WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the White House and Congress seeking to hold the 1983 federal deficit below $100 billion are working on a general plan for spending cuts and increased taxes totaling $83 billion to $87 billion, sources say.

The most difficult questions — which taxes to raise and by how much and which programs to cut and by how much — would be fought on the floor of the House and Senate instead of agreed to in advance by the administration and congressional leaders, the sources say.

Efforts to work out a detailed bipartisan budget compromise ended this week when negotiators reached an impasse on proposals to cut Social Security and Democrats' demands for a change in the 10-percent personal income tax cut scheduled for 1983.

White House officials and members of Congress have now turned their attention to a less specific plan that envisions a budget deficit of between $95 billion and $99 billion next year, according to sources.

"They're still hung up on the toughest subjects," a congressional source said late Friday after the latest round of secret budget talks at the White House failed to produce an agreement.

"They've made up their minds that they'll reach 'X' conclusion and they'll keep negotiating until they reach that conclusion," said the source, who asked not to be quoted by name.

Another negotiating session was scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

According to a worksheet obtained by The Associated Press, the negotiators are considering an outline that would produce a deficit of between $66 billion and $73 billion in 1984 and between $24 billion and $35 billion in 1985.

Without spending cuts and higher taxes, the deficits would be $182 billion in 1983, $216 billion in 1984 and $233 billion in 1985, according to the worksheet.

The document assumes higher taxes of $25 billion in 1983 and a total of $110 billion over three years, a figure said to represent the amount White House negotiators are willing to agree to.

But sources, who asked not to be identified, maintained that Democrats are demanding even larger tax increases to reduce the deficits further, although the worksheet mentions nothing about that.

The worksheet apparently assumes no cuts in Social Security cost-of-living adjustments. But it does envision that Congress will save $10 billion in 1983 and between $38 billion and $44 billion the next three years through adoption of as-yet-unknown recommendations by a bipartisan study commission examining Social Security.

Without those changes, the deficit would be above $100 billion in the 1983 fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1, according to the worksheet. The commission on Social Security is not expected to issue a report until the end of the year.

No Special Session Before June Runoffs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says that if a special legislative session is needed to abolish the state property tax, it probably will not be called until after the June 5 runoff primaries.

Clements also said any session on the controversial property tax would include his recommendations for state college construction funding.

"I have an open mind on how college construction should be funded but there is no open mind that it must be funded," Clements said at a news conference.

Clements said his stand on a special session for abolishment of the state property tax had not changed since his statement at a news conference last August.

"If Midwestern University wins its suit (to re-establish the 10-cent state property tax), I will call a special session to address abolishment (See SESSION, Page 2A)

Solons Want Voice In CIA Selection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators, one of them fearing that "the foxes are now guarding the chicken house at the CIA," want President Reagan to consult with them before naming a new deputy director.

"This is a watershed event, not simply a resignation, a replacement and life goes on," Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Friday of Adm. Bobby Inman's resignation this week as the CIA's No. 2 official.

Lugar, one of Reagan's most loyal congressional supporters and a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, summoned reporters to his office Friday for a rare public statement on intelligence policy.

Reflecting concern throughout the committee about the leadership of the CIA under Director William Casey, Lugar said members of the Senate panel "should be heavily involved in the selection process" before the names of potential successors to Inman emerge in public.

"I'm frankly trying to engender a dialogue and send some signals" to the White House, Lugar said. "This is a traumatic occasion, and I say that advisedly."

Casey's management of the CIA and his past business practices were investigated by the Intelligence Committee last year, when several senators called for his resignation.

The committee ultimately gave Casey the tepid endorsement that he was "not unfit to serve" in the post.

"Many of us voted for Casey and Inman as a package," Lugar said.

Caviness Dies In Home Fire

E.E. "Pete" Caviness, founder of Caviness Packing Company, died early Saturday when he was unable to escape the fire which consumed his home at 142 Nueces.

A fireman at the scene said Caviness' body was found just inside the house by a door with keys in the lock. The fireman said he apparently was suffocated by the smoke.

Caviness, 64, was the only one at home. His wife, Roberta, was babysitting grandchildren overnight in their home.

Five units of the Hereford Fire Department were at the scene after neighbors called in at 3:45 a.m. Jay Spain, fire marshal, said the clock in the bedroom had stopped at 1:48 a.m., so the fire had about a two-hour head start on the firemen.

"I could see the glow from the fire station when we rolled out," Spain said. By the time units arrived, flames were licking through the roof. Spain said the fire started on the kitchen stove. The house was gutted.

Firemen were at the scene until about 8 a.m. Saturday.

Caviness was born Jan. 18, 1918, in Chillicothe. He grew up on a ranch just west of the Texas-New Mexico border.

After graduating from New Mexico State University and serving in the Army during World War II Caviness started work in an independent packing firm in New Mexico as a buyer and assistant manager.

He moved from Amarillo to

Pete Caviness

Hereford in 1962 to fulfill a dream of opening his own meat packing plant on U.S. 60 West.

Caviness has remained active in the business, although during the past few years it has been operated by his sons, Terry and Brent. Under the management of Terry, the company had acquired other firms in the past year and now includes operations in Amarillo, El Paso and Bonham.

Services will be 2 p.m. Monday in First United Methodist Church, Hereford, conducted by Rev. Jarrell Sharp.

Mays Humbled By 'His Day;' Ready for 1984 Olympics

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

James Mays has traveled many roads since he was a schoolboy 880-yard champion for Hereford High School in 1977. But, despite a globe-hopping schedule which results in him matching strides with the world's best athletes, the 22-year-old former Whiteface found time to stop by the ol' hometown Friday.

Mays, a product of one of several local families which have rich bloodlines when it comes to athletics, was honored with "James Mays Day" Friday, and the significance of the event did not escape him.

"It's kind of like something out of a story book," the lean, world-class runner said. "I think I'm really fortunate to have a hometown that has enough interest in an ex athlete to do this for them."

An "ex-athlete" from Hereford, certainly. But, not when it comes to the big-time track circles. Following an illustrious collegiate career at Texas Tech, Mays is now sponsored by the Nike Shoe Co., and is beginning preparations for the 1984 Olympic Trials.

He has recently returned from a second trip to Europe, where he was part of the U.S. National Team which performed in a meet at Milan, Italy, and in a dual at Birmingham, England.

He ran the 1,000 meters in both meets, finishing second to the European Champion at Milan, and winning the event in England. He also ran on the victorious U.S. mile relay team, which defeated its British counterpart.

It was the first time he had run the 1,000 meters, and it was a new experience for an 800-meter specialist.

"At Milan I should have won," Mays said. "I had beaten the guy who won before, but I waited too late to begin my kick."

He has also run in a mile race, his longest, finishing fourth at the Texas Relays with a time of 4:10.

But, the half-mile is still his favorite race. And with his background of success at that distance it's easy to see why.

He was three times an All-America in the event while a Red Raider, and he posted the fourth fastest 800 meter time in the U.S. this year with a 1:47.7 at the Domino Pizza Relays in Florida just after returning from Europe.

Mays left Lubbock Saturday, bound for Los Angeles, where he was to compete in the Mount San Antonio College Relays, which he says is "one of the biggest meets in

Four Accused Of

Rigging Bids

Awarded Contracts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Four highway contractors accused of rigging bids were awarded contracts by the Texas Highway Commission after commissioners said there was no legal way to reject the bids.

But the commission adopted a new procedure to prevent contractors from bidding on state highway projects if they plead guilty or are convicted of bid-rigging.

"Under the previous situation, the rules prevented the commission from refusing to award bids when they think they should," said Mark Boode, engineer-director of the Texas highway department.

Approved bids Thursday included those from Young Bros. Inc. of Waco, Schwepco Inc. of San Antonio, E.W. Hable and Sons Inc. of Corsicana and Schwabe & Mikes of Shiner.

A federal grand jury has indicted more than 12 highway contractors and subcontractors for conspiring to fix the bid procedure to increase the amount of the award. The Justice Department began its investigation of the Texas contractors in 1980.

Technician Sues

Spacesuit

Manufacturer

HOUSTON (AP) — A League City technician severely burned while testing a suit designed to be used by space shuttle astronauts is suing the New York firm that manufactured the oxygen pack regulator.

Robert A. Mayfield and his wife, Brenda, filed the federal court suit

Friday against Carleton Controls Corp. of East Aurora, N.Y. for unspecified damages.

Mayfield, 26, was testing the spacesuit under high pressure oxygen at a Johnson Space Center laboratory in April 1980 when it "burst into flames," the suit said.

Mayfield received burns over 32 percent of his body and massive scars, and has suffered "permanent impairment" to his sweat glands and an intolerance to heat and cold, said Harvill Weller, the Mayfield's attorney.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration concluded in its investigation of the fire that a secondary oxygen pack regulator assembly was "unreasonably dangerous."

Smashed Porthole May Have Caused Oil Rig To Sink

BOSTON (AP) — A smashed porthole may have allowed water to damage the controls of a flotation system aboard the Ocean Ranger, causing the drilling rig to sink and kill its 84 crewmen, a foreman from another rig says.

Rodney Fraser, a Mobil drilling foreman who was six miles away from the Ocean Ranger when it went down Feb. 15, said a Mobil official aboard the Ocean Ranger told him about a smashed porthole six hours before the crew tried to abandon the rig.

Fraser testified Friday before a panel investigating the disaster that he thought an attempt to use the controls to raise the Ocean Ranger's platform higher from the surface during the violent storm may have backfired and caused a sudden, 12-degree list that led to its sinking.

