Officer thinks program helps deter crime

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Neighborhood Watch promoted

Statistics show that more than half of policemen's time is spent on investigating burglaries.

Hereford Police Officer Randy Williams believes a new citizen-involvement program being implemented in the city can bring about a dramatic drop in the residential crime rate. With his help, 33 of Hereford's city blocks have adopted a "Neighborhood Watch" program.

Williams began his campaign last April, after attending a crime prevention seminar the previous fall at the Crime Prevention Institute of Southwest Texas State University. He said the police department was first contacted by Meredith Wilcox, who knew of the watch program through a friend in Okalahoma.

"I went down the block talking to people, and everyone was very enthusiastic," Wilcox remembered. "No one said 'no' to the idea."

So the first signs went up in the 200 block of Ranger. "This is one of the most fulfilling community projects I've ever been involved in," she said. "We really do feel safer and I highly recommend it."

Williams introduces the program to a neighborhood at an evening meeting, during which he shows a slide presentation on residential security and describes the benefits of Neighborhood Watch. He said he spends at least one night a week on the program.

After viewing the slides, block residents discuss the idea and learn about costs involved. Erecting the signs costs about $60, or around $5 per household. "I haven't yet had a neighborhood turn down the proposal," Williams claimed.

Neighborhood Watch was implemented in California about 10 years ago, and since then communities participating have enjoyed reductions in residential crimes ranging from 40 to 85 percent.

"The reason it works," Williams explained, "is because I as a police officer can't always tell what's suspicious and what's not when I patrol a neighborhood.

But the people who live there do. If someone is out of town, they'll notice a strange car in that person's driveway.

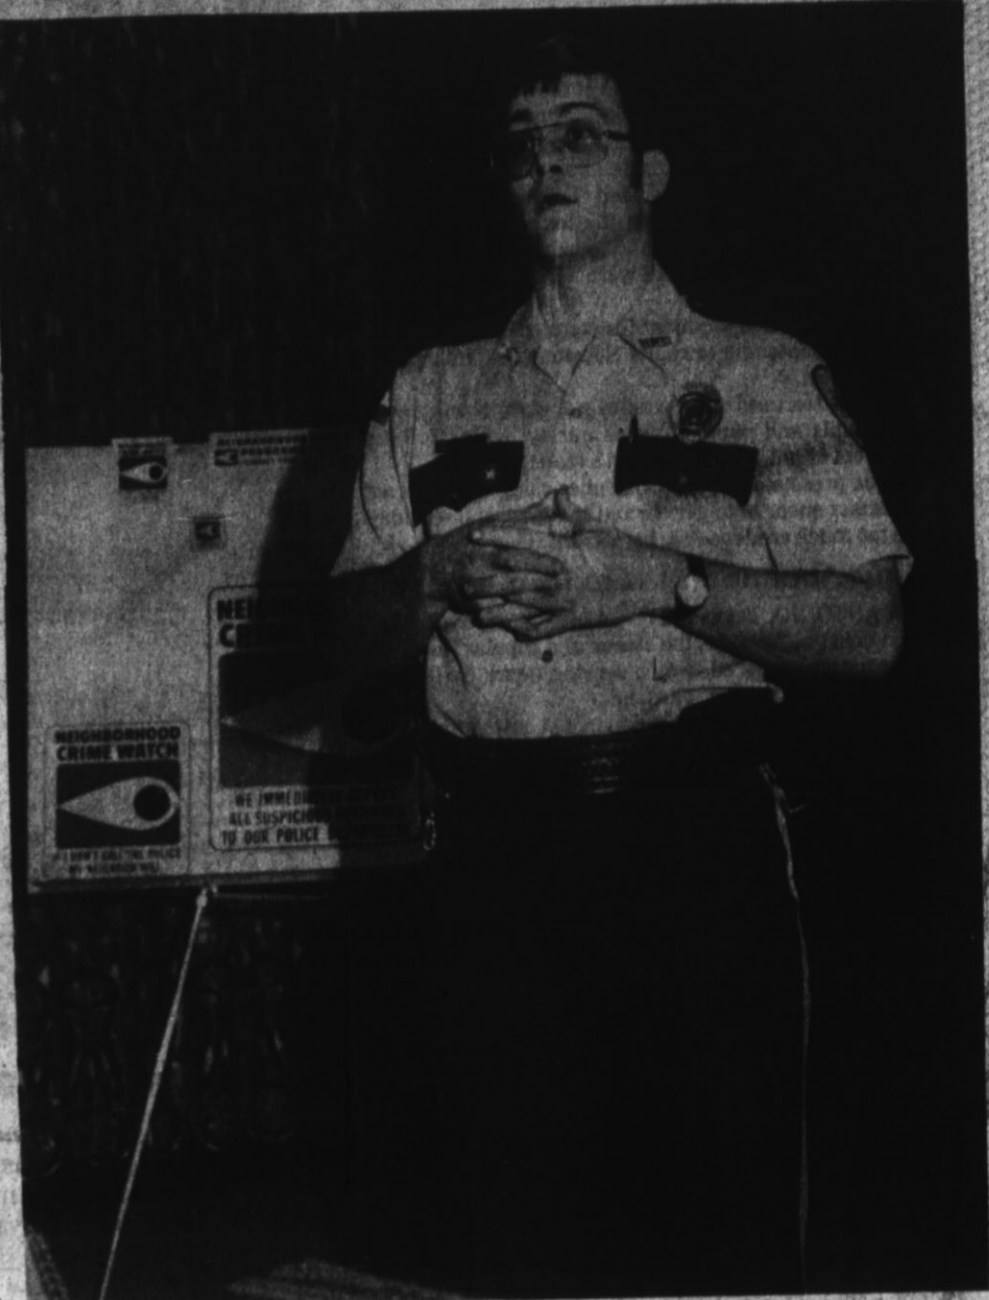

"Even if you call the police and the activity is legitimate, your neighbors will be glad you called," he added. "They will be happy you're watching out for them."

