County grand jury indicts 10 persons

Ten persons were indicted on criminal charges, four of them for engaging in organized criminal activity, in a session Thursday of the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury.

The name of one defendant was not released, pending arrest.

Indicted for engaging in organized criminal activity were Billy Dean Provence, 44, of 612 Irving, No. 96; Debbie Lynn Provence, 26, same address; Rosie Enriquez Garcia, 33, of 230 Avenue H, and Israel Galan, 24, of 436 Avenue B, Apt. B.

The indictment alleges the four engaged in organized criminal activity through a check-cashing scheme in Deaf Smith County as well as neighboring counties.

A three-count indictment alleging attempted murder, burglary of a habitation and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon was returned against Robert Vera, 22, of 209 Fuller.

Felony driving while intoxicated indictments were handed down against Javier Chavez, aka Herby Chavez, 33, of 424 N. 25 Mile Avenue, and Gilberto Martinez, 29, of 404 Barrett.

Scott Edwards, 19, of 315 E. Fourth Street, is named in two indictments for burglary of a building and one for burglary of a habitation.

The grand jury indicted Gloria Angela Casias, 25, of 419 Bradley, on charges of burglary of a habitation.

Posting bonds were Chavez, $500; Edwards, $1,000; Billy Dean Provence, $8,000; Debbie Lynn Provence, $8,000; Galan, $2,500, and Martinez, $1,000.

Confined to jail in lieu of bonds are Casias, Vera and Garcia.

Schools ask state for higher funding

AUSTIN (AP) - A diverse group of school districts says the state should pay a larger share of public education costs than provided under Texas' new school finance law.

The coalition of organizations representing rich, poor, large and small school districts filed a brief Thursday with the Texas Supreme Court.

"Local property tax payers continue to bear the burden, while state lawmakers do the bare minimum to fund public education," said Bob Brezina, Victoria Independent School District superintendent and president of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

"We realize there is a partnership between the state and local levels. What we are saying is that this is primarily a state responsibility and as such, Texas must recognize that it is the 'senior partner,'" he said.

The state share of public school funding currently is 47 percent, said Texas Education Agency general counsel Kevin O'Hanlon. But the state is projected to pay almost 51 percent under the law in 1994-95, he said.

The school group, however, said that target is based on estimates and might not be achieved.

In addition, the group said that there are costs - such as paying for classrooms and education mandates - that the state has not adequately addressed. School districts should not have to meet mandates if the state does not pay its share, said Houston lawyer David Thompson, representing the group.

The Texas Supreme Court is scheduled to hear arguments Tuesday on whether the tax system set up under the new law is constitutional.

The law was passed this year in response to a court order to even out funding available to school districts.

The system is designed to shift hundreds of millions of local property tax dollars from wealthier to poorer school districts within new education taxing regions, made up of one or several counties.

Under the law, school districts in each taxing region share the revenue from a minimum tax. Local school districts also may tax more, without pooling the revenue, to enrich programs and for construction.

Doritos celebrates 25th anniversary

PLANO, Texas (AP) - Doritos, the nation's best-selling snack food, turns 25 this week and its marketers at Frito-Lay Inc. are packing their birthday message with more crunch and less salt.

They recently shed the wry humor of comedian Jay Leno in Doritos advertising for spots featuring teen-oriented, hard-driving music. And they are putting more emphasis on bigger, but fewer, promotions.

That second change - reflected in a first-ever, nationwide Halloween promotion for Doritos and events for the 25th anniversary - was key to Frito-Lay's ability to reduce its size two months ago.

Facing bottom-line pressure from increased competition and higher costs, Frito-Lay eliminated about 1,800 jobs, 7 percent of its workforce, to save $100 million in annual costs.

"It's probably the change in strategy that allowed us to do the restructuring," said Jerry Noonan, vice president of marketing and brand manager for Doritos.

Previously, marketers at the company's headquarters outside

Dallas paid more attention to regional promotions. "We were trying to do more things and putting less resources, or marketing dollars, behind them," Noonan said.

The change is occurring with all the company's products - including Lays, Fritos, Tostitos and Sun Chips - but is most visible with Doritos, the company's best-selling and most-advertised brand.

Nacho cheese Doritos, which accounts for half the brand's $1 billion in annual sales, is the primary product in Frito-Lay grocery shelf displays and for nearly 20 years was without a national competitor.

Eagle Snacks Inc.'s introduction a few years ago of nacho cheese tortilla chips signaled the gravity of its challenge to Frito-Lay, which dominates the $10 billion salty snack industry with about 40 percent market share.

Sales were up 8 percent at Frito-Lay during the third quarter of this year, according to its parent company, PepsiCo Inc. But operating profit, excluding a charge for the corporate downsizing, was off 3 percent due to price competition from Eagle and others.

"The recent competition has caused us to understand what they're doing, Eagle in particular," Noonan said.

Eagle is a distant third in the salty snack race with about 5 percent of the market but, as a subsidiary of Anheuser-Busch Inc., it is perched to gain from the marketing and distribution savvy of the nation's largest brewer. The snacks of Borden Inc. have about 10 percent of the market.

The Doritos marketing group at Frito-Lay faces the added challenge of keeping up with the fickle tastes of teen-agers, who Noonan calls the "heart and soul" of the product's franchise.

"You almost have to keep a step ahead. Teens are so trendy. If you don't catch the trend as its developing, you will miss out," said Kate Groves, a product manager for Doritos.

She and other strategists for the brand keep up by visiting schools,

Louisiana candidates getting huge contributions

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The heated contest for governor between David Duke and Edwin Edwards is opening checkbooks wide, not only in Louisiana but around the nation and in Canada and Mexico.

"The Duke people are sending him money because they like his philosophy, what he stands for," said Silas Lee, a New Orleans pollster. "For Edwards, it's business; they have something to protect. They have, or want to do business in the state and know he has a proven track record."

Saturday's election pits the Republican Duke, a former Ku Klux Klan leader, against Edwards, a Democrat and former three-term governor whose administrations were tainted by scandal.

Gov. Buddy Roemer, who defeated Edwards four years ago, finished third in the state's Oct. 19 primary.

Campaign reports for the 19-day period that ended Oct. 27 show Edwards raised nearly $1.2 billion during that time, bringing his total to $2.3 billion. Duke received $544,459, for a total of $1.4 billion.

"My views are David Duke's views," said Narcisus Roger Diaz of Florida, listed as a $50 contributor to Duke. "The man was a KKK member. Big deal. The KKK is no worse than being a Democrat or a Republican."

"It's absolutely critical that Edwin Edwards be elected," said New Orleans attorney Jack Pierce Brook, who contributed $5,000. "He's the only one that has the skills and the ability to get us out of this mess in Louisiana."

