DOLLAR AND DYESS

This is no law firm; they're busy crafting handmade spurs, bits and fine jewelry

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

It's a piece of raw, really ugly-looking flat steel. Give Wayne Dollar and Wayne Dyess a couple of hours with that steel, and they can have it gleaming, shiny, a piece of art.

Most of their art will never be admired in a gallery or a frame. Most of their art will be on the heel of a cowboy's boot, or in a horse's mouth.

The two craftsmen take their pieces of raw metal and turn them into spurs, bits and other paraphernalia for area cowboys and their mounts.

Dollar got interested in making spurs several years ago while living in Adrian.

"I had a gas station up there and I'd stay real busy in the summer with all the traffic on the interstate," dollar said. "During the winter, though, it was real slow. I had a lot of time on my hands."

Dollar had always had an interest in metallurgy and cowboying. He threw the two together. "Since things were so slow I just started working in the garage at the station," Dollar said. "I made about 10 pair of spurs and just gave them away. I charged people for the next 10 pair but never got paid."

The gas station is now in someone else's hands. Dollar's hands are busy grinding, filing and intricately engraving spurs.

Dyess is the more formally-trained of the two. He first started making spurs, bits and shanks while at West Texas State University, crafting items for friends. His interest was so spurred that he went to a special two-year school in Idaho that teaches the art of western metal working.

The bits are harder to make than the spurs. Each hole in the bit and shank must be filed out by hand, and must be the proper size.

Their shop, on the north side of Wilson's Market on 25 Mile Avenue in Hereford, resembles an old blacksmith's shop in many respects. There's also plenty of leatherworking done, and the earrings and necklaces and buckles in the corner give it a different atmosphere, too.

The jewelry is in a special display case and also has the artists' personal touches. Each piece is hand-done, from the forming of the nooks and crannies to the meticulous hand engraving. Some of the engraving is done with an electric tool, but most of it is done by hand with a small hammer and fine chisel.

Each piece of jewelry, like the bits and spurs, also carries the distinctive Dollar and Dyess brand: a pair of dice (for Dyess) and a dollar sign (for Dollar). Each piece, whether jewelry, bits or spurs, is also hand-numbered.

"We just do that to add a little more personal touch," Dollar said. "With the numbers, they'll know when we did it, how many we've done since we partnered up last February. Who knows, 50 years from now those numbers might mean something."

"They also let them know we didn't just make a bunch of them out of some machine or something. You can get good stuff from mass manufacturers, but we know that our stuff is better."

For premium quality comes a premium price. A pair of spurs goes for anywhere from $125 to $300, and bits go for about the same price.

"So you can get your $300 spurs on, get your $300 bit and put it on your $400 horse," joked Dyess.

The men are happy with their business, which is booked solid through Christmas and taking orders for next year already. They also want to keep a distinctive western flavor to the place.

"We're going to have a cowboy trading day Sunday," dollar said. "We just want cowboys to come in, kind of like the old days, and just spread out their blankets and offer for trade things they want to trade. Maybe they will find something else they want and make a trade."

"But we're not taking any '74 Buicks or old refrigerators or anything like that. Just cowboys tradin' cowboy stuff."

Grinding away

Wayne Dollar grinds a metal shank that will be used for a pair of spurs, all made by hand.

Filing them down

Wayne Dyess uses a hand file to finish out a channel in a shank for a handmade horse's bit.

Census reveals changes

After four decades of hefty population increases in Deaf Smith County, the census count declined in 1990.

And, there were substantial changes in the racial composition of the county, as well as Texas and the nation, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Deaf Smith County's population declined by 9.5 percent from 21,665 in 1980 to 19,153 in 1990. The Texas census increased by 19.4 percent during the period, while the U.S. population increased by 9.8 percent from 226,545,805 in 1980 to 248,709,873 in 1990.

The census figures for 1990 show the Hispanic population of Deaf Smith County increased from 8,606 in 1980 to 9,356 in 1990, or an 8.7 percent hike. The decline in population came with a loss of 3,181 Anglos over the period--down to 9,402, and a loss of 81 in Blacks and native Americans. Asians increased from 14 to 39 during the decade.

Hispanics were 40.7 percent of the county's population in 1980 and 48.8 percent by 1990. Anglos constituted 49 percent of the county population in 1990; Blacks were 1.6 percent. (See CENSUS, Page 3A)

Special vote day is Sunday

Early voting will be open in Deaf Smith County Sunday on 13 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution.

The Sunday voting hours, 1 to 5 p.m., are the response to a petition filed this month with County Clerk David Ruland. Ruland said 136 ballots have been cast since early voting began on Oct. 16.

Voting will continue in the county clerk's office in the courthouse from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day through Friday for the Nov. 5 election.

"I don't have any idea how many people will come in on Sunday," Ruland said, adding that turnout has been light in weekend voting in previous elections.

The petition calling for Sunday voting was filed by the Rev. Dr. Ron Cook, pastor of First Baptist Church of Hereford. When he filed, he said the goal for opening the polls on Sunday is to draw attention to Proposition 11 on the ballot, the state lottery issue.

High attendance day in churches of the Baptist General Convention of Texas might be expected to attract more voters, opponents of the lottery have said.

Texas voters will decide on 13 amendments to the already often-amended state Constitution.

Time change Sunday

If you've remembered to set your clock back one hour before going to bed Saturday night, you'll get an extra hour of sleep on Sunday morning. Sunday is the end of Daylight Savings Time, officially at 2 a.m. and you want to set your clock BACK (fall backward, spring forward) at some point before Sunday morning to take advantage of the extra hour. The time change takes effect in most of the country (Arizona, Hawaii, and parts of Indiana don't change their clocks). It's all part of the Uniform Time Act of 1986, which was amended a few years ago to move the time change to the last Sunday in October instead of the first Sunday. Sunrise and sunset will be an hour earlier until we get to fiddle with our clocks again the first Sunday of April, when we'll lose our hour of sleep.

Deposits up at banks

Deposits at Hereford's two banks totalled $131.1 million at the close of business on Sept. 30, 1991, according to statements published this week.

First National Bank reported deposits of $69,692,000, which reflected an increase of $2.4 million over the same period a year ago. Loans were $40.8 million, also an increase over last year of $1.2 million. FNB's assets were listed at $81.5 million.

Hereford State Bank reported deposits of $61,432,000 on Sept. 30, a slight increase over the same time last year. Loans were also up slightly at $33.2 million. HSB's total assets were listed at $70.6 million.

Combined deposits at the two banks were down about $7 million from the June 30, 1991 totals. However, combined loan totals were up about $6 million over the mid-year figures. Deposits are normally the highest at the end of the year.

Statements from other local financial institutions were not submitted.

Anti-porn campaign scheduled

Hereford-area churches will be banding together during November, which has been declared as "Pornography Awareness Month" in Hereford.

The campaign has received the support of the Hereford Ministerial Alliance, which includes representatives of most Hereford churches. A proclamation supporting the campaign has been signed by Mayor Tom LeGate.

The week of Nov. 3-9 has been reserved for a "White Ribbon Against Pornography" campaign. At many churches on Nov. 3, persons attending services will receive a flier, and white ribbons will be tied to car antennas while other fliers will be placed under windshield wipers. Trees will be wrapped with large white ribbons and persons willing to wear them will receive white lapel ribbons.

Organizers said they plan to canvass Hereford stores, including convenience and video stores, to check for possible pornographic materials that may be sold in the Hereford area.

Chamber board makes plans

Directors of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce heard committee progress reports and discussed upcoming events during a regular board meeting Thursday afternoon.

Ruth Newsom, Women's Division, and Carol Gerck, retail trade committee, discussed holiday plans being made by the two groups. The annual Christmas Lighting Ceremony will be earlier this year and is scheduled Nov. 16 at the courthouse square. Businesses are planning to decorate and special holiday lighting will be turned on at the ceremony.

Merchants will hold special "open houses" on Sunday, Nov. 17, from 1 to 5 p.m. Santa will be at Sugarland Mall to have his picture made with kids. A total of 30 merchants have committed, so far, for the "open house" and holiday give-away being planned.

The quarterly Fun Breakfast is also being held prior to Thanksgiving this year. It is scheduled Nov. 21 with Southwestern Bell telephone as the host.

Mike Carr, executive vice president, reported that two of three recent industrial prospects are still interested in locating in Hereford and will visit after the first of the year. He recently attended the American Meat Institute Exposition in Chicago as part of the High Ground of Texas group.

The Panhandle group promoted the advantages of locating in this area. Carr joined 14 other chamber and economic development representatives in manning a booth at the exposition. He said about 25 companies showed an interest in obtaining information about the Panhandle area.

Charles Greenawalt, vice president, conducted the board meeting Thursday in the absence of President Pat Robbins. No actions were taken as a quorum was not present. Directors attending were Greenawalt, Ruth Newsom, Carol Gerck, Ken McLain and Scott Keeling.

CENSUS

while native Americans, Asian and others were less than 1 percent each.

The Census Bureau does not determine race. Respondents to the census identify themselves racially. The Census Bureau utilizes five different classifications in its determination of race: White, Black, American Indian (including Eskimos and Aleuts; all native Americans), Asian or Pacific islanders, and Other.

The Bureau listed entirely separate figures on Hispanics. They were included with Whites in the general racial population figures, making it necessary to differentiate between Whites and Anglos in the racial breakdown of the population.

In Texas, the Hispanic population increased by 45.5 percent over the period from 2,981,583 in 1980 to 4,339,905 in 1990. Hispanics were 21 percent of the state's population in 1980 and 25.5 percent by 1990. They are now 9 percent of the nation's population, up from 6.4 percent in 1980.

Blacks increased from 26.5 million in 1980 to 29.9 million in 1990. They represent 12.1 percent of the nation's population. Asian or Pacific islander population increased more by proportion than any group, going from 3.7 million in 1980 to 7.3 million in 1990. They represent 2.9 percent of the nation's population.

Native Americans increased by only 420,000 during the period. They represent 0.8 percent of the U.S. population.

In 1980, Deaf Smith County's census showed an 11.4 percent increase over 1970. The count in 1970 had shown a 44 percent increase since 1960, coming on the heels of a 44 percent increase in the period from 1950-60.

