

Largest force fighting blazes

By DENNIS ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

The largest firefighting force ever assembled in this country, an army of at least 17,000 recruited from coast to coast, today battled stubborn wildfires that have scorched 1.2 million acres in 14 Western states and Canada, officials said.

The fires began to subside in some areas, but weary officials pinned hope of success on man and machines, not the weather, which remained dry today across most of the West. The fires have destroyed scores of homes, displaced thousands of people and devastated the habitats of many animals.

"There have been lots of bobcats with burned paws and the firefighters came across a partly burned fawn," said Frank Fettscher, a Los Padres National Forest land surveyor.

"A rattlesnake suddenly showed up in the chow line. Fire disorients all creatures," he said.

At least 17,000 firefighters, including New Englanders, Tennesseans and Eskimos, battled the fires, said officials of the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho.

No relief from weather

"It's the largest force of firefighters ever assembled in the United States," said Scott Brayton, a spokesman for the firefighting nerve center. "They were assembled in the shortest period of time, too."

Another 352 fires were touched off Wednesday across the western United States, but most were too small to keep track of, said agency spokesman Bill Bishop. No new major fires were reported.

Six hundred fires have burned 398,000 acres in British Columbia during the past six weeks, along with thousands of acres in Alberta and Manitoba.

The U.S. and Canadian fires have charred about 1.2 million acres, equivalent to 1,875 square miles, an area approaching the size of the 2,067-square mile state of Delaware.

Beleaguered crews continued today to fight the 13,800-acre Lexington blaze near Los Gatos, 60 miles south of San Francisco.

The 4,500 people evacuated three days ago were told that helicopters would fly over today to determine when they can return home, said California Department of Forestry spokeswoman Jean DeStories.

For about 20 minutes Wednesday, scattered showers brought cheers from firefighters at the Lexington blaze. But elsewhere, temperatures in the 90s and low humidity discouraged hope that nature would help.

"These fires are going to be contained by firefighters," Bishop said. "We're not getting any help from the weather."

More than 1,000 fires burned in the United States and Canada, scorching land in Arizona, California, Idaho, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Montana, Oregon, Utah and Washington. Others were contained or controlled in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Wyoming.

The enormity of the fire problem was "unprecedented this early in the season at this intensity," Bishop said.

In California, wildfires have consumed 308,260 acres since June 27, said California forestry spokesman Doug Wickizer.

California officials gave top priority to the Lexington fire because it threatened homes. The fire, which consumed brush and trees near 2,500 homes, was 50 percent contained late Wednesday, Ms. DeStories said.

It had burned 12 homes. More than 150 homes statewide have burned since late June.

In Ventura and Santa Barbara counties, the 89,200-acre Wheeler fire which began near Ojai, 65 miles northwest of Los Angeles, was blocked. Nineteen homes were destroyed or damaged in that arson fire. About 600 of 3,180 firefighters assigned there were allowed to stand down Wednesday night.

After Los Gatos, the state's other major fire problem Wednesday was south of Big Sur, where the 16,500-acre Rat Creek blaze was out of control: The crews battling it also were handling the 4,800-acre Gorda blaze, 10 miles south.

In southeastern British Columbia, 1,400 people remained evacuated from Canal Flats, a mill town threatened by five blazes covering 17,000 acres, said Forests Ministry spokesman Ray Wormald.

In Oregon, fires that have charred 300,000 acres of range and forest were burning as temperatures hovered in the 90s and 100s.

About 150,000 acres of high desert in southwestern Idaho and more than 11,000 acres of timber in central and northern Idaho have been destroyed by fires, some burning more than a week. Scores of fire crews began reining in the state's major timber and range fires Wednesday, but a new blaze was expected to scorch 10,000 acres before containment.

Several candidates considered viewed for Stockman role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis are the top candidates to succeed Budget Director David Stockman, according to White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan.

Two other administration officials are also in the running, Regan said in an interview with The Associated Press on Wednesday.

Regan said he wants to have someone in the Cabinet-level job before Stockman leaves Aug. 1, or at least to have a person designated and able to begin work while awaiting Senate confirmation.

The 38-year-old Stockman, architect of President Reagan's efforts to scale down the federal government, announced Tuesday he is leaving the administration after 4½ years to join the New York investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers.

Discussing possible successors, Regan said, "We have a long list of candidates, as you might well imagine." He said the list is "headed by Mac Baldrige and Drew Lewis ... and a lot of people have suggested to me names like Jack Svahn, Jim Miller. They're all good people."

"We've just got to make up our minds — what type of (budget) director do we want, who best fills that job," said Regan.

Svahn is Regan's chief domestic policy adviser, Miller is chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and Lewis is chief executive officer of Warner Amex Cable Communications, Inc.

As treasury secretary during Reagan's first term, Regan was said to have had differences with the brush budget director. In Regan's view, was Stockman too outspoken?

"Only initially, and after we settled our differences, we worked well together," Regan said.

Reagan's surgery advised last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who is going into the hospital Friday for removal of an intestinal growth and a thorough examination of his colon, is following advice offered more than a year ago when doctors first discovered that Reagan had a benign polyp.

Leading specialists in the diagnosis and treatment of intestinal growths said then the presence of a non-cancerous polyp, a fleshy growth on the inside wall of the large intestine, indicated there might be others and that Reagan should have further treatment to prevent the development of colon cancer.

But Reagan's physician at the time, Dr. Daniel Ruge, a neurosurgeon, said through a White House spokesman there was "no medical urgency," and no follow-up was done until after Reagan hired a new White House physician, urologist T. Burton Smith, early this year.

In March, the 74-year-old president underwent his second complete physical examination in less than 10 months, and doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he will go on Friday, found a second polyp.

The similar but smaller polyp found a year ago was partially removed for examination at the time and apparently healed without fur-

Teen reports abduction

The abduction and attempted rape of a 14-year-old girl was reported to Hereford police Wednesday night.

The girl told officers someone in a small green car got out of the car and grabbed her as she walked along the street. The victim sustained a number of scratches from fighting with her assailant.

Police made several arrests, including two on warrants for assault and felony burglary charges.

There was also one arrest for violation of probation, another for operating an unregistered motor vehicle and a juvenile arrest for burglary of a habitation.

Rosa Marquez, 433 Ave. H, reported the burglary of her home and the theft of nearly $1,300 worth of jewelry.

Officers also talked to an 11-year-old who had been hit in the face by his best friend, and took one prowler report.

'Coca Cola Classic' brings old taste back

NEW YORK (AP) — Coca-Cola Co.'s decision to bring back its old formula as "Coca-Cola Classic" alongside its new soft drink likely will be a success, but the challenge will be convincing consumers they're both the real thing, analysts say.

The Atlanta-based company announced Wednesday it was bringing back the old, familiar Coke just 2½ months after it declared with much fanfare that it was improving the taste of its flagship brand.

But not everyone approved of the change in the 99-year-old formula for Coke. Complaints from loyal fans received considerable publicity, and Coca-Cola says it has gotten 1,500 calls a day about the new Coke.

