Deaf Smith and Swisher counties each contain areas which are among the nine still being considered by DOE for the nation's first highlevel nuclear waste dump. Last month, the Energy Department recommended the Panhandle sites be reduced in size to nine square miles apiece, which would make them more comparable to the seven other candidates.

When announcing the recommendation, DOE officials granted the state of Texas a 45-day period to accumulate comment from government officials and concerned citizens. The hearings Monday and tonight are to provide the state with information to forward to the

In additition to the two TWNPO hearings, the Texas House-Senate Joint Study Committee on Hazardous Waste Disposal has scheduled a gathering for 6 p.m. Friday in Canyon. The ballroom of West Texas State University is to host the hearing.

Staniswalis made his remarks about the DOE Wednesday at an Amarillo news conference. According to the News, he complained about the guidelines proposed by DOE and awaiting approval by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. He said methods of how sites can be eliminated from consideration are what the NRC is worried about. "In short," Staniswalis reportedly said, "the DOE is continuing the selection process without approved guidelines and without knowing if a site they choose will be a safe storage are for nuclear contaminated waste."

Comments gathered at tonight's hearing are to be based on the two large technical report volumes prepared to explain the DOE's site reduction recommendation. The reports were compiled by the Office of Nuclear Waste Isolation of the Battelle Memorial Institute, a Columbus, Ohio, firm hired by DOE. Among those who testified Tulia was Wiley Byrd,

"After asking whether those "north of the Mason-Dixie line" would get rid of nuclear waste were it valuable, Byrd declared, "We don't want Texas to be guinea pigs for those Yankees."

Don Hancock, a researcher from Albuquerque, N.M., criticized the two technical reports. "This kind of document is totally useless," he said, "should be categorized as such and DOE should be told to go back to the drawing board and start over."

DOE officials are to have opportunities to state their case at two "public information exchanges" next week. Oldham County Barn, 4th and Coke in Vega, is to host the first exchange Tuesday. Tulia's Highland Grade School, 702 N.W. 8th, is to be the site of the Thursday ses-

Woman hears kids' whereabouts

BY KIM THOGMARTIN

Staff Writer Vera Haney last saw her two oldest children in Seminole, Okla., more than 20 years ago. Her daughter Jeanne was two years old; Stephen was three.

On Easter Sunday, Haney received the telephone call she "had dreamed of getting all these years." Her daughter's two-and-a-half year search was ended-she had found her mother.

The circumstances surrounding Haney's separation from her children sound, according to Haney, like something you only read about.

Deserted by her husband, she put the children in a private home for temporary care while she gave birth to a third child, Christopher. Haney claimed she had little help from her family and it was hard to hold down a job and find care for the children at the same time.

After Chris was born, she couldn't get the children back, she said, and had no money for legal fees to fight for their custody. They were put in a children's home and later adopted to a family that she now believes "took good care of them."

Haney said her daughters efforts were finally rewarded when she found the name of the doctor who delivered her.

The doctor gave Jeanne the name of her father, whom she telephoned first. Haney said her ex-husband claimed not to know her telephone number, but put his daughter in contact with his sister, who did know how to reach her.

"When she called, I thought it was a joke at first. But when she talked she sounded so much like my younger sister I knew it had to be her," Haney said.

Haney learned that Steven, now 26, is living in Nebraska and plans to travel southward for a reunion in a couple of Haney said she has made efforts to find the two but did not have much to go on. "Now, I want the world to know that after all these years I'm going to see my kids," she declared.

J.T. and Nancy Wilcox enjoy spending time outdoors, especially in warm weather, and they are looking forward to this summer because their children are getting old enough to enjoy doing things as a family.

The couple has two sons, Matt, age 3, and Eric, who is 1 year old. "This will be Eric's first summer to play outside," said Nancy.

They enjoy walking in the evenings, cooking out in the backyard, working in the yard, and driving in the country, where the boys, who like animals, can see the cows and horses.

The family is planning a summer vacation to Dallas, where they are to visit points of interest including Sesame Street, an amusement park of sorts for small children.

"It will be the first family vacation for the four of us and I think the boys will really enjoy it," stated Nancy.

AUSTIN-A state legislator last week charged that money the Legislature appropriated to build prison cells was used to build state prison offices and warehouses.

Although his announcement went almost unnoticed amid the flurry of political campaign charges and countercharges, State Rep. Ray Keller said his probe committee has determined a trail of paperwork which has systematically concealed prison construction spending from every legislative oversight authority. Next January, as it has in the previous three sessions, the Texas Legislature will consider how much tax money to turn over to a prison system rocked with charges of overcrowding, allegations, of misappropriations of funds, and rife with a series of recent resignations by prison officials.

