

Crew saves costly satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Working with great speed, two spacewalkers floated into Discovery's open cargo bay today and attached to the shuttle's robot arm crude "flyswatter" tools designed to save an $80 million communications satellite.

"Job well done," Mission Control commended them. The unrehearsed work by astronauts David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman was the first step in a hastily arranged but well-thought-out plan to try to rescue the Syncom satellite.

Early Wednesday, Discovery's crew will close the 40-mile gap with the satellite, move in and try to snag a four-inch lever on the side of the huge rotating payload with holes cut in the plastic flap-like ends of the tools, which look like large flyswatters.

The lever is an on-off switch for electrical power, and was supposed to have tripped outward automatically when the astronauts deployed Syncom on Saturday. Without power, the satellite is useless.

Working in cumbersome $2.1 million spacesuits, Griggs and Hoffman had trouble at first as their tools, straps and other gear kept floating away at the end of tethers. After about 40 minutes they were well-adjusted to their outside environment and within 90 minutes they had completed strapping the tools to the arm. Mission Control had estimated the task would take more than two hours.

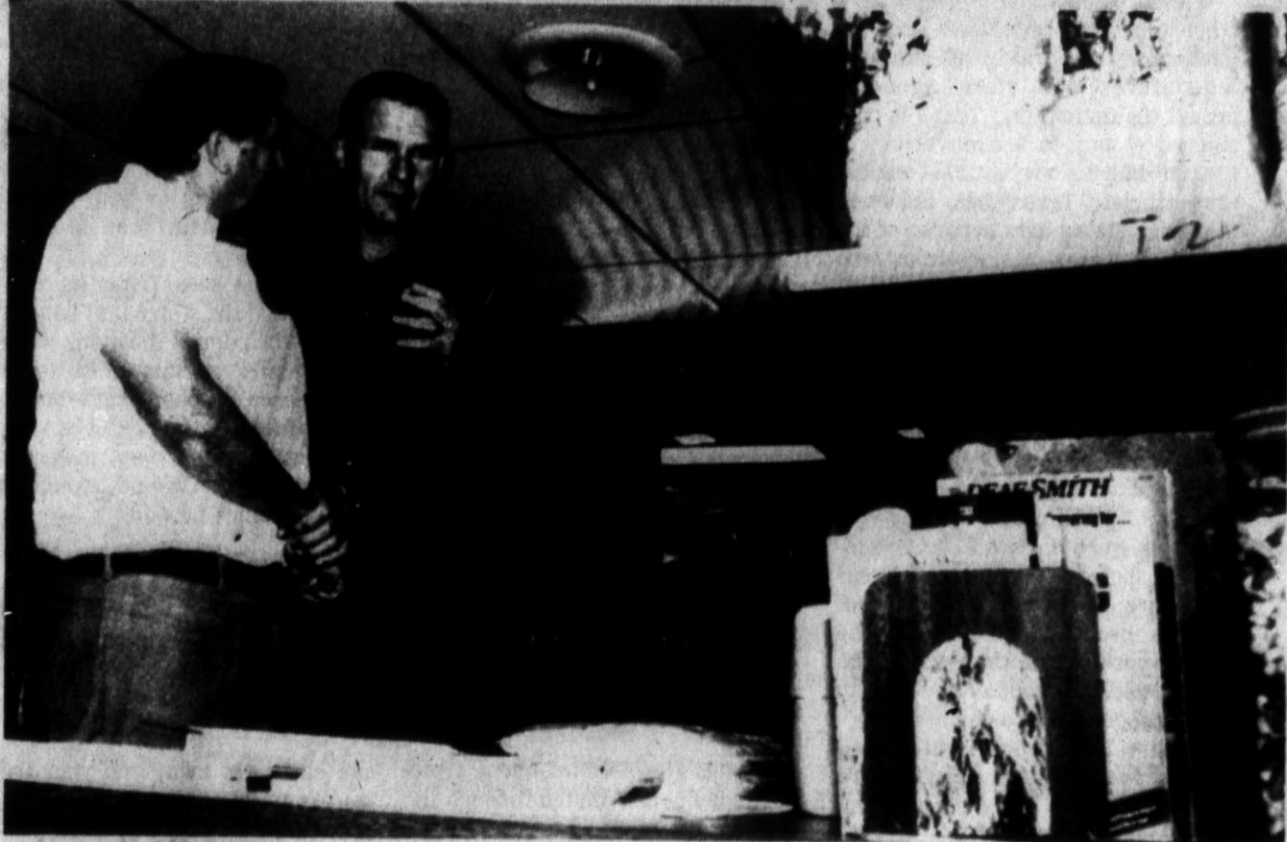

"They even took time to enjoy the breathtaking panoramic view of sun, sky, Earth and stars that surrounded them.

"Not a bad view, eh?" Hoffman remarked. "It looks different when you don't have a window frame around it."

The tools were crafted out of pieces of plastic, a window shade, tubing and other items scavenged from Discovery's cabin.

The rescue exercise has extended the mission from five to seven days, with landing now set for Friday at the Kennedy Space Center. It gives Sen. Jake Garn of Utah, who is flying as a congressional observer, extra time to see how the National Aeronautics and Space Administration responds to difficult situations.

Hoffman and Griggs were selected for the spacewalk because they had trained in case an emergency sent them into the cargo bay to stow or unstow the robot arm and open or close a satellite sun shield, which were considered the most likely contingencies.

Strides made in drug war

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Although the "war on drugs" is far from over, U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III says significant strides are being made in combating international drug trafficking.

And much of the improvement can be attributed to an "all-time high" in cooperation among foreign governments, including Mexico, Meese said Monday.

"I think it is clear on both sides of the border the seriousness with which both countries treat the drug trafficking problem," he said.

Meese added that the United States is "gratified" with Mexico's handling of "the most serious event we've had this year" — the slaying of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar in Guadalajara.

At least 40 people have been ordered to stand trial in Mexico in the death of Camarena and a Mexican pilot who worked with him, according to authorities in that country.

"We've experienced a high level of cooperation with Mexico" in the case, Meese said.

But the U.S. government is continuing to review it to determine "what, if anything, is appropriate to do," the attorney general said at a news conference at the El Paso Intelligence Center.

Meese toured EPIC Monday afternoon and was scheduled to meet today with the directors of the 13 regional task forces that make up the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force Program.

The task forces as of March 18 "have a very impressive record" with 1,152 indictments against more than 4,000 people, Meese said.

Wreck kills former resident

A former Hereford man and three members of his family were killed Sunday afternoon in a head-on collision south of Dalhart that law enforcement officers described as one of the worst traffic accidents in area history.

