Hospital records department faces paperwork struggle

The medical records department at Deaf Smith General Hospital climbs a proverbial mountain of paperwork every day, according to Debbie Foerster, head of the department.

"Every single thing that happens to a patient during his hospital stay must be documented by his care giver and then transcribed in our department for a permanent record," she said.

Because of the important role the department plays at the hospital, Deaf Smith General this week is joining other hospitals across the country in observing National Medical Records Week.

Foerster noted that patients are not usually aware of the tremendous paper trail that a hospital stay generates. "The attending physician records the medical history of a patient as well as the physical examination when the patient is admitted. These are transcribed and included in the medical record in typed form. If an x-ray is ordered, the radiologist dictates a report and all EKGs performed are interpreted by an internist, who then dictates his findings as well," explained Foerster.

"If a physician confers with another doctor regarding the treatment of a patient, a consultation report is dictated and every surgical procedure mandates that a detailed step-by-step summary be compiled. Then, every lab test, respiratory or physical therapy treatment, nurses' note, and physicians' notes are documented and included in the record. When the patient is discharged from the hospital, the attending physician is then responsible for dictating a discharge summary which is a comprehensive overview of the entire hospital stay," she added.

The hospital has records on microfilm that date back to 1957, however there are birth registries and surgical logs that go back to when the hospital first opened. "We not only keep records, we must use them to compile statistical information for the hospital--such as the number of births, deaths, surgeries and disease indexes, etcetera.

"We also compile reports for various agencies. Information on the number of cancer cases, for example, is forwarded to the Texas Department of Health," she said.

Foerster said that the biggest change she has seen in her 14 years in the department has been the advent of Diagnosis Related Groups, better known as DRGs, which has generated an enormous increase in the work load.

The federal government instituted the system of DRGs to try to cut costs in the Medicare program. "The government classified every disease into 478 different categories or groups. They base the amount of payment to the hospital on that category, and sometimes the difference in payment from one code to the next is significant. That's why it is very important that we are as accurate as possible in determining the current category (DRG) for each patient's illness," she explained.

"For example, the difference between a basic pneumonia case and a viral pneumonia case might be as much as $2,500 in payment from Medicare," she said. "It's our job to review the patient records to make sure we have properly coded the diagnosis," she added.

Mrs. Foerster noted that Medicare periodically reviews the coding procedures in each hospital, and if there is an error rate above 2.5 percent of the total number of discharges, Medicare will do an intensified review of all DRG coding. DSGH has never been subjected to the intensive review.

"I'm proud of the accuracy with which our department works," said interim hospital administrator Ron Rives. "This in one of the departments at DSGH that doesn't get much recognition during the year but they are a vital part of the hospital."

Other employees in the department include Kim Hollingsworth, who has been at the hospital since 1988 and in the department for one year, and Billie Crofford, who has been at DSGH for 25 years and in the department since 1972.

Students learn about fire truck

Blane Provence of the Hereford Fire Department shows students from Nazarene Christian Academy equipment on one of the fire trucks during a special tour of the fire station this week.

Over 900 students will tour the fire station as part of National Fire Prevention Week activities. The fire department will hold an open house Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the public.

Thomas case opens questions

WASHINGTON (AP) - The sexual harassment allegations against Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas have laid bare a gulf in male-female perceptions in Washington, where the corridors of power have always been a man's domain.

Women say the way the Thomas matter unfolded proves that the "old boy" network is alive and well and trying to sweep Anita Hill's allegations under the rug.

Men are asking if they are being unfairly tarred with unintended motives, and wondering if their own words and actions could be misconstrued in the new environment.

When are words offensive? When is a hand on the shoulder harassment?

Members of Congress reported an avalanche of phone calls to their offices when the Senate appeared ready to vote Tuesday on Thomas' nomination despite Hill's claims that Thomas repeatedly made sexually explicit remarks to her when they worked together nearly a decade ago.

"It touched something inside of a lot of women," said Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., who said her calls were 10-to-1 in favor of postponing the vote until after the allegations were aired fully.

THOMAS
...Allegations reveal male-female perceptions on sexual harassment

Many women interviewed for this story said men simply "do not get it" and fail to understand why women are so agitated about the Hill-Thomas situation.

"I do not know a woman who has not had experience with sexual harassment at one time or another," said Eleanor Holmes Norton, the Democratic delegate to Congress from the District of Columbia.

"Women see this as an absolute insensitivity to the indignities they're subjected to," said Harriet Woods, executive director of the National Women's Political Caucus.

Some men like Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., agreed that Hill's charges would have received more serious attention if women sat on the Senate Judiciary Committee that considered his nomination.

The Hill-Thomas situation has created a solidarity of purpose among women on Capitol Hill that one staffer described as a "high-five" atmosphere.

"We've come to a point where we're not going to take it any more," said Boxer. "This may be a time in history when women say, enough."

"The guys are scared to death," said Woods. "Anything where there could be a suggestion of not acting properly on a sexual relationship issue is very scary to these guys."

Republican political consultant Ann Stone said the Senate's handling of the Thomas issue has underscored the notion "that politics is a good old boy's game."

Men had a somewhat different perception.

A downtown dentist puzzled with a patient over whether his female employees might find his friendly manner harassing. A male White House reporter asked a female colleague if she ever felt she was sexually harassed in their working relationship.

A vigorous locker room debate on sexual harassment ensued at a prestigious Washington health club.

"People were trying to articulate their views on the broader issue" raised by the Thomas case, said Stephen Goldstein, an Interior Department spokesman who is a member of the Watergate health club.

"I got the sense that while people understood the concept (of sexual harassment) it was something they could not relate to," said Goldstein, who has had a female boss in the past. He said he believes misperceptions on the subject are due more to generational than gender-based differences.

The Thomas brouhaha has prompted considerable discussion within the Bush administration about male-female roles. Feelings were running high and most officials would not talk about the issue for the record.

Nuclear plants seek new work

By STEVEN K. PAULSON
Associated Press Writer

Caught off balance by President Bush, defense installations that have battled since World War II for billions of dollars to build nuclear weapons are now scrambling to become centers for taking them apart.

