Stribling wins by 18 votes

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

John Stribling Jr. carried a near-unanimous majority in his home box at the Dawn Community Center to capture an 18-vote win in the County Commissioner Precinct 1 race over Lupe Chavez in the Democratic primary runoff election Tuesday.

County voters went with district and statewide trends in both party runoffs as Mel Phillips won the Democratic nomination over Bryan Poff for the 31st District state senate seat, and Republicans endorsed Beau Boulter for the U.S. Senate, Ed Emmett for the Railroad Commission and Nathan Hecht for the Supreme Court.

Chavez had a 55-41 lead after absentee votes were counted, and carried Box 1 (the Bull Barn in Hereford), 235-211. Stribling countered with a 57-1 win in Box 7 for a 309-291 victory.

"I am very happy, very elated," Stribling said Tuesday night. "As far as I am concerned it was a close race, a clean race, that was run on the issues. It wasn't run on personalities or on racial issues—it was just a real good race. I would have felt the same way had I lost.

"I really thought I was going to do better at Box 1 than I did, but my neighbors came through for me. I am very grateful for that."

Chavez wasn't down-in-the-mouth after the close loss.

"We feel good about the election," Chavez said at his home Tuesday night. "I understand about Dawn—they're pretty united out there, but they were very nice to me when I visited with them."

STRIBLING
"I am very happy, very elated"

But Dawn's what did it."

Chavez expected the results at both boxes Tuesday.

"Box 1 turned out like I expected it would, but Dawn was the one that had the edge."

Chavez is unsure about future political plans.

"Right now it's hard to say," Chavez explained. "We feel good about ourselves, and we just want to be involved in our community and work for the betterment of our community. It remains to be seen what we'll do."

Stribling said his work has just begun—he has Republican challenger Kim Blackwell waiting for him in November.

"We're going to work hard from now until November," Stribling said. "I'm not elected until November. I am not going to write anyone off, and I don't want to take November for granted."

Phillips was surprised Tuesday night when he won by over 3,000 votes over Poff. "After the primary was so close with me and Bryan and Nancy I really expected this would be much closer—less than a thousand votes, really," Phillips said.

"I guess we didn't realize how good our county organizations were. They must have really worked hard to get us this big of a win."

Poff was expected to do best in the Amarillo area, but Phillips hung close—Poff carried Potter County 1,954-1,818. Besides Potter County, Poff carried only Armstrong and Donley counties in the 29-county district.

Phillips now faces Republican

Boulter, Phillips earn bigger-than-expected wins

Teel Bivins in the November general election.

Boulter, a two-term U.S. representative from Amarillo, won a 3-2 margin over Wes Gilbreath, a Houston billboard magnate who had captured a plurality in the Super Tuesday primary.

Gilbreath had used about $1 million of his own bankroll to earn name recognition through billboards, television spots and campaign trips across the state.

"I'm on the right side, the right team"

Boulter had no such bankroll, but apparently parlayed what he was able to spend statewide with endorsements from the two other candidates in the four-man March 8 primary—Milton Fox and Ned Snead—to grab an easier-than-expected win.

Gilbreath had counted on a whopping win in his home Houston area, but won only 51.5 percent of the vote. Boulter won the other major metropolitan areas handily, with 69 percent of the Dallas County vote, 65 percent of the Tarrant County vote, 66 percent of the Bexar County vote, and 91 percent of the vote in the Panhandle region.

Boulter immediately launched into his race against Bentsen—he left Amarillo today for a three-day, 19-city campaign swing.

"I'm confident I'm on the right side, on the right team," he said. "(Lloyd Bentsen) is on the wrong side with the wrong team. (Bentsen) may not be a wild-eyed liberal in his heart, but he votes with that team."

Bentsen, the three-term incumbent, is Boulter's November opponent. "I've been campaigning for several months," Bentsen said.

Schools accept low bid, examine transfer students

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board approved Tuesday the low bid of $229,700 from Reynosa Construction of Amarillo for renovation of the Hereford High School band hall, and will take a closer look at the school districts transfer students in the future.

The board had accepted bids March 31 for the renovation project, which is necessary because about 75 new band students will be in the program next fall when freshmen begin attending HHS. However, the school districts consulting architect, Tom Mills, had expressed reservations about Reynosa, citing the advice of "two or three other architects," according to Hereford superintendent Charles Greenawalt.

John and Robert Reynosa appeared Tuesday to ease the fears. "We feel confident we can complete the project by the time school starts," Robert Reynosa said. "We have been in business for 20 years."

"We haven't done a band hall before, but we have done add-ons and tying-in with other buildings, and we have never defaulted on a contract."

The Reynosas, in a letter to the board, said Mills' fears may have stemmed from one project, a $700,000 service center in Borger for Southwestern Public Service Co., where the contractors were delayed because site preparation was too months late and a major subcontractor went bankrupt.

The company has completed several major school projects, as well as other major construction, and is the No. 316-ranked Hispanic business in the nation with 1986 sales of over $5 million, according to the June 1987 edition of Hispanic Business.

"We are ready to proceed with the work at once and have already alerted subcontractors, suppliers and field personnel that will perform on the project," said John Reynosa.

The board, however, decided not to go ahead with restroom renovation and building a handicap-access ramp at the HHS auditorium, but is expected to reconsider those projects in the near future.

The board is worried about transfer students—children who live outside the district's boundaries but opt to attend school in Hereford—because the district is losing money on those students.

About 50 children are official transfers into the district—approved by the district after completing necessary paperwork. There are several others, school officials believe, who live outside the district but attend school in Hereford without getting approval.

"We spend $3,256 per student to educate each child," Greenawalt pointed out. "The state provides $1,840 per child, and the rest is picked up either through federal programs or by tax dollars.

"One of the problems is that the parents of those transfer students pay their school taxes in the district where they live."

The district is not considering not accepting students from the Walcott district, where students go to school through the eighth grade—and the district has an agreement with Walcott to accept those students. Options on other students, however, could include simply not allowing transfers, or charging tuition to cover the lack of tax dollars supporting those students.