Jerry Don Maldonado, 22, his wife Paula Erlinda Narajo Maldonado, 24, daughter, Veronica, 2, and one-year-old son Robert were all pronounced dead at the scene at the accident on U.S. Highway 87 nine miles south of Dalhart. The family lived in Greeley, Colo.

Armando Garcia, 19, of Denver, also perished in the wreck.

Four persons were injured in the crash, including a third Maldonado child, Jerry Jr., age three. He was listed in critical condition this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, as were Aurora Narajo, 21, of Greeley, and Belen Garcia, 54, of Denver. Narajo was riding in the Maldonado vehicle and Garcia was a passenger in the car given by Armando Garcia.

According to the Department of Public Safety, the wreck occurred as the 1977 Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Maldonado passed a third vehicle and then collided with the 1977 Chevrolet Camaro driven by Garcia. The DPS said the Maldonado vehicle had cleared the automobile it was passing, but apparently stayed in the left-hand lane for quite a while afterward. The stretch of road was flat and visibility was good, troopers said. The accident occurred about 1:30 p.m.

Funeral services for the Maldonado family are scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday at San Jose Catholic Church with Father Joe Bix-man, pastor, officiating. A rosary will be recited at 7:30 this evening at San Jose.

DALLAS (AP) — Texas teachers are on the warpath again. This time it's not for more money, or more benefits, or more respect. What they want now is something less — less paperwork.

Ever since the Texas Legislature decided that something had to be done to improve education, teachers say they have been hit by a barrage of the white printed matter — mounds of it.

So much of it that it is detracting from the quality of teaching, adding hours of work outside the classroom and making life miserable, they say.

"We're talking about more hours in the day than are available" to get it all done, says Elizabeth Porter, a French teacher at Greenville High School, and a 22-year veteran of the classroom.

Ironically, the education reform act, House Bill 72, included paperwork reduction measures.

But teachers say their paperwork tasks now include everything from detailed lesson plans to ongoing student evaluations and regular progress reports to parents. That's in addition to the daily jungle of tests, grade reports and grading papers.

Who's to blame for the onslaught? Teachers blame principals. Principals fault administrators. Administrators point the finger at the Texas Education Agency. And everyone blames House Bill 72.

Since lawmakers last year passed the education reform measure and enacted rules to enforce previously approved tougher graduation requirements, the amount of paperwork shuffled through school districts has multiplied. Some say it has doubled.

Lunch breaks at the Greenville High faculty lounge now consist of filling out forms required by the district, Mrs. Porter says. In addition, teachers now come in early, stay late and then take work home, she says.

Teachers around the state praise the reform measures, but curse the paperwork load.

"We've had significant increases (in paperwork)," said Wes Schultz,

City officers sworn in Hereford city commissioners hired Mills-Davis Architects in Lubbock to design the proposed fire station and elected Joe Reinauer Jr. as Mayor Pro-Tem after official swearing in ceremonies Monday night.

Mayor Wes Fisher, Tom Legate and Reinauer were sworn into their offices by outgoing commissioner Ed Coplen. Coplen was honored with a plaque for his eight years of service to the commission.

Commissioners voted to purchase a loader from Plains Machinery Co. in Amarillo for $44,395 with trade-in. They also voted to purchase a Merlin phone system from AT&T at a cost of $14,780. The system will be more economical than the rental system currently used.

A portion of Miles Street north of New York was resolved to be closed at the request of adjoining landowners.

Troy Don Moore, county commissioner, was approved by the city to serve on the Deaf Smith Tax Appraisal District board. Reinauer was voted to serve on an ad hoc committee with members from other entities to study the nuclear waste repository.

Several arrests, few investigations

Hereford police made several arrests over the weekend and Monday, but had a quiet weekend as far as investigations were concerned.

Three juveniles were arrested Friday night after they were seen breaking into a car. Police said the arrest cleared up five thefts when the youths confessed the acts to investigators.

There were also three arrests on traffic charges and one for public intoxication, and a shoplifter was arrested at a local grocery store.

Criminal mischief was investigated at the old Shirley school building, and two bicycle thefts were reported. A tire and wheel valued at $25 was apparently stolen from Martin Pastzold's place of business at 1221 East Third, and two other minor thefts were reported.

Soviets take no blame in shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. says Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev insists that the Soviets bear no blame for the killing of U.S. Army Maj. Arthur Nicholson because, Gorbachev contends, he was "at the wrong place."

But the Massachusetts Democrat told an airport news conference late Monday upon his return from a visit to the Soviet Union that Gorbachev acknowledged the slaying was "regrettable."

O'Neill said the subject of the Soviet shooting of Nicholson last month in East Germany came up during a four-hour session last week between Gorbachev and four visiting U.S. congressmen.

He cited it as an example of Gorbachev's toughness, which he said was mixed with "a sense of charm."

Gorbachev was "articulate, energetic and tough," O'Neill told a news conference at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

O'Neill and House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said they hoped to meet with President Reagan later this week to brief him on their week-long visit. They also said the full 14-member bipartisan delegation which made the trip would be submitting a report.

On the Soviet slaying of Nicholson, O'Neill said: "We have very firm views. They have very firm views — diametrically opposite. My feeling is there's been a cover-up" on the part of the Soviet Union.

"Gorbachev was very distinct in accusing our man of being at the wrong place — and taking no blame whatsoever, although saying it was regrettable," O'Neill said.

Nicholson, a specialist in Soviet intelligence, was shot by a Soviet sentry on March 24 while taking photographs of a Soviet facility in East Germany.

The State Department confirmed Monday that Gen. Glenn Otis, commander of U.S. forces in West Germany, and the Soviet commander in East Germany met last Friday to discuss the killing and ways to prevent similar incidents in the future.

The United States maintains Nicholson was engaged in no wrongdoing at the time he was shot, while the Soviets have insisted that the officer had entered a restricted area.

Teachers hit warpath to fight jungle of paperwork

By JULIA MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Texas teachers are on the warpath again. This time it's not for more money, or more benefits, or more respect. What they want now is something less — less paperwork.

Ever since the Texas Legislature decided that something had to be done to improve education, teachers say they have been hit by a barrage of the white printed matter — mounds of it.

So much of it that it is detracting from the quality of teaching, adding hours of work outside the classroom and making life miserable, they say.

But teachers say their paperwork tasks now include everything from detailed lesson plans to ongoing student evaluations and regular progress reports to parents. That's in addition to the daily jungle of tests, grade reports and grading papers.

Who's to blame for the onslaught? Teachers blame principals. Principals fault administrators. Administrators point the finger at the Texas Education Agency. And everyone blames House Bill 72.