Bush stunned the defense industry and nuclear weapons critics last month by announcing a plan for unilateral nuclear cuts and new negotiations with Moscow to reduce nuclear arsenals.

With many nuclear weapons being reined in, the need for producing more of them has been thrown into doubt.

The president's move came as a surprise, and defense contractors are rushing to become the focus for dismantling weapons, said Tom Zamora, a research analyst for the environmental group Friends of the Earth.

Other plants that can't reprocess bombs are competing for the estimated $100 billion needed for cleaning up the environmental mess from more than four decades of weapons production.

"Everybody wants to be the dismantling center," Zamora said.

"Pantex wants the job, Savannah River wants the job, and Rocky Flats wants the job. Everybody knows this is where the big bucks will be for the next few years."

Modernization of the arsenal will continue, even if production of new weapons stops, said Deborah K. Smith, a spokeswoman for the Department of Energy, which builds nuclear bombs for the Pentagon.

"It is far too early to speculate on the effect of the president's initiatives on specific DOE facilities," she said. "However, we see no immediate change. The proposals may well lead to a smaller complex consistent with a greatly reduced nuclear stockpile."

Bush said the United States will scrap much of its short-range nuclear arsenal. On Sept. 28, strategic bomber crews across the country ended a 4-decade alert.

The U.S. nuclear arms industry planned to spend $11.8 billion in Atomic Energy Defense Activities in 1992, with $6.7 billion for arms production.

Several thousand of the nation's 6,000-7,000 tactical nuclear weapons will be coming back from Europe, and will either have to be dismantled and stored, or melted down,

Court sets school tax hearing

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawyers for taxpayers and property-rich school districts challenging Texas' school funding law have said they hope the state Supreme Court acts soon after next month's hearing on the issue.

The court on Wednesday scheduled oral arguments for Nov. 19.

The law is designed to shift hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts within new education taxing regions, made up of one or several counties.

Under the law, school districts in each taxing region share the revenue from a minimum tax. Local school districts also may tax more, without pooling the revenue, to enrich programs and for construction.

The court twice has declared previous finance laws unconstitutional in a lawsuit by poor school districts, and ordered the state to equalize school funding. This law is legislators' latest effort to meet the court order.

Dallas lawyer Earl Luna, representing several wealthy districts that challenged the law, said that property tax bills are due at the end of January, but many people pay them before the end of the year.

"If the Supreme Court should act by the first of December, they would be acting before the vast majority of the bills are paid," Luna said.

Jim George, who represented school districts and taxpayers in separate cases, said, "I think it would be real nice for the taxpayers of the state of Texas to know this is a constitutional tax before they pay the money."

State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin upheld the property tax system in August, rejecting wealthy districts' challenge. But McCown added that other challenges to the law, such as whether its funding level is adequate, had yet to be considered in court.

World/National

ACROSS THE USA - In that gray area that falls short of outright physical or professional threat, many victims of sexual harassment have remained silent.

But Anita Hill's allegations against Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas, and accusations that the Judiciary Committee failed properly to investigate them, have brought simmering anger to a boil.

Barbara Otto of 9 to 5, the National Association of Working Women, puts it this way:

"It's like they're coming out of the closet to tell their dirty secret. They're saying: 'Enough!'"

WASHINGTON - Members of Congress want credit card interest rates to stop bucking the economic trend that has pulled down virtually every other rate over the past two years.

WASHINGTON - Oats have caught on with the cholesterol-conscious, but farmers aren't cashing in on the health craze. Despite the increasing consumer demand for oatmeal and oat bran, U.S. farmers are growing less oats as prices tumble below the cost of production and growers compete with rising oats imports.

HAMLET, N.C. - The decision not to reopen the chicken processing plant where a fire last month killed 25 people represents the latest blow in a cycle of tragedy to hit this small town. The plant, which employed 200 people, provided the best job opportunity for many who had little skills or money.

DALLAS - A new Boy Scouts of America program designed to reach beyond heterosexual, God-fearing males has been rejected by some for being too close to traditional scout values and by others for straying too far.

Texas

AUSTIN - State investigations into reported abuses by some private psychiatric hospitals may answer some critical questions, Gov. Ann Richards says.

AUSTIN - Lawyers for taxpayers and property-rich school districts challenging Texas' school funding law have said they hope the state Supreme Court acts soon after next month's hearing on the issue.

WASHINGTON - A Texas congressman says House members should submit to drug tests just like many other American workers.

DALLAS - A new Boy Scouts of America program designed to reach beyond heterosexual, God-fearing males has been rejected by some for being too close to traditional scout values and by others for straying too far.

EL PASO - The El Paso Independent School District superintendent said the district may not join President Bush's America 2000 education strategy because it could detract from reforms already under way.

DALLAS - Prosecutors have provided Dallas police with a list of possible suspects in the hunt for a woman who says she's trying to infect men with AIDS.

SAN ANGELO - Trucks from the United States are being blocked by members of the cattle raisers' union in the Mexican state of Chihuahua and only Mexican trucks are being allowed to haul cattle being exported into the United States, a government official says.

SAN ANTONIO - It's going to cost more to die in Bexar County if the county commissioners get their way.

MEXICO CITY - A second recently elected governor stepped aside Wednesday amid protests over the fairness of Mexico's recent national and state elections.

DALLAS - Winning the government's prize for quality won't stop Marlow Industries from pushing for greater excellence, leaders of the Dallas maker of electronics parts say.

HOUSTON - Although a Houston jury has rejected claims by three nephews that millionaire businessman Robert Sakowitz was responsible for losing the family fortune, members of two of the city's most famed families say their feud is likely to continue.

McALLEN - A new world trade center in McAllen will eventually translate into an expanding local economy and shorter unemployment lines, officials say.

AMARILLO - Caught off balance by President Bush, defense installations that have battled since World War II for billions of dollars to build nuclear weapons are hurriedly being transformed into centers for taking them apart. According to analysts, the Pantex Plant at Amarillo, Texas, may be affected by the president's move.

AUSTIN - Natural gas is environmentally sound, economic and available in abundant supply if produced efficiently, says an industry leader who told the Railroad Commission that gas is being wasted.

