Bush, Western leaders 'invite' former enemies

ROME (AP) - President Bush today urged Western allies to "clasp the outreached hand" of former adversaries in Eastern Europe and give them a voice in NATO. The leaders also stood ready to urge the Soviet Union to put its nuclear weapons under a single authority.

Leaders of the 16-nation alliance convened at a summit on the outskirts of the city to reshape NATO to confront the risk of uncertainty and instability in Eastern Europe rather than the threat of a surprise Soviet attack.

They prepared an invitation to their one-time Warsaw Pact adversaries to launch a "new era of partnership" next month at an unprecedented East-West summit.

"We have lost our former enemies," NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner said in opening the meeting. "We all rejoice in that." But he warned that without NATO's defense structure, Europe would not maintain a peaceful order.

The leaders plan to endorse a new military strategy that envisions smaller, more mobile forces with a spare nuclear arsenal.

They also were to strengthen ties with former adversaries in Eastern Europe by setting up a forum to deal with political and security issues.

A draft of the political declaration to be issued at the close of the summit Friday called for a Dec. 20 meeting between NATO foreign ministers and their counterparts from the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and the newly independent Baltic states. The session, in Brussels, Belgium, would mark the first time that NATO has formally asked its old adversaries to take part in alliance activities.

"As we look to the East, the unwilling allies of our former enemy now want to be our allies," Bush said.

Bush said a new council of cooperation was "the least we can do."

"We must clasp the outreached hand of the peoples whose freedom has at last been won by a combination of their courage and our resolve," the president said.

With the breakup of the Soviet Union, Western leaders are concerned that the Kremlin's massive arsenal of nuclear weapons will be scattered among several quarrelsome republics.

The draft of the political declaration urges Soviet authorities "to refrain from any steps that could lead to the proliferation of nuclear weapons or other means of mass destruction."

"We therefore welcome the intention of the Soviet leadership to ensure the safe, responsible and reliable control of these weapons under a single authority," it said.

In his opening remarks, Woerner appealed for unity in an era of "uncertainty, instability and unpredictable risks."

There are tensions within the alliance because France, in particular, opposes expanding NATO's role in Eastern Europe because of U.S. domination over the alliance.

"New challenges demand new answers," Woerner said. With "a more complex security environment," he said, NATO will be asked "to play an even more crucial role as the bedrock of stability and as an agent of change."

Even in a world no longer threatened by the Soviet Union, Bush said the United States must stand firm with its European allies.

"The United States will not - because it cannot - abandon its responsibilities, its interests, and its place in Europe," Bush said.

Moreover, trying to calm fears that the United States exerts too much influence in Europe, Bush said, "while some suggest that the United States wants followers in the alliance, what we want are partners."

Reacting to a French-German proposal to create a separate European army, Bush said "We do not see how there can be a substitute for the alliance as the provider of our defense and Europe's security." He said the military force envisioned by France and Germany should "complement the alliance and strengthen the European role in it."

Kelley describes Merrick products

Mark Kelley, right, of Merrick Petfoods of Hereford describes some of the many products of Hereford Bi-Products--Merrick Petfoods to Dr. Stan Fry Jr. after the Hereford Lions Club meeting on Wednesday. Kelley described the many products produced by the corporation during a speech to the club on Wednesday.

Merrick operations growingBy JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Mark Kelley of Merrick Petfoods of Hereford reviewed the progress made by the company, Hereford Bi-Products and other affiliates of the corporation during a speech to the Hereford Lions Club on Wednesday.

Hereford Bi-Products has grown from basically a two-person operation 20 years ago to several corporations that employ over 500 persons in Texas, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Colorado.

"Our payroll just in Hereford was over $3.5 million last year for the 250 persons working for us in Hereford," Kelley said.

The company's most visible products come from Merrick Petfoods, which includes Beef 'n' More, TrackPro and other pet foods. The pet foods have gone from less than 1 million pounds produced in 1989 to "close to 10 million pounds this year," said Kelley.

Not all of the pet food produced by the company is sold in Merrick products, Kelley said. For every pound produced for Merrick-marketed products, another three pounds is produced for other companies.

Kelley also cleared up a common misconception: the pet food isn't made "from roadkill or whatever," Kelley said. "The pet food products come from USDA inspected packing plants."

Merrick's Beef 'n' More is sold in over 800 outlets, mainly in the Southwest USA, while other products are sold throughout the country. The company's TrackPro is sold at greyhound tracks and kennels throughout the USA and in Mexico.

Kelley said the pet food business is very competitive, with over 3,400 kinds of dog food sold in the United States.

"The only things we can push are service and quality, and build our own niche in the market," Kelley said. The service extends to the point where Merrick, on a recent Sunday afternoon, ran a truck of dog food to Sam's Wholesale Club in Amarillo. They had run out of the dog food. Merrick drove a truck of Beef 'n' More to Amarillo.

