose less than a one-in-one million health risk under worst-case scenarios. Regarding the ash issue, the EPA and U.S. conference of mayors recently completed the most comprehensive study ever undertaken to examine the leachate from incinerator ash for hazardous residues. Their conclusion? Leachates were close to meeting drinking water standards.

Myth #4: Recycling can solve our solid waste crisis.

Frankly, this myth is based on wishful thinking and misleading data. First of all, collection rates for materials are misrepresented since 50 percent of all recyclable material collected is too contaminated for reuse. If we collected every material for which recycling is economically feasible and for which there are markets, we would collect only 31 percent of the waste stream.

The fundamental reason that we have a solid waste "crisis" is because landfills, which are the ultimate disposal site for 75 percent of our garbage, are filling up and not being replaced. Why? Because the NIMBY (not in my backyard) syndrome has paralyzed the siting process and created a waste disposal gridlock.

According to Rathje, until we squarely address the siting problem and purge these four myths from the policy debate, the garbage "crisis" will be with us for some time to come.

James Roberts, Andrews County News

William Wayne has little justice

U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler has struck another blow against the victims of crime and in favor of the criminals of Texas. As you may remember, Judge Justice is the federal judge that has held the Texas prison system captive for most of the past decade.

His rulings in favor of inmates have placed caps on the populations of state prisons and required the state and local governments to spend vast amounts of money on prisoner benefits. Judge Justice alone is responsible for billions of dollars of tax money expenditures for such things as law libraries for inmates, cable television systems for prisons, optional work programs and other such changes to the Texas prison system.

At one time, Texas prisons were self supporting, using inmate labor to provide food and clothing for the inmate population. Today, the prison system is a major cost of state government.

Last week, Judge Justice revealed a decision he had made in the Jimmy Paul Vanderbilt Jr. case. Vanderbilt, a former rookie police officer in Amarillo, was convicted in 1976 of the abduction and murder of Amarillo teenager Katina Moyer. His crime was discovered when Moyer's lifeless body was found abandoned on a rural road in 1975.

Twice Vanderbilt has been convicted of the crime of murder. Twice he has been sentenced by juries to die by lethal injection. Following the normal appeals, the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the sentence.

Enter Judge Justice. In 1988, Justice vacated that sentence because Vanderbilt, in the judge's opinion, had not been properly advised of his rights before a psychiatrist examined the killer. Since that time, Judge Justice has been holding the case in his court on a stay of execution.

Now, Judge Justice has announced, in a ruling made Aug. 12, that he is throwing out the death sentence imposed by the courts because Vanderbilt is not a continuing danger to society. Vanderbilt has been sitting on death row since 1976, a very difficult place from which to endanger society.

Fifteen years and millions of dollars of tax money have been invested in trying to carry out the sentence that a jury of peer imposed on Vanderbilt. Katina Moyer's family and friends have relived her pain and suffering at each successive trial.

All that investment of time, money and emotional pain were cast aside in a moment by one federal judge--Judge Justice. That is not justice, it is a mockery of our judicial system.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

During a recent television appearance on KAMR-TV, an EnCoRe spokesperson said the following: "We would like the city (Hereford) to participate in a transportation of the materials (recyclables) to a recycling center or collection point in Amarillo."

The statement proves EnExCoWa's contention that EnCoRe's agenda is to establish a recycling center funded by the city. If it is funded by our city then it would translate to higher taxes and another bureaucracy to staff and manage.

The spokesperson also made reference to the fact that EnCoRe has increased by four times the number of families recycling. We did some quick number crunching and computer analysis and determined that 10 families quadrupled would equal 40 families. Forty families with an average of four members per family would equal 160 people. The percentage of people involved with EnCoRe as a total of the population of 15,853 works out to a factor of .0100927 percent.

Dear editor,

I've been happily surprised at the citizen pride and initiative shown in Hereford concerning recycling. For people to care so much about the future of their community, the coming generations, is not often seen so strongly in other Panhandle towns.

All over the nation, not to mention the world, the problem of too much waste is getting very serious. All kinds of laws and regulations are being passed because of fast-rising costs of decent waste management and full landfills. The matter of health because of polluted water, air and land is finally being noticed, too. I can't imagine any government body not supporting, wholeheartedly, such citizenship among its people. You have a chance to leave something ongoing, worthwhile and community building. Isn't that the heritage which was left to us? Can we do less?

Please support your local recycling group. You'll find it will pay for itself and more in the long run, and you will be giving your children a great example of how good citizen action can make a difference. No opposition should be listened to unless it can provide better answers to serious and real waste problems.

Our policy for letters to editor

The Brand welcomes letters to the editor on subjects of interest to our readers. Short letters are most likely to be chosen for publication, but the use of any material is at the discretion of the editor. The editor reserves the right to edit letters for clarity, to meet space requirements, or to avoid obscenity, libel or invasion of privacy.

All letters must bear the handwritten signature of the writer and include the address and phone number for verification purposes. (Address and phone number will not be printed.) Letters may be mailed to Editor, Hereford Brand, PO Box 673, Hereford 79045, or delivered in person to the Brand office at 313 N. Lee. Letters are usually printed only in the Sunday Brand, but may appear in other issues at the editor's discretion.

Respectfully,

Dear editor,

I am pleased to write with sincere thanks to a firm in your town, Crofford Automotive.

We are Midwest Paint Service from Aberdeen, South Dakota, and had problems with our motorhome. Crofford's repaired our motorhome. When we looked, we realized we were overcharged and overpaid the company, this honest firm realized the overpayment and refunded our money.

It is not often in our fast-paced world that people are this honest. Thank you very much and God bless you!

Dear editor,

We wish to thank Gary Hinkle, owner of Whiteface Ford, for allowing us to use a pickup to go to Lubbock and get a load of food donated to our food bank at the San Jose community.

Our sincere thanks to Mr. Hinkle for his help.

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - For a scandal with staying power, make it mundane - the sort of everyday transgression voters can understand, and resent.

That's why the flap over bounced checks in the House bank is likely to be replayed by challengers in the 1992 congressional election campaign, and in the arguments of the term limit lobby that wants a 12-year ceiling on House or Senate service.

It is the combination of privilege and hypocrisy that makes such episodes into issues. They may not count for much in Washington, but they do play in Peoria.

While settling its own bounced check problem, the House also passed the Truth in Savings Act, requiring clear disclosure of interest terms, fees and charges levied by banks - for things such as checks returned for insufficient funds.

Take it from Rep. Robert H. Michel, the Republican leader, who comes from Peoria: Behavior that shows special favors for some members of Congress is a problem for all of them.

It fits the image of inside-the-beltway standards that makes politicians and officeholders different from the people who sent them to Washington.

That doesn't always register so clearly in the biggest scandals of the time - the complexities of an outlaw international bank, of the savings and loan collapse and bailout, of the Iran-Contra case, even of Watergate.

In those situations, the scandals involved questions and conduct far from the experiences of the average American. It takes an expert witness to explain misconduct in the market for government bonds.

Nobody with a checkbook needs any explanation of a bounced check. And when official misbehavior gets to that commonplace level, it tends to stick.

The influence peddling charges that beset Harry S. Truman's White House caught on with the voters after the "deep freeze" became its symbol. In that episode, a White House aide suggested that a man angling for government contracts send home freezers as gifts to Truman's address in Independence, Mo., and to other top officials.

The freezers weren't as expensive as other favors in the case, but the symbol hit home and became a factor in the 1952 campaign.

The gift of a vicuna coat symbolized the controversy that forced Sherman Adams to resign as Dwight D. Eisenhower's chief of staff in 1958.

The $640 toilet seat came to symbolize waste in Pentagon contracting during the Reagan administration.

The now-reformed travel habits of John Sununu, the current White House chief of staff, fit the same pattern. He used Air Force jets for personal travels, including a trip to the dentist. That registers with everyone who has waited in line at an airport, and everyone who goes to the dentist.

So, too, with congressional pay, now $125,100 a year by separate, nervous votes of the House and Senate. Constituents do not get to set their own salaries, and no matter how much an increase in congressional salary may be merited, it is guaranteed to stir a political backlash. That's been going on since the first one, 175 years ago.

The case of the bounced checks began with an auditors' study of the House bank, operated in a Capitol office for House members and their aides, as a checking account convenience. It isn't really a bank, because it does not pay interest on deposits, and it makes no loans.

At least it wasn't supposed to make loans. The General Accounting Office reported that it was doing essentially that because House members wrote checks for hundreds of thousands of dollars more than they had on deposit, and the bank covered them until they paid up, as much as a month later.

The GAO audit said 8,331 checks written by members of Congress were bounced during the year ended June 30, 1990. None of them were identified.

No money was lost, and House Speaker Thomas S. Foley banned the practice on Wednesday. He said it used to be tolerated, although he tried to forbid it six months ago, and he intends to make the ban stick this time.

So he told the House that members are on notice not to bounce checks, and that bank employees who let it happen again will be fired.

"... A very small issue," said Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., in a world of big problems. But he understood the impact of that small issue well enough to say that he wants a letter attesting that he never was among the check bouncers.

For the average citizen, an overdraft costs money, as much as $35 for a check returned for insufficient funds.

Since the bank had enough money on deposit from members who didn't bounce checks to offset those who did, the episode didn't cost any tax dollars, Foley said.

"But the perception that members have a special privilege which is not accorded to the general public is one that I do not believe should be countenanced..." he said.

Michel added that any indiscretion setting congressmen "above normal citizens... is a blot on the whole House," even if only a few members do it. "So it rangles those who like to walk the straight and narrow around here and do what is right," he said.

"We Care"

In New Orleans, there are some very different cemeteries. They are so unusual, in fact, that St. Louis No. 1 has a ranger that looks like a Greek. This is the oldest cemetery in the city, established in 1789. One is a Greek cemetery with red X's drawn in lipstick or crayon by believers. The X's are a sign of devotion. This is the Greek revival tomb of Marie Laveau, who died in 1833. She was New Orleans' most famous voodoo queen. Along with wishes, people leave many odd things, including coins, unopened cans of beer, candles, and on occasion, a decapitated chicken. St. Louis No. 1 is owned and operated by a Catholic church. It may seem strange that a voodoo queen is buried in a Catholic cemetery but in New Orleans, voodoo brought from Africa and the Caribbean was fused with Catholicism, by many members of the church. Next week we will tell you more about interesting New Orleans cemeteries.

COLUMBUS

Herman Viola, director of the Columbus quincentenary at the National Museum of Natural History.

Columbus actually made four trips to the new lands. He brought soldiers of fortune, horses, cows, pigs, sheep and some unwanted baggage: the black rat, measles, smallpox, diphtheria, the common cold and other European plagues the settlers gave to defenseless natives who perished by the millions.

The Spaniards didn't want them to die, which makes many scholars dispute the genocide charge. They hoped to enslave the natives to work the new sugar cane plantations, ventures that led to the first destruction of the rain forest. But when the natives died, African slaves were imported.

Also part of the Columbus legacy is the change in world eating habits. Explorers introduced wheat and barley while discovering maize, potatoes, cocoa and tobacco. Imagine a world without popcorn, french fries and chocolate bars.

"The essential thing about 1492 is that it was the first step in the unification of the globe," said Norman Fiering of the John Carter Brown Library, the only library in the world dedicated exclusively to the history of the Western Hemisphere.

Just 60 years after Columbus' landfall, historian Francisco Lopez de Gomara called it "the greatest event since the creation of the world, excluding the incarnation and death of Him who created it."

On past anniversaries, the trend was to name things after Columbus.

In 1792, a fledgling republic named the home of its capital the District of Columbia.

A century ago, New York erected a statue atop a pillar of Italian marble at a site named Columbus Circle off Columbus Avenue, and the composer Anton Dvorak honored Columbus with his "New World Symphony." The World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago was called "the jubilee of mankind."

The 500th anniversary includes everything from an elaborate flower show in Columbus, Ohio, to Hollywood spectaculars, TV documentaries and tall-ship regattas.

But the commemoration has not been without its problems.

John Goudie, chairman of the congressionally created Christopher Columbus Quincentenary Jubilee Commission, resigned in December after questions were raised about finances and management.

His replacement, James Kuhn, said plans are proceeding smoothly, and the way it sounds, gingerly.

"We are commemorating the 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyage to the New World," Kuhn said. "What took place was an encounter, but that encounter happened to be one of the most important events of the last 500 years. That encounter led to many, many, many discoveries."

The commission has a Native American Advisory Council, headed by Klamath Indian William Ray. He sees the quincentenary as a chance for Indians to tell their side of the story.