AUSTIN - Minority plaintiffs and the state will collide over redistricting plans before the Texas Supreme Court. Meanwhile Republicans attacked a settlement between minority challengers and Democratic officials on a state Senate redistricting plan.

Probe of private psychiatric hospitals widening in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - State investigations into reported abuses by some private psychiatric hospitals may answer some critical questions, Gov. Ann Richards says.

"Our concern has been that these hospitals seem to be in need of patients to keep their doors open (and) that they resort to tactics to put people there that may not necessarily need to be there," Richards said.

"We are now also dealing with a larger picture... the fashion in which they are charged, whether or not those charges are inflated," the governor said.

An attorney general's investigation into possible abuses has expanded to include more hospitals and to involve the office's criminal and antitrust divisions, officials said Wednesday.

"It has widened in a number of ways," said Gray McBride, spokesman for Attorney General Dan Morales.

McBride said more of the top attorney general's staff have joined the probe, and the inquiry has expanded to include more hospitals.

"We have become more specifically aggressive in investigating allegations of violations of the Deceptive Trade Practices Act, specifically as it applies to the (state) Crime Victims Compensation Fund and also to people spending their private insurance dollars," McBride said.

A special legislative committee recently opened its own investigation into operations of the private psychiatric hospitals.

The panel's chairman, Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, says he is "horrified" by what's been found so far and believes the problems extend beyond Texas.

The committee is looking into widespread reports that the hospitals have held individuals against their will and paid "bounty hunters," including high school counselors, to find new patients.

Moncrief calls it "one of the largest scandals in this state's history."

In one case, a Canadian was flown from Ontario to Houston for treatment of cocaine addiction, the Houston Chronicle reported.

The man's government-backed health insurance plan was billed $438,000 for 20 months of treatment by five Houston-area hospitals. He later was flown back to Canada, still an addict, reports said.

"I'm horrified by what I've seen, heard and read," Moncrief said, adding that the problem isn't exclusive to Texas.

"I think we are the first ones in the country to turn over the rock and see what is crawling out from underneath. And it is frightening," he said.

The Legislature last summer passed a law making it illegal to collect bounties for referring patients to, or depositing them in, for-profit psychiatric hospitals. The law took effect Sept. 1.

But abuse reports continue as the growing number of private mental health facilities seek to fill beds, according to news stories from across the state.

The attorney general has taken legal action to stop the crime victim's fund from paying $10 million in claims for mental health care filed during the past year.

Closing of plant compounds tragedy

HAMLET, N.C. (AP) - Willie Baldwin, who worked at the chicken processing plant where a fire killed 25 people last month, thanks God his life was spared. And then he wonders how he'll survive now that the plant won't be reopening.

"I've got mixed emotions," said the 31-year-old father of three. "I need a job. And when you've got kids, you need 40 hours a week."

He said his $129 in unemployment benefits "just ain't going to cut it."

In an Oct. 2 letter to employees, Imperial Food Products said the plant will not reopen, citing the fire and the company's inability to arrange financing.

Some employees, like Linda Faye Robinson, said they would not have returned anyway.

"There's too many memories of the people who died," she said tearfully.

But Baldwin said he may have had no choice but to go back.

In this rural community of 6,200 people, Imperial Food Products was the biggest employer, and the 225 jobs it provided, mostly in the $5-to-$5.50-an-hour range, are hard to come by.

"It's going to be a long, hard winter for a lot of people," said Mayor Abbie Covington.

"This is a small town. So everything is limited," noted Councilman Joey Jernigan. "It's going to be a burden on the people who have already pitched in to help."

The fire erupted Sept. 3 at the plant, where chicken was prepared for restaurants and stores. Flames from frying equipment ignited oil from a broken hydraulic hose. State investigators said locked or blocked exits contributed to the deaths.

The company has had little comment on conditions in the plant beyond acknowledging that certain doors were sometimes locked.

The tragedy has resulted in a criminal investigation of the plant, which was never inspected during its 11 years of operation.

Mexicans stop U.S. truckers

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - Trucks from the United States are being blocked by members of the cattle raisers' union in the Mexican state of Chihuahua and only Mexican trucks are being allowed to haul cattle being exported into the United States.

Officials said the union blocked the entrance to the stockyards at Ojinaga, just across the border from Presidio, Texas, on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The move, which came on the opening day of the cattle-crossing season, threatens an industry that annually pumps hundreds of thousands of dollars into the Presidio area economy, officials said. The season usually starts in October and lasts until June or July.

Witnesses said U.S.-owned vehicles were lined up and down the side of the road leading to the yards.

U.S. Department of Agriculture inspector Jeral McCall, who works at the Ojinaga stockyards, said he had been told Mexican cattle raisers decided to use Mexican operators exclusively because they charged less to carry the cattle across.

On Wednesday, witnesses said, union members were loading cattle only into Mexican-owned or union-leased trucks.

"This is outrageous!" said Jimmy McNeil, a stockyard owner in Presidio. McNeil is also a cattle buyer and trucker. "We buy those cattle and they're refusing to let us come pick up our own cattle!"

McNeil dismissed the explanation offered McCall as a ploy.

"We were at $130 (a load) and they dropped it to $100," he said. "But it won't last long and they'll jump it back up. I offered them $100 yesterday (Tuesday) and they wouldn't take it."

The move by the union was wreaking economic havoc on the agriculture-based Presidio economy, he said.

Eight trucking operators in Presidio engage in the cattle-crossing business. Together they do an estimated $325,000 a year in business, Daniel Estrada, owner of one of trucking companies, said.

"This is going to hurt real bad if we can't stop it," he said Wednesday.

More than 200,000 cattle were imported into the United States last year through Presidio, McCall said.

WTSU plans homecoming celebration

West Texas State University will celebrate Homecoming 1991 Friday, Oct. 18 and Saturday, Oct. 19 with a wide variety of activities designed to entertain the entire family. Although one event, football, designed will be noticeably absent, homecoming organizers are working hard to schedule a number of fun-filled activities that will compensate for the lack of a traditional headliner. "In many ways, this is a great opportunity," Jimmy Lackey, executive director of the Ex-Students Association, said. "In years past, everything revolved around the football game. Our challenge now is to provide a wider variety of activities, and instead of having just one major event, we've scheduled one major event after another for the entire weekend."

