Herd places 5 on All-District team

Hereford's Whitefaces landed a Herd's share of honors on the 3-5A All-District football teams announced Tuesday after a vote of the league's coaches. The Herd's Mike Scott was selected as "offensive player of the year," and Coach Jerry Taylor—in his first year with the Herd—was named as "Coach of the Year."

In addition, the Herd landed five berths on the all-district squad. Scott and fullback Ronnie Terry made it on offense, while linebacker Lee Brockman and defensive backs Ronny Collier and Jeff Streun were selected on defense.

Amarillo's David Scott, 212-pound senior guard, reaped several honors. He was the only player named to both offensive and defensive first teams; the only unanimous choice on offense, and was picked as "defensive player of the year."

Hereford and Plainview hogged the backfield on the first team. The Bulldogs' Bradic and Randy Williams joined Scott and Terry to compose the backfield. There were only two unanimous choices on the first teams—Amarillo's Scott on offense and Monterey defensive back Shane Gay on defense.

Hereford had only one player on the second team defensive unit—noseguard David Parsons. Named on the honorable mention list for Hereford were offensive players Keith Bridwell at tackle, Max Middleton at guard, and Robert Martinez at wide receiver. Defensive honorable mention went to ends August Castillo and Brian Lady, linebacker Alan Ritchie and back Larry Jimenez.

San Angelo on Herd grid slate

Hereford Coach Jerry Taylor announced Tuesday that the 1984 football schedule has been completed, after contracts were confirmed for non-district games against San Angelo Central and Clovis. Pampa and Canyon have been dropped.

Since the District 3-5A schedule is re-drawn with the UIL alignment each two years, the league slate has changed and Hereford will play Clovis here in a non-district game on the sixth week of the season.

Hereford will open Sept. 7 at home against the strong San Angelo Bobcats, and the Herd will have six home games in '84. The two-year contracts with San Angelo and Clovis both start with the teams playing here this coming season. That will leave Hereford with four home games in 1985.

Explaining the change in non-district foes, Coach Jerry Taylor said the new district slate forced Hereford to seek a game in its sixth week of the season. "We could play nine games, but I'd rather play ten."

The Herd mentor said he also believed in playing strong opponents in the non-district contests. San Angelo is a member of 4-5A, sometimes called the "little Southwest Conference," while Clovis is a perennial power in New Mexico.

"With our new district schedule, we felt fortunate to get a game in the sixth week of the season," said Taylor. Clovis had been playing Lawton, Ok., and was "pleased" to sign Hereford, according to Taylor.

Celtics romp; Nets nip Rockets

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Celtics, who averaged 117 points in winning eight games in a row, proved in capturing their ninth straight that they can run and gun with the best of them.

Boston outscored the Denver Nuggets, highest-scoring team in the National Basketball Association, 140-124 Tuesday night, giving the Celtics a league-best 9-1 record after a season-opening loss.

"We're playing as well as we can right now," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said. "Part of our game is running so you can kind of expect this kind of game."

Larry Bird scored 28 points and Kevin McHale 24 to lead seven Celtics in double figures. Jones said there was a reason for the balanced contribution.

"The thin air out here took its effect, especially in the first quarter, so we had to continue running people in and out," Jones said.

In other NBA games, it was Portland 114, Utah 112; Golden State 115, San Antonio 112; Los Angeles 126, Milwaukee 97; New Jersey 104, Houston 86; Chicago 112, Detroit 110; Atlanta 107, San Diego 102; Kansas City 101, Washington 100 and New York 94, Indiana 87.

Robert Parish had 13 of his 18 points and Bird got 12 as the Celtics hit 67 percent of their field goal attempts in the racehorse first quarter, which ended with Boston ahead 39-34. During the period, Denver took its only lead of the game at 32-31.

Nets 104, Rockets 86

At Houston, Otis Birdsong scored 34 points and got more than enough help from his New Jersey teammates to offset the season's best performance by Ralph Sampson, who had 32 points and 20 rebounds.