Since lawmakers last year passed the education reform measure and enacted rules to enforce previously approved tougher graduation requirements, the amount of paperwork shuffled through school districts has multiplied. Some say it has doubled.

Lunch breaks at the Greenville High faculty lounge now consist of filling out forms required by the district, Mrs. Porter says. In addition, teachers now come in early, stay late and then take work home, she says.

Teachers around the state praise the reform measures, but curse the paperwork load.

"We've had significant increases (in paperwork)," said Wes Schultz, principal of Palo Duro High School in Amarillo.

"Interim reports, such as student failure notices, must be done regularly," says Midland Lee High School Principal Stan Cobb, "and people are working longer to do them."

"Lesson planning has increased 50 to 100 percent over the last three years," says Robby Collins of the Dallas Independent School District.

"Instead of spending more time planning for classes, teachers are having to fill out forms," says Joe Atkins, Texas State Teacher Association representative for five rural counties in North Texas.

"Paperwork has added more work in teaching, but it won't provide a higher quality instructional program," says E.A. Sigler, assistant superintendent for administration and instruction at Highland Park School District. "It takes up a large amount of time. It's counterproductive, no question about it."

Authors and enforcers of the paperwork laws, while contending that paper is necessary to better manage public education, concede some of the complaints are legitimate.

"I think in general we do have too much paperwork on teachers ... and we have to reduce it starting right now," says Tom Anderson, deputy commissioner for planning, research and curriculum at the TEA.

"It may be a process of translating it into something that's more coordinated, making sure we don't ask for the same thing in two different reports. And we must make sure it's information we absolutely need by law."

Anderson says paperwork is a necessary evil that will have to be dealt with by districts and the state working together.

"There's a recognition of a problem at both the state and local levels, and something is being done. But pressure will have to be kept up by both if we are to reduce it," he said.

Several paper reduction bills have been introduced in the Legislature,

House backs work program

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has backed a Dallas lawmaker's plan to force all probationers to do at least 40 hours of community service work without pay.

The 66-63 tentative vote on Monday came despite objections from Rep. Harold Dutton, a black lawmaker from Houston.

"We used to do that a long time ago," Dutton said. "We forced people to work and they didn't get paid. We had a term for it — slavery."

About 32,000 Texans are put on felony probation each year, but bill sponsor Al Granoff, D-Dallas, said probation is not a severe enough penalty in many cases.

Rare giraffe relative shipped out

DALLAS (AP) — Sibiti the okapi is in Chicago today after its first-ever trip outside the Dallas Zoo, a move that officials say should help ensure the species' survival.

Dallas is swapping 22-year-old Sibiti with the Brookfield Zoo's 4-year-old Miki so the younger giraffe-like animal can be mated with a female okapi in Dallas, officials say.

"It went very smoothly," said Dallas Zoo spokesman Bill Stewart said of Monday's 1,000-mile trip. "The animal was born here 22 years ago and has never traveled. But I think we were more nervous than he was."

Zoo officials started preparing Sibiti for the trip last October by placing a traveling crate inside his cage. The animal became familiar with it, and Monday he was lured in, placed in a special climate-controlled 18-wheel truck and sent on his way.

Gang member to stay away

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Paschal High School senior believed by police to be a member of a vigilante group has been resuspended for allegedly carrying a handgun on campus.

State District Judge Claude Williams on Monday rescinded another judge's temporary restraining order that had allowed Bradley Biells to continue attending classes after being suspended earlier this month.

Williams said Biells, who was not at the hearing, must leave school Monday and not return until a panel of three school board members rules on his appeal of the suspension.

Biells was suspended April 9 after allegedly showing a gun to a baseball coach on the school grounds Feb. 22, according to Paschal Principal Radford Gregg.

Doctors watch for infection

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors in emergency surgery stanching a leak that oozed blood with every beat of Jack C. Burcham's artificial heart, then watched for signs of infection or worsening kidney damage in the 62-year-old retiree.

Burcham's vital signs were normal and chest X-rays taken after the followup surgery on Monday confirmed that bleeding in the left side of his chest had stopped, according to officials at Humana Hospital Audubon.

Doctors who implanted the Jarvik-7 heart in Burcham on Sunday said they were concerned about possible infection caused by the post-operation bleeding and damage to Burcham's already weakened kidneys. He was in critical but stable condition Monday night.

Drug baron ordered tried

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ernesto Fonseca, reputed leader of La Familia drug trafficking empire, and 24 others arrested in the investigation of the kidnap-murder of an American narcotics agent, were ordered Monday to stand trial on a variety of drug and weapons charges, the judge hearing the case said.

The action by Federal Judge Jesus Arzate Hidalgo brings to at least 40 the number of people ordered to stand trial in the case.

They include reputed drug baron Rafael Caro Quintero, thought to be another La Familia leader, and mentioned by Mexican and U.S. officials as a key figure in the slaying of Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar, and a Mexican pilot who worked with him in Guadalajara.

"The formal imprisonment was decreed," Arzate Hidalgo said by telephone. He said only four of the 25 were eligible for bail.

Reform bill tied to 15-year-old's suicide

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' landmark school reform bill has been blamed for spoiling sports, overworking teachers and slapping too much stress on students. In one West Texas city, it was also blamed for death.

On Dec. 6, while her parents were at her brother's basketball game, Rhonda Adams put a shotgun to her chest and squeezed the trigger. The Haskell High School cheerleader and basketball player was 15.

"She loved everybody. She just got so tired and I lost her in just a short minute. Make school reforms tougher? Are the people in Austin crazy?" Sherry Adams, a veteran teacher, wrote in an "open letter" about Rhonda's death.

"She just had to stay home to get her lessons. It seems that is all she had done at home the last three months. Every night," the grieving mother said.

The letter was written three days after Rhonda's suicide. Now, with the perspective only time can lend, Mrs. Adams says the school reforms were "not necessarily" the only thing that caused her daughter's death.

"School was only part of it. It was just everthing in school and outside the school and other reasons," she said.

But the reform law, drafted from recommendations made by a blue ribbon panel chaired by H. Ross Perot, and the increased expectations it placed on students, helped push Rhonda too far, according to her mother. For Rhonda, passing grades had never come easily.

"It just overloads them and requires too much," Mrs. Adams, a fifth grade teacher, said of the new rules.

Mrs. Adams has decided House Bill 72 was not the sole cause of her daughter's death, but others have seen her letter and reacted. Some are convinced that House Bill 72 is a killer.

