Grand jury indicts nine

A 38-year-old California man was indicted on two counts of attempted murder Thursday during the monthly session of the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury.

Rueben Hidalgo, who listed his home as Stockton, Cal., was indicted in connection with an incident on Sept. 22, when two men were shot in east Hereford, near the intersection of U.S. 60 and Myrtle.

Hidalgo is confined to Deaf Smith County jail in lieu of bond.

Two other suspects arrested on Sept. 22 in connection with the double shooting, were no-billed by the grand jury, said Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul.

He reported the grand jury decided not to indict Juan Enriquez, 24, and Enrique Rios, 33, both of Hereford.

Eight other persons were indicted at the October sitting of the grand jury. The name of one defendant was not released, pending arrest.

Agustin Arredondo, 33, of 212 Avenue A, was indicted for felony driving while intoxicated. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Also posting bond of $1,000 was Ramon Rodrigo Rodriguez, 29, of 117 Avenue F, indicted for unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon.

A bond of $5,000 has been posted by Ernesto Alonzo Castro, 29, of 829 Blevins, charged with alleged possession of a controlled substance, namely cocaine.

Felony driving while intoxicated indictments were returned against Jesus Manuel Gonzalez, 19, of 117 Avenue F, and Daniel Santiago Garcia, 32, of Dimmitt. Both are in jail, in lieu of bond.

Indicted for criminal mischief over $750 and under $20,000, Robert Vera, 22, of 209 Fuller, is in jail, pending bond.

Unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon is the indictment lodged against Cornelius A. Caruthers, 27, of 509 Avenue H. He is in jail in lieu of bond.

Special voting day is Sunday

The number of Deaf Smith County voters casting ballots early in the Nov. 5 Constitutional Amendment election has picked up some this week but the telling blow on the lottery issue may come Sunday.

County residents may exercise their right to vote Sunday, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., in the Deaf Smith County courthouse.

The Sunday voting time is the response to a petition delivered to County Clerk David Ruland by opponents of Proposition 11 on the ballot.

Proposition 11 would allow a statewide lottery, if approved by Texas voters.

Ruland reported Thursday afternoon that 92 voters had appeared in person to vote since Oct. 23.

Early voting also will continue weekdays through Nov. 1, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., in the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

Sunday hours for early voting were requested two weeks ago by the Rev. Dr. Ron Cook, pastor of First Baptist Church of Hereford. A petition signed by at least 15 qualified voters asked for hours before and after Sunday morning church services.

Ruland had the option of choosing the Sunday and hours. He decided to set Sunday afternoon hours to accommodate staffing on Sunday.

When he presented the petition, Cook noted that Oct. 27 is high attendance day in churches of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, which might draw more opponents of the lottery to polls on a Sunday.

No excuse early voting in Texas elections has replaced absentee voting which required citizens to state a reason for being unable to vote on election day. Early voting does not require an excuse.

Band ready for district contest

Phantom of the Opera

Tracie Gilbert and Tonya Allen of the Hereford High School Drill Team wear their "Phantom of the Opera" masks after last Friday's halftime performance at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium. The HHS Mighty Maroon Band, twirlers and drill team will perform their contest show, "The Magic of Andrew Lloyd Webber," at the district marching contest Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at Bulldog Stadium in Borger.

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band, fresh off a first-place finish at the Texas Tech Festival in Lubbock last Saturday, will take the first step in a return to the State Marching Contest at the District Marching Contest to be held Saturday at Bulldog Stadium in Borger.

The band's show, "The Magic of Andrew Lloyd Webber," features the music of the most successful composer of musicals in the theater today. Webber's works include "Joseph and the Technicolor Coat," "Cats" and "Phantom of the Opera," among others. Both "Cats" and "Phantom" are still playing to sold-out audiences in New York.

The band will perform for the district judges at 8:30 p.m. The show is running later than usual because of several conflicts. After the Mighty Maroon Band, Dumas will wrap up the 4A portion of the contest. The contest will end about 10 p.m. Saturday with the 5A contest.

The conception of the show began last winter, after the band returned from the State Marching Contest in Austin. "We picked up the idea for this show at our annual convention last winter," said Director James MacLaskey. "Then we worked on it off and on all spring."

After reviewing music, directors MacLaskey, Mike Bryant and Don and Tammy Summersgill began working on the music and various marching patterns. Also at work since last spring have been Jan Walser, who works with the twirlers, and drill team sponsor Ginger Wallace.

The band's show includes "Superstar," "Memories," "Don't Cry For Me, Argentina," "Music of the Night" and "Overture from Phantom of the Opera." The band fine-tuned its show for the Lubbock festival, ranking first among 4A bands at the show. The festival was important because the band was able to perform the show at a large stadium and was critiqued by judges.

If the band is chosen as one of the top two Class 4A bands in the contest, it will qualify for the regional marching contest to be held in Lubbock next weekend. If the band is one of the top two at the regional contest, it will return to the state contest in Austin next month.

The grip to Austin last year was the first for the Hereford band in the still-relatively-new state contest. The band, according to the judges' ballots, qualified for the state contest as the second-place band at regional, but Pecos was inadvertently listed as the second-place band behind Monahans.

Although the Hereford band's protest of the ruling was denied by state officials, the Pecos band gave up its spot in Austin. The HHS band members each wore a special ribbon with the name and instrument of each member of the Pecos band. The sportsmanship displayed by the two programs received statewide recognition, and the Hereford and Pecos bands were invited to march in Gov. Ann Richards' inaugural parade last January.

Bush, Democrats launch attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic lawmakers say President Bush's stepped-up attacks on Congress are an attempt to distract the public from his failure to deal with the nation's economic woes.

"President Bush has the worst record of American growth and job creation of any president since Herbert Hoover," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine. "And with the president having no plan, no program, no proposal, no suggestions ... he is clearly attempting to divert the attention of the American people."

Attacking Congress "is not a new political tactic. It is as old as the republic. I don't think the American people are going to be fooled by it," Mitchell said.

Bush, in a speech Thursday, embraced the public's anti-Congress mood that has resulted from scandals at the House bank and restaurant and the spectacle of the Clarence Thomas nomination hearings.

The Senate hearings were "more like a burlesque show than a civics class," the president said.

He demanded that Congress appoint a special counsel to find by

Jan. 3 who leaked Anita Hill's sexual harassment accusations while the Senate was preparing to confirm Thomas to the Supreme Court.

As the president spoke, the Senate already was moving to authorize a broader special counsel investigation of leaks. It approved the measure, 86-12, later Thursday.