The absence of football does not, however, completely remove tradition from the homecoming agenda. The weekend will "kick off" at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 18 at the WTSU Fieldhouse with the Homecoming Assembly and the presentation of the 1991 Homecoming Queen and her Court. She will reign over other traditionally favorite activities, including the T-Club Cookout, bonfire and dance, and the homecoming parade.

As always, reunions will play an important part in homecoming, and the honor groups for this year are the classes of 1932-1936, 1941, 1949-1951, 1966, and 1981.

Some of the activities "new" to homecoming are the Canyon Follies, the Branding Iron Theater presentation of "Evita," and alumni and all-University rodeos.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted for murder in the death of the infant son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

Rebekah's anniversary set

Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 will celebrate their 89th anniversary with a public celebration Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Odd Fellow Hall.

Noble Grand Genevieve Lynn presided at the regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Reports were made on the sick and cheer cards were signed. Twenty four visits to the sick, 38 cheer cards, 14 dishes of food and two flowers were reported.

Tickets will be available for the annual chili supper to be served Oct.

19 at Odd Fellow Hall from 5 to 8 p.m. Cost is $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 and under.

The menu will consist of chili, beans, pie, coffee and tea.

Susie Curtisinger was hostess to Lynn, Marie Harris, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Rosalie Northcutt, Anna Conklin, Ben Conklin, Sadie Shaw, Irene Merritt, Leona Sowell, Stella Hershey, Nelma Sowell, Jo Irlebeck, Faye Brownlow, Ursalee Jacobsen, Gene Bishop, Mary Lou Weatherford, Connie Ivey, Gene Ivey and Ocie Bolton.

Halloween Apple Games

NEW YORK (AP) - Bobbing for apples has long been a custom linked with Halloween parties - remember when Lucy accidentally kissed Snoopy? - but it once was a means of divination among the Druids and survives in the folklife of countries influenced by Celtic culture.

Since the apple is also a common love charm, the practice seems to be associated with the selection of a lover, according to "The Folklore of American Holidays."

It is, as well, a Christmas game, originally a fertility rite, during a season when other fertility rites were regularly performed.

There appears to be no reason to play this game on Halloween except that apples are plentiful at this time.

Pampa, Hereford come in after loss

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Last season, the Herd proved it's not whether you win or lose, it's how many first downs you have. Hereford tied Pampa last season in Pampa--both in the score and in penetrations. Both teams won all their other district games, and District 1-4A's top playoff seed went down to how many first downs each team had in the game. Hereford won, 22-13.

It could be close again this year when the two meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Stadium. Both teams stormed out of the gates with 4-0 record, then both teams suffered losses last weekend. Hereford fell 17-7 to Levelland despite being heavily favored at home, while Pampa had to travel all the way to Wichita Falls to get beat by Gainesville on Saturday.

The long bus trip showed: the Harvesters were down 21-0 after three minutes of play after Gainesville recovered the opening kickoff in the Pampa end zone; returned Pampa's first punt most of the way to set up another TD; and ran their first offensive play from scrimmage 69 yards for a score. Pampa fought back to tie it at 21-21, but eventually lost 35-21.

In that game, Pampa ran for 259 yards of offense. They were 0-for-5 with an interceptions in passing attempts.

"They try to beat you with running," Herd coach Danny Haney said. "Passing's not a part of their game."

"They've got a very good running back in Sammy Laury and a great football player in Zach Thomas, and their offensive line is solid," Haney said.

Thomas earned first-team all-district honors as a running back and a linebacker last season. He leads the Harvesters' 4-3 defense.

Will this game, like last year, be the one to decide the district? Not necessarily, since Randall at 3-2 has had some success, and Haney has been impressed with Dumas' last two outings (a close loss to Monahans and a win over Canyon).

Still, there's no denying this game is huge.

"There's no way you can have blood in your veins and not be ready for this one," Haney said. "It'll be a big one. The house will be full. There'll be a lot of people coming out to see how we play."

Injury report: For the second consecutive week, all the Whitefaces will suit out.

Friday's game features two of the top 4A runners in all of Texas. Hereford's Leo Brown slipped to sixth from second despite gaining 103 yards last Friday. He now has 753 yards on 152 carries. Pampa's Sammy Laury is ninth with 744 yards on 111 carries.

Anthony Hubbard of Bastrop, the top-ranked school in 4A, still leads with 905 yards on 105 carries.

The players of the week for the varsity team are Brown on offense and tackle Santos Liscano on defense.

For the junior varsity, it was Kelly Christie on defense and Greg Coplen on offense. The sophomore selections were Jason Tidwell on offense and Brandon Gearn on defense. The freshman players of the week were Michael Marquez for the Maroon team and Michael Brown for the White.

The Belmont Stakes is the oldest of the Triple Crown events, being run first in 1867 with the Preakness starting in 1873 and the Kentucky Derby in 1875.

Players of the week

Hereford defensive tackle Santos Liscano (77), shown here before the Tascosa game, will charge onto the field at Whiteface Stadium Friday night as the varsity defensive player of the week. Tailback Leo Brown got offensive honors.

Pampa picked by 2

The Pampa Harvesters will open District 1-4A play with a two-point win over Hereford, according to the Harris Rating System.

Pampa has a Harris power rating of 182, while Hereford's is 180. Hereford is ranked 45th in 4A, nine places behind Pampa.

Those two are by far the highest rated teams in District 1-4A. You have to go all the way down to number 104 to find Randall, which has a rating of 167. Dumas is moving up with a rating of 161 to a ranking of 127.

Borger is ranked 134th with a rating of 158, while winless Caprock's rating of 152 places it at 150 out of 168 teams.

This week finds Randall at Caprock and Borger at Dumas. Harris picks Randall by 15 and Dumas by 12.