Gonzales sentenced in Amarillo

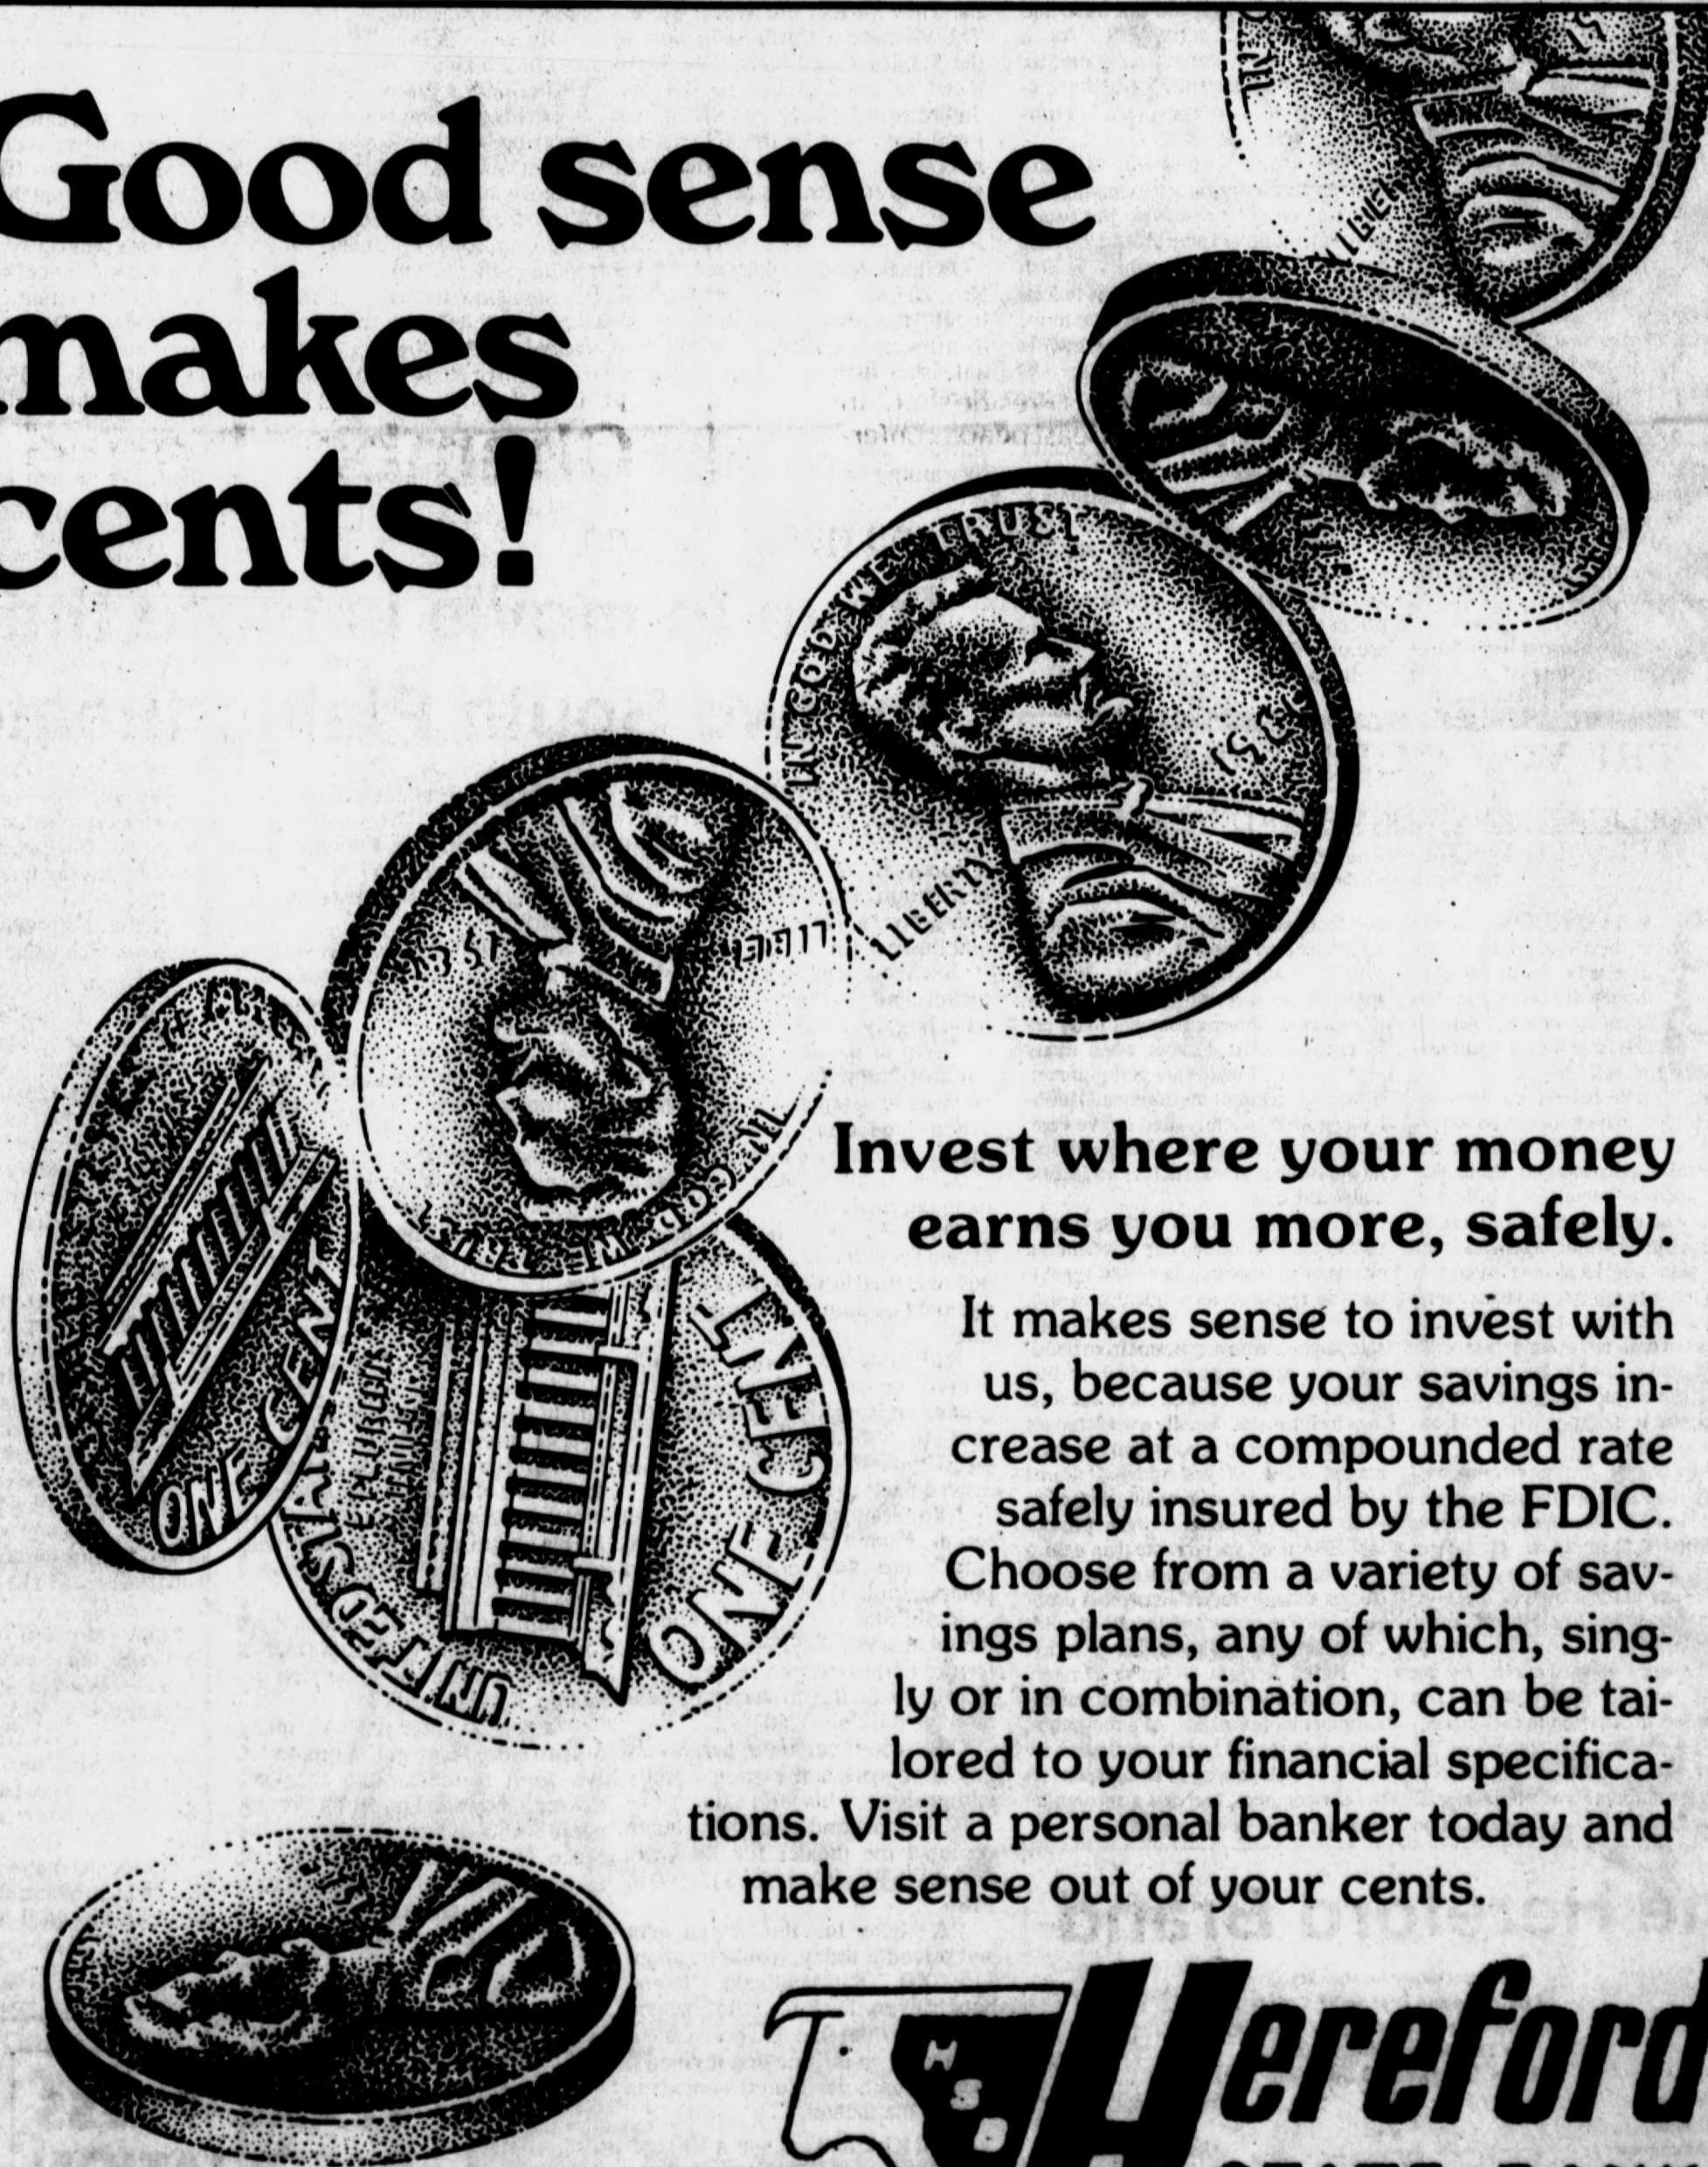

Severo Eloy Gonzales Jr., 27, of Hereford, was sentenced Friday in U.S. District Court in Amarillo to five years and three months in federal prison for possessing with intent to distribute cocaine.

The sentence was the minimum that could be placed on Gonzales by U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson. Robinson cited the fact that the two kilograms (about 4.4 pounds) of cocaine was just above a level set by federal authorities, and said Gonzales had been a good citizen.

Gonzales and Marcos Isaac Reyes-Esquivel, 33, also of Hereford, were arrested June 1 in the parking lot of a Hereford supermarket after allegedly making a deal to sell the cocaine to undercover officers for $48,000. The men were arrested, in a SWAT-style raid by a special regional law enforcement team, after Gonzales pulled two "bricks" of cocaine wrapped in gray duct tape that had been hidden between seats in a van.

Reyes-Esquivel has also pleaded guilty to the charges. He has not yet been sentenced.

NEST EGG

For most home owners, the family residence represents the largest single asset in their investment portfolio. Indeed, their home may be worth more than everything else combined. That's why it's so important to get the best price when you sell. Whether you're going to turn the money into a down payment on a bigger and better home, or invest the proceeds for retirement income, your home equity is your nest egg. Your future plans will depend on it. Smart home owners know that they'll do better, in the long run, when they put an established professional on the job. An experienced real estate broker knows how to market your property and get a best price, usually sooner, than an amateur. That's why most folks who try to sell their own home, end up listing with a broker after they've had the expense and difficulty of do-it-yourself problems or after the property is "stale" on the market.

Winning teams give cities winning attitude

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Dallas-Fort Worth is a sports champion disaster area, visited on occasion by Dame Victory but given no throne to call her own.
 The Texas Rangers have never won a pennant.
 The Dallas Mavericks won their one and only division flag in 1987.
 The Dallas Cowboys, once a perennial star, haven't won a title since 1985.
 The Texas Christian Horned Frogs haven't captured a Southwest Conference title since 1951, and Southern Methodist has gone wanting since 1982.

The Cotton Bowl hasn't had a game that made a difference in the national championship race since 1984.
 Some psychologists say that winning sports teams in an area contribute to an upbeat morale among the citizenry which is reflected in the products they produce and the way they get along with their fellow humans.
 A Minnesota psychologist was on a local Dallas radio station just this week saying how important it was for the Minnesota Twins to be in the World Series and how much everyone was looking forward to hosting the Super Bowl in January.
 Having big sports events in the area tends to make people forget their troubles, the psychologist said.

As frozen as Minnesota gets, every distraction is welcomed, no doubt. But it's also good for business.
 Dallas businessmen will tell you that when the Cowboys are winning business goes smoother and people are in a better mood, more receptive to wheeling and dealing.
 Winning is the name of the game in business and a winning football team helps mirror to businessmen what hard work, dedication, and playing as a team can produce.
 "I've noticed it," said Jerry Jones, the businessman from Arkansas who bought the Cowboys three years ago. "Winning is opening a lot of doors. It's easier to make deals when the Cowboys win."

With the Cowboys jumping out to a 5-2 record, there's talk that the sporting gods once again may have decided there have been enough burnt offerings to give the area at least a playoff team.
 Goodness knows, there have been enough burnt offerings. The Rangers proved once again they are just good enough to lead their fans on. Some 2.2 million of them poured through the turnstiles believing this was the year. Instead, the Twins went from worst to first to win the American League pennant.
 And how about those Mavericks? They kept betting they could convince Roy Tarpley to leave drugs alone and lost. This team will be lucky to make the playoffs let alone threaten for the NBA crown.

 Of course, TCU and SMU paid for recruiting transgressions with the heaviest penalties in NCAA history. The Horned Frogs blew a 21-point lead to Arkansas recently and severely damaged any title hopes.
 SMU hasn't won a conference game since the NCAA gave the Mustangs the death penalty.
 So, there's a lot of long-suffering fans who are closely watching Jerry Jones' team as it continues to rebuild and improve.
 Fans are beginning to forget the unceremonious firing of Tom Landry as he predicted they would and pull for the JJ Boys at Valley Ranch.

 The name "Dallas" used to mean something in sporting circles, particularly when the Cowboys were going to five Super Bowls.
 The tag "America's Team" had Dallas fans believing the winning would never end. It did. And it's been a long time returning.
 There's more at stake now when the Cowboys play.
 It's something called Dallas-Fort Worth pride.
 It's hard to argue that too much emphasis is placed on sports.
 It's also difficult to debate the fact that people feel better when their team is winning.