Bush, a former two-term member of the House from Texas, contended that Congress was a "privileged class of rulers," above the laws it passes for others.

"I would wager that the American people do not know that Congress has exempted itself from the sexual harassment laws private employers and the executive branch must obey," the president said.

The White House issued to reporters a packet detailing how Congress had exempted itself from civil rights, labor and open government laws.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said he was open to the idea of ending what the public might see as special treatment. But he called on the White House to also propose ending those exemptions for itself.

"I just find it strange that these requests are coming from the White House ... when very often they have been the subject of exemptions at their own request beyond what Congress gets," Foley said.

Mitchell said Bush erred in his statement that job discrimination laws do not apply to Congress. They do, he said - under a bill signed by Bush last year - but the White House remained exempt.

"What the president did not say this morning ... is that hundreds of American workers directly under the president's control ... have no such protection," he said.

One injured in Thursday accident

Members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department work to free Gladys Johnson, 84, of Georgetown from her car after an accident on U.S. Highway 60 west of Hereford on Thursday night. Johnson, who was apparently disoriented, was going east in the westbound lane of the highway when she collided with a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sciumbato. The Sciumbatos were driving west on the highway when they were struck, but were not injured. The accident occurred at 9:45 p.m. Thursday. Johnson had been reported as a missing person by her family on Thursday.

Iraq tested nukes before gulf conflict

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Iraq was conducting test blasts of nuclear weapons components in the desert before the Persian Gulf War, and U.N. inspectors have found hard evidence to prove it, a U.N. official says.

Meanwhile, other U.N. experts said Thursday that Iraq's crash program to stockpile chemical weapons resulted in many more accidents than would be accepted by Western military industries.

The latest reports are part of a painstaking process by U.N. inspectors to uncover and dismantle Iraq's nuclear, chemical and biological weapons potential, whose existence Baghdad has repeatedly obscured or denied.

The standoff came to a head last month when Iraqi troops besieged U.N. inspectors who seized documents on the country's nuclear program. Baghdad backed down after U.S.-led allies announced plans to use military muscle to enforce the inspections under terms of the Gulf War cease-fire.

Physical proof found by U.N. inspectors confirms some of those documents showing Baghdad had been conducting tests of A-bomb components, said Michel St. Mleux, a French nuclear expert with the U.N. Special Commission dismantling Iraq's weapons of mass destruction.

The components being tested were high-explosive lenses, which enable engineers to boost the power of an atomic blast, St. Mleux said Thursday.

Before the war Iraq could have produced a "working" nuclear bomb in about a year or 15 months, he said. Inadequate supplies of fissionable uranium and plutonium prevented Baghdad from building the bomb, he added.

The ultimate logical end of Iraq's experiments with A-bombs, explosive lenses and production of Lithium-6 - used for boosting A-bombs or for thermonuclear reactions - would have been the hydrogen bomb, St. Mleux told reporters.

St. Mleux refused to disclose many details of the evidence of the lenses testing he said was uncovered, but he said, "These tests are conducted with bunkers with 3 meters (yards) of high density concrete."

"You conduct this test either inside the bunker but with limited mass of explosive, or outside - and you get in the bunker. It's better for your health!"

Another Special Commission member said Iraqi officials told U.N. weapons inspectors that they had about 100 "incidents" a year involving chemical weapons, about 10 of which they considered major.

Doctor provided expertise in deaths

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Dr. Jack Kevorkian furnished the devices and the medical know-how for two women to kill themselves, but was careful to keep enough distance to avoid another murder charge, his lawyer says.

Prosecutors acknowledge the case is difficult and say it could be as long as six weeks before they decide whether to file charges.

"The only witnesses are people who won't talk and two ladies who are dead," Oakland County Assistant Prosecutor Michael Modelski told the Detroit Free Press.

Both women had spoken openly of wanting to die and a right-to-die organization praised Kevorkian. But a state lawmaker said Kevorkian should lose his medical license and face criminal charges.

Kevorkian, a retired pathologist known since his medical school days as "Dr. Death," met Marjorie Wantz, 58, and Sherry Miller, 43, Wednesday night at a cabin in a state park about 40 miles north of Detroit, said his lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger.

Miller was paralyzed by multiple sclerosis and Wantz suffered from a painful but not terminal pelvic disease.

Wantz, of Sodus, died first, of a drug overdose administered by an intravenous device. Miller, of Roseville, watched Wantz die before breathing carbon monoxide through a mask, Fieger said.

Wantz started the flow of anesthetic and a fatal dose of sodium pentothal by pulling strings attached to her fingers as her husband, William, sat beside her, Fieger told The New York Times.

Kevorkian called authorities to report the deaths and met sheriff's deputies at the cabin, where they found the women lying side-by-side on cots, the scene illuminated by a few flickering candles.

Kevorkian was careful not to get too close, his lawyer said. "He was present. He provided the expertise. He provided the equipment" but "did not assist in the deaths at all."

"We can't even prove there's been a crime," said sheriff's Capt. Glenn Watson. "We're still investigating." He said autopsy results needed before any charges are filed won't be available for at least a month.

Thirty-one states have laws against assisting suicides, but Michigan is not among them. A measure on the November ballot in Washington state would allow doctor-assisted suicide.

Kevorkian was charged with murder last year for hooking up an Alzheimer's patient to an intravenous suicide device he invented. The patient, Janet Adkins, of Portland, Ore., turned on the machine herself, sending a flow of lethal drugs into her veins.

The murder charge was dismissed, but a court injunction bars Kevorkian from using the device or counseling people about suicide. He could face contempt charges if found to have violated the order.

Kevorkian was questioned at the Sheriff's Department and released early Thursday.

Friends of Miller and Wantz said Kevorkian was an angel of mercy, not of death.

"I'm surprised it took this long," said Darvin Hartness, who lives near the suburban Detroit home Miller shared with her parents. "Sherry wanted to do it. She was just too dependent on her parents."

A divorced mother of two, Miller was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis 12 years ago and had lost the use of her arms, legs and neck muscles by last year. She used a wheelchair.

"It's not a life, it's just existing," she said recently.

Wantz, who appeared with Kevorkian and her husband on a Detroit TV talk show in August, said she lived in constant pain.

The Hemlock Society, a right-to-die organization based in Eugene, Ore., praised Kevorkian and said the suicides underscored a need for specific laws governing physician-assisted suicides for terminally ill patients.

State Sen. Fred Dillingham, the sponsor of a bill that would outlaw assisted suicide, wants Kevorkian charged and says his medical license should be revoked.

