Reagan Extends Controller Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration, citing technical problems, gave striking air traffic controllers an additional four hours to report for work today. But officials said the president's position on firing striking controllers had not weakened.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis told reporters a half hour before the dismissal deadline that some confusion had developed over whether controllers were required to report to their 7 a.m. day shift today to avoid being fired.

He said day-shift controllers would be given until 7 a.m. Thursday to report. That means the first controllers to whom the president's work-or-be-fired order applies will be afternoon shift workers due to report at 3

Lewis emphasized that any controller who does not report for his shift "er ! a.m. EDT today w

Lewis said the decision to give controllers who work the day shift more time to report "is positively not changing one iota the president's position." He acknowledged, however, that the move does technically extend the deadline.

Transportation Department lawyers said notices of dismissal would be sent to any controllers who do not report for their shift later today by supervisors at the towers and control centers where they work.

FAA Administrator J. Lynn Helms, meanwhile, conceded that nearly all of the striking controllers were still staying off the job despite Reagan's ultimatum. He said about 70 percent of the controllers remained on strike early today not much change from Tues-

Reagan, talking to reporters while posing for photos with visiting Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, said he still hoped the controllers would bow to his ultimatum. "If ever we feel that our oath of office need not be kept, how long would we have this society?" he asked. He has to be arguing all along that the controllers took an oath not to strike when they went to work for the federal government.

Helms said the ability of the controllers working to handle the nation's air traffic "continues to expand" and that nearly three-fourths of the regularly scheduled flights were operating, about the same percentage as Tues-

He said that, except for 21 of the country's largest airports, the volume of traffic was at normal levels, but that airlines continued to have empty seats.

The 21 airports are those at which the FAA continues to limit takeoffs to 50 percent of the normal number. He said two airports, at Seattle and San Diego, had that restriction lifted during the night and were operating at 100 percent of their normal traffic. Lewis said the deadline was extended because some dayshift controllers were confused over when they had to report for work to avoid dismissal.

He said the controllers didn't know whether they were required, under Reagan's 11 a.m. deadline, to report to the 7 a.m. shift today - four hours before the deadline - or to the first shift after the deadline.

Lewis said that with the altered deadline there probably will be no firm indication of how many controllers will be fired until late Thurstion's emphasis now will focus on "how we rebuild the system" and not on any potential negotiations with the possibility of resumed

We're glad the tax fight is over in Washington. Congressman Kent Hance was co-author of the bill but, in the final analysis, there were a host of Democrats who got the message from back home and went with the bipartisan bill.

Rep. Sam Hall of Marshall expressed his sentiments better than anyone. Hall, in effect, said he wasn't swayed by pressure or phone calls from the President nor by the arm twisting of Tip O'Neill, Jim Wright and party leaders.

But, Hall exclaimed, he was "pressured" by that little old lady back in his home district in East Texas who sent him a petition with 800 names asking him to support the President. Hall told his colleagues that was the kind of pressure he

Bingo Backer Promoting Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A senator who claims to be a sometime bingo player says his proposal to legalize the game for charitable purposes could enrich local communities by $3.8 million a

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, told a Senate committee Tuesday the money would come from a 2 percent gross receipts tax.

The state comptroller would have control over bingo and could enter the premises where it was played at any time.

Texans voted nearly 2-to-1 last year in favor of a constitutional amendment to legalize bingo for charitable purposes on a local option basis, but the Legislature failed to enact Truan's bill during the regular session.

Truan introduced the bill again in the current special session in hopes that Gov. Bill Clements would expand the agenda to include it.

His proposal would make bingo off-limits to anyone under 18 and would prohibit games between 6 a.m. and 1 over the next six years. The bill, which Reagan proposed Feb. 18 as a cornerstone of his economic recovery program, will cut individual and business taxes by $749 billion through 1986. The heart of the package is a permanent cut in personal tax rates averaging about 25 previous year. A typical four-member, one-earner family with $20,000 income and current tax liability of $2,013 will get a $25 tax cut this year, $228 in 1982, $271 in 1983 and $464 in 1984. Thus, when fully effective, the bill will reduce the family's tax bite to $1,549.

A single person earning $30,000 now pays $5,718 in taxes. That would be cut $71 this year, $566 in 1982, $1,081 in 1983 and $1,333 in 1984.

The more a person pays in taxes, the bigger the tax cut. This is a reversal of reductions passed in recent years aimed at raising the tax burden on upper-income Americans to help lessen the load on those at the bottom of the economic scale. Reagan's bill would give 32 percent of its benefits to people with incomes above $50,000. Those people now pay one-third of all income taxes.

Several other provisions were added as the package made its way through Congress. Many of them - including the special tax breaks for the oil industry - represent compromises by Reagan to win approval of his basic bill. Others are ideas that the administration favors but wanted to put on a back burner until the economy is in better shape. The bill gives added relief to 17 million couples in which both spouses work, and who pay more taxes than if they were single.

Oklahoma Governor Commissions Government Scandal Task Force

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -A 34-member, blue-ribbon task force will hold its first meeting Aug. 12 in the Governor's Conference Room to begin what is expected to be a long study of Oklahoma's scandal-ridden county government.

The 2 p.m. meeting was announced Tuesday as Gov. George Nigh announced appointment of members of the task force. He called the action the most unpleasant he has taken as chief executive.

The panel includes former legislators and county commissioners, the mayors of several cities, educators and two former attorneys general of Oklahoma. Nigh called the task force

The probe of county government was spurred by a widening kickback scandal that has resulted in 32 county commissioners, former commissioners and equipment suppliers being indicted, convicted, pleading guilty or signing agreements to plead guilty in connection with an FBI investigation of county government.

Nigh said there has been greater public outcry over the scandal than any other ssue in the more than three years he has been governor.

"There has been genuine response from the public," he Nigh also said he was on the verge last week of calling a special session of the Legislature to deal with the county government problem, but he has decided against that move.

nor's office to assist the group of volunteer members. He said the staff personnel will come from slots not currently filled and that the people hired will be temporary employees specifically assigned to the task force. One reason Nigh said he did not call a special session is that there would not be time during the interim to consider information and recommendations coming out of various investigations.