"It's certainly going to pose an interesting marketing challenge to position two products that are very similar side-by-side," said Charles Crane, an advertising agency analyst with Oppenheimer & Co. in New York.

"It's going to be an interesting thing to watch in terms of their brand name, whether it will reinforce their Coca-Cola name or dilute it. Only time will tell. It's a risk any company takes when it undertakes a product line extension," he said.

"I think it's a good decision. It will appease," said Hugh Zurkublen, a beverage industry analyst with Salomon Brothers Inc. in New York.

"Everyone wins," said company spokesman Tom Gray. "Over 40 million consumers every day in the United States enjoy Coca-Cola but thousands of dedicated Coca-Cola consumers have told us they still want the original taste as an option. We have listened and we are taking action to satisfy their request."

Coca-Cola Classic will be available in "some markets" within several weeks, Gray said.

Predictably, competitors were not kind about the latest announcement.

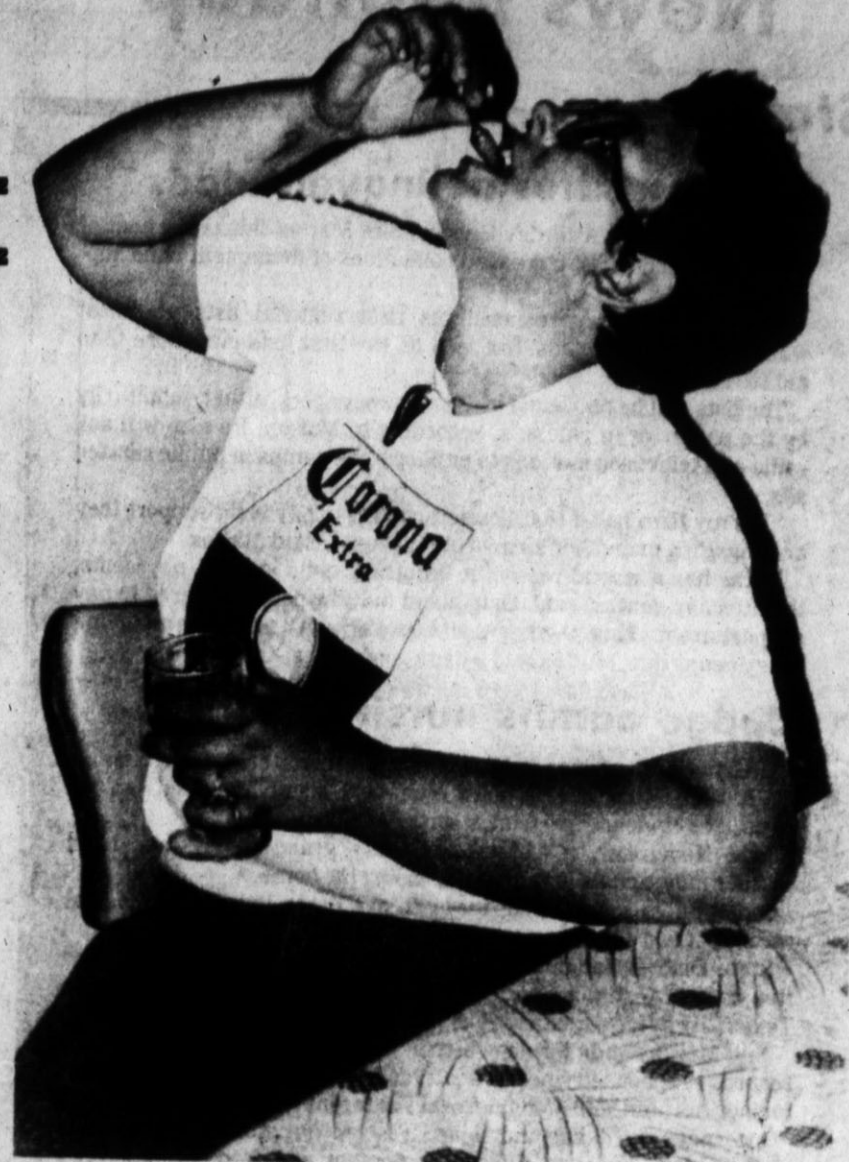

Ken Ross, a spokesman for Pepsi-Cola, said, "We're not surprised. Very obviously people across the country do not like this (new) Coke."

Cook-off site of hot contest by pepper eaters

Verily, the competition will be hot as hometown girl Ramona Haney takes on a rematch challenge from her arch rival Don King at the fourth annual Hall of Fame Chili Cook-Off here on Saturday.

The two have been blazing neck and neck along the regional chili cook-off conference in a bulimic binge of belting down freshly picked green jalapeno peppers the way Don Meridith guzzles tea.

The two will meet again at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame on Saturday afternoon. The jalapeno contest will be part of the cook-off scheduled for noon until the crowd thins. Spectator tickets for the cook-off, which will include tasting each chili, are $2 for adults and $1 for kids.

Haney came in second in the first heat at Amarillo's Chili-O. She chowd down 51 peppers and King, on hometown turf, ate 55.

In a timed round at Red River, N.M., the bitter rivalry continued when King edged Haney 11-9 peppers in one minute.

Hereford's pepper eater rallied for a glorious victory when she stuffed 54 peppers down at the Southwest Chili Championship, smoking King out of the contest.

Feeling burned, King — who knew Haney would be at the Hereford cook-off with her "Down to Earth" chili team — challenged Haney for the contest and warned her that it might be tough for her to lose in her hometown.

Now on the hotseat, Haney seems unruffled, much like the first time she tried the marathon.

"I had a little too much to drink and thought, 'Oh, no problem,'" she said. "I just did it."

"It's really not that bad," she says. "My grandmother thinks I'm nuts — she can't figure out why I punish myself like that. It really doesn't burn."

Contest rules require that peppers be chewed. No drinks or other food is allowed between peppers.

The contest usually goes on until the last contestant...uh...er... "loses" his or her peppers.

"It's pretty embarrassing when you turn around and have 50,000 spectators watching," Haney admits.

Haney knows her enemy. She says King paces while he eats, while she just stands and takes the heat.

However, she hasn't been working out extra for this contest and has no great preparation on the day of the match.

"The only thing I do is put Vaseline on my lips," she said.

December for the new addition. The construction will add a new entrance, a central administration office, a beauty shop, and a 24-hour day care center.

Mattox after delinquent dads

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox thinks the heat of public light can spark increased collections of delinquent child support payments.

Mattox Wednesday released his first regional lists of "most wanted" delinquent dads. Six men on the first lists owe more than $10,000 each.

The lists will be published in Texas newspapers, either voluntarily by the papers or in paid ads, according to Mattox. He also will ask radio and television stations to publicize the names in public service ads.

"It's my firm belief that if a person fails to pay child support they are engaging in another form of child abuse," said Mattox.