"I believe it is time we all become concerned when nearly 30 of our young people in the state of Texas have committed suicide since the school year began. We live in a very sad world when 15- and 16-year-old children can find nothing worth living for," Betty Raynes of Weinert said in a letter to lawmakers. She enclosed Mrs. Adams' letter.

"Our baby is a 10th grader," said Mrs. Raynes, whose husband is a school board member. "I never thought I would be glad for him to be out of school, but I look forward to that day."

TEACHERS

Anderson said, and a TEA task force is studying the problem.

In Houston, teachers got so angry about the added paperwork requirements that 400 of them filed a formal grievance against the district. And if a lot of the paper isn't eliminated, they plan to take their grievance to court, says Gayle Fallon, president of the Houston Federation of Teachers.

"You can go back five years and find that when we've surveyed our teachers and asked them what was your No. 1 problem, they've said paperwork. What the school districts have done is they have — in Houston — virtually doubled the paperwork."

More often than not, teachers say, the districts, not the law, are responsible for the deluge.

Jeannette Calk of Haskell also enclosed the Adams letter.

"This mother and teacher just lost her daughter to the pressure of keeping all grades above 70. This girl was faced with the possibility of not getting to be cheerleader or play basketball or participate in the vocational activities for six weeks," Mrs. Calk wrote.

"That may not be a problem to you. It is a problem for teen-agers. Think back," she added. "Don't place any burdens on them that are so uncalled for and needless. The suicide rate is rising. Find out why."

Four Haskell residents enclosed the Adams letter and signed the following letter.

"Need I have to say anymore. This lady has said it all. Her daughter Rhonda, ended her problem and we've had two more of the same attempts. What are you going to do? Go ahead and drag your feet and let Ross Perot rule our schools, when he doesn't even send his child to public school."

Janice Browning, a Haskell teacher, said her daughter "has been under tremendous stress from battling with her studies." Her daughter was a cheerleader with Rhonda.

"She had a history of having to work hard to make her grades," Mrs. Browning said of Rhonda. "But with her parents' support, she always managed."

The prospect of failing geometry and biology apparently were too frightening, according to Mrs. Browning.

"She was fatigued with the constant pressure of more and more studying late into the night. So in the passing of a moment she decided, 'No more!' The shock is still with us," she said.

Haskell High School student Ursula Richards also clipped the Adams letter and sent it to the Capitol.

"Extracurricular activities are an essential part of growing up," she wrote. "If extracurricular activities are cut there will be more suicides like Rhonda's."

"Please try to help us country folks 'cause we won't know what to do if we can't have any more extracurricular activities," she concluded.

Texas reform one of many

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a whole herd of education reform packages now moseying through legislatures and state agencies across the nation, and Texas is considered by some to be a maverick.

According to one national education official, Texas has achieved maverick status only because of the maverick Texas businessman who headed the commission that recommended the changes in the state's school system.

"What's happening in Texas is not atypical, but typical," said National Education Association spokesman Gary Watts. "Probably the one unique thing about Texas is the personality of Ross Perot."

Indeed, when H. Ross Perot was invited to speak to the National Press Club here, the room was packed. They're probably still telling the Perot favorite about the student who missed weeks of school traveling to livestock shows with a chicken.

The way Perot went about getting the package through the Legislature — hiring his own lobbyists, holding public hearings around the state — was what impressed the Washingtonians more than the substance of the reform package. That is nothing new.

Since 1983, 40 states have approved tougher graduation requires and 36 have adopted more student testing, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures.

North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Arkansas, Tennessee and Georgia have all passed recent major education reform bills.

Education officials attributed the concentration of the movement in the South to one of two factors — the need to catch up, or the tradition of strong state control over far-flung school districts.

All the states' plans have some elements in common among several components — teacher pay raises, stricter graduation requirements, teacher competency testing, longer school years or school days and fewer excused absences.

Chris Pihlo, a spokesman for the Education Commission of the States, which is based in Denver, says comparing the states' education reform packages is like "comparing apples, oranges and peanuts."

That is probably why each education association will have a different opinion on each reform package.

For instance, NEA grades Texas down largely because of the teacher competency testing provision, and grades South Carolina up because it included funding to help those left behind by stricter graduation standards.

But Pihlo sees Texas as "in the forefront of the states that have stepped off the edge of the plank with big reform bills" because of its tough insistence on emphasizing academics over athletics.

"I have to admire any governor or Legislature that would take on football in Texas," he said.

Telephone directories being distributed

The 1985 Hereford telephone directory is being distributed through the week of April 9 through April 16 according to Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Stevens said a total of 7,469 directories will be mailed to area residents. Each residential customer is to receive one directory. For additional copies, customers may call their Southwestern Bell business office during business hours Monday through Friday, Stevens said.

Stevens requested that customers not call right away. "If your friend across town gets a directory before you receive yours, please be patient since all directories are not mailed the same day," Stevens said.

This year 44 white pages and 122 Yellow Pages make up the Hereford telephone directory. There are 6,953 white page listings.

Emergency telephone numbers have been placed on the inside front cover of the new directory. In the "Customer Guide" at the front of the directory customers will find tips on how to save money on their phone service and a new map illustrating long-distance service areas within Texas.

4-H Around the County

By DAVY VESTAL
County Extension Agent

Things happen in 4-H, not because its written down somewhere, not because someone forces it to, not even because it has to, things happen in 4-H, because you want it to.

What's happening in 4-H? Just about anything you can name, from animal projects to food shows, from Method demonstrations to electrical projects, from dog shows to dunking booths. All sorts of educational and fun filled situations await you in 4-H, if you get involved. Involvement opportunities for the next several months include - judging contests, method demonstrations, fashion shows, electric camp, National Youth Exchange, dances, shooting sports events, prospect stock shows, county 4-H camp at Brownwood, horse shows, State 4-H Congress, and Round Ups. Also be involved in news articles and radio programs through the summer.

If you're not involved in 4-H activities, either as a member, parent or leader, you are missing out on one great opportunity for youth development.

Loving and caring for animals—that's what the 4-H veterinary science program is all about.

The 4-H veterinary science program can offer rewarding and enriching experiences for interested 4-H members.

The program is particularly one which youth involved in animal projects will want to consider. It can complement programs in beef, dairy, sheep, swine, horse, and dog care and training.

Specific objectives of the veterinary science program are these:

1. To develop understanding and appreciation of veterinary medicine.

It's the time of year for wheat pasture poisoning. This most commonly occurs in adult cattle such as cows - rarely occurring in stocker cattle. This is not to be confused with bloat and/or nitrate poisoning which does commonly occur in stocker cattle grazing wheat pastures.