Investigators believe the rig's ballast control room — where the critical flotation system was operated — may have been damaged by water when a wave smashed a porthole. Broadcasts from the Ocean Ranger mentioned water and broken glass in the control room and "valves opening and closing by themselves."

National Geographic

Editor Melville Bell

Grosvenor Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Funeral services for Melville Bell Grosvenor, former president of the National Geographic Society and editor of its magazine, will be held Monday at the National Presbyterian Church in Washington.

Grosvenor, 80, died of a heart attack late Thursday at his winter home in Miami, the society announced Friday.

Grosvenor joined the society's staff in 1924. He was elected president of the society and editor of its magazine in 1957, and served in both positions until 1967.

He then was named editor-in-chief and chairman of the Geographic's board of trustees, posts he held for another decade.

Grosvenor, grandson of inventor Alexander Graham Bell, continued a family tradition with the society.

Bell was the society's second president and Grosvenor's father, Gilbert H. Grosvenor, served as editor of the magazine from 1899 to 1954. The son of the deceased, Gilbert M. Grosvenor, currently is president of the society.

Grosvenor, born in Washington, D.C., was a 1923 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and a former Navy officer. He was an avid sailor and frequently sailed his 46-foot yawl, White Mist, along the eastern coasts of the U.S. and Canada.

A longtime resident of Bethesda, Md., he also had a summer home in Baddeck, Nova Scotia.

And, if things work out, the High Plains area could be the site of one of the most attractive 800 meter races ever run at the Wayland Baptist All-College Track Meet in Plainview next Thursday.

"The Wayland coach (Glen Sefcik) called me the other day and wants me to run there against Joel Ngetich and possibly Sammy Koskei." Ngetich was the NAIA 800-meter national champion for the Pioneers last year, while Koskei was a standout at SMU before he was recently disqualified by the NCAA.

"I think that getting the three of us together would be a great thing for the Texas Panhandle," Mays said. "I have beaten both Joel and Sammy within the past year, and they'd be after me."

And while the prospect of the Mays-Ngetich-Koskei matchup is attractive to him, just mention the 1984 Olympics, and watch the sparkle grow in his eye.

"Oh yeah, I'm aiming at Los Angeles," he said. "I hope I'm at a peak when 1984 rolls around, and I'm aiming at knocking a second off my time each year until then. I'd like to run 1:45 next year, and have at least one 1:44 before the trials come up."

Being sponsored by the shoe company provides Mays with many opportunities to run that he might not have had otherwise. The company provides him with equipment and travel expenses to many meets, often on an international scale.

And, he credits the dissolution of the Old Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) into the newer The Athletic Congress (TAC) as part of making track a growing sport in America.

"It's getting better, but it can still be improved," he said. "We're still trying to get some of the old fogies who began the AAU out."

Session

of the state property tax, to repay anyone who has to pay the tax retroactively, and probably a funding device for construction funds for schools outside the Permanent University Fund."

The Midwestern suit, which has been pending since 1981, is set for trial June 2 in an Austin district court. It challenges the right of the 1979 Legislature to pass a state law that reduced the state property tax from 10 cents per $100 property valuation to .0001 cents.

The university claims the 10-cent levy was written in the state constitution by voters and could not be changed by a simple legislative act.

The 10-cent tax had been used to finance new construction at 17 state colleges and universities outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

When the 1979 Legislature tried to change the property tax levy it sought to provide college construction funds from general revenue. Later, an attorney general's opinion said general revenue could not be used because the constitution provided for construction funds.

Clements said his legal advisers tell him that Midwestern is likely to win its suit.

"As I understand, we would have to move (with a special

"They better get his message, because with Inman gone, the foxes are now guarding the chicken house at the CIA." Aides to four other intelligence committee members, who were out of town Friday, said their bosses shared Lugar's views.

Inman was extremely popular with the committee. Its chairman, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., made no secret that he would have preferred Inman as head of the CIA instead of Casey. Lugar has been a friend of Still, the athletes are better off financially now than they had been, with earnings up to a certain level allowed without an athlete losing his amateur status.

"Look at the athletes in Europe," Mays emphasized. "It's a full-time job with them. We (in the U.S.) have to hold down a job and support our families, and still train and compete."

"I'm by no means big time. There are guys who are driving Porsches and Mercedes, and I don't think there's anything wrong with it. The TAC has really opened things up a lot."

Long range plans are for him to get his teaching degree (he'll graduate from Tech in May) and take a job coaching track somewhere. In fact, he has visited with some Lubbock schools, and a new high school in Arlington about positions.

"I'd like to coach track, and get a job where I could work out with the guys," he said.

But, for right now, he plans to continue building his work outs for the Olympic Trials, the second of which he would have performed in. He was fifth in his heat in the 800 meters at the 1980 trials, missing the finals by one place.

He's enjoying training at his own pace under his own supervision, and says his times at this point in the season are better than they were at the same point last year.

And, he was really appreciative of the honor bestowed upon him by his hometown Friday.

"I think Hereford has been a sleeping giant in athletics," he said. "There has been a lot of talent which hasn't been brought out, but it's on the upswing."

"Maybe something like this (James Mays Day) will inspire some of the younger athletes to strive and achieve the heights they're capable of."

In a 30-year intelligence career in which he headed the National Security Agency Inman mastered "complexities that would take more years than Casey will be alive to master," Lugar said. Casey is 69.

Some sources have said the top contender for Inman's job is the agency's No. 3 man, John McMahon, now executive director but formerly head of clandestine operations and several other CIA divisions. Other sources have mentioned Gen. Lew Allen, a former chief of the National Security Agency.

Cancer Center Provides Personal Care, Treatment Close To Home

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor
"Close to Home"—this is the title of a short slide presentation shown to visitors at the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo. The Center, a facility which many Panhandle residents and physicians had dreamed of having in this area for many years, formally opened its doors on Aug. 10, 1981.

The Harrington Cancer Center is situated in the Amarillo Medical Center Complex, along with Northwest Texas Hospital, High Plains Baptist Hospital, the Texas Tech Regional Academic Health Center, and about a dozen other health-related facilities.

For cancer patients in the Panhandle area, the Harrington Cancer Center provides quality cancer care and treatment, with more personal care, closer to home and therefore more convenient, than traveling to M.D. Anderson in Houston or somewhere even farther away.

The Center was designed with patient comfort and care in mind. New York designer Paul Rudolph wanted to provide a warmer, more comfortable atmosphere than most sterile medical facilities convey. He designed the building with an abundance of natural lighting, but not excluding privacy, by having high windows, and angular rooms with elevated ceilings.

"The patient and the family come first," according to Marilyn Van Petten, Director of Development at the Center. Ms. Van Petten, who came to the Panhandle almost two years ago, explains that the Medical Center, or Complex, is now attracting the kind of top-notch doctors that can provide the highest quality patient care.

Amarillo is attractive because of its position in the Sunbelt, notes Ms. Van Petten, and its new facilities which can equal those up north, the Center is able to bring in highly qualified physicians to provide the most complete and up-to-date treatment.

The largest and most specialized equipment found in the Harrington Cancer Center is the radiation therapy machines. Because of the high voltage and diversified types of radiation, these machines can penetrate different levels for various types of tumors and are much more efficient in destroying cancer than any other machines previously available in Amarillo.

Radiation treatments are administered through the use of a gantry, a specially designed machine with an extremely large rotating arm that facilitates treatment by keeping the patient from having to move. The exact position of the tumor is pinpointed, and a lead molding is made which will just fit around that area, protecting the area surrounding the tumor. The physician is in constant audio communication with the patient during the treatment process through an outside monitor.

Because of the necessity of very thick walls encasing the radiation therapy rooms, most such facilities are dark and drab, rather like a dungeon, notes Ms. Van Petten. In contrast, the rooms were built into the hill at the Harrington Cancer Center. Full-length windows which allow natural daylight could then be put in because the walls outside go 22 feet straight up with no outside access. By the time the radiation bounces back and forth up the wall (kind of like a ping-pong ball) the dangerous radiation is dissipated.

The chemotherapy, or chemical treatment, is administered in a room with several patient chairs and also places for relatives, friends, and Center workers to sit. According to Ms. Van Petten, patients like to take their treatments, which are usually administered intravenously, together and give support to each other.

Patient flow, supported by underground parking for all-weather convenience, and closed tunnels connecting the Center with High Plains Baptist Hospital on the south, Northwest Texas Hospital immediately to the northwest, and the Texas Tech Regional Medical School to the north, is aided by highly qualified staff members and a host of volunteers, wearing brown "carpenter's" aprons, who assist the patient from the time he or she enters the Center, throughout the treatment process, until the patient is ready to leave the Center.

Most patients are referred to the Cancer Center by their local physician, although referral is not mandatory. At their first visit to the Center, the patient is assigned a primary physician, who specializes in either surgery, radiation therapy, or chemotherapy. A primary nurse, who works with the physician in developing a personal treatment plan, is also assigned at this time.

In addition to these two, a variety of other staff members aid in the care and treatment of the patient, working together to provide an atmosphere where the whole person is treated. Because cancer affects all aspects of life, emotional and spiritual help is available, as well as physical treatment.

Other specialists include the nutritionist, pharmacist, radiation technologist, enterostomal therapist, social worker, pastoral counselor, receptionist, and assistants.

Thirty two physicians currently have access to the Cancer Center, and approximately 12 are there every week at varying times. Being connected to the Medical School gives workers access to physicians who teach at the school and also is a factor in attracting qualified physicians through internships at the connecting hospitals.