Sampson had 13 points and eight rebounds in the second period to help Houston take a 54-53 halftime lead. The Nets didn't pull away until the fourth period, when a 10-1 spurt expanded their lead to 88-76.

Elvin Hayes had one field-goal attempt to take over the all-time NBA lead with 23,931, surpassing John Havlicek. Warriors 115, Spurs 112

At Oakland, Mickey Johnson, making his second start of the season because of an injury, scored 29 points, including two free throws with four seconds left, to lead

Golden State over San Antonio.

The Spurs, who got 39 points from George Gervin, took a 112-111 lead on a Mike Mitchell jumper with 34 seconds remaining. Eric Floyd's short shot with 20 seconds to go gave the Warriors the lead for good.

Martinez Draws Crowd

Five Permian Panthers, and a sixth in the background, ganged up on Hereford's Robert Martinez (13) after he snared a pass in the bi-district game at Lubbock. Martinez almost spun out of the traffic on this play. Permian capitalized on Herd mistakes to post a 40-13 win in the playoff battle. (Photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Orioles' Ripken named as MVP in American League

NEW YORK (AP) — Cal Ripken Jr., Rookie of the Year in the American League just one year ago, was named today as 1983 AL Most Valuable Player, narrowly defeating Baltimore Orioles teammate Eddie Murray in the balloting.

Ripken, 23, completed his meteoric ascension from rookie standout to MVP by leading the American League in hits with 211, runs with 121 and doubles with 47 last season as the Orioles won their first World Series since 1971.

The Baltimore shortstop also placed among the league leaders in batting average (.318), RBI (102), game-winning RBI (17) and slugging average (.517) to go along with his 27 homers.

And, in only his second season, he has earned the reputation as an ironman by being the only player in the league to play every inning of all 162 games this year, extending his streak of consecutive games to 280.

"Everyone here has been behind both me and Eddie (Murray), and I think I would have been just as excited for Eddie if he'd won. I'm sure he feels the same way."

In balloting conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America, Ripken received 15 of a possible 28 first-place votes with two votes allocated to each of the 14 American League cities. He was voted second nine times, third three times and fourth once for 322 total points.

Last year's AL MVP also was a shortstop, Robin Yount of Milwaukee, and, for the second straight year, Murray finished second in balloting. Murray, who hit .306 with 33 homers and 111 RBI, received 10 first-place votes and 290 points.

Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox was third with the remaining three first-place votes and 209 points, followed by Jim Rice of Boston with 150 points and Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee with 123 votes.

NEW YORK (AP) — David Stern, who as a boy walked more than a mile up Eighth Avenue to watch National Basketball Association doubleheaders at Madison Square Garden, is about to become the NBA's fourth commissioner.

In a show of quickness and unanimity rare for sports owners, the NBA's Board of Governors took less than half an hour Tuesday to name Stern to succeed Larry O'Brien. Richard Bloch, president of the Phoenix Suns and chairman of the Governors, said there was no dissenting voice to Stern's appointment.

Stern, who has been O'Brien's right-hand man for the past five years and the league's executive vice president for the past three, was the outgoing commissioner's hand-picked choice for the job. O'Brien announced last Thursday that he will step down when his contract expires Feb. 1, although he said Tuesday he will stay on to help the transition.

O'Brien actually orchestrated the quick choice himself. First, he convinced the owners to amend the agenda to add discussion of the commissioner's job to Tuesday's meeting, called originally to discuss the labor dispute with NBA referees.

Then he made the strongest possible pitch for Stern to the owners, citing the need for a commissioner from inside the league.

Stern, 41, has been associated with the NBA since 1966, first as a member of a law firm which handled the league's legal matters.

YMCA sets meeting for volleyball league

An organizational meeting for a second season of the YMCA Coed Volleyball League is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28 in the Sugarland Mall.

According to Weldon Knabe, general director of the local YMCA, participants may wish to consider forming three divisions instead of the current two. That would possibly allow better-balanced competition, he said.