National health care is complexBy FRED BAYLES
AP National Writer

An underdog wins a U.S. Senate seat from Pennsylvania after making health care his issue. New Jersey voters overwhelmingly approve a measure calling for a national health care plan.

The availability and cost of medical care has emerged as a potent political issue. But analysts say public concern could cool if universal health insurance turns out to be too expensive or if it limits choices in treatment.

"When you ask if you want national health insurance, people say yes. Then you ask if they want to pay $500 a year more in taxes and they say, 'Wait a second,'" said Dr. Raymond Scalettar, secretary-treasurer of the American Medical Association's board of trustees.

Democrat Harris Wofford's come-from-behind victory in Pennsylvania's U.S. Senate race Tuesday was credited, in part, to his call for guaranteed health care for all Americans.

Wofford campaigned hard on the issue, saying the right to a doctor's care equaled a defendant's right to a lawyer. His campaign ads pointed out that Congress gets free medical care while voters struggle with increasing insurance costs and loss of coverage.

His Republican opponent, former Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, was stuck defending the Bush administration's opposition to the cost of a national health insurance plan.

"The polls have been showing for quite some time that the people are exercised about this issue," said Dr. Arnold Relman, professor of social medicine at Harvard University and editor emeritus of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"Almost everybody is unhappy with the system to a varying degree and wants to see a change."

The various constituencies of doctors, insurers, consumers and government officials disagree on a solution, but do agree on the need for reform.

The nation spent $700 billion on health care last year - the highest per capita cost of any country. A recent federal study said costs could hit $1.6 trillion by the year 2000.

An estimated 35 million Americans have no health insurance, twice that number have inadequate coverage. As economic bad times and rising costs squeeze companies, workers are paying a greater share of insurance and medical costs.

G. Terry Madonna, director of the Center for Politics and Public Affairs at Millersville University in Pennsylvania, said Pennsylvania voters who saw health care as the most important issue supported Wofford 3-to-1.

National poll: Americans want 12-year term limit

NEW YORK (AP) - An Associated Press poll found broad national support for term limitations and allowing doctor-assisted suicide for the terminally ill. But Washington state voters rejected such proposals in the poll that counts, on Election Day.

The 54.46 percent defeats of both proposals on Tuesday show how ideas embraced in public opinion polls face a more rigorous test in an election campaign.

The 1,006 Americans surveyed Oct. 30 through Nov. 3 favored term limits for members of Congress by 66 percent to 17 percent. This 4-1 support for limits also held for state legislators' terms.

Nearly three-quarters also said their own representative in Congress should be limited to 12 years.

Three in five said they favored legalized euthanasia for the terminally ill.

The poll, taken by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The results were also in line with several previous polls, including two in Washington state, that showed term limits highly popular just a few weeks before the election.

David J. Olson, professor of political science at the University of Washington, ticked off several late developments that swayed the outcome.

The most important, he said, was U.S. House Speaker Thomas J. Foley's vigorous campaign against term limits in his home state of Washington.

Foley, a Democrat, called term limits undemocratic and said if he and his state's other veteran congressmen were forced to retire after one more term, Washington would lose the political clout needed to protect its water resources from California.

"And people reflected on their anger about incumbents and their disillusionment about unlimited terms and decided this is suicide for Washington to act alone in limiting national terms," Olson said.

Also, nearly every Washington newspaper editorialized against the term limits measure and its proponents became identified with out-of-state money and vicious anti-Foley ads, Olson said.

Advertising also was blamed in the defeat of the euthanasia proposal, subject of $2.3 million in campaign spending. Proponents, who portrayed it as a "death with dignity" law to spare suffering, did most of the spending. But they claimed they lost because of distortions by opponents.

"I think the opposition created fear in the electorate - fear that there weren't enough safeguards," said Deborah Senn, a spokeswoman for the initiative.

The poll posed the question with the sort of bland terminology used on the ballot: Should adult patients who are in a medically terminal condition be permitted to request and receive aid-in-dying from a doctor? Sixty percent said yes, 24 percent no. The others either were unsure or not familiar enough with the arguments.

66% of those Americans polled favor some type of term limitation for U.S. and state representatives.

Opponents of the initiative in Washington state argued that its language masked a radical proposal to legalize a type of murder involving lethal injections and assisted suicide, such as prescribing a deadly dose of pills.

The AP poll showed Americans split on another emotional issue that cropped up on some ballots, laws to protect homosexuals from discrimination in hiring and housing. If their community had such a law, 43 percent of those polled said they would want to get rid of it, 44 percent would want to keep it and the rest were not sure.