Credit reporting changes needed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Credit reports "riddled with errors" are proof the nation must revamp its laws governing credit reporting agencies, says Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

"The existing credit reporting system offers consumers little hope of finding their way through the maze," Morales testified Thursday before a House banking subcommittee considering changes to the nation's Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Morales said state and federal scrutiny is needed to stop "illegal practices" that result in damaged credit ratings for tens of thousands of Americans.

He blamed the country's major credit bureaus - TRW Inc., Equifax Inc. and Trans Union Corp. - for often disseminating credit reports rife with inaccuracies.

Consumers Union reported earlier this year that nearly half of the credit records it studied from the nation's largest credit bureaus contained inaccuracies.

Sixteen states, including Texas, have filed lawsuits against credit bureaus, said Vermont Attorney General Jeffrey Amestoy, who is president-elect of the National Association of Attorneys General.

TRW has filed countersuits in Dallas and New York federal courts, saying that state laws are superseded by the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Legislation being considered by the subcommittee would extend to states the authority to file cases against credit bureaus.

Amestoy said two cases in Vermont highlight the need for reform.

In July, all 1,500 property taxpayers in Norwich, Vermont, were inaccurately listed by TRW as being delinquent, he said. Two months later, over 600 property taxpayers in Woodstock, Vermont, faced the same problem. Twelve other Vermont towns have reported similar incidents, he said.

"What kind of minimally competent system of internal review can there be when the credit of every person in a Vermont town is listed as bad and the computer doesn't even blink?" Amestoy asked.

He said TRW acted slowly to correct the errors once notified. But TRW executive vice president D. Van Skilling said the company corrected its information in one day. The firm is spending more than $30 million over three years to improve its database, he said.

Amestoy proposed minimum civil penalties of $1,000 for credit agencies in cases where consumers suffered damages.

"Clearly, it is time to swing the pendulum back toward the American consumer," said Rep. Esteban Torres, D-Calif., who introduced legislation earlier this week to amend the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1970.

Subcommittee member Bernard Sanders agreed.

"These credit reporting bureaus can no longer be allowed to play God with the lives of average Americans," said Sanders, a Vermont independent.

Credit bureaus aren't the only ones making errors, said David Medine, an acting associate director for the Federal Trade Commission. Creditors who report consumers' payment histories to the credit reporting agencies currently have no obligation to be accurate, he noted.

"Requiring creditors and others who furnish information to credit bureaus to meet accuracy standards would certainly improve the accuracy of the consumer reporting system," Medine said.

But Morales said regardless of where the mistakes originate, credit bureaus should be responsible for correcting errors. And, he said, consumers should be entitled to a free copy annually of their credit report.

Only one major credit bureau has committed to such a plan. In 1992, TRW will begin offering an annual free credit report to consumers who request it.

Currently, the credit rating agencies charge consumers to see their file, unless they have recently been rejected for credit on the basis of that report.

Party policy should decide term limit endorsements

AUSTIN (AP) - The state Democratic Party chairman says his party is just doing its job in considering new rules that drew complaints from a group seeking to limit terms of Texas politicians.

"The state party is neither supporting nor endorsing term limits, but Democrats do have a legitimate right and responsibility to make sure that matters of party policy are determined by members of the party," said Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle.

Texas for Term Limitations, a Houston-based bipartisan group, announced last week that it was beginning a petition drive to place a non-binding term limit referendum on both the Democratic and Republican primary ballots.

The group favors limiting most elected officials to six to eight years in a single office. Texans would be limited to 12 years in the U.S. Senate under their plan.

The organizers are trying to collect signatures of 60,000 Republicans and 90,000 Democrats to put the question on both party ballots. The outcome would carry no legal weight. The number of signatures required is a percentage of votes cast in each party's last gubernatorial primary.

But the State Democratic Executive Committee is scheduled to consider a rules change Saturday that the term limit group said would "rob" Democrats of a chance to vote on the term limit referendum.

"This is an attempt to place a roadblock in the grassroots drive toward term limits," said Jim Calaway, a veteran Democratic fund-raiser and co-chairman of the term limit group. The other co-chairman is Republican Rob Mosbacher, who lost last year's lieutenant governor's race to Democrat Bob Bullock.

Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, said the proposal is simply designed to make sure Democrats are involved in placing questions on their own ballot.

"We don't mind the people speaking. But the fact is, a referendum that establishes a Democratic Party position on an issue should involve Democrats from the start to the finish," Martin said.

Texas election law allows parties to establish rules for petition drives to place referendum items on their primary ballots.

The Democratic proposal would restrict those who collect petition signatures and who could sign them. It would require signers to also sign an oath to support Democratic Party candidates. The plan would give state party Chairman Bob Slagle authority to determine the petition's wording.

Calaway said the party affirmation statement is "nothing more than an intimidation tactic."

He also protested a proposal to require those collecting signatures to obtain written authorization from the party officials. "It is a completely intolerable burden that makes our effort impossible," he said.

But Martin said the party has "a legitimate responsibility to administer our party affairs ... to make sure the petitions are legitimate and the people behind it are Democrats. Anyone who wants to circulate these petitions simply has to go to the county (Democratic) chairmen."

CHURCH WOMEN UNITED

Church Women United will host World Community Day services at 10 a.m. Nov. 1 at Ward Parlor at First United Methodist Church. The services are open to all interested persons.

Church Women United is a national ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women together into one community of prayer, advocacy and service.

The theme for this year's special service is "Jubilee is Justice," celebrating the 50th anniversary of CWU in crossing boundaries of race, age, class and culture in search of peace with justice.

The 1991 World Community Day worship experience, designed and written by a diverse group of women theologians, link's CWU's Jubilee with the Biblical concept of Jubilee as a time for reordering of society and restoration of God's justice to the earth. The service will challenge today's women of faith to begin living "Jubilee justice" in their own lives through the reordering of their personal priorities.

Later in November, the CWU's National Jubilee Assembly will be held in St. Louis. Eloise McDougal of Hereford, state president of Church Women United, will be attending the national meeting. Therw will be over 2,500 people attending the St. Louis conference.

Safety should come first when choosing Halloween costumes

NEW YORK (AP) - Most people have fantasies they would like to play out in a costume but when it comes to cloaking the kiddies for Halloween, make safety a priority, two writers on the subject recommend.

Meredith Brokaw and Annie Gilbar, authors of "The Penny Whistle Halloween Book" (Fireside Books, $11, soft-cover), offer the following tips for choosing a child's Halloween costume:

- If you buy the costume, make sure it is flame-resistant.

- Watch out for dark costumes: If a child's costume is black, add a white face, if it is appropriate. Carry a flashlight to help prevent accidents.