Texas has a woeful record on enforcing child support payments, the attorney general said. Only about half the people ordered to pay support are making payments and only about 28 percent are paying every penny due, Mattox told a news conference.

Judge admits nursing records

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Medical records seized surrounding the Autumn Hills nursing home case were legally obtained and can be used as evidence in a trial, a state district judge ruled.

Last November, a Galveston County grand jury issued eight murder indictments in the case accusing the home.

Indictments surrounding the case are based largely on medical records of two elderly women who died at Autumn Hills in 1978.

State District Judge Don B. Morgan's ruling Tuesday came after five days of testimony on a defense motion to suppress the former Texas City home's medical records as evidence.

But Morgan didn't rule whether the prosecution can use other records subpoenaed since officials took the medical records from the former Autumn Hills Convalescent Center in November 1979.

Attorneys defending the Houston-based Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. and five of its present and former employees charged that prosecutors improperly used a grand jury subpoena to seize records from the home.

Texas fights quarantine lift

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — South Texas citrus growers say federal officials should not ask them to jeopardize their industry for the sake of their Florida counterparts.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing to lift a quarantine on Florida citrus, some of which has been affected by canker, a bacteria that attacks the branches, leaves and even the fruit.

But at a public hearing on Wednesday, Rio Grande Valley growers who are trying to make a comeback after a devastating 1983 freeze said the canker must be eradicated before citrus is allowed to leave Florida.

"Is USDA of the opinion that the economic benefits to Florida are worth the risk that other growing areas are being asked to take?" said Dennis Holbrook, a board member of Texas Citrus Mutual.

"The citrus industry and the economy of the Rio Grande Valley has tried to get up off its knees and we cannot be subjected to another possible disaster," Holbrook said.

Congress wants to fight terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is an "open target" for terrorists, said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as he and House Majority Leader Jim Wright announced legislation to give the FBI an additional $22 million to combat domestic terrorists in the United States.

Bentsen had complained that the Reagan administration denied the FBI's request for $10.6 million more for hostage rescue teams, intelligence gathering and terrorism task forces in fiscal 1985 and 1986.

Bentsen, D-Texas, told a Wednesday news conference that sources had told him that, among other threats, "agents answerable to the Ayatollah Khomeini are hidden in place in the United States, prepared to conduct terrorist actions whenever they receive word from Iran."

"There's no question in my mind but what we're an open target in this country and that these things feed on themselves and that we're going to see more attempts at terrorism in this country and I don't think we should wait for it to happen," Bentsen said.

The increase would bring the FBI's anti-terrorism budget to over $62 million for fiscal year 1986.

Baptist offers olive branch

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A leading figure in the moderate faction of the Southern Baptist Convention has offered terms for a cease-fire with fundamentalist members of the denomination.

Kenneth L. Chafin, professor of preaching at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., made the proposal to ease the 7-year-old conflict between the two sides in an interview Wednesday.

Chafin said a bilateral pledge of silence would lower tensions in the war of words between the two factions.

"I am convinced it basically would solve the problem and Southern Baptists would go back to their own business, rather than continuing the strife at the annual conventions," he added.

Fundamentalists and moderates within the sect have frequently clashed at annual conventions over the election of the convention's president, who can influence selections to the board of trustees at each of the six Southern Baptist seminaries.

Mexico abolishes currency rate

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico abolished its official foreign currency exchange rate for tourists today, telling them to buy pesos on the free market where most foreign travelers already have been going for better rates.

The Bank of Mexico, the country's equivalent of the federal reserve, announced late Wednesday an immediate end to the government-controlled "interbank" peso exchange rate, set up for tourists and other individuals making non-commercial transactions.

Under the "interbank" rate Wednesday, tourists could buy U.S. dollars for 248 pesos and sell them for 247 pesos. On the free market, where rates vary according to supply and demand, dollars were being bought for 330 pesos and sold for 320 pesos.

Explosions sink Greenpeace ship

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Prime Minister David Lange today raised the possibility that the sinking of Greenpeace protest ship Rainbow Warrior by two explosions was linked to international terrorism, but said he had no evidence of this.

"I accept the possibility that there is about New Zealand now, and has been for some time, the vulnerability to the act of the international criminal, terrorist or lunatic that really no part of the world is immune from," Lange told reporters.

"But that is not to say that I have the slightest evidence of any association between those outrages (in other parts of the world), and what happened last night," he said.

Two explosions late Wednesday sank the 160-foot Rainbow Warrior at its berth in Auckland harbor and killed one crew member, a Portuguese photographer.

Tax change proposals affect personal finances

NEW YORK (AP) — The prospect of sweeping change in the tax laws has scrambled the financial plans of countless Americans in just about every income bracket.

Consider the hypothetical Morrison family, which had planned to buy a vacation home as an investment with both psychic and, they hoped, financial benefits.

Dan and Barbara Morrison, in their late 30s, both work, bringing in a combined income of $65,000 a year. They live with their two pre-school children in a house they bought four years ago for $100,000, with a $75,000 mortgage at a fixed interest rate of 12.5 percent.

The Morrises figure their house is now worth about $175,000, giving them about $100,000 equity in it. Furthermore, they have been able to save $50,000 in a bank money-market deposit account.

Aside from the mortgage, their only debt is a car loan on which they pay $220 a month. But except for life insurance and $16,000 in individual retirement accounts, they have no other long-term investments.

Not long ago, a three-bedroom cottage in a popular vacation community, caught their eye. They had the cash in their bank account for a down payment.

They figured that the vacation home would serve their purposes in several ways. It would be an ideal place to take the children on vacation each summer as they grew up.

And when the children were ready for college, Dan and Barbara thought, they might be able to sell the cottage at a profit large enough to help pay the tuition bills.

Now they are having second thoughts. President Reagan's proposal would severely curtail the tax benefits the cottage could offer them. When they last checked, they found that prices for properties in the area were falling in anticipation of tax reform.

What should they do? Neil Alexander, a Los Angeles financial planner, says they might consider buying the cottage anyway. In the soft current market, he notes, they might be able to get it at an attractive price.

To make certain that they will be able to deduct all their interest costs, Alexander suggested, they might consider refinancing their year-round home and buying the cottage for cash.

In so doing, they still would be taking a bit of a gamble, Alexander notes. Proposed and possible future changes in the tax laws could depress further prices of second homes. "The second-home market has been tremendously adversely impacted," he says. "The question is, how far down is down?"

As for another alternative the Morrises had been considering — investing in a real-estate limited partnership for income largely sheltered from current taxes — Alexander says such a deal may still be attractive. However, he says, "I wouldn't put all my eggs into that basket."

If the Morrises think they might want to increase their life insurance coverage in the future, Alexander suggests that they consider buying a universal life policy — a flexible type of policy in which premiums and the amount of insurance coverage can be varied, and in which money invested earns market interest rates — before the end of the year.

Reagan has proposed taxing the yearly buildup of cash value in insurance policies sold after 1985.

