Diplomats told to depart; Cubans build prison camp

Press Writer

POINT SALINES, Grenada (AP) - Cuban, Soviet and Libyan diplomats were ordered to leave Grenada by today, but an official in Havana says Cuba's delegation will stay put until Cubans captured or wounded during the U.S.-led invasion are evacuated.

About 70 of the 600 Cuban prisoners worked Tuesday on construction of a detention camp to house them until they are sent back to Cuba.

By nightfall, after 36 hours' work, prisoners moved into the complex of 30 tents and a concrete building at Point Salines.

The complex is near an airport many of the Cubans were helping build before the United States invaded the Caribbean island to oust a Marxist, pro-Cuban regime

military coup two weeks

Shortly before a nightly curfew began, Capt. Bob Willey, a U.S. Army spokesman, said there had been no reports of any shots fired on Grenada Tuesday. But 17 Grenadian troops were reported to have surrendered to the 292 Marines who took Carriacou, a tiny island dependency of Grenada, and five other Grenadian soldiers were captured in the northern part of Grenada.

Cuba's deputy foreign minister, Ricardo Alarcon, said the expulsion order from Governor General Paul Scoon of Grenada "will only be carried out by force and by U.S. troops."

Scoon, "evidently acting under instructions by the U.S. government, ordered the that seized power in a Cuban diplomatic personnel on Grenada to leave the country in 24 hours," Alarcon said, adding that the message was received before noon

> Libya and the Soviet Union did not publicly comment on the order.

International Red Cross officials said they hoped 35 wounded and 15 ill Cuban prisoners would be airlifted today or Thursday to Barbados, where a Swiss jet waited to take them home.

Two Cubans, one with a spinal injury and the other with a fractured skull, have been admitted to a U.S. hospital in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where 44 American servicemen and one Grenadian have also been treated for injuries in the invasion.

The Cuban prisoners working on their new prison were they've done a super job," said Capt. John Ramey of the Army 82nd Airborne's 307th Engineer Battalion. As they worked on the new encampment, some Cubans smiled and waved at reporters.

Natives of Carriacou, 20 miles north of Grenada, said they had been awaiting the Marines since invasion of the main island began. Residents led the Marines to Grenadian soldiers and to a warehouse containing 17 rifles and other weapons, official U.S. reports

Meantime, the State Department said it was taking "very seriously" intelligence reports implying Cuba might try to retaliate by backing terrorism against U.S. citizens in Latin

"something destructive" in the state organization.

Lowrie is ending his second one-year term as convention president, the maximum allowed. Delegates were expected to elect a new president today. Possible successors include

Dr. Winfred Moore of Amarillo, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who has served on many Baptist boards and commissions, and the Rev. Morris Chapman, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls.

Moore is a mainstream conservative Baptist considered more theologically and politically moderate than Chapman, who has advocated a constitutional amendment to restore prayer to public schools.

In remarks to the opening session of the convention, Lowrie urged Texas Baptists to plow greater spiritual, financial and human support into the convention's institutions, which he said have been criticized too often and praised not often enough.

"Over these four years that you have allowed me to fill a place of leadership in this great denomination, I have sensed something destructive," he said. "Some of our institutional leaders feel like they are under a constant state of siege. They are in danger of developing a defensive mind set toward this convention.

"Some members of this convention have forgotten how to do everything except be a critic," he said.

Lowrie blamed the heads of Texas Baptist institutions for some of the rift.

'Some administrators, because of their loyalty to their institutions, may tend to forget this vital relationship between the institution and the convention," he said, "They may be tempted to label every critic an enemy."

The BGCT owns eight hospitals, four children's dreds of new churches to homes and eight universities in Texas, including Baylor in Waco and Houston Baptist.

HOUSTON (AP) - Between 40 and 50 newly hired pilots will begin training classes next week designed to let Continental Airlines expand its schedule in December, a company spokesman says.

Continental began hiring pilots this week to replace those who are on strike, Bruce Hicks said Tuesday.

"These guys will take one to two weeks of training" before they start flying, said Hicks. "These guys have thousands of hours of flying time on the type of aircraft we

Continental will start additional training classes weekly with an average of 20 new pilots in each class to meet plans "for our continuing expansion starting in December and beyond," said Hicks.

Continental filed Sept. 24 for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. The airline stopped flying for two days and then returned to the air with its domestic routes slashed by two-thirds and the salaries of employees cut as much as 50 percent. It also laid off about two-thirds of its employees. A week later, on Oct. 1, the pilots and flight attendants walked off their jobs, joining the mechanics who already were on strike.