In addition to the governor's special task force, both the House and Senate will assign committees to study the situation. Nigh said he expects his task force to work closely with the legislative groups.

The governor also voiced the opinion that public of-ficials convicted of felonies should not receive state retirement benefits and said that is one thing the task force may want to study.

Several county commissioners, who already have been convicted or pleaded guilty, are eligible for benefits under the state retirement program. Officials have said it may not be possible to legally withhold those benefits since the com- Wiedmann of Piedmont as comissioners paid a percentage of their salaries into the retirement fund in addition to funds provided by the state.

Nearly A Million Warsaw Workers Shut Down Today

WARSAW, Poland (AP) -Nearly a million Warsaw workers shut down all but essential services in the capital today in warning strikes to protest food shortages and proposed price increases.

It was believed to be the biggest labor demonstration in Poland's capital since a nationwide warning strike in March. The walkout by transport and factory workers today drew support from Solidarity chapters across the country,

About 1,000 bus and train operators launched the massive strike at 9 p.m. Factory workers began their strike an hour later, and 8,000 workers in 10 factories in Skierniewice, west of Warsaw, struck for two hours

Meanwhile, drivers who jammed Warsaw's biggest intersection with hundreds of buses, trucks and taxis since Monday planned to remove their blockade by noon, a union source said. They were protesting a 20-percent cut in the meat ration this month.

Solidarity said it exempted education, health and communications centers, trade and service outlets, and food. hygiene and pharmaceutical factories from the strike. And at some plants, the protest was symbolic only.

About 9,000 workers at the Huta Warszawa Steel Mill wore red and white armbands but continued working, said Solidarity spokesman Krzystzof Wroblewski.

'It would be impossible to bring a huge plant like this to standstill quickly," said Solidarity spokesman Krzysztof Wroblewski. "We have sent a token force to the main entrance of the plant to inform people of the cause of our action."

Workers in most division of the giant Ursus tractor factory kept producing badly needed tractors for the farmers, a spokesman said, but a few divisions did join the strike.

Elsewhere in Poland: About 1,500 people marched through Tarnowskie Gory and sent a petition to Parliament demanding full meat rations and economic reform.

Workers at a prefabricated housing factory in Sosnowiec threatened a walkout Thursday if full meat rations were not restored.

Miners at a coal mine in Silesia failed to report to work Tuesday because rationing cards were not distributed on time.

The traffic blockade developed out of a protest motorcade Monday when police prevented the demonstrators from approaching the Communist Party headquarters 500 yards away.

Solidarity suspended talks it had been holding with the government on the food crisis until Thursday.

About 115,000 workers in two other cities shut down their factories Tuesday with one-hour warning strikes as mounting labor unrest rumbling across Poland stir new fears of Soviet intervention.

Earlier, Lewis had said he was confident the national air traffic control system can run "relatively well" for a year or two even if several thousand controllers are fired and not immediately replaced.

But, he added, there is "no question we are trouble and the public is going to be inconvenienced. This is no cakewalk."

Ninety minutes before the original deadline, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan's determination to punish controllers for their illegal strike had not wavered. "The president is still determined and still has strong feelings," he said. Federal Aviation Administrator J. Lynn Helms said it would take three years to "rebuild the total system" if the striking controllers are dismissed, as Reagan has threatened.

But he said a variety of adjustments can be made in training procedures and up to 1,000 supervisors could be shifted permanently into controllers' jobs. Other FAA sources said the government is investigating the possibility of hiring controllers who have recently retired or trying to lure military controllers to the agency.

In New York, U.S. District. Judge Thomas C. Platt, acting on a request from the airlines, ruled Tuesday that the union is violating a longstanding injunction and imposed a fine of $100,000 an hour - $2.4 million a day for the duration of the walkout.

The union also faces up to $4.75 million in fines as a result of a ruling by a federal judge in Washington and the possibility of being certified as the controllers' bargaining agent if the strike continues. PATCO officials said the

The government also has filed criminal charges against 22 PATCO members, mostly local officers, in 11 cities. But, Brill said, "It is not anybody's intention to put anybody in jail."

The strike began at 7 a.m. Monday after contract talks between Poli and Lewis broke down. The administration said it will not resume bargaining as long as the

"This is a reasonable and worthwhile program," said Sen. Ray Farabee. "There are no grants or giveaways in this. It is an organized approach to (improving) blighted areas.

"Even the most fortunate of states have inner city problems," he said.

Farabee's legislative package includes a proposed constitutional amendment. which would be placed on a Nov. 3 statewide ballot, and two bills carrying out the intent of the amendment

One of the bills would authorize cities to contract with industrial and residential property owners to improve their property in exchange for property tax reductions over five years. It is thought that such a plan would make cities eligible for federal tax relief in blighted

Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said the idea had been advocated by President Reagan as an alternative to government aid.

The other bill would allow cities to issue tax-free bonds for public works - such as lighting, sidewalks and parking - in deteriorating commercial slums. Future tax increases would be used to pay off the bonds.

Sen. John Leedom,

R-Dallas, questioned whether the proposals could be considered under restrictions placed on the special legislative session by Gov. Bill Clements.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby ruled that they qualified for consideration under the fourth topic on the governor's agenda - revision of the Property Tax Code.

Farabee said more than 20 states, including Louisiana recently, had adopted such tax break programs. He also said the Texas Municipal League and National Urban League had endorsed the con-

"Not at all," said Farabee. "Each city would have to make an assessment whether to use this or another plan or risk that the area will con-

Measure Aimed At Quieting

complaints from Texas taxpayers about the 1979 Property Tax Code passed the House 120-21 late Monday.

The "clean-up" revision goes to the Senate where a similar version stalled after tentative approval two weeks made in the 140-page bill presented by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, during the four hours of debate.

The 1979 bill, also by Peveto, required property taxes to be levied on full market value of real estate and income-producing personal property, as determined by countywide appraisal districts after Jan. 1, 1982,

Under the bill passed Monday, the governing bodies of two-thirds of the taxing units in a county could postpone the start of the single-appraisal system for a year or phase it in over a three-year period ending in 1985.