Wheat pasture poisoning is also known as grass tetany and generally is caused by deficient levels of magnesium in the diet.

Cows are particularly susceptible to tetany when nursing a calf or producing milk. Sometimes pregnant animals die from the condition. Older cows are more susceptible than those with their first or second calves. Also, cows that are herded or worked may be more susceptible to the disease.

Grass tetany is common during cool, cloudy, and rainy weather; and often occurs when cool weather is followed by a warm period. Animals get grass tetany most often when they are grazing cool-season grasses or small grain pastures in spring or fall.

To aid in prevention, animals can be fed a supplement of special high-magnesium mineral blocks or mineral salt mixtures.

Throughout the high-risk period, a minimum of 10 grams of magnesium should be given to beef cattle every day. For beef cows nursing rapidly growing calves, 20 to 25 grams is better.

Adding magnesium sulfate to drinking water is helpful. Some diarrhea may occur, but this has not been a problem. Magnesium acetate or magnesium chloride may be used instead of magnesium sulfate. To be effective, the drinking trough must be the source of water.

If you are having problems, I recommend you work with your local vet on management practices for your individual situation.

Hagler knocks out Hearn

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It was one of the most hyped fights in history. It lived up to every superlative — starting with "Marvelous."

Marvelous Marvin Hagler, shocking Thomas Hearn with a lightning-and-thunder assault Monday night, retained his undisputed middleweight championship and sent Hearn and his dreams of four titles cartwheeling into oblivion.

Hagler began at Hearn's midsection. Within a minute, he was unleashing bombs to the challenger's head.

Blood from a cut between Hagler's eyes soiled his face and Hearn's gold trunks. But still, Hagler waded in, staggering Hearn in each of the first two rounds.

Early in the third round, the blood was gushing from the cut on the bridge of Hagler's nose. Referee Richard Steele signaled time out, waved Hagler back to his corner and summoned ring physician Dr. Donald Romeo.

"I had to get a medical opinion on the cut," Steele said. "The doctor stated to me that the cut wasn't that bad because the blood was not blocking his vision."

Steele waved the fighters together again and Hagler resumed his assault, finally sending Hearn sprawling with a right to the jaw.

Hearn struggled to his feet at the count of nine. Steele cleared Hearn's

Keeps mid-weight championship gloves. There was nothing he could do about the challenger's eyes. They were cloudy and glazed, to go with rubbery legs.

"He was not responding," Steele said. "I didn't ask him any questions. I knew that he'd had enough. ... Dusting the gloves off is just routine. But at the same time, I was taking inventory."

And he found nothing left in Hearn's arsenal. Two minutes and 1 second into the third round, Steele waved the fight to an end.

With his 51st knockout, Hagler improved his record to 61 victories against two losses and two draws, while handing Hearn only the second loss of his 42-fight career.

And Hearn's dream of ultimately winning four championship belts was dealt a blow as brutal as the one that jangled his brains.

Hagler and Hearn had railed at each other during months of prefight promotion. It was going to be hard to live up to the simple yet awesome claim that this was to be "The Fight."

But it was. The two fighters whaled away at each other for eight of the most intense minutes in the sport's history. "I haven't seen that much action in three rounds, ever," said Steele, a referee for 15 years.

Roughly 2 million fans saw it worldwide, more than the record 1.6 million who saw the first Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight. There is a good chance it will net more than the record $22 million which Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney brought in three years ago.

"We gave the people what they deserved, what they paid their money for," Hearn said. "It was one damn good fight. But it doesn't stop here. If it happened once, let's do it again!"

Hagler's dream remains very much alive. He is chasing Carlos Monzon's record of 14 successful middleweight championship defenses. This was his 11th. "Hopefully, we can knock on the door of history," Hagler said.

Hearn, the World Boxing Association welterweight champion before he relinquished that share of the crown to Sugar Ray Leonard in his only other loss, remains the World Boxing Council super welterweight champion.

He had dreamed of taking Hagler's belt, then going after the one held by Michael Spinks, the undisputed light heavyweight champion.

"I was picturing myself with four belts around my waist, my chest, my neck, my legs," Hearn said with a beatific smile. "How in the hell was I gonna walk?"

He couldn't — not after Hagler was finished with him. He had been standing at the end, but he had to be carried back to his corner like a sleeping child by a tuxedoed member of his entourage. It was 45 minutes before he was sufficiently recovered to appear in public again.

"I just thank the Lord for letting me come out not being damaged in any way," Hearn said. "I still have my proper senses."

Tulane senate ousts basketball

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Tulane University Senate has voted to abolish men's basketball and to study whether the select private university should continue in big-time football and baseball.

The action came in the wake of charges that some members of the basketball team had been involved in point-shaving, drugs and illegal payoffs.

The senate vote on Monday ratified two recommendations by university President Eamon Kelly. The school's Board of Directors meets on Thursday to make the final decision on both matters.

The vote came hours after two basketball players, a convicted bookmaker and an alleged go-between entered pleas of innocent to charges of conspiracy and sports bribery.

Kelly said he supports varsity athletics as a valuable part of a university education, but the price can be too great.

Girls win meet in San Angelo

Coach Martha Emerson hopes the comfortable win Saturday at the Concho Belle Relays will gear up the Hereford girls' track team for this Saturday.

Hereford scored 100 points at the meet in San Angelo by placing sixth or above in 13 events.

"The girls competed really well," Emerson said. "And we hop this is an indication of what we could do at the District 3-5A meet in Amarillo this coming Saturday."

In her best effort of the year, Stephanie Thomas clinched second place in the discus throw with a pitch of 110 feet six inches.

Lina Esqueda took a first place in the 3200 meter run with a time of 12:53.02. Frances Flores ran a 13:03.54 to gain the fourth place ribbon in that event.

Boys seventh in Dumas, JV third

Hereford's varsity boys track team was ranked seventh after the North Plains Relays held in Dumas Saturday while the junior varsity came in third among its peers. Palo Duro scored 174 points in the event to win its fourth meet of the season.

The Hereford varsity scored 32 points in the effort, with the only first place for Hereford coming from Lee Brockman in the shot put. Brockman threw a 52' 10" for the win.

Results from other events in which Hereford placed:

400 meter relay - fifth, 46.36.
400 meter dash - Jimmy Hazzard, 52.62, fourth.

1600 meter run - Aronda, fourth, 4:50.50.

1600 meter relay - fourth, 3:33.13.

Long jump - Hazzard, 18' 2 1/2".

The junior varsity placed third, thanks to help from G. Tijerina who was first in the 800 meter run with a time of 2:18. S. Reyes was fourth in that event with 2:19.3.