The Harrington Cancer Center is an ambulatory care facility, in other words, it provides outpatient service only. The reason for this is that most patients do not need to be hospitalized during treatment and they can be more comfortable in familiar home surroundings with other family members if they are able to stay at home.

"A diagnosis of cancer can be a staggering shock in itself," notes Ms. Van Petten, "and if the patient has to repeatedly go as far as Houston for treatments, there is further anxiety concerning the inconvenience and expense. The patient is more able to feel good about

Babcock As Intriguing As Grace Gardner

LOS ANGELES (AP)—On NBC's "Hill Street Blues" Barbara Babcock plays television's most outrageous femme fatale, Grace Gardner, who's into leather sheets and hot oil massages.

The Emmy Award-winning actress might be just as intriguing as the character she plays, but she's anything but a vamp. The comely blue-eyed, red-haired Miss Babcock travels to remote areas of the world as an assistant on scientific expeditions. And she recently was awarded a patent for a shampoo she and another actress developed.

On "Hill Street Blues" Grace Gardner is in amorous pursuit of Sgt. Phil Esterhaus, played by Michael Conrad. They both won Emmys in September for their portrayals. Her humorous modus operandi includes leather sheets, hot oils and lotions warmed in her microwave, and nude horseback riding.

"The trick of playing a character like that, who's outrageous and larger than life, is that she must be believable," Miss Babcock said. "She must believe that her life is normal. I think the core of Grace is that she's an intensely obsessive woman. She just feels and does everything in a heightened way.

"I've become comfortable with her," she said. "It's hard now as an actress for me to think of her as outrageous. It makes good sense. I'm really fond of her. I've never known anyone like her, but I think there is a bit of Grace in all of us yearning to get out."

Miss Babcock came to her role as Grace Gardner by means of many other roles for the producers at MTM Enterprises, makers of "Hill Street Blues." She played a lesbian in the pilot of "Paris" and was the only woman in the cast of the MTM pilot "Operating Room."

"It was really the first time in my career that a group of producers or a studio had accepted me as a character actress, which is the way I see myself," she said. "Before that I had been seen as a leading lady. It was a box I couldn't get out of."

A new way to sell gasoline

WASHINGTON (NEA) — All of this country's major petroleum companies have insisted for decades that special additives, secret compounds or exclusive formulas made their gasoline superior to competitors' fuels.

Industry insiders, technical experts and even knowledgeable laymen always knew these assertions were utter nonsense, but the oil companies persisted in advancing the specious claims to build and retain brand loyalty among their customers.

Now, in a major shift of marketing strategy, the industry is moving toward de-emphasizing the purported superior quality of gasoline and stressing instead its price.

That phenomenon should not be confused with the sporadic "price wars" of the past, which usually were of relatively short duration and confined to a limited geographical area.

The recent trend toward low-margin, high-volume performance at retail sales outlets holds the potential for dramatically restructuring the marketing of gasoline almost everywhere in the nation.

In a candid statement that only a few years ago would have been considered heresy within the industry, one oil company recently acknowledged that it made no sense to promote "the high quality of your product when, in essence, it really is the same quality as others."

That admission came from George H. Babikian, senior vice president of the Arco Petroleum Products Co., the domestic marketing division of the Atlantic Richfield Co.

Babikian has staked his career at Arco on the success of an exceptionally drastic cost-cutting move — elimination of the company's entire credit-card operation, which costs the firm an estimated $73 million every year.

Abandonment of credit-card sales is only the most visible element of a profoundly altered marketing structure that Babikian says will enable Arco dealers to sell gasoline at a price only about 1 cent a gallon higher than that charged by independents or "private brand" dealers.

Although Arco's approach is by far the most radical, companies throughout the industry have started to encourage low-cost cash sales. Some examples:

— Exxon early this year initiated a pilot program in Phoenix, Ariz., that offered customers a 4-cents-per-gallon discount for cash purchases. That program now has been extended to Norfolk, Va.; Worcester, Mass., and Jackson, Miss.

— Standard Oil of Indiana, which markets under the Amoco brand name, is testing a 3-cents-per-gallon cash discount in Philadelphia, Denver, Omaha, Neb., and Peoria, Ill.

— Standard Oil of Ohio is experimenting with discounts of 2 to 3 cents per gallon in a trio of Ohio communities — Lima, Springfield and Middletown.

— Texaco last year imposed a 3 percent processing fee on all credit-card sales, which, in effect, makes gasoline purchased for cash 3 to 4 cents per gallon cheaper.

Although Arco's program has engendered considerable controversy, it has a precedent dating back almost 10 years, when Sohio adopted a similar marketing strategy for the BP stations it operates in the Northeast.

De-emphasis on credit-card sales is, in great measure, a response to a situation in which the oil companies were granting customers four to six weeks' worth of free credit at a time of exceptionally high interest rates.

"It's too substantial a cost and we had to find a new way of handling it," says a Texaco spokesman.

"All of the companies have been trying to find a way out of the credit morass," adds an Exxon official.

But two other elements — a persistent recession and the development of increasingly fuel-efficient autos — have significantly reduced gasoline sales, forcing all of the companies to scramble to preserve their share of the market.

In comparison with the peak year of 1978, when the industry sold a daily average of 7.5 million barrels, gasoline sales today have declined approximately 20 percent.

The result is fierce competition for a shrinking market. "Price," says Babikian, "is the single most important element in the marketing of gasoline today."

MEDICAL MIRACLES

Somewhere in the rats nest I call a filing system, I have the medical records of the final hours of one of the Kings of England. The record reads: A pint of blood was extracted from the royal right shoulder, a half-pint of blood was extracted from the royal left shoulder, an emetic was given. Then his head was shaved and a blister was raised. After which, his majesty expired...I don't doubt it!

Medicine has come a long way since then. Matter of fact, we often speak of the miracles of modern medicine, while we sit around marveling at what doctors can do. Doctors have become the men we stand in awe of. At least, I used to stand in awe.

A few years ago I checked into the hospital for some tests. It was no big deal, it was just easier to have the test in the hospital. I played 18 holes of golf the day I checked in. Three days later my wife had to drive me home and all they did was run some test. I came out of the place with some observations about hospitals.

Doctors want us to believe they have made great strides since the days of the King I told you about. Don't you believe it. They still bleed people. They are more subtle about it, but the practice still goes on. Now they call the bleeding laboratory work. This means they come after the blood a little at a time, but they still get the same amount. Every time I looked up the nurse was there for another little tube of the stuff. What do they do with all of it? I think they throw it away.

All they are doing is extracting a pint of blood from each shoulder.

They no longer do the emetic bit. That is far too messy. They do not want us throwing up all over the sheets. Now they use the other end of us. They have what I call "Water Therapy." It does the same thing as an emetic but the patient is left to take care of the mess in a neater way. They are high on water therapy. Every time there is a test of any kind you must first endure a series of "Water Therapies."

One morning at five o'clock, I was awakened by the nurse pawing on my arm. They have to start collecting blood early if they are going to get the pint. While this was going on, another nurse came in and said it was time for my "Water Therapy." I protested that I could not take care of the bleeding and the water at the same time. She said, "Roll over on your left side." There I was, getting bled from the arm and getting "Water Therapy" on the other end. I thought of that King of England. I decided if someone came in to shave my head and raise a blister, I was going to get out of there fast.

So, I stayed there three days and went through the miracles of modern medicine, which was just a new way to do to me what they did to the King of England. At the end of three days all they found out was...I am allergic to "Water Therapy."

Voice of Business

Message to Congress: Forget Taxes; Cut Spending

WASHINGTON — Judging by the pronouncements of certain politicians and various media pundits, you may have the impression that Ronald Reagan is the only soul in America who still believes that additional billions can and should be cut from the federal budget. You may also believe that legions of your fellow Americans are beating on the doors of Capitol Hill offices, begging their Congressmen to "please raise my taxes!"

The results of a new Gallup survey commissioned by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce should put an end to this fantasy. Despite months of saturation media coverage about the devastating effects of projected budget deficits and the Reagan tax plan, the American people have held firm to the common sense belief that the only way to shrink those deficits and restore prosperity is to keep our tax cuts and reduce spending. The survey reveals that:

62 percent of the public oppose postponing the personal tax rate cuts already enacted, while 10 percent would favor speeding up their effective dates by six months.

When asked how the projected budget deficit should be reduced, 47 percent believe Congress should focus solely on the spending side of the equation, as opposed to just four percent who advocate tax increases alone. 20 percent say that Congress should both cut spending and raise taxes, while 18 percent would do neither—leaving the current deficit estimates intact for now.

56 percent of Americans favor keeping the business tax cuts enacted last summer, while 29 percent believe they should be raised.

When asked where federal spending cuts should be made, 39 percent say that such reductions should come in non-defense areas, while 17 percent believe the focus should be on the Pentagon. 36 percent want cuts in both areas.

These results indicate that a sizable majority of the public is wise to the fact that the current deficit problem is not caused by too many tax cuts but because spending is still out of control. Other surveys have consistently revealed the same belief. A recent NBC News-Associated Press poll discovered that Americans, by an overwhelming majority of 77-13 percent, want the deficit reduced through cuts in spending rather than tax increases.

In fact, unless Congress gets serious about the budget—and that means scrutinizing entitlements and defense-government spending over the next three years will more closely resemble the original blueprint of Jimmy Carter than that of Ronald Reagan.