Lubbock studies impact of computer layoffs

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -Consumers looking for bargains scrambled today to snatch up the remaining Texas Instruments home computers on store shelves, as company employees worried about TI's move to eliminate 1,000 jobs at its plant here.

"Everyone in the financial community is concerned whenever a portion of our work force is put on furlough or laid off," said Jim Cummings, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Lubbock.

"Every payroll dollar turns seven times in the community so that definitely will have an impact," he said.

Beginning today, workers fired from the home computer assembly plant have three days of scheduled sessions with the Texas Employment Commission, said TEC office manager Velma Burkham.

The workers will receive interviews in alphabetical order, she said.

The employment official said the job market in this West Texas city of 174,000 was tight before the firings were announced Monday.

"There is not anything available in manufacturing that I know of," Ms. Burkham said. "It's going to be very competitive."

Texas Instruments officials announced on Friday that they were getting out of the home computer business, which they claimed was primarily responsible for a second consecutive quarterly loss of more than $110 million.

The company is uncertain when or if more layoffs could occur, said TI spokesman Norman Neureiter. But the consumer division headquarters would stay in Lubbock, the company said in a statement.

TI's Lubbock plant once operated 24 hours a day, producing the Dallas-based electronics giant's popular 99-4A home computer. An estimated 4,000 people were employed at that time.

Several hundred more employees work in the home computer area at Abilene.

Industry observers predicted an exodus of workers from Lubbock. Realtor Nita Kiesling said the move would have a devastating impact on the local real estate market.

"It's going to become a buyers' market because there will be so many things to choose from," said Ms. Kiesling. "Some of our sellers are getting very competitive in order to enhance their chances of selling in this kind of situation."

But Cummings said he had confidence that TI's consumer electronics division would rebound

"I do have faith in TI and their commitment to Lubbock, except for the home computer business," he said. "They have demonstrated they are an industry leader in all of the other divisions they are in, so I believe we can look forward within a time frame of a year to seeing this facility back up to capacity."

El Paso marine tells of Beirut airport explosion

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -Lorenzo Almanza said when he awoke half-buried in the rubble of a terrorist bomb attack on a U.S. barracks in Beirut, he heard the cries of fellow servicemen trapped in the wreckage and just "wanted someone to get me out of there."

The 21-year-old Navy corpsman was stationed in Lebanon during the Oct. 23 suicide attack on the Marine headquarters at the Beirut airport that took the lives of more than 225 U.S. servicemen. He said he was asleep on the second floor of the four-story barracks when he was awakened about 6 a.m. by a muffled explosion, but went back to sleep.

Almanza said he began digging himself out with the one arm. He guesses it took 15 or 20 minutes of work before he pulled loose and saw his own injuries and the wreckage around him.

"I saw my legs," he said. "Both had compound fractures. They were just dangling there. And I could see I had a big wound on my hip."

He said he found himself "like in a little room." He saw one of the four or five men who had been sleeping in his quarters staggering around. He said the others were partially buried, but thought to be alive.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in response to the letter about the "Tycoon with the Terrible Teeth."

I am a former "dentalphobic" who recently began seeing a dentist after nine years of agonizing about it. I didn't believe people who told me modern dentistry was painless. I was convinced he would pull all my teeth or require caps that I was sure would be just as bad.

Finally I realized I couldn't put it off any longer, so I gulped several tranquilizers and went.

I've just completed my fourth appointment and my teeth are lovely! There was virtually no pain.

Tell your readers they can ask for nitrous oxide to relieve the terror, and can proceed as fast or as slowly as they want. And if they don't like the dentist or what he-she does, they can always switch to another one.

The American Dental Assn. is willing to help people find a dentist who will be sensitive to their anxieties. Things have really changed, and it ain't that bad anymore! -Cutest, New Mouth In Chicago

DEAR CUTIE: According to Dr. William Ayer, assistant director for behavioral research at the American Dental Assn., a genuine phobic may need behavioral therapy, but for the patient who is merely frightened and anxious, there are other avenues.

First, Dr. Ayer said, there must be an honest confession. The dentist needs to know of

Neanderthal

Neanderthal man, who lived as recently as 60,000 years ago, may have been more sophisticated than the brutish creature traditionally pictured. Recent excavations in Iraq indicate he had some knowledge of useful plants. Skeletons from ritual burials had been laid on beds of branches and wildflowers with known medicinal properties.