A poll released Thursday by Louisiana Business 2000 showed 53.3 percent of those surveyed planning to vote for Edwards, with 27 percent supporting Duke.

Some 14.5 percent said they were undecided, with 2.3 percent saying they were leaning toward Edwards and 2.9 percent leaning toward Duke.

Marketing Research Institute of Mississippi, which conducted the poll of 800 voters, said it had a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

Much of the corn used in Doritos is processed at Hereford's Grain Handling facility east of the city.

concerts, arcades, sport events and other teen hangouts.

"It's easy to work in the corporate environment and get out of the teen mindset," said Roger Berdusco, another product manager. "Spending an afternoon with teen-agers will really change your perspective."

Founder's group holds annual fete

The 26th annual King's Manor Founder's Day dinner here Thursday night attracted almost 300 people who heard guest speaker Kenneth Wyatt of Tulsa and special entertainment by Melanie Beachy of Olton.

Dr. Wyatt, well-known artist, speaker, author and Methodist minister for 32 years, featured humorous stories in his address. Johnny Trotter, founder's board president, served as master of ceremonies and presented several lifetime memberships.

Rev. Lanny Wheeler, King's Manor chaplain, welcomed special guests and recognized staff members. District Supt. Dr. Albert Lindley led the prayer of dedication and thanksgiving, and Rev. Joe Wood worded the invocation.

Trotter also conducted a business session, where John Bunch was elected as the new founder's board president. Mark Landrum was elected as vice president, and Troyce Hanna is the new secretary.

The Hereford Key Club served the dinner, and the United Methodist Women decorated the tables.

Justice sets ruling on Congress lines

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas' congressional redistricting plan - described by some as a "grotesque" map that distorts the political process - faces an onslaught of legal challenges from Republicans and minority groups.

Even the Wall Street Journal has weighed in with an editorial proclaiming a newly-drawn minority district a "monster map," whose snaking lines reminded one Texas legislator of "four spiders having an orgy."

Texas gains three new congressional seats next year, for a total of 30. The new districts, drawn to assure minority representation, are in the Dallas, Houston and San Antonio areas.

But a Texas congressman and some minority groups say three new minority districts are not enough. They want two more minority seats - in Tarrant County and Harris County.

Texas now has six minority districts, represented by four Hispanics, one black and an Anglo. Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, says the state should have 11 minority seats to reflect its 39 percent minority population.

"What's wrong is the plan the state of Texas sent to the Justice Department does not meet the requirements of the Voting Rights Act in a lot of people's opinions," Barton said. "It also doesn't treat Republicans very fairly."

He and others have interceded with the Justice Department, which is expected to rule Monday on the validity of the plan. Even if the government says the map does not discriminate against minorities, several legal hurdles remain before it can be used.

Challenges to the House, Senate, U.S. House and state Board of Education plans are under way in state district court in Edinburg and federal courts in Austin, Brownsville and Washington, D.C.

The most immediate legal test appears to be in Edinburg. On Nov. 25, a trial is scheduled in the court of Judge Mario Ramirez Jr., who earlier ruled the state's maps discriminated against minorities because of reliance on the 1990 census. A half million Texans, mostly minorities, were believed missed by the census.

Movie-makers hope films bring viewers to theaters

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Hollywood movie moguls, struggling through one of the worst box office declines in years, hope stars like Bruce Willis, Dustin Hoffman and Robin Williams will play Santa for them this holiday season.

More than two dozen big-ticket movies will be coming out soon.

Among them is Steven Spielberg's long-awaited "Hook," a Peter Pan adventure starring Hoffman and Williams.

Another eagerly awaited entry: "JFK." The Oliver Stone film on the assassination of President Kennedy already has provoked much debate and controversy.

Also in the offing are "The Last Boy Scout," a potential comeback vehicle for Willis after the spectacular flop of his film "Hudson Hawk," and "The Addams Family," a remake of the hit television series.

"Home Alone" star Macaulay Culkin returns in "My Girl."

Executives are banking on the idea that moviegoers will see more than just one film this holiday season.

"I really believe the idea of moviegoing is contagious - it just whets your appetite to see more," says Dick Cook, president of the Walt Disney Co.'s distribution arm.

Although several films certainly should emerge as hits, many others are likely to flop. The Motion Picture Association of America says 1991 revenues may be down as much as 10 percent from a year ago.

Still, studio executives hope a few smashes will revive the entire business.

"If you have some good pictures in the marketplace, people will come back to theaters," said Si Kornblitt, executive vice president of worldwide marketing for Universal Pictures.

Others, among them Tom Sherak, an executive vice president of 20th Century Fox, worry that the market will be so crowded that some good movies will get lost in the shuffle.

"When you have such a short span between major motion pictures, you always face the possibility of pictures gobbling up other pictures," Sherak said.

A lot of films open late in the year for two reasons. First, students are on vacation - bored and eager for entertainment. Second, Academy Award voters exhibit notoriously short memories: The later a movie comes out, the better its chances when Oscar nominations are revealed Feb. 19.

That award-at-all-costs thinking creates a glut of serious, adult-oriented films as the year winds down.

Thus, Barbra Streisand's "The Prince of Tides" was moved from September to Dec. 18. "Naked Lunch," an adaptation of William Burroughs' account of his heroin addiction, was moved up from Jan. 17, when it would be ineligible for the next Oscars, to Dec. 27.

Stone is racing to finish "JFK" for a Dec. 20 premiere, and "Rush," a dreary look at two undercover officers turned junkies, will debut Christmas Day.

Other year-enders include "At Play in the Fields of the Lord," the film version of Peter Matthiessen's Amazon novel; "Fried Green Tomatoes," adapted from actress Fannie Flagg's Southern novel; and "The Mambo Kings," from Oscar Hijuelos Pulitzer prize-winning novel.

The demand for a slice of the holiday pie is so great that the animated films "Beauty and the Beast" from Disney and "An American Tail: Fievel Goes West" from Universal will open on the same day, Nov. 22.

Worker's job loss prompts killings

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) - The fired postal worker who killed three people and wounded six others before shooting himself was described by co-workers as a "waiting time bomb" whose deadly outburst was not unexpected.

Colleagues predicted that Thomas McIlvane, who threatened supervisors and co-workers, would one day shoot up the Royal Oak post office if he didn't get his job back.

On Thursday, police said, the 31-year-old ex-Marine made good on his threats, spraying the post office with bullets from a 22-caliber semiautomatic rifle. Three postal workers were killed and six were wounded before he turned the gun on himself.

McIlvane was pronounced brain dead early today and doctors prepared to remove his organs.

The post office in this suburb 10 miles north of downtown Detroit was closed today and mail delivery to the city's 70,000 residents was canceled, while counselors met with shaken survivors and relatives of the victims.