When the former President submitted his final budget proposals to Congress in 1980, he included projections of what he wanted the government to spend during each fiscal year through 1984. Needless to say, candidate Ronald Reagan and an electoral majority of landslide proportions took issue with those through-the-roof projections. Yet, according to the Congressional Budget Office, unless further cuts are made spending will reach and possibly even exceed the levels desired by President Carter and his liberal 96th Congress.

So as the congressional budget brokers try different tax proposals on for size, let's remind them that as far as a majority of Americans is concerned they are in the wrong department. Spending is still growing out of control, and it's time to go on a crash diet.

from TV, or all the people get three-fourths of their news that way, I forget which, but I think it averages out to a lot of people being misinformed three-fourths of the time. Not that it matters, so long as it's entertaining.

For example, a TV reporter with his hair well-groomed will stand in front of Buckingham Palace and say "Tonight, all London feels...such and such," as though he or anybody could tell what London feels when most folks in London don't even know what they feel or what he's talking about.

Or a TV reporter in Washington, standing in front of the capitol, will say "ABC (or CBS or NBC) has been told...such and such," without ever saying who did the telling. For all we know it could have been a janitor at the Pentagon. Which is not to say the janitor doesn't know as much as some of the Generals.

When it comes to reporting a volcano or the results of a tornado or a flood or ten feet of snow, TV is very good, but when it comes to politics and the international situation you need to listen with your fingers crossed.

And as for reporting bad economic news, I doubt if it has much effect either way. Very few people have to wait for the evening news to come on to find out if times are good or bad.

State Capital Highlights

Hereford Senator Says DWI Bill 'Stern But Reasonable'

AUSTIN — Drunk drivers on Texas streets and highways could find police officers and the courts considerably less understanding if a West Texas lawmaker gets his way.

State Sen. Bill Sarpalus, who sponsored the bill raising the legal drinking age to 19, has proposed legislation that would automatically suspend the driver's license of any drunk driving suspect who refuses to take a sobriety test.

The Hereford Democrat has presented his bill to the Governor's Task Force on Traffic Safety, and says the proposal has the support of the San Antonio and Dallas chapters of Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby also has voiced his support for the bill, under which a first offender convicted of driving while intoxicated could be fined up to $2,000 and sentenced to from 72 hours to one year in jail. A second-time offender would face a jail term of from 72 hours to two years, without chance for probation.

Any motorist stopped on suspicion of drunk driving who refuses to take a sobriety test could automatically lose his license for up to 90 days.

Sarpalus describes the bill as "stern but reasonable." The one-term senator also has proposed bills to prohibit any open liquor containers in moving vehicles, to strengthen laws against false driver's licenses and to tighten laws on occupational driving licenses.

Harding Indictments

State Treasurer Warren G. Harding has been re-indicted by a Travis County grand jury on the charges that he used state employees to perform tasks for his reelection campaign.

The new indictments were handed down only a few hours after Harding's attorneys asked a state district judge to dismiss the original indictments because they failed to charge the state official with any specific crime.

Harding's attorneys contended that the original indictments accused the treasurer of using two secretaries to work in his campaign but did not say how that is a violation of state law.

The new indictments allege that the services and labor of the two secretaries belonged to the state.

The grand jury move came just three weeks before the May 1 Democratic primary, in which Harding is facing stiff opposition from former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards and two other Democrats.

Harding has claimed the charges against him are part of an attempt by the "court-house clique" to clear the way for their former colleague Richards.

Agriculture Task Force

Gov. Bill Clements has put another task force to work examining possible solutions to the state's problems, this time in the area of agriculture.

The Governor's Task Force of Agricultural Development began its work recently with Clements recommending that the panel look into new markets for Texas agricultural products in foreign countries, particularly Mexico.

Because of the state's proximity to Mexico and its access to that country's transportation systems, Texas has an edge over other parts of the country in developing Mexican markets for its farm products, Clements said.

"We'd be very, very foolish if we didn't exploit our advantage and develop that market in all its aspects," the governor said.

Clements predicted that Texas soon would replace Iowa as the second largest agricultural producer in the country.

Clements also recommended that the task force explore ways for banks to develop "friendly relationships" with farmers and ranchers in much the same way as some banks have aided home builders with low interest loans.

The task force will make recommendations on solving farm problems to the Legislature and the governor in 1983.

General Telephone

The state's second largest telephone company has begun its case before the Public Utility Commission seeking its third rate hike in as many years.

General Telephone Co. of the Southwest, which serves customers in dozens of counties across the state, is seeking an additional $110 million in revenue.

That company was granted a $31 million increase in 1980 and a $6 million hike in 1981, but both increases were accompanied by a $4 million annual penalty for poor service.

That penalty now has been lifted, but the PUC staff says the company only needs about half the amount requested. The staff has recommended only a $48.7 million increase and intervenors in the case believe the utility only deserves $24 million.

Parking Woes

While most candidates for statewide office worry about campaign financing or name identification, GOP gubernatorial contender Lowell "Duke" Embs apparently is finding parking a big problem.

Embs, who traveled to Austin recently to file his campaign spending report, had a hard time finding a parking space near the State Capitol grounds for his 1967 Lincoln Continental.

Through the loudspeaker on his car Embs blared, "Getting a parking space is harder than getting elected."

The Federated Clubs of Deaf Smith County are busily at work this week soliciting trees, shrubbery and flowers from those who have them to spare, that they may be given to those who will beautify the premises of their homes and surroundings by planting them.

The discussion over water rates in Hereford during the recent city election campaign, with comparative data submitted from other towns, has prompted a reply in explanation by the retiring commission which the Brand is glad to publish, as in the case with all other matters concerning the public welfare.

To the Brand: Much has been said of late about water rates in Hereford, and the impression seems to be general that our rates are higher than they should be. Hereford's minimum water rate $1.50 per month also included all sewer service charge to each family.

Bootleg Philosopher

Public Mentality Is Under-Estimated

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith Grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek disagrees with Washington on a small matter this week.

Dear editor: Washington officials have been criticizing the television networks for broadcasting too much bad economic news. They say the more the public hears about the recession, like long lines of the unemployed or factory closings or un-sold new cars and such, the worse the recession gets. They say there's a psychological effect there.

There are two things wrong with this. (1) It overestimates the power of television and (2) it underestimates the mentality of the public.

It's said that three-fourths of the people get their news from TV, or all the people get three-fourths of their news that way, I forget which, but I think it averages out to a lot of people being misinformed three-fourths of the time. Not that it matters, so long as it's entertaining.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Hereford Residents, As you have already read in last Tuesday's Hereford Brand, the state highway department will be applying asphalt and rock with a follow-up layer of hot mix on Park Ave. and part of U.S. Highway 385.

The contractor will be Jake Diel of Hereford, and if weather permits we will be starting the work Monday. The starting point will be on Highway 385, and this will create a driving hazard in this area for about four weeks.

PLEASE DRIVE SAFELY, for the life you say may be mine!

There will be times we will have to control traffic, and this will be done with barricades and signs at various intersections.

If you will follow the signs we hope to have a minimum of discomfort to your driving. And, if you can take an alternate route it will help make the job much easier.

Thank You,
L.J. Clark

Radiation Therapy

This large machine, called a gantry, is used to administer radiation therapy treatments. It weighs approximately 9,000 pounds and the arm rotates completely around to facilitate treatment. The table (at left) where the pa-himself when he can still live at home and be productive by not going so far away."

The Rev. Doug Manning, pastor of First Baptist Church in Hereford, tends to agree. Manning is the local chairman of "Project Linkup," which is seeking to raise funds for computer hookups that will link hospitals in area Panhandle towns to a central computer at the Harrington Cancer Center.

The purpose of the program, which was begun about a year ago, is to give local physicians an efficient means of communicating with Physicians and other staff at the Harrington Cancer Center. It will also allow quick access and transfer of patient records leading to more effective treatments.

Manning has spoken to various civic clubs and other organizations to make local residents aware of the great potential of the computer linkup. "A lot of money has been raised in Hereford, much of it in anonymous gifts," he says. The projected cost for hookups in several area towns is $125,000.

"The future of cancer care lies in the local area, and communication between local doctors and the treatment center is very important," notes Manning. "I've been to M.D. Anderson a lot to visit patients and know how hard it is for them to be displaced for long periods of time. Also, because they treat approximately 1000 patients per day, the care is not as personal. It takes more than just medication in cancer care; the patient needs personal attention."

The Harrington Cancer Center is dedicated to education and research, as well as treatment, and in this capacity works closely with the American Cancer Society. The Amarillo division office is located on the second floor south wing of the Center, and other local branches of the Society, such as the Deaf Smith County division, also coordinate certain activities through the Center.

Peggy Oakes, who is chairman of service and rehabilitation for the local chapter, says that the main advantage to the local branches is the close proximity of the new Center. Volunteer services such as transportation for treatments, self-help groups such as "I Can Cope" and "Dialogue," and training seminars for workers, as well as coordination of supplies which the Society loans out to patients, will all be positively affected by the nearness of the Center.

grams and services between the Cancer Center and local ACS units will become more far-reaching as time goes on and the Center develops. An example of this coordination is the two enterostomal therapists, both full-time employees of the Cancer Center, who travel to patients' homes in all parts of the Panhandle counseling and helping patients make adjustments both before and after surgery.

From his third floor hideaway in a Bennington College building, the 65-year-old music teacher and his young students make musical madness with handmade instruments that were once war surplus materials, junkyard rejects and hardware hand-me-downs.