"What Indian people want is a more equitable view of what happened. It wasn't all a great adventure," said Ray. "There are Indian tribes that no longer exist except in name. We want to honor those who did not make it."

And the climactic sermon at Washington's National Cathedral on Oct. 12, 1992, will be delivered by Bishop Steven Charleston, a Choctaw Indian who is the leader of the Episcopal Diocese of Alaska.

"1992 should be a time of very sincere and sober reflection for everyone," Charleston said. "The issue is not the captain, it's the cargo. To simply focus on Columbus is to miss the boat. We need to stop and ask hard, serious questions about what colonialism has cost all of us in human lives and in the environment over the last 500 years."

Levelland hands Herd season's first loss

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces' winning streak was stopped at four as the Levelland Lobos used the wind for advantageous field position early, then controlled the ball in the final minutes to beat the Herd 17-7 Friday at Whiteface Stadium.

Both teams are now 4-1. The game was statistically the Herd's worst offensive showing of the season. Tailback Leo Brown ran for 103 yards on 24 carries, but that was still 60 yards below his average. The Herd totalled only 92 yards, including 8 passing.

Chad Sandoval took all but two snaps at quarterback Friday, and was under nearly constant pressure. He was sacked four times for a total of minus-16 yards, and he completed only 1-of-8 for five yards.

In the first half, Hereford made only two first downs. They had six for the game.

"Levelland played good defense and we didn't execute," Herd coach Danny Haney said. "I'm not going to take anything away from Levelland because they played well."

The Lobos' coach, Buster Leaf, said he was glad to hold Brown to only 103 yards.

"We were very fortunate," Leaf said, because several times, Brown "was one man away from breaking it."

The Herd got off to a bad start before the game even started. Miscommunication between Haney and his captains resulted in Hereford kicking off into a stiff wind out of the north.

"I'll take full blame for that," Haney said.

The two teams traded punts after their first possessions, and that's when the wind came into play.

"It was strong enough to keep the punting game from being effective," Shawn Fogo, Hereford's punter, said. "I wasn't allowed to get any height on the ball into the wind."

Fogo did an admirable job under the conditions; his punts into the wind—"bullets," he called them—were for 33, 34 and 34 yards.

Still, a 33-yard punt from Hereford's own 20 resulted in good field position for the Lobos. They cashed in with a 53-yard drive, 21 of which was a pass from quarterback Craig Black to tight end Jason Edwards. Four plays later, Black scored from 8 yards out, and Jacob Velardez kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead with 2:36 left in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, with Levelland punting into the wind, the Herd had the ball twice inside Lobo territory but couldn't score. On their best chance, Haney went for it on fourth-and-8 at the 19-yard line instead of having Ben Perry try a 36-yard wind-aided field goal.

"I talked to Ben before the game, and he said 30 yards was the maximum for him today," Haney said.

Sandoval's pass fell incomplete, and Hereford didn't get close again in the first half, which ended with Levelland up 7-0.

The second half started with indications that the Herd was going to take control. Levelland's Chris Smith returned the kickoff 38 yards to the Lobo 41, but on first down Herd linebacker Eric Sims collared tailback Esteven Golightly for a four-yard loss, then on third-and-10, safety Richard Sanderson picked off a pass from Black at the Hereford 47-yard line.

"I saw this guy coming across the field. I was going to tackle him, but I saw it was overthrown. I slipped and it landed in my arms. I wish I could have kept my feet," Sanderson said.

The Herd drove 53 yards for a touchdown, all of it on the ground. Brown had 44 of those yards, but his backfield mates were responsible for two important short runs. Fullback Kyle Hansen got a yard on third-and-1 at the 27, and Sandoval got three yards on fourth-and-3 on the 18.

Brown went the final 15 yards, making the last cut after a block by receiver Clay Wallace.

"Clay Wallace had a pretty outstanding block on the outside. I was supposed to give him a 'go' call, and I gave him one," Brown said. "The line did an outstanding job—Stephen Blea, Derek Mason."

Perry tied the score at 7-7 with his extra point kick.

The Lobos promptly answered the challenge. Golightly, who ran for 91 yards in the game, got 25 of that total on the second play of an 80-yard touchdown drive. The big play, however, came on third-and-9 at the Loss may cure swelled heads

By JOHN BROOKS

Well, so much for anybody getting the big head.

Hereford's 17-7 loss to Levelland in the last pre-district game of the 1991 football season should leave the Whitefaces a little less swell-headed than they might have been. Had the Herd been 5-0 going into Friday's showdown with Pampa, well, they might have been a little out of control this week.

"I think this might help us, losing this game," said disconsolate defensive tackle Santos Liscano in the mortuary-quiet Herd dressing room after the loss. "I know we'll practice harder this week and get ready to play some football next week. We want to show them how it's done."

"We just didn't have any intensity in the first half, and, I don't know, in the second half it just went down lower than what it was in the first half."

"We just got beat, that's all there is to it."

The Herd offense couldn't find any answers, either. "I don't know, we came in with the big head, I guess," said Kyle Hansen. "We thought we were ready for them, but mental breakdowns just killed us."

Liscano said the Herd's defense thought it had things figured out after the Herd came back to tie the score at 7 in the third quarter. On Levelland's next play, Hereford forced a fumble that was ruled to have been recovered by Levelland.

"They finally said there was no fumble to begin with," Liscano said. "We just had to deal with it, but that's when we started really going down hill. It was just one of those days."

For those who felt there was no fumble on the play, Monroe Timberlake would beg to differ. "I was on top of the ball," he said.

"I had it between my legs and I was waving at the official to come over and look at it, but by the time the official came over the Levelland guy got it back. I had it, though. I was on top of it."

Another killer for the Herd was a rare defensive holding call. Levelland appeared to have been dropped for a loss, but Hereford was flagged for tackling the trailing back. The back may have been anticipating an option pitch from the quarterback, but was well behind the play when he was dragged down.

"That was critical at that stage of the game," Haney said. "I'm not going to blame a loss on the officials, but it did swing the tide of the game. We didn't take advantage of some things early. But the call was unnecessary, and the way things were going it could have turned the game."

Haney was at a loss for the Herd's lack of intensity.

"I thought we were ready to play," the coach said. "It just seemed to go wrong for us from the beginning. We made a mistake on the coin flip, and I'll take the full blame for that. We didn't catch the ball well and our execution level right off the bat was low."

Haney's major task, the one he has been pointing the team toward since August, is to get ready for Pampa. The Harvesters were 4-0 going into Saturday's game against Gainesville at Wichita Falls.

"This game was important. Every game is important. There's no W or L in the district column yet, and everybody in here understands the importance of the Pampa game."

"I told the players after the game this ought to serve as a wakeup call for the players and the coaches that you stand a chance of getting beat any time if you don't play well."

More yardage

Hereford tailback Leo Brown adds to his already impressive rushing yardage total. Brown, second in Class 4A with 650 yards going into Friday's game, got 103 more against the Lobos.

Lamar's Walters takes over show

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

It was billed as a clash of the state's premier running backs, but Shawn Walters turned it into a one-man show.

Walters, the 6-0, 220-pound running back for No. 1 Arlington Lamar, rolled up 240 yards and three touchdowns on 30 carries Friday night in the Vikings' 30-18 victory over crosstown rival Arlington Sam Houston.

The Vikings, who have not lost a regular-season game since 1988, improved to 5-0 overall and 2-0 in District 8-5A play. Sam Houston dropped to 3-2 and 1-1.

Walters scored on a 2-yard run in the first quarter before putting the Vikings ahead for good, 16-12, with a 12-yard touchdown early in the third period. He put the game out of reach on Lamar's next drive by scampering 91 yards untouched into the end zone.

Sam Houston's Jeff Godley, who with Walters was named to The Associated Press Preseason Super Team, was held in check except for a 4-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

Oiler receivers pay the price

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Houston's quick but small wide receivers are being forced to pay the price for the quick-strike reputation of the Oilers' run-and-shoot offense.

Oiler opponents are throwing up more zone defenses to protect against a Warren Moon bomb, forcing the Oilers to look for the intermediate routes across the middle, where brave receivers receive the most spectacular hits, their bodies exposed as they leap high for passes.

"Teams are playing a lot of zone and making it hard for us to get up the field," wide receiver Drew Hill said. "If that's what we've got to do, then we got to do it. When one team sees zone working for another team, they're going to do the same thing."

The Denver Broncos, off to a 4-1 start after finishing 5-11 last season, likely will use zone coverage against the Oilers in Sunday's noon kickoff in the Astrodome.

"All of us would rather run down the field and catch a long touchdown bomb," Hill said. "But it's our job to take what we can get and right now they are trying to take away the big play."

The Oilers, 3-1, following a 24-20 loss to New England and an open date last week, have seen all kinds of defenses thrown up to stop the run-and-shoot.

Force-the-receivers-over-the-middle-and-bash-them seems to be the current trend.

"That's always been a defensive philosophy, there just seems to be more of that going around now than usual," Oilers coach Jack Pardee said. "But if everybody's ganging up on somebody inside, we should be having someone who won't be taking a hit."

"We shouldn't have to throw into a crowd all the time."

Wide receiver Ernest Givins has been somersaulted by defensive backs many times but he keeps coming back over the middle when called.

"Sure, it's a sacrifice, but that's what we have to do to move the ball," Givins said. "Sometimes we can catch them deep and sometimes not. We all like to catch the bomb but we know it's not always going to be there."

Moon doesn't think the Oilers will see extensive zone defenses the rest of the season.

"A lot of teams tried to do that last year and they were unsuccessful," Moon said. "We know those guys are going to get pounded from different games, but most teams will play what they do best. If they are a man team, that's what they are going to play or zone the same way."

"Denver is a lot of zone. They'll play some man but like to play zone most of the time."

The Oilers rank No. 2 in the NFL in passing offense, but the running game, among the league leaders after the first two weeks, has dropped No. 11. Allen Pinkett will share playing time against Denver with Lorenzo White, getting back into shape after missing training camp as a contract holdout.

Denver is tied for 12th in the league in total defense but the Broncos lead the league with nine interceptions, three each by safeties Steve Atwater and Dennis Smith, which ties them for the league lead.

Coach Dan Reeves has found success in allowing quarterback John Elway to call his own plays and Gaston Green has been an outstanding replacement for holdout Bobby Humphrey at running back.

Green rushed 158 yards in last week's 13-9 victory over Minnesota and he has three 100-yard games this season.

"It's the first time since I've been here that we had a big play back in the backfield that can go 80 yards," Elway said of Green. "Bobby Humphrey was a great running back, but he was a slasher, a 30-yard guy that was never going to break the big play."

Astros imitate Braves in rebuilding with youth

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros have a secondhand blueprint for regaining their status as contenders in the NL Western Division.

The Atlanta Braves already have used it to go from last place to star status in one year.

Manager Art Howe doesn't want the significance of what the Braves have done this season to be lost on his young team as they close out their 1991 season in the cellar vacated by the Braves.

"I want our guys to realize what can happen in a short period of time," Howe said. "I think what they've done is kind of exciting for everyone, especially for us. They basically built from within to turn things around, just like we expect to do."

Despite the Astros' lowly finish, there is an air of optimism going into the off-season. Although the Astros are realistically more than a year away from contention, they aren't conceding next season either.

"I don't know if we're a year away," catcher Craig Biggio said. "They need to make a couple of moves. The main thing is we keep everything together and we get a couple of players."

The surprising development of pitcher Pete Harnisch, first baseman Jeff Bagwell, left fielder Luis Gonzalez and Steve Finley's play in center field, helped the Astros provide an entertaining lineup despite their finish.

"We've come a long way and answered a lot of questions," Howe said. "I'm very proud of the way we played this year. I think we have a few additions to make and then we'll be a fine club."

The question hardly needed to be asked, and Howe didn't require time to think when asked the club's top priority in 1992:

"Closer, closer, closer," he said. The Astros' final home series against Atlanta provided a good example of Howe's frustration.

The Astros took leads into the late innings of the first two games of the series, only to have the bullpen allow the Braves to rally to victory.

Mark Portugal moved from starting pitcher to closer with mixed results, and Howe spent most of the year trying to find the solution.

The Astros lost 45 per cent of their games by two or fewer runs this season.

"You're absolutely right that's too many," Harnisch said. "I don't want to go through another year of learning how to lose. I want to win."

Harnisch was often the victim of poor run support.

Bagwell may be the biggest success story of the newcomers. He adjusted from Class AA to the major leagues and switched from third base to first base the week before the season opened.

He adapted immediately to his new position and was among the team leaders in hitting most of the year. His 13-game hitting streak was the longest on the team all season.