Keller said the latest irregularity uncovered by his House committee investigating the prison system was the construction of 60,000 square feet of offices and warehouses at prison units without the approval of the corrections board or the Legisla-

The Legislature, Keller said, had specifically intended those funds to be spent for cells for prisoners to comply with federal court orders to ease overcrowding.

Special Session

The political infighting surrounding the coming special session to raise taxes for teacher pay is more serious than ever.

Just a few days after Mark White was urged to publicize his tax hike plan, both Lt. Gov. Hobby and House Bill Speaker Gib Lewis confirmed they expected the special session to be called for May or June.

Then H. Ross Perot, the conservative chairman of the panel studying a list of public education reforms, scored teachers for being too greedy for pay while ignoring other needed changes.

Against State Board

Perot reportedly indicated he has proof that some Texas teachers are giving grades in exchange for letters opposing the reforms. Perot would not reveal the school district, but said students were reportedly told they would get a C for one letter to the Legislature, a B for two letters and an A for three letters.

He wants the 27-member elected State Board of Education replaced with a three-member panel appointed by the Governor.

Tax Options

Some observers are betting that Gov. White will push for increases in the sales and gasoline taxes to raise the $1.6 billion needed for reforms.

White said he may also include higher "sin" taxes, those on liquor, tobacco and some other "luxury" items.

He also said he wants teachers to receive a twoyear, 24 percent pay raise.

Other acceptable reforms include equalization of aid to school districts, improved teacher-student ratios, language development and more remedial and advanced programs.

Bill Clements

White's old nemesis, former Republican Gov. Bill Clements, last week sent out a fundraising letter for President Reagan which blasts White as a mediocre governor who wants to unseat the presi-

DALLAS (AP) - Civil rights activist Al Lipscomb, whose previous outbursts during City Council meetings prompted his removal from the chamber, has been sworn in as a member of the council.

He took office Wednesday after winning two elections in the Southeast Oak Cliff district, including garnering 60 percent of the vote in a runoff.

Lipscomb had been tossed out of council meetings for his strident speeches on civil rights and social justice, and had hurled charges of racism against the city's highest elected officials. But as 300 friends, relatives and constituents looked on Wednesday, Lipscomb was

Defense promises witness

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) - A defense attorney in the murder trial of former prison inmate Eroy Brown has promised that a "surprise witness" would testify before testimony ends in the case.

Brown faces charges of murder in connection with the shooting of Ellis Unit prison farm manager Billy Max Moore in April 1981.

"We're saving the best for last," said Kent Schaffer, cocounsel with state senator Craig Washington of Houston.

'The testimony this person gives will be worth the price of admission. When you hear our new evidence, you'll know you've heard it," he said, referring to a promise by prosecutors to present "new scientific evidence" that has yet to materialize.

"Remember, the opera ain't over 'til the fat lady sings," said Schaffer, declining to provide details about the surprise witness. Dozens of witnesses have already testified in Brown's two previous trials in connection with the drowning death of Warden Wallace Pack. Pack was with Moore on April 4, 1981 when the killings took place.

Brown's first trial ended in a hung jury and the second panel found Brown innocent. Defense attorneys began presenting Brown's version of the Moore murder Wednes-James Solomon, an inmate who was an eyewitness at the shooting, was expected to be called by the defense. Solomon testified Monday for the state.

He said he saw Brown grab Moore by the shoulder, force him to his knees and shoot him in the head.

In opening remarks Wednesday, Washington said the two prison officials beat, kicked and held a pistol at Brown's head the day of the shooting because they feared he told other inmates Moore and Pack were stealing state

"Over a period of time, at the request of Major Moore and in violation of the law" Brown had helped Moore steal tires, car equipment, propane gas and fertilizer, Washington said.

Complaining one day to a group of fellow inmates about a furlough that had been denied, Brown, then a prison trustee, was confronted by an official who overheard his conversation.

Brown told prison supervisor William "Boss" Adams, "As much as I've done for you and Major Moore, it seems you could do something for me,

Washington said. Adams thought Brown was threatening to squeal and took him to Moore who was off duty that Saturday and fishing nearby, Washington

"Nigger, what're you doing running your head with the other convicts," Washington told the jury Moore said, adding that "running your head" is a jail term to be explained during testimony.

Moore and Adams, with Brown between them in the truck, then beat him on the chest, back and made him remove his shoes so they could kick his feet, Washington said.