Martin Tames Crazy Image

NEW YORK (AP) — No matter how hard he tries to change his image, comic Steve Martin always will be "a wild and crazy guy" to his fans.

He recently tried to be a little more serious when he starred in the music and dance fantasy "Pennies From Heaven." Reaction from his fans was clear. They stayed home.

Now he hopes to get them back to movie houses with his return to humor in an unusual film called "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid."

In the film, Martin portrays a private detective hired by a beautiful woman, played by Rachel Ward. She wants him to investigate the mysterious death of her father.

If this plot sounds familiar, the characters certainly are. So are Martin's co-stars. Careful editing by director Carl Reiner has Martin interacting with some of Hollywood's greatest performers in their original legendary roles. Through this process, the comic is able to trade lines with Jimmy Cagney, Barbara Stanwyck, Charles Laughton and Bette Davis, and dozens of other well-known celluloid faces.

"I'm a little nervous," Martin says. "It's not anything in particular, nor anything to do with the film. It's just that anytime I open in anything I get a little case of nerves."

"Dead Men' is real funny though," he said, "so I'm not worried about that."

Fellow comedian Steve Allen, in his book "Funny People," discussed Martin's stage fright anxiety, noting that it caused the comic's hair to prematurely turn gray.

"With comedy you live or die with every line," Martin says. "It's not like singing, where you figure if a song isn't working you've got three minutes to come up with another one."

"A joke takes eight seconds and that's it."

Although "Pennies From Heaven," caused Martin his share of anxiety when the picture bombed at the box office, the entertainer insists he has little concern about how the movie will affect his future.

"My career is still young," he said. "I've only been popular for the past three or four years. I figure a career is 25 years and there's a lot to do in that time."

"It just so happened that 'Pennies' came along early," he said. "I couldn't turn it down because I was so taken with it. That may have been a dumb thing to do."

Doing dumb things has long been a Martin trademark in terms of comedy. It's also an image he'd like to change.

"I grew tired of the same old jokes," he admitted, "and about a year ago I found I was repeating myself. It's hard for me to listen to my records or to even watch the things I did. I only see the bad side of my performances."

Whose Idea Was 'Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid'?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — None of the three men remembers who first proposed the winning idea over lunch that day.

Comedian Steve Martin, writer George Gipe and comedian-writer-director Carl Reiner had met over lunch to discuss repairs of a script Martin had written about the Depression. One of them suggested a movie in which Martin would interact with famed stars of the past by means of film clips.

Two years later, Universal Pictures is releasing "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," starring Steve Martin, Humphrey Bogart, Alan Ladd, Barbara Stanwyck, Ava Gardner, Burt Lancaster, Bette Davis, James Cagney, Joan Crawford, etc., etc.

Steve Martin plays Rigby Reardon, a fumbling private eye whose commission from a mysterious woman (Rachel Ward) takes him through the plots of 20 films of the 1940s.

"Whoever came up with the idea at lunch, we all said, 'Let's do it!'" Reiner recalled. "Then George Gipes and I started watching the old movies. We saw a hundred of them, sometimes five a day. We were looking for over-the-shoulder shots, single closeups, but especially loaded lines that required an answer or could be built upon."

"We realized that we needed a plot that would integrate all of these elements, otherwise it would be just a collection of clips. So we came up with the mystery of 'Who is Carlotta?' As you see in the picture, that is a surprise."

While Martin was filming "Pennies from Heaven," Reiner and Gipes methodically went about their preparation. They worked with a storyboard on which were pinned lines from the vintage movies.

"We moved the lines around like a jigsaw puzzle," said Reiner. "We had many more lines than we could use. We even had a scene of Ronald Reagan as a captured flier. He does a great piece of doubletalk as he is interrogated. But we couldn't fit the scene into the script, so we couldn't use it."

After four or five drafts of "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," Martin joined the writing. He continued making contributions during filming, including some coin-rolling on his fingers that demonstrates his dexterity.

"The hardest part of the movie was reproducing the costumes, sets, wallpaper, grillwork and other elements of those old movies so everything would match," Reiner said. "Fortunately we had John DeCuir as production designer; he had designed many of the old movies. And Edith Head created the clothes; she had done costumes for 'Notorious' and other films we used."

Miss Head died after "Plaid" was completed, and the film carries a dedication to her and other creative workers of Hollywood.

Matheson Finally Gets Starring Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 22 years as an actor, Tim Matheson finds himself in his first starring role, and he figures it's about time.

"Actually I began in the business when I was eight," says the handsome, strongly built actor, who is now 34. "But I was a slow starter. I really didn't get going until I was 12 and appeared in 'My Three Sons.'"

Matheson was one of Hollywood's busiest boy actors, appearing in "Leave It to Beaver," "Bonanza" and other series on television, as well as such features as "Yours, Mine and Ours" and "Magnum Force."

As an adult he scored as the libidinous Otter in "National Lampoon's Animal House." Still, the status of stardom eluded him.

"A Little Sex" may change that. He appears throughout the new Universal release as a TV commercial director with an irresistible appeal for beautiful young women. So what's his problem? He wants to marry his roommate, film newcomer Kate Capshaw, and he fears he won't be faithful. His fears are realized, and that provides the drama and the surprisingly moral message of the otherwise light comedy.

"A Little Sex" is the first feature film venture of MTM Enterprises, the firm that produced "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "Hill Street Blues."

Matheson admitted he won consideration for the lead through his acquaintance with Bruce Paltrow, who makes his feature debut as director.

"Universal was resistant to me in the role," said Matheson. "I was a little hurt, because I had been under contract there from the ages of 19 to 24 and had made 'Animal House' and '1941' for Universal."

"They said I was too young, too collegiate and too much of a comedic actor. Think of that! 'Animal House' was the first comedy I had done; before that I had been considered a dramatic actor," he said.

"I felt rejected, but I realized it was a business decision," Matheson said. "Universal presented a list of names that were bigger box office than me. Bruce considered them, but he decided he wanted me. That was flattering and inspiring; when someone does that, you're willing to go to the wall for him."

"A Little Sex" makes some cogent comments on the sexual revolution, and Matheson finds he agrees with the film's espousal of seemingly old-fashioned values. He himself married at 19 and divorced, then during the 1970s engaged in an open relationship that proved to be "disastrous."

"If the 1970s was marked by the 'me' generation, maybe the 1980s will bring the 'us' decade," he said. "I think people are beginning to realize that if you continue with selfish behavior you can hurt people."

LEADING MAN

"Dukes of Hazzard" star John Schneider is destined to become one of Hollywood's top male romantic leads in the years to come. CBS has recognized Schneider's drawing power by casting him opposite Catherine Hicks ("Valley of the Dolls '81") in "Happy Endings." The TV film, which will be telecast next season, features Schneider

The Cars Reluctantly Hit Road To Push Hot Album

BOSTON (AP) — There's a simple three-step formula for success in the rock music world — cut an album, talk it up to reporters and disc jockeys to generate publicity, then hit the concert trail and bring the music to the fans.

After writing the songs for four straight platinum-selling albums, Ric Ocasek of the Cars says he has little trouble completing Step 1. It's the concerts and interviews he can do without.

"Even though I've performed now for 10 years, I don't live on applause," he said in a recent interview. "I'm basically a writer, and to me the most fun I have is when the song is finished."

"Performing is just mimicking, to me at least," said Ocasek, the band's leader, composer and major singer. "Some people spend a lot of their career working on their performances, and in fact they're great at it. Iggy Pop, Bruce Springsteen — they're great showmen. I'm not, and I'm not going to pretend that I am."

After four straight platinum albums, the Cars certainly don't need to tour to sell records. "Shake It Up," their latest album, sold 1 million copies before the current concert tour even started, according to Elektra Records.

keyboard player Greg Hawkes were content to remain home.

The compromise: the shortest Cars tour ever. The band has scheduled 31 shows at huge indoor arenas over a six-week period, with a minimum of press interviews.

Once the darling of rock critics, the Cars have been slammed in recent years, as they tried to top their classic debut album, a stripped-down, synthesizer-drenched collection of pop tunes released during the new wave explosion in 1978.

The reviews have grown more hostile with the release of each succeeding album. "Shake It Up" has been widely attacked as a sluggish, conservative recycling of the band's music.

Ocasek insists he doesn't care about the pans. "As long as they spell our names right, I really don't care about that stuff. Whatever they think today is fine. Whatever they think tomorrow is fine, too."

blossomed.

"I guess I feel I have something to prove," he says. "I want to prove that being in a wheelchair doesn't mean you have to quit living."

With the help of a keen sense of humor, he accepted his fate and now is one of country music's rising songwriters.

In 1968 he married his wife, Sandy, who was doing volunteer hospital work.

"I fell in love with the sensitivity under all of this," she says, nodding at her smiling husband.

He spent some 30 months in hospitals after he was wounded near Pleiku in the Central Highlands of Vietnam, while fighting for the 1st Division of the 21st Artillery.

During his recovery at a Veterans Administration hospital in Memphis, a doctor gave him a guitar so he could work his hands to avoid numbness.

"I was in a room with five other guys who would ask me to sing so and so," Hatch said. "If I didn't know the words I'd fake it and sing my own songs."

A songwriting career

Keith Stegall, From Scriptures To Songs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Keith Stegall believes in pursuing only one ambition at a time. That's why he's writing such songs as "Sexy Eyes," instead of teaching religious philosophy to college students.

Stegall earned a bachelor of arts degree in religion from Centenary College in Shreveport, La. He wanted to continue with graduate work in theology in order to teach at the college level, but decided music stirred his soul more.