"I think I made great progress in the outfield this year and remember we had guys like Jeff and myself in new positions," said Gonzalez, who moved from first base to the outfield. "We were expected to lose but this team has been aggressive all year and we've played hard."

Second baseman Casey Candaele thinks the next step for the young club is to forget about the losses this season.

"Individually, the young guys got experience and that's good," Candaele said. "But I think we need to come back and win ball games next year and not let people tell us we're a young team."

"We're here now and we don't like to lose."

Dave Meggett of the New York Giants led the National Football League in punt return yardage in 1990 with 467 yards on 43 tries.

Burglars Do Windows

The advanced SX-V Security System stops burglars in their tracks. Miniaturized sensors guard doors and windows.

The system is monitored 24-hours-a-day. In case of break-in or fire, the SX-V sounds the alarm and emergency help is summoned.

It's effective, easy-to-operate and affordable. It's also wireless, so it doesn't require costly, complicated installation.

Farm and Ranch

Computer data is help with irrigation

By STEVE HILL

As water becomes more precious, irrigation decisions become more difficult. That's when the farmer can turn to an increasingly useful agricultural tool—computer-generated data—for help.

Three Texas A&N researchers have developed a computer model that helps farmers decide when to irrigate sorghum and corn on the Texas High Plains. The model is especially helpful in drier seasons, when expensive well water must replace rainfall and when farmers can't keep up with their crops' water needs.

Dr. Ronald Lacewell and Dr. James Mjelde of Texas A&M's department of agricultural economics and department graduate student Kelly Bryant developed the model for a specific regional application, but say the technology can be used for many crops and regions if the proper field data is available.

"The next big opportunity to be more efficient with water is management," said Lacewell, a professor in the department. "We've got great equipment. Where we haven't done what we can in management, which is knowledge-and information-based."

When they actually put their model through its paces, it told them what common agricultural wisdom already had: that in drier years, if a farmer has both corn and sorghum crops that must compete for water, costly irrigation will bring a bigger net return in corn crops.

That, however, is assuming equal soil water conditions for both crops. If sorghum fields are drier than corn fields, the net return on irrigation in drier years would be higher for sorghum, the group concluded.

"Everybody already knew that; Kelly quantified it," Lacewell said.

Corn, for instance, is particularly susceptible to stress if it suffers a lack of water at the times it grows tassels and silk and when its grain fills out.

Lacewell said Bryant came to his general conclusions after randomly trying different irrigation strategies, which included decisions of whether or not to irrigate in each of 15 different growing stages for each crop in a single season. Farmers in the High Plains must, in essence, decide every five days during the growing season whether or not to irrigate a crop.

Because there are so many stages and two crops, there would actually be 32,768 possible outcomes, or irrigation decisions, but Lacewell said the random generation of 200 strategies gives an accurate range of real outcomes.

They got their base data from three years of corn crops in Bushland, Texas, as well as one year of records from sorghum crops in Bushland. They then used the computer program EPIC, or Erosion Productivity Impact Calculator, to generate data on how corn and sorghum would be expected to do in the High Plains.

EPIC was developed in the mid-

1980s, primarily by U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers in Temple. It has found various applications with "well over 500 current users," said Paul Dyke, a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researcher in Temple who helped develop EPIC.

Farmers recognize federal acronyms

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government commodity programs are sprinkled with abbreviations and acronyms that only a bureaucrat could love. But generations of farmers also know them as part of the business.

The Agriculture Department itself - properly, the U.S. Department of Agriculture - is known to virtually every supermarket meat buyer as USDA, although years ago some called it DOA.

Farmers deal with ASCS offices to get price support loans from the CCC. That's a shorthand way of saying the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Commodity Credit Corp.

Now, the department has a new plaything, an acronym called FACT. That is the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act; or the 1990 farm law; or farm bill, which became technically improper after it was signed by President Bush last Nov. 28.

Within FACT, a farmer might be told at the local ASCS office, is a program for idling a share of crop acreage to qualify for CCC price support benefits. The idling requirement depends on the ARP, or Acreage Reduction Program, for a particular crop.

Not to get too confusing, it is sufficient to note that FACT also has authority for a TOP, PLD, FOR and FSWR. And that's just in the part covering commodity programs.

Under conservation, one of the humdingers is the ECARP, or Environmental Conservation Acreage Reserve Program, which includes the Conservation Reserve Program, CRP, and the Wetland Reserve Program, or WRP.

Then there's the AWOPP. It is the Agricultural Water Quality Protection Program. And it has an optional IFM, or Integrated Farm Management option.

The conservation portion of FACT also has an EEP, or an Environmental Easement Program. But there is also an EEP, Export Enhancement Program, in the trade part of the law, not to mention an MPP, or Market Promotion Program, which replaced the old TEA, or Targeted Export Assistance.

Of course, in USDA's Food Safety and Nutrition Service (FNS) food stamp operations are going to be streamlined one day by an Electronic Benefit Transfer system, or EBT.

Still, the FNS administrators direct food aid, such as WIC supplemental feeding for babies and mothers, and a newly structured EFAP, or Emergency Food Assistance Program converted from TEFAP, which was the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program.

Plenty is left among other department agencies and offices such as the ACS, AMS, APHIS, ARS, CSRS, EAS, EMS, ERS, ES, FAS, FmHA, FCIC, FGIS, FS, FSI, NAL, NASS, OAE, OCA, OE, OFM, OGC, OICD, OIG, OPA, OT, PSA, REA, SCS, SEC and WAOB.

State, federal, local agencies join private sector in program

More than 50 representatives from federal, state, and local government and the private sector have joined together to organize the Texas Federal Rural Development Council.

Its purpose is to provide an institutional framework within which federal government resources can be used in combination with resources from state and local governments, private sector organizations, non-profit and charitable groups, to promote rural development in Texas.

One of its first tasks is to inventory federal government resources that are available to address rural development needs, renew and catalogue other resources available to the public, private, and non-profit sectors and identify potential partnership opportunities among the various organizations involved with rural development.

The council will assess rural economic development problems in various regions of the state and develop a strategy to achieve long-term rural development throughout Texas in collaboration with state, local, and private sector organizations.

The Texas council is one of eight pilot state projects which have been organized pursuant to the Presidential Initiative on Rural Development. Stressing the importance of the Initiative on Rural Development, President Bush observed, "We have long recognized the needs of our cities, but now is the time to refocus our attention on the heart of America. Economic redevelopment in rural areas is not just about numbers and statistics and bushels of grain—it's, about hardworking, dedicated people who simply need to the benefit of sound government policies to help them to help themselves."

Thirty members of the Texas Federal Rural Development Council representing Federal, state, and private sector organizations attended the National Rural Economic Development Institute in New Orleans on March 3-7, 1991. The Institute was sponsored by a federal grant for participants from the eight pilot states.

The program, coordinated by the University of Wisconsin-Extension Service, was constructed to provide training on the concepts and strategies that lead to successful economic development and an understanding of the diversity in economic conditions and opportunities across rural America.

Farm bank promotes Paul Rudd

Paul Rudd, a Hereford native, was promoted to senior loan officer for the Farm Credit Bank of Texas' new agribusiness loan program.

In his new position, Rudd will be responsible for developing and analyzing agribusiness loan applications and will serve as a resource to the bank's 50 Federal Land Bank Associations and 18 Production Credit Associations.

Rudd received a bachelor's degree from Texas Tech University and a honors diploma from the Southwestern Graduate School of Banking at Southern Methodist University, ranking in the top five percent of his class. He has been employed by FCBT since 1979.

Rudd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rudd of Hereford.

Running stocker calves on wheat pasture?

Now, more than ever, IVOMEC can build your profit

(ivermectin)

At this year's beef prices, every pound you put on your calves is worth good money. And with IVOMEC® (ivermectin) you can put on plenty of extra pounds.

Whenever you have cattle on pasture, you're bound to have parasites. And if your calves have been sold and resold before shipping, you can't know what parasites they've picked up. And parasites steal weight.

But one shot of IVOMEC kills 31 different kinds of parasites—more than twice as many as TRAMISOL® and WARREX® combined.

IVOMEC kills mature and immature worms, so you don't have to use it again in a couple of weeks. And IVOMEC kills external parasites, too. It does it all with just one simple shot under the skin. No wrestling. No Mess. No stress.

So go with your best shot.

Get IVOMEC.

Romo gave his career for SMU

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - A bronze statue would be nice, placed somewhere outside the entrance to Ownby Stadium.

It's the least Southern Methodist University could consider for what Mike Romo tried to do for the school.

He was the one name player the Mustangs had in their death march back from the NCAA death penalty. If there is one victim of the SMU slush fund scandal and all the crooked alumni which burned the football program to the ground, it is Romo, who may never play again after what happened to him against Baylor.

Romo had run 21 yards for a first down; he was always trying to make something happen. Then he was tackled cleanly from behind by the Baylor pursuit.

Romo crash-landed, then felt that pain in a knee again - for the fourth time in his career. He had to undergo surgery for the third time on his left knee.

As a senior at San Antonio Roosevelt, Romo was high on the recruiting lists of passing teams. Brigham Young University was interested. So was the University of Miami.

Then he tore the anterior cruciate in his left knee.

Suddenly, Romo's blue chip was broken.

SMU was in a position to take chances and then-coach Forrest Gregg gambled that Romo could rehabilitate and regain his old form.

Romo thought so too and signed a letter of intent. So the Mustangs had them one "name" player in a recruiting class of nobodies.

"I decided to go to SMU because I thought it would be great to help make them a winner again," Romo said at the time.

Romo did, sort of.

He threw a touchdown pass on the last play of the game to beat Connecticut and directed the Mustangs to victory on a joyous homecoming over North Texas in a triumphant 2-9 season.

Considering Romo had an inexperienced offensive line and the rest of the team was mostly freshmen, experts were amazed SMU won a game.

Romo was sacked so many times he had to have an operation to remove torn cartilage from his right knee following the season.

Two years of absence from the recruiting wars showed even more on SMU last year. The Mustangs surprised Vanderbilt 44-0 in the opener but didn't have the depth to stay with anybody else they played.

Romo, in particular, took a battering. He had an operation in the spring to remove torn cartilage in the left knee.

His offensive line was better this year, but still not the quality of other Southwest Conference schools. Romo was running for his life when he was hurt.

Romo was quality although he didn't have a big arm. He did know how to read defenses and how to hurt them.

But his body wasn't bullet proof. In 24 games, he had already become the ninth career SWC leader in passing yards and third in completions.

Still, he never had the team around him to be able to seriously damage SWC teams.

SMU is still at least two years away in recruiting, maybe more, from being able to compete on a Saturday to Saturday basis in the SWC.

With all his talent, Romo still couldn't take the Mustangs to victory over another league school.

SMU coach Tom Rossley realizes the school has lost its only marquee name.

Rossley said if there was one recognizable name at the school it was Romo.

"He's the one name everybody knew," Rossley said.

Even Romo had a tough time getting fans into Ownby Stadium.

The struggling SMU program couldn't even sell out its home opener against a nationally ranked team in the tiny 22,000-seat facility.

There's hope that Romo will be able to come back for his senior year. But why should he?

Romo said he isn't sure he wants to try for a fifth knee operation.

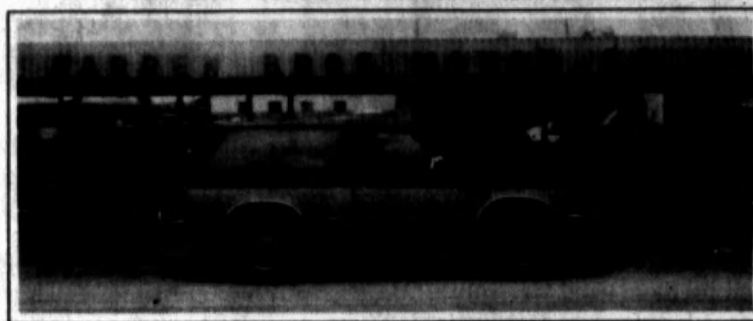

He said he'd still like to be walking when he's 35-years-old.

Romo certainly doesn't owe it to SMU to try again.

But SMU's forlorn football program owes him everything.

Unusual gifts, crafts found at Inkahoots

By DANEE WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

What started out as a wild idea catering to the Christmas shopper looking for the original gift and an outlet for local craftsman has turned into a full-time business.

Elaine McNutt started Inkahoots last October as an outlet for local craftsmen who were looking to show their wares without having to open their own business.