Moore then called Pack

Washington said. Brown tried to tell Pack he hadn't threatened to reaveal the theft ring, but Pack responded, "Nigger, just close your mouth cause you've done got yourself in a wreck," said Washington, explaining the jurors would learn later that wreck was jail slang for a special kind of

'River Run' battles disease in Big Bend country

By JEFF COLLINS El Paso Times

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -West Texas' Big Bend country rolls out like an endless carpet of desert, anchored by mountains on the horizons.

"You can hear the quietners." observed Frank Pulattie, superintendent at the Terlingua School just outside the Big Bend National Park. "It's a shame you can't capture some of these scenes. ... It's some of the prettiest scenery that there is.

Despite this richness, however, the region is poor when it comes to health care.

Not counting El Paso, the state's five westernmost counties have almost as much land as the nation's five smallest states.

Yet, they have only 10 to 12 doctors and two hospitals, said Charles Mallory, regional immunization director for the Texas Health Until recently, this boundless borderland also had been a breeding ground for contagious diseases particularly tuberculosis.

While five rural counties had just 5 percent of the West Texas population, it had 10 percent of the TB cases, Dr.

Earl Gorby of the state health department said.

That picture is vastly changed today, however, thanks to the River Run.

First organized in 1970, the River Run allows state health officials to take their clinics on the road in their battle against disease.

Armed with vaccinations and a mobile X-ray van, they first battled TB, then later added immunization clinics to control other contagious diseases.

Fourteen years later, the number of TB cases and unvaccinated school children have dwindled to acceptable

For example, West Texas had an average of 42.6 tuberculosis cases per 100,000 people in 1972, compared with a rate of only 21 per 100,000 in the state as a whole. In Presidio County alone, the TB rate was 425.3 cases per 100,000, state health statistics show. But by 1982, the West Texas TB rate had dropped to 15.5 cases per 100,000. That compares with a rate of 13.7 statewide.

Last month, state health officials from El Paso, Alpine and Marfa again took the River Run on the road. During the two-day trip, health officials had immunization clinics in four outlying villages and vaccinated more than 200 people.

Along the way, several people were examined for a variety of maladies, but only one of them was a tuberculosis patient.

Years ago, Gorby said, he would have 10 to 15 active cases just in Presidio, a border hamlet about 200 miles southeast of El Paso.

When Dr. John Bradley, the state's regional health director, first started the River Run, the trek wasn't as easy as last week's expedition, health officials said.

but four-wheel-drive vehicles. And many of the clinics had to be outdoors, sometimes off the tailgate of the health department truck. What they used to call the River Run was a weeklong of hard driving," recalled Doralene Lassiter, a state health department nurse for Presidio County.

"I was coming out for a week every two months," Gorby added. "Now I come out for two days three times a vear."

In an area where "there's no real border and no real border patrol," as Mallory put it, populations from Texas and Mexico mix with each another and are exposed to each other's diseases.

Health officials still check for tuberculosis on the River Run, their main tool being the TB skin test.

natural immune system usually controls it, but some cases develop into full-fledged infections.

The lungs are the most common place for the infection to settle, and if unattended, tuberculosis will eat them away and leave big cavities. But it also can spread to other parts of the body, such as the kidneys, tissues covering the brain and lymph nodes.

Since 1952, however, a variety of drugs have been available that can wipe TB out - even after the lungs have been damaged. In most cases, Gorby said, the lungs repair themselves after the infection is arrested.

Apart from TB control, the health department provides vaccinations.

The vaccinations protect the patients from diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), polio, measles, mumps and rubella. When 80 percent of a population is immunized, it's difficult for an epidemic to start. In some school districts reached by the River Run, the immunization rate is 100 percent, Mallory said.

The success of the effort was shown about five years ago, Gorby said, when a measles epidemic broke out across the river from Lajitas, just west of Big Bend National Park. The epidemic never spread to the U.S. side of the border. training for jobs requiring

Cause of death unknown Tragedy strikes family again

By MADELYN MILLER Associated Press Writer

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Doctors are analyzing tissue and body fluid to find out what killed 28-year-old David Anthony Kennedy, whose erratic life and battle with drugs in the 16 years since he watched his father assassinated on television had long troubled America's most famous family.

"Drugs, I would say, are a strong possibility," Rick Black, investigator for the Palm Beach County medical examiner, said after an autopsy was performed Wednesday. "With the types of problems he's had, I guess that's not surprising."