Other changes the will would make in present tax law would:

Raise from five to 20 acres the amount of land on which a person could claim a homestead exemption.

Reduce the requirement in elections to stop property tax increases from 25 percent to 15 percent.

- Allow elderly and disabled taxpayers to apply only once, instead of annually, for special homestead exemptions.

- Allow professional appraisers to enter businesses to evaluate equipment and inventory with 72 hours notice.

One change made Monday would protect from taxation, under the homestead exemption, "tools of the trade" tools, equipment, and books used in a trade or profession up to $15,000 appraised value. Implements used in farming and ranching already were protected under the 1979 bill.

"It is patently unfair to protect implements of husbandry and not the tools of carpenters, mechanics and others," said Sen. Ken Riley, R-Corpus Christi.

Peveto tried to head off the amendment, saying it also would include tools used by an oil well driller. Peveto lost 39-72.

Strike Hurts Braniff In Recovery Period

DALLAS (AP) - The air traffic controllers strike comes at the most inopportune time for financially strapped Braniff International, an industry analyst

Braniff was hoping to reverse its trend and show a net operating profit for the third quarter, said Sim Trotter, industry analyst with the Dallas investment banking firm of Raucher Pierce Refsner, Inc.

Braniff reduced its service about 40 percent Tuesday, said spokesman Ray Chanaud. Other major air carriers, such as American and Texas International, only had cuts of about 20 percent.

Chanaud said the airline had to eliminate all flights to Brownsville, Albany, Atlanta, Hartford, Portland, Salt Lake City, Des Moines, Reno, Las Vegas, Orlando, Fort Lauderdale, Tucson and Phoenix.

The Amarillo market was also closed, but may be reopened Wednesday, he

The reduction did not affect Honolulu or international flights to London, Mexico and South America.

The cutback forced an across-the-board employee layoff until the strike by Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization was over. Braniff would not say how many workers it furloughed.

Braniff has 11,500 employees, about 6,000 of them in the Dallas-Fort

Asked of the strike would interest-free be the end of Braniff, Chanaud said, "We haven't even looked at the financial questions yet. We're too busy trying to fly planes."

Trotter said the strike "comes at the most inopportune time" and "it will make life very difficult for them.

"The July-August-September period was expected to be the first profitable quarter in a year and was really deemed critical in terms of their being able to 'The third quarter is traditionally the peak period for most airlines," he said. "It came at a point when they were really hoping to get things cranked up and turn a net operating profit."

Instead, Trotter said, the air carrier has had to go the other direction.

Braniff, operating under the grace of 37 major lenders banks and insurance companies - had recalled a small number of its alreadyfurloughed employees in April and again in June. Before that, 779 of its 2,135 pilots were on furlough and 1,326 of its 2,929 flight attendants were laid off.

On July 1, Braniff reached an agreement with its creditors in order to keep operating. That agreement, which postpones any repayment of its $600 million private debt until February, also stipulates that no interest on that debt will have

To Be Held In Amarillo

AMARILLO - An estate management seminar which hs been hailed by capacity audiences at Lubbock and Wichita Falls will be conducted here August 27-28 to help farmers and ranchers who want to pass their operations on to their heirs and at the same time reduce the estate tax burden.

The seminar has been especially designed by management economists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to provide detailed answers to specific problems facing the participants, said Marvin O. Sartin, area Extension economist at Lubbock. He is one of the three specialists who will conduct the two-day course at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd.

Participation is limited to provide participants maximum opportunity to discuss specific problems and opportunities, Sartin said.

The Amarillo seminar is the last of three being offered in the state this summer.

"I had been looking for something like this for several years. It is just what we need to plan our future," said Mrs. L.R. Moyers of Aspermont, after taking part in the program at Lubbock. Registration forms may be obtained from county Extension offices or by writing to Sartin, Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Route 3, Box 213AA, Lubbock, Tex. 79401. The registration fee of $50 includes seminar materials which will help participants set up their own Conducting the seminar will be Sartin, Dr. Wayne A. Hayenga and Norman Brints. Sartin, an Extension economist-management for 10 years, also is a certified public accountant and was formerly with the Federal Land Bank. Hayenga is project group supervisor in farm management with Extension, and an attorney. He has experience in commercial banking and economic research and maintains farming and banking interests. # Heartbeat Of Greek Community Threatened TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) - Back when the century was young, the Tarpon Springs Sponge Exchange was a thriving auction block for locally harvested sponges. It was also a bond for hundreds of immigrants from the Greek islands.

Today, it is a battleground, and the decision of what to do with the rotting old wharf is dividing descendants of the immigrants.

"You remember when your grandfather, father and uncle all worked there, bargaining, arguing, laughing, sorting, joking. And as kids, we'd be in there helping," said George Billiris, who has been in the sponge business 40

"It was still Greece here. Your word was bond. A handful of men came here and developed a major industry. When they came, there was nothing. They left something. Let's preserve it, put it back to work and add to it."

But Billiris appears to be on the losing side of the battle.

The two-acre site, listed in the National Register of Historic Places, was sold in May to the Pappas family, who plan an Old World-style marketplace with shops, courtyard dining and an area for ethnic dancing.

Despite intervention from Gov. Bob Graham, a court injunction to stop the bulldozers and special funds approved by legislators to save the 75-year-old structure, most of the 130 wooden stalls have already been leveled in preparation for new construction.

"I was born here, too," Mike Pappas said in his defense. "I've seen the exchange from the time I was a baby. It's become dormant. The city has put up signs saving it's unsafe. It's only used once or twice a year for Greek festivities.

"We're going to put in a $2-million project with 28,000 feet of rental space. It's going to be the greatest boon to this

But the Pappas plans have split this town of 13,251. At one point, the feud brought Greek women to the docks waving black flags and clenching their fists.

On one side are those who claim that development will give the docks a facelift and boost a flagging tourist economy.

On the other are those who want to preserve the exchange not only for its ethnic and historical value but also as the hub of an industry that's coming back to life, sparked by another immigrant group: the Cuban refugees.

day was 35 years ago. The exchange was then a $3-milliona-year business, the only place in the Western Hemisphere where industry and corporations could barter for natural, commercial sponges.