The shop stayed open through Christmas. This year, enough interest has been expressed in the store that McNutt and her new partner Nadine Berend have decided to keep it open year round.

"Last year was our first year," said McNutt. "We had a real good response to the store. Last year, before Thanksgiving, over 50 percent of the sales were to out-of-town customers."

Although the store is run by McNutt and Berend, individuals rent space by the square foot to bring in their goods to sell.

"We lease the space by the square foot and the store gets a percent of the commission to keep it operating," she said. "The people who lease don't work here. Most have other jobs and do this for an extra income-type thing."

Not all items are handmade. Some of the lessees go to market for their goods.

"There are over 30 people involved in the store. We have sales representative from Dallas who have some goods here. Some people have antiques and others sell crafts," McNutt added.

Classes are also taught at Inkahoots.

"Anyone can teach a class here,"

McNutt said. "The store does get a percentage from the classes."

Already many classes have been set. Among those are mum making, duplicate stitch, smocking, French hand-sewing, broom skirts, scissor cutting and calligraphy.

According to McNutt, children's classes will be added in the summer.

"We hope to get beginning drawing and make-it-and-take-it type classes," she said.

In keeping with the name Inkahoots, which is slang for working together, McNutt said she had a lot of teamwork getting the building ready.

"Each renter decorated their own booth," McNutt said. "Our husbands built all the partitions. Everyone was in charge of their own decorating and did a good job."

Because the store's success is contingent on group support, Inkahoots gives a lot of people opportunities they might not have had before.

"I think a lot of people who can't afford the overhead of opening their own business have an opportunity to go out on their own," McNutt said.

"Several have children and can't work outside the home but can paint or whatever and bring it in."

"If you have a good product and quality merchandise at a good price, you'll have a good business."

In addition to crafts and classes, Inkahoots has a variety of watches, jewelry, antiques, sewing supplies and some clothing.

The store is still popular with over 90 visitors on opening day.

Anyone interested in taking or giving a class or for booth information may call 364-2224.

Inkahooots will be giving away door prizes until Oct. 12 for persons who come in to sign up.

Red Cross Update

A standard first aid class will be held Saturday, October 12th, from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. at the Community Center.

Topics will include adult CPR, rescue breathing and choking procedures, care for bleeding and shock, burns, eye and nose injuries, bites and stings, fractures, poisoning, diabetic emergencies and rescues. The class will cost $10 and preregistration is required. Call or come by the Red Cross office for registration.

As of May 31 state and local death department have reported to the Center for Disease control that 179,136 Aids cases among persons of all ages in the United States.

By the end of 1991 it is estimated that Aids will be the second leading cause of death among men 25-44 years of age.

With such statistics, it is necessary to educate the public. Therefore, educational materials on HIV/Aids are now available at the Red Cross, as well as information about testing.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency. The office is located at 224 South Main Street and the telephone number is 364-3761 during office hours and 364-1295 for after hours.

Cake club to meet

The Sweet N' Fancy Cake Decorating Club, will meet October 9, Wednesday, at 7:00 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The program for the evening will be given by Marrie Leverett on the making of cake toppers from Wilton's Color Flow Mix. The monthly baking of the King's Manor cakes will also be discussed.

Betty Henson will have the clubs cake supplies on hand if members need anything.

Couple announce engagement

Daphne Diann Roddy and Christopher Aundre Walker announce their Oct. 26 wedding at Elm Grove Baptist Church in Marlin.

Daphne is the daughter of Minnie Roddy of Hereford and Joseph Roddy of Marlin.

Aundre is the son of James and Mary Owens and Charles Walker of Sweetwater.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Hereford High School where she was valedictorian. She presently attends Angelo State University where she is pursuing her masters.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Sweetwater High School and is presently a psychology major at Angelo State University.

AUNDRE' WALKER, DAPHNE RODDY

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Many years ago my aunt and uncle had a dog named Scamper and he had the run of the house. After several years, they got new carpeting in the living room. They told him not to go in there and he was very obedient — he didn't.

Then, one day, they came home and there was Scamper lying on the kitchen floor. My aunt said, "What a good dog." But when she went into the living room the rocking chair was rocking like crazy. — Barbara Turdo, Phillipsburg, N.J.

Those precious pets know how to get around, don't they? Thanks for sharing your pet story with us. We love hearing from you, the reader, so if you have a favorite pet story or hint, send it along.

MEMORABLE NEWSPAPER
Dear Heloise: When our daughter was born last November we saved the newspaper so later in life she could read what happened on that special day. — Joan J., Las Vegas, Nev.

CIGARETTE CASE
Dear Heloise: I recently smoked smoking. Now I am left with various smoking paraphernalia. I have found a great use for the extra-long snap purse originally used for cigarette packs and a lighter.

I store my reading glasses in it. They fit perfectly and I can always find them now. — Harriet Wheeler, Baltimore, Md.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON --A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 3 weeks on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-HE
From Preppie To
Prairie To Polar Bears

Gone are the days when children's clothing was distinctly different from adult's clothing. Today, except for teddy bears, ducks, bunnies and other nursery motifs, factors influencing clothing trends are the same, whether the size is 4T or Misses' 14.

For Fall/Winter '91, Americana themes, favoring the frontier, are receiving a warm welcome. Native American influences are prevalent as sweater motifs, fringed and beaded trims, blanket stitching, Indian blanket patterning and beaded leather moccasins. Patchwork anoraks, leather bomber jackets, lumberjack plaids and printed flannel shirts have up-county appeal, particularly in boyswear.

For the young miss, Little House on the Prairie themes dominate. Gingham, plaids and coffee-ground calicos, in looks that range from smock-style dresses to pinafore jumpers, enhance the prairie appeal. Patchwork prints, pieced quilt motifs and stenciled hearts appear as all-over prints or as decorative accents. They are shown in antique colorations, such as chambray blue, barn red and coffee brown.

The preppie look, dressed up but deliberately nonchalant, continues its popularity. For the young gentleman, popular looks include oxford shirts, bow ties, cord jackets and denim work shirts. Slouch jackets, with pleated trousers in a properly subdued glen plaid, are also fashionable. For the young lady, a favorite silhouette is the dropped waist dress, with velvet or corduroy accents. Both sexes sport knickers, cardigan knit sweaters and Royal Clan plaids. Tartans are the fashion forefront, often combined with rich navy velvet and embroidered crests. Mad-for-plaid looks include kilts, pleated skirts and unmatched tiers of tartan.

The polar bear heads a herd of arctic animals including penguins, seals, walrus, husky dogs and reindeer, that continue to inspire children's wear designers. Nordic jacquards and fabrics with an icy color palette show up on sweaters, sweatshirts and parkas. Quilting, from channel and diamond patterns to more inventive designs, is everywhere.

Bodywear continues to be a booming trend, as school-age kids adopt it for streetwear and schoolwear. Footless tights, bike pants, capri and stirrup pants are particularly popular with oversized T's and sneakers. Cotton/lycra outfits, leggings and knitted panne are practical winter looks, in both cold weather and temperate climates.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were thrilled a few months ago when our Honor Society son was accepted by Princeton University. Now we aren't so sure it's such a wonderful place.

My aunt from California called to say she had read a shocking news story about Princeton a while back and then proceeded to relate the details. I said, "I don't believe it. If you still have the clipping, send it." Well, she did send it, Ann, and we were flabbergasted. Here's the story:

"Hundreds of Princeton University sophomores shed jeans and down jackets for a traditional event dubbed the 'Nude Olympics,' held to celebrate the area's first snowfall of the year. About 1,500 spectators cheered them on last week as the students, clad only in boots and hats, lit the torch before doing situps and push-ups in a campus courtyard and ran up and down Nassau Street in Princeton, N.J., reported United Press International.

"Of the nearly 300 participants, about 50 were women, a relatively new phenomenon in the nude event. 'For the first couple of women it must have been scary, but now people don't think there's anything wrong with it,' said Leah Clapman, 19, of Scarsdale, N.Y.

"The National Weather Service said the temperatures were in the 30s. 'There were no frozen appendages,' reported Princeton Borough police dispatcher, Gordon Byard. He said no injuries, arrests or harassment incidents occurred at the event, held under steady snow mixed with freezing rain."

Well, Ann, what do you think?--
Ill At Ease in Illinois

DEAR ILLINOIS: The whole thing sounded a bit bizarre but it had a ring of truth to it so my office phoned Princeton to check it out and spoke with Justin Harmon in the public relations department. Here are the bare facts (please forgive the pun):

At the first snowfall of the year, hundreds of sophomores, both men and women, rush out of their dorms at midnight, in the nude, and engage in a variety of athletic activities. This has been going on for 40 or 50 years.

The school does not sponsor this tradition and has tried for years, without success, to discourage it. Harmon added, "If Ann Landers has any words of wisdom that might keep sophomores from acting sophomoric, we would love to hear from her."

I pondered the challenge and decided that since Princeton has managed to limp along for 245 years without any help from Ann Landers, my input would be gratuitous. I seriously doubt that your son will be damaged by this annual rite of lunacy. Send him with the knowledge that he is going to one of the finest universities in the world.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been married 40 years to a man who thinks he is God's gift to women. No female is too young, too old, too beautiful or too plain to escape his notice. He flirts openly with the cashier in the supermarket, the girl in the candy store, his granddaughter's classmates, the woman who helps our vet, and the dental assistant. Don't tell me he needs counseling. He won't go. Don't tell me to leave him. I can't afford it. Don't tell me to make a joke of it. It's not funny. Just print this. It won't change his behavior but it will make me feel a hell of a lot better.--Wanda in D.C.

DEAR WANDA: Let me know if it helped.

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was surprised by the dumb answer you gave that fellow who was concerned about his mother and "Aunt Ellie," the bingo junkies.

These two old biddies play bingo at least four times a week. "Son" or his wife drive them to the games because neither of these ladies can see well enough to drive at night. Then somebody has to go pick them up. Son's wife must fix supper for them at 4:00 p.m. when the kids are just getting home from school. The entire family's schedule revolves around the bingo games.

Son also complained about how much the old dames smoke and how they sit around all day in their bathrobes. The only exercise they get, he said, is moving the number covers around.

You suggested Gambler's Anonymous because "they are most certainly addicted." You also suggested that their doctor order them to quit smoking and stay out of the bingo hall.

Anyone with half a brain should know it's useless to order people to do anything--especially when an addiction is involved.

Please look at that advice again, Ann. I can't believe you gave it.--Palo Alto

DEAR PAL: Neither can I. It was pretty bad. I wish I could shift the blame on my editor or an assistant or a typesetter, but I can't. Every word that appears under my byline is written by me. If it's good I want the credit and if it's bad I take the lumps.

You aren't the only person who yelled at me. Read on:

Dear Ann Landers: Are you on vacation? Your advice on "Aunt Ellie" and "Mom," the bingo addicts, was from hunger. Why didn't you tell that numbskull son and his wife to stop being enablers. "Wife" should refuse to drive those piliated sisters to the bingo games and "Son" should stop picking them up. And what kind of dingbat fixes supper at 4 o'clock so a couple of nuts can go play bingo? You blew that one, kiddo.--Frank H., Seattle

From Mason City, Iowa: I am retired and live by myself. I pay all my own bills and have money put aside for emergencies. I don't tell other people how to spend their money, and nobody has the right to tell me how to spend mine. I don't smoke or drink or go to sports events, which cost plenty. My hobby is bingo and I intend to keep right on playing. Your advice was disappointing.

Kalamazoo, Mich.: Times have changed. Old ladies don't have to stay at home and knit anymore. I think it's terrific that "Aunt Ellie" and "Mom" play bingo. It sure beats going to doctors.

Beaumont, Texas: How old do we have to be to do as we please? Bingo is a lot more than covering up numbers or winning a few dollars. It's a way to connect with others and have a social life.

Chicago: I've worked benefit bingo for several years and I know that crowd well. The average bingo player is a senior citizen who lives alone or with a son or a daughter. They come to bingo games to combat loneliness and forget their aches and pains. As for the smokers there, so what? They don't care about living longer. In fact, most of them would rather not. Getting old is lousy. If bingo can help these folks enjoy a few hours, more power to 'em.

Baton Rouge: I've seen too many old folks rat-holing money for "old age." What's "old"--110? If bingo gives them pleasure, what the hell?

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Between the Covers

By Rebecca Walls
 Frederick Forsyth is at the top of our new book list this week with his new book entitled The Deceiver. For seven years Sam McCready has served with distinction as chief of the covert operations of Britain's Secret Intelligence Service. This experience as an inventive and intrepid field agent has served him well, now times have changed and a new high-level policy decision demands a new style operative. McCready is one of the first targeted for removal. Foreign Office regulations entitle McCready to a choice of an obscure administrative position or early retirement.