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers have grown wary of the Cincinnati Bengals and Coach Sam Wyche.
 They fully expect the 0-7 Bengals to play like a 7-0 team when the two teams meet in the Astrodome Sunday at noon CST.
 "You can throw out the records," defensive end William Fuller said. "Put yourself in their place. If they were only going to win one game this season and it was Houston, I think they'd get a lot of satisfaction out of that."
 "We got to realize that. The rivalry is definitely there."
 The same Bengals who beat the Oilers 61-7 in 1989 and twice again last year are winless but the Oilers don't feel sorry for them and they won't be lulled into sleep by the string of losses.

 But the Oilers will be on guard, although the Bengals haven't won a game in Houston since a 31-13 victory in 1984.
 "It's going to be very emotional," linebacker Lamar Lathon said. "They'll be trying all kinds of tricks plays, gadgets, trying to win."
 The Oilers can't even be certain that quarterback Boomer Esiason, sidelined with a shoulder injury, won't play.
 "With everything Sam's done, I guess you just have to wait and see what happens when we line up on Sunday," linebacker Johnny Meads said. "And you've got to ignore that 0-7 record. You'd better go out and play with intensity or you'll get beat."

 The Oilers and Bengals finished last season with 9-7 records but since then they've been teams going in opposite directions. Houston is 6-1 and trying to become 7-1 for the first time in franchise history.
 Esiason would be replaced by Erik Wilhelm and rookie Donald Hollas from Rice.
 "There's no love lost between these two teams so it's not going to be hard to get up for them," linebacker Lamar Lathon said. "They aren't a true 0-7 team. They are much better than that. They can do a lot of dangerous things to a defensive football team."

 The Oilers beat the Bengals 30-7 in their first meeting this season and beat Miami 17-13 last week while Cincinnati was losing to Buffalo 35-16.
 "The Cincinnati Bengals are 0-7 but they're not an 0-7 team," Lathon said. "Right now the only thing that's hurting the Bengals is they are self-destructing with a lot of penalties and dumb plays."
 The Oilers rank third in the NFL in total offense and first in passing offense, led by Warren Moon, who had his worst performance of the year in a 17-13 victory over Miami last week.
 Moon completed 21 of 35 passes for 171 yards and one touchdown but he threw three interceptions, increasing his total for the season to nine.
 "I know I can play better and I need to become more mentally focused than I am," Moon said. "I have to get some things out of my mind that could be causing me not to play so well, some things that I have to deal with on my own."
 The Bengals running game has improved with Harold Green getting 100-yard performances the past two games. He rushed 144 yards against the Bills. Their defense ranks 27th in the league.
 The offense is No. 8 but has self-destructed too often.
 "We just need to get a win under our belts. Houston is up next so that's where the attention is," Wyche said.

PREP

56-13, No. 8 Aldine over Humble 20-17 and No. 9 Jersey Village over San Marcos 47-6. No. 10 Huntsville was tied 10-10 by Conroe McCullough on a last-second field goal.
 Max Knake completed 23 of 38 passes for 491 yards and six touchdowns, leading McKinney, No. 3 in 4A, in a 62-17 whipping of Denison. It was Denison's worst loss since 1918 and the first to McKinney in four years.
 "I'm kind of embarrassed by the score because they're such a class organization," said McKinney coach

Ron Poe. "We got rolling and we couldn't slow down."
 Knake left the game with two minutes remaining without reaching the 500-yard mark.
 "It didn't matter to me whether I had 500 yards or not," he said. "Whatever I had was fine with me because we won."
 In other Class 4A games, No. 2 Houston C.E. King beat Friendswood 21-17, No. 4 Waxahachie pounded Kaufman 49-6, No. 5 Sulphur Springs topped Paris 21-11, No. 6 Tomball beat Katy Taylor 28-14, No. 8

LaMarque crushed Galena Park 54-0, No. 9 Wilmer-Hutchins beat Cedar Hill 34-12 and San Antonio Alamo Heights cruised past Kerrville Tivy 41-0.
 No. 7 Austin Westlake flattened Austin Anderson 70-7, piling up 376 yards rushing on 39 carries while stuffing Anderson for minus 6 yards on 45 tries.
 Brandon Benton carried 14 times for 123 yards and three touchdowns to lead Westlake.
 Nick Murrell ran for 219 yards and three touchdowns in Jersey Village's easy victory over San Marcos. Murrell scored on runs of 60, 47 and 35 yards.
 The backfield duo of Nathan Campbell and Kalfel Muhammad combined for all eight of Alief Elsik's touchdowns in the victory over Houston Northbrook. Campbell ran for 159 yards and three scores. Muhammad scored on three runs, a pass play and 58-yard punt return.
 Eric Gray led Aldine on a 61-yard touchdown drive with about three minutes remaining as the defending 5A champion Mustangs survived Humble. Gray capped the winning drive with a 4-yard run with 54 seconds to go. Aldine took possession after stopping Humble on a fourth-and-2 play from the Mustangs' 39.
 Marshall Young's 41-yard field goal as time ran out gave Conroe McCullough a tie with Huntsville.

Cannon inspires current generation of Horns

By JAIME ARON
The Daily Texan

AUSTIN (AP) - It's about four hours before Texas' 1991 home opener kicks off against the Auburn Tigers, but Bobby Cannon has already been at Memorial Stadium for most of the afternoon.

The 94-year-old Cannon is sitting on a burnt orange sofa in the T-room, the hallowed area nestled beneath the stadium rafters designed to honor all Longhorn lettermen. As a visitor approaches, Cannon's daughter taps him on the shoulder and reminds him of the scheduled meeting. She helps him to his feet and walks him to a nearby table.

During the next few hours, Cannon relives his memories of the people and events surrounding the Texas Longhorns since 1916. Many of the names Cannon rattles off are familiar to the current generation of Longhorns. But there's a difference: The student body thinks of the names as campus buildings and landmarks. To Cannon, they were his contemporaries.

When Bobby Cannon came to the University of Texas as a freshman in 1916, the school was a very different place than it is today. His athletic scholarship did not mean he ate better than most students while living comfortably in a dorm with other players. He did not have an academic counselor to plan his schedule, provide tutors for difficult classes and encourage him to use a multimillion-dollar study center. Nor were there the other problems associated with 50,000 students.

The student body then was 2,300 and "everybody knew everybody," Cannon said. He remembered the festive atmosphere surrounding every athletic event.

"We'd have parades down Congress Avenue, and old Dean Taylor of the Engineering Department would be the leader of the parade," Cannon said. "For any contest, we'd have a parade. We had a great time."

"I can't imagine 50,000 students," he says, pausing to laugh. "That's a big city, you know. I have to have a chart to find my way around. I just can't figure out how big this place is now. It just staggers me."

Last summer, Cannon received the Texas Lettermen Association's directory of all the players who lettered in every sport. He scanned the book page by page and could not find any of his teammates or predecessors. He determined that he was the only player of his era still living.

"I went through that whole thing, and there's nobody left that lettered before the First World War," Cannon said.

Cannon is proud of his status as the oldest living letterman and is not shy to brag about it. He attends football and baseball home games when he can get a ride from his home in Kerrville, and he stays informed by reading the newspaper.

He also maintains a close personal relationship with football coach David McWilliams and basketball coach Tom Penders. Every few weeks, he writes the coaches letters, often giving positive advice and bits of encouragement.

Before the Rice game, Cannon sent letters with newspaper clippings to McWilliams and quarterbacks Peter Gardere and Jimmy Saxton. He advised the trio to burn the clippings in a garbage can in the locker room before the game - to give the team a spark. Maybe it worked - Texas won 28-7.

Before the football team's intrasquad scrimmage, the Pigskin Preview, McWilliams invited Cannon to speak directly to the team. Cannon gave a clear, rousing speech stressing academics.

"I was so pleased with the attitude of those boys," Cannon said. "They were so polite and gentlemanly. They all came by to shake my hand. They were so attentive to what I had to say, that you could've heard a pin drop."

"The biggest thing I tried to stress was that if you can't win the championship in football, they can win the academic championship," Cannon said. "I wrote to President (William) Cunningham and asked him to go down there and talk to the team and challenge them the same way."

McWilliams said Cannon definitely made a lasting impression on the players.

"Everyone was amazed. He made a really good talk," McWilliams said. "I think we need more Bobby Cannons. He's always fired up and ready to go."

As a token of their appreciation, the football team and McWilliams presented Cannon with a white baseball cap with an orange "T" on the front and a white Texas golf shirt. He cherishes those items as well as his letterman's jacket - burnt orange windbreaker with a Texas baseball logo across the back and a "T" on the front left breast with the years 1916-17-19-20 etched across the top of the letter.

In 1974, 54 years after Cannon last played for Texas, he received the highest honor for a Longhorn player - enshrinement in the Hall of Honor. The award gives him a spot on the Honor Council which selects and inducts the new honorees. This year's ceremony will be held Nov. 15, eight days before Cannon's 95th birthday.

"I guess they'll give me a birthday cake or something," Cannon said.

Cannon was recruited to Texas by legendary baseball coach "Uncle" Billy Disch, who saw the speedy outfielder play alongside three Longhorns on his hometown team in Crockett. Disch invited Cannon to come to the university for the fall of 1915 to play baseball for the Longhorns.

"When I came to the University, old Uncle Billy Disch met me at the train station and said, 'I've got a job for you washing dishes and waiting table for your room and board.' That was my introduction to the university," Cannon said.

Cannon, whose given name is David Clinton Cannon, was known to his family and friends as Clint. But Disch said Cannon "doesn't look like a Clint" and called him Bobby.

The two had a good relationship, and the team was successful. All four years Cannon played for Texas, the Longhorns won the Southwest Conference title, which was created the year before Cannon started college.

He played in 1916 and 1917, then left to serve in World War I. He was in the Navy, but never saw action.

In the spring of 1919, he returned to the Longhorn baseball team. The following fall he played tailback and defensive back on the football team. The team went 6-3, and he had a memorable season, playing every minute of every game except for two quarters after he was knocked down in a loss to one of the Longhorns' rivals, the Haskell Indians. Cannon also recalled losses that year to Texas A&M and Oklahoma, both as a result of fumbled punts.

But Cannon set a record that season that can never be broken. In the only pass attempt of his career, he completed it for a touchdown, giving him a perfect passing efficiency percentage.

Cannon also was a starting guard on the basketball team, and was on the track team. But his best sport was baseball. His highest batting average was .344, and his speed made him a constant threat on the bases. He played outfield for three seasons before moving to third base.

After graduation, Cannon spent 36 years at various high schools in Del Rio, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and the Rio Grande Valley coaching baseball, football and basketball while also teaching algebra and geometry.

One of Cannon's proudest accomplishments was his work with the University Interscholastic League, the guiding body of Texas high school athletics. Cannon played a large role developing the transfer rule, the age limit and the semester rule. But his biggest feat was establishing the playoff system that is still used today.

"People were complaining that they couldn't go to the state championship in baseball because it interfered with final exams," Cannon said. "I said there's no reason you can't have the district championships before examinations, and have the playoffs after graduation. It took me five years to get the Interscholastic League to adopt the rule. It saved baseball in high schools."

Cannon is in tremendous shape for a man his age. Although he gets around in a wheel chair, he can walk with assistance. He stopped driving four years ago and relies on his daughters for transportation. He takes pills for his heart and has regular check-ups. He also has a brother, Ben, still alive - "He's a young 86," Cannon said.

"My eyesight is getting so poor, and I have a hard time getting around, but I try to keep track of everything as best as I can because I know my time is limited," Cannon said. "My old heart could give out on me any minute, so I just enjoy every minute doing whatever I can to help the program."

Spurs set for new season with new offense

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - David Robinson has a new intensity, and the San Antonio Spurs have a new offense.

Those and other changes have the defending Midwest Division champion Spurs optimistic - albeit not overconfident - about the upcoming NBA season.

"After last year, you just feel like you've got to drop a bunch of the other stuff you've had in you for all those years, and just pick up new," said veteran forward Terry Cummings. "We really need to concentrate on getting better."

After finishing the 1990-91 regular season with a 55-27 record and narrowly capturing the division title, the Spurs were knocked out of the playoffs by Golden State in the first round.

The Spurs' early-season talk of being championship contenders seemed like a bad joke.

This preseason, instead of pondering their playoff potential, the team has been working on a new run-and-pass offense Spurs coach Larry Brown has established.

Brown said the up-tempo style should improve the team's transition and allow players to more creativity on the court. The offense suits players like Robinson, Cummings, Willie Anderson, Sean Elliott and Rod Strickland because of their quickness, Brown said.

Elliott, who spent the first part of training camp recovering from a hamstring injury, said he expects to settle in to the new style fairly easily.

"To me, it feels almost the same as last year," Elliott said. "I think he (Brown) is trying to get us to move the ball more. I feel comfortable moving the ball."

All-star center Robinson said it would take a while before he's used to the game plan.

"I move around a lot, and I haven't figured out how to get to the boards consistently enough yet, but I feel like that's something that will come," he said.

Brown said during training camp he has tried to make sure Robinson isn't caught watching from the perimeter, but is moving in for offensive rebounds.

"The first few days he looked so lost," Brown said. "Then each day I see him picking up more and more things, about how he can get to the post and when he can make a good cut."