At the initial meetings, residents learn about ways to make their homes more secure with locks, fences and timed lighting devices. They also get tips on making their homes appear lived-in while they're away and suggestions on trading favors with neighbors that will help all homes on the block be more burglar-proof.

"Burglary, arson, rape, child molestation and auto theft are the most prevalent neighborhood crimes," Williams said, "and all of those have occurred in Hereford at least once during the past year."

"What we want to do is concentrate on one block at a time. We want everyone on the 200 Block of Greenwood," he gave as an example, "to worry about his house and his neighbor's house. When they're secure, the burglary will go into the next block. Then that block will secure itself, and the burglar will move on. Eventually, we could run them out of town and let someone else worry about them."

The Neighborhood Watch program does work, Williams claims. Right now, Hereford has a little less than 300 blocks not yet involved in the project.

Freed airman now homebound

By EVANS WITT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., proclaiming "God Bless America," returned to U.S. soil today after a month in Syrian captivity, then headed for a White House reception with the Democratic presidential hopeful who negotiated his release.

"I would just like to say I appreciate all the support I received," Goodman said after he and Jesse Jackson stepped out of a military transport jet provided by President Reagan.

Jackson and Goodman were to meet with Reagan at the White House later today.

As Jackson and Goodman left the blue and white plane at 6:35 a.m. EST, they raised their clasped hands amid cheers from more than 200 well-wishers and the rousing sounds of a local high school band which had come to meet by Andrews Air Force Base.

Goodman, dressed in his crisp Navy uniform, received hugs from his wife and family. In brief comments on the airport tarmac, Goodman said he had "received 60,000 pieces of mail and to me that's awesome, and to me that shows what kind of country this is."

"I thought daily about the POW experience that I had been trained to withstand, and the type of POW experience the guys had to experience in Vietnam," said Goodman, 27, a bombardier-navigator from Virginia Beach, Va., whose attack jet was shot down by the Syrians on Dec. 4.

"I would like to take from that experience and say one quote which one man said when he came back from Vietnam — and that was 'God Bless America.'"

Jackson, in his remarks, praised Syrian President Hafez Assad for "helping to break the cycle of pain." He also complimented State Department officials and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., for assisting in the efforts to negotiate Goodman's release. Percy is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The civil rights leader praised Reagan for not interfering with his efforts, and said: "This mission was a political risk, not a moral risk. It was the right thing to do."

Goodman went immediately to nearby Bethesda Naval Hospital for a brief check-up, was to re-enter the facility for several days of tests after his visit with Reagan.

Goodman spent the entire 10-hour trip from Frankfurt, West Germany, in the forward cabin and cockpit of the military transport. When the plane touched down, a burst of applause erupted from his cabin.

When the plane taxied to a stop, Jackson, joined by Goodman, came to the back of the aircraft and said a prayer before disembarking.

Many of those waiting in the freezing weather for the plane to arrive wore the rainbow buttons of Jackson's presidential campaign, and some carried signs saying, "God Bless Jesse Jackson," and "A Giant Step For Peace."

Kenneth W. Dam, the undersecretary of State, represented the government, joining other dignitaries at ceremony, including Percy and Washington Mayor Marion Barry were also there.

"I'm very proud and very happy. I'd love to have the opportunity to say 'Thank you very much' to Rev. Jackson," said a jubilant Marilyn Goodman, the airman's mother.

Goodman and Jackson made the trip in two legs, beginning with a flight from Damascus, Syria to Rhein Main Air Base in West Germany. Goodman appeared happy and fit as he emerged from the Air Force C-141 transport plane that flew him and the Jackson entourage to West Germany.

The bombardier-navigator, was freed by the Syrians Tuesday, a month after his Navy attack jet was shot down over Syrian-controlled central Lebanon. The plane's pilot, Mark Lange, was killed in the raid, which was in retaliation for Syrian anti-aircraft attacks on U.S. reconnaissance flights.

Reagan, who a week ago refused to accept telephone calls from Jackson and warned that Jackson's mission could harm Goodman's chances for release, set aside time to meet with Jackson and Goodman in the Oval Office after their arrival in the United States.

"You don't quarrel with success," Reagan said Tuesday. In a call placed by the White House to Jackson, he said, "All Americans thank you. There have been a lot of prayers here in Washington. I have been praying for you. I couldn't be happier."

Reagan said he sent a note to Syrian President Hafez Assad thanking him

Getting Things Started

The benefits of forming a Neighborhood Watch program were outlined Tuesday night by Hereford Police Officer Randy Williams to residents of the 100 and 200 Blocks of Greenwood. The group later voted to initiate the program.

Mauro foresees settlement today

By SYDNEY RUBIN Associated Press Writer
LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says he expects a long-awaited settlement of a $1.7 billion lawsuit against Mobil Oil Corp. to be finalized in court today.