Timothy Edwards sees the removal of McCready as an opportunity to advance his own career. Presented to a panel of his peers, McCready's exploits an independent style that has often driven him beyond the rules. This style may be evidence of his value, or proof that he should be removed. Timothy Edwards will be presiding over the panel and McCready's long shot effort to save his career.

Domestic Pleasures by Beth Gulcheon is a "novel of manners set in a city comprised of many villages, each with its own manners and values," modern New York.

Domestic Pleasures is also a love story. Martha is very different from Charlie. While he believes in uptown conventional and three-piece-suits, martha lives downtown in a neighborhood her parents refuse to visit, afraid they may never get a cab back to the Colony Club.

Martha and Charlie also discover many things they have in common, such as: neither expected to be divorced, or to be the single parent of a teenage child, and neither of them has the slightest idea of how complicated it is to fall in love when both are accompanied by 20 years worth of life's baggage.

Charlie is the lawyer who represented Martha's husband against her during their divorce. This being the saddest, most bitter time of Martha's life, she would have been happy never to see Charlie again. Martha finds that will not be. When her ex-husband Raymond is killed in a plane crash, his estate is left to their 16-year-old son Jack, and Charlie is the executor.

Martha and Charlie affect the lives and happiness of each other in chains of related events far beyond what they see themselves. This is a pleasant, funny, touching and romantic story I think you will enjoy.

Raid On Truman by John T. Campbell is a novel that pulls the reader into the roller coaster of North Korea.

A U.S. navy carrier battle group led by the USS Truman is attacked with a nerve agent while cruising off the coast of Korea. The nerve agent renders the crew unconscious. General Kang, the North Korean leader plans to use the Truman and crew as bargaining chips in a global power play.

The nuclear weapons on board the ship will place North Korea in the exclusive club of nuclear nations. The only thing that prevents a smooth, successful hijacking is a freak ventilation malfunction. This malfunction has allowed the engineering compartments to escape contamination.

Lt. Paul Simmons, the engineering officer on watch, must lead the "snipes" in their fight to regain control of the ship. Being trained to deal more with mechanical affairs rather than military, the Lt. wonders if he is capable of leading the men into hand-to-hand combat against the North Koreans.

The Lt. and the "snipes" are further hampered because of their lack of knowledge with many of the nonengineering areas of the ship.

Alzheimer support group organized

The Hereford Senior Citizens will be the site for monthly support group meetings on Alzheimer's disease.

The first meeting will be held at the Hereford Seniors Citizen's Center on Wednesday Oct. 9th, beginning at 11:30 a.m. through 12:30.

The support group will provide all with the opportunity to share with others who are going through similar experiences. It is very important for caregivers and others touched by Alzheimer's disease to have a support system.

The public is invited to attend the support group and share with others.

These meetings are designed for people touched by the disease to come together in a nonjudgmental, safe environment to vent their frustrations, to share coping techniques, to learn more about Alzheimer's and discover what resources are available to them.

Alzheimer's is a progressive, degenerative neurological disorder that results in severe mental deterioration and eventual physical decline. There is no cure.

The disease has a gradual onset. Symptoms include difficulty with memory and loss of intellectual abilities severe enough to interfere with routine work or social activities.

The Alzheimer's patient also may experience confusion, language problems, poor or decreased judgement, disorientation in place and time, and changes in behavior or personality.

Alzheimer's can strike people in their 40's or 50's but most victims are older. Four million Americans have the disease and it is the most common form of irreversible dementia, a group of symptoms that characterize certain diseases and conditions.

Alzheimer's also affects the family of the patient. The emotional, social and financial costs of caring for an Alzheimer's patient are high. Family members also often risk their own health in order to care for the patient at home.

TRADING UP

When there's plenty of mortgage money around, the real estate market becomes more fluid. People start trading up, leaving their smaller homes for more spacious ones. They usually have more down payment money and they're ready to spend it and move in. Many of these type buyers come to us, looking perhaps, for a home like yours. If you're getting ready to trade up, as an experienced real estate professional, I can help in many basic ways. First, I will bring only qualified, ready to buy prospects to see your current home. And then, I can help you sell, at the best possible price, so you'll have a nice down payment for the next home. I can take you to see the kind of homes that you would like to move up to, in our area. As an experienced home owner, you will have a firmer idea of what you want in space and amenities, and I can help you find it. If you read our column, we appreciate your comments.

October prices lower on beef, pork

October will be an excellent month for sales on beef and pork, as large supplies of animals are expected to send prices lower during the rest of the year, said Dr. Dick Edwards of College Station, a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Edwards said abundant supplies at the farm level already should have sent retail meat prices down.

But this did not occur, said livestock marketing specialist Ernest Davis at Texas A&M, primarily because of an impasse between feed lot managers and packers over prices, which led to a temporary reduction in the number of cattle entering the retail market.

"This kept consumers prices up," he said.

Between April and September, wholesale prices dropped about 12 percent, Edwards said, but retail prices only went down about 2 percent.

"Retailers have been stubbornly holding about 10 percent of the reduction," Edwards said. "It now appears that this management play was unsuccessful and animals will be coming to the market in a flurry."

This doesn't mean there will be an immediate 10 percent reduction in beef prices, Edwards said. The pass-through from retailers will begin in October with a two percent to three percent cut in overall prices.

The biggest reductions will be for items in seasonal demand such as ground beef, chuck roasts, arm roast, round steak and meat used in stews, soups, and special meals for cool weather, he said.

"Look for ground beef specials for less than a dollar per pound on three to five pound packs," he said. "T-bones and loins could reflect discounts to $1 to $1.50 per pound off regular prices."

Poultry prices will be stable during October as the industry prepares for November special.

Catfish producers will seek additional sales by offering specials on fillets, nuggets and steaks. Demand for shrimp should increase with fall weather, but supplies are such that the prices will continue at present levels. Sales on medium sizes should be about $3.50 per pound.

"For those with a more exotic taste, shark steaks and roughly will be priced below normal levels," he said.

The 1991 peanut crop in the United States was at near record levels, 40 percent higher than last year's drought-stricken crop. Large supplies translate into lower prices for peanut butter, about 10-20 percent below present prices, Edwards said.

The apple harvest is projected to be slightly above last year's, so prices should be about the same with specials of 45-49 cents for small sizes, 59 cents for the mediums, and 69 cents on the larger sizes.

Prices for jack-o-lanterns will not be lower this year, but size and quality should be much better after an excellent growing season.

Other featured produce items will be sweet potatoes, white potatoes, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, grapes, honeydew melons, and cranberries. Fall squash varieties, such as butternut and acorn, also will be plentiful, he said.

Vegetables produced for canning or freezing also have been quite good in 1991, and higher prices and shortages seen previously should ease. Specials will return on lima beans, green beans and corn on the cob.

All sorts of baking mixes will be marked down, just in time for fall baking. Fresh dough products, such as biscuits, ready-made pie crusts and cut and baked cookie dough, will be discounted. Frozen pie crusts and frozen fruits used for pie fillings are other items that will be reduced.

"Breakfast becomes a more important factor in our lives with cooler days," Edwards said. Hot and cold cereal prices will be cut, primarily through coupons and not lower prices on the shelves. Bacon, sausage and eggs will be priced lower because of production increases. Prices for frozen pancakes, waffles and sweet rolls also will be reduced.

"The noontime meal, whether it's at school, work or home, will benefit from specials on soups," he said. Competition among the manufacturers of canned soups, dried soup mixes, and microwaveable soups, will help consumers' pocketbooks.

"Watch for the double bonus of lower shelf prices and coupons as these companies compete for your dollar," Edwards said.

Even with all this good news, retailers will make their biggest splash with their halloween promotions, featuring any item that could be tied to this event. A wide range of items will be featured from candy and costumes to greeting cards, cold cuts, cakes for the store's bakery and spiced apple cider.

Specials also will be tied in with Oktoberfest, with retailers offering attractive prices for imported beer. Many also will have promotions beginning in October that offer free turkeys with minimum purchases of groceries.

"If you want the free bird, watch for the beginning of these promotions," Edwards said.

YOUR EYES

GLAUCOMA

Glaucoma is a serious eye condition in which there is an increase of pressure inside the eye. It cannot be cured, but it can be controlled. And if it is caught early enough, damage to the eye -- especially to that part of the eye that gives clear side vision -- can be avoided. In its early stages, glaucoma may not cause any symptoms at all. However, there is a simple test of inter-ocular pressure which is usually part of a complete eye examination for anyone over 35. That is how most cases of glaucoma are found, in time for successful treatment. Most at risk are people over 65, the severely near-sighted, diabetics or those with a family history of glaucoma. Your optometrist may recommend more-frequent examinations if you are at risk. If there is a decrease in side vision, blurred images or any other change in the way you see, see your optometrist promptly.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Don't hold your breath for another sequel to the Eddie Murphy hit "Beverly Hills Cop."

Producers Don Simpson and Jerry Bruckheimer, who made the first two smash comedies, apparently were unable to come to terms with Paramount Pictures.

Paramount spokesman Harry Anderson wouldn't comment on the dispute, but the studio said it intended to try to get the movie made.

"Jerry and I feel as though we're sending one of our very own out into the cold, cruel world," Simpson said. "It's our fervent hope that they'll do well by it."

"Beverly Hills Cop" made $234.8 million. It is the second-highest grossing comedy of all time.

NEW YORK (AP) - Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg says she returned from a book promotion tour convinced that Americans care about their freedom.

"You're constantly reading that people don't vote, don't care, don't understand," the 34-year-old daughter of President Kennedy said in an interview in the November issue of McCall's magazine.

But Schlossberg, a lawyer, said that during a recent tour for "In Our Defense: The Bill of Rights in Action," "We were really gratified because we saw that people really do understand."

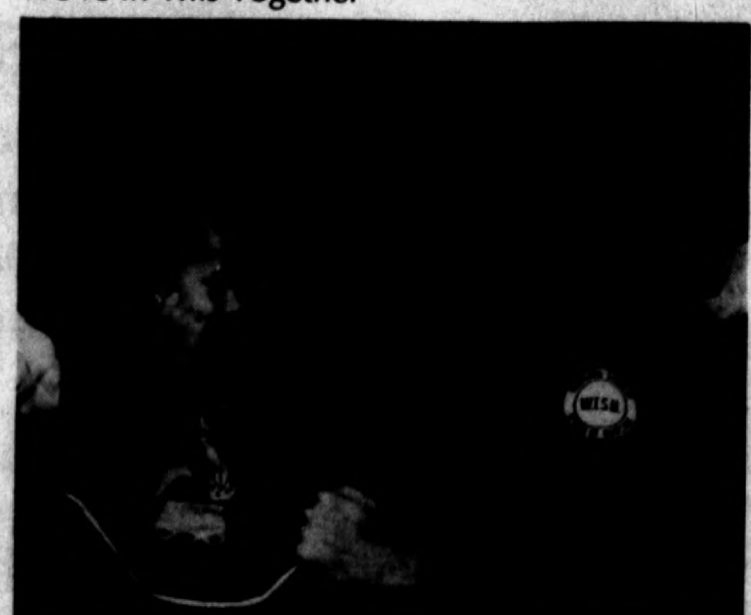

The book, written with Ellen Alderman, is a series of stories about cases involving the Bill of Rights.

COUNTRY HOME PLAN PROFESSES WIDE OPEN FAMILY AREA

A Sun Deck and Screened Porch Expand Family Living

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

The country front porch is immediate access to the combined great room, dining room and kitchen portion of this home plan design. All are open to each other, allowing a smooth flow of traffic and stimulation of family togetherness. The expanse of screen porch and sun deck also enter into the family lifestyle, both of which are accessible by way of a door from the dining room or the entryway from the garage. Extra cabinets are provided here too and the separate laundry room with commode, and private office extend behind the side entry double garage. A central stair is provided for either basement access or access to a large bonus room within the steep gable roof.

There are three bedrooms in the quiet zone of the first floor plan, the master being endowed with a luxury master bath and the remaining two bedrooms serviced by a central full tub bath.

Horizontal siding is the exterior finish and three dormer windows complete the picture of this country plan.

The plan is Number 2170. It includes 2,122 square feet of heated area for the first floor, the future second floor room adding another 600 square feet. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. This is a computer generated plan. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

SELLING TO YOUR UNCLE

Morris Carter ships popcorn around the world. John Dryden manufactures cushions for outdoor patio furniture. Bill Hand owns and operates a welding shop. Charles McMahon is a manufacturing engineer.