Kennedy, the fourth of child of Ethel Kennedy and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was found by a hotel secretary on the floor between two beds of his suite in the posh Brazilian

Court Hotel. His body was to be flown today to Virginia, site of his family's Hickory Hill estate, said a spokesman for the Quattlebaum-Holleman-Burse Funeral Home in West Palm Beach. He and his brother Douglas, who had left the hotel the day before, had checked in last week to visit their grandmother, 93-yearold Rose Kennedy, at the family's mansion several miles away.

"This is a very difficult time for all the members of our family, including David's mother, Ethel, and his brothers and sisters who tried so hard to help him in recent years," David's uncle, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said in a statement Wednes-

"All of us loved him very much," the senator said. With trust in God, we all pray that David has finally found the peace that he did not find in life."

No drugs or drug paraphernalia were found in the room, where a hotel secretary found the body, and there were no signs of violence or foul play, said Police Chief Joe Terlizzese.

"There were no pills found in the stomach. And there was no real aroma of alcohol but that is something that will have to await the results of the tests," Black said.

Palm Beach Police Sgt. Henry Marchman said it will be several days before chemical test results pinpoint the cause of death.

We've pretty well ruled out the possibility of a suicide. That just wasn't in his profile. Homicide is always in the back of your mind when something like this happens, but we're leaning toward a natural or accidental cause," Black said.

A Harvard University dropout, Kennedy had an apartment in Boston and had worked as an intern at Atlantic Monthly magazine for five months in 1982 and 1983.

Kennedy's problems with drugs came to light in 1979 when he reported being robbed of $30 in a seedy Harlem hotel where police said he had gone to buy narcotics. He was hospitalized with a heart infection often associated with drug abuse.

Friends and biographers said Kennedy had been troubled since age 12 when, on the night of June 5, 1968, he sat alone in a California hotel room and watched on television as his father, a Democratic presidential candidate, was killed by an assassin after beating Sen. Eugene McCarthy in the California primary.

DALLAS (AP) - There will be only half the usual number of Dallas Maverick fans in attendance tonight in the deciding National Basketball Association playoff game with Seattle, but the noise could be twice as loud.

The Mavericks drew backto-back sellout crowds of 17,007 in Reunion Arena against Seattle but the World Championship of Tennis has the facility rented this week.

Moody Coliseum on the campus of Southern Methodist University will be the site for the 7 p.m.. CST tipoff. It holds about 9,500

Warriors to have carwash

The Hereford Warriors, a local semi-pro football team forming this year, is having a car wash to raise money to purchase team uniforms, according to club spokesman Matt Morgan. .

The carwash will take place Saturday at Taco Villa from 1-5 p.m.

Morgan said a final team roster of about 25 players is in the process of being completed. The Warriors will have a full-contact practice 1 p.m. Sunday at the La Plata

To retire with title belt

Mancini has lightweight boxing dream Jack Dempsey, one of the "I can slowly feel the desire think you could do that, you great heavyweight champions, was knocked out only once in his career, by Jim

Throughout boxing history, the lightweight championship frequently has served something of a bus stop, a layover point on the road to the welterweight and sometime even middleweight

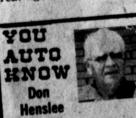

For Ray "Boom Boom" divisions. Mancini, however, the 135-pound title was his dream. It has been his accomplishment. He wants it to be his legacy. "I have one small goal," Mancini said from his training camp in Lake Tahoe, Nev., where he is preparing for his June 1 World Boxing Association title defense against Livingstone Bramble in Buffalo, N.Y. "I want to retire with the belt. No lightweight champion has ever done that. They all either got beat or moved up to another division. I want to keep the lightweight belt. That would be nice, to be the first one to do that." No man was lightweight champion longer than Benny Leonard, who ruled the division from May 28, 1917 until Jan. 15, 1925. Then he retired, undefeated. Six years later, he returned - as a welterweight.

Barney Ross, Henry Armstrong, Alexis Arguello - all great lightweight kings each me," pledged Mancini. "I won't get out until the desire is gone. Then, when I do, I won't come back." They all say that. But Ray Mancini insists that he means

"Right now, I'm having fun. My heart is in the game. If it wasn't fun, I couldn't do it. But it's borrowed time. It won't last forever," he said.

So Mancini thinks of broadcasting or acting, non-ring activities people have talked about with him. "A year or year and a half ago, if you had suggested that to me, I'd laugh at you," he said. "Now it could be reality. It would be fun to try."