Besides "Sexy Eyes," a hit rock'n'roll song recorded by Dr. Hook, Stegall has written the pop hit "We're in This Love Together" by Al Jarreau, "Lonely Nights," a No. 1 country music hit by Mickey Gilley, and "Hurricane," a country music hit by Leon Everette. He also wrote two songs for last fall's television movie, "Killing at Hell's Gate," starring Robert Urich.

"My desire to do music was too strong," the 27-year-old Stegall says about his move from scriptures to songs. "You can only follow two dreams so far; one of them has to give in."

He feels no uneasiness writing lyrics for rock and country music whose themes often embrace illicit love and rowdy drinking.

"The main thing is how you feel with your maker," he says. "If it feels bad to me, I won't write it. 'Sexy Eyes' said nothing bad or wrong. It conveyed nothing more than boy meets girl and they fall in love."

Three of the best-written songs, according to Stegall, are Billy Joel's "Just the Way You Are" for its "classic way of communicating a feeling," Merle Haggard's "Today I Started Loving You Again" because it's "so simple, direct, to-the-point" and Kris Kristofferson's "For the Good Times," because it's a "simple song with a simple message."

Vietnam Vet A Rising Songwriter

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When Randy Hatch arrived in Vietnam 16 years ago, he was told: "This is Custer's outfit."

"I knew then I was in trouble," Hatch recalls, grinning. When he enlisted in the Army in 1965, he was inducted in San Antonio, Texas in the shadow of the Alamo. "That should have told me something right there," he says with a chuckle.

A year into his tour of duty in Southeast Asia, he walked into an enemy machine gun nest. He was hit three times — once in the back, once in the buttocks and once in the ankle. He was paralyzed from the waist down. Forty-eight of his buddies were killed and 35 were wounded.

Helicopters came to the rescue, but left Hatch for dead. They returned to pick him up only when another soldier died on the flight and made room for him.

Now, 16 years later, the 34-year-old Hatch is making small victories in the combat-tough business of songwriting. He and Wayland Holyfield co-wrote the recent No. 1 country music hit recorded by Ed Bruce, "You're the Best Break This Old Heart Ever Had."

Hatch, who won a Bronze Star, has been making a living as a Nashville-based songwriter since 1978. He's written songs recorded by Tommy Jennings, Dean Dillion, Jerry Green, Reg Lindsay and Mary Burns.

"It really hasn't all sunk in yet," he said, referring to the No. 1 song he helped to write. "It's sort of strange."

VICTOR/VICTORIA, from United Artists. Written and directed by Blake Edwards. Starring Julie Andrews, James Garner, Robert Preston and Alex Karras. Rated PG. ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO — FILM CRITIC

Blake Edwards, whose work includes the witty series of "Pink Panther" films starring Peter Sellers, the hilarious yet pertinent "10" with Bo Derek and Dudley Moore, and the vindictive "S.O.B.," gradually is being recognized by critics as a comic genius.

In fact, a new book by William Lehman and Peter Lühr examines Edwards' work with the same exhaustive analysis usually reserved for more esoteric directors. Edwards' latest effort, "Victor/Victoria," will help make him an even greater popular and critical success.

The box-office receipts from this film will certainly enable Edwards to continue making the kind of movies he wants to make. "Victor/Victoria" is a delightful film.

Julie Andrews plays an out-of-work opera singer in Paris during the early 1930s. She meets up with Robert Preston, an out-of-work homosexual cabaret singer. Together they concoct a plan to pass off Miss Andrews as the world's greatest female impersonator. Thus we have the spectacle of Julie Andrews playing a woman impersonating a man impersonating a woman. Miss Andrews has come a long way from her days of innocence in "The Sound of Music."

The film mixes social comment and slapstick. The funniest line comes from Alex Karras, who plays a gangster's (James Garner) bodyguard. "Victor/Victoria" is a bit too long and there are some glaring anachronisms — some of Miss Andrews' feminist speeches use the rhetoric of the late '60s, and the term "gay," which is heard throughout the film, was not widely used in the 1930s. But these are minor quibbles about an otherwise wonderful film.

Texans Have Chance For Spring Cleaning

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans unsatisfied with their elected officials get a chance to do some spring cleaning Saturday in the Democratic and Republican primaries.

The long Democratic ballot includes six candidates for governor, an indicted state treasurer, a comptroller recently treated for alcoholism, and a good ole boy agriculture commissioner who says his opponent is backed by "socialistic punks."

Republican Gov. Bill Clements' only opponent on the much shorter GOP ballot is a former San Antonio insurance man who might spend election night in jail.

Nominees will be picked Saturday for the top seven state executive jobs, one U.S. senator, 27 U.S. representatives, one railroad commissioner, six state appeals court judges and the entire 181-member state Legislature.

Attorney General Mark White, Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong are the top contenders for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. White and Temple, perceiving themselves as the leaders, have tossed verbal dirt clods at each other, while Armstrong, largely ignored by his opponents, has developed a solid statewide organization.

Also seeking the Democratic nomination are Don Beagle of Nederland, David Young of Dallas and Ray Mayo of San Juan.

Clements only opponent in the Republican primary is Lowell "Duke" Embs, who has alternately campaigned in a 1967 Lincoln convertible and fended off legal challenges of his sanity. He has been cited for contempt of court.

The Senate race is for the seat now held by Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, who faces token opposition from political unknown Joe Sullivan, a San Antonio college professor.

On the GOP side, state Sen. Walter Mengden of Houston and U.S. Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas are trying to out-conservative each other. Both have portrayed Bentsen as a wild-spending liberal. Don Richardson of San Antonio is the third GOP candidate.

Longtime Democratic Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is a party favorite for his party's nomination over retired Austin businessman Troy Skates. A Hobby victory would set up a big-bucks November battle against former Secretary of State George Strake, unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Political observers are predicting a June 5 runoff to determine the Democratic nominee for attorney general. The field includes former U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler, U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas, former state Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo and state Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston.

The winner faces state Sen. Bill Meier of Euless in November. Meier, a former Democrat, is unopposed on the Republican ballot. Comptroller Bob Bullock, confident of winning the Democratic nomination, has run a low-profile campaign, despite some nasty allegations by other candidates. Bullock is challenged by Robert C. Calvert, a retired Hurst businessman who is not the late Robert S. Calvert, the comptroller before Bullock, nor Robert W. Calvert, former chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court.

The GOP comptroller race includes former Travis County Sheriff Raymond Frank and state Sen. Mike Richards of Houston. Frank called Bullock a "public drunk." Bullock underwent treatment for alcoholism last year.

Democratic Treasurer Warren G. Harding had no opposition until the final weeks before the filing deadline, when word spread of a grand jury investigation of Harding, drawing three Democrats and one Republican into the race.

Harding, under indictment for allegedly using state employees for political work, faces former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards, former state Rep. Lane Denton of Waco and Austin businessman John Cutright.

Austin businessman Millard Neptune, a man with a name almost good enough to succeed Harding — who succeeded Jesse James — is seeking the GOP nomination.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, who has built a reputation for folksy after-dinner speeches, is being challenged by Jim Hightower, a former Texas Observer editor who lost a 1980 bid for the Railroad Commission.

Brown says Hightower's campaign is backed by "socialistic punks up East." Hightower says Brown has done little to help family farmers in Texas. Waller farmer Donald Hebert is unopposed for the GOP nomination for agriculture commissioner.

There's also a good chance of a June 5 runoff in the Democratic primary for land commissioner. The candidates are state Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, state Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, former state Democratic Party Director Garry Mauro and Paducah rancher George Fore.

GOP candidates for land commissioner are former Hondo Mayor Woody Glasscock, Bryan businessman Al Gutierrez and Austin oilman-rancher Andrew Jackson.

Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent is challenged on the Democratic side by Ralph Pacheco, a railroad worker in Austin. John Henderson of Austin, who lost previously in an attempt to win a commission seat, is unopposed in the Republican primary.

As usual, the court races have sparked much interest among lawyers, but aroused little voter excitement. Democrat Jack Pope is not seeking re-election to the Supreme Court. Democrats seeking the job are John Barron of Bryan and Ted Robertson of Dallas. John Bates of Waco is the only GOP candidate.

Incumbent Democrat James Denton also is running for re-election to the Supreme Court. He is challenged by State District Judge Bill Kilgarlin of Houston. There is no GOP candidate.

Charles Barrow, another Democratic incumbent on the high court, is opposed by former El Paso County Judge Woodrow Wilson Bean, a Democrat. No Republicans filed for the seat.

John Onion, the Democratic presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, has no opponents.

Incumbent Carl Dally, a Democrat, is opposed for renomination by Charles Campbell Jr., of Austin, John Humphreys of Dallas and William Phillips of Killeen. No Republicans are running. Judge Truman Roberts' decision not to seek re-election to the criminal appeals court attracted five Democrats and a Republican to the race. The Democrats are State District Judge William Black of Belton; Charles Miller, a Dallas county judge; Roy Rawls and Andrew Shuval of Austin; and Mel Bruder of Dallas. The lone Republican is Ray Moses of Houston.

When you were 20, nothing was impossible; after 40, it's about all you're up to.

HEALTH Slowing cancer growth
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to have your opinion on the surgery that was done on my husband six years ago. The doctor's report on the insurance papers makes no sense to me but I know what the results were. The report reads, cystoscopy and needle biopsy with frozen section, transurethral resection (TUR) of the prostate and bilateral orchiectomy. Would this be cause for castration? That is what was done.