"We worked all weekend," he said Tuesday. "It's basically the same deal" worked out last month, a deal that fell through when Exxon intervened just as it was about to be approved in court here Dec. 20.

Mauro said lawyers for Exxon have since agreed to let the accord be approved today.

The suit was filed in 1982 when Duval County rancher Clinton Manges alleged that Mobil had not adhered strictly to a drilling schedule required by a lease on Manges' ranch dating back to 1932. Manges claimed all the oil drilled by Mobil since then. The state later joined Manges because it owns some of the mineral rights to the land.

Exxon also owns some of the mineral rights, but until last month, Exxon had not entered the dispute.

Then, on Dec. 20, Exxon filed a surprise cross-claim, and visiting Judge George Miller postponed the approval and set a hearing in the case for 9 a.m. today.

Mauro said in the meantime, Exxon has agreed to allow the original settlement to be finalized as long as all parties formally recognize Exxon's right to sue for part of the settlement.

"We finally got Exxon to say, 'that's OK.' Exxon will preserve its counterclaims, if they want to come in and try to get a piece of the pie" later, Mauro said.

He said he does not think Exxon has any share coming, but he said he wanted to get the deal approved and "argue about Exxon afterward."

"We're losing $12,000 a day until this thing is settled," he said.

The tentative agreement would turn Mobil's lease on Manges' ranch over to someone else, and they would

Sheriff has triple-murder suspect

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer
LOMETA, Texas (AP) — There's little, if any, law enforcement in this West Central Texas town of 670, and despite, a triple murder, no one's screaming for the police.

Lampasas County Sheriff Gordon Morris said Tuesday he had a suspect in the deaths of a father, mother and daughter found shot to death in their highway-side home on Monday.

The bodies of Noah

Lometa not used to policemen

Haydon, a 60-year-old repairman, his wife Edna, 49, and 5-year-old daughter Amanda were found by James Haydon, a son, according to Morris. The sheriff said several guns were missing from the home, and robbery was a possible motive.

Lometa Mayor Mary McAnelly said her constituents "have never had to have" a police department here. The Lampasas County Sheriff's Department patrols the area, and there's not much major crime, she said.

"Periodically, we've had a deputy. We have a constable, but he's old," she said.

"We're pretty strong people around here," the mayor added.

Aaron Murphy, a Haydon neighbor, said he heard no gun shots.

"When I'm in the house it's closed up and the TV is on,"

said Murphy, whose home is about 100 yards from the Haydens'.

Murphy said he's not panicking about the slayings, but, "I'm nervous as hell and sick and tore up about it."

Lometa residents recall Noah Haydon as a decent citizen who kept to himself. Murphy, a neighbor for 20 years, said, "We never did neighbor a lot until the last few months."

Hard work helps county farming

By KIM THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

There are 1,200 farms in Deaf Smith County. About 900,000 acres of land are contained within the county's 50 by 30 square-mile radius. How the land is used can be roughly divided into thirds: one-third is irrigated, one third dryland and the rest is in grass.

Most landowners in the county have title to at least a section, which is 640 acres. The Bridwell Ranch is a staggering 46 sections and is located near the New Mexico border.

Mineral-rich water drawn from the Ogallala Aquifer helps farmers who irrigate grow an abundance of wheat, corn, milo, soy beans, sugar beets and cotton. The county also produces table vegetables such as potatoes, onions and carrots.

Nature has provided the resources and society offers the need, one reason why the county consistently ranks first or second in the state in agricultural production. Also helping here, without question, is hard work by those involved.

In 1983, as in past years, the people who make the industry work were in the news: pushing for farm legislation and announcing new developments along with presenting and receiving agricultural awards.

James Conkwright was named to a third term on the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District Number 1, representing Precinct 4, W.L. Davis and Roy D. Hicks are committeemen from Deaf Smith County.

Mike Paschel was honored during 1983 as Young Farmer of the Year by the Hereford Lions Club.

The Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association named Carl Straffus of Milo Center as their "Man of the Year in Agriculture," while Duane Allred was recognized as the top sugar beet grower.

Hereford Young Farmers brought home several honors from an Area I convention in Plainview. Ray Schlabs was elected Area I president, Roy Carlson Star Young Farmer and Toby Turpen Star Agribusinessman. The entire chapter captured the Area I Outstanding Chapter Award.

Justin McBride retired after serving 18 years as Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, and was replaced by Dennis Newton who most recently worked in Hutchinson County.

Ivan Block was elected as one of three vice-presidents of the Texas Wheat Producers Association, while Leo Witkowski remains a member of that association's commodity check-off governing board.

And R.H. Cowan of Milo Center was honored as the Wildlife Conservation Farmer of the Year for the State of Texas.

Vogel shows grand champion

Ricky Vogel, a ninth grade student at La Plata Junior High School, exhibited the grand champion steer this week at the Junior National Livestock Show in Phoenix, Ariz.

Holly Tatum, a Friona resident, exhibited the reserve grand champion.

According to Brad Morrison, agriculture extension agent for Deaf Smith County, the animal showed by Vogel was approximately 18 months old and weighed 1,075 pounds. It is classified as a Limousin steer. Morrison guessed 500 other steers were exhibited during the event.

The 15-year-old Vogel previously captured grand champion steer honors at the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City, Mo., and at the state fair in Austin.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Vogel, Ricky is an active member of the Deaf Smith County 4-H.