It all depends on how long Mancini wants to continue leaving. I still train hard. I still get excited as the fight gets closer. But I can feel the difference. Maybe it's a half percent, maybe a percent." "That won't happen with It's a little less than it was. And when will it be too little for him to continue? "Not long," he said. "This won't be my last fight. I still have some fights I want to have. But it's getting closer. I can feel that. When it happens, it'll shock a lot of people, but not myself or my family." The shock will be that when he retires from the ring, Mancini will not be very old. He is only 23 now. But he has been at this demanding business as a pro since he was 18 and he has had 30 fights, a heavy schedule. He became champion at 21. "I was blessed, winning the championship that young, he said. "That's the only dream of a boxer - the championship. If you didn't wouldn't get into it in the first place. There are easier ways to make a living.'

When you win one title, though, it's human nature to want another. That's what drove the other great lightweights up the ladder into other divisions. Mancini is not into that kind of history.

"Three and four-time champions? It's hard enough to be a one-time champion, he said. "I'm satisfied with that. And I'll be able to walk away.

National League roundup Padres take first in western division

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Tony Gwynn and his manager at San Diego, Dick Williams, have a slight disagreement, it seems. Gwynn doesn't believe he'll ever hit .400. Williams thinks he might.

With two hits in four trips, including a home run, Gwynn raised his batting average to .464 Wednesday night against the San Francisco Giants. He has 15 hits in his last 26 at-bats for a .577 average. "There's no way I'm going to hit .400, I know that," Gwynn said. "I just want to continue to do the best I can."

Gwynn's homer, and another by Kevin McReynolds, gave Padres pitchers Eric Show and Rich Gossage all the runs they needed for a 3-0 victory over San Francisco, enabling the Padres to sweep the threegame set and remain 11/2 games ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

Show, 3-1, gave up three hits in seven innings, and Gossage was perfect over the final two for a major leagueleading seventh save.

'He's a natural," Williams said of Gwynn. "He won't be a .460 or .465 hitter, but I think it's conceivable he could hit .400. He'll get a lot of good pitches hitting behind (leadoff hitter Alan) Wiggins. He's the kind of hitter who can guide

Gwynn, who hit .309 in 86 games for the Padres last season, credits his Puerto Rico winter ball coach, Harry Dunlop, with teaching him how to spray the ball around. He says he spent 11/2 months in Puerto Rico "learning to go with the pitches. I spent a lot of time with Harry Dunlop, and he taught me how to go with the ball."

Appeals Court stays executions of two inmates

HUNTSVILLE, Texas Appeals in New Orleans (AP) - A federal appeals court spared the life of a Texas Death Row inmate scheduled for execution early Friday for killing a convenience store clerk, and it granted a reprieve for another prisoner ordered to die May 4 for fatally shooting a liquor store owner.

Jesse de la Rosa had already filed a list of friends and relatives he wanted to witness his execution, set before dawn Friday, when the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of winning team to score

granted a stay Wednesday.

De la Rosa was convicted of killing a San Antonio convenience store clerk in a 1979 robbery that netted only a six-pack of beer.

The appeals court agreed to hear an appeal filed by de la Rosa's attorney, Ron Guyer of San Antonio. Guyer argued that an anecdote a juror told while deliberating de la Rosa's fate constituted jury misconduct.

The 5th Circuit on Wednesday also blocked the scheduled May 4 execution of Charles Milton, who was sentenced to death for the 1977 of a Fort Worth liquor store owner.

Milton, 33, previously won a stay four days before his scheduled execution on Sept. 15, 1981

The appeals court, in an unsigned opinion, called for oral arguments in the case.

The court's statement said in part: "We are persuaded that proper consideration of the case requires oral arguments and a fair opportunity to review the transcript as well as relavent parts of the orginal 17 volumnes of trial transcripts."

De La Rosa's stay saved him from becoming the fourth man executed with a combination of deadly drugs in Texas since December 1982. Before the 5th Circuit's decision was announced, prison officials released a list of witnesses the 23-year-old de la Rosa had chosen to be at

The list included the convict's stepmother, Carmen de la Rosa; his father, Luciano de la Rosa; his mother-inlaw, Dolores Corrales; and two friends, Beckie Cortez and Martha Pena.

De la Rosa, on the advice of his attorney, declined to talk with reporters Wednesday, the only day Death Row inmates can be interviewed. Other inmates who agreed to be interviewed generally refused to discuss de la Rosa.

"If he doesn't want to come out and talk to the press, I'm certainly not going to do it for him," said J. Kelly Pinkerton, who is scheduled to die May 31. "If his attorney has advised him not to talk, that's probably good advice."

De la Rosa was moved into the general prison population off Death Row earlier this year and was working in the prison system's dental unit until his execution was set, officials said.