"Right now, the taxpayer is picking up $652 of the per-student cost, but that could change if we lose federal funds," Greenawalt said. "We could charge tuition based on the amount our taxpayers are providing per-student in the district."

"In light of our budget and our space we need to look at transfers," said board member Shirley Wilson. "We don't have any extra chairs or extra floor space."

The district approved the transfer list for the 1988-89 school year, and the policy and personnel committee will look at future transfer policies.

That same committee will also consider applicants to fill the District II post being vacated by Jo Garcia, who has moved from the district and formally resigned her seat Tuesday.

County sick about jail health bills

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

It's said that crime doesn't pay, but for many Deaf Smith County inmates, being behind bars definitely had its benefits.

Deaf Smith County has been picking up the tab for prisoners' dental and medical bills, dishing out $999 for medical and dental bills in March alone.

But county commissioners have decided to inform all inmates and the medical community that they were washing their hands clean of the prisoners' future hospital and dental bills and letting the inmates and the Deaf Smith County Hospital District take on the responsibility instead.

In the notice, the commissioners said that inmates would be responsible for their own doctors, hospital and dental needs while in jail — if they aren't considered indigent. If they are indigent, reads the notice, the county "is not responsible for any indigent health care."

County Judge Tom Simons said this notice is "not to make things more difficult for the hospital district, but it's just not our responsibility (to pay for the health care bills). The taxpayer will still have to pay the indigent health care, but only one taxing entity is responsible, and it seems most likely that the hospital would take need to take care of it."

District Attorney Roland Saul said the hospital district is indeed responsible for indigent inmate's health care based on the Indigent Health Care and Treatment Act of 1986.

"Section 2.02 of that act states that the county is the payor of last resort and shall provide assistance only if other adequate public or private sources of payment are not available." The hospital district does exist, so the responsibility goes to the hospital," said Saul.

Deaf Smith County General Hospital administrator Gary Moore said he interprets the act differently.

"We're doing some checking into this right now," said Moore. "and we've contacted our lawyer to find out what the attorney general says about indigent health care payments.

"Section 3.01 (in the Indigent Health Care Act) says that the county is responsible for indigents' inpatient and outpatient hospital services, and that's what the hospital is going with until we get the attorney general's opinion," said Moore.

The section Moore referred to also states that the county must provide rural health clinics, lab and X-ray services, family planning services, physician services and payment for no more than three prescription drugs per month, and skilled nursing facilities.

"Yet in our hospital district's enabling legislation, it states 'The hospital district shall assume full responsibility for providing hospital care for indigents residing within the district,'" said Moore. "It's not simple."

Moore added that qualifying inmates as indigents might be hard to do since the standards are so high—or low, as the case may be.

For instance, an adult cannot qualify as an indigent unless he brings home less than $75 per month, and any property the inmate owns must figure into the $75.

Indigent or not, in March the county paid medical services for 11 inmates, and spent $304 in dental bills for four inmates.

According to Dr. Hap Caviness, a dentist to whom the inmates were sent, the inmates had swollen gums, infection or severe pain. "My records don't indicate that I did anything cosmetic to their teeth," said Caviness.

Determining whether or not these dental emergencies fall under medical care is a tough call.

"I don't know where I'd stick dental (care)," said Saul. "It's my understanding that Hap Caviness does work only that's necessary. I think that would fall under medical care."

Moore, however, said the dental work is not covered by medical care.

"Dental bills are not supposed to be listed under medical services, and medical services are (See INDIGENTS, Page 2)

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS
Can you believe Nate Newton, the offensive lineman for the Dallas Cowboys, weighs 345 pounds?

I have weighed a lot in my lifetime. Those of you who know me now may have trouble believing I have weighed more—much more—than I now weigh. Even as much as I weigh, and have weighed, I cannot imagine weighing 345 pounds.

Nate, as Cowboy fans know, is known as "The Kitchen." William Perry, the non-svelte nose-guard of the Chicago Bears, is known as "The Refrigerator."

With the onset of baseball season, Chris Berman of ESPN will invent some nicknames, like Andre "Awesome" Dawson, my favorite Hubie "Babbling" Brooks (I had it first!) and others that will filter down the airwaves through October.

Some other people should have nicknames, too. Like my mother, Leeida "The Washing Machine" Stephens. Earned her nickname by telling me thousands of times to "put on clean underwear."

Brixelman "The Joke Killer" Nobrainer. I didn't want to single out any names, but this is the guy everyone knows who never remembers the punch line—or worse, can't remember how the joke goes, but remembers the punch line.

Dr. Gary "Give 'Em The" Byrd. Dr. Byrd didn't like the way things were going at West Texas State University, so he, with some friends, launched a little underground newspaper to tell people what was going on at WTSU.

Ed "My Way Or The Highway" Roach. Just ask Ed, the president of WTSU. He'll tell you things are fine if things just get done his way. "Course, most of the faculty said they had "no confidence" in a vote last school year, long-time top administrators and teachers are leaving, and seniors are thinking twice about going to WT. Meanwhile, back at the presidential mansion, things are just fine with Ed.

David "Bridge Burner" Batchelder. Some of the things the former Mesa Petroleum executive said about Amarillo, like "Amarillo is a giant truck stop", are not very flattering. They may be true, but remain unflattering. David should make sure he is not within range of anti-aircraft guns should he ever fly over the city in the future.

My grandmother (and maybe yours)—Myril "Crisco" White. Granny is an excellent cook. She can fix anything—chicken, potatoes, asparagus, spaghetti and meatballs, broccoli and cheese, birthday cakes—as long as it's fried.

My accountant—Billy "A Thousand" Ache. It seems it doesn't matter what kind of year I, or the government, have had, it's going to cost the government about a thousand.

He's a good man to have around, especially this time of the year.

Going to Billy's office is unique. He has all kinds of magazines in his foyer, and every one of them are about travel.

If you go in and you're optimistic, you can see where you want to go to spend your upcoming windfall—Europe, Australia, Acapulco, Maine, or wherever.

If you're pessimistic about your chances, there are travel brochures written by people like Robert Vesco's friends about Aruba and Argentina, where they do take American Express but don't accept American government extradition papers.