Men held for medicine theft

Two Canyon men are being held on $10,000 bond each in Deaf Smith County for the theft of medicine from the county's health department office this morning.

Eric Holbrook, 27, and Raymond D. Smith, 30, were charged with the theft of medicine throughout the county. The men were arrested frequently during the past few days. The health department spokesman said the goods were $10,000 worth of medicine.

The two men were arrested at 9:30 this morning.

authorities for possession of 28 pounds, $30,000 worth of marijuana.

Livestock Show on agenda

The coming Junior Livestock Show is to be discussed at a Thursday meeting of Hereford Young Farmers. The meeting is set for 7 p.m. in the agricultural building at Hereford High School.

HYF is sponsoring the show, which is slated for Jan. 28 through 30 at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

Several goods ripped off

An estimated $1,000 worth of clothes, towels and dishes were stolen Tuesday from Doug Criss of 305 E. 18th, Hereford, police reported this morning.

According to police, there is one suspect in the crime, which occurred at about 7:30 p.m.

Police are investigating the theft of a shotgun of which value was unknown.

There were three dangerous fires reported within 15 minutes late Tuesday afternoon, though no great loss was reported. They were set by the same person. A fire was reported at 11:30 p.m. in the 100 block of Avenue A and there were two motor vehicle accidents handled.

Good health habits easy to establish; should be practiced

COLLEGE STATION — With a new year at hand, this is a good time for families to "take stock" of health habits for all members.
 Good health habits are easy to establish and should be practiced all year long, reminded Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

 "The most important reason for establishing healthy habits is to improve the quality of life, as well as its length," Shirer added.

 Health experts suggest the following practices as a way to stay healthy:
 1. Learn to manage stress and enjoy life more. Emotional and physical stresses should be handled daily. Outside interests and an exercise program help relieve stress.

 2. Practice good nutrition — eat three balanced meals a day and try to reduce salt, saturated fat and sugar intake. The average adult consumes up to 100 pounds of sugar a year and high intakes can cause obesity, diabetes, heart disease and tooth decay. Normal weight should also be maintained.

 3. Get regular exercise and proper rest. Consistently walk, jog or do other exercises suitable to your individual needs. Get plenty of sleep in the winter because the body's defenses need to be at their peak, particularly during this season.

 4. Avoid substance abuse like smoking and drinking excessive amounts of alcohol — neither is a safe or healthy habit.

Abundant Life

By BOB WEAR

The optimistic view for our personal life does not mean that everything is going to be as we wish, but it does mean that we will be able to cope better with whatever happens. It also means that we will continue to get up and move on each time we fall. We will be always giving ourselves the advantage; we will be happier persons and more desirable friends.

There is a condition described as "over-optimism," and this is harmful. It is unrealistic, beyond the realm of possibility, etc. "Over-optimism is waiting for our ship to come in, when we haven't sent one out."—Irv. Riley

Our optimism must be justified optimism, and, once we have established it as a working principle in our pattern for living, it must be maintained. We must protect it against all eroding influences, and keep it within the range of a practical balance. "Our great cycles of depression come largely because our enthusiastic optimism in prosperous times carries us beyond all reason. When we get on high pinnacles; we become afraid. Then, fear turns into panic, and all our optimism, as well as reason, is lost. Down we come...We must learn to control our optimism."—Wm. Rose.

We can control our justified optimism by being very sensible in present planning, in our choices and in our actions. Some folk very glibly say, "Everything works out for the best." Reality gives no basis for this conclusion, but many things do work out for the best.

Controlled optimism can be made part of a well-balanced life style which correctly joins reality and possibility.

A career-high 23 points by center Cathy Bartels was not enough as the Hereford High School Girls varsity basketball team lost its first game of 1984, 54-48 to the Tascosa Rebels here Tuesday night.

The only other HHS varsity player, besides Bartels, to reach double figures was Kristen Walterscheid with 10 points.

Mavericks down Houston

guard Rolando Blackman to spring loose for 32 points.

"They took over the boards and took over the game," said Houston coach Bill Fitch.

Dallas held a 52-48 halftime edge, but Blackman hit 14 third-quarter points as the 17-14 Mavericks doubled their lead to 86-78.

Houston, 12-20, could get no closer than five points until Terry Teagle's three-point goal with 15 seconds remaining made it 117-114.

Dallas enjoyed a 50-32 rebounding advantage. The 6-6 Aguirre was able to "post up" the Rockets for many of his 37 points.

For first district victory

Herd upends Rebels

By STAN GODEK Sports Editor

The Hereford High School varsity basketball team displayed one of its best efforts this season by beating the Amarillo-Tascosa Rebels Tuesday night 54-48.

The victory was the first District 3-5A win for the Whitefaces and increased their overall record to 5-9.

Hereford guard Jeff Streun came out firing as he scored all 12 of the Whitefaces first quarter points and Tascosa scored only four in the first period.

Streun led all scorers with 23 points. Mike Scott added 11 for the Whitefaces, including six clutch free throws in the final minutes of the game.

After outscoring the Rebels 12-4 in the first period, Hereford was outscored 17-16 in the second quarter but took a 28-21 lead into halftime.

The Herd had a poor third quarter, making only two baskets while the Rebels kept fighting back. A driving layup by Tascosa's DeWayne Smith near the end of the quarter tied the game at 32-32.

The turning point of the game may have been when Streun was fouled by Tascosa's Mike Gutz in the middle of the final period. Gutz did not like the call and when he complained, the referee slapped him with a technical foul. Streun stepped to the line and sank three free throws to put the Whitefaces up by four.