As the season starts, expect to see another change in Robinson: more concentration.

During the summer, Robinson said, he recommitted himself to God, and that led to a change in his attitude toward basketball.

"I have a different responsibility now. Everything I do, really, serves the Lord, including my basketball. That's something I think He has me doing for a reason," Robinson said. "When you're working out for yourself, it's too easy to just take a break and take it easy sometimes. And I've never really been known as a practice player."

Robinson, entering his third year in the NBA, said he believes he is more focused now. In one preseason game he shook off a case of the shingles and led the Spurs to a victory over the Detroit Pistons.

"I'm trying a lot harder," he said. "I think the guys will tell you that there's a lot of difference between me this year and me any other time."

Another change in San Antonio is the addition of veteran forward Antoine Carr, who led the Sacramento Kings in scoring last season, averaging 20.1 points.

The Spurs acquired Carr in a trade that sent center Dwayne Schintzius to Sacramento, along with a 1994 second-round draft choice.

Carr did not report to training camp because his agent and Spurs officials were in a standoff over renegotiating Carr's contract, which has three years remaining.

This season, the Spurs are trying to overcome last year's off-court distractions.

Guard David Wingate faced rape charges that later were dismissed. Strickland broke his hand in a fight outside a San Antonio nightclub, and later was charged with indecent exposure in Seattle. Wingate and Strickland both were chastized for staying out late the night before a playoff game.

The Spurs released Wingate during the off-season.

The team remains in contract negotiations with Strickland, who became a restricted free agent during the summer.

Robinson said he intends to show his disapproval this year if a teammate is irresponsible.

"They're definitely going to hear from me," Robinson said. "I care enough about them and I care enough about this team to try and make us a little bit better."

The team will get to test its new approach for real Nov. 1, when San Antonio opens the regular season at home against the Mavericks.

Mavs rebuild after Tarpley loss

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks are no longer an NBA championship threat. They've become a team just hoping to grab a playoff crumb.

Roy Tarpley's refusal to take a drug test and ultimate dismissal from the NBA for at least two years has the Mavericks rethinking goals and perhaps long-term strategy.

Tarpley played only briefly last year before injuring a knee and the Mavericks couldn't make the playoffs without him.

"We've been thinking championship, that's always been our focus," said Rick Sund, vice president of the Mavericks basketball operations. "Now our goals have changed. We're just trying to make the playoffs."

Dallas won only 28 games last year and the 54 losses sent the team tumbling into sixth place in the Midwest Division.

The Mavs had averaged 48 victories in the previous four seasons as they made a legitimate run at the NBA's championship ring.

But last year, Dallas was an injury-ridden, demoralized team.

The Mavs jumped to a 4-1 start then knee injuries to Tarpley and Fat Lever began the big slide.

Dallas lost a club-record 199 games to injury or illness last season.

"We know good health is the key to success," said coach Richie Adubato.

Lever has shown signs in the preseason of being the high-scoring guard the Mavs needed but forward Herb Williams has still been bothered by bursitis in his right knee.

"Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman are two all-star caliber guards who can score every night and play with tremendous intensity," Adubato said. "When you add a healthy Lever in there we will have as good a backcourt as any team in the league."

Blackman has missed two exhibition games because of a bad back.

Harper averaged 19.7 points per game last year and became the first player in NBA history to improve his scoring average in each of his first eight NBA seasons.

Blackman scored over 1,000 points for the 11th straight season and is just one of five NBA players with active runs of 10 or more seasons of 1,000-plus points. The others are Robert Parish (14), Tom Chambers, Magic Johnson and Kevin McHale at 10 each.

But there's trouble in the frontcourt. Tarpley is gone and center James Donaldson has a continual battle with leg problems.

Rodney McCray and Randy White have yet to show the kind of domination that can get a team into the playoffs.

Adubato hopes 6-10 free agent Terry Davis will be a surprise.

The holdout of rookie Doug Smith, a 6-10, 220-pounder from Missouri also has hurt. The Mavs' first round pick could be a big help once he joins the team.

"I believe with hard work this can be a championship team," Harper said. "We know now we can't depend on Roy to bail us out. We had a lot of distractions last year. Now, we won't have as many and we can concentrate on playing basketball."

Dallas opens the season Friday night, Nov. 1 in San Antonio and plays at home the next night against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Rockets hope to keep momentum of March

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - There are some aspects of last season the Houston Rockets want to bring into this season.

They'd like to see more of the magic of last March when they won 13 straight games and finished the month 14-1, the eighth best one month record in NBA history.

Coach Don Chaney would accept another NBA coach of the year award to match the one he got last season and he'd be pleased if the Rockets broke or tied 63 more franchise records as they did a year ago.

But Chaney would not like to end the season in the first round of the playoffs.

"That has to be one of our goals this season," Chaney said. "I definitely don't want to see us go out in the first round of the playoffs again."

After surviving 25 games without center Hakeem Olajuwon due to an eye injury, the Rockets charged into the playoffs after playing the final three months of the season with a 29-9 record.

The push gave the Rockets a 52-30 overall record, a franchise record, good enough for third place in the Western Conference's Midwest Division.

But they were eliminated in three straight games by the Los Angeles Lakers in the best-of-five first round. The Rockets have been in the playoffs seven straight years but they have been eliminated in the first round the past four years.

They have the nucleus to do better with Olajuwon, recovered from a scary eye injury, forwards Otis Thorpe and Buck Johnson and guards Kenny Smith and Vernon Maxwell. New faces are top draft pick John Turner from Phillips University, former University of Houston star Carl Herrera, who played in Europe last season and Wayne "Tree" Rollins, who played 37 games with Detroit last season.

But Chaney was concerned about starting point guard Kenny Smith's contract holdout that kept him out of camp until last week.

"It's important that we have our team together from the beginning," Chaney said. "We finished up last season on a positive note ... and we want to start out the same way. We need everyone here to do that."

Smith signed a five-year contract Wednesday that will pay him a reported $1.9 million a year, but Chaney said he still has to earn a starting spot.

"Right now, Sleepy (Floyd) is the starter and Kenny will have to show everyone his timing and if he has made adjustments to earn the starting assignment," Chaney said. "I won't just hand it to him."

But Smith said that shouldn't be a problem.

"I honestly feel, especially after my first two years in the NBA, training camp is overrated, if you have older players," Smith said. "For me, I know where Hakeem likes the ball, I know where Otis likes the ball on the pick and roll so nothing has changed."

The Rockets solved another contract problem before the start of training camp by signing 3-point specialist Vernon Maxwell to a four-year contract extension.

Chaney would like to see more consistency from Maxwell this season.

"My only concern with him is that there will be nights when his shot doesn't fall like this," Chaney said. "He has to realize when his shot isn't falling and go to other parts of his game. He has to gauge if he's helping the team or not."

Maxwell fumed over his contract last season but his $1.7 million per year contract has him relaxed.

"The contract situation definitely weighed on me last year, but now all I have to do is play ball," Maxwell said.

The Rockets will need a better start than last year's 21-20 record at mid-season, Olajuwon said.

"We have the talent and ability but we can't wait around," Olajuwon said. "We've got to start getting the job done from day one."

Man's life rebuilt after accident

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Three years after teen-ager Steve Thompson's memory was erased in an accident caused by a drunken driver, he has learned to walk and talk again. But he's still getting to know the parents who turned into strangers.

Starting life over at age 17 - learning to walk, talk and reason - was easy compared to coping with what he'd lost: all the memories of his life. He no longer knew the parents who doted over him or the kid sister who idolized him.

Thompson was a "high school jock," as one therapist characterized him, when his car was struck by a drunken driver on Oct. 31, 1988, as he drove a friend home from a Halloween party.

His parents, Randi and Alan, were called to the accident scene; Steve didn't recognize them. A hospital diagnosed a brain injury. But Steve, who was conscious and had no outward signs of injury, went home that night.

"The next morning he was in a fetal position and we knew there was something very seriously wrong," Mrs. Thompson recalled.

Thus began the family's struggle to bring Steve back. The ordeal forced his mother, Randi, to the brink of a mental breakdown, and Steve's sister, Shari, attempted suicide twice.

"I don't know these people from the lady down the street," Steve once said of his family. Their story is told in an ABC movie, "Stranger in the Family," to air Sunday night.

"All those precious things we had done as he was growing up: Pop Warner football, Cub Scouts, teaching him how to ride a bicycle, they were all gone," Mrs. Thompson said Wednesday, her voice choking. "We were total strangers to him."

Steve spent six months at the New Medico Community Re-Entry Center in Apple Valley, Calif., a head-injury rehabilitation center.

Along with his memory, Steve had lost the most basic concepts. One time, his mother said, he tried to walk across the family swimming pool.

"He didn't realize the properties of water," Mrs. Thompson said. "He fell 10 feet down into the ice-cold pool. He was exploring just like a small child."

He had the mental ability of a third-grader when he arrived at the rehabilitation center, but he progressed quickly, eventually earning a high school diploma.

Today, he works in a Las Vegas hospital, does volunteer work for an ambulance company and takes college classes. He hopes to become a doctor. But the memories never came back.

Does he have flashes of anything from his first 17 years?

"I've given up," he said Wednesday. "I don't search like I used to."

Shari Thompson, who was 12 at the time of the accident, tried to kill herself because "she could not deal with the fact her brother was gone," Mrs. Thompson said.

"He was everything to me. I thought if I were gone, I could be with the brother I needed," Shari said.

During the ordeal, Mrs. Thompson suffered a stroke and sought psychiatric help for depression.

Now the family cherishes its memories of the old Steve, but also loves the new person who has emerged.

"We're so close now it's unbelievable," Mrs. Thompson said. "It's like it was before. We're friends. It's wonderful to have that friendship again."

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association will host a Turkeywalk on Nov. 2 at Sugarland Mall in Hereford.

This is the second year for the walk, from which the proceeds benefit AHA activities and research. Last year, walkers raised $1,250 in Hereford.

Margaret Perez, local volunteer, said persons interested in participating in the walk may get pledge forms at the tax assessor-collector's office at the courthouse in Hereford. Walkers may also call, after 5 p.m., Perez at 364-2613 or Karen Fangman at 364-8545.

The walk will last from 2-5 p.m. Perez said there will be refreshments and a first aid station for walkers, and they hope to have music for participants to walk to. Perez said persons who raise over $25 will get a Turkeywalk t-shirt, and persons raising over $100 will get a t-shirt and a turkey.

Local merchants provide holiday fashion preview

By DANEE' WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

With Thanksgiving and Christmas on the way, stores are stocking their shelves with the latest in holiday fashions.

Hereford stores came out recently during the Xi Epsilon Alpha "City Lights" Style Show to show off their fall and holiday fashions.

Gaston's, Sew and Tell, Kid's Alley, Bows and Bubblegum, Gibson's, Little's Fashions, Etcetera, Pants Cage, The Vogue, A Class Act, Anthony's, The Ginger Tree, Boots and Saddle, Brookhart's, and Betty's Shoes all participated in the event.

From soft feminine dressing to bright bold bedazzled, the look for the holidays is hot, even in cool weather.

Sweaters, a fashion favorite, feature tiny beads with a fitted look. They are often paired with soft challi prints. Bright bulky long sweaters paired with leggings and stirrup pants are turning heads in the fashion world.

For those who like to show off their long legs or for the more modest dresser, there's a hemline to suit all tastes. Skirts with hemlines above the knee, long, straight, full and split offer a look for everyone.

Most wouldn't consider wearing shorts in the winter, but the city short is a hot holiday item. The versatile short can go from the office to a night on the town. Pair the shorts with a jacket for a perfect the designer look.

For men, patterned crew neck sweaters in all colors are moving for the holidays. Prints are hot for the men as well. Fashion experts are pairing patterned shirts with the popular patterned tie for a trendy look.

In order to keep warm on those cold winter's nights, men are turning to velour robes. They also enjoy sliding into bed wearing silky pajamas.

Women find big, bold and bright appealing when buying accessories to jazz up their outfits. Popular items are faux pearls, gems, and a lot of color. Wide belts featuring the jeweled look jazz up any outfit. Tights are popular with city shorts and short skirts.

Fabrics to look for are rayons and polyesters made from micro-fibers designed to look like silk.

Collage-look purses with jewels in bright and metallic colors are filling up store's shelves.

Consumers are turning toward comfort when choosing their shoes. Metallics are in. Casual loafer-look shoes and lower heel pumps are the in styles. Women are buying dress shoes with flex soles for comfort. Low and mid-calf boots are back in the fashion highlight. Leather oxford tennis shoes in fashion colors are also a popular style. Black and navy blue are the more popular colors in foot fashion.

Hereford stores will be participating in "Hereford's Holiday Happening" Nov. 16 and 17. Stores will stay open late on Nov. 16 and will have an open house Nov. 17 to officially kick off the holiday shopping season. (Editors note: Linda Arellano and Donna Ruland contributed to the story.)

Now, a single policy with double protection.

Imagine a life insurance policy that protects your family's future in more than one way. Suppose it also protected you from the financial consequences of long term health care while you're living, without reducing the life insurance benefit.