Geraldo "The Scoop" Rivera. I think Geraldo is going to have another "exciting" escapade this week on television.

Geraldo brought us some famous firsts, like the empty vault of Al Capone and a drug bust on the wrong house.

Geraldo is now doing this talk show, syndicated nationally, about people and their problems (isn't that original?). I have yet to see the show, but I have seen the promotional announcements. Have you noticed the audience during these promos? Notice how they are mad, asleep, or both?

bb

It came up in the course of conversation this week.

Someone was complaining "about this Mexican kid who was majoring in Spanish in college," the person said.

"They speak it all of their lives. Why do they major in it?"

This is not the first time I have heard this being said, but for the first time I saw something funny about it, in my own twisted way.

More importantly, I finally saw the light.

"I wonder if Hispanics feel the same way about Anglo kids?"

I then broke into my best Cheech Marin impersonation.

"Lookit all them honkies. They speak English all their lives, study it for twelve years in school, get a degree in it in college, then come back and teach it for 50 years."

It brought a pretty big laugh, and I think maybe it made a couple of us gringos a little more aware of something else that maybe someday we'll all realize—just because we speak English from practically the time we're born until we die doesn't mean we know all about it. We study it to death (thank you, Thelma McMinn), and still abuse it.

If you've ever had the pleasure of conjugating a verb, you know you can also study Spanish to death. If you're going to use it, you might as well use it correctly.

Gore depending on winning New York Democrats debate issues

Underdog Albert Gore Jr. challenged Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson on Middle East issues during a debate in this final week before the crucial New York primary, while Vice President George Bush campaigned against the "ghost of Jimmy Carter."

The Democrats' debate Tuesday in New York City featured several sharp exchanges between Dukakis, the Democratic front-runner, and Gore, who needs a strong New York showing to revive his faltering candidacy.

At one point, Gore declared that Dukakis had sounded a note of "enthusiasm" about an independent Palestinian state. Gore also hit on Jackson on the same issue, saying he disagreed "with the way Jesse Jackson advocates a Palestinian state."

Dukakis retorted that Gore was just plain wrong. "I didn't express enthusiasm for a Palestinian state yesterday," he said.

For his part, Jackson did not back down from his support for a Palestinian homeland: "While we can guarantee secure borders, we cannot insure tranquility so long as there is occupation."

Gore and Dukakis have been courting Jewish voters while Jackson has been trying to mend fences with them. They traditionally make up a quarter of the turnout in New York Democratic primaries.

The primary next Tuesday is worth 255 delegates.

On Tuesday in the AP delegate count, Dukakis had 750.15 votes; Jackson, 713.1; Gore, 396.8 and uncommitted, 506.7. Bush rubbed elbows with the rich and famous, attending a $1,000-a-plate fund-raiser in New York City put on by wealthy developer Donald Trump. Bush also struck a presidential pose by tossing out the first baseball at a Mets game.

Today he was going after the black vote while visiting a public school in East Harlem before campaign trips stops in Buffalo and Rochester.

Bush said in a speech in Syracuse that he had no problem "running against the ghost of Jimmy Carter." "Do you want Americans to go back to those terrible days of malaise and darkness?" he asked.

Explaining to reporters why he was campaigning against Carter, who left office in 1981, Bush said it was "because the policies of the Democrats will take us right back to the high interest rates and the double-digit inflation of the Carter years."

Bush also said he hopes indicted former White House aides John Poindexter and Oliver North are exonerated in the Iran-Contra affair, but he refused to say whether he would pardon either if he became president.

"A pardon imputes guilt," he said. "And the American system after all is 'innocent until proven guilty.'"

"I'm not going to get into that," he added.

Letter to the Editor

Dear editor:
In recent days, several citizens of our community have contacted me concerning telephone solicitation made to them in behalf of Special Olympics.

According to the information given in the solicitation, 67% of all the monies raised comes back to assist the local special citizens attend Special Olympics.

I have worked with these special citizens through our public school and through the Hereford Satellite Center for 20 years which includes working closely with the Special Olympics programs. I can assure you that, to my knowledge, never has the local school or Satellite Center received any funding to assist in attendance at the State Special Olympics events. I contacted the Texas Special Olympics in Austin, and was informed that this information is in error.

There was a contract for telephone solicitation with a firm in Fort Worth and the National Special Olympics Foundation, but to their knowledge, no fund were received back to the local community or to the State of Texas.

I believe the people of our Community need to be aware of this, and I would like them to know if they wished to assist the local with financial support, this can be done through the Hereford Satellite Center.

all that's required (for the county or hospital to pay)," said Moore. "Medicaid doesn't even cover dental care."

While the hospital and county attempts a solution, Commissioner Johnny Latham has suggested using the South Plains Health Provider Organization instead of private doctors.

SPHPO would charge an inmate according to his income and the state would subsidize the rest.

"Making the inmate pay for his own medical bills might solve a lot of our problems with people trying to get free medical help," said Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown. "I've had people who get drunk, get thrown in jail for a little while, and have their health problems taken care of for free."

heard that Lucero was in town and spotted him riding in a car. Lucero was apparently living with his relatives in Clovis, N.M., since the warrant was issued for his arrest, said Ahrens.

He is now in the Deaf Smith County Jail with bond set at $24,000.

Other arrests include a 58-year-old woman on charges of driving with a suspended license, no liability insurance (second offense), running a stop sign and violation of driver's license restriction A; and Deaf Smith County sheriff's office arrested a woman, 21, on charges of simple assault.

Offenses include a suspicious person reported at Lake Street and U.S. Highway 385; charges filed in Municipal Court against a 35-year-old woman on an assault charge; a 16-year-old boy was reported missing since April 9; a black toy poodle was stolen from a the 100 block of South Ranger Avenue; a domestic dispute was reported in the 500 block of Whittier Street;

A window in a kitchen door was broken in the 300 block of Avenue J and a husband is filing charges against his wife for kicking him and hitting him in the nose.

Thirteen citations were issued, and no fire calls nor accidents were reported.

Clarification

In Tuesday's story about the February sales tax rebate, the story said the city's sales tax rate had gone to 1.5 percent on January 1.