The sponge industry's hey-

Then synthetics came along. Demand dropped. Disease hit the sponge beds. Divers sought better-paying work.

The industry never recovered, and the exchange fell idle. Over the years, the wooden pilings and stalls deteriorated. The sponge fleet, which numbered 200 boats three decades ago, now boasts but two. Shrimpers dominate the wharf. Residents of this oakdraped town were once nearly all Greek. But the population doubled between 1970 and 1980, and now Greek-Americans account for only 30 percent of the population. But the Greek influence in inescapable.

Greek lettering still labels storefront windows. Bakeries offer delicacies like baklava. For night life, there's ouzo to drink in a smoky, dimly lit club and belly dancers swiveling to the strains of a bouzouki.

And anytime, there's Greek food, from tiny eateries to the plush Pappas Riverside Restaurant - owned by the same family that bought the exchange.

Pappas says about a dozen of the stalls have been left intact and part of the exchange structure will be preserved. "They'll be there for people to see. And if there are any more sponge sales in the future, they'll be able to use them," he said.

But that doesn't silence critics like Billiris, who says the exchange is needed because of a recent revival of sponging along the Gulf

To prove his point, Billiris had thousands of sponges hauled 500 miles from Key West this summer and sold in a parking lot 150 feet from the exchange. In three days, more than $20,000 in sponges were auctioned. Among the buyers, said Billiris, was a Greek who scooped up $6,390 worth to market in Greece and France.

"Demand is eight times greater than supply," Billiris claimed.

Texans One Step Closer To Hunting Alligators

AUSTIN - Last week the Legislature passed the Medical Practice Act and prepared the finishing touches on the Water Trust Fund bill . . . but much work is left to do on three other controversial issues.

The House was expected to concur with Senate amendments to the water trust bill early this week. Two down, three to go.

Heavier action will surround the remaining three issues: congressional redistricting, repeal of the ad valorem tax, and property tax reform. In fact, some insiders say it's possible that no agreement will be reached on the two tax issues. Others say the Governor is preparing to expand the agenda, once all major topics are five cleared.

Once again, as the Legislature heads for the deadline, no one really knows what will happen.

But one man who obviously knows more than most is House Speaker Bill Clayton, once again the

So far he has gotten his wishes on every topic, or most believe that he has.

When the powerful doctors' lobby, the Texas Medical Association, put its foot down against allowing optometrists to use diagnostic eye drugs, Clayton stepped in. His optometrist, who is also his campaign treasurer, pursuaded Clayton the eye drugs were important.

The result: a compromise allowing optometrists to use diagnostic eye drugs under standing orders from a physician. The optometrists, for their part, accepted full liability.

Water Trust Bill

Clayton was the architect of the proposed constitutional amendment which would dedicate part of the state surplus revenue to a water development fund.

pose the Speaker's own bill. Clayton has wanted his bill to be among the first to clear the special session.

With three topics eligible for floor debate this week, it is not unlikely that the water trust bill will appear first and skate through.

Congressional Redistricting

A fly buzzed into the redistricting ointment last week, throwing the issue back into the doubt.

Earlier, the Senate agreed after hot debate to create a black minority district in Dallas and passed the bill to the House. There, committee chairman Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, redrew the plan to presumably weaken his own congressman, Bill Patman, and only drew the ire of about every faction around. The Hispanics were angered first because he altered their Valley district. Then the Central Texas delegation fired up when he aligned them with coastal counties.

When his plan finally reached the floor, it paired Patman with Republican Congressman Ron Paul, who strongly objected and denied what Von Dohlen had told the committee that Congressman Paul was willing to move his home to adjacent county in an entirely new district.

The House, in a minirevolt, mustered enough votes to throw out that portion of Von Dohlen's plan temporarily, but the chairman was expected to mount another effort this week.

Tax Reform Bill

If redistricting is the most partisan issue, proposed reforms of the Property Tax Code is surely the most technically difficult. Many of the kinks have been worked out in committee. It is expected to be a rural-urban battle with Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood leading the opposition against the sponsor, Wayne Peveto of Orange.

Ad Valorem Repeal

If the state's 10-cent ad valorem tax was dedicated to welfare or food stamps. the Legislature would have surely repealed it long ago.

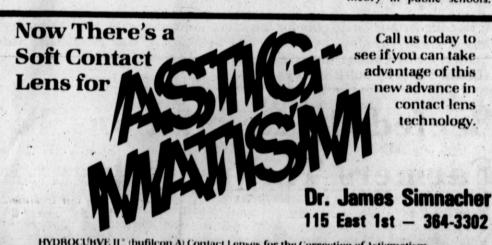

Instead, the tax is dedicated to construction for 17 state colleges and universities; a fundamental element of Texas social order, and legislators are reluctant to repeal because they can't find an alternative source of funds.

A Senate subcommittee wants to lower the tax to three cents, but Gov. Clements is adamantly opposed. He wants the tax out of the Constitution. The problem for legislators is they can't get Clements to suggest or support an alternative funding source.

The ramifications of this issue may come to a head in August when a state district court is expected to reinstate the ten-cent tax, possibly calling for back taxes over the last two years.

It may be grist for the mill of a second special ses-

225 Hereford Cattle Breeders Tour Local Ranch, Feed Yard

BY JULIE SMILEY Farm Editor

Five busloads of 225 interested cattlemen and women visited briefly in Deaf Smith County, Tuesday, as part of a tour of 16 registered Hereford breeders and feed lot and cattle operations in the Panhandle.

The Texas Hereford Association and the Panhandle Hereford Breeders Association sponsored the two-day tour for members and friends of the associa-

While in the county, the tour stopped by Conkwright and Son, C Bar Ranch, Milo Center. Colby Conkwright, and his son, Jim, hosted the group for about 30 minutes as the buses passed through portions of the ranch to view 100 two-year-old heifers and 50 mother cows. The registered cows and heifers are due to calve in September, said Colby Conkwright.