Each prospective team is asked to send at least one representative to the gathering.

Meanwhile, the YMCA is planning a consolation volleyball tournament Dec. 1-3 each evening at 6:30. The three divisions are to be coed "A," coed "B," and open women's.

Any participating team which has played together for more than a year is asked to sign up for the "A" division. Should there not be six coed squads in each division, "A" and "B" will be combined.

An entry fee of $20 per team is due Nov. 30.

For more information, phone Knabe at 364-6990.

Kevin Hull begins getting his room in order in preparation for La Madre Mia Study Club's annual holiday tour of homes, scheduled Sunday, Dec. 4, from 2 to 5 p.m. The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hull will be featured, along with the residences of Mr. and Mrs. David Burns and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Coneway. Tickets for the tour are $2 each and may be purchased from club members or at any of the homes on the day of the tour. Proceeds go to community projects.

Plans finalized for annual tour of homes

Plans were finalized for the Holiday Home Tour when members of La Madre Mia Study Club met recently in the home of Judy Williams. Carrell Ann Simmons served as co-hostess.

The home tour will be held Sunday, Dec. 4. Ms. Williams, chairman, assigned members to serve as hostesses at the homes. Committee reports were given during the business session conducted by President Marlene Watson. It was announced that the annual Christmas party will be Dec. 12 in the home of Joyce Allred.

Gourmet cook, Chris Shadle, was introduced by the yearbook chairman, Tricia Sims. Ms. Shadle presented a delightful demonstration on making chocolate bombs, a delicious dessert which was later enjoyed by those present.

Members answered roll call by telling their "biggest bomb." Those attending were Carolyn Baxter, Nancy Priest, Bettye Owen, Gladys Merritt, Sharon Hodges, Frances Berry, Mary Herrington. Also, Ruth Black, Beverly Bryant, Sarah Hazelrigg, Mary Beth White, Georgia Sparks, Mysedia Smith, Lucy Rogers, and Mmes. Sims, Simmons, Williams, and Watson.

Abundant Life

Bob Wear

Recently, I was requested to talk with a man who was out of control. He was out of control, so far as his thinking and talking were concerned. He had some fixed notions which were very closely related to truth, but, in his mind, these good ideas were badly distorted by an unhealthy ego feeling. He was no doing a good job managing himself. He had no inclination to modify, to adjust, to change, or to even try to understand; all of which are essential to successful self-management.

Learning to control or rule or manage one's self is a must for all who wish to be effective in the living experience. The most desirable life situation available to us is the one which wise management can bring about. Wise self-management is an essential characteristic of the dynamic, efficient personality. This is also the key to satisfactory and constructive interactions with other people. It is the skill which enables us to function with 'positive response' rather than by reactions.

The various powers inherent in us are capable of great abuse, with great harm and much loss; however, these powers can be managed wisely. Success in this action requires the controlling power of our will under the control and guidance of the best knowledge available to us.

Wise management of self begins in and is handled by our mind. We know about what to expect, in most situations, and can have the mind conditioned, fixed, prepared; and can be ready. This will go a long way toward the personal success that comes from the wise management of self.

Hospital Auxiliary to hold bake sale

Doctor says

"St. Elsewhere" transplant is good theater

NEW YORK (AP) — Would you trust your ticker to Dr. Mark Craig, the brilliant but overbearing surgeon on NBC's medical series "St. Elsewhere?"

Tonight, Craig (William Daniels) performs his and the fictional hospital's first-ever heart transplant, and a real-life heart specialist, who previewed the episode, says it's good theater and good medicine.

"It's interesting, fast-moving and educational," said Dr. James Satterfield, a resident in cardio-thoracic surgery at New York's Mount Sinai Medical Center.

While recognizing TV's dramatic license and compression, Satterfield, who's assisted on open-heart surgery but hasn't witnessed a transplant, said the operation had the correct anatomy, terminology and procedures. "It looked like what heart surgery looks like," he said.

A camera shot of the pulsating new heart, lifted from cold storage for the transplant, also appeared legitimate. "It could be a heart, probably a calf's heart," said the real doctor.