- If a sword, cane or stick is part of the costume, make sure it is not sharp or long. These accessories may injure a child if he or she stumbles or trips.

- Try to dress children in their own shoes. Wearing high heels or shoes that are too large can be dangerous and uncomfortable.

Some three dozen make-your-own costume ideas, with makeup tips, are included. In addition to the traditional spider, skeleton and mummy costumes, Brokaw and Gilbar's costume closet includes a hot-air balloon, graffiti pad costume, money tree, and much, much more. Most require little or no sewing, and can be fashioned from items found around the home.

The 80-page book, whimsically illustrated by Jill Weber, also features complete instructions for seven Halloween parties (Barnyard Bash, Witches, Wizards and Goblins Gang, Cats, Monster Mash, Nightmare on Maple Street, House to House Happening, Carnival), with suggestions for invitations, decorations, menus and age-appropriate activities.

Also included: dozens of ideas for carving jack-o'-lanterns, three dozen or so Halloween recipes, plus sources for mail-order makeup kits and scary music tapes.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Did you know that most accidents occur in the home? According to the National Safety Council's most recent figures, in 1989 there were over 11,000 injuries caused by wires and cords and 39,000-plus injuries due to electric fixtures, lamps and equipment. Here are a few simple hints to help lessen the chances of an accident occurring in your house.

• Check extension cords for signs of wear. A frayed extension cord should always be replaced.

• When you fill a steam iron, always unplug it first.

• Cover unused electrical outlets if you have small children.

• When unplugging an appliance, pull on the plug, not the cord.

• Have the wiring in your home checked every couple of years.

• Appliances should not be placed near heaters.

• If an appliance does fall into water, don't reach in and grab it! Pull the plug instead.

• Keep a fire extinguisher handy and know how to use it.

SINK STAINS

Dear Heloise: When we moved into our new home, the biggest problem was a pale yellow kitchen sink that was horribly stained. I scrubbed, scoured, soaked, rubbed and tried everything to clean it.

The other day I had to clean some mildew off an old bath toy. I got my bathroom mildew remover and sprayed the toy in the sink. Wow! Not only did the toy get clean, the sink had a giant stain-free spot! I sprayed the entire sink, waited five minutes, washed it out and the sink looked like it was brand new!

Be sure to read labels carefully because this cleaner may be too strong for most colored sinks since the main ingredient is bleach. — Heloise

CLEANING RADIATORS

Q. How do I clean electric baseboard radiators? I've just moved and have no idea how to take care of this type of heating unit. — Brian Stack, Levittown, N.Y.

A. It's simple to clean the dust off with your vacuum cleaner. About once a month, get the vacuum nozzle as close as possible to the vent and clean thoroughly. — Heloise

JV Herd overpowers Dumas

Hereford junior varsity football team went to Dumas Thursday and came home with a relatively easy 27-12 victory.

The two teams were tied at 6-6 early after Hereford's Kirk Self caught an 8-yard pass from Chad Carlile, then Dumas ran the ensuing kickoff back for an 80-yard touchdown.

After that, Hereford pulled away. They got two TDs from Ronnie Gomez, one a 6-yard run and the other a 62-yard interception return. After the second Gomez score, Hereford got two points on an Elias Reyna-to-Azael Valdez pass.

Hereford's last score came on a 2-yard run by Chris Vallejo followed by Greg Copeland's kick. Dumas scored again with two minutes left in the game.

Most everything worked for

Hereford, coach Craig Yenser said. "I was proud of the offense's execution," he said. "Our passing game was probably executed as well as it has all season."

"Our defense stopped them all night--the kickoff return was not the defense's responsibility. They continually gave us good field position and Dumas couldn't get in the game because of it."

"I was proud of the intensity of both the offense and the defense. They got themselves ready to play and got after 'em."

The JV's record now stands at 5-2-1, and there is a change in their remaining schedule. Both Caprock and Borger have cancelled, Yenser said. Instead the JV will play Randall in Canyon at 10 a.m. Nov. 2.

Two other games were played in Hereford and one was not played. Tascosa cancelled the scheduled game between the two schools' sophomore teams. In the two games which were played, the freshman White team tied Pampa 26-26 and the Maroon team bowed to Borger 48-6.

Pampa kept taking leads and the Hereford White team kept coming back. Pampa led 14-0 after its first two possessions, but Hereford came back on consecutive possessions to score on halfback passes from Michael Brown to Marc Haney: the first for 40 yards, the second for 62 yards.

Pampa scored on their first possession of the second half, but Haney returned the ensuing kickoff 94 yards for the touchdown, and it was tied at 20-20.

Next the Hereford defense stopped

Pampa, but the Hereford offense threw what coach Robert Gamboa called "a costly interception." He said Pampa scored with about five minutes left in the game, but Hereford stopped the running try for two points.

"We got the ball and we drove. John Paul Villareal made a crucial catch on fourth-and-15 (at the Pampa 20) to keep the drive alive," Gamboa said. "We ran a little bit more, then Jacob Lopez had a 12-yard run for the touch."

"We tried a slant pattern, trying to hit Haney again for the two points, but it goes off his fingers."

He said the defense held for the final minute and a half to preserve the tie.

The Maroon team's only score against Borger was a 47-yard pass from Chris Castro to Homer Hamilton.

Hereford netters fall to powerful Wichita Falls

The Hereford tennis team lost in the quarterfinals of the Region 1-4A tennis tournament to Wichita Falls, the tournament favorite.

The score was 10-8 but really wasn't that close. The only match that was played and won by Hereford was the top doubles match, in which Jamie Kapka and Torey Sellers beat Nathan Priester and Doan Nguyen 7-6, 6-3. The other Hereford wins were by default, apparently after Wichita Falls had won the necessary 10 matches.

Hereford coaches were unavailable for comment.

The 10 matches which Wichita Falls won included five of the six doubles matches: Sharon Sudarshan/Suzanne Singleton def. Emily Fuston/Sherry Fuston 6-0, 6-2; Carla Helbing/Mandy Winfrey def. Bri Reinauer/Robyn Sublett 6-0, 6-3; Mindy James/Anna Ulrich def. Michelle Berend/Jennifer LeGate def. 6-0, 6-1; Rob Hogan/Martin Steenback def. Chris Lyles/Donnie Perales 6-3, 6-1; and Bryan Seabury/Nikhil Mankodi def. Jarrit Edwards/Mario Martinez 6-0, 6-1.