McIlvane was fired from the post office last year for timecard fraud and had appealed his dismissal. U.S. Postal Service spokesman Lou Eberhardt said an arbitrator rejected his appeal on Wednesday.

"Everybody said if he didn't get his job back, he was going to come in and shoot," postal worker Bob Cibulka said. "Everyone was talking about it."

"He was a waiting time bomb," said former postal worker Mark Mitchell, who was stationed with McIlvane at the Marine Corps base in Twentynine Palms, Calif., in the early 1980s.

"One time at Twentynine Palms there was a guy he was mad at and he drove a tank over his car," Mitchell said.

Among those killed Thursday was branch operations manager Christopher Carlisle, 33, and labor relations representative Keith Ciszewski, 37. Also killed was injury compensation specialist Mary Benincasa, 32.

Carlisle was mentioned in a Government Accounting Office report issued after an investigation into the 1988 deaths of three postal workers in Indianapolis, where workers had complained of undue job stress. He transferred to Royal Oak last year.

Sunlight, cancer connection found

NEW YORK (AP) - Scientists say they've found a chemical "smoking gun" that suggests how sunlight encourages development of a skin cancer that strikes more than 100,000 Americans a year.

Researchers reported that samples of the skin cancer frequently contained a mutated form of a gene that normally protects against cancer.

The gene bore telltale marks of damage from sunlight.

The work suggests that this damage is "one step along the way to the cancer," study co-author Douglas Brash said Thursday.

The study, involving squamous cell carcinoma, is the first to report direct evidence of sunlight-induced damage in a human skin cancer, Brash said.

Squamous cell carcinoma is expected to strike more than 100,000 Americans this year and kill 2,000. In comparison, the deadlier skin cancer melanoma is expected to appear in 32,000 Americans and kill 6,500.

Researchers noted that multiple genetic changes are needed to produce cancer, and said that since people tend to get most of their sun exposure during youth, the damage to the protective gene might occur more than 50 years before the cancer appears.

It is not clear whether sunlight is responsible for any of the other mutations needed to produce the cancer, said Brash, an assistant professor of therapeutic radiology at the Yale University School of Medicine.

Brash presents the work in this month's issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences with colleagues at Yale, Massachusetts General Hospital, Dermatopathology Associates of New York in New Rochelle, N.Y., and University Hospital in Uppsala, Sweden.

"I think this is a pretty exciting paper," said John-Stephen Taylor, an associate professor of chemistry at Washington University in St. Louis who studies genetic mutations caused by sunlight.

"They've made a very nice case for linking sunlight to that kind of cancer," he said. "What they've done here is find a very damning fingerprint.... This is sort of that missing piece of evidence everybody would like to have."

While the general relationship of sunlight to squamous cell carcinoma had been known, the study provides new details about how sunlight contributes to development of the cancer, he said.

The researchers looked for damage to the p53 gene, which normally protects against cancer. Mutations in this gene have been linked to cancers of the bladder, breast, colon, liver and lung.

Fourteen of 24 samples of squamous cell cancers they examined showed mutations in the gene. For most cases of mutation, researchers were able to show that it occurred within the patient rather than being inherited.

The key evidence for damage from ultraviolet light, the harmful component of sunlight, was the kind of p53 mutations they found.

Genes are structured somewhat like a series of beads on a string, with four kinds of "beads": the substances adenine, thymine, guanine and cytosine.

The researchers found that in three instances, the p53 mutation converted two adjacent cytosines to two adjacent thymines, a substitution only known to be caused by ultraviolet light.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few days ago my mother, who lives several thousand miles away, telephoned and for 20 minutes I listened to her complain about her various aches and pains. I wish I could help her, but of course there is nothing I can do.

After we hung up, I sat down and composed the enclosed "prayer." I hope you will feel that it is worth printing.--M.Y.T., Lonoke, Ark.

DEAR M.Y.T.: I think your prayer contains a good deal of wisdom. Here it is with my thanks for sending it on.

PLEASE GOD

My children are grown now and I have wonderful grandchildren. I love them all, but please, God, let me remember that I have lived, loved and enjoyed this life. Do not let me take away from their enjoyment by complaining about every ache and pain. I have earned them all.

Please keep me from mentioning my swollen joints, stiff knees, poor eyesight and anything else that isn't as good as it once was. Let me remember that I have enjoyed a full and wonderful life and have been blessed in so many ways. Now is not the time for me to begin complaining.

Please let my mouth be closed, while my ears are open to hear the fun they are having. Let me remember that I am still setting an example for them and that if I keep quiet, they will forever think that I never had a single ache or pain in my life and that I miraculously escaped the ills of old age.

They will, in later years, remember me with pleasure and say, "I wish I had HER genes. She never had anything wrong with her!"

That, dear Lord, will be the best legacy I can leave them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please, please, I need your opinion. After raising two sons I thought I had seen it all--the problems with drugs, puppy love and the devastation of divorce. You name it, I have probably lived it.

Last week I attended a grade school graduation party. The children in question are 11 years old. The party was given by the son of a longtime friend.

During the party a young boy took a girl outside and presented her with a gold ring that he told her cost $40. He gave her the gift because she was transferring to a new school and they may not be seeing each other very often.

Ann, can you believe this? Both parents work just to make ends meet and here this child is spending $40 on a ring for a girl. How are children going to learn the value of money if they are allowed to behave like this?

I spoke to a few young people at my office, and they seem to think this is normal for today. What do you have to say about this? Is it out of line or am I nuts?--J.L., Dollard-des-Ormeaux, Quebec

DEAR J.L.: If you are nuts, that makes two of us. In my opinion it's ridiculous to permit an 11-year-old to spend $40 on a ring for a girlfriend, unless the kid has an allowance and saved the money himself. If this is the case, he should NOT be subsidized for other things he may want to buy later. He should be made to understand that when you spend that amount of money on a gift, you may have to do without other things for a long, long time. It just might be that this experience will teach that child valuable lesson.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

John Giordano, music director of the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra, first sampled this dish while working in Bilbao, Spain. There, this Basque stew is made with the catch of the day, but Giordano says the dish translates well anywhere in the world. With a simple adjustment of the salt and olive oil, the dish is at home on a healthy table.

LONDON (AP) - Queen Elizabeth II has awarded an honorary knighthood to Saudi Prince Khalid bin Sultan, who commanded Arab and Islamic forces during the Gulf War.

The queen on Thursday invested Prince Khalid, 42, with the insignia of an honorary Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, the highest honor a foreigner can receive. The award cited his leadership in keeping the U.S.-led, 33-nation coalition together, the palace said.