That's the policy our independent agency recommends for many customers thinking about retirement. It's called the Total Protection Plan from the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several we represent. It's the first policy that pays the full cash value or death benefit of your life insurance even after you receive long term care benefits.

HISD wears red ribbons

Hereford Independent School District participated in Red Ribbon Week Oct. 21-25. The red ribbon has become the symbol of the nation's war against drugs.

In 1985, Drug Enforcement Agent Enrique Camarena was brutally murdered by drug traffickers. The Red Ribbon campaign is in memory of him and other officers who have died in the line of duty.

Over the past week, students at Hereford's schools have celebrated Red Ribbon Week with activities on all school campuses.

Each day anti-drug announcements at Hereford High School were delivered by students and video broadcasted throughout the school.

Pledges were given to all students inviting them to show support for drug abuse prevention by committing not to use drugs or alcohol during the holiday season starting with homecoming until Jan. 2.

Special dress up days were observe at different schools. Skits were delivered showing refusal skills and peer pressure. "Just say No" balloons will be released at homecoming.

Red ribbons were placed in the city park by the students council at the high school. Saturday, a bus load of students attended Red Ribbon Workshop in Amarillo at Tascosa High School.

Governor Ann Richards, honorary chairperson of the 1991 Red Ribbon Campaign said, "Every community in Texas has the opportunity to volunteer themselves in a united effort to rid our state of alcohol and drug abuse. We can no longer sit silent while the lives of Texas citizens are being destroyed."

If you are interested in volunteering in any community or school effort to fight drug and alcohol abuse in Hereford, please call a school counselor or Marilyn Leasure at 364-5941.

YOUR EYES

HIGH-TECH IMPROVEMNETS IN GLASSES

Ever sit on your glasses and bend them out of shape or crack them? Even adults who lead sedentary lives can be hard on their glasses; youngsters and athletes need even more help.

Fortunately, new, stronger and more durable frames are available now in both plastic and metal. Today's popular "granny glasses" are more durable and comfortable in the new, high-tech alloys. The frames may cost a bit more, but they last longer and, therefore, are more economical. Top of the line is a titanium alloy that can be wound around a finger and still spring back to its original shape! It's much stronger and lighter than other metals. There are less expensive versions made of nickel and silver or nickel and copper. Even the new plastics are stronger. Some weave in carbon fibers or graphite for added strength. Other improvements include spring hinges that help a frame to hold its shape and stay comfortable, and adjustable or replaceable nose pads.

Red Cross Update

by Betty Henson
 Congratulations to the employees and staff of West Texas Rural Telephone CO. who recently completed the back injury prevention class. A special thanks to the company for the donation of $420.

Jim Scott, long time green thumb employee, working at the Red Cross office has moved to the Hereford Satellite Center. We will miss Jim and wish him the best at his new job location.

A garage sale will be held Nov. 14 and 15 to raise funds for disaster relief. Items for the sale can be brought to the Red Cross office or to the location of the sale which will be announced later.

The Oakland fire caused more damage than the California earthquake.

Donations will be accepted at our office for that disaster. Other disasters occurring closer were fires, wind storms and flooding in Louisiana, a large apartment fire in Cooke County where the Red Cross provided 1,000 meals and work continues in Kileen. Donations may be made for a specific disaster or for general disasters.

A new swimming pool for our community would be a wonderful addition to our town. The present swimming pool is over 40-years-old and has served our needs well but is in need of many repairs. I hope all citizens will give some serious thought to replacing the pool.

Morrison, Sheppard marry in Carrollton

Shannon Morrison and Gary Sheppard exchanged vows recently at Hebron Baptist Church in Carrollton.

The church decorations featured three large arrangements of mauve, peach and blue wildflowers at the altar. Peach paper ribbons adorned the pews.

Miss Morrison was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mike Morrison of Hereford. She wore an original candlelight bridal gown of raw silk. The gown featured a jacket covered princess waistline dress with pearls and beads throughout the bodice and a detachable train.

She carried an arm bouquet of long flowing wild flowers in mauve, peach and blue.

Keeping with tradition, the bride attached her grandparents' wedding bands to her bouquet on blue ribbon. Her dress was something new and she borrowed her parents' Bible to carry with the bouquet.

Amy Westbrooks of Chicago, Ill. served as maid of honor. Lud Ulrich of Frisco was best man.

Ushers included Mike Morrison, bride's brother from Hereford; Rick Sheppard, groom's brother of Plano; and Rick Hillis of Euless.

The maid of honor was attired in a Waters and Waters Wedgewood blue two piece long dress. It featured a fitted sheath skirt with a slit back and an off-the-shoulder jacket-type bodice. The dress was accented with long white gloves. She carried a smaller version of the bride's bouquet.

Music was provided by a harpist and violinist. They played classical and new-age selections including "Hymne" by Handel and "Jesu-Joy of Man's Awakening."

During a reception held at Stonebriar Country Club in Frisco, a live band entertained with jazz, oldies and other favorites.

The chocolate with white icing bride's cake featured three tiers with wild flowers cascading around it. The groom's cake was a chocolate cake with raspberry filling covered with slivered almonds and chocolate shavings.

Guests enjoyed a pasta bar, fresh fruit and vegetable crudite.

The bride and groom left for a seven day cruise to the Virgin Islands and Bahamas. After their return, the couple will reside in Plano.

Shannon is the daughter of Lou and JauDon McCathern of Hereford and the late Cecil Morrison.

The groom is the son of Charles and Arlene Sheppard of Russellville.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
 County Extension Agent-HE

Do you come home physically and emotionally drained? Do you have little enthusiasm for dealing with family or personal matters? Do you dread going to work every day? Does your head hurt, your stomach churn and your body ache? Do you smoke too much, take too many pills or drink too much alcohol?

You may be among tens of millions of American workers who are suffering from job-related stress, a problem far more common than either workers or employers realize.

A recent national survey by a Minneapolis-based insurance company found that cutbacks in personnel and employee benefits are major contributors to a national epidemic of job stress. In the random sample of 600 full-time workers in all types of jobs, 72 percent said they suffered from three or more stress-related conditions very often or somewhat often.

Stress-related problems most often mentioned included exhaustion, anger or anxiety, muscle pain, headaches, insomnia and gastrointestinal disorders. Some workers reported as many as eight or more stress-related ailments.

The growing problem of job stress on employees takes its toll by increasing job turnover and absenteeism and decreasing productivity. One-third seriously considered quitting last year to reduce their stress, while 14 percent actually did quit or change jobs. Those who were stressed-out presumably functioned at a less-than-ideal level.

Major causes of the job stress were identified in the survey:

- Little personal control allowed in doing one's job.
- Reduction in employee benefits.
- Merger, acquisition or a change in the company's ownership.

-Reduction in the size of the work force or position cuts.

-Major departmental reorganizations.

-And frequent requirement for overtime work.

More than half of the workers who suffered burnout said their employers did not have supportive work and family policies and did not have effective lines of communication. Forty-nine percent said their employers did not provide health insurance for mental illness and chemical dependency; and 39 percent complained of inflexible work schedules.

It's the smart worker who takes charge of their work and family pressures before job stress creates mental or physical health problems. Failure to cope with job-stress may be more difficult than changing jobs.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Thanks to all of you who supported the Friends of the Library Book Sale!! If you didn't get a chance to come by last weekend, we still have tables of books set up in the basement. Come by, browse through, make your selections, and pay at the check-out desk. Speaking of our sale, Tommy Rosson was the highest bidder for Window On The Prairie. Congratulations, Tommy...and thanks!

We've got it all at the library this week - horror, romance, intrigue, suspense, nostalgia, illness - and some of it is in the books, too!

The "King" of horror is back with the last Castle Rock story. With a demonic blend of malice and affection, Stephen King says goodbye to Castle Rock, Maine in Needful Things. The title refers to a shop, run by a stranger, in which there is something for everyone. As proprietor Leland Gaunt points out, at Needful Things, the prices are high indeed - but does that stop people from buying?

If bizarre murders aren't your style, how about the old-fashioned "Victorian" kind? Victoria Holt spins a mesmerizing tale of passion and intrigue in Daughter Of Deceit. Noelle Tremaster is the daughter of Desiree, the darling of Drury Lane (it's easier to write than it is to say!), and has grown up amid a flurry of opening nights and elegant parties. But Noelle's carefree existence is changed forever when her kindhearted mother opens her home to an ambitious ingenue. Murder, madness, and mystery stalk Noelle as she tries to rebuild her shattered life. This is Holt's thirtieth bestseller for Doubleday, and proves why she is one of the world's best-loved writers of romantic fiction.

Sleeping Beauty is the latest offering by the Brothers Grimm. NO! I mean by Judith Michael, and believe me, this is no fairy tale. This is Michael's most powerful novel yet - a blockbuster of love, politics, family, and revenge. Anne Garnett is a high-powered divorce lawyer who has carefully constructed a life in which success is measured in terms of money, possessions, and power. Suddenly swept up by powerful emotions at the funeral of her beloved grandfather, she must face her estranged family, including Uncle Vince who battles for control of the family empire. Anne is a proud, beautiful woman - awakening from her long sleep to discover her power to win, and to love fully and completely.

Also on the fiction shelf: Shadow of a Doubt by William J. Coughlin described by the publisher as "an electric courtroom drama." (We can only assume that an "electric courtroom" is one that brings the punishment phase a little closer to home!)

The Stormy Petrel by Mary Stewart, a novel of mystery and suspense, with a touch of romance, set on the coast of Scotland. (Stormy petrels, by the way, for us West Texas folks, are water birds that nest ashore, but spend most of their lives flying close above the sea.)

Isaac Asimov is generally thought of as a writer for futuristic fiction, but his latest work is non-fiction and largely historical. The March of the Millennia: A Key To Looking at History presents an intriguing timeline with the Asimov touch; a concise overview of the major trends, events, and personalities of world history, millennium by millennium, from 8000 B.C. to the present...and beyond.

Dan Rather remembers in I Remember. He remembers growing up outside Houston in the Depression and War years. He remembers a large and loving family determined to rise above hard times. He remembers his early years as a journalist. This is the story of how Danny Rather, an impish Tom Sawyer, became Dan Rather; of the events and values that made him who he is today.

Also new in non-fiction: Hazardous Duty by Major General John K. Singlaub, the story of an American soldier in the Twentieth Century.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in response to the woman who was molested by her father when she was a child. She asked if she should continue to allow her young daughters to sleep over at Grandma and Grandpa's house "now that they are getting older." That woman must be crazy.

I have a similar story to tell and I pray that you will print it. The woman who wrote needs to see this and so do millions of others. My mother's live-in boyfriend kissed me on the mouth and exposed himself to me when I was 13 years old. I was frightened and horrified. The very next day I told my mother. She confronted him in my presence and he denied everything. She believed him and punished me for "lying and trying to make trouble." I had a feeling she DID believe me but was afraid she'd lose the guy if she stood up for me, so she took his side. I never trusted her after that and went to live with my aunt when I was 16.

Now that I have children of my own, I find it hard to understand why a mother would sacrifice a daughter for a low-life man like that, but I know it does happen. Your column has recounted several of these instances.

Please, Ann, keep repeating the message. You cannot say it often enough. Children who are sexually molested should tell someone. If their mother won't believe them, they should tell an aunt, an uncle, a teacher or a clergyman. Thank you for educating millions.—Anonymous in Amarillo, Texas

DEAR TEXAS: You can count on me to keep hammering away at this devastating problem. Here's more on the subject:

DEAR ANN: I just read the letter from the mother who wanted to know if it was OK to let her children sleep overnight at Grandma and Grandpa's. That woman had been sexually molested by her father. Her mother knew what was going on and did nothing to save her. And now she wonders if it is all right for her daughters to sleep over? I couldn't believe my eyes!

This sort of thing went on in my family for two generations. The grandchildren don't have to stay overnight for it to happen. Molesting can take place in the afternoon when Grandpa takes the kids to the park or the zoo, or for an ice-cream soda. It can happen in the morning on the way back from church or at a movie or on the way to the circus.

Most grandparents are wonderful and wouldn't dream of doing anything like this. It's really a very sick thing. But it's smart to be alert. A molester can seem like a perfectly normal person in all respects and quietly ruin a child's life.—No Name No City

DEAR ANN: I was molested by my father from the age of 8 until I was 13. I never told anyone because I was afraid of what he would do. When I turned 16, I went to the public library and read everything I could find on the subject. I learned that I needed therapy and asked my teacher for help. She really saved my life.

I now have three daughters and a good relationship with my parents.

When they ask if the girls can sleep over I say "NO." Period. Child molesters are like alcoholics. They are never cured. They must never be tempted. I have forgiven my father for what he did to me but I would never trust him.—Baltimore Lesson

DEAR READERS: The mail on this subject has been wonderfully articulate. Thanks to all who wrote.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It's too damn easy to have kids these days. You can't drink until you're 21 but any idiotic 14-year-old can have a baby. Parenting classes should be mandatory in all high schools. These classes could make a whale of a difference. Do you agree, Ann?—Concerned in Wheat Ridge, Co.

DEAR WHEAT: It's not what you know about rearing children that makes the difference. It's how you FEEL about them that counts. You can't teach love in school.

Behrends, Crismon exchange vows during private ceremony

Family members and close friends witnessed the union of Kay Crismon and Clarence Behrends, both of Hereford, during a recent intimate ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Adams.