Other area 4A teams, preceded by ranking and followed by rating, are: 39, Levelland, 182; 41, Monahans, 181; 46, Estacado, 180; 74, Snyder, 174; 78, Frenship, 174; 91, Dunbar, 171; 103, Pecos, 168; and 114, Lamesa, 168.

Each week, Harris lists some of the biggest games in the state. The closest games which earned the service's attention were Midland Lee at Odessa Permian and Sweetwater at Andrews. Harris picks Permian by 17 and Sweetwater by 6.

Harris' picks for other area games, with home team in CAPS:

Jays even series, go home to own dome

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - By the seventh inning, the screaming had stopped and the streaming for the exits had begun. The Metrodome mystique disappeared, even before the crowd disappeared through the revolving doors.

"They're a good crowd here," Kelly Gruber said after his two-run single and Juan Guzman's pitching led the Toronto Blue Jays to a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Wednesday and evened the best-of-7 AL playoffs at one game apiece.

"But I say that now. With two outs, they all started leaving."

The Twins went into the playoffs feeling invincible at home. And why not? They had won six successive postseason games at the Metrodome - including four in the 1987 World Series - and then made it seven straight in Game 1 of this series.

Now the Twins go to Toronto knowing that they must win at least one of three games at the SkyDome if they are to return home for Game 6. The Blue Jays will take the dome-field advantage into Friday night, when Jimmy Key (16-12) opposes Scott Erickson (20-8) in Game 3.

"Hopefully, we won't have to come back," Gruber said. "If we do have to, we hope to keep the crowd silent."

That posed little problem Wednesday. Gruber's two-out, broken-bat single gave Toronto a 3-0 lead and quieted the fans for most of the game. And when the Blue Jays scored twice in the seventh, the exodus began.

"We feed off the fans," Minnesota's Kirby Puckett said. "But if they don't cheer for us when we're not doing well, we can't complain."

The Blue Jays won Wednesday the same way Minnesota won Tuesday. They took the lead, got good starting pitching, ran the bases aggressively and used nearly flawless relief pitching to slam the door.

Guzman allowed four hits and two runs in 5 2-3 innings. He was in trouble several times but almost always wriggled out of it.

After Toronto manager Cito Gaston had seen enough - the methodical, sometimes-wild rookie threw 102 pitches - he handed the ball to closer-turned-setup-star Tom Henke.

Henke entered in the sixth inning with two on, two out and hot-hitting Shane Mack at the plate.

The overanxious Mack swung at Henke's first pitch and chopped one right back to the mound. Henke followed by striking out two batters in a perfect seventh.

"We swung at a bad first pitch, a forkball in the dirt," Twins manager Tom Kelly said.

Then it was Duane Ward's turn. Ward, who had been Henke's setup man until the injury pushed him into the closer's role, blew only two of 25 save opportunities this season.

He got the last six outs, four on strikeouts, in a typically dominating performance. Ward The Closer is no different from Ward The Setup Man.

"Every time I go out on the mound

I have the same mentality," he said. "Kick some rear end."

The Blue Jays figured to have trouble scoring against Minnesota's Big Three of Jack Morris, Kevin Tapani and Erickson. But they've already put nine runs on the board in the games started by Morris and Tapani.

They had Tapani scrambling early Wednesday, collecting seven hits in the first three innings.

The Blue Jays almost always score if their first two batters, Devon White and Roberto Alomar, get on base. In Game 2, they were a combined 4-for-7, with four runs, a walk, a sacrifice and two stolen bases.

White was on when Carter's two-strike single made it 1-0 in the first - "the only pitch I wish I could have back," Tapani said. Both were on for Gruber's hit. And both were on again in the seventh when the Jays iced it against reliever Steve Bedrosian.

Neither Tapani nor Gruber were surprised that the series is tied.

"I think this is where we expected to be," said Tapani, who allowed eight hits and four runs in 6 1-3 innings.

Said Gruber: "They have a good club. But they're human. They're not machines. Not even in this place. They are playing a pretty good club, too. There are teams that are better than them sometimes. Even in here."

Pirates start NLCS with win

PITTSBURGH (AP) - They were America's Team, but somehow people forgot that the Atlanta Braves weren't the best team in America.

As the Braves tomahawk-chopped their way to an improbable division title, chopping down those oh-so-easy-to-hate Dodgers and going from worst to first faster than any team in history, the Pittsburgh Pirates watched. And waited. And waited.

"Hey, we enjoyed watching them," Jay Bell said.

And as the country marveled at a September song of a miracle in Dixie, many mostly ignored what was happening in Pittsburgh, which clinched its division with two weeks to play. Some conveniently overlooked the fact the Pirates won a major league-high 98 games even without the benefit of a tight pennant race.

Ignore no more.

The Pirates gave Atlanta an indoctrination into the brave new world of postseason baseball Wednesday night, beating the Braves 5-1 in Game 1 of the National League playoffs. Game 2 is tonight, with 18-game winner Steve Avery facing former Brave left-hander Zane Smith.

It was a choppy start for the Braves, who seemed out of sync in a stadium where 57,347 fans - the largest in Pittsburgh history - weren't practicing their tomahawk chops. The only thing more scarce than bright-red tomahawks were Braves runs.

"We weren't nervous, but we were anxious early in the game," Dave Justice said. "It was the first time here for a lot of us."

Oh, but it wasn't for the Pirates, who have talked for weeks about erasing the still-unpleasant memory of last year's playoff defeat to Cincinnati.

The Braves had the edge of just coming off a tight pennant race. But it was the Pirates who took an early 3-0 lead, who got clutch pitching from Doug Drabek and Bob Walk.

"I really don't think what they did took anything away from us," Bell said. "They're America's Team" and played great baseball down the stretch. If anything, that made us realize how well we have to play, even if we did win 98 games."

And last year's playoff loss to Cincinnati made Andy Van Slyke, Bobby Bonilla and Barry Bonds realize they have to hit for the Pirates to win, especially in the postseason.

The Killer B's plus V hit just .190 against the Reds, and Bonilla and Bonds had just one RBI apiece in six games. The Pirates' troika has nearly matched those numbers in just one game.