American recipients of the award have included Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who led U.S. forces in the Gulf War; President Ronald Reagan and former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) - Rocker Rod Stewart, suffering from a sore throat, decided to dispense with an encore after he was mobbed by female fans toward the end of a concert.

Stewart was singing "The Motown Song" toward the end of his show at the Nassau Coliseum on Wednesday when he allowed about two dozen women in the audience to climb up on stage with him.

He had to be rescued by his road crew when the crowd converged around him.

Stewart, who left the stage at that point, decided not to return because he was suffering from a sore throat anyway, said his manager, Arnold Stiefel.

No nibbling notes help holiday dieters

TEMPLE -- Those holiday buffets burgeoning with the year's best party nibbles can be perilous to your diet. In fact, the months between Halloween and Super Bowl are a mine field of calories, fat and salt waiting to demolish any cautious eater's best intentions. After a couple of parties, there you are with abundant padding on the hips and pants zippers fluttering at half staff.

"During these months between late October and January, if you're not careful, you could add six or seven pounds," Kay Schooler, registered dietitian and Director of the Clinical Dietitians at Scott & White in Temple. "The trap we get into during the holidays is that we feel we must partake completely. Then we blame ourselves when we overindulge."

You could refuse to attend holiday gatherings and become a hermit for three months out of the year. You could just give up, stuff yourself with sugarplums and suffer the consequences in February. "It's so easy to sit back and say, 'Well, I've messed up my diet by eating this; so, why should I try to keep up with my diet the rest of the year?'" Ms. Schooler said.

So much sour cream dip out there and so little time. What's a nibbler to do?

Planning is the key, Ms. Schooler said. "You know you're going to Grandma's for a big holiday dinner. Admit to yourself you might go overboard for just this one meal. Begin earlier in the week by watching your calorie intake. Increase your activity level a week or two beforehand," she added.

Burn a few calories with extra exercise and skimp on calories at other meals. After you've prepared yourself, go ahead on the family feast day and partake of your favorites. "Keep your portions reasonable, and decline second helpings," Ms. Schooler advised. "For a few days afterward, watch what you eat, and keep your activity level up. You'll be surprised what the scales will say."

Another pitfall is party buffet tables - those vast landscapes of foods overburdened with unnamed dishes filled with fats and calories. Party nibbling can quickly compound the pounds. If you're careless, a weekend party could undo some of the good dieting you've accomplished the week before. Keep up that pace, and soon you'll resemble a real party animal with an underslung belt and a capacious midsection.

To add to the problem, some hosts badger partygoers to eat more or to sample dishes. So, how can you graze gracefully without making the buffet table look like scorched earth?

"Most of the time, when the food is laid out on a buffet table, we tend to stand around the table to talk," Ms. Schooler said. So, it's easy to reach down and pick up more food as we visit.

"To prevent this nibbling and adding extra calories, look over the table, put your selections on a little plate and go to the other side of the room. This is a survival tactic, so you're not right on top of the food.

When you make your selections, choose more vegetables and fruits and go light on the dips and cheeses."

Generous hosts eager to please can be accidental culprits by encouraging guests to eat more. "Often you give into the pressure to eat just to keep your host happy," Ms. Schooler added. "Reassure the host that the party is a success. Keep up the appearance of having food on your plate, so your host won't push you to eat more. Carry the plate all evening, and you probably won't be pressured."

The rule also works with drinks. Alcoholic drinks add many calories quickly. An ounce of liquor—which is less than a jigger—has about 80 to 100 calories. Cocktail mixers, fruit juices, soft drinks could add another 100 calories or more to the drink. Ms. Schooler recommends carrying a glass of diet or club soda with a twist of lemon or lime. "No one will know it's not an alcoholic drink. You also won't run the risk of having too much alcohol to drink," she said.

Besides being high in calories, the effects of alcohol promotes nibbling—especially for salty snacks such as chips, pretzels, nuts and dips. "Salty snacks make us thirsty, and we drink more. We're not attuned to how much we're consuming and that can add more calories and fat."

Beware of those non-alcoholic flavored waters and carbonated fruit drinks. Read the labels carefully because some are loaded with sugars. "Even though it says 'water' on the label, the drink can have as many as 120 calories per serving, about as much as a regular soft drink," Ms. Schooler said.

She also advises party givers to be responsible hosts by offering guests plenty of raw vegetable and fruits, diet drinks and non-alcoholic options. "As a substitute for sour cream, blend cottage cheese with a little lemon juice. A packet of plain gelatin added to the blended cottage cheese dip will set it firmly. Then you can add your own spices and flavorings," Ms. Schooler said. "Using plain yogurt instead of sour cream for dips can save about 300 calories per cup. Non-fat salad dressings are also good substitutes for sour cream in dips. Instead of cream cheese," suggests Ms. Schooler, "use farmer's cheese or neufchatel cheese."

Devised low-calorie versions of the usual party fare. "Cut the fat and sugar in a recipe by about 25 percent," she added. "For instance, if a recipe calls for one cup of butter or sugar, try using three-fourths of a cup. Your reduced-fat version will be similar in flavor but saves on calories."

A little common sense goes a long way for holiday nibblers. "Watch the frequency and size of your portions," Ms. Schooler said. "Ask yourself, 'Do I really need this just because someone put it on my plate? Maybe you can take a bite just to taste and no more—just so you won't hurt anyone's feelings.'"

Above all, if you've exercised and behaved yourself at other meals, don't feel guilty about that one sumptuous holiday meal. Bon appetit!

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: My stained and varnished window sills on the south side of the house lose their finish and begin to look awful a year or so after the painter has refinished them. Is there a product that I might apply after the varnish to help retain the finish?—J. Meyers, Grand Rapids, Mich.

You are in luck. Marie Wheeler of Erie, Pa., suggested the following.

To keep paint from peeling and chipping on window sills, apply a heavy coat of car wax, being sure the wood and paint are completely dry. It helps prevent wood rot and usually helps the paint last longer.—Heloise or fax it to 512-HELOISE

SLIDING PATIO DOORS

Dear Heloise: To keep the patio door sliding smoothly, I spray the tracks with a little spray lubricant. It slides easily now!—Karen Richmond, Baltimore, Md.

METAL LAWN FURNITURE

Dear Heloise: I have some old metal furniture with a large seat. To keep the seat from rusting, I drilled several small holes in it to allow rain water to drain. This should prolong its life!—Randall Livingston, Houston, Texas

FIREPLACE WINDOW

Dear Heloise: I have found a great way to clean the window glass on a fireplace.

I crumple up some newspaper and dampen it slightly with water, then put it in the ashes and use it on the door. It's an old method but really works faster and better than any other commercial cleaners.—Laura Head, Houston, Texas

The old-fashioned hints are sometimes still the best, and this is one of them.—Heloise

HANDY CURTAIN ROD

Dear Heloise: Attach a curtain rod near the washer and dryer to hang clothes on when taking them from the dryer. It will hold several hangers.—Mrs. Myrtle Nance, New Albany, Miss.