His appeal moved to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans Tuesday after U.S. District Judge H.F. Garcia of San Antonio, without request for a stay of execu-

The appeal filed with the 5th circuit outlined a "multitude of errors," Guyer said, but the "most glaring" concerned jury misconduct during the punishment phase of de la Rosa's 1981 trial.

"While they were trying to decide whether the sentence should be death or life in prison, one juror - a 73-yearold black minister - related a story. He said he had a stepfather who had murdered, been released and then murdered again. He said 'I think it's easier the second time," Guyer said.

"Eight jurors acknowledged hearing the story. One said it occurred after the verdict was reached, but the other seven disagreed," he said.

Ann Landers Keep opinion quiet

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please take the time to help me and other parents whose children are going with someone who is not good enough for them.

I have spoken to my 21-year-old several times about her sloppy, un-motivated boyfriend and have gotten nowhere. I realize I should stay off this subject because it is ruining our relationship. But how does a mother keep her mouth shut? It is so hard not to assume the role of a parent when we love our children and see them heading in the wrong direction. It is killing me to see our bright and promising daughter throw herself away on a young man who is painfully inferior.

Is there a solution?--Newsday Reader In N.Y.

DEAR NEW YORK: Having expressed your opinion once, you must zip your lip especially when the child is Too often rebellious sons and daughters hang on to the poor choice because they hate to admit they are wrong. One 22-year-old wrote just yesterday, "I'd have dumped the nerd long ago, but I hated to give my mother the satisfac-

So cool it, dear. You have nothing to lose and the results may be wonderful.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old boy whose 23-year-old brother has been in prison four years. Six months ago I wrote to him for the first time. I explained that I had been angry because he messed up and it had taken me quite a while to forgive him, but I was now ready to be his friend. He wrote back immediately saying he understood my feelings, and we began corresponding regularly. I described my goals in life and what I wanted to accomplish. He began to advise me on how to get along in the world.

Some of his ideas didn't sit right. For example, he said, "You can learn a lot from the streets. Always be a leader, never a follower. Don't let anyone know what you are up to. Be unpredictable."

I let him know I didn't agree with his ideas and was determined to stay out of trouble because of what had happened to him. He never wrote to me after that. A few weeks ago I dropped him a line saying everyone is entitled to his own opinion, and I wished he would write.

Still no answer. What happened? What should I do?-

DEAR O .: Your brother got turned off when you rejected his ideas on how to get along in the world.

Make no attempt to reestablish communication. If he writes again, tell him about the family, send newspaper clippings and avoid getting into anything heavy. I don't think you can learn anything of value from

Cook-Off Scheduled

A chili cook-off and open house has been set for Saturday at New Holland. The cook-off will begin at approximately 12 noon with the public invited to attend. During the event, a half of a processed beef will be auctioned off with proceeds being donated to the Senior Citizens. Donating the beef is Art Reinauer, (at right) owner and manager of La Escarbada XIT Vineyard and Winery Inc. He is shown with New Holland manager Pat Woodard.

Flying Queens basketball camp slated in Plainview

PLAINVIEW, Tx (Special)- Wayland Flying Queens Coach Dave Ketterman has announced dates for the annual Flying Queens Basketball Camp, scheduled for three week-long sessions in June.

The camp, which annually draws more than 400 girls over the three-week period, is considered one of the best in the state and this year will be no exception. Ketterman and assistant Melissa McFerrin will join a host of outstanding high school and college coaches in all three sessions, scheduled June 3-8, 10-15 and Personal attention and insruction is a priority and enrollment in each session is limited to 140 for that reason. The cast of coaches and Flying Queen team members will provide individual instruction in fundamentals such as shooting, passing, dribbling, rebounding and team offense and defense. Emphasis is also placed on pride, teamwork, motivation.

Cost of the camp is $135 and a $35 deposit is required with application. Girls in grades five through 12 are eligible, but must meet Texas UIL rules. Out-of-state campers grades five through 12 are welcome to attend.

For more information, contact Ketterman at the Wayland Athletic Office or write him in care of Wayland Baptist University, 1900 W. 7th, Plainview, Tx. 79072 for a free brochure.

Houston woman sentenced to death

HOUSTON (AP) - Convicted pickax killer Karla Faye Tucker, sentenced to die for hacking to death a Houston man last year, becomes the only woman among 178 convicted murderers on Texas' Death

A jury of eight women and four men took nearly three hours Wednesday before deciding the 24-year-old Houston woman should be executed by lethal injection for the June 13 slaying of Jerry Lynn Dean. The same jury last week found her guilty of capital murder.

Ms. Tucker, who took the stand Tuesday and described a life of constant drug use that began at age 8, showed little emotion as the formal death sentence was read by state District Judge Patricia Lykos.