Actually, the city's rate is still one percent, and the total rebate does not reflect the one-half percent tax that was imposed by Deaf Smith County.

From Deaf Smith County's one-half percent sales tax it received $19,703 this month, and has received $30,547 for the year.

Patterson said. "We hate to leave Hereford and our friends, but I know I'm leaving the Hereford schools in good hands."

The board also approved board of trustee goals, the summer school program, use of school facilities for a city-wide religious crusade in June, passed a resolution making the district eligible to participate in tax abatement in the future, and signed an absentee voting agreement with the county clerk's office.

School

The board could decide to leave the seat vacant or appoint someone to serve for the next year. An election would be held in 1989 to fill the position for another year, when the term would normally expire.

"We would like to find the highest-qualified person that is interested in the position," said board president John Fuston. Persons wishing to be considered should send a resume and letter indicating why they are interested to the school administration building before May 10.

Attending his last meeting was District I member Bud Patterson, who is moving to Sterling, Colo. Board members presented him with a plaque honoring him for his service.

"You've spent a lot of time a lot of people wouldn't spend for the betterment of our kids," Fuston told Patterson.

"I've enjoyed the time I've spent in Hereford and on the school board,"

Hereford plays second place Dunbar Saturday

Herd scores 18-6 victory over Dumas

The Hereford Whiteface baseball team upped its District 1-4A record to 8-1 and its season record to 15-1 Tuesday by defeating Dumas 18-6 in an error-filled game at Dumas.

Hereford hosts Lubbock Dunbar

Saturday at 1 p.m. in a battle of the top two teams in the district. Dunbar defeated Frenship 10-3 Tuesday and is 7-2 in the district.

The Whitefaces pounded out 16 hits compared to two for Dumas.

Hereford committed 10 errors, and James Hernandez, Hernandez batted in two runs with his hit.

The bases were loaded on a pair of walks. A strikeout coupled with a passed ball on the strikeout allowed Hereford to score one run.

Russell Backus batted in a run with a single, and a second run was scored on that play on an error. The sixth HHS run was scored on a wild pitch.

Dumas scored two runs in the bottom of the first on one hit and four Hereford errors.

In the top of the second, Hereford had runners on second and third, including Collier who doubled. Roger McCracken and Hernandez both hit RBI groundouts to made Hereford's lead 8-2.

A grand slam home run enabled Dumas to slice the lead to 8-6 in the bottom of the second.

Hereford used two walks and three hits to score three runs in the third inning. Jason Scott singled, Keith Collier, Roger McCracken and Michael Phibbs hit a bases-empty home run.

With two men on base in the fourth, including Bill Ruckman who had singled, Backus hit a sacrifice bunt. An error was committed on the throw to first base, and one run scored. Brown followed with an RBI single, and Phibbs hit an RBI groundout, giving Hereford a 14-6 lead.

Four hits and two errors resulted in four more Whiteface runs in the fifth inning. Hernandez and Ruckman both singled, Backus hit an RBI single, and Brown hit a two-run double.

Keith Brown was three for five with five RBIs, putting his season batting average above .400 for the first time, at .404. Robby Collier went three for four to up his team-leading batting average to .560.

Roger McCracken and James Hernandez were both two for four, and Bill Ruckman and Russell Backus were both two for two. Hernandez had three RBIs and Backus had two RBIs.

Clint Cotten was the starting pitcher for Hereford, going one and two thirds innings before being relieved by Hernandez. All six of the Dumas runs were unearned off Cotten, who had three strikeouts and walked two batters.

Hernandez did not allow any hits in three and one third innings of work. He struck out seven batters and walked two.

"We hit the ball real well and James did a good job pitching. No hits and seven strikeouts will work most times for you," Hereford Coach T.R. Sartor said.

Consumers can resolve their complaints

When you have a problem with a product or service, what do you do? Forget about it, complain to your friends or seek recourse?

According to Bonnie L. Piernot, a consumer economics specialist, few people try to get satisfaction when they have a complaint.

"Unfortunately, consumers often believe their complaints won't be heard, or they don't know who to contact," she says.

"In general, the best place to start is at the place where you bought the item or service. If you aren't satisfied with the response in a reasonable amount of time, however, don't give up, since you have other options for resolving the problem."

Piernot, who is a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says there are many sources available for resolving consumer complaints.

"Many national companies have corporate consumer affairs offices to answer questions or handle complaints. Often these offices will have a toll-free 800 number for consumers to call," she explains.

"If you can't resolve a problem with an automobile dealer, check with the manufacturer, since most have regional offices for handling consumer complaints," she adds.

According to the specialist, there are 17 non-profit Better Business Bureaus in Texas. Many of the BBBs accept written complaints and will contact a firm on your behalf.

In addition, the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office operates offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio. Dallas and Harris Counties have Consumer Fraud Divisions and the cities of Dallas and Ft. Worth have Consumer Affairs offices.

"Local libraries typically have reference materials that can guide you in your efforts to resolve consumer complaints," Piernot says. "For example, they will have books listing trade associations and occupational and professional licensing boards, many of which handle consumer problems."

The specialist notes that one of the best sources of assistance, the "Consumer's Resource Handbook," is published by the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs and available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Master cheeseburger cookery

Cheeseburgers aren't what they used to be—simply a slice of cheese atop a ground beef patty. Today, the American Favorite boasts delicious combinations of cheeses, meats, seasonings, breads and condiments, limited only by the imagination.

For the perfect cheeseburger, start with ground beef or other ground meats such as veal, pork, lamb, chicken or turkey, alone or in combination. Shape into patties; add favorite herbs and seasonings as desired.

To transform the basic burger into the ultimate cheeseburger, you can: Mix shredded cheese such as Cheddar, Monterey Jack or Swiss into the ground meat mixture before cooking (about 1/2 or 3/4 cup of cheese to 1 pound of meat). Shape burger around cheese. Use crumbled Blue, or cubes of Cheddar, Swiss, Mozzarella or Brie. (Be sure to completely seal edges of the burger around cheese to prevent cheese from melting out during cooking.)

