Bass executed early today

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Charles Bass, whose criminal career began as a juvenile delinquent and culminated with the slaying of a Houston lawman, was put to death early today by injection.

"Don't feel bad, Mama, I deserve this," Bass told his mother, Rose England, who was sobbing in the death chamber. "Tell everybody bye."

"God's going to take care of you," she replied. "I love you, sweetheart."

He took two deep breaths, looked at his mother and then stared at the ceiling. He was pronounced dead at 12:21 a.m.

Bass, 29, became the 11th inmate to be executed in Texas since the Supreme Court allowed the death penalty to resume 10 years ago.

The high court late Tuesday refused to block the injection, dismissing by a 7-2 vote arguments that Bass did not get a fair trial because of an alleged conflict of interest involving his trial attorney.

Bass was convicted in 1980 of killing a Houston city marshal, Charles Baker, after Baker and a partner stopped him during an investigation of a $300 robbery. Bass was walking down a street when the police officers pulled up.

A struggle ensued as the officers were questioning him. Baker was shot twice and died of his wounds. Bass was wounded in the gunfight, but fled and was arrested four days later in Kentucky.

"I seen Baker pointing his gun at me. I turned and shot him again. I knew I shot him," Bass said in his last interview a week ago.

Bass said he had been drinking and thought the police car was a taxicab. He insisted the shooting was in self defense.

Bert Graham, the assistant district attorney who prosecuted Bass, termed the execution "a matter of self-defense for society."

"You never wish some ill on anyone, but he has demonstrated that if society doesn't put an end to his life, he is going to put an end to some innocent's life," Graham said.

SWAT team attacks gypsy ants

AUSTIN (AP) — They came from East Texas, clinging to oak trees. They wound up in Lubbock, where the experts said the cold winters would kill them.

But they survived for three years, depending on sprinkler systems for moisture, house foundations for warmth and landscaping for protection from High Plains winds.

Today, state officials opened war on them. Armed with maps showing 207 mounds, the Texas Department of Agriculture's new "swat team" began poisoning what the agency is calling the "gypsy fire ants."

"This colony has significantly changed our thinking on how far north the ants can naturally progress. We had originally believed that a 10- to 20-degree minimum temperature line, which is about 100 miles south of Lubbock, would stop them," said Dr. A. Ann Sorensen, a TDA pest management specialist.

"That may not be the case. This is definitely not good news," she said Tuesday.

The gypsy ants arrived in Lubbock on a shipment of oak trees from East Texas, a heavily infested region. Lubbock is about 200 miles from the nearest infested area.

The gypsies were discovered after about two years in a residential part of Lubbock, according to the agriculture department. Instead of killing them at the time, TDA and Texas Tech University researchers decided to see if the ants could survive winter.

The insects did.

"The ants were aided by being in a residential area with underground sprinklers for moisture, a network of foundations which served as natural heaters for the mounds and extensive landscaping which served as a windbreak," said TDA spokesman Roger Mulder.

Snow provided insulation for the ants' underground home, he said.

TDA's new "swat team" planned to drench the colonies with dursban. The area will be treated later with Amdro as a back-up to the initial treatment.

Ms. Sorensen said the Lubbock gypsy ants could prove that the fire ants are adapting to cold weather more quickly than researchers thought possible.

Bull market returns with vengeance

NEW YORK (AP) — The bull market returned with a vengeance as the Dow Jones industrial average posted its second-biggest gain ever to a record 1,746.05.

Analysts said the gains Tuesday came because investors were encouraged by falling interest rates and signs the oil market might be stabilizing.

The Dow average of 30 industrials jumped 43.10 on Tuesday for its biggest gain since it soared a record 43.41 on Nov. 3, 1962. The previous closing high for the average had been 1,713.99 on Feb. 27 of this year.

Along with the various measures of New York Stock Exchange issues, indexes for the over-the-counter market and the American Stock Exchange hit new peaks.

Big Board volume came to 187.27 million shares, the fifth-largest total ever, against 129.93 million in the previous session.

Tax bill could increase cost of owning home

The proposed tax bill passed by the U.S. House and under study by the Senate, could increase the cost of owning a home, it was reported this week by Marn Tyler, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors.

Mrs. Tyler said the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR), at its recent mid-winter meeting, approved a resolution to request that the National Association of Realtors "strongly oppose any attempt to make provisions of the Tax Reform Act retroactive."

NAR President Clark Wallace noted that enactment of the tax revision bill as currently proposed would increase the cost of home ownership, discourage real estate investment and negatively impact the economy through loss of jobs and increased rent.

As the bill is proposed, said Mrs. Tyler, a typical middle-income homeowner family living in an average $85,000 home would experience a $1,000 or 14 percent increase in the annual costs of owning a home.

The House bill specifies that a taxpayer who itemizes could claim only $1,500 for each personal exemption, as opposed to $2,000 per personal exemption if the taxpayer does not itemize. Therefore, even though the tax plan claims to preserve the property tax deduction for homeowners, this provision would more than take back the tax deduction for a typical family of four, Mrs. Tyler explained.

NAR analysts predict a significant decrease in investment in the commercial and rental real estate areas under the current House-approved plan. Lengthened depreciation periods and increased capital gains tax would result in less construction and high rents, thus hindering economic growth, according to the analysts. They add that depreciation benefits would be reduced by more than 60 percent, likely causing rental increases of $40 per month on the average apartment.

The Amarillo Panhandle chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association is trying to branch out.

"Right now we are trying to get the smaller towns to form satellite support groups. We want them to meet on a different day of the week other than our scheduled chapter meetings on the second Thursday of each month," says Virginia Worcester, Amarillo chapter president.

She explained that the meetings are vital for some families which have an Alzheimer's victim in their home.

Joanne Munday, caseworker and daughter of Worcester, will be guest speaker at Thursday's meeting in Amarillo at 1400 Wallace Boulevard at 6 p.m.

Her topic will cover children in the home of Alzheimer's victims, acceptance and understanding of the disease, and communication lines concerning health changes accompanied by strange behavior.

"We work as a referral system," she said of the organization. "We are just a hope line for most of the people. They have to release their tensions, fears and generally need to just get go."

Worcester explained that the support group is for an exchange of ideas to reduce the trauma of the deterioration of an Alzheimer's patient.