Thrift scandal defendants found guilty by federal jury in Midland

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - Flamboyant Dallas land developer D.L. "Danny" Faulkner always said he was simply "conducting normal business" when he turned a barren stretch of prairie east of Dallas into a haven for plush condominiums. Faulkner said he was the luckiest man alive in the early 1980s, when cash rolled in hand over fist as his condos sprouted like weeds. On Wednesday, a decade, two trials, 3,000 documents and more than 120 witnesses later, Faulkner's luck ran out. A federal jury convicted him and three associates of masterminding a scheme to loot five tracts of $165 million by pocketing illegally inflated construction loans that were never to be repaid. The so-called I-30 condo scandal is the largest thrift fraud case to be tried in Texas and one of the largest in the nation. It led to the $284 million failure of Empire Savings and Loan in Mesquite in 1984, the first thrift to fail in Texas, and was a harbinger of the coming crisis in banks and savings and loans. Also convicted were former Garland Mayor and developer James Toler, 41 of 46 counts; former Empire chairman Spencer Blain Jr., 34 of 35 counts; and appraiser Arthur Formann, 21 of 22 counts. All four said they will appeal. After returning the verdict, the six-woman, six-man jury ordered the defendants to return their profits from the condo deals - $40 million for Faulkner, $38 million for Toler and $22 million for Blain. Formann did not glean profits from his involvement. U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton, who presided over the case, will set the final figures and sentence the four on Jan. 15. He released them until then. Faulkner faces a 201-year prison sentence and $250,000 in fines. Toler faces 196 years in prison and a $250,000 fine and Blain faces 188 years in prison and a $208,000 fine. Formann's penalty may be 54 years in prison and $102,000 in fines. The convictions come nearly two years after the men were first tried. Two years ago in Lubbock, a jury listened to nearly seven months of testimony and deliberated for more than two weeks but could not reach a verdict. As the court clerk read the verdicts from the 58-count indictment, the defendants' stiffened and their faces lost expression.

History changed by errors in books

AUSTIN (AP) - U.S. history textbooks proposed for use in Texas public schools beginning in 1992-93 contain more than 200 factual errors, a State Board of Education member has charged.

"We are dealing with the minds of our school children, and 'close to accurate' is simply not acceptable," Jane Nelson of Lewisville said Wednesday.

Ms. Nelson said that she would oppose board adoption of the textbooks until the mistakes are corrected.

Among the incorrect statements, she said, are that Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert Kennedy were assassinated while Richard Nixon was president, when Lyndon Johnson actually was in office; and that George Bush defeated Michael Dukakis in 1989, rather than the correct presidential election year of 1988.

Texas Education Agency spokesman Joey Lozano said that TEA a couple of days ago received a list from conservative textbook critics Mel and Norma Gabler, of Longview, of what they say are 231 mistakes in the textbooks.

Lozano said that the TEA staff was checking the list against the books, and would recommend that any errors be corrected before textbooks are printed and distributed.

Publishers have their textbooks reviewed by editorial staffs for errors, and Texas textbook committees also go over the books and have hearings on them, Lozano said. He said that any mistakes pointed out at hearings are checked by TEA staff.

However, he said, the contention about the 231 mistakes was submitted well after the Oct. 21 deadline for such comments, and so they were not included in a report by Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno on needed corrections.

Meno has said that publishers agreed to make the corrections suggested in his report. He recommended that the board formally require the changes in adopting the books.

Public Notice

On October 18, 1991, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to add a new optional service offering called SmartTrunk™ Service. The application has been assigned Tariff Control No. 10687.

SmartTrunk Service provides access between the customer's premises and the serving Southwestern Bell central office for circuit-switched voice and data communications. This communication capability is provided where facilities are available using Integrated Services Digital Network architecture. ISDN services available with SmartTrunk Service use Primary Rate Interface (PRI) technology. SmartTrunk Service requires PRI ISDN compatible Private Branch Exchange (PBX) customer provided equipment registered under FCC Part 68 Rules. SmartTrunk Service employs a 1.544 Mbps facility (denoted as SmartTrunk Interface) typically divided into twenty-three B channels and one D channel. B channels are used for voice and data communications while the D channel provides out-of-band signaling.

If approved by the Commission, the rates for each SmartTrunk Interface facility will be $1,110 per month under a 36-month service contract or $1,010 per month under a 60-month service contract. The proposed rate for the use of the central office varies from $12.25 up to $18.90 per month for each B channel depending on the rate group classification which is determined by the customer's location. Southwestern Bell estimates revenue of $2.8 million from this offering during the first year.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should file comments regarding this application with the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256. The telecommunications device for the deaf (TDD) number is (512) 458-0221.

A gas light does more than provide warm glowing light for the exterior of your home. It makes your house less attractive to burglars.

Both of these lamps feature heavy gauge steel posts and cast aluminum lamp heads, heat-tempered glass lenses, easy-access lens frames and corrosion-resistant acrylic enamel black finishes.

ADD AN AUTOMATIC DIMMER - $49!

Automatically dims your light during daytime and returns it to full brightness at night for convenient, economical operation.