Residents host visitor from England By LINDA CAUDLE turn presented them with

Lifestyles Editor "It's been so lovely to be with people in their homes, rather than just visiting this country as a tourist," commented Joan Allen of Hartshill, Nuneaton, England, who recently concluded a 10-day visit with Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Langley of 502 Star

"I've sampled all sorts of cooking and have traveled by train and bus so that I could see the countryside," added Mrs. Allen. She said that some of her hosts even indulged her by serving 4 o'clock tea, though she missed that English custom more than once while visiting in the states.

Traveling under the auspices of the American Section of the Friends World Consultative Committee, an organization which arranges travel between Friends groups all over the world, Mrs. Allen combined her lecture tour, speaking to groups about early Quaker history, with sight-seeing and visiting acquaintances.

She arrived in Boston Aug. 9, made stops in New England, traveled through Canada, from Montreal to Victoria, and to Seattle, San Francisco, Denver and Albuquerque before coming to Hereford. She arranged her trip so that she could spend time with the Langleys, whom she became acquainted with through Langley's interest in her hometown, Hartshill in Warwickshire, near Stratford-Upon-Avon, Coventry and Warwick Castle, all famous English historical sites.

Langley, who was stationed at Hartshill with the U.S. Army during World War II, began corresponding with two couples there, who are now deceased, and then continued his correspondence with a number of local residents who formed the Langley Correspondence Club, an informal group which meets to discuss the latest news from Texas.

During a recent visit to England, the Langleys hosted members of the club at a din-mememtos from their community, including a pen and ink sketch of Oldbury Hall, a late 18th century mansion where Langley and fellow servicemen were headquartered in Hartshill.

According to Langley, they were treated like celebrities and two local newspapers covered the return of the Texas G.I. to his "wartime haunts." The Langleys, who had visited in Europe once before in recent years, spent three weeks in Europe during September, also visiting war memorials and a museum erected for U.S. veterans in Bastogne, Belgium, where they met a family he had befriended. They viewed the National Cemetery in Luxemburg and were given a tour in Germany by Frank Hergert, who was an exchange student in Hereford with the Elmer Kimball family.

Mrs. Allen, a writer and social historian, published a history of Hartshill and Oldbury Hall in 1977 for the Queen's Silver Jubilee Year. The work, entitled "Heardred's Hill," is now in its third edition. She did all of the research and writing, as well as many of the diagrams, maps and illustrations. Mrs. Allen has also published articles for various publica-

Her research for the Society of Friends stemmed from her interest in history. While she was researching her particular area, she became very well acquainted with the background of George Fox, a Quaker founder who was born three miles from her home.

Also a naturalist, Mrs. Allen enjoys traveling and photographing the sites she visits, and often shares her experiences and her slides with clubs and organizations, especially the elderly, handicapped or others who cannot get out.

Every year she goes to Scotland with university groups, which she finds both interesting and educational, and two years ago she visited Australia, where she especially enjoyed the wildflowers.

This is the first time she has had a chance to travel in the United States. She was here once about 20 years ago on family business and only stayed a few days. She thoroughly enjoyed seeing the sites she had viewed only in pictures, such as the Rocky Mountains, and was surprised by the similarities between the highlands of Canada and Scotland. A student of geology and paleontology, Mrs. Allen enjoyed visiting Palo Duro Canyon and examining the collection of Indian artifacts from Alibates and other sources which Dennis Lomas has acquired.

"I found the extensive agriculture around Hereford most impressive," she stated. "The farming here is on a tremendous scale compared to home." Mrs. Allen, a widow,

"retiring has been an absolute pleasure."

While she was a house guest of the Langleys, they tried to give her an opportunity to experience as many areas of "typical American lifestyle" as possible. Among the social courtesies extended to her were parties and dinners hosted by Mmes. James W. Witherspoon, Robert Josserand, Jack Renfro, A.T. Mims, Dudley Bayne, Richard Ottesen, Cesar, and Elmer Kimball. Mrs. Allen was given a tour of the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum when Bay View Study Club met at the facility, she was a guest at Mrs. Langley's afternoon sewing club, and she spoke about the Quaker faith to the come back in the second half, but inconsistency on offense stopped the Whitefaces. "Amarillo didn't do anything to surprise us, we just made mistakes on basic plays."