"It's a 36-hour day for most families who cannot afford the care of the patient," said Worcester. "There are not enough volunteers who will accept the responsibility of an Alzheimer's victim—even for short periods of time."

Worcester said knowledge is the key word about Alzheimer's disease. "The cause is unknown and the cure is unknown, thus it is hard to face and accept the destruction of a loved one they see," she explained.

"In the early stages of the disease, they realize something is wrong but won't admit it, nor will they try to find out what is wrong," said Worcester. The patient's family will curtail social activities because they can't recognize any faces.

"The forgetfulness, the disorientation and general confusion, the gradual loss of time factors, all are a part of Alzheimer's disease," said Worcester.

Worcester got involved in the Alzheimer's chapter in Amarillo because she had a front row seat to the disease — her husband had it.

He was diagnosed in February 1969, but his symptoms appeared as early as 1961.

Worcester's husband was a tech sergeant in the United States Air Force for 24 years, so the Veterans Administration pays for his care.

"I am one of the few that can get the full benefits," said Worcester. "At least this allowed me to keep our five children in school and maintain home and provide an education for them."

"As a family we are totally unlucky, in that the children ranged in age from 8 months to 6 years at the recognizable point of onset when it got so bad to be seen by others outside the family," said Worcester.

"I lived so many years with no one to talk to, no assistance in this disease, and many friends left because they couldn't understand or accept his behavior patterns," explained Worcester.

"People cannot accept this, even today, because they assume any mental problem is craziness," said Worcester. "This is where most people place the stigma because they were taught that a person with mental problems were to be locked up, and not to discuss it."

"We have diagnosed patients that are afraid to call or write for material for fear that someone might assume they are the victims," said Worcester, adding that others do not ask for help because they have not accepted the diagnosis.

The support group started with a meeting of six person at the Amarillo Public Library. The group has grown to 150 with 23 smaller groups that meet regularly but are not chapters or affiliates, Worcester said.

The Amarillo chapter has started 11 other chapters and affiliates through the work of Becky McGee, appointed by the national Alzheimer's group to be the state liaison.

Financial support of the group comes from membership fees of $10 a family, $25 for an agency, memorials, honorariums, and regular donations.

The Amarillo Alzheimer's office has no paid employees and Worcester is the only full-time person in the office.

"The Amarillo chapter is the second and most active Alzheimer's organization in the state and shall continue to do so until both Becky and I are physically or financially unable," smiled Worcester.

"What is so forbidding about Alzheimer's disease is that the older you get, the higher your chances are that you'll fall victim," said Worcester.

Worcester said that of the three million victims of Alzheimer's, 78,000 are Texans. Another reports showed that 70,000 of the three million victims are in their 40 to mid-50 age group.

Her husband was diagnosed at 41 with symptoms starting at 34. Worcester also recalled a woman who was affected at 27 and placed in a nursing home when she was 33.

Worcester said the support group urges autopsies of victims for research reasons.

"The autopsy will reveal whether the next generation will have it and it also lets doctors if their procedures of testing and care were called for," said Worcester.

"The autopsy most importantly allows researchers to study each victim so that possibly a beginning point for Alzheimer's disease can be located or a distinct correlation of previous health problems that might have triggered Alzheimer's disease," she added.

Worcester said the autopsy is not the only way to help other victims of Alzheimer's.

"Basically, I'm here to keep from putting someone else in the same situation I was in," said Worcester. "I made all the mistakes that could be made. I hollered, I screamed, I tried to force him to do what he had been able to do."

"With the kids, I put them through traumas without being able to tell them the why. I couldn't prepare them for what was going to happen next because I had no information."

"I am not monetarily paid but I save the satisfaction of helping someone to lift a burden, to solve a problem for them or just being a listening post," she said.

Volunteer work is limitless, according to Worcester, and donations are not limited to money. One can volunteer to work at a nursing home, or spend time in the Amarillo office stapling, correlating papers, or helping with the newsletter.

Her office can provide information on money matters, also.

"Most need custodial care instead of skilled care," she explained. "Medicaid is farce in that it doesn't cover chronic disease at all."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

During the past few weeks the word "hero" has been used often to describe the seven American astronauts who lost their lives on the Challenger Space Shuttle. Of course those brave seven are heroes, as are all of those men and women who have pioneered space exploration. We citizens seem to need tragedies to be reminded of just heroic people are.

The media seemed to give special attention to one of those seven heroes on the Challenger, Christa McAuliffe, a teacher. I suppose Mrs. McAuliffe caught our attention because she is one of us. Just a regular person, a teacher. Or maybe it is because every one of us knows a teacher, and few of us have ever met an astronaut. But then, aren't teachers heroes, too?

Most everyone I know remembers one or two teachers who had a special impact on them. Many of us were even inspired to our profession or hobby by a teacher. Yes, many teachers, coaches, and band directors have served as role models, and even heroes for America's children.

Teachers are heroes. And it is sad that it took a tragedy like the death of Christa McAuliffe to remind us of just how special all teachers are. Teachers are subjected to constant second guessing by armchair quarterbacks in the media. Every columnist, computer magnate, and politician is quick to offer simplistic remedies for the problems of education.

Teachers are heroes, despite the many headlines regarding education that imply blame for teachers. Competency tests suggest incompetent teachers. Governor White's recommendation for drug testing suggests that teachers have drug problems. And even the career ladder suggests that teachers are motivated by money to further their education and improve their teaching skills.

Teachers are heroes. They continue to educate and to inspire America's children despite conditions that undermine their efforts. Children watch an average of seven hours of TV daily, leaving little time for study, reading, or conversation. The steady increase of working mothers, one-parent families, and "re-grouped" families often results in less time for parental involvement and support for their child's schoolwork.

Teachers are heroes. They always have been. Christa McAuliffe said, "I always encourage my students to go beyond the limitations they have set for themselves. You know, to push themselves a little bit. You just don't know what's going to be around the next corner." Thank you, Christa, for reminding us just how special and heroic teachers are.

Dear Editor:

The competency test for teachers and administrators is over, and hopefully gone! Anyone who thinks that this test will weed out incompetent teachers should join Mark White, H. Ross Perot and the Texas Legislature in becoming educated about education before making drastic statements and changes.

The uninformed people who enjoy criticizing public educators should be required to teach in a public school for not less than one week nor more than two weeks, and I can assure you that their opinions would be quickly changed.