SINK STOPPER

Dear Heloise: Recently we went to our weekend cabin, and after dinner I started to run the water in the sink and found the sink stopper missing. I took a plastic coffee-can lid and placed it over the drain. It worked just great in a pinch!—Rita Deleo, San Francisco, Calif.

DURABLE PATTERNS

Dear Heloise: In this time of recycling, I came up with an idea. I sew a lot and trace patterns for different sizes because I have five granddaughters to sew for.

For pattern paper, I use the large plastic bags I get when shopping. It works real well! I can see through it to write details, it doesn't tear easily and I know plastic doesn't deteriorate.—April Worms, Port Alberni, British Columbia, Canada

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: So many people have Paget's disease. What causes this strange disease? Is it life-threatening? I have heard that Paget's disease weakens the bones in your body and eventually your body structure. Is this true and does one eventually end up in a wheelchair or bed?

I have had Paget's disease for 40 years and eventually ended up with a hip operation on the left side and may need one on my right side. The Paget's is still growing in my system. Is there a cure? I take Calcimar shots every day and it hasn't helped me.

DEAR READER: This is definitely a disease that deserves more attention. It is second only to osteoporosis as a cause of bone loss. Often it involves a single bone, as in the thigh bone, but it can involve any bone in the body. It may involve the pelvis, vertebrae, collarbone and skull. Fractures from weakened bones are common. So are deformities. Many patients get along fine with it as an incidental finding, but in others, it causes pain. Pain can also result from fractured vertebrae.

There is direct proof of the existence of at least 100 billion billion stars...and we're still counting.

No one knows what causes it, although both inherited factors and the possibility of a "slow" virus have been suggested. There are treatments; calcitonin (Calcimar), which you are taking, is one.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Herd meets Dumas again

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

This is it. The Final Showdown for 4A volleyball supremacy in the Texas Panhandle.

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces meet the Dumas Demonettes--the three-time defending state champions and the 1991 District 1-4A champions--at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Amarillo High School Activity Center. This battle is for the regional championship and a trip to the state tournament Nov. 22-23 in Austin.

They met in the same situation last year, and Dumas won 10-15, 15-12, 15-2. They went on to thump Katy Taylor and Austin Reagan for the 4A state championship.

They've met four times this season, with each winning twice. Hereford finished on top early in the season, at the Lubbock tournament (15-8, 13-15, 15-6) and at the Amarillo tournament (9-15, 15-12, 16-14). The Demonettes won both district matches: 15-10, 9-15, 15-10 in Dumas and 15-12, 7-15, 15-12 in Hereford.

Dumas now holds a record of 32-2, and those two losses are both to Hereford, which is now 26-4.

The tradition has become that Hereford-Dumas encounters are close, no matter who wins. For example, in Hereford's win in Amarillo, Dumas scored more total points (41-40), while in Dumas' win in Hereford, the Lady Whitefaces scored more (39-37). The total number of points in four matches between the two: Hereford 157, Dumas 146.

The two are intimate enemies. They know most of each other's tendencies, so there's only so much good this week's preparation will do.

"There's not going to be any magic that we can come up with," Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said. "It's just a matter of who executes better on Saturday afternoon."

Although the match is being played on a neutral court, Hereford will have a court advantage of a sort. Dumas' wins last year in the district playoff and in the regional final were in the Caprock High School Activity Center. Dumas wanted Caprock again for this match, while Reeh did not.

"It might prevent a few flashbacks, and if that's worth a point or two, we'll take it," Reeh said. "With two teams of this caliber, any edge one team can get is valuable."

Dumas hasn't lost a game in the Hereford and Dumas to meet in regional finals

Hereford's Erin Bullard hits the volleyball over Dumas' Kisika Cariker (50) in the Lady Whitefaces' district match against Dumas Oct. 15. Dumas' Kirah Cowley is in the foreground. The Herd and the Demonettes meet again Saturday in Amarillo, this time to decide who advances to the state tournament Nov. 22-23 in Austin.

playoffs, showing mercy to no one. The Demonettes drubbed Snyder 15-6, 15-2; Monahans 15-5, 15-9; and Crowley 15-6, 15-3.

Hereford has not lost a game either, beating Lamesa 15-13, 15-8; Pecos 15-10, 15-3; and Saginaw Boswell 15-7, 15-11.

"We've won three playoff matches," Reeh said. "What we need to focus on is what we're doing right. The kids need a pat on the back for getting this far."

"We're happy with it. We're not satisfied--we won't be satisfied unless we get down to Austin and win it--but we're happy with what we've done the last week and a half, and all season, for that matter."

The latest report on senior outside hitter Jennifer Hicks, who suffered a twisted ankle in the Boswell match Tuesday, is that she may play, but doesn't yet have full mobility.

"At this point (after Thursday's practice) she's not really able to jump," Reeh said. "We'll just have to take it day by day."

The Amarillo High is at 4225 Danbury, near the intersection of Bell and Fulton in southwest Amarillo. Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for children.

The AHS Activity Center has about the same capacity as Caprock's center, and last year, that house was packed. Come early if you want a seat.

Brown finishes fourth in state

Leo Brown, senior tailback for the Hereford football team, finished the regular season ranked fourth in Class 4A rushing yardage with 1,577 yards on 283 carries.

Brown finished behind leader Anthony Hubbard of Bastrop with 1,710 yards, Michael Martin of Dallas White with 1,702 and Michael Ross of Carrizo Springs with 1,696.

Sammy Laury of Pampa finished seventh with 1,387 yards.

Brandon Barker, junior quarterback for Randall, finished the regular season second in passing yardage to Glenn Winship of San Antonio Alamo Heights. Barker completed 132-of-270 attempts for 2,206 yards, suffering 11 interceptions. Winship's numbers were 163-of-255 for 2,825 yards and only four interceptions.

In receiving yardage, Randall's Anthony Benson slipped to second with 1,001 yards on 43 receptions. The leader is Watson of Alamo Heights with 1,062 yards on only 35 catches.

Randall's Doug Richardson dropped out of the top 15 after being listed there most of the season.

DeOssie trial delayed

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) - The misdemeanor drug trial of New York Giants linebacker Steve DeOssie has been delayed by a municipal court judge until football season ends.

Judge David Florence granted a defense motion Wednesday to postpone the Nov. 14 trial to Feb. 13, deputy court clerk June Delling said Thursday.

DeOssie's attorney, Mark Deubner of Dallas, entered an innocent plea on the player's behalf last month. DeOssie remains free on $170 cash bond.