These entrepreneurs have one thing in common. They sell their products and services to the same customer - their uncle. That's Uncle Sam, to be more specific.

Uncle Sam, alias the United States Government, is a big spender. In fact, our government is the largest single customer in the world. It has more than 2,000 purchasing departments that buy from big, medium-sized and small businesses.

Most small businesses don't have a clue about selling to the government. Who do you call? How do you get on the bidders' lists? How do you know what the government wants to buy? How do you handle the infamous government paperwork? Other major concerns are how long it takes to get paid and the fine print associated with government contracts.

Ready Resource

Across the country, agencies are available to help business owners do business with the government. They have many names including contract procurement centers, procurement assistance centers, contracting assistance programs and government purchasing assistance centers. Regardless of the name, the mission is similar. These offices exist as a ready resource to help small businesses get government contracts.

In the northernmost 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle, the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission's Contract Procurement Center provides this service. Courtney Sharp coordinates the program. "We have helped area businesses land more than $30 million worth of federal, state and local government contracts," Sharp said. "Our procurement center opened just five years ago, so you can see the business is there."

Some Success Stories

John Dryden's firm, Paradise Cushions, has been successful in landing government contracts. The company makes designer cushions for upscale patio furniture shops. It specializes in high-quality, limited production items.

"We have a slow season after the summer production has been shipped," Dryden said. "We were looking for something to produce to keep our workers employed and to pay overhead." He found help at the Contract Procurement Center.

By doing a computer search of requests for proposals, Sharp located items that Uncle Sam needed and Dryden could produce. One of the best matches was a canvas backpack for firefighters.

Dryden knew he could build it and decided to bid. "We got the contract, worth $625,000," Dryden said. "That will keep us busy right up to spring production."

Morris Carter landed a three-year contract in 1988 to sell popcorn to U.S. Government locations in Europe and the Pacific Rim. "It was good business for us," Carter said. "The paperwork really isn't that bad, and we generally get paid in 30 to 60 days."

Charles McMahon has been the successful bidder on government contracts. However, he feels there may be ways of making money, even when you aren't the lowest bidder. "If you lose a bid," McMahon advised, "call the low bidder. You may be able to subcontract part of the order." McMahon points out that often there is more profit and less red tape involved for a subcontractor. "You may be a winner even when you lose," he smiled.

Bill Hand has landed several small contracts but feels that the red tape is a real problem. "They really pile the paperwork on you," Hand said. "Sometimes, I think the extra business isn't worth the hassle." Hand felt that he might be better off working on non-governmental accounts.

If you want to know more about how to do business with the government, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Selling to Your Uncle, c/o Minding Your Own Business, P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105

TEC CORNER

TEC PROGRAMS

The Hereford office of the Texas Employment Commission is a service point for special programs such as Project RIO, Job Corps, JOBS and the Targeted Job Tax Credit program.

Project RIO (Re-Integration of Offenders) is designed to assist persons that have been released from the state prison system. Construction costs of new prisons, coupled with the cost of maintaining inmates, have called for alternative solutions. Project RIO assists by providing basic work search skills, training, counseling, job referrals and assessments to determine if they qualify for other special programs.

Job Corps is a vocational training program for persons 16-21. It allows for vocational training in a variety of fields. The basic format is that the individual will live at a training centers while (in most cases) earning a salary while learning a trade.

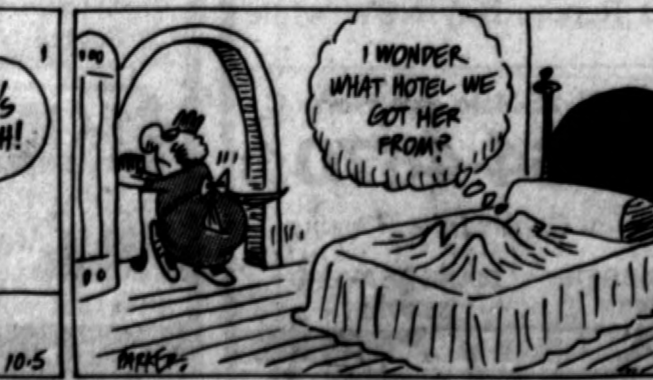

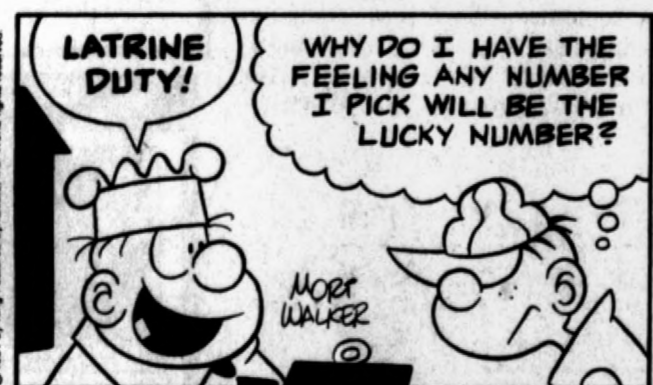

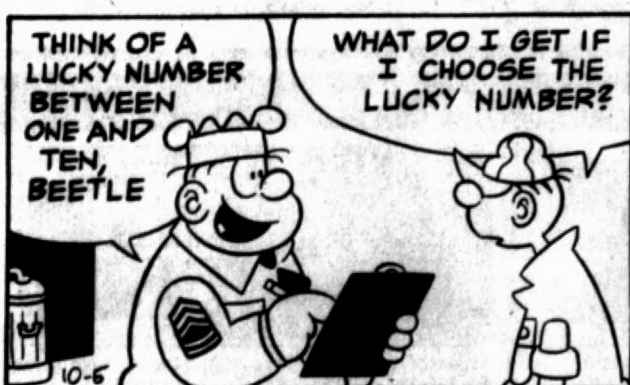

JOBS is a co-agency service to provide the opportunities to gain full-time employment. Along with the Texas Department of Human Services, persons are helped with job search skills, career choices and basic job referrals.

The Targeted Job Tax Credit is a special tax credit program.

The credit allows an employer with a qualified employee to take up to a 40 percent deduction of the first $6,000 paid in wages to a qualified persons. The potential credit is $2,400. Employers can request that the TEC screen for TJTC-qualified applicants for referrals to their job openings.

The Hereford TEC office is a service point for many programs that are geared to assist employers and job seekers alike. Tax dollars provide the services, and the programs can be used as a tool for the area's future.

Designers target 55, up crowd

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Experts around the country are sizing up the shape of things to come, measuring as many as 10,000 women with rulers and ribbons in an effort to develop better-fitting clothes for the 55-and-up set.

The industry project is the first step toward ready-to-wear clothing designed specifically for the older woman.

"Just because they are older does not mean they are larger. Other things change, like muscle tone and bone structure," said Ellen Goldsberry of the University of Arizona. "But the clothing industry has absolutely no data about their figures."

More than 17 million American women are 55 and up. Many older women endure clothing that's too tight here and too loose there. And many would be willing to pay a little more for the perfect fit, Goldsberry said Wednesday.

She and colleague Naomi Reich are coordinating the measuring project for the American Society for Testing and Materials, which develops standards for everything from tire cords to clothes.

At the Cooperative Extension Service office in Champaign County on Wednesday, women slipped into light blue body suits criss-crossed with ribbons to mark measuring points.

Volunteers used rulers and other tools to record 57 measurements, including the slope of the shoulders and the roundness of the abdomen.

"I think when they get all done, we'll have better clothes," said 79-year-old participant Orlena Leischner of Fisher. "It really is hard to find a one-piece dress that fits in all places."

The $180,000 project is being funded by the garment industry.

Now, sizing is based on measurements taken in the 1940s. Most of the women used for those measurements were in the Army, and only 2 percent were over 50.

Among them was flight nurse Elberta Morse of Champaign, who was measured in 1946. Morse, 69, decided to be measured again Wednesday to help older women find better-fitting clothes.

"I noticed a change in clothes in the early '50s after the last project," she said. "I began to buy the new juniors. I could see the difference. They fit me."

Rachel Eggen, specifications-quality manager for intimate apparel at Sears' Chicago headquarters, said the study could help the industry offer a better fit.

"These women are conscious about how their clothes look and fit - their appearance," said Eggen. "They diet and exercise, but still the biological clock ticks, and certain changes happen as they grow older."

The point of the shoulder rolls forward, for instance. The chest area narrows, the upper back widens, and the spine compresses, reducing height. The derriere flattens, and the abdomen protrudes.

"Some women buy pants with stretch fabric and elastic waistbands and wear them backwards," said Goldsberry. "It fits their new figure, but it's an absolute shame."

Goldsberry and Reich will continue collecting measurements through January, then they'll analyze their findings and eventually make them available to the garment industry.

Changes could include clothing and patterns designed specifically for the older body, Goldsberry said. And there could be labels that provide length and circumference information about the garment instead of just size numbers "that mean nothing," she added.

However, she said it could be two or three years before women see changes on clothing racks.

"The companies will have to re-gear and redesign, target the market and change their thinking," Goldsberry said. "Today's older woman won't buy the frumpy old house dress 'Grandma' used to wear. She wants style and fit."

NEW YORK (AP) - Jane Fonda is teaming up with fiance Ted Turner to produce a nature special, "Mysterious Elephants of the Congo," on his TBS Superstation.
 Fonda will serve as host of the Audubon Society special on Nov. 24. The one-hour program looks at the plight of Africa's forest elephants and the lives of the pygmies, whose way of life is threatened by destruction of the forest.

On Monday, Collor defended his wife of seven years.
 "If something illegal occurred, it was absolutely outside the awareness or responsibility of the first lady," he said.

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) - President Fernando Collor de Mello says he's not getting divorced, despite a public falling-out with his wife, Rosane.
 The first sign of marital trouble came when Collor, 42, stopped wearing his wedding ring in public in August.
 The cause of the tiff was said to be the first lady's stewardship of the Brazilian Legion of Assistance, a charity. An investigation was begun after news reports said the first lady distributed money to family members and friends. She has since quit.

NBC scores with story of Babe Ruth

Stephen Lang (Crime Story, Last Exit to Brooklyn) stars as George Herman "Babe" Ruth, arguably the greatest player in the history of professional baseball. Airing Sunday on NBC, Babe Ruth also stars Bruce Weitz, Lisa Zane and features Pete Rose as Ty Cobb.

Small-screen effort hits the high points

By Suzanne Gill

"The book on Babe," says actor Stephen Lang, "is that he was a simple man, but I've never really met a simple man." First and foremost, George Herman "Babe" Ruth was a giant among baseball players. He shook the game to its foundations, and he personified the era in which he lived.

Born six years before the century, young George Ruth was left by his father at a Baltimore orphanage, and he never stopped being a kid. When he left Baltimore, his one thought was to play baseball, or, as the script of NBC's Babe Ruth puts it, to "have fun." His exuberance spilled over into his private life, which was largely unreported in the press at the time. He ate, smoked, gambled and womanized. And when he went to the ballpark, he hit home runs.

Lang's task in portraying Ruth in the movie, which airs Sunday, Oct. 6, began with the challenge of learning to play ball like Ruth. Ordinarily a right-handed hitter, Lang spent four weeks at Hall-of-Famer Rod Carew's California baseball camp, perfecting his Babe Ruth swing, as well as the patented Ruth trot as he circled the bases.

"The job was not to turn me into a left-handed slugger," Lang says with an ironic grin. "The job was to turn me into the greatest ballplayer that's ever played the game.

"Hitting seemed to me to be the central metaphor for his life. When the hitting began to fall into place, then playing the role began to fall into place." (Ruth himself modeled his swing after that of Chicago White Sox slugger "Shoeless" Joe Jackson. "He had the perfectest swing I ever saw in my life," Ruth said.)

With Ruth, everything must be raised to a higher order of magnitude. He was not only physically big (Lang gained 35 pounds just to play the young, relatively well. And, while many of his records have since been broken, no one player has equaled his performance on the field.

Babe Ruth paints its hero in broad, quick strokes. Lang gives the part his all, but he can't overcome the glibness of the script. Too many scenes are set up simply to shoehorn in a famous quote, either by the Babe or about him. At that, Babe Ruth offers nothing of his seasons with the Boston Red Sox, when, as a pitcher, he set a shut-out record that still stands.

The film's finest moments come when Ruth is with children (the apocryphal hitting-the-home-run-for-Johnny scene is not here, thank goodness) or with his own hero, Yankee manager Miller Huggins (Bruce Weitz). Pete Rose appears, in a much-publicized cameo, as Detroit Tigers player-manager Ty Cobb. Due to the producers' licensing agreement with Major League Baseball, Rose, who is currently banned from the game, was not allowed to appear in uniform.