Scott hit two free throws in the final seconds to ice the victory. Hereford sank 14 of 17 free-throws in the final quarter.

"This was a big win for our first district win," HHS coach Bobby Decker said. "Jeff (Streun) did a super job handling the ball; he never quits."

Hereford's junior varsity also won, beating the Rebels' JV squad 64-61 in double overtime. Rodney Torres scored the winning basket after a steal with 11 seconds remaining in the second OT. Torres led all scorers with 21 points. The varsity and JV squads' next game will be Friday in Lubbock against district-leading Monterey.

Aguirre paces win

guard Rolando Blackman to spring loose for 32 points.

"They took over the boards and took over the game," said Houston coach Bill Fitch.

Houston, 12-20, could get no closer than five points until Terry Teagle's three-point goal with 15 seconds remaining made it 117-114.

Dallas enjoyed a 50-32 rebounding advantage. The 6-6 Aguirre was able to "post up" the Rockets for many of his 37 points.

Hugh Campbell to pilot Oilers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Hugh Campbell admits his new job as head coach of the Houston Oilers, who have won only three games in two seasons, is scary like jumping out of a parachute for the first time. He hopes the landing will be soft.

"It is the challenge and a bit of the unknown but it is a challenge I look forward to accepting," Campbell said Tuesday after agreeing to become the 12th Oiler coach in the franchise's 25-year history. "We are all nuts to be in coaching in the first place. We are all looking for a challenge."

Campbell, 42, who directed the Edmonton Eskimos to five Canadian Football League championships, has definitely found a challenge.

The Oilers suffered through a disastrous 2-14 season in 1983 that included the resignations of two head coaches, Ed Biles and Chuck Studley, to tie Tampa Bay for the worst record in the National Football League.

Houston Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog made the announcement in a statement Tuesday and then departed for San Francisco without further comment.

"I am very confident that this important step will be very instrumental in returning the Houston Oilers to a contending position in the NFL," Herzog said in the statement.

Campbell, 42, spent last season with the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League. Prior to that, he led the Edmonton Eskimos of the CFL to five straight Grey Cup titles.

"I think it's a great opportunity, the players have shown they want to be successful," Campbell said in a telephone interview with Mark Berman of Houston Radio Station KIKK. "They are well coached, so it's not like I'm coming to a team that is as disastrous as you might expect from the record."

Campbell said he planned to talk with disgruntled Oiler running back Earl Campbell, who has asked to be traded.

"I'll sit down and talk to Campbell and I want to talk with all the players to get their ideas and tell them mine," Campbell said.

Campbell said he also would like to be reunited with free agent quarterback Warren Moon, who earned most valuable player honors in the CFL last season.

"I think that would be a good step," Campbell said. "If we could sign him, it was saving a draft choice and we could bolster some other area of the team."

Attorney Leigh Steinberg, who represents both Hugh Campbell and Moon, said Moon is not automatically signed with the Oilers just because his former coach is coming here.

"Their fates are not inextricably intertwined," Steinberg said. "They both have decisions to make. "But in terms of their ability to sign Warren, it was a great move for the Oilers."

Herzog said in his statement that Campbell was one of several applicants for the job but was always the leading candidate.

"His impeccable coaching record establishes him as one of the most productive coaches ever and his dynamic personality will be a tremendous plus for the organization," Herzog said.

Campbell succeeds Chuck Studley, who took over on an interim basis Oct. 10. Biles quit after an 0-6 start and Studley went 2-4, winning games against Detroit and Cleveland, but announced his departure a day after the season ended when it appeared he would not be hired on a permanent basis.

Studley last week was hired as defensive coordinator of the Miami Dolphins.

Campbell is viewed as an offensive-minded coach whose six-year mark at Edmonton, 81-22-5 for a .773 percentage, exceeded the .647 mark achieved by Bud Grant, now coach of the NFL's Minnesota Vikings. Grant set the standard for the CFL in a ten-year coaching tenure at Winnipeg in the 1960s.

The Oilers, then under coach Bum Phillips, were in contention for the American Football Conference title in 1978, 1979 and 1980. They bowed to Pittsburgh in the AFC championship games in 1978 and 1979 and lost a wild-card playoff game in 1980 to Oakland.

Campbell must hire a new staff with the exception of offensive line coach Bill Walsh, who will be retained, according to Herzog.

Walsh tutored a young but talented offensive line that shows much promise for the future.

Hebert took quick money in USFL, now wants more

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Hebert took the quick money and ran. He says he's not sorry he did. But now he wants more.

A year ago, Hebert was quarterback emeritus of Northwestern Louisiana State and up for grabs. But before the National Football League had a chance to throw its big bucks at him, he signed with the United States Football League's Michigan Panthers — for a lot less money, Gil Brandt believes.

Brandt is the master builder of the Dallas Cowboys, one of the NFL's most successful teams — the past month notwithstanding. He says the Cowboys' vaunted computer had Hebert ranked among the nation's top half-dozen college quarterbacks.

"We had a grade on him that said he would've made it in the NFL," said Brandt, the Cowboys' vice president in charge of personnel development. "He could've been drafted anywhere from the middle of the second round to the middle of the fourth."