Also scoring:

400 meter relay - second, 48.07.

Mariners lose to Oakland A's

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Seattle Mariners' season-opening winning streak finally ran aground.

After opening the season with six straight victories, Seattle lost 7-4 to Oakland Monday night as baseball's hottest hitter, Mike Davis, hit his third homer and collected his 11th RBI in four days for the A's.

"We knew coming in here how hot Davis was," Seattle Manager Chuck Cottier said.

Despite the loss, however, the Mariners already have gained some respect with their unbeaten first week.

"They're hot, all right," winning pitcher Bill Krueger said. "I don't think losing one game is going to affect them much. But I hope it does and w3 can sweep this series."

The A's went ahead to stay in the fourth inning when Mike Heath and Davis hit consecutive home runs off Mariners' starter Mark Langston, 1-1.

Krueger, 1-1, got the victory with six innings of work. Jay Howell got the last four outs for his second save.

In the American League's other two games, Chicago edged Boston 6-5 in 11 innings and California blanked Minnesota 5-0.

Angels 5, Twins 0

California left-hander Geoff Zahn improved his career April record to 25-5 with a six-hit shutout over Minnesota, with home run help from Ruppert Jones and Jerry Narron.

The loss was the ninth in the Twins' last 11 home openers. Ironically, Zahn, who pitched for the Twins for four seasons, was the winner in their only two victories.

Minnesota starter Mike Smithson, 1-1, whose 35 homers allowed last year led the majors, gave up Jones' shot in the second inning and Narron's in the fourth.

White Sox 6, Red Sox 5

Julio Cruz snapped a 4-4 tie with a two-run single off Bob Stanley in the 11th inning, giving Chicago its Patriots' Day victory over Boston.

A walk to Ozzie Guillen, Greg Walker's single off Stanley's foot and a groundout that moved the runners tip set the stage for Cruz's line single to left.

The Red Sox, who rallied from a 4-3 deficit in the ninth on Jim Rice's two-out single, threatened to come back again in the bottom of the 11th when Glenn Hoffman doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on a passed ball. But winner Al Jones, 1-0, allowed no more baserunners.

Sandoval, Pack 151, and Monty Adams, third, Pack 155. Tim Gearn constructed the new six-lane track the scouts used to race their handmade wooden cars.

Smith wins race marathon

Ozzie celebrates with homer

By Ben WALKER
AP Sports Writer

Acrobatic Ozzie Smith occasionally does front flips and back flips on the ballfield when he's happy.

So when baseball's best-fielding shortstop signed a four-year contract extension that will pay him more than $2 million per season, he found another way to celebrate.

He hit a home run. For only the eighth time in his eight-year career.

"It put a little icing on the cake," Smith said Monday night after his home run helped the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos 6-1.

Earlier in the day, Smith, who was in the final year of his contract, ended rumors of a possible trade when he signed the rich extension. Hours later, in the sixth inning of the Cardinals' home opener before 42,986 fans, he homered off Montreal reliever Zan Schatzeder.

Ironically, Smith's last home run came last year during the Cardinals' home opener.

"That's just the way it worked out," he said.

In other National League games, San Diego bopped San Francisco 8-3, Pittsburgh halted New York 4-1, Los Angeles beat Houston 5-3, Cincinnati held off Atlanta 9-8 and Chicago nudged Philadelphia 2-1.

Padres 8, Giants 3

Carmelo Martinez, taken off the disabled list earlier in the day, drilled two home runs, including a grand slam, to help defending NL champion San Diego win its home opener.

Martinez connected for his first career slam in the seventh inning off reliever Greg Minton. In the fourth, Martinez homered after Terry Kennedy belted a two-run shot off Altee Hammaker, 0-1.

It was the first time the Padres had hit consecutive home runs since 1979, when Kurt Bevacqua and Dave Winfield did it.

A crowd of 54,490, the largest ever to watch a Padres' regular-season game, saw Eric Show limit San Francisco to two runs on three hits over seven innings. Show is now 2-0 with both victories coming against the Giants.

The only damper of the night came when San Diego first baseman Steve Garvey dropped Bob Brenly's foul popup in the ninth inning for an error. Garvey had gone a major-league record 193 games at first base without a miscue.

Pirates 4, Mets 1

Mike Bielecki, a rookie starter, and John Candelaria, a veteran who has been turned into a reliever, combined to end New York's season-opening, five-game winning streak.

Bielecki, the minor league pitcher of the year in 1984 when he was 19-3 at Class AAA Hawaii, went 6 2-3 innings. Candelaria then took over and earned the save.

Dodgers 5, Astros 3

Rookie Mariano Duncan, who got into the game in the first inning when Steve Sax got hurt, hit a home run in the seventh inning to break a 3-3 tie.

Duncan's first major-league homer came with one out on a full-count pitch from Houston starter Joe Niekro, 0-2. Los Angeles added an insurance run in the eighth on Bill Russell's bases-loaded single.

Reds 9, Braves 8

Nick Esasky hit Cincinnati's first home run of the season and the Reds scored five times in the first inning off Pascual Perez to take a big lead.

But Atlanta, behind hot-hitting Dale Murphy, kept chipping away and scored three times in the bottom of the ninth and had two runners on base before Ted Power struck out Glenn Hubbard to end the game.

Murphy had a two-run double and an RBI double. He is now 11-for-23

Be patient

DEAR POLLY — I tried planting parsley seeds a few weeks ago, but they never sprouted. Can parsley be grown from seed? — N.B.

DEAR N.B. — Yes, parsley can be grown from seed, but the seeds are very slow to germinate. They can take four to five weeks or more before sprouting. You can speed them up by soaking the seed in water overnight before planting. After planting, keep the soil moist. You can do this most easily by watering the container until the planting medium is thoroughly moist but not soaking, then cover the entire container with plastic wrap or slip it into a plastic bag fastened with a twist-tie.

The plastic-enclosed container should stay moist for at least a couple of weeks. If it starts to dry out, add water by spritzing inside the plastic with a mister. When the seeds have finally sprouted (and with parsley seeds, you must be patient), remove the plastic covering or bag and place the container in a sunny window or under a grow light.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Grow Your Own Herb Garden" which has additional tips for growing your own herbs as well as suggestions for using them, preserving them and recipes for such herbal delights as herb vinegar, herbal sachet and an herb-yogurt facial. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Recently, while painting the walls of the utility room, we were unable to paint behind the furnace and hot-water heater with either a paint roller or brush. I put a 1-inch-thick sponge on a yardstick and fastened it with rubber bands, then dipped one side of the sponge in the paint. This was easy to slip behind the furnace and the hot water heater to paint those walls. It worked perfectly. — VERA

Beneficial sponsors child find program

In an effort to assist Child Fund Inc., Beneficial Corporation is circulating photographs of missing children through its extensive customer mailing system and nationwide network of consumer credit offices.