C Bar Big Arthur, bred and raised by Conkwrights, was also on display for the tour. "He's the best bull we've raised," said the older Conkwright. Conkwright established the ranch in 1934. After touring Conkwright's ranch, the buses traveled to Hereford Feed Yards, east of the city, where they were hosted by Jim Harding, assistant manager. Harding said the group would learn about the feed yard's 5,000-head capacity, and 1.3-millionpounds-per-day milling capability.

The two groups couldn't agree on a recommendation concerning the sales of Comcorn sales in the High Plains. The recommendation, said committee chairman, John Fuston, was to be taken to congressmen.

The grain was shipped to of the Chamber of Com- the High Plains area with taxpayers' money, said Fuston, because the average market price for corn here is higher than the national average.

The federal government modity Credit Corporation bought the grain from grain companies after the Russian grain embargo to help them out, according to Fuston.

"Feed lot operators and owners are losing money on An accumulation of about cattle right now, and would 15.6 million bushels of corn like to buy the feed for as stored at Hereford Grain, and cheap as possible," said about 150,147 bushels stored Fuston. "And of course, the at Plains Industry, Inc., grain producer doesn't like Dawn, is part of the 45 million his market being affected by bushels of corn imported to the outside grain shipped into this area from Minnesota, this area which makes the local market price drop." So, the two sides couldn't reach a consensus.

Fuston said the CCC corn in the area hasn't been all bad, because the extra business has helped the elevators. However, they did agree that the $1-per-head tax on cattle in feed yards as of January 1 is unfair as it is now written. Fuston said the group did not agree with the tax, because cattle which are placed in a feed lot after January 1, and are finished in five to six months, are not taxed the $1-per-head tax. A cattleman who puts 200 head of cattle in a feed lot in December will be taxed $200 on January 1 for having his cattle in a feed yard on feed. The group said the tax should be revised or eliminated. "If a tax is to be collected, all cattle fed all year around should be taxed 25 cents or 50 cents, whatever is the fair price," said

"I know there will be people on the school board who won't like our position on this issue, said Fuston. "But the tax needs to be more equitable."

He cited Kansas as an example where cattle on feed are not taxed. "It is a disadvantage to the cattle feeder here, and the revenue to the community which the feed yards provide is more in the long run than the $1-perhead tax," he said.

"If we lose the feedyard industry, Hereford will be in a

Cotton Looks Hopeful

COLLEGE STATION --Despite a rough start in some areas due to a siege of wet spring weather, Texas' cotton crop looks promising. In fact, with a general rain the next few weeks and some letup in insect activity, a good crop could result.

"Our crop went through a stress period earlier due to the extended wet weather, but the return to cotton weather has encouraged fruiting," says Dr. Bob Metzer rotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "We started the season with good deep moisture in most areas to sustain the crop, but a rain in early August would 'put the icing on the cake'." About 7.4 million acres were planted to cotton in Texas this spring, which is crop of about 14.2 million acres.

"We currently have the potential range of 325 to 350 pounds of lint per acre," believes Metzer. "We might even get close to the 400-pound mark if needed rains come and insect damage is limited."

Boll weevils and bollworms are currently plaguing some producers, and fleahoppers caused damage in some locations, resulting in loss of early fruit set. In addition, some squares were lost to the wet weather, which also caused boll rot problems in coastal and southern areas.

"A problem looming ahead is that of cotton root rot, particularly in the Central Texas Blacklands," points out Metzer. "Root rot is always a problem when there is good more than half of the nation's soil moisture, and it tends to increase with hot weather."

> Cotton in the High and Rolling Plains and western areas got off to a good start this year, notes the specialist, although heavy spring storms caused considerable replanting in some locations. Irrigation is now in full swing where water is available. Hot, dry winds are depleting soil moisture, and the dryland crop in these areas will need additional rain.

Harvesting is now under way in the Rio Grande Valley, with good yields, especially in well-drained fields, says Metzer. Bolls are starting to pop open in the Coastal Bend and in some parts of South Central Texas. However, rank growth of cotton along the Coastal Bend and in many Central Texas fields will likely cause some defoliation and harvesting problems.

This rank growth prompts Metzer to urge farmers to give particular attention to practices that will reduce the number of overwintering boll weevils. These include applying an insecticide in combination with a defoliant when preparing the crop for harvest, and then destroying stalks and plowing them under as soon as possible after harvesting.

Efforts to reduce overwintering boll weevils is particularly crucial this year fruit can provide a safe haven for boll weevils," he emphasizes.

So, all in all it looks like a good year for cotton. A lot of things can happen before the last bale comes in, but for now the stage is set for a promising harvest.

Modest 'Bear' Bryant Closer To Coach of All-Time Record

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

He was a dapper dandy in his pastel blue slacks, matching tie, pink shirt, silky pink-and-blue plaid jacket and two-tone shoes. But he still looked half-dressed and unrecognizable without that familiar hound's tooth hat.

But the charm was still there - the charm plus the droll humor, molasses Dixie drawl and over-stated humility that make the "Bear." Paul William Bryant, the football personality of the year as well as the age.

Despite the air traffic controllers' strike, the Bear was flown into New York Tuesday to join six potential All-Americans in a promotion of the 1981 collegiate season.

It was strictly the Bear's show.

"I've never won a game in my life — the team, the boys and assistant coaches, they win the games," the 67-yearold University of Alabama football coach mumbled modestly, shrugging off the significance of his dramatic bid this year to surpass Amos Alonzo Stagg as the winningest coach of all-time.

"I've lost plenty of games I should have won. My teams have won a lot of games in spite of me."

This is typical of Bryant, who declines to take credit for his record of 306 victories in a 36-year college coaching span at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and his alma mater, Alabama, where he has served 23 years.

"I haven't personally done any coaching in years," he insisted. "I just do the planning, set up the schedule, sort of like a chairman of the board, and then turn it over to my assistants.

"I have a lot of bright, young men to help me. They do the coaching. They are overworked and underpaid. There must be a place in Heaven for all assistant coaches' wives. They have to run the house and rear the children while putting up with long absences and frustrations of their husbands."

Bryant is expected to wipe out this season, his 37th, coaching marks that took Stagg 57 years and Glenn "Pop" Warner 44 years to accomplish. Stagg won 314 games, one more than Warner, before dying at the age of 102 in 1965.