But Hebert didn't wait for the NFL's April 26 draft, when six teams picked quarterbacks in the first round, some of them rated lower than Hebert. Three weeks after Michigan drafted him in the third round, behind safety David Greenwood from Wisconsin and center Wayne Radloff from Georgia, Hebert signed a five-year contract with the Panthers.

"I couldn't afford to be a gambler," he said. "Teresa and I had a little girl — Ryan was only 7 months old at the time — and I was broke. I couldn't afford to wait."

"I'm not really sorry," Hebert added. "Still, there is the matter of money."

Ken O'Brien of the NFL's New York Jets, generally rated below Hebert, was one of those six first-rounders. He signed for an estimated $600,000.

Hebert's rookie salary, when he was the USFL's passing champion, was $70,000. He also received a $10,000 signing bonus. And when everything else is added up (incentive clauses and postseason money — he quarterbacked the Panthers to the USFL championship), Hebert said his total paycheck in 1983 came to $209,000.

The NFL chose to keep its college draft in the spring and not compete head-to-head with the USFL, whose two-day draft began today.

Hebert has not closed his eyes to the prospect of bigger paychecks.

"My agent, Greg Campbell, and I feel that based on what I've contributed, it's only right that we attempt to renegotiate my contract," Hebert said. "I've got to look out for myself. Football is a short-term career. I have to get the best of it when I can."

"We're trying to renegotiate with the Panthers, but Vince Lombardi (their president and general manager) told me he's not going to," said Campbell, who also represents more than a dozen other Michigan players.

Roanhaus is honored

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Eric Roanhaus, whose Clovis, N.M., team achieved a record of 10-1-2 and won the New Mexico state football championship, has been named outstanding high school coach of the year by the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame.

Clovis' 50-13 victory over Roswell in the title game gave the Wildcats the championship for the third straight year in the state's big city classification.

The Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame annually recognizes the top coach and player in six different sports. Eligible are players and coaches in the Texas Panhandle, Eastern New Mexico, western Oklahoma and the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Accent on Agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON, County Extension Agent

This past year will be remembered for many things in the coming years. We have had record cold, the earliest freeze ever recorded and an excellent wheat crop. In a few years we will all be able to tell our children and grandchildren about the bad times in 1983. For some reason we tend to forget the good.

One thing about the end of a year, you can always look forward to the coming year with renewed enthusiasm and think only about the good things to come.

This year, 1984, starts off at a fast pace with revisions in the farm program, cattle prices moving up and down the scale, grain prices moving up and down the scale, things costing too much, interest to high and...wait! This sounds just like those things we all said about 1983 and it has come and gone and we have survived in spite of it all.

Each year provides its good and bads, its challenges and conquests and its ups and downs.

Nineteen eighty-four will be a good year, if we make it so. Farmers and ranchers will continue to farm and ranch because they are a hearty group that will not quit. Agribusinesses will continue to serve this group as long as there is a need for their services.

At the end of 1984, we will look back and remember the bad things that happened. Remember, for some reason we always forget the good. Perhaps as 1983 ends, reflect back and remember the many good things that have come our way.

From all of us in the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, we would like to wish you a happy and prosperous new year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge blanket of deep-winter cold that has covered much of the nation for weeks is bound to have an effect on livestock supplies and market prices this winter and perhaps well into 1984, say Agriculture Department economists.

J. Dawson Ahalt, deputy assistant secretary for economics, said he had no fresh estimates because the extent of losses to livestock producers isn't known at this time.

However, Ahalt told a reporter last week, the severe cold and snow affects production in several ways. Marketing operations can be hampered, meaning less-than-normal meat in the pipeline at one time and above-normal at others. That can result in price variations that otherwise might not occur, or at least not in the extreme.

Also, Ahalt pointed out, the early arrival of bitter cold weather means that animals require more feed simply to maintain body warmth. That means a reduction in growth efficiency — and reduced profits for producers.

Hog production, in particular, can suffer from prolonged cold weather by death losses, smaller litters and reduced conception rates, he said.

Although they have trimmed production, hog producers apparently face some financial problems in the first half of 1984, at least, according to current USDA projections.

The department's Economic Research Service forecasts that market prices of slaughter hogs in 1984 will average $45 to $51 per hundredweight at the major markets, down from an estimated $47 or $48 in 1983. And the 1983 price average tumbled 15 percent from an average of $55.44 per hundredweight in 1982.

In the first half of 1984, the agency said in a recent supply-and-demand analysis, hog prices may be $41 to $48 per 100 pounds in the January-March quarter and $43 to $47 in April-June.

According to agency projections for Corn Belt hog feeding operation, those prices would still be at about the break-even level for producers.

The report said that if a 40-pound feeder pig was bought at an average price of $22.27 in October, the producer would have to get $46.39 per 100 pounds in February when the animal weighed 220 pounds at slaughter.

Farmers expected to use more fertilizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an 11 percent to 17 percent increase in crop acreage this year, farmers are expected to use significantly more fertilizer, pesticides and other agricultural "inputs" than in 1983, says the

farm program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials say dairy farmers who sign contracts to reduce milk marketings over the next 15 months will be monitored closely to see that they earn cash payments from the government.

Deputy Secretary Richard E. Lyng described the program on Tuesday as a "complex, difficult-to-administer" package that for the first time pays dairy farmers not to produce — a basic feature of federal crop controls for more than half a century.

Lyng told a meeting of dairy industry and government officials that the department and the administration are committed "to do everything we possibly can to make this program work" as Congress intended.