A bulletin, distributed quarterly in financial statements, prominently features the photos of two missing children and supplies a description, the date of birth and date of abduction.

In this capacity, Beneficial can increase Child Fund's national mailing list exposure by reaching an additional 500,000 households.

Instituting this Child Find program was the direct result of an employee suggestion contest. It was a clear opportunity for the corporation to help all communities across the country.

Child Find is the oldest national non-profit organization designed to assist families in locating their missing children. In addition, Child Find strives to educate families toward the prevention of child abduction as well as to raise awareness of the problem of missing children.

Beneficial Corporation is a Delaware-based, New York Stock Exchange-listed, diversified financial services holding company with assets of over $7 billion. Beneficial is the largest independent finance company in the United States with over 1,000 consumer credit offices in 39 states.

For more information on Beneficial's involvement with Child Find in your community, contact the manager of your nearest Beneficial consumer credit office.

Psychiatrists say that cigarette smoking is the most addictive and dependence-producing form of behavior known to man. Studies show that for most smokers, it seems necessary to quit entirely, in order to stop smoking—cutting down just doesn't work!

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Artery block

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my home health nurse rushed me to the hospital, thinking I was having another stroke. My right side was paralyzed and I had skipped heartbeats, very low blood pressure and was almost in a coma. My blood pressure dropped from 200 over 110 to 96 over 48. I had oxygen in the ambulance and blood-thinner I.V. in the emergency room. I was diagnosed as having a TIA. What is a TIA?

I am 50, a diabetic and have a history of heart problems, strokes and chronic health problems. The arteries in the front of my neck and in the back of my head are clogged.

DEAR READER — A TIA is a transitory ischemic attack, which means that your brain had a temporary period of not getting enough blood. That can involve any area of the brain. So it can produce the same symptoms as occur from a stroke, from paralyzed limbs to loss of speech. The difference between a stroke and a TIA is duration. The transitory attack lasts only a few hours at most, and often just a few minutes.

If one has some blocked arteries and one's blood pressure falls, there may not be enough pressure to provide circulation through the partially blocked arteries, and the TIA symptoms will occur.

I suspect, from your comment about clogged arteries, that you have seen a neurologist. If not, you should. Anyone who has had a TIA needs a neurological evaluation. In some cases, but not all, surgery can be quite successful in improving circulation and preventing a future stroke.

To help answer your questions, I'm sending you The Health Letter 16-6, What You Need to Know About Strokes. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor says that I have sarcoidosis and that it can be treated with only one medication, Prednisone. What can you tell me about this?

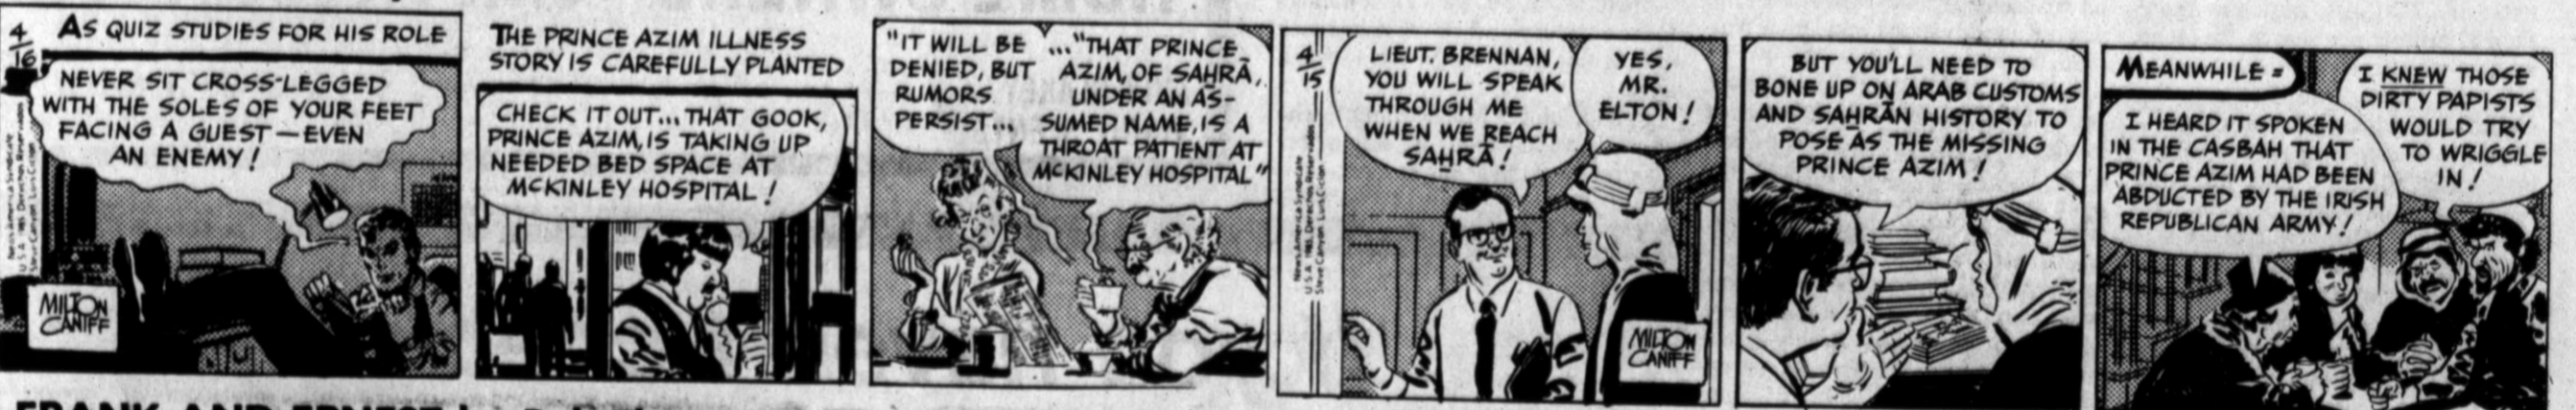

DEAR READER — Sarcoidosis has been known for years, but it is still a mystery disease. No one really knows what causes it. It is characterized by nodules that are caused by some type of immune-inflammatory reaction. The nodules are called granulomas. They are not cancerous. The nodules may disappear.

Gonzales to speak at fellowship meeting

Johnny Gonzales will be the guest speaker during the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship meeting scheduled at 7:45 p.m. Saturday at Caison's Restaurant.