Top cooked burger with cheese, sliced or shredded; allow cheese to melt before serving. And be adventurous. Try some of the popular flavored cheeses—pepper, garlic, caraway, herb, smoked—as well as old favorites.

Burgers may be grilled, broiled or panfried, but whatever method you select, the key to a juicy, succulent burger is not to overcook. A burger made with beef, lamb and veal may be cooked to the medium stage, still pink inside, but if poultry or pork are used, it should be cooked completely with no pink remaining.

To broil, place burgers on broiler pan, 3 to 4 inches from heat source.

Cook to desired doneness, turning once.

-To charcoal grill, place burgers on rack about 6 inches above medium-hot coals. Cook to desired doneness turning once. Try adding hickory or mesquite chips to the coals for flavor variation.

-To panfry, heat heavy skillet until hot; place burgers in a skillet. Cook over medium heat to desired doneness, turning once.

And don't forget the breads and condiments to complement the cheeses and meats. The plain hamburger bun has joined company with other interesting breads and rolls including pumpernickel, onion, whole wheat, multi-grain, even French bread, English muffins and bagels. Condiment choices range from the ubiquitous catsup and mustard to sour cream, flavored mustards, salsas, relishes and more.

These tempting cheeseburger combinations will spur your imagination to try other palate-pleasing creations.

Southwest Burger—Place burger on toasted roll or flour tortilla. Top with sliced Monterey Jack, Monterey Jack jalapeno pepper or sharp Cheddar. Add salsa and chopped avocado. Serve open-face.

Pizza Burger—Place burger on toasted Italian bread slice; top with shredded Mozzarella cheese and prepared pizza sauce. Top with second slice of bread.

Burger Italiano—Add grated Parmesan cheese, chopped onion, minced garlic and dried oregano to meat before cooking. Spread Italian bread slice with pesto mustard. Top with burger, slices of Provolone and Mozzarella and tomato. Serve open-face.

Chutney Burger—Place burger on toasted onion roll. Top with softened cream cheese and chutney. Garnish with chopped red or yellow pepper.

Caraway Delight—Place burger on toasted pumpernickel roll. Add dollop of Dusseldorf mustard. Top with sauteed onions and slice of caraway cheese.

Garden Burger—Spread Dijon-style mustard and sour cream on whole wheat roll. Top with leaf lettuce and burger. Add slices of Colby and Brick cheese, sliced tomatoes, cucumber and red pepper.

Basil Burger—Place burger on Italian bread slice. Top with slice of Mozzarella, strips of fresh basil and thin tomato wedges.

Blue 'n Bacon—Place burger on toasted Kaiser roll; top with crumbled Blue cheese, crumbled cooked bacon and chopped green onion.

Boston Burger—Spread brown bread slice with honey mustard. Top with burger, baked beans and slice of American cheese.

THE NATION'S FIRST CAPITAL
NEW YORK (AP)—From 1785 to 1790, New York City was the capital of the United States.

The old Federal Hall, at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets, was the seat of government. The first Congress met there Feb. 4, 1789, and on April 30 that year George Washington was sworn in on its balcony as the first president under the new Constitution.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you print this, you will be performing a great service for millions of parents and their children.

Three years ago I married a man who had two sons, 13 and 16. I was unprepared to be a stepmother, but of one thing I was certain. I would not let the children get the upper hand. I would remain in charge.

Our conversations were filled with awkward periods of silence. When I spoke to the boys it was always a question: "Is your room clean?" Is your homework done?" "Have you fed the dog?" Never did I ask, "What's on your mind?" "How are you getting along in school?" "You look worried. Do you want to talk about it?" or even, "How are you?"

I assumed the role of watchdog and dictator. Their father was already doing a pretty good job, but when he saw how dogmatic and strict I was, he eased up and I became the disciplinarian in the family.

Was I loved? No! Respected! No! Feared? You'd better believe it. There was a big distance between us and I knew it. I believed that was the way to keep them in line.

One night I heard the younger boy say, "You can't love a sourpuss. She never laughs or smiles around us. We are like soldiers in her private army. If she really loved us she wouldn't treat us this way."

I froze in my tracks. They were right. I realized that I had never hugged the boys or spoken softly to them. I behaved like a sergeant. I took care of their material needs, but I never gave them friendship or mothering. I asked myself, how could I have been so blind?

Later that night I went to their room and asked them how they had stood me for so long. They were flabbergasted. They hugged me and said if their dad loved me there must be good in me somewhere, and some softness, but they had never seen it.

The older boy asked if my mom was cold to me. I was shocked. She was. Suddenly I realized that I had been treating the boys the way my mother had treated me. Then I had a good cry.

From that day on everything changed—my attitude toward them and theirs toward me. I'm still the disciplinarian, but now there's a lot of affection and we are all much more relaxed and a great deal happier. Sign me—Never Too Old to Learn

DEAR NEVER: Thank you for pointing out that discipline administered lovingly is the key to a good parent-child relationship. Your story is a poignant one, and many parents are bound to learn from it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister is having an affair with a friend of her husband. This is not gossip. I saw them, but they didn't see me. I'm certain that my brother-in-law does not know about it. They have two wonderful children.

Should I stand by and wait for my sister to destroy her family? Should I scare the hell out of the other man by threatening to tell his wife? Should I tell my brother-in-law?

I wish I never had found this out. It frightens me to have this knowledge. I want to do the right thing, but what is it?—Strictly Anonymous

DEAR S. ANON: Go directly to your sister and tell her in a loving way that you know what is going on. Be non-judgmental but direct. Usually I advise people to MYOB, but in this case I think it's worth the shot. Good luck.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs and drug use, Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," will give you the answers. Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

'The Curious Savage'

Gililand to appear in comedy

The classic comedy, 'The Curious Savage' will open Thursday at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre and will feature a Hereford resident.

Amy Gililand will play the part of Florence. She is president of the Hereford Chamber Singers which will travel to Australia in June to perform at World Expo 88.

The play is about Mrs. Savage. She has been let 10 million dollars by her husband, and wants to make the best use of it, in spite of the efforts of her grown-up stepchildren to get their hands on it. Since they can't "get their hands on her wealth" they have her committed to a "sanatorium."