Installation - If required, normal unobstructed installation of up to 65 feet of gas line is $90 additional, and may be financed along with your lamp purchase.

Borger shows ability to beat heavy favorite

The Herd will be heavily favored to beat Borger at 7:30 Friday at Whiteface Stadium, but the Bulldogs do have a little experience with upsets.

Last Friday, Borger beat Randall 25-13. That, combined with Dumas' 18-0 upset of Pampa, turned the District 1-4A playoff possibilities upside down. One of the victims of the upheaval is Hereford, which because of the upsets and earlier losses to Randall and Pampa will play only 10 games for the first time since 1987.

So instead of preparing for the playoffs, the focus against Borger becomes trying to finish with a respectable 7-3 record. Before last Friday, the now 3-6 Bulldogs didn't seem to be much of an obstacle to that goal. Now, after they've beat Randall--which beat the Herd 26-25 Oct. 18--they deserve a closer look.

Both their offense and defense are keyed by two burners--Ronald Knighton and Leroy Jones--Herd coach Danny Haney said.

On offense, Jones is the quarterback and Knighton is the tailback. Knighton has ripped off several long runs this year.

"He's got sprinter's speed," Haney said. "He's not real big, but he can sure scoot."

Jones, however, "makes them go," Haney said. Early against Randall he completed four passes: two for touchdowns and two for first downs.

On defense, the pair help make up a speedy secondary, with Knighton at safety and Jones on the corner. The defense also has a big pair of sophomores at tackle: 230-pound Cedric Dickson and 250-pound Ty Williams.

The Bulldog defense, which up until the Randall game had been giving up 31 points a game, was impressive against the Raiders, Haney said, holding their pass-happy offense to its second-lowest point total of the season.

"They came together against Randall. They played well," Haney said.

So how will they fare against the Herd's ground game?

"They're not as good against the run as they are against the pass,"

Haney said. "They're young. The problem they have is experience."

Injury report: Everyone is available except senior placekicker Ben Perry, who has not sufficiently recovered from arthroscopic knee surgery.

The players of the week for the varsity were defensive tackle Monroe Timberlake, who had 14 tackles, and running back Petey Colvin, who scored two touchdowns.

For the sophomores, it was defensive tackle Eric Ross and center Jason Cole. The freshman player of the week was Rueben Banegas.

remains the second most prolific quarterback in Class 4A with 2,077 yards. He has little chance to catch the top thrower, Glenn Winship of Alamo Heights, who has 2,520 yards. Barker is 123-for-248 with 11 interceptions, while Winship is 142-for-228 with only three interceptions.

Barker's favorite receiver, Anthony Benson, has moved into the top spot on the receiving yardage charts with 956 yards on 41 catches. He edges Watson of Alamo Heights, who has 949 yards on 46 catches.

Randall's Doug Richardson also makes the receiving list, coming in at 14th with 601 yards on 47 receptions.

Player of the Week

Hereford's Petey Colvin, here running for one of his two touchdowns in the Caprock game, was picked as the Herd's offensive player of the week. Tackle Monroe Timberlake got the honor for the defense.

Hereford favored by 20 points

Hereford is given a 20-point edge over Borger by the Harris Rating System for the Herd's season finale at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Stadium.

Harris sees the Dumas-Randall matchup in Canyon as a toss-up, while Pampa will blow out Caprock by 41 points in the other District 1-4A games.

Hereford is ranked 64th among the 168 Class 4A schools, with a power rating of 177. Pampa is the highest ranked 1-4A team at 39th, with a power rating of 182. The others are 80, Dumas, 173; 102, Randall, 167; and 153, Caprock, 145. Borger was inadvertently omitted from the list.

Harris' picks for other games, with home teams in CAPS:

AL ump Palermo testifies

DALLAS (AP) - Steve Palermo, the American league umpire unable to walk on his own since he was shot trying to stop a robbery this summer, told jurors he may never return to the game he loves.

"It's a very uncertain life right now and it's a life I wish on no one. It's devastating," Palermo said in dramatic and emotional testimony Wednesday in the trial of one of four suspects in the July 7 incident.

Palermo returned to Dallas, where he underwent rehabilitation earlier, to testify in the aggravated robbery trial of Army Pvt. Kevin Bivins.

His voice cracking, Palermo recounted the night his life was changed by a robber's bullet that hit his spine after he and a former college football player caught one of the robbers, then were confronted by the others.

"One of them reached and pulled something out and I hollered ... and then - pow, pow, pow, pow," said Palermo, who struck the witness stand with his hand to mimic the sound of the bullets. "Five shots rang out."

Slowly and deliberately, he then recounted to jurors what happened afterwards.

"I felt myself go slowly to the ground, melting into the pavement," Palermo said. "A kind of warm numbness came over my legs. Touching them was like touching a limb on a tree. There was nothing there."