The test teachers and administrators were forced to take will not remove incompetent teachers from the classroom nor incompetent administrators from their positions. It is not a competency or literacy test. It is not a performance test. It is a test of trickery and of boring, unrelated, ridiculous questions that in no way test a competent or incompetent teacher. Ask any teacher to show you the study guide and see for yourself.

It is an outrage that over $10 million in tax revenues was spent on this political farce. Should we insist that every high school graduate, college graduate, certified and professional in the state be given a test? Should those who fail have their diplomas, degrees, licenses and all certificates revoked and their livelihood taken away? After all, if the state has the authority to change its mind about existing teacher certification, why not challenge everyone's qualifications?

Teachers are fed up and retiring early, quitting the profession, or taking other jobs. Mark White and the Texas Legislature have succeeded in putting the teaching profession back several light years. Society is succeeding in taking dignity from the profession.

It has been suggested that West Germans be allowed to teach in our public schools. Perhaps when we run out of West Germans, we can bring in East Germans, or Cubans. Dallas has approved a plan to let any college graduate become a certified teacher. Experienced teachers will probably be expected to supervise any and all of them, free of charge, I'm sure.

Why stop there? Why not let anyone who can stand up teach? Before we completely destroy the teaching profession, why doesn't the public stop and ask itself, "Where did all the teachers go, and why?"

Sincerely,
Carolyn Waters
Teacher, HISD

"To some that are eligible, they can only own a home, one car, and have an income of $1,500," said Worcester. "This is barely one month's care in a nursing home. And the government is known for foul up and red tape, they will lose some of their allowable before the Medicaid goes into effect."

She said she really had no choice in putting her husband in a nursing home.

"His behavior, his violent outbursts, his combativeness forced me to separate him from our own children, who were no longer 'our children,' but strangers to him."

five hits, all singles, by Odessa Permian pitchers in the 12-1 loss.

Hereford's only run came in the second inning when Kyle Streun singled and later scored on an error by the Permian shortstop. Streun had two of Hereford's five hits in the game.

Permian took a 4-0 lead in the first inning on five hits, including a double. Permian had four hits, two of them triples, in scoring two runs in the fourth inning for a 6-1 lead.

Permian, which had 16 hits in the game, scored its other six runs in the top of the seventh inning.

Hereford had just seven baserunners in the game. The losing pitcher for the Whitefaces was Bobby Medina, who pitched the first four innings.

In the second game of Saturday's doubleheader, Permian scored two runs in the first on three doubles and added a run in the second for a 3-0 lead.

Hereford closed the gap to 3-2 in the third inning. Bill Ruckman reached base on an error, and Stefan Hacker walked. Philip Webster and Curtis Cotten each hit singles to drive in HHS runs.

The Whitefaces moved into the lead, 6-3, in the fourth inning. Robby Collier tripled and scored on an error for the first Hereford run.

Hacker hit a two-run triple, and Webster hit an RBI single for the other Hereford runs.

Hereford then increased its lead to 7-3 in the top of the sixth inning. Hacker reached base on an error and scored on a single by Paul Maes.

Permian then used five singles and three walks to score seven runs in the bottom of the sixth for what turned out to be the final margin of victory over Hereford, 10-7.

The big blow of the first inning was a grand slam home run by Curtis Cotten over the left centerfield fence.

The Eagles moved into the lead, 7-6, in the third inning with just one hit, capitalizing on four walks and two Hereford errors.

Hereford tied the game up at 7-7 in the sixth inning. Herrera reached base on a walk, and went to second on a balk.

Herrera then scored on an RBI groundout by Hacker.

Canyon won the game when its first batter of the bottom of the seventh inning hit a home run.

"He's a scoring machine," Layden said. "It isn't 50 points one night and 15 another. It's 30 every night. He doesn't slip. He is great at getting his position near the basket. Farm

Ag sales about same for Texas but net income still declining

COLLEGE STATION — Texas farmers sold about the same level of agricultural commodities in 1985 as a year earlier, but net income continued to decline.

Cash receipts from the sale of farm and ranch products totaled about $10.1 billion last year according to estimates by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A&M University System. At the same time, net income dropped to about $1.4 billion, down from just over $2 billion in 1984.

While the level of cash receipts has been fairly steady over the past five years, net farm income for 1985 is estimated to be the lowest since 1980.

"Large crop and livestock supplies and reduced exports again resulted in low prices to farmers and ranchers during 1985," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, Extension Service economist. "At the same time, costs of energy, chemicals, interest and other production inputs remained high and pushed farm income lower."

Good yields resulting from favorable weather conditions boosted cash receipts from crops in 1985 while a weak market hurt the livestock industry, notes Anderson. Receipts from greenhouse and nursery stock, fruits and nuts, and agriculturally related enterprises such as outdoor recreation and hunting posted sizeable gains.

Estimated 1985 cash receipts from major commodities were as follows: beef cattle, $4,400,000,000; cotton and cottonseed, $977,218,000; poultry, $548,000,000; dairy, $530,000,000; wheat, $528,530,000; sorghum, $447,669,000; vegetables, $412,897,000; related income (horses, fish farming, hunting leases and recreation), $409,921,000; nursery, $400,000,000; corn, $332,641,000; forestry, $255,000,000; sheep and goats, $189,566,000; rice, $144,000,000; peanuts, $108,000,000; swine, $75,342,000; soybeans, $50,148,000; pecans, $36,000,000; peaches and plums, $11,203,000; and citrus, $4,200,000.

Texas is expected to rank second among states in cash receipts in 1985 as it did in 1984, notes Anderson. It ranks first in sales of cattle and calves, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, cotton, cabbage, spinach, value of farm real estate, number of farms and ranches, and farm and ranch acreage.

"With a strong livestock and crop base, the future for Texas agriculture is favorable when compared to other states," Anderson emphasizes. "Agriculture is one of the most important industries in Texas as it provides jobs for more than 20 percent of the state's work force. Including all agribusiness phases, agricultural production added some $32 billion in economic activity to the state in 1985.

"The potential for Texas agriculture remains strong," adds the economist. "Major efforts by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, both agencies of the Texas A&M University System, support the development of the state's agricultural industry to its greatest potential. Agriculture in Texas enjoys a relatively warm climate, productive soils, and excellent export and transportation facilities."