Police at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport arrested the 28-year-old linebacker Sept. 30. He was charged with storage of drug paraphernalia, a misdemeanor under the Texas Controlled Substance Act, records show.

Police saw DeOssie smoking a hand-rolled cigarette in an airport parking lot, Airport spokesman Joe Dealey Jr. said. When officers approached the player, they smelled what they believed to be marijuana, said Dealey.

He said police confiscated a packet of cigarette rolling papers and a plastic bag containing a green, leafy substance. Results of a lab examination on the substance were delayed.

Saying he has an alcohol problem, DeOssie gave reporters at Giants Stadium a different version of his arrest. He said a metal detector went off when he walked through airport security, and that he was drunk.

Threatt, Divac help Lakers cool off Warriors

By The Associated Press
Sedale Threatt and Vlade Divac, two players closely linked with Magic Johnson, are quickly having to learn to fend for themselves.

Threatt scored 21 points and Divac had 19 on 7-for-9 shooting Thursday night as the Los Angeles Lakers cooled off the Golden State Warriors 115-112 at Oakland Coliseum.

Threatt, Magic Johnson's replacement at point guard, now has 48 points and 20 assists in the Lakers' two victories that followed a 28-point loss the night after Johnson retired last week.

Divac, whose development as an

NBA player following his arrival from Yugoslavia was credited to Johnson, had his best game of the season despite continuing problems with back spasms.

"It's too short a period of time to tell if we are over it emotionally," Lakers coach Mike Dunleavy said, "but we're getting better. And I'm proud of the way the guys hung together."

"This was the first time I really felt in sync with Vlade," said Threatt, who hit two free throws with 19 seconds remaining for a 115-112 lead after Divac grabbed the rebound of a missed free throw with 35 seconds left.

Chris Mullin led all scorers with 28 points, while Tim Hardaway had 26 points and 14 assists for the Warriors, who lost for only the second time in eight games. James Worthy joined Threatt with 21 points for the Lakers.

Kings 98, Hawks 96
Sacramento, with a 40-game road losing streak, continued to play solid basketball at home, beating Atlanta as Mitch Richmond scored 25 points, including a go-ahead 20-footer with 44 seconds left.

After Richmond put Sacramento ahead 95-93, Jon Koncak missed two free throws for Atlanta. Lionel Simmons broke away for a dunk, and his free throw with 5.9 seconds remaining put the Kings in front 98-93.

Dominique Wilkins led all scorers with 28 points for the Hawks. Kings guard Spud Webb, playing in his first game against the Hawks since being traded from Atlanta on July 1, scored 18.

Mavericks 95, Clippers 88
At Dallas, the Mavericks' three-man guard rotation sparked offensively and defensively against Los Angeles.

Rolando Blackman scored 30 points, including five free throws in the final two minutes, while Fat Lever had 19 points and Derek Harper 16 for Dallas.

The Mavericks also held Clippers guard Ron Harper, their leading scorer with a 19.1 average, to four points on 2-for-15 shooting. Overall, Dallas' guards outscored the Los Angeles backcourt players 65-10.

Danny Manning led the Clippers with 27 points.

Cavaliers 115, SuperSonics 109
Cleveland, 1-4 on its season-opening road trip, won for the second straight time at home behind Brad Daugherty's 23 points, 10 rebounds and career-high six blocked shots.

Daugherty sent the game into overtime by making one of two free throws with 5.2 seconds left in regulation after the Sonics pulled ahead 101-100 on Derrick McKey's bank shot with 16 seconds remaining.

The Cavaliers took the lead for good at 105-103 on rookie Terrell Brandon's 20-foot jumper with four minutes to go.

Ricky Pierce led the Sonics with 29 points, none of them in overtime.

AIDS groups seek Magic's help

LOS ANGELES (AP)—How much clout does Magic Johnson wield as a fund-raiser?

Try this. For the past three years, golfers have forked over more than $1,000 apiece to play in Magic's Golf Classic, a tournament benefiting the American Heart Association. This September, the event netted $132,000 for the group's Los Angeles affiliate, and Johnson wasn't even playing.

As one of professional sports' most active participants in philanthropy, Johnson lends instant credibility and immense star power to whatever cause he undertakes.

Now, infected with the HIV virus and retired from the Los Angeles Lakers, his cause is AIDS awareness, and research foundations and other AIDS service agencies are using a full-court press to get him on their team.

Barely an hour after Johnson appeared on national television last week to announce he is HIV-positive, a small agency called L.A. Shanti Foundation had assembled a proposal package and whisked it off to Johnson's agent, who was soon inundated by similar pitches.

Actress Liz Taylor, a founder of the American Foundation for AIDS Research, sent the Lakers star flowers in an attempt to court him.

"It's very intense," Mark King, spokesman for L.A. Shanti, said of the competition for Johnson's endorsement and financial support. "There isn't anyone who isn't trying to team up with him."

For a small-budget organization like L.A. Shanti, teaming up with Johnson can mean the difference in providing service to thousands, instead of hundreds of people with the HIV virus and full-blown AIDS.

The organization wants Johnson to appear as the guest of honor at an event to raise money for seminars for people who have recently tested HIV-positive.

"He absolutely has the ability to turn this event from a $200,000 event to a $1 million event," King said. "He could fund the seminar for years to come with that one appearance."

"He's going to make a lot of money for whoever he chooses to go with."

Just how Johnson will choose to use his considerable clout is still up in the air. He has mentioned promoting AIDS awareness among the black community and may start his own foundation.

"It's still in the planning stages," said Janice Wise, who works with Johnson's agent in planning promotions.

Johnson smiles, and people's checkbooks seem to open, well, magically.

Three days after Johnson made his announcement, a Beverly Hills businessman and Lakers season ticket holder named Harold Foonberg wrote out a check for $10,000 at Sunday night's game.

The Lakers and Johnson's agent have received checks worth about $20,000, but hundreds of pieces of mail sent to Johnson haven't been opened yet. And a local AIDS telethon over the weekend far exceeded its fund-raising expectations, raising $1.14 million by simply riding the coattails of Johnson's disclosure.

Johnson was a formidable philanthropic force well before his disclosure last week that he is HIV-positive. He has given of his time freely and in large amounts. That, in turn, has attracted contributors' dollars in large amounts.

In 1990 alone, he raised an estimated $2.65 million for various non-profit entities, from the Muscular Dystrophy Association to tiny Rust College in Holly Springs, Miss.

To date, the biggest beneficiary of Johnson's philanthropic endeavors has been the United Negro College Fund, which supplies scholarships to 41 private colleges and universities. His annual all-star game has raised more than $4 million over the past six years and is the largest ongoing fundraiser in UNCF's history, said development director Vincent Bryson.