Also starring are Lisa Zane as Ruth's second wife, Claire; William Lucking as Brother Matthias, the monk in charge of the Baltimore orphanage; and Neal McDonough as the up-and-coming Lou Gehrig. © TV Listing Inc.

STAR NOTES

Host Barker is 'Right' for the job
 by Lisa Otoupal
 "Come on down!" For the past 20 years those words have brought men and women screaming down an aisle to take their place in contestants' row on CBS' The Price Is Right. The show is currently the highest rated network game show, and heading up the mania is six-time Emmy Award-winner Bob Barker.

Born in Darrington, Wash., Barker spent most of his youth on the Rosebud Indian Reservation, S.D., where his mother was a teacher. Later, he enrolled in Drury College in Springfield, Ill., on a basketball scholarship. World War II interrupted his education, but following his discharge from the Navy, where he was a fighter pilot, Barker returned to Drury to finish his studies.
 It was while he was putting himself through college that he discovered his calling: audience participation shows. A year after college graduation he moved to Los Angeles. Within a week, Ralph Edwards, who was developing the idea for Truth or Consequences, heard Barker on his car radio and knew he had found the host for his show. Barker stayed with the show for 18 years. On Sept. 4, 1972, he took a new job as host for The Price Is Right.
 A man of many interests, Barker travels extensively, is a Civil War buff and has studied karate under Chuck Norris. He is also an outspoken opponent of animal exploitation.

SOAP TALK

Robert Mailhouse homesick — no joke

By Candace Havens

We all know him as the funny "boy blunder" on Days of Our Lives, but when I recently spoke with Robert Mailhouse (who plays Brian Scofield), he was feeling a bit melancholy and serious.

Make no mistake, Mailhouse is charming, sexy, absolutely huggable — and homesick. It seems his job has taken him out to Los Angeles; unfortunately, his heart has stayed on the East Coast.

He misses the theater life, and would like to work onstage once again. "I'm jealous of my roommates," says Mailhouse, "because they can come back and do plays, and it is such a fulfilling lifestyle. Of course it helps if you are in a hit play."

A Branford, Conn., native, Mailhouse had a successful New York career appearing on commercials before moving to the West Coast.

Mailhouse first auditioned for the part of villainous Lawrence Almain, but was completely wrong for it. But Days producer Al Rabin was impressed with the actor's quirky performance and created another character around Mailhouse's personality.

"I like working on the soaps. I like the challenge of each day you have to make something happen," said Mailhouse. "When I first started, I used to spend two days working on a script because I was really nervous about it. It was like, 'I have all these things to do, and I have to do them in front of millions of people.'"

Once Mailhouse became familiar with his character, he didn't feel so nervous. But he does worry about the quality of his performance. "I think comedy is difficult, and I'm not a comedian. I'm not really a funny person. I can't tell a joke to save my life; I can't even remember them. My humor comes out of other people's conversation. Ever since I was a kid, I played off of whatever situation I was in. I just look at the absurdity of life and try to find the humor in everything."

Mailhouse's life focuses on acting right now, but eventually he'd like to do the marriage and children "thing." He enjoys riding his classic Italian motorcycles, jamming with friends and just hanging out. He's said to be a fantastic cook, can play the piano and is very easy to talk to. Some day he might just blunder his way into leading roles. He's got my vote.

NBC is Notre Dame's best recruiting tool

By Steve Paschal

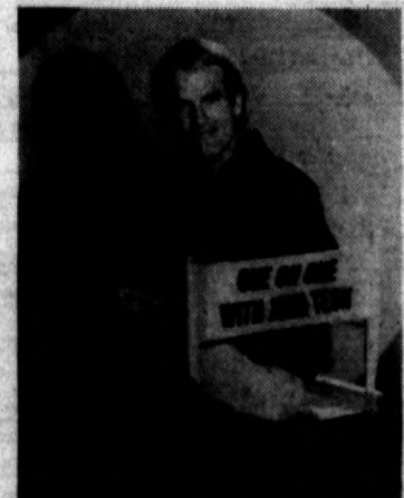

When executives at NBC Sports made the decision to bring regular-season college football back to the network after 26 years, they decided to do things in a big way. And they did, signing an exclusive five-year agreement to broadcast all "Fighting Irish" home games.

Who can blame executive producer Terry O'Neil, himself a Notre Dame alumnus, for acting giddy about the deal? After all, five of the top six all-time highest rated college football games involved Notre Dame. Over the last three seasons, TV audiences for Notre Dame games have been 52 percent higher than the average for college football telecasts, and, in the last decade, Notre Dame has played in the three highest rated college games.

The partnership between the university and the television network was forged in a struggle involving the College Football Association and a court battle between the NCAA and the universities of Georgia and Oklahoma over rights to negotiate television deals. But, by taking advantage of the situation, NBC and Notre Dame have set what could be a dangerous trend in college football recruiting.

In making a major financial commitment to one school, NBC's fortunes have become irrevocably linked to the success of that school's football program. Pandora's Box is open.

Behind the scenes of 'Apocalypse Now'

By Dan Rice

The realization of an artistic vision is a struggle at best, but when the product is a motion picture costing millions of dollars of other peoples' money, the experience is hellish. On Saturday, Oct. 12, Showtime premieres Hearts of Darkness: A Filmmaker's Apocalypse, a behind-the-scenes chronicle of Francis Ford Coppola's controversial production of Apocalypse Now.

For those who love life at 24 frames per second, The Discovery Channel's Tinseltown Week features several documentaries covering diverse areas of the art and industry. Thursday, Oct. 10, The Futurists looks at sci-fi films that have proven to be prophetic, and those we hope will or won't be. The Silent Witness examines the dangerous world of newsreel cameramen on Friday, Oct. 11. On Wednesday, Oct. 9, Hollywood Stuntmakers looks at "Special Effects Make-Up," with monsters born of wire and latex. Also Wednesday, Wizards of EFX traces the craft's growth from the moveable models of King Kong to the tabletop magic of computer technology.

Can you take it? Inspired by the Japanese craze for TV endurance games, the USA Network launches its Gonzo Games on Sunday, Oct. 6. Contestants recruited from five major cities compete in bizarre events such as walking faceup like a crab on the beach to spitting sardines into the ocean. Sounds like big fun. © TV Listing Inc.

Lucy Goranson plays Becky, the eldest daughter of the Connor clan, in Roseanne, Tuesdays on ABC.

FAMILY FARE

'Young Robin Hood' aims to please kids

By Sherry Jones

The Fantastic World of Hanna-Barbera has taken the classic tale of Robin Hood and added a new youthful twist. He's Young Robin Hood, and he and loyal Little John, feisty Maid Marian and his band of teenage friends plan to take Nottingham by storm. Young Robin Hood debuted in syndication during the month of September, replacing the long-running Midnight Patrol and joining the ranks of Richie Rich, Don Coyote and Fantastic Max.

Set in mysterious medieval England, Robin Hood keeps up the tradition of taking from the rich and giving to the poor.

For all of you dog lovers out there, The Family Channel took America's love for pets and combined it with the ever-increasing home-video craze to come up with an all-new version of canine comedy called That's My Dog.

Each Sunday, two dogs get the chance to win contests such as "Fetch My Slippers" and "Super Frisbee Catching." Viewers at home are encouraged to send in their own funny home doggie videos, which will be shown throughout the program. They will also get the chance to compete as partners with studio contestants.

With more than 52 million dogs in nearly 39 million U.S. households, this all-new version of That's My Dog is sure to have heads turning and tails wagging.

LET'S TALK

By Taylor Michaels

Q: What ever happened to the game show Concentration, which aired on NBC? That one show offered a combination of challenge and wit and was certainly a good memory exerciser. I enjoyed it so much I was about to buy a tape and record it when I had to miss it. Now it's too late. How can I express my appreciation of the show and my support for re-airing the program? I would like to write to the producers of the show and Alex Trebek, if possible. I am determined to show my support for this game show in every way I can. —Shirley Roberts, Greenville, Texas.

A: It seems daytime game shows aren't as successful as they used to be. Soon, in fact, there will be only two network game shows still in production: The Price Is Right and Wheel of Fortune. Experts feel daytime viewers enjoy watching programs where they can go in and out of the room. Game shows require a certain amount of concentration, so unless someone plays their trump card, it looks like the future of these TV contests could be in jeopardy. Anyhow, you can write to NBC at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10112. Write to Trebek c/o Jeopardy, 1040 North Las Palmas, Hollywood, Calif., 90038.

Q: I would like to have the mailing addresses of the following people and organizations: Kevin Costner, Michael Blake, Jim Wilson, Tig Productions and Orion Pictures. As you may already have guessed, they are all connected with the movie Dances With Wolves. I have seen the movie several times, have read the book from which the movie was taken and have read another book. I have seen the video that is out, and therein lies the reason I'm writing to you for help.

A: You can write Costner c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212 or c/o Tig Productions, 650 N. Bronson Avenue, No. 211, Los Angeles, Calif., 90004. Write Michael Blake c/o Ballantine Books, 201 East 50th Street, New York, N.Y., 10022. The address for Orion Pictures is 711 5th Avenue, 6th Floor, New York, N.Y., 10022. I don't have an address for Jim Wilson at this time. The magazine did not lie. There is talk of releasing a longer version of the movie. I suspect it's a clever marketing strategy: First, you buy the original version. Then, when the longer version comes out (later), you'll buy it, too. So there's still hope, but it may cost you some extra money.

Q: I am not writing with a question; I am writing to tell you what a horrible remark I heard on television. I think it was on a mystery-crime show. I just turned it on and two men were there, and one man said to the other, "I'll cut your heart out and eat it."

A: Now that is a terrible thing to play on television. Of course I turned it right off. Whoever writes such remarks should be put out of business. Television needs to be cleaned up. What do you think it would do to young people and children to hear such a remark? Something needs to be done about it. —TV Listener, South Bend, Ind.

A: Thanks for your comment. I'm sure many readers agree with you.

TRIVIA, ETC.

Burt battled juveniles in what '61 film?

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. Identify the 1961 film in which Burt Lancaster starred as a district attorney determined to crack down on juvenile delinquency.

2. Here's real trivia: Name the ship that transported the Maltese Falcon from Hong Kong to San Francisco.

3. Kirk Alyn was the first actor to portray what larger-than-life character in the movies?

4. Warner Bros. Studios released cartoons under two well-known umbrella titles. What were they?

5. The only Academy Award category in which all members vote is ...

6. This Hitchcock film ranged in setting from a Virginia mansion to a Harlem hotel to a Cuban hacienda. Name it.

7. In 1956, Ingrid Bergman returned to American films after a seven-year absence. Identify the film.

Answers:

1. The Young Savages.

2. La Paloma.

3. Alyn was the first actor to don the night and cape of Krypton's favorite son, better known as Superman.

4. Merry Melodies and Looney Tunes.

5. Best Picture. Otherwise, actors vote for actors, editors for editors, etc.

6. Topaz, starring John Forsythe.

7. The movie was Anastasia, for which Bergman won an Oscar.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

THE FISHER KING: Starring Robin Williams, Jeff Bridges, Mercedes Ruehl and Amanda Plummer. This dramatic comedy is only for those who equate love with lunacy and understand that true redemption is always total. The hero of The Fisher King is a visionary street person named Parry (Williams), a former professor of medieval history who lives in a remarkable world of his own creation in order to insulate himself from a tragedy in his past. The anti-hero is Jack Lucas (Bridges), a man filled with fatal cynicism who once looked down at life from the top. However, his off-handed arrogance triggered an incident which has sent him on a precipitous decline. Penniless and without prospects, Jack finds himself plucked from disaster by the most improbably savior... Parry. It is the beginning of an amazing friendship. Parry needs love. Jack needs hope. The key to both their redemptions lies in their quest to win the heart of Parry's imperfect vision of a woman - and their quest for the Holy Grail. This emotionally powerful film is about healing wounds and about how giving and getting are pretty much the same thing. It's certainly not a film for everyone. It is visually complex and the characters are secondary to the world in which they exist. The script incorporates elements of literature, mythology, whimsy, romance, fantasy and lust with a unique level of terror and sophistication. The acting is astounding. Jeff Bridges brings new shading to his craft. Robin Williams seems to dissolve into parts of every lunatic he has ever played - and makes them all seem new. Mercedes Ruehl, the worldly video store owner who provides solace to Jack after his fall from grace, is lusty, poignant and brilliant. Another brilliant actor is Michael Jeter doing an astonishing and hilarious impression of Ethel Merman. Director Terry Gilliam (Brazil, Time Bandits, The Adventures of Baron Munchausen) is one of the most imaginative persons working in films today. What Gilliam does for the eye and the mind through film is remarkable. If you love lunacy, like Robin Williams' unique brand of comedy, and believe that only the pure-hearted can discover the nature of true love... then this is the movie for you!!! Rated R for violence and nudity.