FmHA seeks to publicize appeals process on foreclosures

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the Farmers Home Administration resumes foreclosures after a two-year suspension, it will be looking at ways to make certain that borrowers clearly understand their appeal rights.

The agency does not expect any serious disruption of its plans to collect past-due debts from thousands of delinquent farm borrowers, according to a spokesman, Joe O'Neill.

A federal judge in Bismarck, N.D., on Monday refused to block the FmHA from resuming foreclosure procedures. The foreclosures were halted until the FmHA could issue new formal rules outlining the alternatives a borrower could pursue in satisfying an overdue loan.

The FmHA, an Agriculture Department agency, issued the new rules last November, which were challenged in court as being too complicated and too vague.

One argument by farmers who brought the action was that parts of the new rules would give the FmHA the power to "starve out" some borrowers by refusing to allow them enough money from crop and livestock proceeds to live on and to meet operating expenses.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Van Sickle's ruling on Monday forbids the agency from refusing to release money to farmers without first granting a hearing. In addition, the judge ordered the FmHA to allow farmers to appeal decisions when they dispute the amount of money to be released.

O'Neill said Tuesday the agency had not had an opportunity to study the judge's decision but that it appeared FmHA would have to clarify its procedures on the appeal rights of borrowers.

"We'll have to look at those more closely," he said. "Otherwise, it (the court ruling) will not change our servicing regulations."

Three weeks ago the FmHA began sending letters to 65,000 delinquent borrowers, telling them about being in arrears and urging them to contact local agency offices to work out a settlement. O'Neill said that "to my knowledge, all of them went out" by Feb. 21.

Most of the letters were gentle reminders that loan payments were past due and that some kind of repayment program should be worked out. But letters of "intent to take adverse action" were sent to about 27,000 borrowers who are three years or more behind in payments, including 3,000 who may have fraudulently dodged their debts.

The FmHA, often called the government's farm lender of last resort, has an outstanding loan portfolio of about $28.3 billion among 270,000 borrowers, including the 65,000 who are delinquent. That represents about 13 percent of the U.S. farm debt of $212 billion.

Leaf rust appears set to strike wheat

COLLEGE STATION — Leaf rust, a fungal disease that took a big bite out of the 1985 Texas wheat crop, appears all set to strike again.

Spores which lead to the disease infection have been found in increasing numbers in central areas of the state in recent weeks, say officials with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service who are monitoring the situation.

"This winter's mild weather plus the fact that the disease was severe last year increases the potential for another major outbreak this year," points out Dr. Wendell Horne, Extension Service plant pathologist.

Horne says that the warmer weather has wheat progressing rapidly and that the crop is reaching the critical stage for control measures in some areas of the state.

"Since the cost of a fungicide application to control leaf rust is quite expensive, a farmer must be sure to treat his crop at the right time," Horne emphasizes.

Holly Sugar names new vice president

Charles Azarow, president and chief executive officer of Holly Sugar Corporation, has announced the election of Gordon L. Shemilt as vice president of administration and corporate development. His responsibilities will include purchasing, transportation and traffic and human resources, as well as strategic planning, mergers and acquisitions.

Shemilt has a long association in executive capacities with major world-wide sugar companies.

Promotion plans await USDA rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has proposed some procedural rules for setting up new beef and pork promotion programs authorized in last year's farm bill, the Food Security Act of 1985.

Both are a long way from going into effect, because the USDA probably will require months of rule-making before it gets around to issuing formal orders to establish the programs. And then, in each case, a referendum must be held among producers. In all, the procedures could take two or three years.

Under the beef plan, the program will be financed by a mandatory $1 per head assessment on all cattle marketed in the United States, including an equivalent amount on imported cattle and beef.

A Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board would be established, consisting of 112 cattle producers and importers nominated by the industry for appointment by the secretary of agriculture. The 112-member board would be responsible for administering the program.

Cattle producers, beef industry officials and other interested persons have until March 10 to submit comments on the plan.

In a separate plan authorized by the new law, pork producers would be assessed up to 0.25 percent of the market value at the time of sale on all hogs sold in the United States, including imported hogs and pork.

The pork program would be administered by a National Pork Producers Delegate Body, consisting of 165 pork producers and some importers. The panel would be appointed by the secretary of agriculture from producers selected in statewide elections. The importers would be nominated by eligible importer organizations.

Comments on the proposal to set procedures for the beef and pork programs can be sent to: Marketing Programs and Procurement Branch, Livestock and Seed Division, AMS, USDA, Room 2610-S, Washington, D.C. 20250.

You can't borrow your neighbor's irrigation system.

That's why more farmers depend on Valley than any other system. Unlike most farm equipment, there's no quick out when your system's down. Think about it. Usually you have an alternative — rent a tractor, borrow a sprayer. There's always been another way to get it done. But if your center pivot doesn't work, and your crops need water fast, there's nothing you can do. That's why more growers depend on Valley. Over 50,000 systems sold. Twice as many as our nearest competitor. And more than all the others combined.

More and more farmers every year come to learn about Valley's built-in ruggedness and dependability. Round after round month after month, year after year. So make sure the next door you knock on is ours. We're your Valley Dealer.

Rest easy. It's a Valley.

Giving Friendship Boxes

Members of Junior Girl Scout Troop 288 recently presented friendship boxes to Betty Henson, director of the local Red Cross Chapter. The boxes, which contained toothbrushes, toothpaste, soap and washclothes, were given in conjunction

Annual membership drive being held

Members of the Friends of Deaf Smith County Library are currently conducting their annual membership drive. Proceeds from the event assist with various library projects.

New projects the Friends of the Library are sponsoring in 1986 are the "Texas Voices: 1936-1986" and the purchasing of books-on-tapes for patrons to check-out and listen to as they travel or at home.

The organization also sponsors the family film which is shown the third Thursday of each month at the library free of charge.

Other projects that have been sponsored by the Friends include supplying decals for T-shirts during the Summer Reading Club, purchasing an AVM-viewer for the children to view a filmstrip and tape in the library, and the purchasing of back files of the Hereford Brand.

The Friends of the Library have two projects to make money each year for their support of library projects, their book sale each October and the membership drive.

To help the library with additional projects for the community, the Friends need public support. For only $2 a year, an individual may become a member.

In order to join the organization, come to the library. Individual memberships are $2 per year; organization, $10; family, $5; businesses, $10; contributions, $15 and up, entitling donor to membership; and lifetime members, $100 or more.