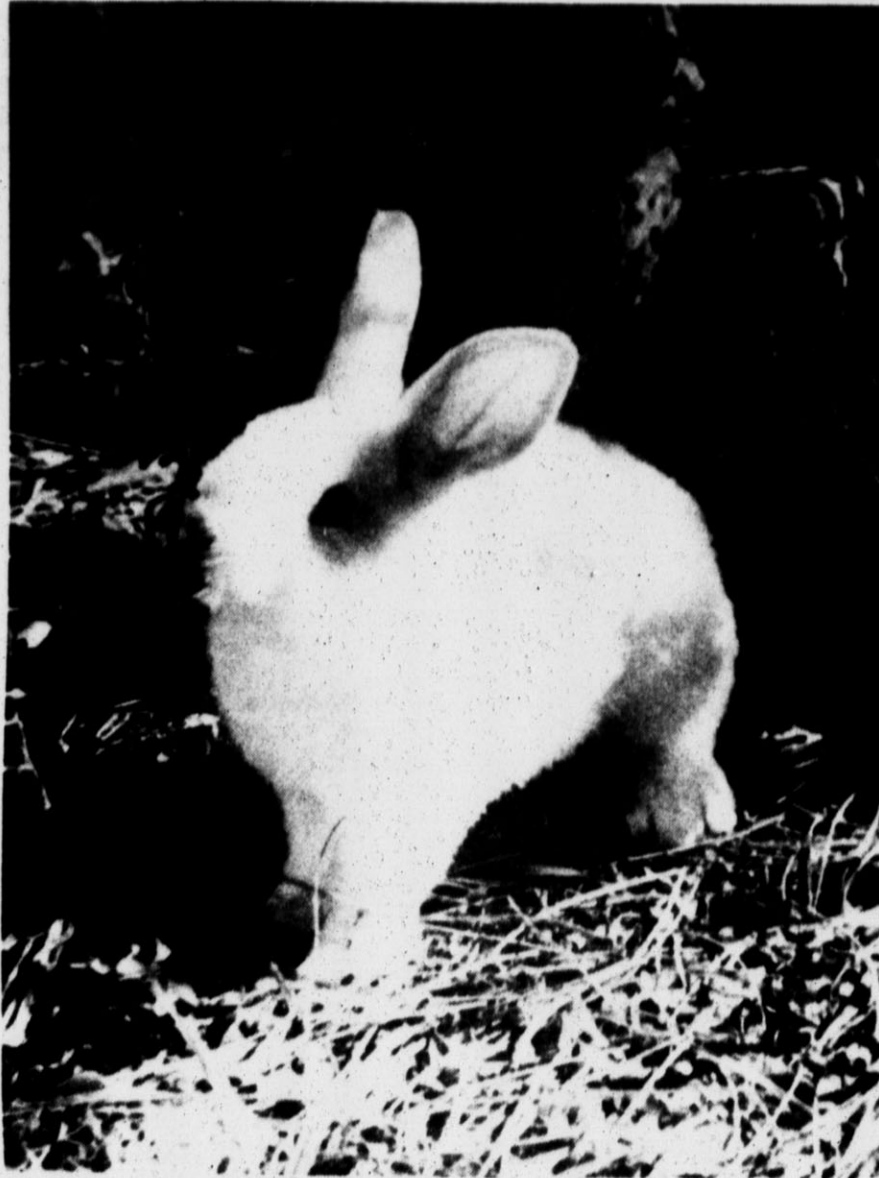

Mrs. Savage is determined to establish a fund to help others realize their hopes and dreams.

The dominant mood is high comedy, and the audience is left with a feeling that the neglected virtues of kindness and affection have not been entirely lost in a world that seems motivated at times only by greed and dishonesty.

Bea Vary from Albuquerque will appear as Mrs. Ethel Savage. Audiences will remember her from 'Harvey' and 'The Foreigner'.

Maura Soden from Los Angeles will play the part of Fairy May. She was last seen on the Squire stage in 'The Girl In The Freudian Slip' and 'South Pacific.'

Tami Davis Logsdon has appeared in numerous productions and was last seen in 'The Odd Couple' (female

MORE AMERICANS

STUDY ABROAD

NEW YORK (AP) - A census of 3,000 American colleges and universities reports that 48,483 students earned academic credit for study outside the United States in 1985-86.

The study was conducted by the Institute of International Education, which in another report on U.S. campus policy toward overseas learning showed the 1980s have been a time of explosive growth in study-abroad programs for American students.

"The rapid growth of the overseas study movement seems likely to continue," says Dr. Richard Krasno, president of the IIE. "Study abroad has become an important part of a liberal education."

Hints from Heloise

SPECIAL VIDEOS

Dear Readers: I would like to tell you about a special sharing of holidays, birthdays and special events that my family has done for the past few years.

My uncle has always been knowledgeable about video equipment. He purchased one of the first video recorders with a built-in microphone. Since that time everyone in the family has become a video ham. My uncle tapes family gatherings and we all sit down at the end of the day and enjoy another hour or more of watching each other on tape; it is truly an enjoyable time. We even have a library of past tapes that we can watch over and over again.

During events when the whole family cannot be together, we make a duplicate tape and send it to our missing loved ones. This gives all of us the chance to say hello, wish them well and to share our celebration with them.

One such tape of Thanksgiving and Christmas made my sister so homesick that she moved with her family closer to home. — Heloise's Secretary

DRESSING TABLE

Dear Heloise: When baby has outgrown the dressing table, move the table into the laundry room.

The uses for it there are endless. The top of the dressing table is usually vinyl and this is a great place to work on those stubborn stains that need pre-wash treatment.

You can also use it as a folding table for clothes right out of the dryer. I have used the drawers and open compartments to store fine washables until I can get to them. There is even one compartment saved just for odd socks until their mates show up.