What about stocks or bonds, which would retain a relatively favorable tax status under Reagan's plan? Alexander notes stock and bond prices have recently risen sharply as interest rates have fallen and investors have evaluated the tax outlook.

Tax reform or no tax reform, he says, a venture into stocks and bonds now still involves the standard risks — the possibility of a recession, or a rebound in interest rates, or a revival of inflation.

That, he concludes, underscores a basic point — while they keep an eye on changing tax circumstances, neither the Morrises nor anyone else should let those circumstances distract them from the mission of putting their money in an investment that makes sound economic and financial sense.

COKE

Royal Crown Cola Co. executive vice president James Harralson issued a statement in Chicago saying, "The action will confuse and frustrate consumers, who will be anxious to try a new brand entirely."

"Coke has hurt its credibility both with consumers and its bottlers, who must be wondering if a third Coke will be introduced when this plan also fails."

Analysts have said sales of the new Coke have been spurred by curiosity, heavy promotions and price discounts, but that meaningful sales figures won't be available until fall.

Meanwhile, PepsiCo Inc., the parent company of Pepsi-Cola, has claimed that the reformulation of Coke is helping Pepsi sales. The Purchase, N.Y.-based concern said case shipments of Pepsi rose 14 percent in May from a year earlier, the biggest monthly gain in the company's 67-year history.

Zurkullen estimated that Classic Coke will win 3 percent of the $25 billion soft-drink market. Before new Coke, the old Coke commanded 22 percent of the market. Pepsi's share was 17 percent.

ther treatment. Doctors found no evidence of it in March.

But in interviews with The Associated Press, three physicians with internationally recognized credentials and broad experience in the field agreed that the discovery of a polyp in the colon indicates there may be others.

Two of them said that as a precaution, the president should have a more extensive examination and the existing polyp should be removed to eliminate the possibility of its developing into a cancerous tumor. The third declined to discuss Reagan's case specifically without more information than the White House had disclosed about the medical findings.

Wife of Madonna photographer wanted to show off his work

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The photographer who took nude photos of rock superstar Madonna is a shy man who went on a bike ride since the announcement that his pictures were to be published by Penthouse magazine, his wife says.

Susan Kulkens said the phone has been ringing continuously for days.

"It's sent my husband on a biking trip and I've lost a little bit of sleep over it," she said Wednesday. "I hear telephones ringing at night and there's no telephones ringing."

Mrs. Kulkens and her husband, Herman, have sued Penthouse magazine and are seeking $2 million in punitive damages.

She said she sent 22 photographs to Penthouse magazine publisher Bob Guccione for inspection, but never agreed on a price.

"I wanted everybody to see my husband's work," Mrs. Kulkens said.

"He does marvelous things, but he won't push himself. So I thought, 'Now that Madonna is famous let's show his work'."

The Kulkens, who have received $25,000 from Penthouse, are seeking to stop publication of the photographs. A hearing on their suit was scheduled for today in U.S. District Court in New York.

Mrs. Kulkens said the nude photos of Madonna were taken in 1977 when the singer was an 18-year-old struggling student at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

When asked about her husband's reaction after realizing he had photos of a superstar, she answered, "I think he was surprised, but if you think he was surprised imagine her parents."

Madonna, whose credits include the songs "Like a Virgin," "Material Girl," "Crazy For You," and a leading role in the movie "Desperately Seeking Susan," has had no comment on the matter.

Meanwhile, Penthouse and Playboy magazines have been battling to see which publication will hit the streets first with nude photos of Madonna.

Playboy has declared itself the winner, with its September issue available in major cities on Wednesday.

Penthouse said its September issue featuring the singer-actress would be available today in major cities.

In New York, Madonna filed suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court seeking to stop production of a motion picture, also called "Madonna."

The suit, which seeks damages of $10 million, says the producers have tried erroneously to imply there is a connection between the singer and the movie.

Memphis State studies ancient Egyptian mummy

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — She was wealthy and in her 30s, but her teeth were worn because her diet included too much sand and an oral infection caused her a lot of pain. She wasn't a Cleopatra, but she may have turned at least some heads in Egypt 2,300 years ago.

The head, brought from Egypt by a traveler more than a century ago, stored in a hatbox and taken to school occasionally for show and tell, has been under study by more than a dozen scientists. They presented their first findings at Memphis State University on Monday.

The head is one of the best-preserved in the United States, said Egyptologist Rita Freed. A "rosette" or flower design on the side of the head indicates the woman died about 300 B.C.

The head was gilded during mummification and the woman's hair dyed red, Freed said. "There's no doubt in our minds that she was well off."

The woman was 30 to 40 years old when she died, said Hugh Berryman, a forensic anthropologist at the University of Tennessee Center for the Health Sciences who directed the team of scientists.

Medical illustrators have drawn a color portrait of what the woman looked like alive, which will be displayed with the head at Memphis State.

"She wasn't a Cleopatra, but she probably wasn't unattractive," Berryman said.

The woman's teeth were badly worn, probably from eating rough foods accidentally laced with desert sand, said oral pathologist Dr. James E. Hamner. She had an infection on the left side of her mouth and had to eat on the right side. "She only had two of her 12 molars left," Hamner said.

The cause of death could not be determined, but the woman's infected teeth meant she was in "a good deal of pain," Berryman said. "Keep in mind there were no antibiotics 2,300 years ago."

Tests did not disclose the chemicals used to preserve the mummy, he said.

The scientists found what appeared to be a parasite egg in the tissue of the head, but more tests will be needed to determine what it is, he said.

Berryman said the head was cut off after the woman was mummified, and the surgery was far from delicate.

Local Catholics honored by Pope John Paul II

Deacon Vicente H. Garcia of San Jose Church and Mrs. Ed (Adeline) Loerwald of St. Anthony's Church are among 22 people in the Roman Catholic Diocese of Amarillo who have been honored by Pope John Paul II, according to a recent announcement made by Bishop L.T. Matthiesen.

The two will be honored at a ceremony on September 1 at 4 p.m. in the Holy Family Chapel of the Bishop DeFalco Retreat Center in Amarillo.

Deacon Garcia was ordained to the Permanent Diaconate in 1981 and has been a pastoral assistant at San Jose Church since that time. He serves as a lector and usher in his parish. He was appointed Extraordinary Minister of the Eucharist for San Jose Parish and is active in the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine program as well as the Cursillo movement.

Mrs. Loerwald began working for St. Anthony's Church in 1950, publishing the church bulletin in her home. She began work as a secretary and bookkeeper in 1960. She has held offices in all women's parish organizations. She served two terms as president of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women. In 1968, she was the DCCW "Woman of the Year."

She has been a member and officer of the Diocesan Pastoral Council. She also served as secretary of the Texas Catholic Conference.

Make no apologies

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Because my wife and I receive a great many telephone calls we decided to install an answering machine. It is quite costly but we feel it is worth the money.

The machine has made several of our friends angry, especially those who love to call and shoot the breeze. Our recorded message says, "We will call you back," and we always do.