For additional information contact Dianne Pierson, 364-1206, or Helen Nelsen, 364-3312.

Retired postmaster to join House of Lords

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Britain's peers of the realm will soon have a retired Australian postmaster among their venerable ranks. That is, if Kenneth Murray can save the air fare to London.

The 72-year-old pensioner recently learned he is no longer a mere commoner but a full-fledged member of the aristocracy. And he intends to take his seat in the House of Lords.

Now he's got to squeeze the $3,220 economy round-trip air fare from his $87 weekly pension.

"I'm saving like mad," said Murray, who now enjoys the title the Rt. Hon. Kenneth Randolph, Earl of Dunmore, Viscount of Fincastle, Lord Murray of Blair, Moulin and Tullimot and Baron Dunmore.

Formally he is known as the 11th Earl of Dunmore.

But to his mates he's still Ken.

"People don't treat me any differently. It doesn't do to get excited about anything. It's bad for you," said the retired postmaster in an interview.

Murray learned the title was his a few weeks ago when a London solicitor told him a worldwide search of birth and death records had revealed there were no other claimants.

His elevation to the aristocracy was made official on Feb. 17 by Lord Lyon, who as the royal commissioner in armory heads the Scottish court of chivalry in Edinburgh.

It entitles Murray to sit in the 700-year-old upper house of Parliament, which has powers to initiate legislation but none to prevent it. The House of Lords functions as a sort of safety valve for the House of Commons and can delay acts of Parliament or return them to the lower house with amendments.

His presence in the august chamber requires that he wear a ceremonial cloak of ermine and a coronet, which Murray said he will have to borrow or hire.

Murray inherited the title from his brother Reginald, who died of cancer in 1961. But it's taken this long for him to lay legal claim to the title granted in 1686 by King James II of England who was also King James VII of Scotland.

Debrett's, which was established in 1789 and traces blue-blooded family lines, said Murray joins seven other peers residents in Australia following the death last year of the 11th Lord Byron.

"I knew about a possible birthright when I was 9 years old," he said. "My father used to say, 'one of you boys might inherit this,' and he'd show us a piece of paper with the crest."

Murray said he would never have bothered to have claimed the title if it hadn't been for his son, Malcolm, a 39-year-old airport technician who now should be addressed as Viscount Fincastle.

The pensioner peer believes he will be the first Tasmanian-born aristocrat to take his seat in the House of Lords, if he can save the air fare.

Ann Landers

Nature's contraceptive?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column, you said the notion that breast-feeding provides protection from pregnancy is a myth. Your statement is incorrect.

Breast-feeding has, since ancient times, been considered "nature's contraceptive." If you had called on one of your consultants in this field you would have been set straight at once. Breast-feeding has been a boon to women interested in family planning for centuries. Unfortunately, the subject has been largely ignored by the medical profession. And now you come along and do further damage by calling it "a myth."

I hope you will correct this misinformation in your column at once. A single error such as yours can destroy years of progress made by health professionals in Third World countries, as well as social workers in the United States. Sincerely yours—L.D.H., N.Y.

DEAR L.D.H.: I am well aware that breast-feeding has, for centuries, been considered "nature's contraceptive." However, when one writes for an audience of 85 million readers, caution is of the utmost importance.

For example: "Nature's contraceptive" requires that the baby be fed "on demand"—and this means whenever he or she wants to be fed at any hour of the day or night. A bottle cannot be substituted. In fact, the baby should not be allowed to drink water out of a bottle, or use a pacifier, because this might satisfy the need to suck.

No way would I make the statement that a nursing mother is protected against pregnancy. There is too big a chance that the average reader will ignore the qualifications and find herself with an unwanted baby on the way.

You'd be surprised how many people can't follow the directions on a can of soup. I am not about to explain to a nursing mother when it is "safe" to have intercourse and when it is not. Got the picture?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I grow weary of these idiot males who insist that their wives and live-in girlfriends confess all concerning their past sexual relationships. The latest case in point was the letter from "Emotionally Drained in the Bronx," who wrote that her common-law husband wouldn't marry her until she told him every detail of every relationship she had ever had. (The poor thing made the mistake of telling him about her first affair and her husband has made her repeat it 50 times.)

My wife and I have been married for 20 years. When we met, she was 38. I was 44. I do not give a damn what she did, or with whom, during the first 38 years of her life. Our lives began in January 1966. We love and enjoy one another to a degree seldom matched and have absolutely no interest in each other's past sexual escapades.

If these chauvinistic clods lack the simple decency and common sense to realize that previous partners have absolutely no bearing on the present, they deserve to be labeled mean-spirited, jealous, insecure, voyeuristic adolescents who have never matured and never will. You'd be doing a great many women a favor if you printed this letter.—BELMONT, CALIF.

DEAR BEL: It couldn't have been said better. My "Man of the Year Award" goes to you.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

'FRAUD SQUAD' DECLARES WAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicaid "fraud squads" in 37 states are going after fraud and abuse in the Medicaid program that may add up to more than $1 billion, reports Family Practice News.

Last year these units obtained 329 indictments and 197 convictions, identified about $8 million in overpayments and secured some $2 million in fines and restitution.

Schemes to defraud Medicaid range from billing for services never performed, billing for services performed by someone else and billing more than once for the same services.

The Medicaid fraud units are charged with investigating possible fraud, complaints of nursing home abuse and carrying out prosecutions on a statewide basis. They cooperate with private insurers and other agencies.

States that do not yet have fraud control units to ferret out abuse in the $24 billion federal aid program of health care for the needy may launch them with federal funding.

Silent Auction

Paintings, craft articles, and white elephant items went to the highest bidder during a silent auction conducted during the Red Cross annual chili supper Saturday.

Also, during the event, the Bluegrass and Old Tyme Musical Group provided entertainment.

Preparing For Meal

Red Cross volunteers were busy Saturday afternoon in preparation for the chapter's annual chili supper. Betty Henson, Red Cross director, reported that several hundred people attended the event late Saturday. She also reported that proceeds from the silent auction will be announced at a later date.

Asia, with an area of 16,988,000 square miles, accounts for 29.5 percent of the Earth's land.

The state motto of Michigan is, "If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look about you."

The largest litter ever thrown was 23, by a fox-hound called Lena, on February 11, 1945.