No woman has been executed in Texas in more than a half century.

Her attorney, Mack Arnold, said although Ms. Tucker had expected the decision, she was upset.

"She thanked us for trying. She asked if she could hug us and said she appreciated our help," Arnold said after meeting privately with his "It was a sad client.

Ms. Tucker, who switched from marijuana to heroin at age 10, toured with the Allman Brothers Band, a rock group, at 13, married at 17 and turned prostitute to support her drug habit, was accused of hitting Dean 21 times with a 3-foot-long pickax.

"I'm never pleased in having anyone sentenced to death but she is a violent person who committed as violent acts as anyone ever could have committed," Prosecutor Joe Magliolo said.

Besides having the distinction of being the lone female on Death Row, Texas Department of Corrections, statistics indicate she is one of only 13 women nationwide to be awaiting execution.

Jury foreman C.M. Anderson, the only juror to have any comment, would say only that the decision was a difficult one.

without question, ne sa The jury had two choices life in prison or death.

Arnold said jurors, in a brief conversation with attorneys, told him they had looked for reasons to vote against the death penalty but could find none. By state law, the capital murder conviction and subseautomatically will be appeal-

Arnold had attempted to convince the jury that Ms. Tucker should be given a life prison term because she would not be a threat if kept in a drug-free environment.

Magliolo argued she had a history of violence and was not likely to change her violent personality.

He also warned jurors in final arguments that if she were not sentenced to death, it would be a "license" to kill for "all those other dopers out there" who never would have to worry about the death penalty for murder.

A defense psychologist testified that drugs had placed the woman in a "temporary state of psychosis" when she and a companion, Danny Garrett, entered Dean's apartment to steal motorcycle parts, discovered Dean was asleep and then beat and axed him to death.

A woman in the room with Dean, Deborah Thornton, also was hacked to death.

But a prosecution psychiatrist said he found Ms. Tucker had no evidence of mental illness, despite the long years of drug use.

Garrett faces trial beginning next week on murder charges in the case. Attorneys said they would decide later whether Ms. Tucker also should be tried for the Thornton slaying.

Ms. Tucker, in nearly five hours on the stand Tuesday, said the Dean slaying was triggered by her hate for him after he destroyed the only photos she had of her mother, who died a few years ago. Dean was married to a longtime friend of the defendant, Shawn Jackson Dean. Key evidence in the case was a tape recording on which Ms. Tucker bragged about how she hacked Dean and Ms. Thorton to death and had an orgasm with each stroke of the ax. On the stand, she denied getting sexual satisfaction and said the statements were made merely to impress her friends.

But she said she was sorry for the killings and no punishment could be enough for her.

Magliolo asked if that meant she was favoring her own death sentence. "I've "Absolutely, that goes thought about that," she said. "I don't know what I'm ask-

Ms. Tucker said gurgling sounds from Dean's body drove her to keep swinging the ax into Dean after Garrett beat Dean with a hammer.

"I just wanted to make the noise stop," she said.

Ms. Thornton, huddled under a blanket on the floor of quent death sentence the room in Dean's apartment, was killed because she was a witness, Ms. Tucker said.

At least one member of the state board will attend each hearing and members of the Legislature are expected to attend.

Gov. Mark White has said he will call a special session of the Legislature to consider the Select Committee's recommendations in late May or June, if he has a concensus of support from Senate and House leaders.

One of the recommendations of the Select Committee, hotly opposed by Butler and some others, was a proposal that the 27-member state board elected from congressional districts be junked in favor of a smaller appointed

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Hereford is soliciting proposals from qualified individuals or firms for planning assistance in preparation of an application(s) for Federal Programs and for management, administrative, planning, engineering, and architectural services required by the City for implementation of the Program should it be funded by the Federal Agen-

Proposals will be considered by the City at a meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. on the 7th day of May, 1983. In order to be considered, proposals must be submitted prior to 10:00 a.m. on the 4th day of May, 1983. The City reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

Upon receipt, all proposals will be thoroughly evaluated by the City. Once this evaluation has been completed, all responsible offerers will be placed in rank order. All offerers will be notified of these results and of the City's intent to initiate negotiations with its first choice. Should negotiations with the City's first choice fail to produce a satisfactory agreement, all negotiations with the first choice will be terminated and the City's second choice will be notified, and so on. These procedures will be followed until a satisfactory agreement and contract has been approved and executed.