My sister, who lives, 1,500 miles away, refuses to call since we installed the mechanical device. She wrote last week to say, "I am not paying good money to talk to a machine."

When we are at home we often pick up the phone and if we want to talk we interrupt the recorded message. Many callers who know this feel we are ducking them when we don't cut in.

There has been a lot of anger among some friends and relatives who resent being "screened." We feel sad about this. Is the machine worth alienating them, Ann? Please give us your honest opinion. —TEMPORARILY DISCONNECTED IN TENNESSEE

DEAR TEMP: Anyone who chooses not to be trapped on the telephone by folks who have nothing better to do than "shoot the breeze" has the right to do whatever is necessary to protect himself. Make no apologies. Survival is the first law of nature.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl and have been having sex with my boyfriend. I know it is wrong because I feel cheap and dirty. I think he is using me.

When he takes me out for a date I know why. We never go to a nice place. It is always some crummy dump for a hamburger and french fries. Then he parks someplace for a couple of hours. I feel like a tramp when he drops me off at home and never even walks me to the door.

No one seems to care about me. My parents never ask what I do or where I go. I wish they would ask me what my life is like. I feel alone and unloved.

Ann, can you help me? This boy says he loves me but I think he is just out for what he can get.—CRYING FOR HELP IN IDAHO

DEAR CRYING FOR HELP: Tell your parents you need help before you find yourself in serious trouble. Be perfectly open about what you have been doing.

You sound like a reasonably bright young girl who has become involved with a "user" because you are desperately lonely. Give this guy the deep six—and I mean immediately. He's bad news.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I always wanted a large family but because of several miscarriages we were destined to have only one child. At this moment I feel God knew what he was doing.

Our 7-year-old son is adorable to look at and bright as can be, but he is sassy, disrespectful, stubborn and a poor eater. He teases the dog and threatens to run away. Spankings do no good. He just laughs. In short he is driving me crazy. Please, Ann, throw me a lifeline.—LONG ISLAND MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Have I got a book for you! It is called, "When Your Child Drives You Crazy" by Edna Leshan, a child-care expert. The publisher is St. Martin's Press and the price is $14.95.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Lander's guide to "Necking and Petting—What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Show team traveled to Austin July 3 to compete with their animals at the Texas Club Calf Association Belt Buckle Bonanza.

The group of 13 left Wednesday (July 3) and traveled to Abilene where they rested the steers and enjoyed swimming, basketball and the scenery. Arriving in Austin on Thursday morning, the 4-H'ers watched their neighbors from the Hereford FFA show lambs that day.

Those FFA'ers were Robby Phillips, who placed his lambs at reserve grand prospect fine wool, champion market fine wool, champion prospect cross, and reserve champion market medium wool lamb.

Jeff Hicks placed a first in the medium wool market lamb show and Jennifer Hicks exhibited a fourth place cross in the prospect lamb show. Also on Thursday the 4-H group weighed in and classified their steers and continued their preparation for the show.

Friday began the market steer show where steers which weight over 900 lbs. were exhibited for their overall uniformity and expected carcass value. Rickie Vogel showed his 1,309 lb. Chianina steer to a third place award. Around 150 steers competed in the market steer show.

Saturday started early for around 1,500 4-H and FFA members in Austin. The renowned T.C.C.A. Bonanza Prospect Steer Show. This year the show was bigger than ever with approximately 825 prospect steers.

Prospect steers are those which are being fed and trained for next year's spring shows such as county shows, Odessa, Ft. Worth, San Antonio, Denver, Kansas City, Phoenix, and Houston.

Vogel, mentioned earlier, exhibited two prospect steers, one, 860 lbs. Chianina won the medium weight class and was slapped champion Chianina steer of the show and earned Rickie the right to exhibit that steer in the parade of champions and selection of the grand champion steer of show. His other Chianina steer placed third in the heavy weight prospect division.

Jeremy Myers won top honors in the light middle weight Chianina class and was in tough running for champion Chianina in the championship drive. His light weight Chianina steer placed fourth. Chris Urbanczyk showed his middle weight Limousin bred steer to a fourth place in a tough class of 18 head.

Tim Koenig placed eighth with his middle weight Charolais steer and Chris Connally, eight with a heavy weight Chianina and 14th with a heavy weight Maine Anjou steer.

In the showmanship competition Myers was a finalist in the junior division and Urbanczyk and Vogel finalist in the senior division.

Four-H leaders and youth supporters who traveled to Austin were Judy Myers, Gay Myers, Randy Vogel, Tracy Haymes, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Vogel, Susan Hicks, Marcus Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Davy Vestal, Jim McMorries, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ebling and Dennis Newton.

Over the past four weeks, Deaf Smith 4-H'ers have attended four shows and earned winnings of 13 first places for 31.7 percent, 10 second places for 24.4 percent, four third places for 9.75 percent, eight fourth places for 19.51 percent, two fifth places for 4.9 percent, one eighth place for 2.4 percent, one ninth place for 2.4 percent, and one 14th place for 2.4 percent out of a total of 41 steers shown.

Regina Kester, a native of Buedingen, Germany, was a 20-year-old warbride when she came to the United States in December of 1963.

In explaining her hometown Kester said, "It's a small town about the size of Hereford. Judging from photographs hanging on her wall, one cannot imagine how beautiful the country is...brooks running through the village, cottages dotting the countryside.

Kester completed the eighth grade in Germany which is the equivalent of a high school diploma in the states. She then went on to business school before she met her future husband.

In accordance with German customs at that time, Kester's in-laws had to sign a document stating that she would not be a burden to the government here before she could come to join her husband.

Kester thought it very odd that her in-laws had to sign for her. "I wonder about the other aliens, Cubans, for example," Kester asked. "I wonder who signed for them to come over and if that law is still in effect."

After coming to the states, Regina and Bill Kester were married and they ran the family business, the former Kester's Jewelry.

Kester was registered for 12 years as an alien before she decided to become a citizen of the United States.

"Because of the legal hassels, signing forms for the store and what not," explained Kester, "I decided to become a citizen in 1975." Kester worked at the jewelry store for 10 years before it closed.

She now spends her time teaching an exercise class at the YMCA and serving on the board of directors. She enjoys needlepoint, crocheting, knitting, and particularly sewing.

She often swims at Green Acres and when bicycling, one can see her pedaling along with her orange flag waving behind her.

Kester is very close to her family, including a son, Michael, 13, and her husband, Bill who is self-employed building kit-kars.

"Bill takes new camaros, and by taking off the tops, of the cars, he remodels them into convertibles," Kester said proudly as she displayed pictures of a car taken at a recent car show in Dallas.

"We are planning a trip to New Jersey to deliver a kit-car" commented Kester. But that is not the big trip for her.

Kester will be returning to Germany in September for a visit to see her family. She has two brothers, a sister-in-law, and a young niece that will be welcoming her.

Kester included some recipes from her home country that her family likes.

"Especially the potato salad," Kester said, "I make it the German way!" she concluded.