LSU's O'Neal tops All-America list

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

Three conferences supplied the entire 1991-92 AP preseason All-America team.

Shaquille O'Neal of LSU and Lee Mayberry of Arkansas represented the Southeastern Conference and Calbert Cheaney of Indiana and Jimmy Jackson of Ohio State were both selected from the Big Ten on the team which was announced Thursday. Duke's Christian Laettner of the Atlantic Coast Conference rounded out the team which was chosen by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

O'Neal, last season's national player of the year and the only returning All-American, received 64 votes, one short of being a unanimous selection.

Laettner was named on 61 ballots, while Jackson was on 52, Cheaney 23 and Mayberry 20.

O'Neal, a 7-foot-1 junior center, was the first player to ever lead the Southeastern Conference in scoring, rebounding, field goal percentage and blocked shots in a season. He was all over the top of the national charts as well last season, ranking seventh in scoring at 27.6, first in rebounding at 14.7, 18th in field goal percentage at 62.8, and third in blocks at 5.0 per game.

Mayberry was an honorable mention All-American and All-Southwest Conference first-teamer last season, the Razorbacks' last in the SWC. The 6-2 senior averaged 13.2 points and a conference-best 2.6 steals while dealing out 209 assists as Arkansas went 34-4. Although his 48.7 shooting percentage was the first time he dropped below 50 percent for a season, he still scored in double figures 30 times.

Jackson, a second-team All-America choice last season, and Cheaney, a third-team selection, are both 6-6 junior swingmen. Jackson was conference player of the year last season and Cheaney's name was right alongside on the all-Big Ten team.

Jackson averaged 18.9 points and 5.5 rebounds last season, led Ohio State with 55 steals and was second with 133 assists. He has shown the ability to score up front or from the backcourt, and he was considered the best player on the U.S. national team this summer until being sidelined with a stress fracture in his left foot just before the medal round. Without Jackson, the United States could only manage a bronze medal. He has healed fully after resting the foot for two months.

Cheaney just missed Indiana's single-season scoring mark last season, but he did break Steve Alford's mark for field goal percentage. He averaged 21.6 points and 5.5 rebounds while shooting 59.6 percent.

The Boston Celtics had a string of eight NBA championships.

1-800-792-GAME

Write down this number. If you see someone breaking the rules and harming our fishing and hunting, get to a phone and call (toll-free) the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. The enforcement division can use your help in order to do their job better. Do not--I repeat: do not try to stop violators yourself. The most poachers are not dangerous, but don't take a chance with an armed and possibly angry law-breaker. Operation Game Thief at 1-800-792-GAME is available 24 hours a day, and you can remain anonymous.

Whooping Crane poachers--Billy Inman of Marble Falls has probably shot his last whooping crane. On August 19, he pleaded guilty to shooting the endangered crane during a spring fishing trip on the Colorado River. The federal judge sentenced Inman to serve two months in prison, five years probation, $10,000 fine, $8,100 in civil restitution to Texas, 200 hours community service and forfeiture of his 12-gauge Winchester Model #12 shotgun. Curtis Sayers is awaiting sentencing for his role in aiding and abetting the same killing.

During migration, whooping cranes are frequent guests in our area, so please make sure of your target or you might make a tragic mistake. Whoopers are very distinctive large white cranes with black wing tips. The number of whooping cranes sank to a low of 38 at one time, but thanks to extensive efforts by sportsmen and federal and state officials, their numbers have increased to 140 wild birds.

Warning--You may legally use lead shot during sandhill crane hunting, but take a shot at a goose or a duck and you will be in violation of the law. Effective this hunting season, only steel shot can be used for hunting any waterfowl in Texas. Cranes are not considered waterfowl. Many hunters report success by using steel shot that is two sizes bigger than their normal duck load.

The results of the 1991 Top-of-the-Line Fall Fun Tournament at Lake Meredith show that first place went to Jim Braswell of Amarillo. Chris DeRossett of Fritch was second and Jimmy Scroggins of Borger captured third. The only walleye was caught by Hank McWilliams, who holds the current state record for walleye at 11.88 pounds. Alan Jones, owner of Top-of-the-Line Marine, served the fishermen some great food. It was a terrific way to end the 1991 Fun Tournaments at Lake Meredith.

Buckley joins Aggie linebacking greats

By JONATHAN FEIGEN
Houston Chronicle

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - At night, when Marcus Buckley finally had time to rest, he couldn't.

He worried. He wondered if his father was thirsty. He tried to recall if he remembered to leave a fresh glass of water by his father's bedside. He worried that if he had forgotten the water, whether his father would push himself out of bed and force himself to the kitchen without calling for help.

When he left the house on Saturday nights, Buckley would leave a phone number. And when he would get to a phone, he wouldn't wait for it to ring. He would call first, just to see if everything was all right, to see if his father needed him back home.

Every day after school at Fort Worth's Eastern Hills High School, he practiced sports - football, basketball, then track. After practice, he went to the neighborhood Texaco to pump gas for a few hours before returning home after dark to do his homework, make his dinner and take care of his dying father.

It was the only life Buckley knew. Just he and his father in the Fort Worth apartment they shared for six years.

"We were close, very close," Marcus Buckley said. "But we were close in our own way. We didn't sit down and have talks or go out and play catch."

With that, Buckley stopped talking to consider his memories. Finally, he simply said, "I miss him; I really miss him."

Nelson Buckley died Aug. 5 of emphysema. Buckley knew his father's condition had worsened over the summer, and he finally had convinced him to accept that he would need full-time care in August, when Buckley returned to football practice at Texas A&M.

But Nelson Buckley was never very good at giving in to his condition. He finally agreed to go to a rest home when his son convinced him he would be all right on his own, without his father's influence.

Nelson Buckley finally agreed to move out of the apartment he and his son had shared for so long. A few weeks later, he died.

"I told him, 'I'll be OK. I'm going to make it,'" Buckley said. "He finally realized he could rest, it was his time to rest. He knew I'd stay on the right track."

Nelson Buckley couldn't possibly have known how well things would turn out for his son.

As a junior outside linebacker, Buckley has become the latest in A&M's line of pass-rushing, quarterback-smashing linebackers. Through eight games, he has nine sacks and has rushed into the face of quarterbacks 16 other times, stepping into the recent legacy of John Roper, Aaron Wallace and William Thomas.

A high school fullback who cared just as much about basketball, he rushes with the traditional A&M quickness and throws his 6-2, 225-pound frame through the backfield with foam-at-the-mouth abandon that makes the physical side of the rush secondary.

"It's an attitude," Aggies outside linebackers coach Kirk Doll said. "It's about getting there no matter what you have to do to get there. We talk about it all the time. The first guy off the ball wins."