Palermo, an AL umpire since 1977, was eating dinner at Campisi's Egyptian Restaurant after umpiring a Texas Rangers game, when waitresses outside the establishment were attacked by robbers. Palermo and former Southern Methodist football player Terence Mann ran to help them, along with restaurant employees. Both Mann and Palermo were shot.

Home health care coverage can make recovery more comfortable.

Full recovery from a serious illness can take much longer than a stay in the hospital, especially if the patient is elderly. Recuperation at home can be more comfortable and secure. It can also cost your parents or your family a lot of money for which Medicare does not reimburse you.

That's why the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several major companies our independent agency represents, created a new Home Health Care Plan. It provides coverage your parents and your own family may need to help pay the costs of professional health services performed at home.

Contact our agency for a discussion that can make your whole family more comfortable about the future.

Warriors, Magic stay perfect

By The Associated Press
Quick, name the NBA's two unbeaten teams.

It's not the Chicago Bulls, Boston Celtics, Los Angeles Lakers or Portland Trail Blazers, none of whom have winning records and are a combined 6-9.

Give up?
The Golden State Warriors are 4-0 with three road victories and the Orlando Magic, a third-year expansion team, are 3-0.

The Warriors, off to their best start since moving to the West Coast from Philadelphia 30 years ago, won at Milwaukee for the first time in 10 games with a 120-114 decision Wednesday night. The Magic won at home, whipping Washington 105-88.

"I didn't expect us to play this well this early," Warriors coach Don Nelson said. "We're trying to get to the level where we're a good team. Right now we're just an average team kicking around."

Orlando is winning by dominating the opposition in the third quarter. Against the Bullets, they won the third period 33-13, with Dennis Scott scoring one more point than the entire Washington output in the quarter.

Washington hit 33 of 91 shots and was out rebounded 54-42 in the third quarter, when Orlando turned a seven-point halftime lead into an 87-60 rout.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Chicago 132, Boston 113; Philadelphia 107, New Jersey 105; Charlotte 114, Atlanta 104; Dallas 97, Minnesota 94; San Antonio 119, Portland 93; the Los Angeles Clippers 111, Phoenix 87; and Sacramento 112, Indiana 102.

Chris Mullin had 32 points and Tim Hardaway 28 for the Golden State, while rookie Billy Owens, acquired in a trade for Mitch Richmond last week, had 16 points on 7-for-10 shooting in 27 minutes, including all of the fourth quarter.

Jeff Grayer led the Bucks with a career-high 27 points, and Dale Ellis added 20.

Magic 105, Bullets 88
Terry Catledge had 24 points and 14 rebounds for Orlando, and his 18 first-half points led the Magic to a 54-47 lead before Scott took over in the decisive third quarter, scoring 14 of his 19 points.

Michael Adams led the Bullets with 23 points.

Spurs 119, Trail Blazers 93
Sean Elliott scored 28 points and David Robinson 25 as San Antonio won at home against Portland.

Kevin Duckworth scored 20 points for Portland, which made only 38 percent of its shots for the game and was outscored 36-19 in the fourth quarter.

Bulls 132, Celtics 113
Michael Jordan scored 33 of his 44 points in a middle-periods shooting spree.

Going over the 40-point mark for the third consecutive game, Jordan scored 18 points as the Bulls outscored the Celtics 34-20 in the second period for a 63-58 halftime advantage. He added 15 in the third period as Chicago broke the game open.

Larry Bird topped the Celtics with 30 points.

Kings 112, Pacers 102
Richmond scored 35 points in his second game with Sacramento, and the Kings withstood Indiana's fourth-quarter rally.

The Kings led 98-85 with 7:59 left in the game before the Pacers pulled within four with a 9-0 run. But the Pacers got no closer.

Chuck Person scored 25 points, including five 3-point baskets, and Michael Williams added 21 for Indiana, which turned the ball over 28 times.

Clippers 111, Suns 87
At Los Angeles, the Clippers opened a 30-point lead in the second quarter.

Olden Polynice scored 23 points, Ron Harper 21 and Gary Grant had 14 assists.

Tom Chambers had 15 points for the Suns, whose 35 points in the first half was three less than Los Angeles' first-quarter total.

Hornets 114, Hawks 104
At Charlotte, Kendall Gill scored a career-high 30 points as the Hornets won for the first time in four games.

Muggsy Bogues gave Charlotte the lead for good with an 18-foot jumper with 8:08 remaining.

Dominique Wilkins scored 21 points for Atlanta.

76ers 107, Nets 105
At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley had 25 points and 22 rebounds and scored the 76ers' last four points in the final 17 seconds against New Jersey.

The Nets led 104-103 before Barkley's layup with 17 seconds remaining. He added two free throws with 2.9 seconds left for a 107-104 edge.

Hersey Hawkins had 24 points for Philadelphia, while Derrick Coleman had 29 points for New Jersey.