The Bear could catch Warner by Oct. 24 against Tennessee and Stagg the next week against Rutgers, enabling him to set an all-time record by beating Mississippi State Oct. 2.

This involves winning the first nine of 11 games, which at first blush appears to be a tough hunk of meat to swallow but actually is little more than a piece of cake for a man who has won five national and 12 Southeastern Conference championships while averaging 8.5 victories a season.

The Bear realizes his biggest chore will be that of isolating his team from the mounting pressure.

Plans already have been made to install a mobile press room equipped with all the electronic gear needed for the scores of added TV, radio and newspaper reporters expected to pursue the Bryant

"I have told my players I don't want them even thinking about the record," Bryant said. "I want them to go out win for their mothers, sisters, girl friends, school, or whatever. I can't have them feeling responsible for me. I will do most of my work at home at night and use the day hours as a buffer for all this attention." Bryant looked fresh and relaxed Tuesday as he tackled writers and cameramen at the Plaza Hotel where he shared the limelight with one of his own players, strong safety Tommy Wilcox, quarterbacks Art Schichter of Ohio State and Jim McMahon of Brigham Young, Maryland's running back Charlie Wysocki, Notre Dame wingback Tony Hunter and Stanford halfback Darrin

The Bear acknowledged he got a little dizzy answering questions about Stagg.

"A thousand times a day," he said. "I think I met Stagg once, years ago at the Rose Bowl. But I never knew him well. He had to be a great coach with a record like that. I never dreamed that some day I would be chasing it. If somebody is going to break it, I want it to be me"

Bryant grew up in Fordyce, Ark., a farm community of some 4,000 - "so far back in the woods," he says, "they had to pipe the daylight in." That's where he picked up his nickname for once wrestling

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Major league baseball players are overwhelmingly supporting the agreement that ended their seven-week strike as they go on with the business of getting ready to take the field again.

The 26 player representatives voted unanimously last Saturday to accept the agreement, and club owners, who had planned a ratification vote in Chicago Tuesday, rescheduled their meeting for Thursday because of the air controllers' strike.

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Reports

GASOHOL IS UP TO THE GOVERNOR

AUSTIN - We are ready to run with gasohol. We have introduced a good gasohol bill, Senate Bill 14, in the special session. We have passed the bill out of committee with no dissenting votes. We have polled the Senate and we are sure we have the votes to pass the bill. We think we have the votes in the House. There is no significant opposition to the bill.

Already, more than 1300

Texas farmers are prepared to spend $200 million on three gasohol production plants. One is to be in Dumas; one is to be in Muleshoe and one is to be in This investment should be worth about $650 million for our state. There is also a strong possibility that other such plants will be built in the Panhandle area in the future, bringing in even more jobs and more industry. On the average, each dollar of investment in a new industry contributes about $3.50 to the state's economy:

There's 'only one catch. The bill will die automatically if the Governor does not "open the call" for the special session to allow the Legislature to consider the bill. Only the Governor has the power to do this. Our new gasohol bill gives a tax credit to gasohol distributors. The credit will be five cents a gallon until 1986. Then it will decline one cent a year until 1990, when gasohol will be taxed at the same rate as gasoline. The savings will be passed on to you, the consumers of gasohol.

The idea behind the credit is two-fold. It should allow gasohol to compete with unleaded gasoline, and it should encourage the construction of gasohol plants in this state.

There's no doubt in anybody's mind that there will gasohol production plants in this part of the United States. The only question is where. Every state that surrounds Texas already gives gasohol some sort of tax relief, so we must do the same if we want part of the new gasohol industry.

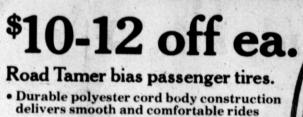

Our bill will give gasohol a chance to get started, then will make gasohol compete on the open market with gasoline and whatever other fuel that comes along.

As many of you no doubt remember, there was significant opposition to the gasohol bill introduced during the regular session. We have changed the bill to satisfy the people who were against it. Now we do not know of any group that does not want this bill.

It's up to the Governor to decide whether we shall have a gasohol industry here in Texas. He is the only one who can decide that now.

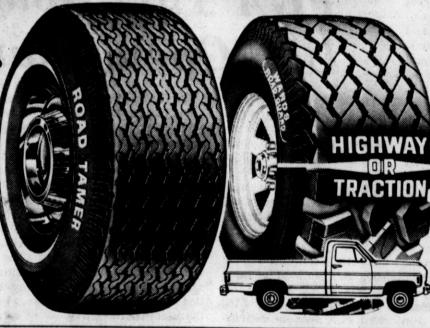

The special session will end August 11. This time limit will decide whether we will have new jobs and new industries, increased corn production, as well as more stable crop prices. The decision is up to the Governor. We know many of you are very interested in gasohol. and we would like to hear from you. Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, Post Office Box 12068, Austin. Texas 78711.

Attracted To Younger Sex

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Never in my life have I felt the need to write to you, but here I am with a problem I never imagined could touch

I am a married woman, 38 years old, with three great kids. My husband and I share an extremely satisfactory relationship, and I love him more today than when we married.

So, what is the problem? Simply put, I find myself greatly attracted to a young man, nearly 20 years my junior. He is an acquaintance of my teenage daughter and he visits quite often. He has always been very respectful to both my husband and me and has no idea that I am smitten with him. relationship with anyone except my husband and before this never even considered it. But now my mind turned to thoughts of seduction.

Ann, I know it is wrong, but I need to know if these fantasies are normal. Am I sick. or morally corrupt?

I am sure my family would never understand my feelings if they knew. In fact, if this young man had any idea of the things I have been imagining, he would probably run for his life.

Please answer quickly. Every day that passes I feel more and more out of control. I cannot give my address or name, and I'm asking that you don't even use the name of the state where this is being mailed from .-- Cradle Robber In Thought if Not In

DEAR C.R.: I don't believe you are sick or morally corrupt. Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote, "We all have thoughts that would shame hell." People cannot control their fantasies, but they CAN control their behavior-and this you MUST do. Be cordial when the young man shows up but absent yourself promptly. If your fantasies get translated into action and you end up testing your wowpower on this kid, you could disgrace yourself in the eyes of your family and mess up your life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Everyone in my family is superstitious. We all throw salt over our left shoulders when we drop the shaker. I would walk an extra six blocks to avoid going under a ladder. The sight of a black cat terrifies me. Once I broke a mirror and was depressed for three days. My logical mind tells me I am a fool to be upset by such things but I can't help it.