Gonzales, who was born and raised in the Barrio Artesia N.M. without the guidance of a father image, transgressed into street survival. This consisted of drugs, alcohol, crime and violence.

The destruction progressed to the point in his life where he was known as "Juan Loco." First busted at the age of nine, reform school at 13, he then graduated to the state prison of Santa Fe, N.M. at the age of 19.

Gonzales is now engaged full time in the ministry. He is state chaplain for prisons in New Mexico for the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, founder of Prison Doors ministries, and works on the streets in local communities, in the prison system and county jails.

Annual home tour discussed by club

Members of Garden Beautiful Club discussed their annual tour of homes when they met recently in the home of Louella Cowser.

Homes to be toured include the Helen Cavin residence, Rick Brown home and Palo Duro Apartments. Refreshments will be served in the Community Room of the apartments. Tickets will be $2 and may be purchased from any club member.

It was announced during the business session with President Spinks presiding, that the last meeting of the year is scheduled May 3 in the Dean Herring home at which time new officers will be installed.

Margarite Newell told members that "The Texas Gardner" will sponsor a contest of the Gardner of the Year. Also, the cheer committee reported that a rose bush was given to the First Baptist Church in memory of Urschel Young.

Spinks thanked the telephone committee and a report of the nominating committee was given with officers for the upcoming year being accepted by acclamation.

Refreshments of banana nut bread, juice and coffee were served to members present. They included Marie Cline, Phung Emmons, Camelia Jones, Louise Axe, Spinks, Jean Dowell, Hilda Arden, Dorothy Noland, Dottie Darden, Bessie Story, Ina Mae Gilbreath, Newell, R. Gilbreath and hostess Louella Cowser.

Following the meeting, 11 club members went on a tour of the Amarillo Garden Center.

Have you ever known anyone who could tell you, 30 seconds after a gift was opened, just what the fancy wrapping looked like?

Some people believed the sun came down to earth once a year—and left a ladder leaning against a tree for its convenience.

Few law men think Lucas pulled hoax

By The Associated Press
Few lawmen have been swayed by news reports that convicted killer Henry Lee Lucas has perpetrated a gigantic hoax by falsely confessing to hundreds of murders nationwide, officials said Monday.
Lucas has confessed to slaying between 100 and 600 people, and law enforcement officials across the nation have closed the books on 210 slayings based on those confessions.
In a copyright story Sunday, the Dallas Times Herald reported that Lucas had admitted that he killed only three people, not the hundreds that he and occasional traveling companion Otis Toole have confessed to slaying.
Lucas, 48, has been convicted of at least 10 murders and is awaiting execution in Texas. Toole, 38, has been sentenced to death in Florida, where he is in prison.

In nearly all of the murders to which Lucas has been linked, investigators say he knew too much about details of the killings to have been lying.
"On our particular situations, I don't think he could have had all that information just by making it up," New Orleans Chief Deputy Sheriff Wallace Laird said. "I think he could be playing games with the people in Texas, but that remains to be seen."
Louisiana authorities have said Lucas is linked to at least a dozen killings in their state, and Laird said details in Lucas' statements convinced him that the drifter was telling the truth about at least some of them.
Sgt. Paul Waclawski, of the Baltimore County, Md., Police Department, said he hasn't changed his mind about Lucas' connection to at least one murder in that area.

A warrant was issued for Lucas in February 1984 for first-degree murder in the 1975 strangulation death of James F. Carpellotti of Ellicott City, Waclawski said.
"I think the warrant speaks for itself," Waclawski said, responding to the possibility that Lucas has fooled investigators.
"We can place him in the area during the time and he provided details only the murderer would know," Waclawski said. "We sent investigators down and they talked to him (Lucas) for at least a week. We had 10 cases, and of the 10n we only hooked him up with one and we issued the warrant."
Detective Jack Heitkemper of the Menomonee Falls

police force in Wisconsin said Toole told him in an interview that the pair of drifters had slain about a dozen people in Wisconsin during visits to the state.
But "with a serial killer, over a long period of years, how can you know for sure?" Heitkemper asked.
Authorities have said they believe Lucas and Toole were responsible for at least eight Wisconsin deaths. They were charged last month with a Calumet County slaying.
The latest reports haven't changed the minds of Texas authorities, either.
Bexar County Sheriff's executive administrator Joseph Davis said no one "except God" knows for sure if Lucas killed the hundreds of women he said he did.
But he and other authorities said they believe

Lucas was responsible for the death of 65-year-old Bobbie Lee Barker, even though she was shot to death and Lucas said he stabbed her.
"Based on what he told us about what was in the house, he was damn well there when she was murdered," Davis said.
Ms. Barker, a nightclub owner, was gunned down at her house in 1982. In late March, Lucas led officers to the woman's house and provided details he claimed to have stabbed her to death.
He said Lucas' denial of the slayings will have no effect on the six cases currently under investigation by the district attorney's office. But Davis said he does not think Bexar County ever will prosecute Lucas.

Steel town struggling

LONE STAR, Texas (AP) - "Steel Country" has melted away from more than just the local newspaper's name.
The change from "The Steel Country Bee" to simply "The Bee" reflects a changing attitude as towns once dependent on the steel industry diversify and try to rebuild their economies with other industries, the paper's managing editor says.
"We looked to our very name and realized there's more to our future than the steel mill," said Charley Harist.
Three years ago, Lone Star Steel Co. had 6,000 employees and a booming market for its oil field pipe.
"People used to fuss because they had to work so much overtime," said J.D. Hay, a 30-year veteran at the mill.
But the boom ended suddenly, and in August 1982, Lone Star Steel laid off 4,000 workers. Unemployment in the area jumped to 36 percent, and the hard times have lasted longer than many imagined.
Last month, the steel company hit the community with more layoffs — an additional 800 that cut the workforce to 1,700 hourly workers.

According to the Texas Employment Commission, more than 1,500 workers have left Morris County since 1982, and the county's tax base has shrunk from $1.7 billion to $1 billion.
Gov. Mark White created a special task force last month to help communities cope with large industrial layoffs.
"It's not enough that we aggressively promote the diversification of the Texas economy," he said at the time. "We must take steps to help the troubled."
Three new industries — a roofing plant, a high-speed printing company and a builder of modular classrooms — just received state and federal grants to locate in Morris County. The new plants will employ about 400 workers.
"As bad and bleak as it seems, these people are not quitters," county Judge Ronald Cowan told the Dallas Times Herald. "We're going to come out of it. We're not on the edge of the volcano, but we're certainly not stable."