Mavericks 97, Timberwolves 94
Rolando Blackman, his status in doubt after spraining his right hand, scored 22 points as Dallas won at Minnesota.

Derek Harper led Dallas with 26 points on 11-for-13 shooting. The Timberwolves got 14 points from reserve Doug West, 12 coming in the second half.

Astros' Bagwell gets rookie award

HOUSTON (AP) - Jeff Bagwell made the most of his second chance with the Houston Astros.

When he failed to unseat third baseman Ken Caminiti in spring training, the Astros moved him to first base, and he capped his rookie season Wednesday as the National League Rookie of the Year.

"I thought I was going back to Triple A but Bob Watson (assistant general manager) threw a first baseman's glove at me and all of a sudden I'm running all over the place learning the position," Bagwell said. "I'd love to play first base the rest of my life."

Bagwell led NL rookies with a .295 average, 163 hits, 15 home runs, 26 doubles and 86 RBIs.

Pittsburgh first baseman Orlando Merced was a distant second in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Bagwell got 23 of a possible 24 first-place votes and finishing with 118 points.

Merced, who hit .275 with 10 homers and 50 RBIs, received 53 points. He was followed by St. Louis outfielder Ray Lankford with 28 points. Atlanta first baseman Brian Hunter was fourth with seven points.

That's Cheating
PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - This sounds like the golf version of a fish story.

Bob Brue, a member of the PGA Senior Tour, was in a discussion of golfers who sometimes lie about their scores.

"I played golf with a guy," Brue said, "who cheated so bad that he once made a hole-in-one and then wrote down a zero on his scorecard."

Baad is Good
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Student-athletes at Ohio State have their own organization to combat substance abusers by young people.

It's called BAAD, which stands for Buckeyes Against Alcohol and Drugs. At last word people connected with 19 varsity sports are represented in the program. In addition to the athletes, cheerleaders also are involved.

"I never thought I'd do that well," said Bagwell, who moved from Double A to the major leagues. "I got lucky. I got a chance to play and that was the main thing. After you get the chance you've got to do well."

"It's something that's tough to appreciate right now. I'm sure by tomorrow after I talk with my parents it will seem pretty special."

Although he'd been a third baseman throughout his minor league career in the Boston organization, Bagwell adjusted to his new role quickly and improved his hitting after a slow start.

"He handles first base as well as anyone we've had over there," general manager Bill Wood said. "When we got Jeff we knew he was a top prospect and rated well offensively."

By the end of the season, he was getting rave reviews for his defense, too.

"I'm not an ideal first baseman. I don't hit for much power and I'm small but I'll tell you, I love playing there," Bagwell said.

Bagwell's .295 average led the Astros and his 163 hits were second to center fielder Steve Finley's 170. His 82 RBIs also were a team high and he hit one of the longest home runs of the season.

On May 5 at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, Bagwell hit a ball five rows deep into the upper deck in left field - an estimated 456 feet.

"I don't know what happened on that," Bagwell said. "I was changing what I did all season, making adjustments."

The Astros obtained Bagwell from the Red Sox on Aug. 31, 1990, for reliever Larry Andersen, who left Boston to sign as a free agent with San Diego. Bagwell played for Boston's Double A team at New Britain in 1990 and earned Eastern League MVP honors.

Making the jump to the majors leagues caused Bagwell some early season sleepless nights.

"I think I took it too seriously at the beginning of the year," Bagwell said. "That's natural because I was struggling. I knew I was better than what I was showing. I'd come home at night and sit around and wonder 'What am I doing here?'"

Success helped him relax. "As the season went on, I realized you can't take everything so seriously," Bagwell said. "If I make an error or a stupid play at first base I just laugh at myself."

S. Africa cleared for Games

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - South Africans of all races today cheered their return to the Olympics after three decades, but the government criticized plans for the team not to carry the South African flag.

But Education Minister Louis Pienaar criticized the NOC's plan for the South African team to march behind a new flag at Barcelona and to replace the South African national anthem.

Ramsamy said the South African squad would march under the Olympic anthem - Beethoven's "Ode to Joy" - rather than the South African national anthem.

South Africa's last Olympic appearance was at the 1960 Summer Games in Rome, when the team was all-white because of the government's apartheid policies.

Newspapers carried banner headlines today announcing South Africa's return to the Olympics. Radio and TV breakfast shows were devoted to speculation on how South African athletes would do in the 1992 Barcelona Games.

The National Olympic Committee announced Wednesday night that South Africa would take part in the Games with its first racially integrated squad after years of isolation because of apartheid.

"We are now going with a non-racial team," said NOC chairman Sam Ramsamy.

"The team should march behind the South African flag," he said in a radio interview.

Many anti-apartheid groups feel the official flag and anthem symbolize white domination and are unacceptable.

"We need a symbol of national unity," Ramsamy said.