The most common superstition is knocking on wood. When we have a family gathering you would think the place was being invaded by woodpeckers. I have always been fascinated by this superstitution. Can you tell me how it got started?-Nobody There But Knocking

DEAR LOT: Knocking on wood goes back to the Druids of ancient England, who believed trees were inhabited by gods. When the Druig priests asked a favor, they

Lawsuit Filed In Austin Against Medical Trust

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) -Officials of a bankrupt Texas medical insurance trust that covered the employees of the Rev. Jerry Falwell have been charged with mismanagement and deception.

A lawsuit filed in Austin. Texas, last week alleges that Ministers Benefit Trust was "a mere scheme for the unregulated sale of insurance." The lawsuit seeks damages that probably exceed $1 million.

One of the allegations is that the officials showed preference to some members of the trust in making claims payments and ignored claims that should have been paid

There is evidence Falwell's employees were shown such preference, a Texas state insurance official said last Falwell recently said he was unaware if the claims of his employees and their families received preference. He said he never sought special treatment, and Gospel Hour had to cover $170,000 of its employees' medical bills after Ministers Benefit failed.

SMILING THROUGH A GENUINE SMILE is probably the most encouraging and reassuring expression of the human personality. Even though some may ask, "What is there to smile about?" Of course, this is one way to look at life; but it is not the only way, and is not the best way. We can find good reason to smile, if we try. We can even smile through our tears.

"A SMILE will go a long, long way" is a line from an old song. It, however, is more than the idle musing of the poet; it is an established fact. All of us know what a warm smile on the countenance of another person can do for us. Conversely,w e know what

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A search has failed to turn up a gang of bandits who attacked group of aliens entering the United States, killed one man and critically wounded a 3-year-old boy, police said.

The victims were in a group of 12 Mexicans being smuggled across the border Sunday night. They said they were confronted on the American side of the border by robbers who demanded cash and then opened fire.

Manuel Fernandez Garcia. 30, of Guanajuato, died from a head wound. His body was found in bushes early Monday. The others fled to Tijuana with the wounded boy, who was identified as Alfredo Gonzalez Fregosos. He was taken to a Tijuana hospital.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - Rudolph E. Sciarra has been sentenced to life in prison for supplying guns used in a 1965 slaying allegedly ordered by New England's reputed crime boss, Raymond Patriarca.

was convicted June 20 in Superior Court of being an accessory to the murder of Raymond "Baby" Curcio. The victim was described by police as a drug addict and dealer who had earned a 'death sentence' by burglarizing the home of Patriarca's older brother, Joseph. Sciarra, sentenced Monday, intends to appeal.

Patriarca, 73, faces trial on a murder-accessory charge. Nicholas A. Palmigiano, 43, who confessed to the slaying was the state's chief witness against Sciarra.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) -Fire officials are blaming the deaths of three young sisters on a wire-mesh window that blocked escape from their burning home.

"There was no chance to get out because there was heavy wiring at the back windows," said Anthony Marfino, fire batallion chief. "It's a terrible sight, particularly

Busing Ineffective to Desegregation

DALLAS (AP) - Expanded court-ordered busing would be ineffective against the "vestiges of stateimposed racial segregation" in Dallas public schools and will not be included in a revised desegregation plan for the city, a federal judge says. U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders concluded Monday in a 115-page opinion that additional busing would not be a "feasible remedy" and parties to the suit should address alternative methods among the Dallas Independent School Districts approximately 130,000 students.

The judge ordered parties and intervenors in the suit to submit plans by Oct. 13 that would refine - but not replace - the essential components of a 1976 desegregation plan which provides for busing nearly 14,000 students in grades 4 through 8.

"The court believes .... " wrote Sanders, "that effective remedies can be fashiontion plans for the court's consideration."

During hearings last May, attorneys for the plaintiffs and the NAACP requested the judge to order busing expanded to all grades.

Lawyers for the school board and several intervenors, however, asked the judge to end all courtordered busing in Dallas.

Sanders told lawyers each proposed desegregation plan should address majority-tominority students, improvements at predominently black schools, better recruitment of white students for magnet schools, attendance zone changes and continued desegregation efforts in grades 4-8.

The judge said changing attendance boundaries for neighborhood schools, particuarly three predominently white high schools, could im-

When he transferred last year from a school for the handicapped to Egly Elementary School, a 5-foot-by-foot box with a portable air conditioning unit was built for him. A two-way sound system later was installed to help The boy was injured as an him communicate with his teacher and classmates. None of the elementary school classrooms in the Brownsville Independent School District are air-conditioned, despite 90-temperatures in the early fall and late spring. Mrs. Espino testified she was overjoyed to hear her son would be with normal children - but then dismayed to learn he would be confined to the cubicle.

The Espinos unsuccessfully asked the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education to order the classroom be air-conditioned. They took their case to federal court, arguing the district is violating a law that requires handicapped children be educated in the "least restrictive environment.' School Superintendent Raul Besteio testified he decided to build the box instead of aircondition the room for fear of jealousy among other parents and teachers.

He said he had to turn down a woman from Pennsylvania who offered to pay for air conditioning costs because it would have

"discrimination."

The school district, with a relatively low tax base in the Rio Grande Valley, cannot afford to air-condition all elementary and junior high classrooms, he said.

Another school official said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration called to suggest fitting Raul with an air-conditioned vest that would allow him to sit in the classroom with other special education. Raul spends about half the school year in the box but can stay in the classroom during the cooler days of winter and early spring, said his first grade teacher, Inez Vega. 'He's not able to participate in certain activities in the classroom," she said, adding that the sound system malfunctioned occasionally and the air conditioner was

A Harlingen psychologist who examined Raul testified the youngster suffers no emotional or psychological problems because of the box, but added that the enclosure was "inappropriate for learning."