Ways with Wine

by David Hutchins

KEG FRESHNESS

All beer is susceptible to spoilage that is caused by micro-organisms. The problem generally is not serious with draft beer dispensed from kegs. Draft beer usually is consumed long before the micro-organisms can ruin the brew. Beer sold in bottles and cans, on the other hand, takes a slow route from brewery to belly. Unless it is pasteurized, it could be undrinkable upon opening. The pasteurization process, which is not used for genuine draft beer, partially cooks the beer and, therefore, negatively alters its flavor. Many beer aficionados recognize the difference in taste between pasteurized and unpasteurized beer. As a result, consider buying a suitable-size barrel of beer for your next party.

If your gathering is too small for a whole keg of beer, perhaps you should consider a half keg. Come in to THE STORE and tell us how many people you are expecting and we will use our knowledge and experience to make sure you have the right amount of beer. Stop by 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 and become familiar with our inventory and with our staff. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

TIAA 'all-decade' football team

Ex-HHS athlete receives honors

A Hereford athlete was named to the "All-Decade" football team by the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association, marking the conference's 10th anniversary.

Wayne Schumacher, who was the second leading tackler in 1978 for Tarleton State University, was one of six players from the Stephenville school that were honored.

Twenty-five football players were selected for the team. The Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association was formed in 1976.

Schumacher, an outside linebacker, was a four-year letterman at Tarleton State University. An honorable mention all-conference selection in 1977, he was a first team pick in the conference and district in 1978.

Schumacher was named to the NAIA All-American second team in 1978. Listed as a six-foot, 190-pounder at Tarleton State, Schumacher totaled 210 tackles his junior and senior years at Hereford High School.

In his senior football season in 1978, Schumacher was named to the all-district team as a linebacker.

As a 165-pound senior, Schumacher was a team captain for the Herd. He was the Herd's leading tackler with 108 tackles, and was known for his linebacker blitzes.

Also in his senior year, he intercepted one pass and on offense he caught four passes for 45 yards.

District title game is tonight in

Babe Ruth tourney

The 13-year-old all-star team of the Hereford Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League will have a rematch with Plainview tonight for the championship of the district tournament.

The contest starts at 8 p.m. at the Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League field in Hereford.

Plainview shut out Friona 26-0 Wednesday night, eliminating Friona from the tournament.

If a second championship game is necessary in the district tournament, it will be played at 8 p.m. Friday.

The winner of the district tournament advances to the West Texas state tournament, scheduled next week in Denver City.

Six teams in National League history have had nine players with 100 or more hits each in the same season: Pittsburgh in 1921, 1972 and 1976; Philadelphia in 1923; New York in 1928; and St. Louis in 1979. This is a National League record.

Then And Now

Nov. 16, 1973, which gave the Herd the district championship, Schumacher recovered a fumble.

In his junior season, Schumacher was the second leading tackler for Hereford High School with 102 tackles, and also intercepted one pass.

Schumacher is the son of Joe and Ida Schumacher of Frio. He works for American Hospital Supply Corporation of Wichita Falls, as the account manager for the North Texas district.

He is married to Suzi Smith, who is originally from Stageboro, Ga., and who teaches aerobics classes and dancing classes.

Other Tarleton State players selected to the "All-Decade" team are middle linebacker Tally Neal, defensive tackle Steve Fieszel, offensive tackle Billy Easter, defensive back Dan Smalley, and running back Ricky Bush.

All of the Tarleton players selected, expect for Bush, played on Tarleton's conference championship team in 1977 and 1978.

In 1978, Tarleton went to the national playoffs with a record of 8-0-1 and ranked number one in the nation in defense.

Hough pitches 2-hitter, Rangers beat Indians

By The Associated Press

Brett Butler, the 5-foot-8 center fielder, was the only Cleveland Indian with a big bat as he snatched a no-hitter away from Texas Rangers' righthander Charlie Hough.

"Once in a while, he'll give a little guy a fastball, and I think that's why I got a chance to get a couple of hits," Butler said after Hough's two-hitter downed the Indians 4-1 Wednesday night.

Butler, who has been hitting around .300 most of the season, managed to get the best of the Rangers' knuckleball artist as he hit two fastballs for singles in the first and ninth innings.

Hough, 7-10, struck out four and walked two and lost his shutout with two outs in the ninth inning when Butler scored on a wild pitch.

Jerry Reed, 0-2, took the loss.

Hough had no regrets about Butler's hits.

"They were both hit solid. Hey, they had a line drive to shortstop for an easy out and a line drive to second base for an easy out. I felt like I had pretty good command of my slow, hard and in-between knuckler, though," Hough said.

Catcher Glenn Brummer said, "Neither Charlie or I have any idea where it's going. Every knuckleball he throws does something different. I feel like a hockey goalie most of the time."

Pete O'Brien lined a two-run home run and Oddibe McDowell added a solo shot as the Rangers snapped a four-game losing streak. The Indians, who have the worst record in major-league baseball, were trying to get their fourth consecutive win.

Butler lined his first single on a 3-2 pitch just to the left of second baseman Wayne Tolleson, and Hough did not allow another hit until Butler led off the ninth with a base hit. Butler worked his way around to third on groundouts and scored on a wild pitch by Hough.

Cleveland first threatened in the seventh when Hough hit leadoff batter Julio Franco and Andre Thornton reached on third baseman Bill Stein's error. But Hough got Brock Jacoby to pop up and Pat Tabler to ground out.

McDowell lifted a fly ball leading off the top of the first inning which Cleveland left fielder Otis Nixon dropped for a two-base error. After McDowell took third on Wayne Tolleson's sacrifice bunt, O'Brien lined his 10th home run off Reed into the first row of the right field seats for a 2-0 Ranger lead.

The Rangers added a run in the sixth when Tolleson reached first on shortstop Franco's throwing error and took second as O'Brien singled. Tolleson went to third when George Wright filed out and scored on Gary Ward's sacrifice fly.

McDowell slugged his fourth home run into the right field seats in the seventh inning to close the scoring for the Rangers.

In other American League games, Toronto routed Seattle 11-1; California edged Milwaukee 2-1; Detroit shut out Chicago 1-0; New York defeated Kansas City 6-5; Oakland beat Boston 5-4; and Minnesota scored a 2-1 win over Baltimore.

A merger between the National Football League and the All-America Conference was announced on Dec. 9, 1949, in which Baltimore, Cleveland and San Francisco of the AAC joined the 10 teams of the National Football League.

Mike Scott pitches shutout

Astros rout Phillies, 10-0

By The Associated Press

Having a lot of runs on the board makes it a lot easier to pitch, Houston Astros hurler Mike Scott says.

A bases-loaded triple by Jose Cruz triggered a five-run first inning, and the Astros went on to shut out the Philadelphia Phillies, 10-0, Wednesday night in the last game of a three-game series.

"When I get ahead like I did tonight, it makes a big difference in the way I pitch," Scott said. "I don't worry about guys hitting it out, I just try to throw strikes."