The five singles matches which had to be played turned out like this: Suzanne Singleton def. Emily Fuston 6-1, 6-2; Mandy Winfrey def. Sherry Fuston 6-1, 6-1; Bryan Seabury def. Donnie Perales 6-2, 6-0; Nikhil Mankodi def. Chris Lyles 6-1, 6-2; and Jon Bailey def. Mario Martinez 6-1, 6-1.

Ex-WT punter doing well at Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas Tech's Mark Bounds is doing everything he can to ruin the reputation of punters.

Forget those subdued, thin guys who meander onto the field in shriveled shoulder pads, kick the ball and then make a beeline for the sideline to dodge any contact.

Bounds, a self-proclaimed sky diver, cliff diver, body builder and all-around maniac, says he loves to bury his helmet into an unsuspecting ball carrier.

"I love the look in the punt returners eyes when they get up after a hit thinking, 'That was the punter that just tackled me. I better look out for him next time,'" said Bounds, who leads the nation in punting with a 48.77 yard average on 31 kicks.

"It's just as gratifying to make a tackle as it is to kick a 70-yarder," he added.

Linebacker wanna-be? You bet.

"It's hard standing on the sidelines and watching without getting out there and knocking a few guys' chin straps off," Bounds said. "So when I do get my chance to go out on the field and kick, I think I take all that energy out on the ball and really try to deflate that sucker."

Bounds, a senior, has gotten in a lot of work for the Red Raiders, whose offense has sputtered in a 2-4 start.

Of his 31 kicks, 16 have soared 50 yards or longer. And Texas Tech sports information officials say 21 of the 31 punts were into the wind.

Bounds is aiming to replace the NCAA season record of 49.8 yards per kick set by Iowa's Reggie Roby in 1981. Roby is now punting for the Miami Dolphins.

Bravado and trash-talking is usually reserved for the high-profile skill positions, but Bounds could compete with any NFL big mouth.

"I don't think it would be out of line to say I am the best right now," Bounds said. "But I haven't proven myself at the professional level."

"Within the next couple of years people should start to realize who Mark Bounds is. I would be disappointed if I wasn't taken in the first five rounds of the (NFL) draft (this April)."

If his non-stop chatter doesn't make him the center of attention, his shoulder-length hair, neon-splashed surfer pants, leather-studded jackets and green shoelaces ought to do the trick.

"I think I am probably more stylish than people give me credit for being. There is just a lot of conservative feelings floating around here," Bounds said of Lubbock, a conservative cowboy town in West Texas that doesn't even sell booze inside the city limits.

Tech's fifth-year coach Spike Dykes lured Bounds to Lubbock last year from West Texas State, which disbanded its program due to a lack of finances. Bounds led all punters in Division II in 1990 with an average of 46.3 yards per kick.

Dykes says he never hesitated in going after Bounds, despite the punter's eccentric personality.

"I don't think Mark was born psychotic," Dykes said with a grin.

"He works real hard at being different. But his clothes don't bother me as long as he can kick. And he can kick."

Dykes is bothered, however, by Bounds' ritual celebrations after launching a boomer. Much like a linebacker after a sack or a wide receiver after a touchdown catch, Bounds pumps his arms while kneeling to the crowd.

"It's such an adrenalin rush when that ball literally just flies," Bounds said.

Even if the coach doesn't like his impromptu field antics, Bounds knows he has reason to celebrate. As a youngster, he had to overcome a bout with club foot in his right foot (his kicking foot).

"I had to wear these awful orthopedic shoes to correct my arch," Bounds said. "It was so nice when I finally got to wear tennis shoes like all the other kids."

Bounds said he wears a neon-green shoelace in his right shoe to remind him of the obstacles he has overcome and his goals.

Braves sting Twins for 14 runs

ATLANTA (AP) - All the Atlanta Braves have to do now is figure out how to win one game in the Metrodome. Everything else is under control.

The Braves destroyed the Twins 14-5 in Game 5 of the World Series Thursday night to take a 3-2 lead back to Minnesota. The Twins don't seem too worried, though.

"It's going like 1987 again," manager Tom Kelly said. "We're confident we can win at home."

The Twins lost three straight at St. Louis four years ago, but won all four games at the Metrodome. It was the first time that had happened in Series history.

After losing the first two games of the Series, the Braves came back for a three-game sweep at Atlanta. The first two games under Georgia skies were true fall classics; the third game was just a classic flop for the Twins.

The Braves had 17 hits off five pitchers, including home runs by David Justice, Lonnie Smith and Brian Hunter. And it was another big night for little Mark Lemke, who had two triples and drove in three runs.

The 14 runs by the Braves set a Series record by a National League team and Atlanta had eight extra-base hits, one shy of the Series record. The Braves didn't need any miracles to win this game.

"I know they're a different team at home, but I think we can win one of two there," said Justice, who led the Braves with five RBIs. "We weren't quite ready for the first two games, but we're more comfortable now."

The Twins franchise is proving to be quite predictable in the World Series. The Twins-Senators combination has lost 44 straight Series games on the road, with the last victory coming in 1925 when Walter Johnson won Game 1 at Pittsburgh.

The Braves will start Steve Avery in Game 6 and a shaky Scott Erickson is scheduled to pitch for the Twins. There were some concerns in Game 3 that Erickson didn't have his best velocity.

Kevin Tapani pitched three scoreless innings in Game 5 before falling apart in the fourth inning. Ron Gant led off with a single and Justice hit an opposite-field homer that tipped the top of the left field fence over a leaping Dan Gladden.

"With Ronnie on first base, I know they're coming with a fastball," said Justice, who had only two opposite-field homers all year. "I got a fastball on the outside of the plate that I could go with. I didn't know it was gone."

Sid Bream followed the homer with a walk but was out when Greg Olson's ground single hit him on the heel for an out. Lemke then tripled off the glove of right fielder Chili Davis and Rafael Belliard doubled to cap the four-run inning.

Davis, the Twins' designated hitter, was playing the outfield for only the third time this season and he looked rusty. Kelly put him in the lineup for the slumping Shane Mack, but it really didn't matter.

The Twins got close with three runs in the sixth when winner Tom Glavine lost his control and walked four batters. Glavine gave up three runs and four hits in 5-1-3 innings before Kent Mercker got out of the jam.

It didn't take long for the Braves to regain control, though, as they scored six runs in the seventh inning and three more in the eighth to send 50,878 fans into a chopping frenzy. Smith got things started in the seventh with his third homer in as many games.

Lemke kept things going in the seventh with a two-run triple, his second triple of the game and third of the Series to tie a record. He entered the Series with three triples in his career.

Homecoming tonight

The Hereford Whitefaces play the Dumas Demons in Hereford's Homecoming tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium.