Taylor noted that Hereford has to win over Coronado this week to have a chance at the coin flip for a playoff position. "Even if we didn't win the coin flip, we need this win to finish the season and carry over into next year's program," emphasized Taylor.

He said Coronado was a big and talented team. "There is no doubt we're going to have a game Friday night," said the Herd mentor. He said the Mustangs have a fine running back in Chris Moore, and their defensive front is big and strong.

NEW YORK (AP) - The referees' union said the National Basketball Association's latest offer proved the league does "not care to negotiate." The NBA called the union's counterproposal "outrageous."

With that, the latest attempt to end an NBA lockout of referees failed on Tuesday with no word on when further negotiations might take

NBA negotiators, joined for the first time by Commissioner Larry O'Brien, and representatives of the referees' union met for four hours at a New York hotel Tuesday afternoon.

The league's referees have been locked out since the start of the exhibition season while non-union officials have worked games. Tuesday's meeting was the first since last Thursday, the day before the regular season began.

Union counsel Richie

NBA general counsel Russ Granik said the league had offered increases in fees for officiating playoffs, raising its offer by 50 percent to a total of about $216,000. "It was greeted by the union with an outrageous demand for playoff fees, and really there was no other movement on any other substantive issue," Granik said.

Meanwhile, referees continued selective picketing at NBA games.

Sampson had 21 points and 18 rebounds in his second National Basketball Association game for Houston Tuesday night, but Butch Carter scored 42 points for Indiana and a crowd of 14,629 at Market Square Arena provided a emotional lift for the Pacers as they beat the Rockets 116-108.

Kindergarten involved in career awareness program

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was submitted by Tommy Rosson, HISD teacher, in conjunction with and as part of a course he is taking in community education.)

The world of children is full of questions: "What is this?" "How does it work?"

All of us can remember from our early years those important experiences that left tremendous impressions upon our lives. Many of those impressions came from having those simple questions answered by our parents or teachers.

The kindergarten children at Tierra Blanca are involved in a career awareness program that gives the children first-hand knowledge of the divergent types of jobs performed by people of our community. These "community Some of the comments helpers" acquaint the made about the policeman in-

Other activities undertaken by the kindergarten group include trips into the community business places to get a firsthand look at what is going on. Places frequently visited include a grocery store, tortilla factory, the library, shopping mall, and the Dairy Queen.

After the field trips and visits are completed, the students construct a booklet representing their activities. The booklet will include drawings and stories of the childrens' impressions of the sundry occupations.

Barbara Karins, counselor on alcohol and drug abuse for the Hereford Family Services Center, was guest speaker recently for the morning office duplication practices class at Hereford High School. Also attending were ICT and DE students.

Ms. Karins said that alcohol has become the number one killer in the United States, more than cancer and heart disease. She warned students that "huffers," those that sniff paint and gas, will have brain damage within three years. Brain cells become so damaged that those persons cannot function in the com-

Amputation no longer a necessary treatment<sup>2</sup>

At age 13, Randy Warden is filled with energy, tapping his feet, squirming in his chair and stretching his arms as he talks. The wiry 77-pound native of Santa Fe, N.M., loves swimming, skateboarding, snow skiing and jumping his bike on dirt tracts.

Randy hasn't had much of a chance to enjoy these sports lately, though. For a year and a half, he's had osteosarcoma, a type of bone cancer, in his left leg.

Just a decade ago, that diagnosis would have meant almost certain amputation of the diseases limb. But Randy, who is a patient at The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, is fortunate to be among the first group o osteosarcoma patients to avoid amputation. he looks forward to fully participating in his favorite sports again one day.

"Until recently, amputation was considered a necessary treatment for osteosarcoma because lesser surgery usually resulted in the return of the cancer to its original site. But now some patients like Randy are being treated successfully with chemotherapy (anti-cancer drugs) alone or with limbsparing surgery," Dr. Norman Jaffe, a profesor of pediatrics at UT M.D. Anderson Hospital, says. This method of treatment has proven effective for 50 percent of the osteosarcoma patients, he says. The remaining 50 percent still require amputation due to the size or location of their tumors, involvement with major blood vessels or nerves, the presence of infection, or other factors.

A cancer which strikes mainly teenagers, osteosar-

"Ten years ago, despite amputation, osteosarcoma was kiling 80 percent of its victims due tometastasis to the lungs; but today, instead

Much of the credit for improved survival rates is due to the late Dr. Wataru W. Sutow of UT M.D. Anderson Hospital. Dr. Sutow challenged the traditional line of thought in the 1960s that osteosarcoma was resistant to treatment with drugs. Through a number of scientific investigations spanning the 1960s and 1970s, he providsafely. If necessary, the surgeon may replace diseases bone with a metal prosthesis," Dr. Jaffe says.