"You can come with a fastball on the first pitch to a guy like (Mike) Schmidt and even if he hits it out, you still have a four-run lead."

Scott, 8-4, struck out seven and walked one on his way to his second shutout and second complete game of the season.

Phillie manager John Felske was impressed.

"Scott pitched super. His cut fastball was really effective against us tonight. They were due to explode," Felske said.

Houston hitters supported Scott with 14 hits as the Astros snapped a three-game losing streak. With the victory, Houston improved to 42-42, six games behind the division-leading San Diego Padres. Philadelphia slipped to 37-45.

Felske said he was glad the Phillies won the first two games of the series with Houston, but said it's not enough.

"We need to put a winning streak together of six or seven games and hopefully get back in the race," the Philadelphia skipper said.

After its five-run first inning, Houston came back with its five other runs in the fifth inning.

Bill Doran led off the Astros' first with the first of his two doubles for the night. Ty Gainey reached first base after being hit by a pitch. Both runners then advanced on a wild pitch by Phillies starter and loser Jerry Koonsman, 3-2.

Phil Garner walked, loading the bases and setting the stage for Cruz's triple. Singles by Glem Davis and Scott padded the lead to 5-0.

The Astros' runs in the fifth came off Phillie relief pitchers Rocky Childress and Dave Kruk.

This time Cruz led off with a single to left field followed by singles by Kevin Bass, Davis and Alan Ashby. Dickie Thon's bases-loaded double drove in three runs. Doran's single to right field plated the final two runs.

In other National League action, it was New York 2, Cincinnati 1; Los Angeles 5, Pittsburgh 4; St. Louis 7, San Francisco 3; Montreal 6, Atlanta 5; and Chicago 4, San Diego 3.

'Y' tennis classes set

A beginners tennis class has been scheduled by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA next week from Monday through Friday.

The class is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. each day at the Hereford High School tennis courts.

An adult class is planned for July 29 to Aug. 2, from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. each day at the high school courts. Enrollment for these classes are for a maximum of 16 people on a first come, first serve basis.

Instructor for the classes will be Ruben Vargas. Class fees are $10 for YMCA members and $20 for YMCA non-members, and must be paid in advance at the YMCA.

Babe Ruth 14-15 all-star tourney begins Saturday

The opening game of the district tournament for 14 and 15-year-old Babe Ruth League all-star teams will have Hereford going against Friona at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Site of the district tournament is Friona. The winner of Saturday's game will play Muleshoe at 2 p.m. Sunday.

A loser's bracket game is scheduled at 8 p.m. Monday, with the winner advancing to the tournament championship game at 8 p.m. Tuesday, against the winner of the Sunday game.

If a second title game is necessary in the tournament, it will be played at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Professional basketball player Dan Roundfield does not boast much about his basketball prowess, but just turn his loose on how he can play softball. Roundfield, an outfielder, said, "Nobody ever takes an extra base on me. Once in a softball game, I caught a long fly with my back to the fence, at least 300 feet from home plate. The guy on third tagged up and went for the plate. I threw the ball clear over the backstop. Yeah, the runner scored but when they saw that arm they forgot about running on me."

No-pass, no-play rule upheld

Court decision puts emphasis on classroom

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court's endorsement of the no-pass, no-play rule means the emphasis in Texas schools will be on learning, officials say.

"Once again, the priority of academics has been established," said Gov. Mark White, who led last year's push for the sweeping school reform law that spawned the controversial rule.

In a unanimous decision Wednesday, the Supreme Court upheld the state Board of Education rule prohibiting students from participating in sports and other extracurricular activities if they are failing any class.

"The rule provides a strong incentive for students wishing to participate in extracurricular activities to maintain minimum levels of performance in all of their classes," the Supreme Court said.

"In view of the rule's objective to promote improved classroom performance by students, we find the rule rationally related to the legitimate state interest in providing a quality education to Texas' public school students," the court added.

The ruling was expected to have widespread effect in the state's 1,100 school districts, and it immediately was hailed by state education officials.

"Extracurricular activities will remain an important part of a student's school life, but we hope today's ruling will help put those activities in the proper perspective," said Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

Kirby said he hopes the ruling will end disputes over the rule and refocus Texans' attitudes.

"Now that the highest court in Texas has determined that the rule is constitutional, we believe both parents and students will be able to accept the idea that the state of Texas wants its school children to concentrate first on academics," Kirby said.

Numerous unhappy parents and school administrators had complained about the rule laid down by the State Board of Education as a result of the 1984 major school reform bill. The lawsuit brought by about 45 students and parents in the Houston area claimed the rule hit hardest at minorities and under achievers.

The no-pass, no-play rule was enacted by the State Board of Education in carrying out policy directives of the major school reform bill passed by the 1984 special legislative session. A student failing to make at least 70 in any course during a six-week period can be banned from extracurricular activities the next six weeks.

The Supreme Court's decision came a day before the state board begins a three-day meeting where a special report on the rule was scheduled. The court said the only issue before it was the constitutionality of the rule.

State District Judge Marsha D. Anthony in Houston this spring had found the rule unconstitutional on the grounds that it violated equal protection and due process guarantees.

But the Supreme Court said the Texas Constitution "leaves to the Legislature alone the determination of which methods, restrictions and regulations are necessary and appropriate to carry out this duty, so long as that determination is not so arbitrary as to violate the constitutional rights of Texas citizens."

The high court judges said a student's right to play school sports isn't on a par with constitutionally guaranteed rights of free expression.

"A student's 'right' to participate in extracurricular activities does not rise to the same level as the right to free speech or free exercise of religion, both of which have long been recognized under our state and federal constitutions," the court said.

"We adopt the majority rule and hold that a student's right to participate in extracurricular activities per se does not rise to the level of a fundamental right under our constitution," the court said.

Kirby, the education commissioner, said it was "unfortunate" that sports and other extracurricular activities "were mired in uncertainty and controversy during the last months of the school year" by lawsuits over the no-pass, no-play rule.

The Supreme Court heard oral arguments in the case June 19 after it had blocked temporarily the Houston court order.

The attorney general asked the Supreme Court to take over the issue after State District Judge David Dunn of Orange upheld the rule and Ms. Anthony had overturned it.

The conflicting opinions briefly halted the state high school baseball playoffs, but the Supreme Court allowed them to proceed while considering the case.

"This rule resulted from the Legislature attempting to put the emphasis on the curriculum in our school, not the frills," David Richards, first assistant attorney general, had told the Supreme Court.

"This rule says the business of Texas schools is education. If a student passes his work he can enjoy the frills, if he does not pass, he cannot," Richards had said. "We do not see it as a form of punishment."

Attorney Anthony Sheppard, representing 45 unhappy students and parents in the Houston area, had said the "rule impinges on the fundamental rights of students. It affects more than sports. We do not think regulation of extracurricular activities is a compelling state interest."