The Herd, backed by a sell-out home crowd, will try to break the three game losing streak which has Hereford standing at 0-2 in District 1-4A and 4-3 overall.

Dumas is also 4-3, but is 2-0 in district after romps over Borger and Caprock. The Demons are riding a three-game win streak.

Braves gain confidence for Dome

ATLANTA (AP) - One game cut the tension, the next gave them courage, and the third brought the confidence they desperately need in the dreaded dome so far from home.

The Atlanta Braves, amazingly only one victory from winning the World Series after losing the first two games, busted loose in Game 5 after gut-wrenching wins on the final plays of Games 3 and 4.

After scoring 12 runs in the first four games, the Braves scored 14 in five innings to beat the Twins 14-5 Thursday night.

"We started swinging the bat pretty well, and that seemed to be contagious," said Mark Lemke, who hit two more triples to boost his credentials as the Series MVP. "The last few games have been pretty draining, both physically and emotionally."

Dave Justice, whose homer produced the first two runs, said the Braves are "not walking around here like it's all over. Needing to win just one makes it a little easier, but it's still going to be tough. I don't say we have the momentum, but we'll go in with more confidence."

"We needed to break out," said Ron Gant. "We needed to get back our confidence that we were able to swing the bats like we've been doing all year. Now they know we can score a lot of runs, and it puts some pressure on them."

The Braves, who need to win one of the two games scheduled at the Metrodome in Minneapolis on Saturday and Sunday, will no doubt miss their chanting, tomahawk-chopping fans at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

The Launching Pad lived up to its name at last, rockets flying in every direction, but the two that got the bombardment started could just as easily have fizzled out. Sometimes luck is more important than skill, and a few inches are enough to break open a game.

Two catchable balls - a homer that plunked off the yellow rim of the fence and a triple that bounced off a glove - sparked the Braves.

They won't go in the record book as errors, but both of the Braves' big hits in their four-run fourth inning might have been tucked away by the Twins, changing the course of the game.

The fourth inning began innocently enough in a scoreless game as Gant singled to left. Dave Justice, a left-handed hitter, then lofted the first pitch to him by Kevin Tapani to the opposite field. Left-fielder Dan Gladden ran back to the fence with a chance of catching the ball, but he mistimed his leap slightly, jumping too soon. As his glove came down from the top of the fence, the ball bounced off the yellow edge and bounded over for a two-run homer.

"I knew I hit it well," Justice said. "I was saying, 'Don't catch it.' I didn't think it was a home run. I thought it was going to bounce (back) off the wall."

It was the first of three homers by Atlanta in the ballpark known as The Launching Pad, where balls seem to fly out at an altitude of 1,057 feet, highest in the majors.

Sid Bream followed with a walk, but was out going to second when he got clipped on the heel by Greg Olson's ground single.

Lemke drove a deep shot to right-center that Chili Davis tracked down at the wall after a long run. But Davis, a designated hitter all year for Minnesota who was making his first start in the outfield since Sept. 26, 1990, dropped the ball just before crashing into the wall.

Kirby Puckett picked up the ball, but threw it too late to get Lemke as he pulled into the third with the first of his two triples in the game. Rafael Belliard then doubled down the left field line, driving in Lemke and completing the first of the Braves' two cycles in separate innings in the game.

Few agree on Indian mascots

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Persuading sports teams to stop using Indians as mascots may be the second most difficult task for some American Indian groups.

First, they must agree among themselves.

World Series protests, which attracted hundreds of people as well as national media attention, are the most visible episode in the debate. But Indians say the practice of naming teams after them has been a matter of contention for some time.

In baseball, the issue came to the fore when the Braves reached the World Series, bringing 50,000 "tomahawk chopping" fans along. Actress Jane Fonda, who once was arrested at an Indian rights protest, chopped. Former President Carter said he didn't think the antics were insulting.

A spokesman for the Seminole tribe said many tribal members aren't offended by the rituals of Florida State Seminoles fans, who originated the "tomahawk chop" cheer.

The Kansas City Chiefs say the team's name pays homage to Indians. "I don't believe that it is the intention of any professional football organization to mock Native Americans," said spokesman Bob Moore. "It's not something we take lightly."

The Washington Redskins and Chicago Blackhawks have taken no action on protests. "Over the long history of the Washington Redskins, the name has reflected positive attributes of the American Indian, such as dedication, courage and pride," the team said in a recent statement.

Despite growing student opposition, Chief Illiniwek continues to appear at University of Illinois games. Former Illinois Gov. James Thompson and U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon defended the mascot, a student who dresses as an Indian, and the State House passed a resolution describing him as a "revered" and "esteemed" symbol of the university.

An Indian group in Cleveland sued the Cleveland Indians in the 1970s over the team's logo - a red-faced, long-toothed man with a feather in his cap. The team was named after Louis "Chief" Sockalexis, a Cleveland first baseman who was the first Indian to play major league baseball.

"There are some it bothers and some it doesn't. Me, it doesn't," said Ruby Sam of Cleveland's American Indian Center. "I see both sides."

"It wasn't the name, it was the logo, the smiling Indian with the big nose and the big teeth," Sam said. "That part bothers me."

Other Indians don't mind seeing their culture adopted by whites - even the "tomahawk chop" and war chanting of Braves fans.

"I think it's the greatest thing that ever happened," said Richard Welch, editor of a Cherokee newspaper and a tribal council member. Cherokees are making many of the tomahawks sold to Braves fans.

At the College of William and Mary, a 1989 letter to the editor of a student newspaper questioned the propriety of the school's nickname, "Tribe." Editors contacted Indian chiefs in the Williamsburg, Va., area.

"You tell them that I want to keep the Indian symbol at William and Mary," Earl Bass, chief of the Nansemond Indians, told The Remnant. "I'll stand behind this symbol as long as I draw breath."

Other teams, however, have responded to Indian concerns.

Stanford University dropped the nickname "Indians" in 1972. Dartmouth and the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse also have changed their names.

The Minnesota Board of Education requested in 1989 that high schools with Indian nicknames change them - 20 of 50 did.

"I think you're going to find we all don't agree on everything 100 percent," said Tim Giago, publisher of the Rapid City, S.D.-based Lakota Times, the nation's largest Indian-owned weekly newspaper.

"There are some people who stopped being Indians some time ago and are willing to bend over backwards to fit in whenever possible," he said. "But you'll find very few people who have maintained ties with their heritage who will disagree that the actions of Braves fans are repugnant."

Westway couple goes to world horse show

Colin and Dywan Lane of Westway have qualified their American Quarter Horses, Lynx Jet and Bright Boss, for the 1991 AQHA World Championship Show Nov. 13-23 in Oklahoma City.