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

CYRANO DE BERGERAC: (1990/French with English subtitles) Starring Gerard Depardieu. A touch of cosmetic prosthesis adds just enough to Gerard Depardieu's own generous nose to make it the object of ridicule and swordplay in Edmond Rostand's romantic verse drama. Smitten by Roxanne (Anne Brochet), Cyrano acts as a go-between for her and his none-too-articulate cohort, Christian (Vincent Perez). Jean-Paul Rappennau's film is a physically elaborate period spectacle, and Depardieu's performance is a disciplined whirlwind of conflicting emotions that finds surprising new life in this somewhat theatrical antique based on the play of 17th-century Paris. Nominated for the Oscar for Best Foreign Film. Not rated. Would be a PG. Even for those who do not like subtitles, this is a beautiful story (happy ending and all) which the whole family would enjoy.

Four Boxes

THE THORN BIRDS: (1983) Starring Richard Chamberlain, Rachel Ward, Barbara Stanwyck, Richard Kiley and Jean Simmons. (Four cassettes.) The purchase price of this TV movie, now a video release, is $199.92, making it a sure bet that it will get more play in the video rental department than in the sales department. This is the movie that started America's love and longing for Australia. Meet the Clearys, four generations of Irish who survive nearly 700 pages of Colleen McCullough's epic novel about life and love in Australia from 1915 to 1962. Events and characterizations in Carmen

Culver's adaptation (for a TV movie) go considerably beyond the dramatic confines of the typical mini-series. As the Roman Catholic priest, Father Ralph (Richard Chamberlain) rises to cardinal while juggling vows of celibacy and carnal passion for Maggie Cleary (Rachel Ward). Barbara Stanwyck plays the tough, lusty matriarch of the family. The other Clearys are nice rendered by Richard Kiley, Jean Simmons and Mare Winningham. Nothing if not big, the series' sheer size and its ever predictable (and manipulative) turn of events work very effectively indeed. Chamberlain filmed the series at the height of his mini-series work. This is also the late Barbara Stanwyck's last great role and one in which she is excellent. Not rated. Would be PG-13 for mature themes. The running time is 8 hours and six minutes. Plan ahead.

Three Boxes

HIDDEN VIDEO GEM

TAPEHEADS: (1988) Starring John Cusack and Tim Robbins. In this off-the-wall movie, John Cusack plays an obnoxious con man who convinces Tim Robbins, a video genius, to make music videos. The overblown characters and situations they encounter in the Los Angeles rock-music scene make for weird and funny viewing. The chemistry between Cusack and Robbins is perfect. The movie was not a hit in first release. Some felt it was "too cute." This column thinks if you "chill out" you could have some fun with it. Not rated but would be an R for the language and sexual situations.

Three Boxes

Kevin Costner

A Seattle-based seafood restaurant is back on the air with its "Dances With Clams" commercial, ignoring lawsuit threats from Orion Pictures, according to The Hollywood Reporter. The Ivars Inc. ad is a spoof of Kevin Costner's Oscar-winning film Dances With Wolves, and features Norwegians on horseback watching a Costner look-alike dance with giant clams.

The company pulled the spot off the air in April after the movie's distributor threatened to sue, but fans of the commercial flooded Ivars with phone calls and letters asking for its return. After that, "we just got more nerve," says Ivars' President Scott Kingdon. Costner himself said he liked the commercial, wondered why it was pulled and even asked for a copy.

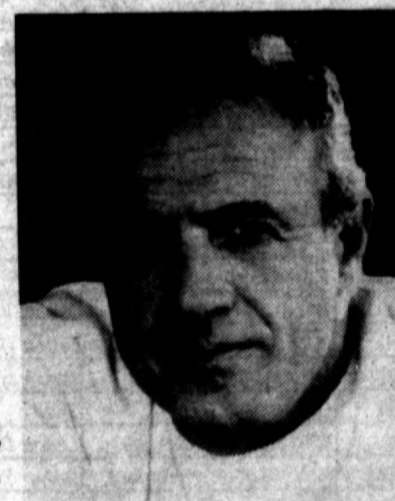

Brooklynites are pleased with CBS' series Brooklyn Bridge. So pleased, in fact, the president of the borough of Brooklyn, N.Y., Howard Golden, has awarded the show's creator and producer, Gary David Goldberg, a special citation. Goldberg is — surprise — himself from Brooklyn.

The Commitments already has another commitment. The Snapper, a sequel to the critically acclaimed film about working-class Irish youth, is already in the works.

Who says you can't go back? Scenic Livingston, Mont., is the setting for a modern-day western called Keep the Change, being filmed by TNT. William Peterson (Long Gone, Hard Promises) stars as Joe Starling, a contemporary cowboy straddling the fence between the past and the present. Emotionally and professionally adrift, Starling returns to his boyhood home of Montana, where he lets his life move toward the past rather than the future. No airdate has been set for Keep the Change.

Birthdays, special days, a year-around remembrance? Send them The Hereford Brand, a gift that reminds the recipient of your love and concern about 255 times a year!

James Caan discusses his latest film, Honeymoon in Vegas, on Friday's Entertainment Tonight.

Michael Keaton is a tenant with dark motives in John Schlesinger's Pacific Heights, debuting Saturday on HBO.

How does Rest-A-Matic® do all this for you?

When made up, your Rest-A-Matic® bed looks like any other elegant conventional bed. It can be used with your present headboards and comes in the usual sizes. Twin, Full-Sized, Queen and King, Dual Queen and Dual King (two twin beds that accommodate king-size bedspreads).

Let's talk about health...

Are you not sleeping? Do you wake up in the morning feeling as though you had not slept at all? Do you suffer from back aches, swelling in your legs? Do you have a hiatal hernia?

Since 1979, Rest-A-Matic® has been the choice of thousands of people who have similar problems. Here are just a few of the comments from people who have experienced Rest-A-Matic (the actual letters are on file).

© 1979 Rest-A-Matic Adjustable Beds

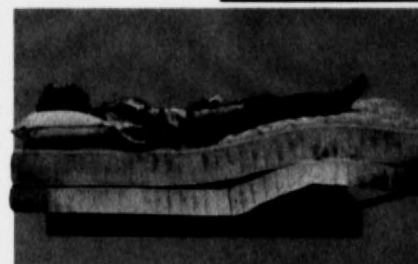

"My circulation problem has improved greatly. I am now walking better and without a cane. I give Rest-A-Matic® the credit for helping me"
Mrs. M.M. of Bastrop, LA

"The beds are wonderful. In fact, so wonderful we ordered two more Rest-A-Matic® beds within the week."
Mr. and Mrs. C.H. from Yucca Valley, CA

"As an Orthopaedic Surgeon it would be beneficial to anyone with an abnormality of the spine and certainly anyone with lower back pain. I highly recommend Rest-A-Matic® beds even for the most healthy people in the world."

Dr. J.H. from Little Rock, AK

Don't wait to enjoy this great convenience in your own home!

"For many years my legs have burned and hurt because of poor circulation. After less than three months on my Rest-A-Matic® bed my legs do not burn or hurt. I do not have the words to express how grateful I am." Mrs. A. S. from Florence, SC

"About three months ago my husband and I bought one of your beds. After just two or three nights on the Rest-A-Matic®, I started getting relief from the backaches. I go to sleep more quickly at night now." Mrs. M.G. from Odessa, TX

"I have had severe arthritis ... the massage is most effective... in seconds I can note the relief in my breathing. I can highly recommend the Rest-A-Matic®." B.D. from Magnolia, AK

A miracle answer for the bed-ridden

Rest-A-Matic® can automatically be controlled by the patient to change positions to relieve the monotony, aches, nervous tension and soreness from remaining in one position too long. In addition, by adjusting the bed to "activity" positions the patient can keep self-entertained or engaged in other activities such as reading, writing, or eating with virtually no assistance from others.

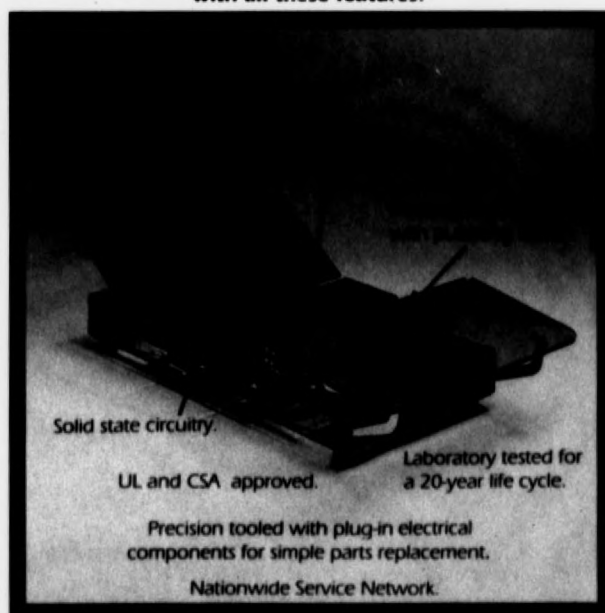

Dual "Digi-Matic Massage"

What could be more soothing after a long day than a pleasant, relaxing massage—one that you can enjoy in your own bed? The optional Dual Digi-Matic feature now offers not only wonderfully stimulating massage, emulating the skilled fingers of a masseur, but also the ability to direct that massage to the area of your body where you need it most. It's an exclusive feature with your Rest-A-Matic®.

"Thermo-Matic Heat"

Another optional feature is the Thermo-Matic Warmth Control. A heating unit for your Rest-A-Matic® bed that is imperceptible to sight or touch, with its own control that lets you set the warming silently and efficiently from the mattress below your body. The comforting heat is then retained by the lightest of blankets above.

The only adjustable bed in the world with all these features.

"Comfort Control Center"

With the touch of a button control every action of your Rest-A-Matic®!

NEW! From Rest-A-Matic® Adjustable Beds! America's Choice Since 1979!

a center for your most rewarding leisure-time activities: reading, studying, sewing, watching TV, or even breakfast in bed!

People of all ages, in all walks of life, are now finding new ways to enrich their lives with healthful, vigorous activities with a renewed spirit of enjoyment, physically and mentally. And equally important to this renewed activity is the enjoyment of total relaxation!

Rest-A-Matic® lets your mind work while your body rests. You may actually be able to add extra hours every day to your active life because you'll be more comfortable... more relaxed, yet wide awake. You will soon find that muscle tension will be relieved in every part of your body because your body weight is more evenly distributed and supported than in any chair or ordinary bed.

Couples can now enjoy these extra pleasant hours spent together, each enjoying a preference of relaxed activities. With the new Dual-King model, for example, you can sit up watching television, perhaps, while your spouse can lie back even further for relaxed conversation, or just a pleasant rest.

Programmed to raise or lower different sections of the bed, the Rest-A-Matic® is the product of extensive engineering design and testing, all toward the ultimate goal of providing you with a "free-floating" kind of support you could never experience in chair lounges, sofas, or conventional beds. Since the Rest-A-Matic® adapts to literally hundreds of restful positions, you can actually distribute body weight more evenly to help relieve muscle tension, back fatigue, and tired legs. Comfort is yours to command whether you just want to relax or adjust to a position for increased circulatory action.

Inside the Rest-A-Matic® frame and mattress is where the engineering magic has been concealed. Simply plug the cord into a regular electrical outlet and the Rest-A-Matic, with its silent electric motors and scientifically structured framework, is ready to do your bidding at the touch of a button.

©1979, Rest-A-Matic Adjustable Beds

So versatile, so advanced it makes ordinary chairs, sofas, and beds practically obsolete for leisure activities, recreation, and sleep!

Here's an amazing discovery that enriches the hours you spend at home and makes the most of healthful relaxation. REST-A-MATIC®. It's an engineering marvel that makes (what looks like) a conventional bed into an ADJUSTABLE BED, that changes to literally hundreds of restful positions. Quiet electric motors concealed in the understructure of the REST-A-MATIC® do your bidding at the touch of a button!

The Rest-A-Matic® Adjustable Bed provides the ultimate in comfort and relaxation in your home, where you can enjoy extra leisure hours the most.

Now your bedroom isn't just for sleeping anymore! With Rest-A-Matic® it becomes