It is the City's intention to ultimately contract with the responsible offerer whose proposal and subsequent negotiations are determined to be the most advantageous to the City, all factors con-sidered, including but not limited to a) understanding of the project b), qualifications of key personnel, c) services proposed, d) prior experience with projects of this type,e)

Slowing economy expected this year

NEW YORK (AP) -Strong new evidence of a slowing economy is expected in the next few days.

When the government

The forecasting firm of Evans Economics projects a 0.8 percent decline, with the chance that it could be as large as 1.5 percent.

At the investment firm of A.G. Becker Paribas, economist Richard Hoey sees a drop of between 0.4 percent and 1 percent, with 0.7 percent the most probable reading.

The index, calculated by the Commerce Department, is designed to detect future economic trends by measuring early warning signals in such things as building permits, prices of certain raw materials, business formations and even stock prices.

private Because economists have access to these figures as well, they can estimate in advance what the government report will look like.

The index is not infallible, most experts agree. It can give errant signals at times and, like many other official gauges of the economy, it is subject to revision later on when more complete data are

Health Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I've had several attacks of vertigo and continuous vomiting for hours at a time. An examination established that I have Meniere's disease. The last time I was in the emergency room an injec-tion of Compazine stopped the vertigo and vomiting in about 15 minutes.

I thought the ear, nose and throat specialist would prescribe Antivert to prevent future attacks, so I was surprised when he pre-scribed Valium. The only time I take it is when I feel dizzy and it relieves the condition in a few minutes. So far I've been able to stay away from the emer-gency room. But I certainly have no intention of becoming addicted to Valium.

DEAR READER Meniere's disease involves the balance canals of the inner ear and is characterized by a low, constant humming or buzzing in the ears, as well as attacks of vertigo (balance problems) and impairment of hearing.

Valum is thought of as a tranquilizer, but it also suppresses the stimuli from the balance mechanism of the ear that causes vertigo. It's able to control the symp-toms in Meniere's disease in about 60 to 70 percent of cases. It also helps to reduce the anxiety that often accompanies such an attack.
You shouldn't have any problem with becoming dependent on Valium taking it as infrequently as you do. Even if you had to take it continuously for a week, it probably wouldn't cause addiction. However, the longer it's taken consistent-ly, the greater the chance of

If your definition of a virgin is one whose hymen is unruptured, anything that breaks it would eliminate virginity. But that's a useless definition when you consider the membrane at the outlet of the vagina has to be perforated or partially open to allow normal menstruation. It can be further torn by athletics.

many observers believe a dropoff in business activity is indeed at hand - and none too soon, they say. As Evans Economics puts it, "Last year the economy went on a binge. We are now paying for that binge in the form of higher inflation and higher interest rates." Jack Lavery, economist at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, observes that "continued strong gains in overall business activity would add to the nervousness in the financial markets, since upward pressure on both interest rates and inflation would intensify.

"Conversely, if the economy is in a 'transition' phase, moving from a period of rapid growth to a more moderate pace of expansion, a subsequent easing in credit conditions materialize." Lavery argues that there already is evidence in hand that this transition is taking place - including recent declines in retail sales and a downward turn in measur . . of consumer confidence.

In the view of Lavery and others, all this means that there could be quite a damatic change in the picture presented by the economy for the second quarter of the year compared to the first quarter. The gross national product, according to the latest figures, grew at a powerful 8.3 percent annual rate, after adjustment for inflation, in the first quarter. As long as a slowdown doesn't open the doors to a new recession, most economists agree it would be a favorable turn of events, putting the economy at a pace that can be sustained over time without causing a lot of adverse side effects. It presumably could encourage the Federal Reserve to loosen up on its credit policy.

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for homemade curry powder to use in making Indian curries? — SHARON — DEAR SHARON — Authentic Indian curried dishes are made with complex combinations of spices, individually tailored to each particular dish. The spices are best used freshly ground. What is sold in supermarkets as "curry powder" is at best a pale imitation of the flavors that make Indian cooking so seductive and delicious. An all-purpose mixture can be useful, however, when you're in a hurry or just want to add an exotic flavor to some dish. The following just want to add an exotic flavor to some dish. The following recipe, when made with absolutely fresh spices, is much more flavorful than ordinary commercial mixtures. teaspoons cumin powder, eight teaspoons cayenne pepper and sixteen teaspoons coriander powder. Store in a jar or can with a tight lid. Curry powder: Mix two teaspoons turmeric powder, four

This recipe is from "The Spice Box: Vegetarian Indian Cookbook," by Manja Shivraj Singh (1981; The Crossing Press), which also offers recipes for many excellent, easily made Indian curries featuring a variety of vegetables, as well as Indian snacks, breads, chutneys and sweets. — POL-