The Lane's horses are two of nearly 2,000 expected to compete at this prestigious invitational show, which features more than $500,000 in prize money. Both horses will compete as headers in the Dally Team Roping.

The team roping competition at the AQHA show is different from many team roping events, Dywan Lane said.

"It's judged strictly on the horse's ability, not on time. The horse is judged on his manners in the box, and how he performs," Lane said.

The Lanes also qualified in halter showing, but Dywan said they thought they had a better chance of competing in team roping.

"I'm really tickled just to have qualified," Dywan said. "That's how tough it is."

"Showing horses is, really expensive. We go to as many shows as we can afford. We feel lucky to have qualified just going to four or five shows."

To-qualify for the World Show, horses must earn a predetermined number of points at AQHA shows between Aug. 1, 1990 and July 31 of this year.

"This is the first year we've qualified," Dywan said. "Actually, this is the first year my husband (Colin) has shown horses. He got 14 points at one show (in Tulsa), which is pretty phenomenal for one show."

In addition to the show, which 60,000 spectators are expected to attend, other scheduled events include a top quarter horse consignment sale, western parties, quarter horse farm tours and a trade show.

Aggies able to beat Coogs' run-and-shoot

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

The No. 13 Texas Aggies have been good at making the Houston Cougars' run-and-shoot offense shoot itself in the foot.

In the run-and-shoot's four-year tenure at Houston, the Aggies have won three times and will be favored again when they host Houston Saturday at Kyle Field, where the Cougars haven't won since 1979.

"The things that we do for this game are part of our regular package," Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "We rely on speed and quickness more than sheer size."

The Aggies (4-1, 2-0) have only an upset loss to Tulsa and join Arkansas (5-2, 4-0) as the only remaining unbeaten teams in the SWC. Houston (2-4, 1-2) snapped a four-game losing streak last week.

In other games: Rice (3-3, 1-2) is at Texas Tech (2-4, 1-2); Texas 2-3, 1-1) is at Southern Methodist (1-5, 0-4) and Texas Christian (5-1, 2-1) is at Baylor (5-2, 2-2).

Houston leads the nation in passing offense, averaging 363.8 yards per game but the Aggie defenders have been able to clog the passing attack. Houston won last year's game 36-31 in the Astrodome.

"The significance of this game is such that a victory could throw us back into the SWC picture and put everything back in doubt throughout the rest of the league," Houston coach John Jenkins said.

David Klingler, who missed last week's 49-20 victory over SMU because of an inner ear infection, returned to practice this week and will start against the Aggies, Jenkins said.

Houston's Roman Anderson is tied with former Indiana running back Anthony Thompson for the NCAA career scoring lead with 394 points. A&M quarterback Bucky Richardson needed 160 yards to break the SWC quarterback rushing record of 1,974 yards by Texas' Marty Akins, 1972-75.

Houston's Freddie Gilbert leads the nation in receiving with an average of 10 per game and Marcus Grant is tied for ninth with an average of six catches per game.

TCU coach Jim Wacker anticipates a rugged time against Baylor's rushing attack, which ranks 12th nationally, averaging 250.7 yards per game. TCU leads the SWC in defense against the rush with a 98.3 per game average.

"We haven't seen a strong running attack like Baylor has," Wacker said. "So team stats can be misleading. We've got our work cut out for us."

The Bears have lost two straight games against Rice and Texas A&M. "There'll be a bunch of angry Bears in Waco," Wacker said.

Baylor's J.J. Joe ranks eighth nationally in passing with an average of 153.7 yards per game.

Rice's Trevor Cobb leads the nation in rushing with a 168.1 yards per game average and the Red Raiders will key on stopping Cobb.

"If you're going to beat Rice, you've got to stop Trevor first," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "If he were at Southern Cal or UCLA, he'd be part of the Heisman Watch."

Rice may be anxious to have another road game. All three victories have been away from Rice Stadium.

"But I'm not embarrassed the way we've played here," Rice coach Fred Goldsmith said. "I just feel badly for the fans who have been so supportive."

Arkansas (5-2, 4-0) will have an open date to help heal injuries following last week's 14-13 victory over Texas that gained the Razorbacks a No. 25 national ranking.

"We're not playing as good as we can play, but we're finding a way to win," coach Jack Crowe said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband has smoked a pipe for over 30 years and is not about to quit because I want him to. What danger does his smoking cause him and me? I know that pipe smokers do not inhale so they do not have as great a risk for cancer of the lungs as do cigarette smokers. But I have heard their greatest risk is of cancer of the lips or mouth.
Do I need to be concerned when he smokes his pipe all evening in the same room with me or, worse yet, in a closed car? Can I get lung cancer from his secondhand pipe smoke? Can he?

DEAR READER: There is nothing magical about pipe smoking as opposed to cigarette smoking. If you don't inhale that will decrease the risk of lung cancer, but will not eliminate it. And many former cigarette smokers actually do inhale their pipe or cigar smoke.
Pipe-tobacco smoke and cigar smoke is actually stronger than cigarette smoke. Its sole advantage is if a person doesn't inhale. Otherwise, it is harmful as secondhand smoke to both the smoker and anyone in his enclosed environment. Both produce more carbon monoxide, which is one of the factors in cigarette smoke that increases the risk of a heart attack. Yes, a pipe increases the risk of lip and mouth cancer.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter is pregnant with my first grandchild. We have been pricing both cloth and disposable diapers and I am appalled at the difference. It's been 25 years since I bought diapers, so I haven't been keeping up, but I'm shocked and angry that no one has bothered to make an issue of this.
Here are the facts and figures: Cloth diapers are $10 per dozen. Seven dozen will last through two babies for a one-time cost of $70.
The cheapest disposable diapers we could find were 30 cents apiece. At an average of 10 diapers a day (more for newborns, fewer for older babies), it comes to $3 a day, or $90 a month—a whopping $1,080 a year. Since most children are in diapers until age 2 to 2 1/2 or more, that's $2,160-$2,700, and twice as much for two children, as compared with $70 for cloth. Even with electricity, detergent, bleach and softener, the difference is staggering. In order to match the price of cloth, disposable would have to cost less than a penny apiece.