Vows were exchanged in the formal living room which was decorated with assorted plants and greenery.

Benny Baker, minister of the Dimmitt Church of Christ, officiated the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a teal-length silk peach dress featuring a linen and lace collar, long sleeves and a semi-flared skirt. Her accessories included a wrist corsage of peach and white carnations with matching ribbons and diamond earrings and bracelet.

Following the ceremony, guests were invited to the reception held in the home. Guests were registered by Leona Schilling of Hereford.

The bride's cake was served by the bridegroom's daughter, Kylene Thomas of Dumas, and his daughter-in-law, Teresa Behrends of Arlington.

The groom's cake was served by the bride's sister, Annette Rinehart of Shallowater. Punch and coffee were poured by Tammy Turnel of Bryan, the groom's daughter.

Others assisting were the bride's niece, Penny Rinehart of Shallowater; the groom's daughter-in-law, Donita Behrends; and Leona Schilling.

The bride's two-tiered white columnar cake was edged with basket-weave trim and topped with a miniature arrangement of silk peach roses. It was placed on a table covered with a coral linen cloth. To complete the bride's table decorations, two brass candlesticks, holding peach tapers, were used as were fresh blooming plants.

The groom's German chocolate cake was centered on a table covered with a white lace cloth.

The bride and groom will make their home in the Easter Community where the groom is engaged in farming.

Lighten up

Laughter is a tranquilizer with no side effects. - Arnold Glasow

I love being around funny people. Most of my really close friends have a good sense of humor and maybe even a silly streak. They enjoy a good laugh themselves and love to make others laugh.

Max Barnett is that kind of person. Max and I have been friends for a long time, and our wives say we bring out the worst in each other. Actually, we bring out the best - the best memories, the best recycled stories and the best new jokes.

Our visits are always punctuated with laughter. We often end up with tears running down our faces from just being silly. One of my fondest memories is the summer Max and I painted barns in Iowa and Minnesota.

The painting was serious work. We used a boom truck to paint very tall barns. Swinging in the air, 50 feet above a six-inch layer of used alfalfa, was no joke, but we did have fun.

Max knows the world loves to laugh. He is an artist when it comes to being funny. He is also a very successful businessman, and I learned a lot that summer about the practical value of humor.

Max taught me that humor can relieve tension and negate harsh feelings. It can soften a negative message and still allow you to get the point across. Perhaps, most importantly, a good laugh will make you feel better.

Natural Medicine

The Glasow quote used at the head of this column is true. Laughter is a good medicine. The medical community has discovered that good, hearty laughter has definite healing properties. Laughter releases a chemical called endorphin into the bloodstream. This natural medicine eases pain, slows the heart rate and helps muscles relax. Doesn't that sound just like what the doctor ordered?

Today's small business environment is a stress-filled, dog-eat-dog climate. Eight million Americans have ulcers. More than 30 million have high blood pressure. One of every five men in the United States has a coronary attack before age 60. Stress can cause or aggravate all of these illnesses. A good laugh can help relieve stress.

It seems to me that business people look for things to worry about. The poet, Robert Frost, said the reason worry kills more people than work is that more people worry than work. Frost is probably right. However, it may also be that we all spend too much time worrying and working and not enough time having fun. Work Can Be Fun

Work can be fun. Work should be fun. My work is fun, though what I do is serious. Many of my workdays are filled with helping troubled clients - businessmen and women who have serious problems. Unprofitable businesses, tax liens, foreclosure proceedings and bankruptcy are all serious situations. I do not take my responsibility to advise those clients lightly.

However, I cannot allow those problems to become too personal. I must not take myself too seriously either. I must take time to laugh and renew. I can only provide effective business advice when I'm relaxed and clear-headed.

Therefore, I look for the funny side of problems. I look for ways to deliver the message with a humorous illustration. If the problem is not life-threatening, there is probably something to laugh about. Sometimes, just being able to laugh about our problems make them seem less traumatic.

I encourage you to start looking for ways to lighten up and enjoy your workday. Do something uncharacteristic. Do something silly. Take time to pass along a funny story or joke.

Release some endorphins. Share some sunshine with your co-workers. Relax and blow off some stress. To the best of my knowledge, no one ever died laughing. So, lighten up.

Heart eating can prevent disease

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-HE

Have you ever taken an inventory of your refrigerator? Not to make that "Dagwood" sandwich, but to take stock in your nutrition habits.

"We are what we eat," the saying goes. And much of what we eat comes from our refrigerator which may contain an oversupply of foods which are not heart healthy, says the American Heart Association of Deaf Smith County.

"The typical American diet is rich in egg yolks, fatty meats, butter and whole dairy products. These are the main sources of cholesterol and saturated animal fat," according to Beverly Harder of the Deaf Smith County American Heart Association.

"They tend to raise the level of cholesterol and contribute to the development of fatty deposits along the lining of your arteries (atherosclerosis), a root cause of heart attacks and strokes."

What we eat is important. What we don't eat, or cut out, can be equally important in our efforts to prevent heart disease.

During its annual nutrition awareness the Food Festival Celebration of the American Heart Association has suggestions on ways you can reduce the inventory of high-fat, high cholesterol foods in your refrigerator:

Dairy Products

—Whole milk gets 49 percent of its calories from fat and has a significant level of cholesterol. Even two percent low-fat milks gets 35 percent of its total calories from fat. Substitute 1 percent milk (27 percent calories from fat) or skim milk (0 percent calories from fat), both rich in protein, calcium, and nutrients.

—Butter, cream and ice cream have even more fat than whole milk. Substitute products lower in saturated fats, such as margarine, evaporated milk and low-fat frozen yogurt.

Eggs

—One egg yolk contains almost an entire daily allowance of cholesterol. It's a good idea to limit your egg yolk consumption to three or four per week. Egg whites have no cholesterol and are a good source of protein.

Meat Products

—The AHA recommends a total of six ounces of poultry, fish or lean meat per day. If the meat is lean, six ounces will contain 500 to 600 calories—about one-third of total calories recommended daily for adults.

—Avoid processed meats, such as sausage, bologna, salami, and hot dogs, which are rich in fat and calories.

—Choose lean cuts and eat them without the skin or visible fat. Chicken and turkey are excellent choices of lean meat, if the skin is removed. Lean cuts of veal, pork, beef, or lamb also are acceptable, in small portions, if the visible fat is trimmed.

The refrigerator is one place to start, as you make the move to reduce your intake of fat and cholesterol.

Next comes the pantry.

There are many "hidden fats" in bakery products and snack foods, in cooking oils and salad dressings, in pre-packaged, "easy-to-prepare" foods. Read the nutrition information on labels for fat and cholesterol content. Search out baked goods made without egg yolk and saturated fats.

Take stock in what you eat. Make your food inventory a healthy one. For more heart healthy suggestions, contact the local office of the American Heart Association or the Deaf Smith County Extension Office.

The elegant master bedroom suite features a tray ceiling and access to a large sun deck, while double vanities, his-and-hers walk-in closets, garden tub, and separate shower contribute to the luxury of the master bath. The other bedrooms provide a spacious, open atmosphere: one with a vaulted ceiling and the other with offset roof lines that allow extra light to enter the room.

The large activity room features a fireplace and vaulted ceiling. It opens off of the foyer and is accessible to the sun deck and the kitchen area. The kitchen is designed for easy food preparation and service with modern appliances, central island, lots of cabinets, and easy access to both the breakfast room and formal dining room. The dining room overlooks the activity room through decorative wooden spindles. A convenient, oversized laundry room and a double garage complete the interior floor plan.

This home is built on a basement foundation. The stairway is conveniently located next to the great room.

The stucco exterior is embellished with a combination of arched top and multi-lite windows, decorative quoins, multiple roof breaks with hip and gable styles combined, and a covered front stoop.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 2072. It includes 2,094 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

FmHA serves credit needs in rural areas

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Farmers Home Administration continues to review its portfolio for possible graduation of borrowers to private credit as mandated by Congress, Neal Sox Johnson, FmHA state director in Temple, has announced.

The FmHA credit programs are administered in a manner that will assure that they do not supplant or compete with credit available to farmers, rural families, rural communities and cities from other reliable credit sources.

The law requires that FmHA borrowers should graduate to other credit on reasonable rates and terms when they are able to do so.

FmHA, as the lending arm of the U.S. Government, has long been a source of credit for farmers, ranchers, rural homeowners and rural areas who have been unable to obtain credit through commercial lenders such as banks, savings and loans, Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Banks.

Farmers Home Administration has attempted to aid those borrowers as a "lender of last resort," said Johnson.

Nationwide, and on annual basis, FmHA revises its loan portfolio to determine those borrowers who have progressed to the point they no longer need government assistance to obtain credit.

This annual review is currently being conducted by local Farmers Home Administration offices. FmHA borrowers all areas may be contacted to furnish information on their ability to graduate from their FmHA loans to these lenders.

The mission of the Farmers Home Administration loan program is that of "temporary sources of supervised credit in modest amounts" to those who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere.

Guaranteed rural housing loans are now available through the Farmers Home Administration office.

Under this new program, people whose adjusted gross income is less than or equal to the county's moderate income level of $27,200, for a family of four, may qualify.

The program authorizes 90 percent guaranteed loans on up to 100 percent of the market value of a dwelling; this would make the down payment much lower than on a conventional or FHA loan.

Ross W. James, supervisor for Deaf Smith/Oldham County FmHA, says "This would greatly enhance the availability to the market for many people. Lowering the down payment along with interest assistance could boost the Hereford housing market sales 15 to 25 percent.

Interest assistance, available for the low income individual, is a tool whereby the government would subsidize the monthly rural housing payment. Under interest assistance, the payments many times are reduced to less than the rent being paid now.

The FmHA guaranteed loan is made through a local mortgage lender. The loan is a fixed rate, 30-year loan which is backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. government.

Anyone interested in the program may contact James at 313 W. Third, 364-2802.

The Farmers Home Administration has a new loan program designed to help members of socially disadvantaged groups, including minorities, acquire land for farming in Deaf Smith and Oldham Counties, announced Ross W. James, FmHA supervisor for the two counties.

Under the new program, FmHA will try to find persons in those categories who are interested in farming and can qualify for FmHA farm ownership loans.

The agency is prepared to sell or lease to them a farm held in its inventory or make a loan for purchase of land on the open market, said James.

FmHA also can provide other loan and technical assistance, if needed, to help the borrower get started.

Socially disadvantaged population groups include Hispanics, Native Americans, Blacks, Asians and Pacific Islanders.

Persons who think they may be eligible and who are in farming or have farming experience should contact the FmHA at 313 W. Third, 364-2802.

Watch Out For Those Power Lines!

Modern farming requires the use of large, complex machinery. Each year a tragic number of accidents are caused by careless handling of farm equipment around electric power lines. Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative urges you to use caution at all times. Watch for overhead power lines and utility poles, and avoid any contact with this potentially lethal power equipment.

SENIOR SCENE

Supplement to The Hereford Brand

NOVEMBER 1991

Work continues on Trees Festival

The second annual Festival of Trees is just around the corner and the center is bustling with activity in preparation for this four-day event. The doors will open to the public at 9 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 21. During the festival there will be an array of entertainment, activities, and special events.

The center will hold a holiday bazaar featuring ceramics, homecrafted items, baked goods, and condiments. The snack bar will be open for all to enjoy. Children will also have the opportunity to do some Christmas shopping in a shop featuring items especially for them. The Lionel Train Exhibit will again be displayed for the young and old alike.

Entertainment by local individuals, groups, and organizations, as well as out-of-town performers, will be ongoing throughout daytime festival hours.

The main feature of the festival is the display and auction of beautifully decorated Christmas Trees which have been sponsored by local businesses and decorated by various individuals and organizations.

Last year over 4,000 persons enjoyed the festival and it is expected that more will attend this year. Children from day care centers, kindergartens, and senior citizens will be special guests for daytime activities on designated days. There is no admission charge for viewing the trees and attending general festival activities.

Several special events are planned. The first of these will be a private reception Thursday evening, November 21 for a preview showing of the Christmas Trees and to express personal appreciation to persons sponsoring a tree for display and auction. It is through this sponsorship that major costs of the event are underwritten.

At 7 p.m. on that same evening, Nov. 21, the Festival Gala, which will feature a holiday buffet supper, and listening and dancing to the music of Marie Howard. This is a ticketed event with sponsors and decorators being special guests.

The general public and those in attendance at the gala will be invited to attend the Auction of the Trees also to be held at the center on Nov. 21. The auctioneer will raise the gavel at 8 p.m. There is no door charge for persons attending the auction to observe or participate.

Friday evening will feature a style show and salad bar coordinated by La Jean Henry. The affair will begin at 7 p.m. Several merchants will show their latest fashions on this evening. Admission is $6.50.

Saturday morning begins with "Breakfast with Santa" at 9 a.m. for children 12 years of age and under. Santa will visit and eat with the youngsters. There will also be a goodies sack for the children and live entertainment. Admission is $3.