The Olympic Committee unveiled a substitute flag, a white banner with diagonal streaks of red, green and blue, bordered by gray. The Olympic symbol, the five interlocking rings, is in the upper left and the words "South Africa" are in gray at the bottom.

Next year's team is certain to feature black distance runners and boxers, and blacks may represent other sports as well.

"This is the first time we can say that South Africa is taking part in the Olympic Games," Ramsamy told a news conference at a Johannesburg hotel. "For the first time we can get a team ... that will have the support of all of South Africa."

Fiesta Bowl hopes to buy big game

PHOENIX (AP) - The Fiesta Bowl hopes to stage its third national championship game in six years by offering $3 million per team, even though the Rose, Orange and Sugar bowls pay more.

The bowl would be able to offer half again as much as the $2 million it paid Louisville and Alabama this year because its television contract gives it the revenue from TV commercials if one of the participants is ranked No. 1.

The size of the windfall isn't known yet, executive director John

Junker said Wednesday. "We won't know exactly until things unfold, probably in the next two weeks," he added. "In the past, we paid $3 million per team for the championship, and it would be hard for us to imagine getting a championship for much less than that."

Bowl bids will be announced Nov. 17, the day after No. 1 Florida State and No. 3 Miami play in Tallahassee. If both win this weekend, the Fiesta Bowl would try to invite the winner of their intrastate clash to face fifth-ranked Notre Dame.

The Orange Bowl, which pays $4.2 million per team, is interested in lining up the Florida State-Miami winner for a possible championship game against the Big Eight champ.

The Rose Bowl pays $6 million to the champions of the Pacific 10 and Big Ten conferences, which are committed to playing in Pasadena, Calif.

The Sugar Bowl, which pits the Southeastern Conference champion against an at-large team, pays $3.25 million to each team.

West Central prepares for open house

West Central Intermediate School will hold open house for parents and friends on Nov. 12 from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. The program will feature square dancing, country-western dancing, and other novelty dances performed by fourth and fifth graders. ERIC ALEXANDER

Community Christian School principal speaks at convention

Eric R. Alexander, principal of Community Christian School, will be presenting a workshop at a convention of the Association of Christian Schools International in Ft. Worth today.

The workshop will focus on teaching accounting to high school students and will incorporate methods used in accounting instruction at Community Christian School.

Alexander is a Certified Public Accountant and a Certified Management Accountant with several years of experience in various aspects of accounting.

The Association of Christian Schools International is a service organization serving Christian schools across the United States and around the world.

Homemakers elect nominating committee

The Deaf Smith County Texas Extension Homemakers Council met at the Deaf Smith County Library and elected members to the nominating committee.

Members elected to serve were Parry Keyes, chairman, Mary Ellen Homfeld and Grace Covington.

During the business session conducted by Vice Chairman Sherrie Blackwell, members discuss the Sweet Bee and decorating the council's sponsored Christmas tree at the Hereford Senior Citizens.

Members were encouraged to bring items to the Westway bazaar to be sold at the council's table.

The group voted to elect new officers to serve from Sept. 1 until Aug. 31.

Johnnie Messer reminded members that dues need to be turned in by Jan. 1.

County Extension Agent Beverly Harder reported that SPS will have a program on microwave candy Nov. 19.

The Draper Club conducted opening exercises. Carmen Rickman read a poem called, "Success."

Roll call was answered and all seven clubs were represented by their delegate and president. All committee chairmen and council officers were present and gave their reports.

Guests welcomed include Nell Pope and Jo Lee.

Hints from Heloise

Q. Several years ago you printed instructions for making a wedding-shower gift out of household items. The end result resembled a person, with an ironing board being the body.

Would you please reprint these instructions so I can give this to my cousin at her shower? — K.W., Baltimore, Md.

A. Here ya go! You will need an ironing board to start the "maid," then tie an apron around the middle of the ironing board to form the waist.

Next attach a toilet plunger and a bowl brush to either side of the ironing board to form the arms. Attach a string mop to the back of the ironing board and pull the mop string forward over the top of the ironing board to make the hair.

Use two nylon-net scrubbers for the eyes, a small sponge for the nose and a floor brush for the mouth.

From this point on, add your own personal touches to make the "maid" a unique shower gift for both sexes. — Heloise

The chemical that gives the skunk his dreaded smell is called ethanethiol; this substance is so pungent that one ten-trillionth of an ounce can be detected by the human nose.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Over the years I have read so many letters in your column from family members who do not get along. Such letters make me sad because those people are missing out on so much in life.

In October 1990, I was told that I had to go on dialysis due to kidney failure. When I phoned my sister Sharon Balloun, she said, "Dialysis can be very confining and difficult. I want to give you a kidney." At the time, she was the only possible candidate for a living donor. We went through the tissue testing process and Sharon was a perfect match.