This keeps my laundry room tidy and the top of the washer and dryer clutter-free. — Mrs. Cheryl Herbert, La Place, La.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Cornelia "Super Deb" Guest and Sylvester "Rambo" Stallone unite in matrimony, creating a gossip columnist's dream couple? Corny says no; her mom and Sly's mom say they wouldn't mind.
"We are not getting married. I'm only 24 years old. And I do not have a crystal ball," said Miss Guest, the goddaughter of Winston Churchill who is trying to parlay her social glitter into an acting career.
The romance between Miss Guest and Stallone has been fodder for gossip columnists for months. Miss Guest's mother, socialite C.Z. Guest, says she thinks a marriage would be "wonderful. He's terrific, a big achiever, and he works very hard — well, he's obviously quite a guy."
In Vanity Fair's May issue, Stallone's mother, Jackie, said she wouldn't object to a marriage either, after witnessing her son's two broken marriages. "I've seen worse, with my daughter-in-laws."

PETERBORO, N.H. (AP) — William Styron, author of "Sophie's Choice" and other prize-winning fiction, will receive the 1988 Edward MacDowell Medal "for his unique insight and vision of the American novel," a writer's group said.
Styron, 62, is being recognized for his novels, articles and essays, including the 1967 book "The Confessions of Nat Turner," which won a Pulitzer Prize, and "Sophie's Choice," which won the 1980 American Book Award.
"Through his works, he has helped us understand man's limitations. He has taught us lessons about the human condition, about how to survive, about right and wrong," Mary Carswell, executive director of the MacDowell Colony for artists, said Monday.
The MacDowell Colony is an artist's retreat founded in 1907 by composer Edward MacDowell and his wife, Marian.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Grammy-winning jazz guitarist Larry Carlton is slowly recuperating after being shot in the neck by two teen-age intruders, but police have failed to identify the suspects or their motive, a detective said.
"The last I heard he was still in stable condition, and seems to be better the last couple days," Detective Rick Swanston said Monday.
Carlton, 40, underwent four hours of surgery for a single gunshot wound to the neck when he was brought to St. Joseph Medical Center in Burbank after Wednesday's attack at his Hollywood Hills home. He was later transferred to an undisclosed hospital for security reasons.
Carlton won a Grammy this year for best pop instrumental for his version of the Doobie Brothers' "Minute By Minute." In 1981, he shared a Grammy with pianist Mike Post for the theme to "Hill Street Blues."
Police have not been able to identify the shooting suspects, Swanston said.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Steven Ford wanted to be a cowboy and stay out of the public eye when his father became president, but he ended up pursuing an acting career after Gerald R. Ford himself left the limelight.
Ford, who was 18 when his father succeeded Richard Nixon in 1974, said he had little interest in attending state dinners and other White House functions.
"I left home and spent most of my time out west in Montana, Utah and Idaho," he said at a recent appearance here.
Ford, 31, said he had been on the professional rodeo circuit for about two years when he landed a job as a stunt man in Mexico. Later, he played in the daytime soap opera "The Young and the Restless" for seven years.
"It wasn't hard to see where the money was," he said.

JONESBORO, Maine (AP) — Actor Tom Selleck stopped his new Ford Bronco at Woodward's General

Store and Crafts Center on a remote highway here to buy supplies and make an announcement.
"Hello, I'm your new neighbor," Selleck told Ted Woodward, the 17-year-old son of owner Bill Woodward.
Although residents in this eastern Maine community seemed aware that the star of the television series "Magnum P.I." had acquired a large chunk of shorefront property at Mount Misery, other details of Selleck's visit on Sunday seemed elusive.
If Selleck, whose Hawaii-based TV series is in its last season, is searching for seclusion, Jonesboro is a good choice. The town, settled in 1763 and long known for its granite quarries, has a population of 550.

MIAMI (AP) — Princess Caroline of Monaco is here for a carefully scripted visit sponsored by the Miami City Ballet, but not everyone is happy about it. In fact, some chicken farmers are royally miffed.
The farmers began squawking when they found out the Hotel Inter-Continental here is flying in 300 California-bred, free-range chickens for the princess' gala supper and reception Thursday. She arrived Tuesday.

"Lordy be. Whoever heard of importing free-range chickens from California when we got great chickens that are raised right here in Florida?" asked Charles Womble, manager at Draper's Poultry in Jacksonville. "What's wrong with our chickens anyway?"
Many people believe a free-range chicken tastes better than one grown in a controlled atmosphere because it is a "happier chicken that is allowed to exercise and eat whatever it wants," said Florida Poultry Federation spokeswoman Valinda Parsons.
But Womble doesn't believe a happier chicken is necessarily a tastier chicken.
"Chickens that roam free will eat anything they can get their beaks on and sometimes that means dirt or manure," said Womble. "I hate to scare the princess but manure brings bacteria to a chicken's stomach. Chicken growing in a controlled atmosphere on the other hand are eating good, clean food."

The Miami City Ballet gala will raise money for Les Ballets de Monte Carlo.
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Country music singer Roy Acuff and the late Williams B. Williams, a veteran radio announcer, are the newest radio greats to be included in the National Association of Broadcasters' Broadcasting Hall of Fame Award.
The two were honored Monday at the NAB convention here for their contribution to radio entertainment.
On Sunday, Lucille Ball and Milton Berle were inducted into the Hall of Fame in recognition of their work as "true industry pioneers" in television.

Britain's Queen Victoria was crowned in 1838.

Algerians talk with determined hijackers

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algerian officials met for direct talks with Shiite Moslem hijackers early today after a Kuwaiti jumbo jet commandeered nine days ago landed in this North African country with about 35 hostages aboard.

Algerian Interior Minister Hedi Khediri visited the Kuwaiti Airways jet twice and told reporters he received assurances that the gunmen would "use no violence" on Algerian territory.

The gunmen, who have killed two passengers, freed 12 hostages in Cyprus Tuesday before the plane took off for Algeria. Three members of the extensive Kuwaiti royal family remain aboard the Boeing 747. Khediri said he had been told there were 32 passengers aboard the plane and that he had seen five or six hijackers.

"But I don't know their exact number," he said, adding that the hijackers appeared "calm but determined."

Previous reports put the number of hijackers at six to eight.

Khediri said the hijackers repeated their demand for the release of 17 pro-Iranian extremists jailed in Kuwait for terrorist attacks.

Asked if the hijackers still planned to kill hostages as they have threatened, Khediri said: "I cannot answer this question because doing so would complicate my efforts and could even compromise them."