Saturday afternoon children 12 and under will have opportunity to be enjoyed the "Teddy Bear Tea." They will be asked to bring their teddy bear if they wish. Those bringing their Teddy bears can be a part of the Teddy Bear Parade. The children's musical, "Down by the Creek" will be presented by the first through 6 grader choir of the First Baptist Church. There will be refreshments and a bag of surprises for each child. Admission is $3.

There will be an old fashion family Christmas Party on Saturday night with a country supper and entertainment by the community band and Kim's School of Dance. Admission is $8 for adults and $4 for children. Santa will be present and children can have their picture taken with him.

A Holiday Turkey Buffet Lunch will be served in the dining room of the center on Sunday, November 24, from 12 p.m. until 2 p.m. Admission will be $7.50 for adults and $3.50 for children 12 and under.

The Festival of Choirs will be held from 2 p.m. Sunday and continue until 5 p.m. Admission for this special event is $5.

Many are working on various projects for the festival. Specific committees are: Entertainment, Ruth Knox and Clara Brown; Children's Activities, Juanita Coker; Snack Bar, Grant and Troyce Hanna, Larry and Geneva Summers; Holiday Bazaar Crafts, Barbara Wirt; Holiday Bazaar Baked Goods and Condiments, Jewel Hargrave and Jo Lee; Sponsors' Reception and Festival Gala, the Senior Citizens Board; Style Show; La Jean Henry; Terry Bear Tea and Breakfast with Santa, Mildred Garrison and Rosalee McGowen; Sunday Buffet Lunch, Pat Clark; Festival of Choirs, Eunice and Cecil Boyer; Center Decoration, Barbara Wirt; Tree Sponsorship Solicitation, Larry Summers, Al Daniels, S.L. Garrison, John Warren, and Ann Werner; Tree Decoration, Helen Spinks and Lucy Martin; Tree Auction, Earl and Dodie Brookhart, Sid Ham; Volunteers, Lester Wagner; Publicity Margie Daniels; Set up, Al Daniels; Maintenance, Bill White.

There is a need for additional crafts, sewn items and people to bake for the bazaar. We also need people to decorate miniatures Christmas Trees for sale in the bazaar. Please contact the committees working on these items if you can help out.

The festival is a major fund raising event for the center. It is also an opportunity for people of all ages to come together to ring in the holiday.

Outgoing board members recognized

Retiring board members Roberta Caviness and Grant Hanna were among the persons recognized by President Lester Wagner at a reception held recently at the Senior Center. Also retiring from the board this year is Garth Thomas. Volunteers and employees were also honored.

Board, volunteers, workers honored

Retiring board members, volunteers and retiring staff of Hereford Senior Citizens were the honored guests at an evening reception on Thursday, Oct. 17.

Members expressed their appreciation and gave recognition to board members retiring in 1990 and 1991. President Lester Wagner presented service awards to Helen Spinks, Bartley Dowell, S.L. Garrison, Roberta Caviness, Grant Hanna and Garth Thomas for their years on the board.

Margie Daniels, director, recognized more than 70 people who have recorded volunteer hours in various areas of the Center during last year. She reported that the group as a whole has contributed 24,757 hours of time to Center operations. Pauline Huse, a volunteer who passed away in August, was remembered. During the last 10 months of her life, she gave 1624.75 hours to the Center.

Special recognition awards were presented to four volunteers: Will Walker, who has helped deliver meals to the homebound for 7 years; Stella Hershey, who has been a volunteer at the Center for 15 years; and Grant and Troyce Hanna, who have prepared chili, pancake suppers and other meals for fund raising at the Center and other organizations in Hereford for years.

Al Daniels was presented the Volunteer of the Year award by Lester Wagner. Al has volunteered at the Center for 13 years. He did renovation work at the old center at Central School and does many maintenance jobs to save money at the new Center. This year, Al donated 705.5 hours.

The director expressed her personal appreciation to the retiring board members and volunteers through the years who have been the key to the success of the Center, along with making it possible for older individuals in Hereford to improve their quality of life. She said the through their efforts and through the commitment and support of the community, Hereford is known as having the best Senior Citizen Center in the state.

The board and the membership recognized and gave special thanks

President's Corner

With the trees dropping their leaves and the harvesting of corn, milo, sugar beets and other crops--as well as the chill in the air, we are reminded that we are enjoying one of the most pleasant seasons of the year. As I look around at the folks as they enjoy the meals and other activities at the Center, I am convinced that, for many, this is the most enjoyable season of their lives.

Things are shaping up for the upcoming Festival of Trees to be held at the Center Nov. 21st through Nov. 24th. This is the second year for the event in which everyone in the community can take a part and is the major fund-raiser for the Center.

The reception held at the Center last week honoring the volunteers, the staff and the retiring board members was well attended. We were reminded that there are many opportunities to stay active, if able, to seve those less fortunate than ourselves. We are going to miss Mamie in the kitchen as she retires the last of the month. She has been with us for more than 10 years, helping to provide us with hot nourishing meals each day. We wish her a happy retirement and hope to see her often at the Center.

Nutrition Notes

Charlotte R. Clark
MS RD/LD

In reviewing a recent article in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, several interesting facts were reviewed on the eating habits of the senior citizens.

There seems to be a relationship of emotional motivator for eating and body fatness among elderly retired individuals. The elderly, a heterogeneous group composed of individuals aged 60 through 90 years or older, can not be a measure of nutritional well-being when we consider actual chronological ages. Dietary investigations indicate a relatively high incidence of obesity even though the majority of obese elderly reported caloric intakes below recommended daily levels.

The phenomenon of obesity among elderly persons consuming deficient diets underscores the need for eating behaviors that make adequate adjustments for decreased energy requirements associated with sedentary life-styles. Factors identified as influences on eating behavior and thus, on the ultimate nutritional status and well being of older persons include health, gender, socio-economic status convenience, and taste as well as psychosocial conditions such as loneliness, social isolation, and widowhood. What has been missing on factors influencing eating behavior among the elderly is the impact of emotional motivations.

Food is widely used for non nutritive emotional needs such as a substitute for acceptance, relieving boredom, resisting depression, rebellion, and other purposes. In studies conducted in several southern and western states where a great number of elderly individuals live in recreational vehicle parks part of each year, it was concluded that food is widely used for non nutritive emotional needs such as a substitute for acceptance, relieving boredom, resisting depression, rebellion or other individual purposes. The studies all were undertaken to assess the nutritional status of a well-defined sector of the elderly in terms of determining what relationships if any, exist between emotional motivator for eating and body-fat levels.

Individuals in these recreational parks are active and independent, enjoy a high degree of financial security, live with their spouse, and report satisfaction with their life-style.

Data on emotional favors unvoiced in eating were recorded in six categories of three items each that describe the respondent's reasons for eating other than hunger. The first three categories represent positive feelings obtained from eating; a sense of stimulation; the satisfaction of handling things; and pleasurable relaxation by reducing the state of tension or anxiety. The second three categories represent undesirable feelings associated with eating; a reduction of negative feelings or a crutch; a complex pattern of increasing and decreasing craving; and purely habit or automatic.

REASONS FOR EATING (Besides Hunger)

Stimulation

I eat to keep myself from slowing down
I eat to stimulate me, perk myself up
I eat to give me a lift

Handling

Handling food is part of the enjoyment of eating
Part of the enjoyment of eating comes from the steps I take to prepare it
When I eat, part of the enjoyment is seeing, smelling and tasting food

Pleasurable relaxation
Eating is pleasant and relaxing
I find eating pleasurable
I want food most when I am comfortable and relaxed

Crutch

When I feel angry about something, I eat
When I feel uncomfortable or upset about something, I eat
When I feel blue or want to take my mind off cares and worries, I eat.

Craving

When I run out of my favorite food I find it almost unbearable until I can get more
I am very much aware of the fact when I am not eating
I get a real gnawing hunger for food when I have not eaten for a while

Habit

I eat automatically without even being aware of it
I eat without realizing what I am doing
I have found food in my mouth and did not remember putting it there

In evaluation of the data collected the frequency with which each item contributed to eating revealed that the higher the combined score of the three category component items, the greater the importance of motivation.

Among men observed and monitored increased body fat was significantly related to the emotional motivator of craving. Among women monitored, stimulation and crutch were significantly related to increased body fat.

Where emotional states serve as antecedents to physiologic cues, eating behavior should be replaced with actions incompatible with eating. There actions must exist in a positive, productive sense.

Margie's Notes

The time is going fast. It will soon be time for our Festival of Trees. We're really busy around the center getting everything organized. We have our committed decorators and its really exciting hearing the different ideas each person or group has for decorations. The entertainment committee has a great schedule of performers. All of the committees are making good progress and have really worked hard.

Consumer Groups Storm Local Grocery Stores!

Stores point finger at newspaper

Today saw one of the largest consumer responses of the week to offers made by local grocery stores for discounted prices. Across the city, shoppers were redeeming coupons cut from the local paper in record numbers.

"We know any offer we make will be highlighted most by the newspaper," commented a grocery store spokesman. "Our goal is simply to inform the consumers that these discounts are available. We are confident they will respond if they see it in the paper." His statement was backed by recent Consumer Data Service reports that indicated grocery store ads triple volume on discounted items and double volume on regularly priced items. It also revealed grocery ads are read by well over 70% of newspaper readers.

Grocery store representatives unanimously agreed that newspaper advertising was the only way to get immediate consumer response. One grocer remarked, "Most people read the paper, and a bunch of those readers clip our coupons. It's that simple." His comments reflect the well known Manufacturer's Coupon Center report which stated that over 80% of all families use coupons.

"When consumers want more for their money, they always go to the newspaper," a grocery official said. When pressed by reporters for the best offer he could make to the consumers he replied, "Look in the paper, it's all right there. Green leaf lettuce, two heads for 79¢... with a coupon of course."

Golden Line Dancers

By Jolene Bledsoe

Edna Johnson and Geraldine Frank, sometimes known as "Thelma & Louise" went on vacation together. They visited Edna's sister in Vernal, Utah. They enjoyed RV rallies and did a lot of sight seeing. One of the highlights of the trip was seeing the Flaming Gorge.

Lucy Martin spend a long weekend in Ruidoso. She attended the races while there and placed one bet - would you believe the horse won the race and then dropped dead! If that's a message to anyone - slow down and don't work too hard.

Jolene Bledsoe had surgery in early September and is doing great. She is counting the days until she can claim her place in line dancing.

Gid and Juanita Brownnd have returned home following a months trip in the Great Northwest including the state of Washington where they visited their son and family. They also went to Denver to see their other son. All the sights were beautiful and they enjoyed each trip so very much.

Betty Jo Carlson's grandsons are at it again! Jeffery Carlson won breed champion with his Charolais steer and Michael Carlson won his class with his Limousine steer at the Abilene Fair.

Bessie Story went to Dallas and attended the retirement party for her son that retired from Texas Instruments.

Lloyd and Frances Crume visited their son and his wife in Pflugerville. Their son is a football coach and they attended a game in Temple. Winning that game was really an event. They also went to Cedar Creek Lake and visited former Hereford residence, Ruth and Gwynne Owen.

Clarence and Mildred Betzen took a twelve day cruise up to Canada and New England. Brother Denis Sennet, formerly of Hereford, met them at the dock in New York and took them out to dinner, making this one of the highlights of their trip. Almost immediately after arriving home Clarence was involved in a four wheel accident and injured his foot! Since that time has has been recuperating from his injury and is looking forward to coming back to line dance. He is truly missed.

Stan and Ruth Knox went to Dallas for a few days to help celebrate their son's birthday.

Virginia Holmes visited her son in Ft. Worth. He is a football coach and they attended four games - all of which were winners. Virginia must have played a big part in those games in the cheering section. She is most happy to be home.

Bill and Gene Patton left in early September with five other RV rigs. Their route included Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Pine Island resort. Form there they went to Kansas City and spent five days at Lake Paradise near Grove, Missouri. They attended a six state RMCA Rally in Sedalis, Missouri. They then went to Branson, Missouri - Bollinggreen and Lexington, Kentucky and on to Nashville, Tenn.

Keith Carmichael, grandson of Pete and Wilma Carmichael was honored as Outstanding Agriculture Teacher of Missouri during the annual conference of the Missouri Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association (MVATA). A 1981 graduate of the University of Missouri - Columbia Carmichael has taught at Lakeland High School for 10 years. The past year he served as State Vice-President of the MVATA and was honored by the University of Missouri - Columbia as the "Most Influential Teacher." The selection is based on instructional techniques, Community involvement, leadership in professional and agricultural organizations, as well as the success and achievements of the ag program and students. He is the son of Kenneth and Janell Carmichael of Doniphan, Missouri.

Jolene Bledsoe had visitors from Bakersfield, Calif. Two of her nieces, Karla Simpson and Linda Shearer visited her for several days and then went to Lubbock. her sister-in-law, Evalyn Dye from Lubbock spent two weeks with her.

Several of the line dancers went on the Pennsylvania tour. This included our leader Olga Harris, Betty Jo Carlson, Addie Cunningham, Ruth Knox, Helen Spinks, Juanita Coker, Leona Schilling and Majorie Daniels. They did a special performance on the boat, Bell of St. Louis and then in an ice cream parlor along the way.

A wonderful trip was reported by all. They could not believe the many things and beautiful sights they saw in such a short time.