DEAR READER — The cystoscopy means that the bladder was examined directly through an instrument. A biopsy was taken of the prostate and the tissue removed and examined under a microscope. Evidently the doctors saw a cancer and because of its location or spread or its particular type decided to do an orchiectomy, which is a castration.

The reasons the testicles are removed in some cases of prostate cancer is because of the cell type and spread of the cancer itself. This is somewhat complicated. By eliminating the source of most of the male hormones part of the stimulus for growth of the prostate cancer cells is removed. In some cases female hormones are then administered in further hope of slowing the growth of cancer.

In early cancers of the prostate that have tissue characteristics of slower growth less radical procedures can be used.

Cancer of the prostate is about tied for second place with cancer of the bowel as the second leading cause of cancer deaths in American men. In 10 years about 210,000 men die from it.

The tragedy is that many of these deaths could be prevented if the cancer is found early enough.

Defense Lawyer Attacked

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — A defense lawyer was attacked by a razor blade-wielding client as a judge read the charge and courtroom spectators, jurors and other attorneys looked on, witnesses said.

Hunt County District Attorney F. Duncan Thomas said he was sitting across a table from the defendant Friday when the man slipped the double-edged blade from a Bible he had been carrying with him during the kidnapping trial and "lashed out at" at his lawyer, Don Parks, as if to slit his throat.

A deputy guarding the defendant, Terrence Marburger, immediately pinned him to the table, Thomas said.

A 20-year-old Commerce woman Marburger is accused of kidnapping screamed as Parks staggered to his feet and Marburger was wrestled down, said David Landmann, a reporter for the Greenville Herald-Banner.

District Judge William C. Parker, who had been reading the jury the formal kidnapping charge against Marburger when the incident took place, called a mistrial.

Monterey Rolls to Loop Track Title

The Monterey Plainsmen rolled to the District 4-5A Boys' track title at Whiteface Field Friday with 145 points, winning six events on a cold, blustery day. Coronado finished second with 124 points, while Hereford was third with 101. Plainview (91) and Lubbock High (60) rounded out the field.

One of the biggest upsets at the meet came in the 200 meter dash, where MHS' Jay Douglas ran a 22.18 to defeat favored Percy Hines of Coronado. Hines was second at 22.19.

And, the closest relay race was early in the finals when Monterey and Coronado closed the gap on the leading Whitefaces in the final few yards to finish one-two. Hereford took the lead during the third leg of the spring relay, and when Rudy Hernandez gave the baton to Wayne High the 'Faces had about a three yard lead.

But, Douglas and Hines proved to be a little too much for the Herd's All-State running back and managed to make up the deficit just steps from the finish line. The Plainsmen had a 43.1 to win the event, while the Mustangs were timed in 43.11. Hereford's third-place time was 43.21.

The host Whitefaces did capture the high jump, where Grady Brown leaped 6-4, and the 1600 meter relay. Ted Ramirez, Hernandez, Ronnie Terry, and Alfred Ball combined for a 3:26.75 to win the meet's final event. Plainview was second with a time of 3:26.93.

In addition to the 1600 relay team, the Herd had four individuals qualify for the Regional Meet. Brown will compete in the high jump as the District 4-5A champion, while three other Whitefaces claimed runner-up positions to advance to the region.

Ball was second in the 300-meter hurdles (39.43) behind Plainview's Robert Jones (39.02), while Hernandez finished second in the 100 meter dash (10.74) behind Hines (10.7), and Armando Rodriguez was second in the 1600 (4:41.2) behind Lubbock's Joe Ramos (4:41) who also won the 3200 in a time of 10:15.78.

Other point-winners for the Herd included Erasmo Gonzales, third in the discus and fourth in the shot put; Ramirez, sixth in the long jump; High, third in the 100 hurdles and fourth in the 300 hurdles; Craig Jones, fourth in the pole vault; Brown, fourth in the 100 meter hurdles; Terry, fifth in the 300 hurdles; and Fernando Carrasco, third in the 1600.

Ted Ramirez, Hereford, 19-10.5.

Albracht, White In Region Finals

The Hereford Whitefaces qualified both their 800 and 1600 meter relay teams and two individuals for the Region 1-5A Girls' Track Meet finals Saturday.

Lori Albracht posted the second-fastest 200 meter qualifying time (26.33) to enter the finals, while Angela

White qualified for the 100 meter hurdles finals, along with Plainview's Cyn Hemphill. The Bulldogs also qualified all three relay teams for the finals.

The finals began at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Texas Tech University track.

Coronado Wins Boys' Golf Title

The Coronado Mustangs claimed the District 4-5A boys' golf championship on the Pitman Municipal Course here Friday with a 336 total. The Ponies took the loop crown with a 1,978 total, just ahead of runner-up Plainview, which had a 340 Friday for a 1,995 total.

The Hereford Whitefaces finished third overall after a 336 Friday to edge the Monterey Plainsmen by one shot with a 2,011 total. MHS shot 340 Friday for a 2,012.

Coronado's Gilbert Moreno won the individual title by 10 shots over Monterey's Brad Sinnacher. Moreno carded a 466 total in district play, while Sinnacher had 476.

The top Hereford finishers individually were David Dudding and Frankie Garcia, who finished fifth and sixth respectively with 494 and 495 totals.

Scot Skinner's 79 and Garcia's 80 led the Hereford team effort Friday, while Steve Barrett had an 88, Dudding shot 89, and Bob Foster carded a 95. Paul Jorde and Brett Barrick also played as singles for the Herd and had 85s Friday.

Dirks 9th At Regional Meet

District 4-5A girls' golf champion Tiffi Dirks of Hereford finished ninth overall at the Region 1-5A Tournament played in Lubbock Thursday and Friday.

Dirks was in 11th place following a 96 Thursday, and improved her standing two notches with a 92 Friday.

Her 188 total was 25 shots behind individual medalist Sami Browne of Temple. Sheri Greiner of Austin Westwood shot a 79 Friday to wind up second at 168.

Westwood won the team title by 89 strokes with a 693 total, while second-place Midland High had a 782.

Shearer Leading New Orleans Open

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bob Shearer was pleased with his score but vastly unimpressed with his lead in the first round of the rain-delayed, $400,000 USF&G-New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm delighted with the score," the soft-spoken Australian said Friday after he'd posted his solid, no-bogey, 6-under-par 66 with well over half the field still out on the sodden, water-dotted Lakewood Country Club course.

"I don't know if it will stand up as the lead. I'm really not concerned about it," said Shearer, 33, who posted his first American victory last week in the Tallahassee Open.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sam Snead and Don January scorched soggy Onion Creek Golf Club with an 8-under par 62 to capture the first-round lead in the $450,000 Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf Tournament.

May Designated Love Run Month

For the third consecutive year, the month of May has been designated for the America's Love Run program which benefits the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The Love Run is a unique fitness program designed for those who participate regularly in either running, jogging or walking. Participants simply collect pledges in advance for every mile they cover throughout the month of May. Unlike other running events, America's Love Run is not a one-day activity and so requires only that the runner, jogger or walker, keep a daily record of miles covered.

In 1980 and 1981 the Panhandle Love Run program was very successful, attracting 235 runners who covered a total of 9400 miles and raised in excess of $18,000 to benefit the victims of neuromuscular disease. The 1982 program is chaired Nationally by Dr. Kenneth Cooper, founder and director of the Aerobics Center in Dallas, and locally by Gene Birk, sportscaster for KAMR-TV.

Registration packets which include an official red, white and blue America's Love Run t-shirt, runners' log, pledge sheets and complete instructions are available at the MDA office, 1713 S. Avondale, for a $3.50 registration fee. All Love Runners will also receive certificates for participating and bronze, silver or gold medals will be awarded to those raising $250, $500, $1,000, respectively.

For further information regarding America's Love Run, contact Gene Birk at KAMR-TV or the MDA office at (806) 359-3141.

Suns, Rockets NBA Survivors

By MIKE EMBRY AP Sports Writer

The message was clear for the Phoenix Suns and Houston Rockets in their National Basketball Association playoff games — win and keep on playing or lose and wait until next season.

But the urgency of the situation didn't quite sink in for the New Jersey Nets and Atlanta Hawks.

On Friday night, Phoenix whipped Denver 126-110 and Houston beat Seattle 91-70 to send their best-of-3 series to final games. But the season ended for the Nets, as they lost 103-92 to Washington, and the Hawks, 98-95 losers to Philadelphia, in two-game sweeps.

The Suns knew what they had to do to beat Denver after dropping the first game 129-113 on Tuesday, but they nearly let it slip away.

"We learned our lesson from the first game," said Phoenix forward Alvan Adams, who scored 25 points. "We knew we couldn't afford to let up at all because they had beaten us before that way with a big third period."

Denver sliced the Suns' 23-point lead in the second quarter to 87-82 in the third on David Thompson's three-point goal at 3:45. But Phoenix reeled off eight straight and coasted the rest of the way.

Dennis Johnson paced winners with 29 points, including 12 in the first quarter as the Suns raced to a 41-20 lead.

Dan Issel scored 26 points, Alex English 21 and Thompson 19 for the Nuggets. The decisive game will be played tonight in Denver.

Rockets 91, SuperSonics 70
Moses Malone scored 28 points and grabbed 23 rebounds as control-minded Houston halted the fast-breaking Sonics.

The final game will be played Sunday in Seattle. The Sonics won the first game 102-87 Wednesday.