Sheppard said the rule also violated freedom of speech guarantees, because a failing student would not be able to take part in student government, work on the school newspaper or take part in debate competition.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, who defended the rule, leveled sharp criticism at District Judge Marsha Anthony for declaring no-pass, no-play unconstitutional on May 23.

"It was obvious that the judge ventured into an area that she did not understand, an area that was clearly beyond her capabilities to deal with," Mattox said.

"The (Supreme) Court sent a very clear signal to judges such as Marsha Anthony ... Her decision in this area was clearly an abuse of judicial discretion," Mattox said. The judge's clerk said she was out of town and unavailable for comment.

The Supreme Court, which heard arguments on the rule June 19, had been under pressure to hand down a quick decision so the situation could be clarified before the high school football season opens. The court soon will recess for the summer.

Several local school officials applauded the decision.

"We think it (the rule) is a positive contribution to the purpose of what public schools are all about — providing quality education," said Alief Superintendent Alfred Hook, whose district was one of those sued by parents.

The high court's decision "a message saying we need to place emphasis on the educational aspects of school rather than the social or entertaining aspects," said Judy Williams, spokeswoman for the Aldine schools, also one of the defendants.

The reaction from some school districts was less favorable, with officials saying a blanket no-pass, no-play rule makes it hard on some students.

"I think the clarification is good, but I still have difficulty with the restrictions and how it's going to affect some kids," said Don Gentry, administrative assistant in the Tyler

Independent School District.

For example, Gentry said, his district had an honor student barred from extracurricular activities for failing a physical education class.

But elsewhere, school administrators said the high court's ruling was a good one.

"I think ultimately it will be a victory for the students because it says that school is school," said Carl Candel, superintendent of the Fort Worth ISD.

"It (the no-pass, no-play rule) hit us all of a sudden and put people in a quandary. They thought they weren't going to be able to participate in anything. But that didn't happen," said Lloyd McKee, deputy superintendent of the Ector County ISD at Odessa.

"They need to leave it alone now," McKee added.

Sesquicentennial Commission planning international events

AUSTIN - There'll be dancers from Germany...students from South Australia...and maybe the King and Queen of Spain! The Sesquicentennial will have something to offer nearly every nationality in 1986, thanks to a number of special committees that are planning activities with other countries.

Since 1981, the Sesquicentennial Commission has been actively recruiting persons to plan international events and exchanges. The first to be officially recognized by the Commission, South Australia, is also planning a Sesquicentennial in 1986, and several organizations are coordinating special events between the two states. The Texas-South Australia Exchange is working to twin Texas cities with South Australian cities that have similar interests, and the Texas-South Australia Twin Schools program has succeeded in "twinning" nearly 100 Texas elementary, junior high and high schools with those in South Australia for projects such as pen pals, exchanges of artwork and other information, and possible student exchanges. The Texas-South Australia Foundation has established a number of very successful programs, including exchanges of service clubs, exchanges of high school students from both states, and 14 group tours to South Australia.

Transplanted Britons and other anglophiles will be involved in the activities of the Texas-Great Britain Commission. This organization will work to stimulate tourism between Texas and England and develop cultural exchanges for art, grand opera, ballet, theater and symphony. Possibilities for a Texas trade and products expo to travel to England, sports exchanges, and reopening of the original Texas-England embassy of the Republic are also being discussed.

German dancers will be only a part of the long list of colorful programs planned by the Texas-West Germany Sesquicentennial Committee to celebrate the rich German heritage of Texas. Among the highlights of the committee's plans are a reunion of former German POW's in Mexico, and exhibit of cowboy art to tour Germany, student exchanges at high school and university levels, and specially-designed tour packages for German visitors to the Hill Country, Big Bend and the Llano Estacado.

An official invitation from Governor Mark White has been extended to the King and Queen of Spain for the Sesquicentennial.

Paul Harvey Paying the price

Every generation has paid to play. Forty years ago we knew better than to smoke and drink but we did anyway. Because young people are not guided so much by what they know as by how they feel. And they feel indestructible. The rebelling youth of 20 years ago literally went to pot, experimented with LSD.

The Age-of-Aquarians staged the largest youth rebellion since 1776, turned their backs on the timeless credo of "behave or be damned" and stuck flowers in their stringy hair and burned their bras and overtly trivialized sex-and it cost them. But by the time Jerry Rubin had shaved, that generation emerged, some hung over, but relatively unscathed. However, for each generation of us-willing as we were to "pay the piper"-the price has gone up. The youth rebellion of the 1970s took on added dimension with the introduction of new drugs. Toking and smoking escalated to tooting and snorting. The disco generation gulped uppers and downers and opened their veins and closed their eyes and dreamed wonderful dreams. With angel dust and the killer drugs they enslaved themselves to habits which cost a thousand dollars a day. They, too, were willing to pay to play but the price had gone up. Now life in the fast lane was costing too much. And enlightened youth of the '80s sought for themselves marriages and mortgages and sanitation and exercise and health food and church and yet...

The bills are still unpaid. For the excesses of the '70s introduced super pharmaceutical night-mare molecules and homegrown and imported mutant micro-organisms, some of which not even glass will keep in or keep out. Years dormant, some never die. So hard as we run we can't hide from unprecedented strains of gonorrhea and syphilis, chlamydia and genital herpes - and AIDS. Familiar cycles of youth rebellion and reconversion have become more than we can afford. (c) 1985 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The Newspaper BIBLE A PRAYER THAT RATTLED THE RAFTERS!

As soon as they were freed, Peter and John found the other disciples and told them what the Council had said. Then all the believers united in this prayer: "O Lord, Creator of heaven and earth and of the sea and everything in them-You spoke long ago by the Holy Spirit through our ancestor King David, your servant, saying, Why do the heathen rage against the Lord, and the foolish nations plan their little plots against Almighty God? The kings of the earth unite to fight against Him, against the anointed Son of God!"

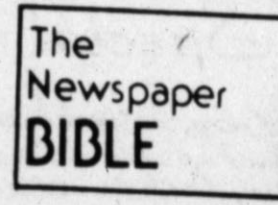

That is what is happening here in this city today! For Herod the king, and Pontius Pilate the governor, and all the Romans--as well as the people of Israel--are united against Jesus, Your anointed Son, Your holy servant. They won't stop at anything that You in Your wise power will let them do. And now, O Lord, hear their threats, and grant to Your servants great boldness in their preaching, and send Your healing power, and may miracles and wonders be done by the name of Your holy servant Jesus."

After this prayer, the building where they were meeting shook and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and boldly preached God's message. All the believers were of one heart and mind, and no one felt that what he owned was his own; everyone was sharing. And the apostles preached powerful sermons about the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and there was warm fellowship among all the believers, and no poverty--for all who owned land or houses sold them and brought the money to the apostles to give to others in need. Acts 4:23-35

Every generation has paid to play. Forty years ago we knew better than to smoke and drink but we did anyway. Because young people are not guided so much by what they know as by how they feel. And they feel indestructible. The rebelling youth of 20 years ago literally went to pot, experimented with LSD.