Van Slyke drove in two runs with a homer and double in his first two at-bats. Bonilla had an RBI single in Pittsburgh's two-run third inning against 20-game winner Tom Glavine. Bonds reached base three times in four plate appearances.

Pirates starter Doug Drabek limited Atlanta to three singles. He left after straining his left hamstring while unsuccessfully trying to stretch a double into a triple in the sixth.

Walk finished up by allowing one run over the final three innings.

Drabek won't know until today if he can start Game 5, as scheduled, but said the injury didn't feel serious and was more like a cramp.

"I wasn't about to take a chance," said Drabek, who was 15-14 during the season.

Braves third base coach Jimmy Williams did, and it might have cost Atlanta any chance it had of winning.

With Pittsburgh leading 3-0 in the fourth, first baseman Gary Redus misplayed Mark Lemke's grounder, which bounced into the right-field corner. Bonilla compounded the problem by overthrowing cutoff man Jose Lind, but Bell backed up the play and his laser dart of a throw beat Lemke to third.

"Down 3-0, I'm supposed to be 100 percent sure he'll make it standing up. That's how sure I felt," Williams said. "I can't let that play be that close. It was my fault."

The Pirates hope the play was a favorable omen. Last year, two of their playoff losses were decided largely by runners being tossed out at third, Van Slyke in Game 2 and Bonilla in Game 5.

"You've got to play aggressively," Braves manager Bobby Cox said.

That was exactly the word he said described Drabek - and didn't describe Glavine.

"Drabek was aggressive and stayed ahead of the hitters," he said. "Glavine did not."

Justice's ninth-inning homer provided Atlanta's only run.

Schroeder: Raiders will miss Bo if he retires from football

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) - The Los Angeles Raiders don't know about Bo, but quarterback Jay Schroeder says Bo Jackson will be "sorely missed" if he can't play football.

"I haven't talked to Bo," Schroeder said Wednesday. "I think everybody across the country is going to be disappointed. He's a phenomenal athlete. The important thing for him is to get healthy."

Jackson, who played the last month of the baseball season with the Chicago White Sox, certainly didn't look healthy when running the bases. He served strictly as a designated hitter.

On Tuesday, CBS reported that "medical authorities" in Los Angeles are about to recommend to the two-sport star that he retire from football because of his hip injury.

Jackson's agent, Richard Woods, called the report "a total lie."

"Nothing has been decided," Woods said from his home in Birmingham, Ala. "Bo's due to report next week."

Raiders coach Art Shell also said he hasn't heard from Jackson.

"I know the rumors are flying around," Shell said. "I haven't heard anything official from him or his people. As far as I'm concerned, he's coming in next week."

Jackson usually reports to the Raiders within 10 days after the baseball season ends. And the regular-season ended Oct. 6.

Raiders executive assistant Al LoCasale said Wednesday the team has no announcement to make concerning Jackson's status.

Jackson, in the final year of a five-year, $7.4 million football contract, led the Raiders in rushing last season with 698 yards on 125 carries despite playing in only 10 of the 16 regular-season games.

He is expected to report to the Raiders to meet some lucrative contract requirements. If he fails a physical, he will earn an estimated $4 million on a disability policy.

Jackson injured his right hip in an NFL playoff game against Cincinnati last Jan. 13 when he was tackled after a 34-yard run. Because of the injury, he was released by the Kansas City Royals in spring training, but signed with the White Sox in April.

He hit .225 with three homers and 14 RBIs in 71 at-bats for the White Sox.

"If it were up to me, then I'd play football," Jackson said two weeks ago, "but I won't do anything until I talk with my doctors."

While the Raiders aren't saying much, White Sox physician James Boscardin doubts Jackson will play football this year.

"At this point in his recovery, I think he probably is not going to be able to play football," Boscardin said, "but that's not our decision."

"Everybody has to realize Bo had a serious injury to his hip, and I don't think that any of us recommended that he play football or thought he was going to be able to play football."

Junior high, freshman spikers back in action

Hereford's ninth grade and junior high volleyball teams return to action today after winning in the Borger Tournament Sept. 28. The teams were scheduled to play in Borger today, with the junior high teams starting at 5:30 p.m. and the freshmen starting at 6. Shown here are the members of the eighth grade teams who won their divisions in the Borger Tournament. Above is the Maroon team: (front row) Krista Beville, Aimee Alley, Carlota Ruiz, Melissa Davis and Brittney Binder; (back row) Tarabeth Holmes, Mindi Davis, Kim Robles, Heather Hodges and Crystal Mercer. Oilers must be up for game with Jets

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers play the New York Jets in the Meadowlands Sunday with a 4-1 record and a chance to go 5-1 for only the third time in franchise history.

The Oilers are back on track after beating Denver 42-14 with an eight-cylinder performance by the defense, matching headlines with their run-and-shoot counterparts on offense.

So what's the problem?

The Oilers have a legacy of performing poorly following outstanding games and they have not been good road warriors. The Jets came to the Astrodome last season for a 17-12 victory in a game the Oilers felt cost them the AFC Central Division title.

"We're going need our best game to have a chance to go in there and win," Oilers coach Jack Pardee said. "It's not going to take a big sales job to our team to have a respect for our opponent."

The Oilers won their first three games impressively before they traveled to New England and lost 24-20 this season, evoking memories of past road failures.

"Whatever it was we did before we played New England wasn't the right thing," Oilers defensive tackle Ray Childress said.

The Oilers had a week off prior to their game against Denver and the defense came back ready to play from the opening gun. The Oilers' defense and special teams got four turnovers that led to Houston's first 28 points.

Cornerback Cris Dishman, once criticized for drawing so many penalties, returned an interception 43 yards to set up a touchdown and returned a fumble 19 yards for a touchdown.

"Of course, when you're making plays, everyone wants to be with you and if you're not making plays everyone is down on you," Dishman said. "So the compliments and the criticisms go in one ear and other the other ear."

The Oilers' offense is still among the league leaders. The Oilers are the highest scoring team in the AFC with a 31.2 average per game and it ranks second in total offense to Buffalo in the AFC.