In Randy's case, limbsparing surgery has not been performed. Chemotherapy alone has been used with exciting preliminary results. However, Dr. Jaffe cautions that a longer period of observation is required to determine if the results will be permanently desirable.

The most common of the is often misdiagnosed as "growing pains" at its onset. "It felt like a headache in my leg that got worse and worse until, finally, I was waking up at night crying because it hurt so much," Randy

An X-ray convinced an orthopedic surgeon to refer Randy to UT M.D. Anderson Hospital, where, in April, of 1982, his disease was confirmed. In the one month since the pains had begun, a lump the size of a lemon had grown below the knee on his left leg. The lump was caused by swelling from the expanding

After seven rounds of cisplatinum treatments, where a line was inserted into Randy's artery to drip the drug cis-platinum directly on his tumor, the tumor shrank dramatically.

When a second round of treatments began, the drugs methotrexate Adriamycin were added to the cis-platinum regimen. There were setbacks along the way - like coming down with a throat infection after the first day of seventh grade. The infection put Randy in isolation in his local hospital for three days and sent him back to homebound teachers. But there were also high points - like being allowed to go snow skiing and experiencing a few moments of ectasy before a broken leg ended the

Randy has gone through the ups and downs of his disease by focusing on the end of his treatments. And his next biopsy will determine exactly when that will be. In the meantime, he's back in school and making a list of activities he'll soon enjoy.

Looking back, he says, "I knew the cancer would make me sick. But I never thought I'd be coming to Houston for treatment for a year a half. I've got a lot to catch up on."

"If the chemotherapy continues to be effective, he'll have two legs to help him," his father, Greg Warden,

Saul, threatening with every breath and eager to destroy every Christian, went to the High Priest in Jerusalem. He requested a letter addressed to synagogues in Damascus, requiring their cooperation in the persecution of any believers he found there, both men and women, so that he could bring them in chains to Jerusalem.

As he was nearing Damascus on this mission, suddenly a brilliant light from heaven spotted down upon him! He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul! Saul! Why are you persecuting Me?"

"Who is speaking, sir?" Saul asked. And the voice replied, "I am Jesus, the one you are persecuting! Now get up and go into the city and await My further instructions."

The men with Saul stood speechless with surprise, for they heard the sound of someone's voice but saw no one!

As Saul picked himself up off the ground, he found that he was blind. He had to be led into Damascus and was there three days, blind, going without food and water all that time.

Texas names Block in suit

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas has named U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block as defendant in a federal court suit aimed at getting emergency feed supplies for drought-stricken livestock in 27 West Texas counties.

Attorney General Jim Mattox and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told a Capitol news conference the suit was filed Tuesday morning in a Midland federal court.

Mattox said he hoped U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton would hold a hearing on the requested court order before the end of the month.

"Ranchers throughout West Texas will watch their cattle die unless some relief is given them," Mattox said. "This immoveable attitude of Mr. Block's makes absolutely no sense at all. He has the authority right now to release this grain - grain that is being hoarded by the federal government for no good reason - but he claims he wants to wait for the passage of federal legislation."

The suit claims between 15 million to 17 million bushels of federally-owned grain is deteriorating while in storage at several facilities in Texas. "At the same time the grain is in storage - at a cost to taxpayers of approximately $5 million a year — Texas ranchers and farmers are suffering from the worst drought in decades," the petition said.

"Frankly, it's ridiculous that the situation should reach the point where, to fulfill our obligations to serve the people of Texas, we have to file a lawsuit to make the federal government fulfill its obligation to serve the people," Hightower said. We've now been working on getting some drought relief for our farmers and ranchers

- nearly 41/2 months." Mattox told the news conference he has asked the Midland court "to rule on whether Mr. Block's attitude is reasonable. I submit to you that the court will find the federal government has en-since June 21. That's 134 days that is totally indefensible."

Mattox said the state seeks a court order requiring the federal government to implement the Emergency Feed Program and the federal Livestock Feed Program and to make the benefits available to eligible farmers

Texas counties.

"I'm fed up with this charade," Hightower told the news conference. "Not only does Secretary Block have the authority to release the corn, he has it under seven separate provisions of federal law. It's a sad day when turn to lawyers for help rather than to their secretary of agriculture, but that's what we've been forced to do in this case."