"It's almost like he is on display in the room," Hutto

"I hope the judge decides there's no reason why they can't provide air conditioning for the classroom," he said.

Fending off emphysema

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have had emphysema for about 15 years. The doctor told me there was nothing he could do but the best thing I could do was to stop smoking, which I did. In the last year it has become a lot worse. They call it chronic obstructive lung disease, emphysema. I have trouble breathing and am short of breath if I do anything physical or exert myself, such as climbing steps. I get short of breath if I do much walking. My thighs ache until I rest. When squatting or crouching over I feel dizzy when I get up for a short time. I cough up phlegm, especially in the morning, sometimes with a little blood. My wife says I have become crabby and impatient lately. I haven't cut the grass in more than two years and have given up all hobbies lately. I would appreciate any information on emphysema that you have

DEAR READER - You didn't tell me your age but if you had emphysema advanced enough to be diagnosed 15 years ago, you've done fairly well for such a serious disease. Your doctor was quite right in getting you to quit smoking; you would have had a lot more trouble sooner if you had not followed his advice. Chronic obstructive lung disease is a term used to include the various disorders that interfere with the free passage of air into and out of the lungs. This usually includes both chronic bronchitis and emphysema that often exist together.

Almost all adult people have some small amount of overdistention and loss of elasticity of the little air sacks in the lungs and connecting airways. Fortunately, in most people a small amount produces no symptoms. But as the condition advances it causes breath-lessness as you experience and often fatigue. Things that can help include stopping smoking (for smokers), avoiding air pollutants, all aerosol sprays, including deodorants and hair sprays, and yearly flu vaccinations. DEAR DR. LAMB - I make an eggnog in my blender for my son every morning as he will not eat breakfast otherwise. I have been told that excessive egg white intake can destroy the biotin in the body which is essential to blood clotting so I strain out the white each day. Will you please comment on this?

DEAR READER - Raw egg whites do contain a substance that inactivates biotin, a vitamin essential to man and animals. In man a deficiency may result in digestive disturbances, skin irritation and hair loss. The symptoms disappear rapidly when biotin is given. Cooked egg white will not affect biotin, and even with raw egg whites it takes a large amount to produce this effect in man.

I'm not enthusiastic about your breakfast for your son. As a male he is more likely to develop heart and vascular disease as he grows older. You need to limit his cholesterol intake and train him to like foods that are low in fat and cholesterol. I would vote for a nice hot bowl of oatmeal or whole grain cereal instead. DEAR DR. LAMB - How much water should a person drink a day? Is it good for your kidneys or is it for your bowels? Sometimes my urine is very dark and other times it is very light. Is this because of the amount of water I drink? How long after you drink water does it take for it to come out in your urine? If your urine is too light does that mean your body is losing too much water?

DEAR READER healthy person's normal kid-neys will carefully control the amount of water they eliminate so that the body retains the right amount of water. You ought to drink enough tluids to maintain a urinary output of at least a quart a day. If you sweat a lot in hot weather, you may need to drink a lot more. In cold weather you might not need so much. Your food also contains water. Even that dry table sugar is broken down into carbon dioxide and water to release energy. Carbohy-drates are literally hydrates (water) of carbon. When fats and proteins are broken down to release energy, the process also releases water for your body's use. If a person is reducing and using fat stores, that also releases

If you drink a lot of water you should have an increased urine flow in about 40 minutes. This is collected in your bladder so you may not notice it until you feel the urge to empty vour bladder.

In general, it is better to have light-colored urine, which means diluted with adequate water, than to have concentrated urine which means your body is having to make an effort to conserve water. Water concentration in the body is normally controlled by the kidneys, not the bowels. The fluid you drink in excess to body needs is eliminated through the kidneys so normally water intake has a limited effect upon bowel function.

DEAR READER - There is a lot of truth to the old saying, "One man's meat is another man's poison." Pep-per will not harm most people. Its actions are totally unrelated to salt. Consider it a spice. If a person happens to have digestive problems, such as stomach acid symptoms or colon trouble, pepper may aggravate the condition. Otherwise it is harmless.

ing to cook with spices rather than relying so heavily on salt as a seasoning is a healthy trend.

The problem with salt is Many spices, including pepper, help to perk up food without adding salt. Learnits sodium content. Spices do not contain any significant amount of sodium.

Polly Fisher Cigarette burn

DEAR POLLY — We just put a new marble sink in our bathroom. It now has a cigarette burn in it. Could you please tell me how to take this off? — JUDY you please tell me how to take this off? — JUDY DEAR JUDY — A mild solution of hydrogen peroxide (one part peroxide to four or five parts water) may bleach out some of the dark stain. Lemon juice may also be helpful, and is probably a little safer. After bleaching out as much of the stain as you can, rub gently with No. 600 grit wet, or fine dry sandpaper and water. Polish with a very fine polishing compound. These materials are available at your local hardware store. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When I bake cheese appetizers or open-face sandwiches topped with cheese, I line my baking sheet, with aluminum foil. Cheese is particularly hard to remove when it has been burned on, and your baking sheets will last longer if you don't have to scrape off the hardened cheese longer if you don't have to scrape off the hardened cheese repeatedly. — JAYNE

DEAR POLLY — If you're having a hard time spreading cream or sunburn medication on your back by yourself, try using the rubber spatula from your kitchen. It's just long enough to reach and does a good job of spreading a smooth layer of soothing cream on your skin. — GRACE

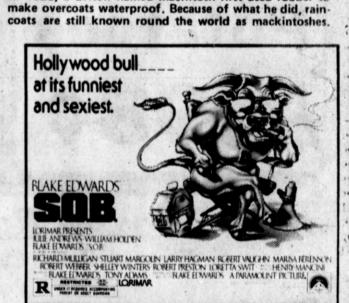

DEAR POLLY — I use a 46-ounce juice can to bake my bread in. Using a pan the dough can "climb" the walls of is particularly good for heavy doughs like whole wheat or soft doughs that tend to spread too much. — PHOEBE

DEAR POLLY — If you soak large lima beans overnight, then squeeze them out of their skins before cooking, you'll be able to serve beans without the "burp." — MRS. M.F.