Volunteers Of The Year

DR. GOTT

Self-treatment is hazardous

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A dear friend is 63, 5 feet 9 and weighs 300 pounds. He refuses medical help of any kind, but says that something just shuts off in the hollow of his throat and he can't breathe until he swallows a little whiskey. What causes this?

DEAR READER — He may be suffering from spasm of the muscles that form the upper esophagus. His weight doesn't help, because excessive fat deposits can cause pressure in the throat and lower neck. Whiskey may provide temporary relief; it has a muscle-relaxing effect. However, I think he will develop more serious problems if he self-medicates with alcohol. There are safer and more effective treatments.

People who refuse medical evaluation are usually afraid of what the doctor may find. Perhaps your friend fears that cancer is the cause of his symptoms. Maybe he is afraid the doctor may prohibit whiskey. In any case, his problem is probably treatable; I hope he chooses to seek medical help.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says that my bone marrow is producing too many red blood cells. Every six weeks I go to the blood bank and they take two pints. I keep telling my doctor that I am very dizzy and lightheaded, to no avail. Why can't he give me something to help these problems?

DEAR READER — Your lightheadedness may result from your overly thick blood. The disease is called polycythemia and can be treated with blood withdrawal. However, I am concerned about the reason for your polycythemia; the condition can be primary (from the bone marrow itself) or secondary (due to another disease, such as emphysema). You and your doctor will need to investigate the cause of your blood disorder; then more direct and specific treatment will be in order. I believe it is reasonable for you to suggest a consultation with a hematologist (blood specialist). Blood removal may temporarily reduce the viscosity of your blood, but it is not, in my opinion, the treatment of choice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 60 years old, and for the past three or four years I have noticed that whenever I bump the back of my hand or lower arm, I am left with an unsightly red bruise. I've seen this even more pronounced on people older than myself. What causes this condition?

DEAR READER — Older people bruise more easily because of thinner skin and more fragile capillary blood vessels in the skin. The tendency to bruise is a consequence of aging and, by itself, requires no treatment.

For information regarding the causes and treatment of impotence, write for your copy of Dr. Gott's new Health Report on IMPOTENCE. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Demonstration on needle punch given

Shirley Sossaman of the Reflections Beauty Salon presented the program for Xi Epsilon Alpha Sorority when the group met recently in Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room.

Peggy Hyer introduced Sossaman whose demonstration of needle punch was followed by each member trying their hand at the art form now so popular for designs on sweatshirts and denim. Patterns and supplies are available, along with instruction, at the business.

Margie Waddell opened the evening's business with the reading of an invitation from the Beta Sigma Phi Chapters in Wichita Falls to their area convention planned Oct. 18-19. The theme of the event will be "Red River School Days."

A thank you note was read from Jean Holbert in regard to the chapter's gift to the American Heart Association in memory of her husband, Chick Holbert.

Preparations for the annual volleyball tournament was the topic of business for the evening. The event, to be held April 5 at the La Plata gym, is the chapter's main ways and means project. In place of the usual plaques awarded, the chapter will be presenting the top team of class A, B, and C with a contribution to the charity of their choice. Ronna Howell and her committee are organizing the games and the snack bar.

The next chapter meeting will be held at the home of Debe Graves March 18 at 7 p.m.

The adjournment was followed by refreshments being served by hostesses, Connie Matthews and Jody Blackwell, to members Sharon Bodner, Lynda Brown, Margie Waddell, Brenda Thomas, Charla Edwards, Debe Edwards, Susan Shaw, Rose Marie Robinson, Jimmie Middleton, and Peggy Hyer.

Those present were Juanita and Gid Brown, Ruth and Beryl Fish, Donna and Joe Lindeman, Norma Martin, Joyce and George Ritter, Suzanne and Ike Stevens, Norma Walden and Margaret and Frank Zinsler.

EVERETTE HALEY AND CHARLES GOODNIGHT, COWMAN AND PLAINSMAN" to be published by the Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library of Midland. He has also written a number of articles on ranching and frontier military history. He holds a B.S. from the United States Military Academy at West Point, and a M.A. in Museum Science from Texas Tech University, with additional training at the Institute of Modern Archives Administration at Colonial Williamsburg. He also served as Research Coordinator for the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University and as Curator of History of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

April 1 is the deadline for the PPW Article Contest. Entries can be brought to the meeting or mailed to Contest Chairman Betty Brown Phillips, W.T.S.U. Box 132, Canyon 79016, with the $5.00 entry fee and SASF. Maximum length is 2800 words on any subject. Short Story, Poetry and Novel Contests will be held later in the year. Certificates and prizes will be awarded at PPW meetings, and non-members can also enter the contests. Name and address of author must not appear on the manuscript. Cover sheet is to include that information along with the contest category and title of the manuscript.

Sharon Drain, Coordinator for the fall Seminar Aug. 16 at Amarillo College will give her report on the progress made. Featured speakers already confirmed are John M. Allen, Reader's Digest Vice-President, agent Meg Puley from the Jane Rosen Literary Agency in New York, Barbara Steiner of Denver, who will speak on writing children's books, Margaret Pitter from Oklahoma for fiction, and Ken Stoner, State Editor for the Daily Oklahoman in Oklahoma City.

Archivist to speak Thursday at library

Bobby D. Weaver, an archivist at Panhandle Plains Historical Museum, will speak Thursday night at the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society meeting.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. Visitors are welcome.

Weaver has written a book on Castro's Colony, a colonization project contracted with the Republic of Texas in 1842 by Henry Castro, a Frenchman. By 1848 the population in this colony had increased enough for the creation of Medina County.

Weaver's talk will concentrate on naturalization and ship's lists pertaining to settlers coming to Texas; what materials are available and where to find it.

The Genealogy Society has just conducted a successful membership drive, however, anyone interested in doing family research or in doing historical research can still become a member.

The Society has acquired 26 genealogy books since last summer. They are gifts, memorial and library purchases. Most are still being processed, but they should be on the shelves of the genealogy room soon.

ERIC FISCHL PAINTINGS

NEW YORK (AP) — The first major exhibition of paintings by Eric Fischl is on view at the Whitney Museum of American Art through May 11.

The exhibition of 28 paintings created since 1979 was organized by the Mendel Art Gallery, Saskatoon, and was expanded for presentation at the Whitney.