Arkansas was admitted to the United States in 1836 as the 25th state.

Block contends

Drought corn aid too little

By T. LEE HUGHES Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) The government has in storage more than 80 million bushels of low-grade feed corn which a Texas senator wants used for drought relief, but a nationwide aid program would require up to 10 times that, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says.

Block said Tuesday that the goverment-owned corn of the lowest three grades - 4, 5, and sample - is stored in 27 states, with the majority of it in Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Block provided the figures in a letter to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is sponsoring legislation that would require agriculture officials to make corn of those grades available at reduced prices to drought-smitten farmers and ranchers around the country.

At a news conference, Bentsen urged Block to begin making such grain available instead of waiting for Congress to force him to do it through the legislation, which has passed the Senate but is still pending in the House.

"Up to now you've seen the Department of Agriculture resist and put blocks in the way of every approach," Bentsen said. "And I think they're just terribly wrong."

When the measure was approved by the Senate last month, John Ochs, Block's press secretary, said there were only about 25 million bushels of such corn stored and that all of it was in Texas.

Elsewhere, Ochs said, the lower grade corn had been blended with other corn to produce a higher grade that would not be required to be sold under the Bentsen

Ochs said that because such grain was available only in Texas, the legislation would benefit only that state.

In his letter to Bentsen, however, Block said that the Commodity Credit Corporation, which finances the storage, "has in inventory in 27 states a little over 80 million bushels of corn that is U.S. No. 4 grade or lower."

But Block, who has consistently refused to release the grain as drought aid, said nationwide program of assistance "would require the distribution of as much as 800 million bushels of grain" and cost between $1 billion and $1.5 billion

Bentsen also said he has asked the Senate Agriculture Committee to investigate reported discrepancies in the quality of government owned corn stored in an elevator in Plainview, Texas.

Bentsen told reporters that since inspections appear to indicate the the stored grain's quality is deteriorating it should be made available as quickly as possible as livestock feed in drought-

Economist predicts

Food prices to rise faster in '84 in the federal milk support

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -Food prices will go up at a faster rate in 1984, partly due to the ripple effect of this year's drought but also because the U.S. economy will be on the rebound, an Agriculture Department economist predicted today.

"While the drought's imon the yearly increase in food prices is relatively small, most of the increase in prices will come out at one time - in the summer and fall of 1984," said Ralph L. Parlett of the department's Economic Research Service.

This year, food prices on the average are expected to rise 2.2 percent, the smallest annual increase since 1967. They went up 4 percent in

Currently, Parlett said in prepared remarks for ference, food prices are expected to rise an additional 4 percent to 7 percent in 1984. 'Expected stronger economic conditions are the reason for most of the increase," Parlett said. "Real disposable income is expected to increase next year by about 3 percent. Although that might sound modest, it is the strongest increase in recent years. Consumers might be willing to buy more food, and could possibly be willing to buy higher-priced foods, particularly meats."

Parlett said this year's drought will account for about 1 to 1.5 percentage points of next year's food price increase.

"The primary effect of the drought thus far has been on livestock feed costs, pushing them higher," Parlett said.
"However, higher feed costs do not directly translate into higher retail meat prices."

Rather, he said, changes in feed costs "prompt livestock for high feed grain prices, the tendency is to reduce inven-"Therefore, the initial effect is lower retail prices change production plans." In this case, when the outlook is because of the temporary increase in meat supplies," Parlett said. "As supplies eventually dwindle, however, retail prices begin to rise. Furthermore, when farmers rebuild breeding herds by holding animals off the market, meat supplies fall even lower, putting further upward pressure on prices."

As many producers trim livestock herds this fall, there is a record supply of meat and moderate retail prices. But because of this liquidation, there will be fewer animals for market in 1984.

'The strongest effect of this production cutback will probably occur about mid-USDA's annual outlook con- year," Parlett said. "Retail meat prices, therefore, are expected to rise sharply in the third quarter and level off somewhat in the fourth quarter."

Per capita food consumption this year is up about 1 percent from 1982 - an average of 1,399 pounds per person against 1,385 last year, Parlett said. That is the estimated retail weight of Total food consumption is expected to rise in 1984 "as real personal disposable in-come increases," Parlett said. But the per capita rate may drop slightly to 1,396 pounds in 1984.