Right organ, wrong species. The makeup department at MTM Enterprises, which produces "St. Elsewhere," actually used a chicken heart and attached mounds of goo to it.

Dr. Kristine E. Whitmore, a urologist at UCLA, is the show's medical consultant. For her research, she talked to Stanford's heart transplant team and used its book on the subject, as well as material from the Regional Transplant Center.

One thing Satterfield noted was Craig's coolness under fire. When the patient, played by Marion Mercer, went into cardiac arrest, Craig barked a series of orders to his team. "That was good," said Satterfield. "It showed the surgeon in control and making the right decisions to systematically get her out of trouble. Craig also strongly believes in himself, and that's the way it has to be. A heart surgeon has to be confident and knowledgeable."

This was Craig's first heart transplant, a fact that made him a mite testier than usual. In recent episodes, Craig did push-ups as physical preparation, gave himself mental pep-talks after he accidentally left a stitch in another patient and promoted the operation on talk shows for the financially strapped St. Eligius.

"It's like an athlete psyching himself up for a game," said Satterfield. "The stakes are high, especially since this hospital and staff are not experienced

Grain release is approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation requiring the government to sell 83 million bushels of feed corn at bargain prices to drought-stricken livestock growers has been approved by a Senate-House conference committee.

The committee agreed to the provision Tuesday as part of a dairy and tobacco price support bill, while deciding that farmers and ranchers and not the government should pay the cost of transporting the corn from storage facilities.

Several conferees complained that this would ignore the needs of livestock growers in states where little or no corn is stored and where such transportation costs would thus be much higher.

"They are being directly discriminated against," said Rep. Lindsay Thomas, D-Ga.

However, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said the drought aid provision had originally passed the Senate with the understanding that the federal government would not pay for transporting the corn.

"I believe the bill will be in trouble if we would add back in transportation charges," said Helms.

The drought aid provision had been tacked on the dairy support bill in the Senate by Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, which has been particularly hard hit by the drought. There was no similar provision in the dairy measure approved by the House.

The conference committee met to iron out differences between the two versions of the bill, and the committee's recommendations must again be voted on in both chambers.

The version approved by the committee would require Agriculture Secretary John R. Block to sell the three lowest grades of government-held corn at 75 percent of the government price floor for corn.

That price varies from county to county, but in Lubbock County, Texas, for example, ranchers could buy corn at about $2.04 per bushel compared with a market price of about $3.15, according to Bentsen's office.

Those eligible to buy the corn would be livestock growers in counties declared disaster areas by the Agriculture Department because of the drought. The corn would be made available to assist in maintaining breeding herds of livestock and poultry, including their offspring.

However, the conferees rejected language calling on the government to pay the cost of transporting the grain to centrally located areas, where it would have been more readily available.

Block has said that grain is stored in 27 states, but that a majority of it is located in Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the conference committee, said the drought aid would be a big help to Texas ranchers at least.

"This hopefully will take care of the immediate emergency" in Texas, he said in an interview.

About 21 million bushels of the corn are stored in the Texas Panhandle, but Agriculture Department officials have contended that it was not fair to help only one state and that a nationwide program would be too costly.

"Any program you enact, you're not going to satisfy everyone," William Leshner, an assistant agriculture secretary, told the conference committee.

He said providing enough corn for every livestock grower affected by the drought would cost about $800 million, and "if you add transport on top of that, you're talking big bucks."

The limited aid program approved by the conference committee would cost about $65 million, agriculture officials estimated.

The conference committee also adopted a statement urging Block to make available as drought aid another 75 million bushels of the nation's disaster reserve of grain. However, the statement does not have the effect of law.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the corn stockpile next fall will drop to about 512 million bushels, the smallest Oct. 1 reserve since 1976.

The figures were in a new supply-and-demand analysis Monday which took into account last week's USDA estimate that the corn harvest continued to deteriorate last month. As of Nov. 1, the crop was estimated at 4.12 billion bushels, slightly less than half of last year's record harvest of 8.4 billion bushels.