The museum says, "The large narrative paintings present intimate and arresting scenes of suburban America which put the viewer in the position of voyeur. The artist deals with such discordant issues of contemporary life as racial tensions, separation and death, alienation, and middle-class complacency."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Creme caramel is an easy recipe

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — In restaurants, I often have a custard dessert that has a caramel sauce on the top. I think the sauce was baked on the bottom of the custard mold. Do you have a recipe for this sauce? — SHARON

DEAR SHARON — I think you're referring to a simple "creme caramel" or custard with caramel topping. It's very easy to make. Simply heat one-half cup sugar in one-fourth cup water until the sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil and let it boil until the syrup turns a light brown. As soon as the syrup browns, remove it from the heat or it may burn. Then just pour a little of this syrup into the bottom of each custard cup and let it cool before pouring in your favorite recipe for baked custard.

Bake in a pan of water as you would any baked custard. When the custard is baked, turn out the custards upside down onto serving plates. They will then be topped with the caramel sauce. A dollop of sweetened whipped cream adds a luscious touch to this classic, elegant dessert.

DEAR POLLY — The bedsheets we buy now are beautiful and colorful. Why not use the top sheet for a light-weight spread, especially for the children's beds? I do and have received a lot of compliments. — MRS. B.F.

DEAR MRS. B.F. — This can be a real moneysaver when you compare the cost of regular spreads, and the fanciful patterns can really dress up a child's room! Your helpful Pointer earns you the Pointer to the Week award, a copy of my book "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." Others who would like this book can order it for $6.50. Make check payable to POLLY'S POINTERS and send to POLLY'S POINTERS, Box 1216, Dept. 55, Cincinnati, OH 45201. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My 8-year-old refuses to eat breakfast. All I can get him to sit still for is a glass of milk. Do you have any ideas on how to make him eat a proper breakfast? — MRS. G.B.

DEAR MRS. G.B. — First of all, if you try to force him to eat something he doesn't want, you'll only get into a royal battle about food. This is definitely not the way to get him to eat! Eating should not be the major issue of a power struggle between parents and children.

I think the best thing to do is to try to give your child nutritious foods in a form he'll enjoy. Why not turn that glass of milk into a nutritious breakfast? In a blender or shaker glass, place a glass of milk, a fresh egg and a half-cup of orange juice with a pinch of sugar or dab of honey, if sweetening is desired. Blend or shake until creamy and smooth. This delicious breakfast shake will give your son protein and vitamins and a good start to the day. If you want to provide even more nutrition in his breakfast shake, add a tablespoon of bran and a couple of teaspoons of wheat germ.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Nutritious Milk and Fruit Beverages," which has more ideas for making beverages with a healthful punch of nutrients. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

Hotline caters to children 13 and under

CHICAGO (AP) — A 4-year-old left alone with his 2-year-old brother is in trouble: the younger child has cut his leg and the older boy doesn't know what to do.

For him, and what some see as a burgeoning number of "latchkey kids," the answer is Kids Line, a 24-hour telephone counseling service for children 13 and under.

Volunteers for the hotline, which receives an estimated 18,000 calls a year, must be ready to field problems ranging from loneliness to danger.

"Some of them just blow my socks off," said Lorraine LaSusa, executive director of the hotline based in the Chicago suburb of Elk Grove Village.

The mother of five said her concern for children left at home alone prompted her to organize the hotline in August 1983.

"We started off immediately getting unbelievable calls," she said in a recent interview.

Kids Line is non-profit and supported by money from federal, state, and local governments, the United Way and other sources, said Mrs. LaSusa. Today, there are similar programs nationwide, including one each in Arizona, New York, Florida, New Jersey, North Carolina and Oklahoma.

Each day, 6 million children ages 6 through 13 are left at home alone, according to a conservative estimate by the National Institute for Latchkey Children in Washington.

"The numbers will continue to grow because you have more and more women entering the work force," said institute co-director Lynette Long.

Most of the calls to Kids Line are from children who are lonely and depressed, Mrs. LaSusa said. That's followed by children who want suggestions on how to constructively use their time.

"Kids want to be able to do something," she said. "We've had kids call just to say, 'Hey, I had a good day.'"

She said she's also handled calls that made her lie awake at night.

One such incident involved a call from a security guard, saying a 5-year-old boy was locked out of his building.

"This was when it was cold, it was snowing and the child didn't have a coat," she said. "The guard found a master key, and when they went inside, there was a 7-year-old taking care of a 1-year-old."

In the case of the 4-year-old boy seeking care for his 2-year-old brother, whose leg was cut, "They'd been left alone and he just didn't know what to do," Mrs. LaSusa said.

"He wanted to stop the bleeding on the leg, so we gave him first-aid instructions."

"The kid had been told by the parents, 'Don't you dare tell anybody your number or where you live.' So when he got the information, he hung up."

In situations where the children appear to be in danger, volunteers may have calls traced, then notify police, juvenile officers or social workers, Mrs. LaSusa said.

Seventeen-year-old Kevin Budinger, one of 200 volunteers, said one call he took was from a 6-year-old girl who was being sexually molested by her mother's boyfriend.

"I talked to her for a little bit and then she seemed to get real, real scared and hung up on me," said Budinger. "And then she called up 15 minutes later and said she wanted to talk some more. But then she said she heard some noise and hung up, and I never heard from her again."

"The Theatre," erected in 1576, was the first such structure built in England exclusively for the performance of plays.

To preserve its neutrality, Switzerland on April 2, 1946, announced to the world that it would not join the United Nations.

White, five challengers campaign before executives

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Education reform, the state's fiscal problems and increased taxes were among the topics that Gov. Mark White and five of his election foes discussed before a meeting of newspaper executives.

With newspaper endorsements on their minds, three Republican and two Democratic challengers to White's re-election bid took the incumbent to task Tuesday for his record over the past three years.

White used much of his time to defend the state's educational reform package, including the no pass, no play rule, and said that teachers who just completed a controversial competency test "will be admired as leaders."

Former Republican Gov. Bill Clements, who White unseated in 1982, lauded his own administration and blasted the incumbent for tax hikes, college tuition increases and across-the-board budget cuts.

Kent Hance, a former Democratic congressman who jumped to the GOP to run for governor, called for a push for a diversified economy that would be less sensitive to the ups and downs of the oil and gas industry.