Now, the defense is moving upward and ranks eighth in the AFC. Defensive end William Fuller had three of the five sacks against the Broncos and now leads the AFC with six.

"Defensively, we've gotten much better," Childress said. "On a scale of one to 10, we were a five last year. We're a 7 1/2 now. We've got everybody out there on the team trying to make a big play."

Dishman says playing under Pardee is different from playing under former coach Jerry Glanville.

"It's affected me greatly, it's two different coaching staffs," Dishman said. "I'm not going to knock Glanville, he's the one who gave me the opportunity to play in the NFL."

"When I was under Glanville I played the way he wanted me to. Now I'm with Jack, I've got to play different."

Pardee claims no credit for the change.

"I can't change Cris, he changed himself - thank goodness," Pardee said. "He is determined to be a good player and he's playing with a lot of intelligence. He's seeing a lot of plays and being in the right place to make the big plays."

Fuller has emerged as the Oilers sack leader on a team that includes Sean Jones and injured Lee Williams. Jones had 12 1/2 sacks for the Oilers last season, the most for any player since 1979.

The Oilers also knocked Denver's Gaston Green out of the AFC rushing lead, holding him to 36 yards on 15 carries with tackles Childress and Doug Smith clogging up the middle. "Ray and Doug didn't have many big plays but the bottled up the inside and kept him from getting anything started," Pardee said.

Mentions Mom

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Young pro golfer Wayne Player remembers Mom on other days besides Mother's Day.

When asked repeatedly if he were the son of golfing great Gary Player, Wayne replied: "I am but I'm also the son of Vivienne Player."

Stay Straight

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Senior golf ace Chi Chi Rodriguez, ever-ready with a good one-liner, had one for youngsters he was warning about getting involved in any trouble.

"Life is like golf," Chi Chi said, "if you keep in the fairway, you never have to ask for a ruling."

Montana 'fine' after elbow surgery

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) - Joe Montana, who has mastered the last-second comeback in a football game, plans the same kind of finish to his football career.

Montana, 35, went into what has been called possibly career-ending surgery Wednesday night with the same attitude he takes into a two-minute drill trailing by six points. "He was very upbeat. ... His whole

OU recruit learns about the big time

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Oklahoma defensive tackle Stacey Dillard has learned first hand that living up to expectations - your own or those of others - isn't easy.

Dillard was a Parade All-American as a high school senior at Clarksville, Texas. Some recruiting services rated him the No. 1 defensive line prospect in the country.

He was big, strong and fast. But he was also young and, for the first time, playing against others who were big, strong and fast. He struggled.

"It took me a while to adjust," said Dillard, now a fifth-year senior who will start Saturday when the sixth-ranked Sooners play Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

"I think my nature had a lot to do with it. I'm not a real aggressive type of person by nature," said the 6-foot-5, 287-pound Dillard. "I was passive on the field and off the field. I think I'm getting more aggressive on the field and it's helping my play a lot."

Last week, in a victory over Iowa State, he showed the ability people have been expecting since the day he signed. He made 11 tackles, had two sacks and broke up a pass. Coach Gary Gibbs called it the best game of Dillard's career.

But Gibbs isn't one of those who feels it's about time.

"I think everybody coming out of high school was hoping he'd be the next Lee Roy Selmon," Gibbs said. "Obviously he's a very physical, imposing young man."

"The maturity factor, the growing up, the gaining of experience, putting all things together probably took longer than the press clippings early on would indicate."

"But he's been a solid contributor. He's not a dominating player, but he really played well last Saturday and that's what we hope we can get from him throughout the course of the season."

Dillard said he had dreams of becoming an All-American and a multi-year All-Big Eight selection. That hasn't happened. He has made 44 tackles in each of the past two seasons, but has never become a force in the defensive line.

There were times, Dillard said, when he thought perhaps he should move to offensive line because of his temperament.

"I got frustrated, because I could see myself dominating plays here and there and then could see myself playing like an average player," he said.

The coaches have tried different ways to motivate him throughout his career, he said. But the amount of effort a player gives always rests with that player.

Dillard has found that when he practices hard, he plays hard. So in this, his final season, he has tried to practice well each week. And through the Sooners' first four games, he leads Oklahoma's down linemen with 21 tackles.

Motivation shouldn't be a problem for him this week. The Sooners have lost close games to Texas each of the past two years. Both times, Texas put together late touchdown drives to win.

Oklahoma also has its sights set on a national championship. They are favored to win the Big Eight title, so getting past Texas is imperative if they wish to remain in the national picture.

"I don't want to go out knowing I lost to Texas and have to live with that the rest of my life," said Dillard, who missed last year's game due to an injury.

"This is a game you have to play hard every down. Any down you slack up could be the down that beats you. I think we know that from the past couple years."

Gators Popular NEW YORK (AP) - When the Pittsburgh Steelers selected defensive end Huey Richardson of the University of Florida in the first round of the 1991 NFL draft it gave the Gators a unique claim.

Florida is the only school in the country to have a player picked in the first round of the draft in each of the past nine years.

approach was, 'If I'm going to do this, I'm going to get it done, and I'm going to get back as quickly and strongly as I can,'" 49ers president Carmen Policy said at a news conference Wednesday.

Montana, the three-time Super Bowl MVP who has been sidelined since training camp by a torn tendon in his right elbow, underwent a 1 1/2-hour operation that is expected to give him the best chance at coming back next year at 100 percent.

The procedure went "fine" and Montana was "fine" after the procedure, according to 49ers spokesperson Jerry Walker.

Forty-niners physician Dr. Michael Dillingham headed a team of three surgeons who performed the operation at Stanford University Medical Center. Dr. Gary Fanton and Dr. Warren King also participated.

Montana is expected to be released from the hospital by this afternoon. "The overall feeling (on the 49ers) is it basically seems to be that as a result of the surgery Joe will not be able to return this season," Policy said earlier Wednesday.

San Francisco coach George Seifert said he expected Montana to be back for 1992.

"When he went on (injured reserve), I expected him to play (again in 1991). We were wrong,"

Seifert said. "It was more serious than we first expected. (But) my understanding and expectation is that he will be back. At least the odds are in favor of that."