I told my sister that I would wait for her to get some time off, but she insisted on doing it immediately even though it cost her four weeks' salary. On June 24, we drove 200 miles to the hospital for the operation.

Can you imagine being willing to have surgery that involves an incision from the middle of your stomach to the middle of your back just to help someone? Can you believe that our family was willing to let her do this for me? My sister gave me a gift of life.

After the surgery, her only comment was, "I'm not a hero. It's only a kidney. I'm the one that God blessed. You would have done the same for me."

Sharon's kidney is working wonderfully well. In fact, it started to function on the operating table. I came home the sixth day after surgery, a little sore, but that didn't last long. After 10 days I felt wonderful.

Ann, I know this letter is awfully long, but please try to print as much of it as you can. I'd like to let everyone know how wonderful it is to have a loving family.—Bonnie Sayre, Springdale, Ark.

DEAR READERS: As this column was going to press, we learned that Bonnie had just passed away. My heartfelt condolences to the family and friends of this courageous woman.

Bonnie's letter tells a beautiful story of extraordinary generosity. She was indeed blessed to have a sister like Sharon.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A great deal has been said about the obsessive behavior of teen-age girls. What about the obsessive behavior of senior citizens?
Fifty years ago Margie married Bill. When Bill died, Allen showed up. Margie had been engaged to Allen for five years before she married Bill. Last year Margie and Allen were married. Margie was 75.

This year Bob showed up. Bob was engaged to Margie in 1941 when she married Bill. Now Bob wants to buy a house in a little town in Illinois so he can be near Margie. He is 76. He points out that his grandfather didn't get to marry the girl he loved until he was 82.

It so happens that Bob is my father. I am 22. Bob was over 50 when he married my mother. She was a wonderful woman but unable to compete with Bob's memory of Margie, so they divorced. I have lived with my father since I was 6 years of age.

I think it is silly for my father to buy a house in Illinois so he can be near Margie. He never listens to me, Ann. Maybe he will listen to you. Please tell him he's crazy.—D., Glendale, Calif.

DEAR GLENDALE: Since Margie now is married to Allen (and newly wed at that) your dad may be in for a disappointment, but I wouldn't say he's crazy.

If Pops wants to buy a house in Illinois, why not? Maybe Margie knows some nice widow she can fix your Dad up with and everyone could have a jolly good time.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have seen letters in your column concerning problems in your column concerning problems women have with chronic yeast infections. Elaborate treatment strategies were discussed in the letters sent to you.

For a number of years I had almost constant yeast infections. I even began to feel naked without a sanitary napkin. I also douched regularly. Then one day someone suggested that I stop douching, because douching killed or flushed out bacteria that helped control yeast infections. I don't know to this day what these bacteria may have been. All I know is that since that day I have not douched, and I have not had a yeast infection.

Any comment or possible explanation? Perhaps this could help someone else and save her money, too.

DEAR READER: Douching is one of those areas of disagreement about feminine hygiene. Many women say they don't feel clean unless they douche. How often it is done and what is used are important factors in whether it is harmful or not. Yes, it can be harmful, as your letter indicates.

It is commonly overlooked that bacteria can be friendly as well as harmful. Friendly bacteria in the colon are important in protecting you against harmful bacteria, simply by competing with them. They also produce vitamin B-12.

The vagina is no exception. In normal circumstances, it contains a reasonable amount of lactic acid. The acid mantle that results helps to protect against various infections, including yeast. This occurs in two steps. Estrogen causes the cells that line the vagina to produce glycogen. Friendly bacteria such as Lactobacillus acidophilus are believed to act on the glycogen to produce the lactic acid. Incidentally, that is also the basis of the action of yogurt in protecting against yeast infections.

Excessive douching can destroy bacteria without eliminating the yeast. Since the competition to yeast is diminished, the population explodes, and a yeast infection follows.

Yes, there are many treatments used for yeast infections. I have discussed them in my new Special Report 103, Vaginal Discharge, Itch and Odor, as well as the question of douching. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/103, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. One of those treatments is yogurt.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I was interested in your column about the woman with a yeast infection and a terrible itch. I experienced an itch too. It almost drives you wild, like she said. But I did not have a yeast infection.

I'm not going to name any brand names, but mine was caused by deodorant and scented sanitary pads. I quit using these, and in a few days all itching was gone. I hope this will do the same for others.

DEAR READER: Thanks for your helpful comment. Yes, it is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It can be from a yeast infection or a number of other medical problems. The vaginal area, like other areas of the body, is susceptible to contact dermatitis and allergy. That can be from various sprays women use as deodorants. It can also occur from the reaction one person may have to the detergent used in laundry. Some women write about having problems with colored toilet paper as well. It is best to keep things simple, avoiding preparations applied to the area, and see a doctor to find out what the real cause might be.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

If you run ads in five consecutive issues with NO changes, you get the same ad in the Reach 4 More free. The regular charge for that ad would be $4.00.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.