"This seems contradictory, but food supplies will be smaller, primarily the result of the decreased meat production," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he favors an amendment to a House dairy bill that would cut federal milk price supports by as and poultry producers to much as $1.50 per 100 pounds from their current level of $13.10 per hundredweight.

A lower support would discourage dairy farmers from producing too much milk and help ease the load on taxpayers, goes the reasoning. Under present law, the Agriculture Department must buy surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk to prop up the price of milk paid to farmers. That program costs more than $2 billion a year.

The amendment was introduced by Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., and is supported by the National Cattlemen's Association, the American Farm Bureau Federation and others.

But the Senate has approved a bill that includes a "paid diversion" plan to pay dairy farmers $10 per 100 pounds to reduce milk production over 15-month period. It also would authorize cuts in the milk support rate to curb growing surpluses.

The Senate version is supported by the National Milk Producers Federation and a number of dairy state members of Congress.

Block initially supported the so-called dairy compromise bill in the Senate on the condition it would be tied to a vote on freezing crop target prices. That issue, however, was sidetracked. The dairy bill, along with provisions for tobacco, was passed by the Senate on Oct. 7.

In lining up strategy for House action on the dairy bill, Block informed House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., that he would support Conable's amendment calling for a straight cut

But both the Senate bill and the Conable amendment would reduce federal milk supports in the long run, and either one would solve the dairy problem," he said.

Four area farmers attend conference

Strafuss, Clint Homfeld and Nick Yosten, directors from the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District, attended the 42nd annual State Meeting of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation District Directors October 24-26 at McAllen, Texas.

The meeting was held at the McAllen Civic Center.

The purpose of the meeting was to review developments affecting Texas conservation programs. An array of top agriculture leaders and legislative and congressional officials highlighted the meeting. Speakers included State Senators Grant Jones of Abilene, Bill Sarpalius of Canyon, U.S. Congressman Charles Stenholm of Stamford, Tom Benson, president, Federal Land Bank of Texas; Austin; and Billy Griffin, state conservationist, Soil

Carl Kleuskens, Carl Conservation Service, Tem-

There were approximately 1,200 SWCD directors including other conservation leaders attending the meeting. A resolution opposing the location of a nuclear waste repository in the Texas Panhandle was sponsored by the Tierra Blanca SWCD. The resolution sited reasons of possible contamination of the Ogallala Aquifer and the extensive use of prime farmland as reasons for opposition. The resolution was discussed and adopted by the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation District Directors at the meeting in McAllen.

NOTICE BY PUBLICATION STATE OF TEXAS

TO: PATSY GARZA DE LEON and EDDIE DE LEON, Respondents

GREETINGS:

YOU ARE HEREBY COM-MANDED to appear and answer before the Honorable 222nd Judicial District Court, Deaf Smith County, Texas, at the courthouse of said county in Hereford, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the Monday next after the expiration of 20 days from the date of service of this citation, then and there to answer the petition of RAMON JOSEPH DELGADO and GENOVEVA C. DELGADO, Petitioners, filed in said Court on the 28th day of October, 1983, against PATSY GARZA DE LEON and EDDIE DE LEON, Respondents, and said suit being Number DR-83J-186 on the docket of said Court, and entitled "In the Interest of MICHELLE DE LEON, a Child," the nature of which suit is a request to terminate the parent-child relationship and adopt the child. Said child was born the 19th day of March, 1977; place of birth is unknown. The Court has authority in this suit to enter any judgment or decree in the child's interest which will be binding upon you, including, but not necessarily limited to, the termination of the parentchild relationship of a conservator with authority to consent to the child's adoption.

Issued and given under my hand and seal of said Court at Hereford, Texas this 31st day of October, 1983.

Million dollar lawsuit filed

ly of one of three patients who died within minutes of each other after receiving kidney dialysis treatment has filed a $1 million federal lawsuit against the treatment center and the manufacturer of the dialysis equipment.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday on behalf of Jeroline Thompson, alleges that her death was caused by the negligence of the staff at the Dallas Kidney Disease Center. Extracorporeal Medical Specialties, Inc., a Pennsylvania-based company and subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson Inc., was also named as a defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Thompson, 59, was one of three people who suffered nearly simultaneous heart attacks Friday when their blood rose to fatal temperatures while they were connected to dialysis equipment at the treatment center, authorities said.

DALLAS (AP) - The fami- hospitalized but have been discharged.

> Investigators probing the deaths completed an on-site inspection of the equipment and pronounced it safe for continued use, spokeswoman for the center said Tuesday.