The surgery, described as having an 80 percent rate of success, was similar to the operation that ended the career of former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw. He was 35 at the time, also.

Montana, who has twice previously had surgery on his elbow, aggravated his injury Saturday during a practice session in which he was attempting 30-to-35 yard passes. The workout was his fourth in less than a week, but it was the first time he tried to throw hard and for distance.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have just been taken in by a scam and am kicking myself. I am writing so you can warn others.

I received an official-looking letter from the Federal Record Service Corp. stating that all dependent children must have a Social Security number by the time they reach their second birthday. It read, "We will obtain and complete an application form and send it to you with directions so you can forward it to the Social Security office." The fee was $15.

The fact that I was adjusting to life with a new baby made his time and energy saver most appealing. Their letter and postage-paid return envelope appeared very official. After I sent my $15, I never heard a word back. When I phoned my local Social Security Administration office to find out why it was taking so long, I was told the Federal Record Service is a scam. No one has been able to nail them, although the government has been trying for years.

Tell your readers that Social Security cards are easy to obtain and they are FREE. I don't know how these crooks got my name and address but I was contacted shortly after our son was born. It burns me up to see them get away with this. Pass the word, please.—Hoodwinked in the Midwest

DEAR WINKED: Thanks on behalf of those readers who might have taken the bait as you did. Meanwhile, I wonder why the U.S. authorities can't outsmart these crooks who hide behind small print and legal loopholes. How about it, Washington? Where are all those clever lawyers we keep reading about?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband died last year after a long battle with cancer. "Donald" was extremely intelligent and successful, but he had cheated on me for years. I did not share this knowledge with anyone but I always suspected our children knew although they never mentioned it.

Not long ago I met a wonderful man who loves me and my children. He has proposed marriage. This man is kind, intelligent and responsible. I'm happier now than I have been in many years. We have decided to marry.

I'm concerned about friends and family who say this relationship has developed too quickly and shows a lack of respect for my late husband. I can't tell them that my marriage to Donald was not a very happy one and that in fact I was quietly miserable most of the time.

My parents were extremely fond of my late husband and are cold to my new friend. They keep reminding me that Donald has been dead less than a year and it isn't respectable to be involved with another man so soon. I am going to marry this lovely man whether my parents like him or not, but please tell me if it's possible for me to be so madly in love after knowing a man only a few months. I also would like to know what to do about my parents' hostility. It's beginning to get to me.—Mrs. X

DEAR MRS. X: First -- It IS possible to be madly in love with this man, especially after having put up with (and covered for) a cheating spouse for so long. Since your parents' approval means so much to you, I suggest that you delay the marriage for three or four months and let them get to know your friend better.

Number of divorces on rise

The number of divorces granted to Texas couples last year totaled more than half the number of marriages performed, according to statistics from the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

While TDH recorded 178,613 marriage licenses issued in 1990, the state also granted 93,850 divorces, according to Tom Pollard, director of the Statistical Services Division of the TDH Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The year before, 170,964 couples married, while 93,434 divorced.

Pollard said that the ratio of marriages to divorces has increased slightly for the last two years.

The most numerous age group of people who married in 1990 was 20-24 for both males and females (48,657 men and 51,970 women). Divorces were more common among the 25-29 age group, where 20,399 women and 18,306 men ended their marriages.

The largest number of divorces concluded marriages of less than five years (32,448). Some marriages lasted less than a year before divorce (4,391).

Among adolescents and teens, 557 females and 46 males younger than 15 were married. Meanwhile, among those 65 and older included 914 women and 1,668 men.

About half (47.7 percent, or 44,794) of the divorces in 1990 involved no children, while 24.6 percent or 23,132, involved one child. The total number of children involved in divorces last year was 85,674.

As in previous years, densely populated counties recorded some of the largest numbers of both marriages and divorces. Harris County led in both categories.

For more information, contact Tom Pollard, Bureau of Vital Statistics at 512/458-7362 or Margaret Wilson, Public Health Promotion Division at 512/458-7405.

Party Occasion

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Halloween is said to be America's third most popular adult party occasion, right behind New Year's Eve and the Super Bowl.

Hallmark Cards Inc., estimate that more than 50 million Americans, including most families with children 12 years or younger, celebrate Halloween. Young trick-or-treaters dress up in colorful costumes and more than half of the nation's homes are decorated for the occasion.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR WASTE DISPOSAL PERMIT AMENDMENT
NUTRI-FEEDS, INC., P.O. Box 2257, Hereford, Texas 79045, has applied to the Texas Water Commission for an amendment to Permit No. 01300 to authorize an increase in the disposal of volume from 100,000 gallons per day average to 500,000 gallons per day average. The permit authorizes disposal of industrial wastewater from a rendering, hide curing and tanning facility by evaporation and/or irrigation on 300 acres of company-owned land. Application rates for the irrigated land shall not exceed 3.0 acre-feet/acre/year. No discharge of pollutants into the waters of the State is authorized by this permit.

The facility is approximately 3.5 miles southwest of the City of Hereford, Texas at the intersection of a county road with U.S. Highway 60 and the A.T. & S.P. Railroad, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The facility and the irrigation site are located in the drainage area of the Upper Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River in Segment No. 0229 of the Red River Basin.

The Executive Director of the Texas Water Commission has prepared a draft permit based on the application submitted by the applicant and other information presently available.

Legal Authority: Section 26.028 of the Texas Water Code and 31 TAC Chapter 305 of the Rules of the Texas Water Commission. Any such request for a public hearing shall be in writing and contain (1) the name, mailing address and daytime phone number of the person making the request; and (2) a brief description of how the requester, or persons represented by the requester, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application. If the Commission determines that the request sets out an issue which is relevant to the application, or that a public hearing, would serve the public interest, the Commission shall conduct a public hearing, after the issuance of proper and timely notice of the hearing. If no sufficient request for hearing is received within 30 days of the date of publication of the notice concerning the application, the permit will be submitted to the Commission for final decision on the application.

Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Christopher Gee, Assistant Chief Hearings Examiner, Texas Water Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711, Telephone (512) 464-8061. Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.