DEAR STEAMED: The difference in the cost of cloth diapers as compared with disposable is indeed mind-boggling, but some mothers undoubtedly believe the convenience is worth the money. Also, many day care facilities refuse to deal with cloth diapers.
We contacted Kimberly-Clark and were told a current trend in the industry is to research ways to make disposable diapers compostable. Also, some companies are reducing the size of the diapers so they will take up less room in landfills. You can be sure that the manufacturers of disposable will not go gently into the night. They will figure out a way to hang on to this extremely lucrative market.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every year more than 6,000 people die and 130,000 are injured in home fires. Many of these casualties are among the nation's most precious resources, our children. Even more troubling is the fact that many of these deaths could have been prevented had the smoke detectors been operating.

A 65-year-old St. Louis woman died recently in a blaze that swept through her second-story apartment. Inside, fire authorities found a smoke detector sitting on a cabinet with the batteries lying on top of it.
Smoke-detector neglect such as this is one reason the United States has the highest fire death rate in the industrialized world. It is time we did something about this shameful "distinction."

A smoke detector that works can double the chances of surviving a fire. Yet as many as half of the smoke detectors in our nation's homes are not functioning because of dead or missing batteries.
Ann, help us awaken Americans to this critical fire safety issue as we enter the peak season for home fires. Tell your readers to make an annual habit of changing the batteries in their smoke alarms when they change their clocks back to standard time.—Chief James Halsey, president, International Association of Fire Chiefs, Washington, D.C.

DEAR JAMES: You've written a letter that could save countless lives. Folks, when you change your clocks back tonight, remember to change your batteries.

Roden's ranch still sanctuary for family

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

Pinkie's Madera Springs Ranch sprawls atop the western slope of the Davis Mountains, commanding a hawk's eye view of the rugged countryside that blends into the wilderness of far West Texas below. In the distance, perhaps 75 miles as the crow flies, is the Rio Grande River and Mexico.

"At night, we can see the lights in Pecos, and that's 57 miles," Jane Roden told two recent visitors to Madera Springs, a mountain retreat in one of the most remote and inaccessible areas of Texas.

"See why Pinkie wanted to be buried here?" she said as thunder rumbled down the wooded mountainsides and through the rock-strewn valleys, announcing the approach of a summertime storm.

"It is like heaven. Every morning I say, 'Lord, thank you for letting me live in the Davis Mountains.' This is the most private place in the world."

Sometimes it's a little too private. "When the creek's up, nobody crosses," said ranch foreman B.L. Pruitt as his pickup rattled across a bridge spanning the winding, rocky road.

During one rainy season, Jane and Pinkie got trapped at the ranch for eight days. When a rescue helicopter lid arrive, they refused to leave.

Before they wed, Jane worried that people would think she was marrying for money and Pinkie worried that people would wonder about "an old fool marrying a young girl."

In the end, Jane declared: "I don't give a damn. Our real friends know differently and what other people think doesn't matter."

Pinkie became her whole life, though warned by his first wife Jackie that "There will be hours, days, weeks when you will never see him."

Until he got cancer, she said Pinkie loved life and never wasted a minute of it. "He strived on a good crisis," she said, "and if he didn't have one, he'd create one."

But Pruitt, an associate of Pinkie's for half a century, said his boss relished his mountain visits.

"Pinkie was really a cowboy at heart. He'd cross the cattle guard off the highway and block the whole world out, just leave it totally behind him."

He loved his horses, especially breeding and betting on them, Pruitt said. Pinkie owned more than 40 thoroughbreds and quarterhorses when he died.

Although seriously ill, he actively supported the push to legalize gambling on horse racing in Texas. His friend James Leggett figured Pinkie should have headed the campaign from the beginning.

"If they'd given Pinkie the lobbying money," Leggett said, "they'd probably have had horse racing one or two sessions earlier."

In the distance, across Dark Canyon and Ghost Mountain, jagged bolts of lightning left no doubt of the storm's imminent arrival at Pinkie's mountain hideaway.

Jane Roden recalled that she and Pinkie had married here on another rainy day, exchanging vows in front of the great stone fireplace in the ranch-style, native-stone lodge.

And it had stormed heavily the day of Pinkie's burial.

"I never heard thunder rumble like that," Jane said. She also said she did not believe it was cancer that killed her husband.

"He died of a broken heart."

She said people he trusted betrayed him, and that after his death she found a listening device hidden in the ranch house.

"Maybe Pinkie did it himself," she sighed. "He was the bugging man, a world master at bugging phones."

She said that he trusted betrayed him, and that after his death she found a listening device hidden in the ranch house.

He accumulated a tainted fortune, but used it largely for noble and selfless ventures. Thousands of plain, poor and powerful people considered Pinkie their pal but, says Jane Roden, Pinkie was lonely much of his life.

"When you get right down to it," he once told her, "you can count all your real friends on one hand and still have fingers left over."

A high school dropout himself, Pinkie provided countless jobs for Depression era survivors, helped send his siblings through college and would be remembered for bringing a coveted state university to Odessa.

"His grandest coup," a friend said of UT-Permian Basin. Despite his abbreviated formal education, Pinkie was an avid reader and, said nephew Frank Deaderick, a true genius.

"Whether it was law, medicine or accounting, he was as well read as anybody I've seen. He could sit in a room full of New York lawyers and discuss liquor law or business on an equal basis."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SPREADING THE BIBLE'S GOOD NEWS

IN LUKE, CHAPTER 10, WE LEARN THAT JESUS SENT FORTH SEVENTY DISCIPLES TO GO TO THE CITIES AND TOWNS THROUGHOUT THE LAND, PREACHING AND HEALING THE SICK IN HIS NAME. THAT THIS VENTURE WAS SUCCESSFUL IS QUITE EVIDENT, FOR THE SEVENTY RETURNED FROM THEIR MISSION WITH GREAT JOY, SAYING, "...EVEN THE DEVILS ARE SUBJECT UNTO US THROUGH THY NAME."

IN MUCH THE SAME SPIRIT AS THOSE EARLY MISSIONARIES, ONE OF THE FIRST BIBLE SCHOOLS FOR SPECIFIC TRAINING OF MISSIONARIES OPENED ITS DOORS OCTOBER, 1883, IN NEW YORK CITY—ITS TOTAL ENROLLMENT OF STUDENTS THAT FIRST YEAR WAS FOUR!

IN 1894, ITS RATHER LENGTHY NAME WAS SHORTENED TO "MISSIONARY TRAINING INSTITUTE" AND IT STILL EXISTS TODAY IN NYACK, N.Y. WITH AN ENROLLMENT OF 700 STUDENTS AND A NEW NAME OF NYACK COLLEGE—STILL DEDICATED TO BRINGING THE BIBLE'S WORD TO THOSE WHO HAVEN'T HEARD IT!

NEXT WEEK: THE WOMAN WHO ARGUED WITH JESUS—AND WON THE ARGUMENT!