"The regulations are tough, the penalties are severe, the exceptions are few," Lyng said.

Agriculture Department. Last year's crop acreage was reduced by government programs, including the payment-in-kind program, and by drought during the growing season.

Except for wheat, no PIK program will be in effect for 1984 crops.

A new outlook report by the department's Economic Research Service says that the 1984 corn acreage may be up 37 percent to 43 percent from last year. Corn accounts for 40 percent or more of the total fertilizer and pesticides used by farmers.

Fertilizer prices paid by farmers in October were down about 5 percent from a year earlier, the report said. But by spring those are expected to be up, probably averaging around 10 percent higher than a year earlier for nitrogen and 5 percent more for phosphate. Little change is expected for potash.

Pesticide use dropped 14 percent last year but is expected to regain that loss in 1984, the report said. Prices are expected to be relatively stable, as they have the past year.

Ann Landers Reckless drivers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school senior who is very concerned about the way kids my age drive. Some of these crazy drivers are my pals and I worry about them. The following story was part of our reading assignment in a criminal justice class. Please print it, Ann. It could save some lives.—Newsday Reader in Long Island

HEAVEN CAN WAIT

It takes seven-tenths of a second to kill a person in an automobile crash. Studies at Yale and Cornell universities provided a dramatic split-second chronology of what happens when a car rams into a tree at 55 m.p.h.

At one-tenth of a second, front bumper and grillwork collapse.

At two-tenths of a second the hood crumbles, rises, smashes into the windshield and grillwork disintegrates.

At three-tenths of a second the driver is sprung upright from his seat, his broken knees pressed against the dashboard, the steering wheel bends under his grip.

At four-tenths of a second the front of his car is destroyed and dead still, but the rear end is still plunging forward at 55 m.p.h. The half-ton motor crumples into the tree.

At five-tenths of a second the driver's fear-frozen hands bend the steering column into an almost vertical position and he is impaled on the steering wheel shaft. Jagged steel punctures his lungs and arteries.

At six-tenths of a second the impact rips the shoes of his feet. The chassis bends in the middle and the driver's head is slammed into the windshield. The car's rear begins its downward fall as its spinning wheels churn into the ground.

At seventh-tenths of a second the entire body of the car is twisted grotesquely out of shape. In one final agonizing convulsion, the front seat rams forward, pinning the driver against the steering shaft. Blood spurts from his mouth. Shock has frozen his heart.

He is now dead. Grisly to contemplate, and all so unnecessary. The difference between death and arriving at your destination safely is simply a matter of thinking about the consequences. Recklessness is foolish. Drive carefully and live.

DEAR LONG ISLAND TEENAGER:

Thank you for those figures and facts.

Teenagers aren't the only reckless ones on the road. I urge everyone who sits in the driver's seat to imagine that he or she is the person described in today's column.

Doubts about microwave safety often due to misunderstanding

COLLEGE STATION — Although the number of microwave ovens in use is at an all time high, many consumers still question their safety.

"Yet the microwave oven is the only product to show zero incidence of injury under the federal government's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System," says Bonnie Piernot, family resource management specialist. Piernot is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Consumer doubt about microwave safety is most often due to misunderstanding about the nature of microwave radiation versus ionizing radiation or x-rays, explains Piernot.

Microwaves are a non-ionizing form of energy located between radio waves and infra-red light in the electromagnetic energy spectrum. We are constantly exposed to low levels of these types of energy without harm.

The body does not store microwaves as it does ionizing radiation. So microwaves do not cause cumulative damage to the tissue.

Overexposure to high intensity microwave energy can be hazardous. But the Food and Drug Administration requires manufacturers to meet safety standards for the amount of microwaves that can leak from an oven.

A microwave oven should not be used on a two-wire circuit.

Diagnosing lupus can be difficult

A doctor's diagnosis often seems easy. The physician takes a look at the symptoms and tells you what the problem is. Treatment follows.

But for some diseases — like lupus erythematosus — the diagnosis can be as difficult as the treatment, said the Texas Medical Association.

Lupus is a chronic inflammatory disease of the body's connective tissue and of the brain, heart, muscles and skin. In short, it can affect virtually any part of the body.

Women, especially those in their 30s, are more likely to develop it than men. Children and older adults also can contract it.

The problem is that lupus can be mistaken for other disorders and can require extensive testing to diagnose. It may appear to be rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever, epilepsy or psychoses. The cause of lupus is unknown.

About 500,000 people in the United States have the disease. Between 4,000 and 6,000 new cases are diagnosed each year.

The two basic types are discoid and systemic. Discoid lupus erythematosus is less severe, involves only the skin, and may appear as a butterfly-shaped rash on the face, neck or upper chest. Red, raised, scaly areas often appear on the skin.

Systemic lupus erythematosus involves the body's internal organs. Symptoms vary but can include tiredness, weakness, a rash (especially after exposure to the sun), pain in the chest or joints, and chills.

Death from lupus is rare. The disease often will disappear for a long period, sometimes years, before recurring. This is particularly true with systemic lupus.

Treatment includes a wide variety of drugs. Aspirin may be sufficient for a mild case, but steroids or cortisone drugs also are used. Another group of drugs — immunosuppressives — also can be effective.

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Reports

AUSTIN — Texas has now closed its ledgers on a two-year state budget that managed to hold up under attack from all sides. While other states were coping with budget shortfalls, Texas survived.