Investigators from the Food and Drug Administration, the owner of the clinic and the manufacturer of the equipment completed their examinations Monday night, said a spokesman for the center who asked not to be identified.

The fatal malfunction was apparently caused by two wires that crossed, resulting in overheating of the cleansing saline solution flowing into the patients' bloodstreams, officials said.

Extracorporeal said it was examining 75 of its units in 50 dialysis centers nationwide, but has found no problems.

"The centers are being alerted by the company to this situation and Extracorporeal technicians are visiting each one to inspect equipment and assure it is working properly," said Ed Watson, a company spokesman.

a Brooklyn, N.Y., woman died two weeks ago while undergoing dialysis on an Extracorporeal machine, also because her blood overheated. FDA investigators said the machine at the Brooklyn Kidney Center apparently malfunctioned because of faulty maintenance.

The FDA may have a decision later this week on whether it should take any action against Extracorporeal, said Ted Rotto, chief regional investigator for the FDA in Dallas.

"I guess if it went so far that we could demonstrate negligence, the FDA could take legal action," Rotto said. "But it would be extremely unlikely. The idea of a recall is kind of stupid because these people need these machines to live.

"The firm has done everything possible," said Rotto. "When that happens, we more or less oversee the operation to see that the problem is corrected."

Rotto said investigators agree that "two wires were crossed," causing the malfunction, but disagree on why a temperature alarm system never was activated.

Watson said his company's preliminary investigation indicates two power transformer leads were improperly wired to the machine. However, "the extact cause of the malfunction is still not known," he said.

New fame brought to ham radio operators

Grenada began, Mark Barettella, a medical student on the Caribbean island, went to the anatomy laboratory at St. George's University Medical School, opened a body bag and pulled out a ham radio.

He had hidden his radio equipment in the lab after a military coup toppled the government of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop on Oct. 12.

Although afraid he might be seized by authorities, the 22-year-old Barettella, of Ridgefield, N.J., began broadcasting information about what was happening on the island. He kept at it for two days and was helped by another nearby ham operator, Don Atkinson, a retired salesman from West Hartford, Conn. They provided the world with much of the information about the early stages of the American invasion. They also gave a boost to their fellow short wave radio operators. "For too long we've been accused of creating television interference," said Robert Neukomm, a ham operator in Wyckoff, N.J., who was among operators in the United States relaying information from Grenada to reporters and relatives of Americans living on the island.

"This is the first time we've had any good public relations since Sputnik, when an American ham picked up the signals and alerted the world that the Russians had put something up in space," he said. "We've had other good publicity, but nothing to this magnitude."

Ham operators insist there was nothing unusual about their actions during the Grenada invasion. They point out that in recent years hams have dodged martial law enforcers in Poland, the Argentine military during the eruption of Mount St. Helens in 1980, which led to the deaths of two ham operators.

"There are cases all the time around the world where ham radio has offered the first line of communications out of a devastated area, from an earthquake, hurricane, tornado or other natural or man-made disaster," said Richard Palm, deputy manager of the American Radio Relay League, a non-profit organization representing ham operators.

The league, which is based in Newington, Conn., says there are more than 400,000 licensed ham operators in the Amateur radio, regulated by international treaty, operates on bands or channels on frequencies not designated for radio stations, police, military or transportation use.

All operators in the United States must be licensed by the Federal Communications Commission. To obtain a license, a prospective ham must pass an exam that tests proficiency in Morse Code still used when interference makes voice communication difficult - knowledge of radio electronics and familiarity with federal regulations.

The basic purpose of amateur radio, as spelled out by the FCC, is to provide a voluntary communication service to the public in emergencies, Palm said. But it is also a hobby.

"Hams love to communicate with just about every country in the world, and it's in a very unique position to provide and enhance international goodwill," Palm said.

During World War I, several thousand hams in the United States were called upon to operate radios for the armed forces, and the hobby grew slowly but steadily.

When a boom in Citizens Band radio, which operates on different wavelengths, occurred in the 1970s, many younger operators switched to ham radio because CB, which does not require a license, became a crowded

"There were too many kids on it. It got uncontrolled," said Barettella.

He said ham operating fulfills a "need to tell somebody when something happens. It's a special kind of feeling. I guess not everybody has it."

Carol Smith of the Radio Relay League said the organization has helped finance placement of 10 satellites into orbit to provide a relay for ham signals. The last was launched July 11.