Olga Harris went to Winnsboro, Tx. to visit her daughter, Judy and Husband, Tony Thompson. She and her grandson, Jason celebrated their birthdays together. Olga has had a checkup recently with all her doctors and they have given her a clean bill of health!! Isn't that just absolutely wonderful!

Ed McCreary attended the Balloon Festival in Albuquerque; he even took a ride in one of the balloons. He enjoyed a ride on the world's longest tramway to the top of Sandia Peak where he enjoyed a spectacular view and dinner. As usual he managed to do some square dancing and played golf.

The Line Dancers are making decorations for their Christmas Tree that will be one of many during the Festival of Trees. We won't tell you how we have chosen to decorate the tree but you can bet it will be beautiful as was their Teddy Bear Tree last year. We invite you to come to see our tree during the Festival of Trees, Nov. 21-24. The Line Dancers performed at the Center on Monday, Oct. 14th for the Retired Teachers Assoc. They also performed on Wednesday, Oct. 16 at the Golden Plains Care Center. They are scheduled to perform Sept. 22 in Amarillo at the Vivian's Nursing Home, Sept. 26 in Dimmitt at the Canterbury Nursing Home and Sept. 29 in Amarillo again at the Golden Age Nursing Home.

Eye Openers

By: Dr. Hugh B. Currie
Currie Eye Institute
DID YOU KNOW....?

The dry Texas Panhandle, where the wind blows and the sun shines for many days during the year, results in the development of a number of eye problems. Chronic redness and irritation of the eyes is a frequent patient complaint. Dryness of the eyes causes some of these complaints as we have discussed in the past. Chronic infection along the lid margins is another major cause of eye irritation that will not go away. This is known as Blepharitis.

Blepharitis is hard to cure and seems to resist our therapeutic efforts in many patients. Many patients have small scales that form along the base of their eyelashes. These are fertile ground for bacteria. If you have chronic red eyes, examine your eyelashes and the skin along the eyelid and see if there is build up of crusty scales. If so, there are medications and procedures to help control this scaling, and therefore control the infection that is usually associated with it. Most of the time blepharitis is a reoccurring problem and has to be controlled rather than cured. This may require long term therapy. It is difficult for many people to understand that all conditions cannot be cured in today's world. The control of Blepharitis, however, can be quite satisfactory, most of the time, if conscientious effort is applied by the patient.

CBS fires off another round with 'Gunsmoke III'

James Arness returns as Matt Dillon in Gunsmoke III: To the Last Man, a dramatic TV-movie scheduled for Sunday on CBS. Amy Stock-Poynton co-stars as Dillon's daughter. (Movie may be pre-empted by game seven of the World Series.)

James Arness rides tall in the saddle

By Amy Schmidt

One might wonder if James Arness, alias Marshal Matt Dillon (Gunsmoke), ever wanted to play James Bond. After 20 years on TV's longest-running series, you'd think Arness may have longed to trade his well-worn saddle for a new, high-tech Bond-mobile.

"No," chuckles Arness, in his booming, no-nonsense bass that stopped many an outlaw in his tracks on Gunsmoke. "I never did."

That isn't to say the Minnesota native and brother of Peter Graves (Mission: Impossible) always wanted to play Matt Dillon, though.

Back in 1955, CBS wanted John Wayne for the lawman role. Instead, Wayne recommended his young friend and protege Arness. But Arness was worried the western would flop, ruining his burgeoning film career. He subsequently refused the part, deciding to blaze the trail less traveled.

As the story goes, Wayne was furious at Arness' ingratitude and called him over to his house. The two western warriors sat arguing across a table, a bottle between them, late into the night.

"Thank God, I didn't do that," says Arness about saying so long to the role that eventually made him the symbol of justice on the American frontier. (Gunsmoke, incidentally, also made the actor a wealthy man. By the series' end, he owned part of the show.)

If Arness thanks God, CBS surely thanks Arness. The series was a boon to the network for 20 years, and continues to be. Where Brady Bunch and WKRP reunions have failed, Gunsmoke revivals have succeeded.

In 1987, Marshal Dillon and Miss Kitty (Amanda Blake) were reunited in the TV-movie Gunsmoke: Return to Dodge, which did well enough to spawn Gunsmoke II: The Last Apache in 1990. Three being the charm, Gunsmoke III: To the Last Man debuts Sunday, Oct. 27, on the network.

Gunsmoke III hardly breaks new ground: Cattle rustlers make off with Matt's herd. He sets out to lasso the 'nappers, only to find himself caught in a bloody frontier family feud. To make matters worse, Matt's daughter (fresh-faced actress Amy Stock-Poynton) decides to lend daddy a hand, thrusting herself into the obvious role of damsel in distress.

Co-stars in the new film include Pat Hingle (The Grifters) Jason Lively (National Lampoon's European Vacation), Matt Mulhern (Major Dad) and Morgan Woodward (Dallas). Hingle and Woodward have made appearances in past Gunsmoke episodes.

Stock-Poynton is the only co-star to return from Gunsmoke II. Arness, continuing to serve as the link between past and present, is the sole returning original cast member. It's fair to say that without Arness there would be no Gunsmoke.

At 68, the towering actor still rides tall in the saddle, although not quite as tall. "I probably started out around six feet seven," says Arness of his height. "I may be down to six feet four now. You know the disks wear out on you," he says, putting it as plainly as Matt Dillon would have. But, mind you, that's still taller than Bondsmen Sean Connery, Roger Moore and Timothy Dalton.

FAMILY FAIRE

'Way Cool' shows kids a way to fit in

By Chris Carpenter

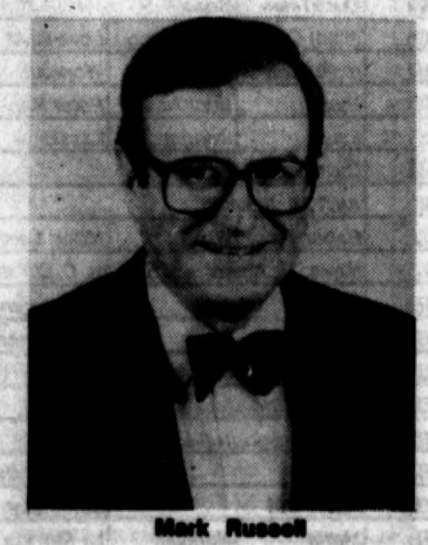

By mixing a smattering of young, high-energy hipsters with a squeaky-clean rap duo and stirring in more than a dash of propriety for flavor, the new syndicated children's show Way Cool attempts to bake humble pie for the gumball group. Whether or not youngsters swallow it depends largely on how old they are.

The half-hour series consists of a hodgepodge of skits and music orbiting around a theme of the week. Humor is used as a tool to reshape potentially petrifying situations, and soon family, friends and mankind are laughing with you, not at you.

Kids the cast's age will likely realize the crises they face are more grown-up than the ones whitewashed on the show, but younger children may identify with the junior-high lingo (goob, knob, dude, etc.) and situations, perhaps absorbing a lesson in socialization in the process. We learn it's not the end of the world to have bad hair, be scared of spiders or speak in front of the class.

Special merit goes to the producers on at least two counts: not creating mere mind candy when it would have been easier, and incorporating solid and entertaining production techniques. Noted education consultant Dr. Gordon L. Berry assists on the scripts, and the camera work, borrowing heavily from Parker Lewis Can't Lose, uses split-screens and zooms.

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

LITTLE MAN TATE: Starring Jodie Foster and Adam Hann-Byrd. This is the first film directed by former child prodigy Jodie Foster and is about a child prodigy. Foster's affinity for her subject matter helps smooth over the many bumpy spots in the sprawling script. As a director, she gives her performers plenty of space to do their thing; her best move was to keep herself from becoming the center of attention. Indeed the story is about an eight-year-old genius (played by newcomer Hann-Byrd),

Fred Tate, who is so aware of the world around him that he suffers from ulcers and nightmares. He is the film's most powerful and believable element and to say that his dramatic debut is as auspicious as Foster's directorial debut is the highest praise imaginable. Hann-Byrd's rapport with Foster, who plays his blue-collar mother, is dead on. There is low-key magic in their acknowledgement of each other. The conflict in the film is between Foster and Dianne Wiest. Wiest plays the matriarchal head of an internationally acclaimed "genius" academy who takes Tate under her wing. The contrast between Foster's lovable vulgarity and Wiest's prim intellectual manipulations is too predictable. The acting is superb overall and the story is compellingly interesting. The major flaw is the film's "rough cut" feeling. What is missed is a finished, satisfying feel. It is apparent that Foster loved her actors and her scenes so much that she was loath to cut any of them, and the repetition of ideas weakens the film. However, Foster's and Hann-Byrd's debuts (the promise of Foster's talents as a director and Adam Hann-Byrd as a young actor) are awe inspiring. Rated PG-13.

THE FIELD: (1990) Starring Richard Harris, Tom Berenger and John Hurt. Bull McCabe (Richard Harris) embroils himself in an elemental battle to hang onto a patch of Irish turf he and his family have worked for generations. In a rugged, beautiful setting, a fine cast gives strong performances in a story that literally rages itself into large poetic significance. The film was directed by Jim Sheridan, the Irish playwright who got Oscar nominations for writing and directing his first film, My Left Foot. Richard Harris got an Academy Award nomination for his performance in The Field, no small feat considering that hardly anyone saw this film.

The story explores the darker side of the Irish spirit and builds to an almost terrible hysteria. The small screen tones these tragedies somewhat and makes things a bit more palatable. Rated PG-13.

THE OBJECT OF BEAUTY: (1991) Starring John Malkovich and Andie MacDowell. Jake (John Malkovich) and Tina (Andie MacDowell) are a couple for the 90s. Yuppies loaded with arrogance but low on money, they make a last stand in a London hotel hoping their credit cards will hold out long enough for their fortunes to change. Some humility sets in when Tina's Henry Moore sculpture is stolen before they can hock it. Tina suspects Jake, and Jake suspects guess who? Events grown more nonsensical and, if you can forgive the miscasting of Malkovich, and enjoy the presence of lovely Andie MacDowell, you will enjoy a small screen look at snobbish comedy. Rated R for mature themes.

A SPECIAL VIDEO EVENT

AMERICANS ON EVEREST: (1963) Pyramid Video. This video may not be available for rental but it is for sale. The cost is $39.95 and the video has a running time of 55 minutes. Too bad every mountain climb can't have Orson Wells to describe it. "Man, strong in will to survive, to seek," intones Wells as two climbers plod along at the 28,000-foot level on Mount Everest in this documentary about the first American ascent of the magnificent mountain in 1963.

Most impressive is the hauling of 27 tons of equipment up glaciated valleys called cwms (a Welsh word, pronounced cooms). (The sight of exhausted climbers pausing for cigarette breaks is even more startling than the summit views.) This video is for everyone who understands the premise - "because it is there", and seeks stunning scenery. Not rated. A family video. SN Live pokes fun at history

NEW YORK (AP) - It's still being talked about, that Senate Judiciary Committee hearing aired by NBC. Some also recall February's classic press briefing by the U.S. military during the Gulf War, also on NBC.

It should be noted, however, that each started a show called "Saturday Night Live." They were not the real thing, according to Western analysts. But sometimes, it's hard to tell, considering the real thing.

In case you missed either, SNL's Gulf War briefing, written by Jim Downey, had a Marine lieutenant colonel facing a room full of civilian correspondents. Some seemed to be graduates of the University of Dufus. (There weren't any reporters like that covering the war, of course.)

The colonel began by saying he wouldn't discuss certain information that "might be useful to the enemy." Whereupon one bright-eyed scribe raised his hand:

"What date are we going to start the ground attack?"

Next question. "Knowing what you know, where would you say our forces are most vulnerable to attack, and how could the Iraqis exploit those weaknesses?"

But the questions got better: "Are we planning an amphibious invasion and exactly where would that be?"

It was a very democratic briefing. Why, even the man from the Baghdad Times got to ask, "Where are your troops and can I go count them?"

Last Saturday, the show's committee hearing concerned another major topic in the news: the Senate hearings on Anita Hill's allegations of sexual harassment by her former boss, Clarence Thomas.

Kevin Nealen, as committee chairman Sen. Joseph Biden, asked Thomas (Tim Meadows), if he had ever asked Hill out for a date.

Phil Hartman's Sen. Ted Kennedy was moved to ask in his flat Massachusetts accent: "Were you, ah, drunk at the time?"

There ensued discussions by his colleagues of how soft-core porn really appeals to women.

Said Hartman's Kennedy: "Another good thing is to get them out on your boat for some reason because, ah, because then it's really hahhd for them to get away."

Later, Al Franken's Sen. Paul Simon asked Thomas about a Justice Department secretary named Sandy: "Do you think she'd go out with me?"

Lorne Michaels, the show's executive producer, said Saturday's committee session was written by staffer Jack Handey before the real hearings began Friday and that "it was continually updated up until airtime."

He said the SNL troupe also did a dress rehearsal of a "Not Completely Fair Theater" sketch in which Thomas made overtures to Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

But that was dropped, not by a decree from censors but by Michaels: "We felt that it didn't play well enough because the thing had heated up almost to a white heat by Saturday night. We felt the first piece was more than enough. It looked like we were hitting him way too hard."