Budgeting was not without serious problems. When the Legislature convened in Austin last January to write the 1984-85 budget, we had to strip the state's financing to the bare bones.

There were four major reasons the Legislature was forced to cut the budget three times before arriving at a $31 billion multi-year expenditure.

The national recession, the fall in oil prices, adverse weather conditions in the state and the drop in the value of the Mexican peso combined to bring Texas' explosive growth in the 1970's to a sudden standstill.

During the fiscal year 1983, from September 1982 to August 31, 1983, tax collections were down because of drops in oil production and the state sales tax.

Because of the recession, 1983 total revenue increased by only one percent to $14.6 billion. Increases in federal funding helped to make up some of the decrease in tax collections.

The same factors that caused revenue collections to decline, caused state expenditures to increase. The economic downturn put many people out of work and increased the need for welfare and unemployment payments.

While we were doing poorly, most of the other states were doing even worse. Because other states were in dire straits many of their residents left for the greener pastures of Texas to find employment. That put further stress on our systems for welfare spending, unemployment compensation, prisons and education.

The net effect of the slowdown in revenue growth and of the increase in state spending was to leave the state with an ending cash balance of $1 billion — $300 million less than in 1982. This balance is the state's general revenue fund from which most of the state's spending occurs. We were one of only five states to have a surplus at the end of the fiscal year. We are still one of the strongest of the economies and with continued financial management and a Legislature dedicated to the economic health of Texas, we will continue to prosper even in difficult times.

Defendant recalls slashing coworker

HOUSTON (AP) — A teenager told detectives he stabbed a former coworker "something like 10 times," then surveyed the carnage in a restroom where two of his friends had slashed three other young men to death.

Richard James Wilkerson's statement to police can be used as evidence in his capital murder trial, state District Judge I.D. McMaster ruled Tuesday.

Wilkerson, 19, is accused in the July 1 slayings of four men at an arcade and miniature car race track. He is on trial in connection with the death of 18-year-old Anil Varughese of Missouri City. Testimony was expected to begin today.

Defense attorney Robert Scardino Jr. argued that Wilkerson's statement was taken without proper warnings, but prosecutor Mary Milloy supplied witnesses who said Wilkerson had been read his legal warnings repeatedly.

McMaster ordered the jurors sequestered during the trial, expected to last a week, to prevent their reading or listening to news accounts of it. The jury was selected before Christmas but the trial was delayed until now.

Wilkerson had been fired from the Malibu Grand Prix about two weeks before the killings, officials said.

Wilkerson told detectives he had pulled a knife on Varughese and ordered him to open the safe, when two other men indicted in the killings — Kenneth Ray Ransom, 19, and James Edward Randall, 16 — knocked on the office door to say they were through killing the other three victims.

"Then I started stabbing him (Varughese)," Wilkerson's statement says. "He started falling down and (I) kept stabbing him. I stabbed him something like 10 times."

The autopsy report said Varughese was stabbed 42 times. Wilkerson said he knife blade broke off in his victim's body.

Wilkerson said he didn't believe what his friends said, "so I went to the men's bathroom to look. I opened the door and saw a lot of blood. I saw the three bodies on the floor. I could see arms and legs hanging out of different places and a lot of blood."

Wilkerson is the first defendant to be tried in the deaths of Varughese; Arnold Pequeno, 18, and his brother, Joerene, 19; and Roddy Dane Harris, 22.

Wilkerson said the group went to the race track after it was closed, but got in because the workers recognized him. He said he used the pretext of picking up his final paycheck.

He said he had to dispose of some clothes because they were so gory.

"We were by some weeds and I took my little pocketknife and cut the legs off of my blue jeans," he said. "They had blood all over them, so I cut them off."

Wilkerson said each of the three got $600 from the robbery. He said he spent his money to pay debts and buy clothes.

Attorney says

Lucas enjoying notoriety

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas is reveling in the notoriety he has received since he began talking about the scores of women he has killed across the nation in the past several years, his attorney says.

"He seems to be happy. He is bouncy these days," said Don Higginbotham, one of his two Williamson County attorneys.

"He is getting all this attention, all the coffee and cigarettes he wants. He's getting dental care and visitors on a daily basis. The law enforcement people are having to make appointments to see him. His cell looks like a warehouse stacked full of cigarettes," Higginbotham added.

Higginbotham said Lucas appears to be enjoying the treatment he is receiving in Williamson County, where the Department of Public Safety has set up an office to coordinate Lucas' interviews and collate information on his movements since he was released from a Michigan prison in 1974.

Lucas, 47, already has been convicted in two Texas killings and has claimed responsibility for more than 150 murders in a nationwide spree of terror.

He is being held in the Williamson County Jail in Georgetown, awaiting trial in the slaying of another unidentified young woman hitchhiker.

Officials said Monday that as many as 200 law enforcement officers from around the country will converge later this month in Monroe, La., to see how many unsolved killings can be linked to him and another drifter, Otis Elwood Toole, who frequently traveled with Lucas.

Many of Lucas' statements about killings he claims to have committed were taken on videotape, and all of them were added to the "flow chart" that Texas officers and others are putting together to document his deadly travels.

Lucas was convicted of killing his mother 23 years ago in Michigan. He now faces charges in eight slayings in Texas.

Lucas was flown to Florida last week to meet with Toole, who is charged with capital murder in three Texas slayings. Toole is serving a 20-year sentence for arson and awaiting trial in Jacksonville, Fla., on an arson-murder charge.