Tom Loeffler, a Republican congressman from Hunt, pledged to bring Reaganomics "home to Texas" and said his four terms in Congress would help him lobby for state interests in Washington.

Don Crowder, a Democratic hopeful who earlier kicked off his campaign by calling White "a nerd," said a state lottery would ease the current fiscal crunch in Austin.

Andrew Briscoe III, a Democratic candidate and second cousin to former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, pointing to his experience as a government employee and as a private businessman, pitched himself as "the most diversified candidate."

White and the five challengers appeared on a panel at the annual meeting of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association. Each candidate was given 10 minutes to pitch his candidacy to the publishing executives.

The incumbent pledged that he would not back off any provision of the reform package, passed by a special session of the 1984 Legislature.

"We're not going to sit back idly and allow Texas to become a backwater state," White said.

White also was critical of his opponents' remarks about increased taxes and state fees.

"Where do they think the money for increased teacher salaries ... comes from?" he asked.

Clements said his administration from 1978 to 1982 did not raise any state taxes or fees, eliminated the state property tax, cut 3,700 state employees and left a budget surplus of almost $1 billion.

He said that instead of across-the-board spending cuts, as requested by White, state agencies should be studied on a case-by-case basis.

"We must cut the cloth to fit the pattern," he said.

Hance, a former Democratic congressman who switched parties to run for governor, said economic times had changed since Clements was chief executive.

"It was easy being governor when the price of oil was going up $20 a barrel," he said.

Hance called for a diversified Texas economy, including setting aside the state franchise tax for 3-6 years to encourage new business to locate in Texas. He also called for major tort and insurance liability reform.

Loeffler, a Republican congressman from Hunt since 1978, pointed to his experience "as part of the Republican leadership in Congress."

"I believe in the Reagan revolution and I believe it's time to bring it home to Texas," he said, adding that he would be "heard and heeded in Washington."

Loeffler suggested changing the no pass, no play rule, which bars students who fail one or more classes from extracurricular activities for six weeks, to make the restriction period three weeks. He said the longer period discourages students from taking higher level elective courses such as advanced math and science.

Crowder, a former law partner of Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox, said White "has got gall" to claim that electric bills across the state have been reduced and said he favors a state lottery as a possible solution to the state fiscal crisis.

He also predicted a pari-mutuel gambling law would pass in 1987.

Citing his experience as an employee of the federal and state governments, Briscoe said, "I can relate to the state employees like no one else can. I know what its like to bring home less and less and have the bureaucracy hanging over your head."

Despite the fiscal crisis, Briscoe said he would remain opposed to corporate and personal income taxes in Texas. "I think that's what made the state so great — being void of those taxes."

Mentally retarded teen found

BAY CITY, Texas (AP) — A mentally retarded 16-year-old girl was found lying on a sofa in her own waste where she was left virtually unattended for nearly three months before social workers found her, officials said.

"This is the worst case of neglect I have ever seen," said Matagorda County Attorney John Dickerson. "It was neglect short of death. Death seemed to be imminent. It was more gross than death."

The girl told investigators she injured her knee and ankle during a fight with neighborhood children Nov. 15 and lay on the sofa until social workers found her Feb. 6. She had developed severe bedsores and had asked her family to take her to a doctor, according to welfare officials.

"To me it's the worst case of medical neglect I've seen in 28 years," said Betty Luco, supervisor of Wharton-Matagorda County Child Welfare. "The social workers who went to the house said the stench was so bad that they couldn't stand to look at her very long. I don't see how the adults in the house, the others, could stand it."

The victim was released from the hospital in late February. She is now in a foster home and is under the guardianship of the Wharton-Matagorda County Child Welfare Unit.

On Monday, the girl's mother was arrested and charged with failure to report child abuse and criminal non-support, authorities said. Six other people also were charged with failure to report child abuse.

All seven charged in the case appeared before County Judge Burt O'Connell on Monday and entered pleas of innocent, the judge said. Trial dates have not been set.

"I think your first thought is, 'My God, this is a terrible, terrible thing, it must be a felony,'" Dickerson said Monday.

"But it is my interpretation that it is not a felony to treat someone — that someone being this girl — this way because there seems to be the gap between the ages of 14 and 65."

Such offenses committed against persons 14 or younger or 65 or older would be a felony offense, he said.

The criminal neglect charge carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and/or a $2,000 fine. Failure to report child abuse has a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

"I WOULDN'T TREAT MY BIKE THE WAY YOU TREAT YOUR BODY"
-Judy Lafferty

When Judy Lafferty prepares for a race, she checks every part of her bike. Because she checks her body the same way, she discovered a lump in her breast a few years ago. She discovered it early. And these days, 85% of early breast cancers can be treated successfully. Judy has since had reconstructive surgery, too. And she feels like herself again. Alive, vibrant, ready to get on her bike and take on the world. Judy Lafferty is living proof of the progress we're making against cancer. The American Cancer Society takes some credit for that progress. But credit won't finance our work. We need your money to help us win this race.

The Newspaper BIBLE

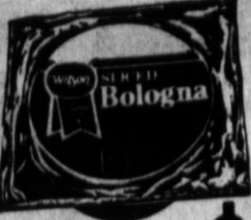

WHAT CAN I DO TO GET TO HEAVEN?
One day some mothers brought their babies to Jesus to touch and bless. But the disciples told them to go away. Then Jesus called the children over to Him and said to the disciples, "Let the little children come to Me! Never send them away! For the Kingdom of God belongs to men who have hearts as trusting as these little children's. And anyone who doesn't have their kind of faith will never get within the Kingdom's gates." Once a Jewish religious leader asked Him this question: "God sir, what shall I do to get to heaven?" "Do you realize what you are saying when you call me 'good'?" Jesus asked him. "Only God is truly good, and no one else. But as to your question, you know what the ten commandments say--don't commit adultery, don't murder, don't steal, don't lie, honor your parents, and so on." The man replied, "I've obeyed every one of these laws since I was a small child." "There is one thing you lack, Jesus said. "Sell all you have and give the money to the poor--it will become treasure for you in heaven--and come, follow Me." But when the man heard this he went sadly away, for he was very rich. Jesus watched him go and then said to His disciples, "How hard it is for the rich to enter the Kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God!" Those who heard Him say this exclaimed, "If it is that hard, how can anyone be saved?" He replied, "God can do what men can't!" Luke 18:15-27