He said the passengers were in good condition.

"I believe they (the hijackers) know what they are doing. They gave me the impression of being extremely determined. They are awaiting an answer from the Kuwaiti delegation," he said, adding that he would present their position to Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Saoud Al-Assemi when he arrives.

Al-Assemi and a number of other government officials left Kuwait today for Algiers, the Kuwaiti news agency reported.

The hijackers, who are armed with grenades and guns, earlier denied a report that the hostages and the plane would be turned over in Algiers.

The blue and white jet, which the gunmen have called the "plane of martyrdom," landed in Algiers at 3:07 a.m. today (10:07 p.m. EDT Tuesday) after sitting for five days on the tarmac of the airport in Larnaca, Cyprus.

Algeria's official APS news agency said talks between the hijackers and Algerian authorities began at 4:50 a.m. (11:50 p.m. EDT Tuesday).

Khediri, in a convoy of three cars, visited the aircraft at that time. The plane is isolated on the tarmac of Houari Boumediene airport 400 yards from the terminal. Khediri left 10 minutes later and the hijackers demanded "several minutes of tranquility."

Negotiations resumed at 8 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT), when Khediri entered the aircraft again for about 30 minutes. As he left the plane, the door was shut behind him and the gangway moved away.

Khediri was reportedly accompanied by Transport Minister Rachid Benyelles and the head of state security, Abdelmadjid Bouzbid.

In a front-page story in today's editions, the independent Kuwaiti daily al-Qabas quoted unidentified sources as saying that "a leading personality is among the hijackers ... most probably Imad Mughniyeh, the No. 1 man in planning and implementing hijackings and explosions in Lebanon and Europe."

Al-Qabas said Mughniyeh is believed to have boarded the jetliner at Mashhad, Iran, where the plane first landed last week after being hijacked.

It quoted sources as saying they believed the 26-year-old Mughniyeh, who was born in the south Lebanese village of Dair Daba, commanded the operation personally because one of the convicted 17 in Kuwait is a relative of his wife.

Cyprus government spokesman Akis Fantis told reporters on Tuesday that his government had received assurances from unspecified "sources in Algiers" that the hostages and the plane would be released in Algeria.

However, just before the jet left Larnaca one hijacker said by radio: "We deny what has been reported by radios and the media that we are ready to hand the plane to anyone. We refuse to do that, until martyrdom."

He made no reference to the hostages.

Former aides say quotes invalid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential press secretaries say they're astonished that former White House spokesman Larry Speakes would attribute faked quotations to President Reagan, and at least one wants to know why Reagan did nothing about it.

"The thing that bothers me is not so much that Larry Speakes did it, but that a president would let him get away with it," said George Reedy, one of President Johnson's press secretaries.

"A presidential quote has to be a presidential quote; if not, it is historically invalid," said Ron Ziegler, who was press secretary to President Nixon.

"I think it's inexcusable to put quotes in the mouth of the president that he didn't say," said Ron Nessen, President Ford's second press secretary.

The current presidential spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, said Tuesday the furor over Speakes' revelations demonstrates "why it's wrong, why he shouldn't have done it, and why I won't do it."

He said the president was upset to learn of Speakes' admission and "does not approve of making up statements or of misleading in any way."

Speakes, however, said in an interview Tuesday that he told the president at the time what he had done and Reagan "never objected."

Speakes discusses the false quotations in his book "Speaking Out." In it, he says he attributed words spoken by Secretary of State George P. Shultz to the president on one occasion. On another, he says, he credited the president with remarks that he and an aide made up.

Reedy, now Nieman professor of journalism at Marquette University in Milwaukee, said in a telephone interview, "It bothers me very much that the president would allow somebody to come through and put words in his mouth."

Reedy said the misattributed Shultz remarks, which followed the shooting down of a Korean Air Lines passenger plane in 1983, and the made-up quotations, attributed to Reagan at the Geneva summit in 1985, "are fairly harmless, but that's not the point."

"Suppose those words got the United States embroiled in some real crisis of some sort," he said. "It's one thing if the president makes a mistake and gets the nation in a crisis, but to have a statement drawn up by a technician with the president's name stamped on it to get us into a crisis is too much."

Ziegler said, "Every time I quoted President Nixon in direct quotes, that he said something to someone else, he said it. My position is a presidential quote must be a presidential quote and they cannot be manufactured."

Gerald ter Horst, who preceded Nessen as Ford's press secretary, said, "One does not manufacture events and then portray them as something that happened, if in fact it didn't."

Speakes had no reaction to White House statements. "I'd be better off not to comment," he said in a telephone interview from New York, where he is vice president for communications at Merrill Lynch Corp.

He offered no apologies, saying "It's an honest book."

The former spokesman said the two instances of phony quotes he cited "were the only two that I specifically recall. ... It was a case of knowing the president well and knowing how he felt about the events taking place and knowing what he would say."

Tanker remains in Gulf

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A crude oil tanker with four dead crewmen aboard remained at sea overnight, tied up to another tanker providing it electrical power while towing was arranged.

The four crewmen aboard the 865-foot Argo Iduna died Tuesday afternoon in a boiler room explosion that occurred as the vessel transferred a load of crude oil to smaller ships for transport to shore, said Coast Guard Lt. Bob Carson in New Orleans.

At the time, the vessel was about 75 miles southeast of Galveston. The Coast Guard said it did not know the cause of the explosion, nor the names of the dead.

Four other crewmen injured in the blast were airlifted aboard two Coast Guard helicopters for treatment at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, where they arrived Tuesday night, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Anthony Rodrigues, 26, and J.R. Yadav, 29, who both suffered superficial burns were treated and released Tuesday night, said hospital spokeswoman Leeann Teymour. Remesh Chend, 30, was in fair condition with burns; Ramesh Kumar, 29, was in good condition with a rib injury, Ms. Teymour said.

The ship was of British registry and its home port was Hong Kong, said Coast Guard Petty Officer 2nd Class Ron Mench in New Orleans. He identified the ship's U.S. agent as Deep Sea of Galveston. The company is not listed in Galveston telephone directories.