Said A&M coach R.C. Slocum, "We recruited him because he had good instincts, he was very quick, we thought he could get big and we thought he could do the schoolwork. Now, I think he has a chance to be a pro."

But it's away from football - in the dorms, and locker rooms and classrooms - that Buckley's development is so striking.

The grades are up. He's popular. But it's more a demeanor that is so noticeable. It's an easy smile and confidence.

"He's done very well in football; he's making very good progress," Slocum said quickly, sweeping the back of his hand in front of him, as if to dismiss the football side as trivial.

"But the thing that I love to see, the thing that is so gratifying for a coach," Slocum said, speaking slowly for emphasis, "is he is such a great testimony to what college can do for a person. Almost day by day you can see him developing into a bright-eyed, smiling person."

"Sometimes, you just want to grab him and tell him how proud you are. I kind of saw him as a guy in the city, a forgotten face. Now, he's outgoing and likable. He's got a personality."

Nelson Buckley never told his son what to do. He never checked a report card, never laid down boundaries.

He taught his son to take care of responsibilities, since he knew he would not be around to make his son's decisions for him.

"He wouldn't tell me to do my homework or this or that," Buckley said. "He never asked to see a report card. I asked him about it once, and he said, 'I know you'll take care of your business.' I found out later he knew he wasn't going to be there later. I had to learn to take responsibility on my own."

But in high school, Buckley did "enough to get by." His grades weren't bad, but he failed to meet minimum requirements on his college entrance tests and was stamped "Prop 48."

"My freshman year was rough," Buckley said. "I couldn't practice. I couldn't work out in the weight room with the guys."

"But the worst is you get labeled. A lot of people didn't know about Prop 48 then. They just knew, 'Oh, he's our Prop 48.' They'd ask you, 'Why aren't you playing?' You'd have to tell them, 'I didn't score the minimum on the SAT.' They wouldn't say anything, but you could see them thinking, 'I scored 1,000, and he couldn't even score a 700.'

"It hurts."

But in Buckley's case, it also inspired. If nothing else, Buckley would prove that those who turned up their noses or doubted him were wrong.

"He has a determination about everything he does," Doll said. "You can see it in his eyes. He just knows he's going to do it."

Now in his junior year, Buckley is on pace to graduate within the five years allowed under his scholarship. And he recently changed his major from recreation, parks and tourism sciences to kinesiology.

Texas A&M was in the middle of two-a-day summer practices when Buckley received a call from Fort Worth.

His father had died two weeks earlier, and the landlord needed the apartment. Buckley would be evicted; he had to get home to claim his father's possessions.

"The kid is in the world all by himself, and he was so worried about missing a practice," Slocum said. "He was a young college guy having to pack away his father's things, taking care of things beyond his years, and all he was worried about is whether it would be all right to miss practice."

"It's amazing how a kid like that can turn out so good. We talk a lot of how kids go bad. Then, you see a guy like that, who had every opportunity to become a bad kid, and he's a great kid. How in the world did he come out on top of all the circumstances he was given?"

So Buckley went home and packed. He sifted through his father's things and thought about their years together. Buckley's parents had separated when he was a baby, and Nelson Buckley received custody. His son was 9 years old when emphysema struck.

"He wanted to tell me he would come see me play," Buckley said. "But I'd tell him, 'It's too far to walk, there were too many stairs. I know in my heart you want to come. That's all I need.'"

"I wanted him to see me play. I just couldn't take the chance."

"But when I was home, I realized, now he can see me play. And every time I step on the field, every practice, I know he's there. Now, I know he's watching me play. That keeps me going. When I have a bad practice or I'm not playing good, I think that he's finally there watching, and I just go take care of my business."

Just as he always has. It's just a different way to leave water by the bedside.

10-0 powers Permian, Lamar due to collide

By MIKE DRAGO

Associated Press Writer

Anticipation may be the toughest opponent No. 1 Arlington Lamar and No. 2 Odessa Permian face in the next two weeks.

Lamar and Permian enter the Class 5A Division II playoffs at 10-0 and both will be matched against weaker opponents from weaker districts in the first two rounds.

So how does Lamar coach Eddy Peach, whose team is aimed toward meeting Permian in the regional round in two weeks, keep his team's mind on Fort Worth O.D. Wyatt, which hobbles into the playoffs at 4-5?

"This is a big concern for us, but all year our kids have handled things," Peach said. "I think the big thing is that we are a playoff-experienced football team. Our kids know that if you go out there and work hard, then you have a chance to win."

If Lamar beats Wyatt, it will face either Wichita Falls Rider (7-3) or Irving MacArthur (5-5) before a possible battle against Permian in Odessa. But Peach said a victory over Wyatt isn't guaranteed.

"They opened the season against Dallas Kimball, Dallas Carter and Tyler John Tyler. Those are three of the top 15 teams in the state," Peach said. "Most people would come out of that 0-3. Since that time they're 4-2."

Peach said the Vikings are healthy except for injuries to starting right guard Chris Peters, who has an injured knee, and tight end Jason Mothey, who broke his ankle two weeks ago against Arlington Martin.

Permian coach Tam Hollingshead said his team isn't taking Amarillo Tascosa lightly, despite its 5-5 record.

"I think our players realize that at this point in the playoffs you can't do that," Hollingshead said. "Even though their record is 5-5, we feel like they're a good football team."

Pantomime performers in ancient Rome wore masks with three compartments. Each compartment had a different face.

AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BIBLES AND BIBLES AND BIBLES!

THE OLDEST PUBLISHER OF BIBLES IS THE CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS IN ENGLAND, WHICH HAS BEEN PRINTING "THE WORLD'S BEST SELLER" EVER SINCE THE YEAR 1591! HOWEVER, ENGLAND'S OXFORD PRESS BOASTS A GREATER VARIETY OF BIBLES, 160 DIFFERENT EDITIONS OF THE KING JAMES VERSION ALONE!

IN A SURVEY CONDUCTED BY THE OXFORD PRESS IT WAS FOUND THAT....

...SIXTY PERCENT OF ALL BIBLES ARE RECEIVED AS GIFTS....

...ONE FIFTH OF ALL THE BIBLES HAVE BEEN INHERITED, AND....

...THE GREAT MAJORITY OF BIBLES ARE BOUGHT BY WOMEN!

NOW HERE'S A BIG SURPRISE FOR YOU! IN A SURVEY CONDUCTED ON THE THEFT OF BOOKS FROM PUBLIC LIBRARIES THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, IT WAS FOUND THAT—CAN YOU BELIEVE IT!—THE BOOK MOST OFTEN STOLEN IS NONE OTHER THAN THE HOLY BIBLE!

NEXT WEEK: EUROPE'S FIRST CHRISTIAN CONVERT—MAN OR WOMAN?