Government acreage curbs and drought during the growing season were the main reasons for the sharp decline.

At the beginning of the new marketing year on Oct. 1, there was about 3.14 billion bushels of old-crop corn in the stockpile. Counting the new harvest, the total supply for 1983-84 is about 7.26 billion bushels.

Domestic use and exports will require around 6.75 billion bushels, meaning that the corn reserve on Oct. 1, 1984 will be about 512 million bushels — or less than a month's supply.

Sugarcane Facts

Sugarcane is grown in Florida, Hawaii, Louisiana and Texas, with cane sugar accounting for about half of all sugar produced in the United States. Here, a crop grows in Hawaii next to a sugar mill. Hawaii produces one-third of the sugarcane grown in the U.S.; its industry is considered the most efficient in the world in terms of yield per acre and per man hour.

Wheat supply plentiful; Soviet crop largest in five years

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter to Moscow that the Soviet Union's wheat crop is smaller than had been forecast. There is plenty of wheat in the United States and other countries to go around, says the Agriculture Department.

Furthermore, the 1983 Soviet grain harvest is still estimated at 200 million metric tons — the largest in five years — because it includes enough livestock feed grains to offset the decline in wheat production, officials said Monday.

Total Soviet grain imports in the international marketing year that began July 1 were forecast at 29 million tons, unchanged from the estimate a month ago. It would be the lowest level since 1978-79, when a record harvest of 237 million tons helped build grain reserves.

The Soviet Union has contracted for about 15 million metric tons of foreign grain, slightly more than half of its projected imports in 1983-84, the report said. Recent major sellers were France, Canada, Argentina and Austria.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Soviet wheat production was estimated at 80 million tons, a reduction of five million from the earlier forecast. However, the output of coarse grains — which include corn and barley was raised by a like amount to 108 million tons. The remainder of the harvest includes "miscellaneous grains" and pulses, a total of 12 million tons.

Total wheat supplies in the Soviet Union were said to be the smallest "since the disastrous 1975 crop year" when total grain output dropped to 140 million tons.

But this year's wheat crop is of higher quality and "should help the Soviets meet milling and industrial requirements from domestic supplies." Even so, substantial quantities of imported wheat will be needed, the report said.

"While the Soviets are faced with small domestic wheat supplies, the world is awash in exportable wheat," it said.

The report said that the improved feed situation and "probably the farm response to higher government purchase prices for livestock products this year" continue to help boost the Soviet livestock sector.

World grain conditions offer little hope for U.S. farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new look at the world grain conditions offers little encouragement to U.S. wheat farmers that near-record stockpiles will soon be siphoned off by overseas buyers.

The analysis, issued Tuesday by the Agriculture Department, also said there is an uncertain outlook for producers of corn and the other "coarse" grains that make up the U.S. feed reserve, including oats and barley.

Record supplies of feed grains in the United States are expected to decline to an eight-year low by next Oct. 1, reflecting this year's small crop. As a result, there is a great deal of concern about exports and the global situation in the coming year.

But there is a surplus of wheat, including the huge U.S. stockpile, and plentiful supplies in other exporting countries.

"Abundant Southern Hemisphere wheat crops are now entering world markets," the monthly report said. "The large outturn has intensified marketing efforts, and current relatively favorable wheat prices are encouraging additional wheat buying."

Foreign buyers presently have their attention focused on the upcoming harvest of coarse grains in the major Southern Hemisphere production areas.

"Good crops could ease the current tightness in world coarse grain supply and possibly encourage larger world trade," the report said. "Poor crops would considerably constrict already tight supplies."

The current forecast is for "a significant recovery" in coarse grain production and trade by Southern Hemisphere countries following last season's drought-reduced harvests, the report said.

Underlying the global outlook for 1983-84 is the sharp reduction in U.S. corn production — from a record of 8.4 billion bushels in 1982 to 4.12 billion bushels estimated for 1983.