Houston led from start to finish and turned back a Sonics' rally that trimmed the margin to 55-50 in the third period. But Malone hit three straight baskets to give Houston control again. Gus Williams paced Seattle with 18 points. Jack Sikma added 16 and 11 rebounds.

Bullets 103, Nets 92
Kevin Grevey sparked a fourth-quarter rally with 13 points over a four-minute span to carry Washington over New Jersey.

The victory moves the Bullets into the Eastern Conference semifinals against Boston. The best-of-7 series opens Sunday in Boston.

New Jersey led 50-47 at the half behind Albert King's 8-for-8 shooting from the field. But Spencer Haywood scored 11 of his 15 points in the third period to give Washington a 71-68 edge.

76ers 98, Hawks 95
Caldwell Jones dropped in four pressure free throws in the final 1:07 of overtime to lift Philadelphia over the Hawks in a physical contest in which 75 fouls were called.

The 76ers advance to the second round of the Eastern playoffs Sunday against the Milwaukee Bucks in Philadelphia.

Jones gave Philadelphia a 95-93 lead when he hit two free throws with 1:07 to go and added two more with 21 seconds remaining for a comfortable 97-93 advantage.

Cards Drub Philly For 11th Straight

By JOHN NELSON AP
Sports Writer

When it's time to pop the champagne corks in St. Louis, Ozzie Smith says the whole world will know. Now, however, is not the time.

The Cardinals, who now own the longest winning streak in the major leagues, won their 11th in a row Friday night with a 9-2 drubbing of the Philadelphia Phillies.

George Hendrick drove in three runs, two with a homer, and Smith slugged the third homer of his four-year career, two of which he hit this season. Hendrick and Smith also had two singles apiece.

In the San Diego locker room afterward, Smith was explaining the Cardinals' cool demeanor. "There's not a whole lot of celebrating in here because it's still early," Smith said. "When the time for celebrating comes, everyone will know."

Hendrick and Smith, who was traded from San Diego to St. Louis in the offseason for shortstop Garry Templeton, each homered in the seventh, when the Cards scored three runs. St. Louis also scored three runs each in the fourth and seventh innings.

While the St. Louis locker room was restrained, Philadelphia's locker room at Veteran's Stadium was downright sullen. The Phillies now have lost 10 of their first 13 games this season.

"The fans booed tonight, and they had every right to, considering the way we played," said Manager Pat Corrales, who spoke rather candidly with his team after the game.

"One guy after another is trying to be a hero and trying to hit the ball out of the ballpark," the Phillies manager said. "We can't be doing that right now, we're a bunch of singles hitters."

The Phils lost their one proven home run hitter, Mike Schmidt, when he was sidelined with a cracked rib April 13. He could out six weeks.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Diego beat Atlanta 6-3 in 12 innings, Montreal downed New York 5-4, Houston beat Cincinnati 7-3, Pittsburgh outslug Chicago 12-10 and Los Angeles blanked San Francisco 9-0.

The Cardinals scored three times in the fourth on RBI singles by Hendrick, Dane Iorg and Smith. In the sixth, Tom Herr and Keith Hernandez drove in runs and another scored on Gary Mathews' fielding error in left.

Bob Forsch scattered eight hits in eight innings for his third victory, while the Cards sent Phillies right-hander Mike Krukow, 1-2, to the showers after 31-3 innings.

Padres 6, Braves 3
Sixto Lezcano's second homer of the game, a three-run shot, in the 12th inning, gave the Padres their ninth victory in a row and the second-longest winning in their history. The Braves have lost two in a row after winning their first 13, a major league record.

San Diego took a 3-2 lead in the 11th when Lezcano singled, was sacrificed to second and eventually scored on Kurt Bevacqua's single. But the Braves sent the game into one more extra inning in the bottom of the 11th with a run on Glenn Hubbard's single.

Expos 5, Mets 4
Al Oliver's bases-loaded, infield single scored Rodney Scott with the winning run in the ninth for Montreal. With one out, Scott singled and Terry Francona was walked by reliever Jesse Orosco. Andre Dawson beat out an infield single and Oliver followed with his hit off Neil Allen. Oliver also homered in the fourth, driving in two runs to tie the score 2-2. Trailing 4-3, the Mets tied the score in the top of the ninth on Mookie Wilson's RBI triple.

Bill Gullickson worked eight innings for Montreal, striking out nine and walking four.

Astros 7, Reds 3
Art Howe and Phil Garner hit consecutive home runs in a six-run third inning that carried Houston over Cincinnati. Reds right-hander Tom Seaver, 0-2, issued successive walks to Denny Walling, Terry Puhl and Alan Ashby before Ray Knight singled home the first two runs of the inning.

Joe Niekro, 2-1, got the win despite yielding three runs on five hits as the Reds scored all of their runs in the seventh. Pirates 12, Cubs 10
Pittsburgh snapped a four-game losing streak, pounding out 17 hits to beat the Cubs. Omar Moreno drove in four runs, while Mike Easler and Tony Pena each drove in three.

Jason Thompson homered for Pittsburgh, helping to make a winner of Eddie Solomon, 1-2, the first of four Pittsburgh pitchers. Kent Tekulve earned his first save of the season.

Dodgers 9, Giants 0
Bob Welch tossed a seven-hit shutout, the second straight by a Los Angeles pitcher, and Ron Cey keyed the Dodgers' 14-hit attack with three-run homer. Two days earlier, Jerry Reuss blanked Houston on a one-hitter, and Dodgers pitchers now have a streak of 25 straight innings without allowing an earned run.

Cey had four hits and four RBI, three with his eighth-inning homer. Ken Landreaux and Steve Garvey had three hits apiece.

The victory was Los Angeles' third in a row, and the Giants have lost four straight.

Now is about the time those holiday pay-later charges begin to haunt you.

USC Saddled With Three-Year Probation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — University of Southern California officials were using the weekend to collect themselves after the National Collegiate Athletic Association dealt it a stiff, three-year football probation.

The NCAA's Infractions Committee announced the penalties Friday from Mission, Kansas, saying USC's actions constituted a "flagrant" violation of the rules.

The panel banned the Trojans from bowl games during the 1982-83 and 1983-84 academic years and prohibited television appearances during 1983 and 1984 for violations that include a ticket-selling scheme to funnel cash to players during a 10-year period.

The school remains eligible for television appearances this season.

The panel also ordered Southern Cal to freeze the salary of an unidentified assistant football coach and barred him from recruiting for two years. The ruling specifies that Southern Cal cannot replace him with another recruiter.

USC had gone before the Infractions Committee on Thursday in an appeal. The school had known about the penalties for several weeks.

The university, called just minutes before the ruling was announced, did not know the NCAA was ready to go public.

In a terse statement after the ruling, USC said no response would be made until a Monday news conference by President James Zumberge.

"The most flagrant example of willful circumvention of NCAA legislation in this case involves an assistant football coach who, during the period 1971-1979, deliberately violated NCAA rules by selling complimentary tickets of varsity football team members at prices in excess of face value in order to provide large sums of cash to the team members who chose to participate in this arrangement," said Charles Alan Wright, chairman of the Infractions Committee.

The NCAA said it will not reveal the name of that coach or any others cited in infractions cases, but local newspapers have linked Marv Goux, a long-time assistant, with the ticket-selling scheme.

The ruling also prohibits 16 unidentified people who bought the tickets from helping Southern Cal recruit during the probation.

USC has turned out numerous All Americas and Heisman Trophy winners and claims seven national championships in football since 1928.

Southern Cal already was penalized by the Pacific-10 conference, which prohibited its participation in bowl games last season because of an arrangement to provide unearned academic credits for athletes. Men's outdoor track also was involved in those sanctions.

Orioles Continue Slump; Tigers Rip Yanks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It has been almost two weeks since the Baltimore Orioles last won a game, so about all Manager Earl Weaver can do is fantasize how it must feel.

"It would be nice to win 2-0 once," he said after the Orioles dropped their ninth in a row Friday night, losing to the Chicago White Sox 4-2. "I'd like to give up just one run and we get two. How you go about doing that I just don't know. We score four and they score six. We score six and they score eight. I'm not very happy right now."

In other American League games, the Detroit Tigers rounced the New York Yankees 9-1, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Texas

Rangers 2-1, the Boston Red Sox nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 5-4, the Kansas City Royals whipped the Cleveland Indians 11-6, the California Angels downed the Oakland A's 7-2 and the Minnesota Twins clobbered the Seattle Mariners 12-4.

The Orioles are going so badly these days — their record is 2-10 and they haven't won since April 10 — that they were done in by Jim Morrison, who had only four hits and a .138 batting average in Chicago's first 10 games. Friday night, he doubled and scored on a single by Ron LeFlore in the fifth inning and slammed a tie-breaking triple in the White Sox's two-run ninth. Morrison, who also had a bunt single, raised his average to .212.

"Morrison's hitting is an example of the depth we have in our batting order," Manager Tony LaRussa said. "He's our eighth batter, but he can hit with power and he comes through when we need him."

Harold Baines opened the Chicago ninth with a single off Baltimore starter Jim Palmer. Carlton Fisk sacrificed Baines to second and Morrison tripled off the wall in left. Morrison was out at the plate on Bill Almon's attempted squeeze bunt, but LeFlore followed with a double to score Almon.

"Palmer threw some tough pitches to me, but I managed to get the ball in the holes," Morrison said. "The ball I hit in the ninth was a breaking pitch that I pulled down the line."

Tigers 9, Yankees 1

Dan Petry fired a seven-hitter and Larry Herndon, John Wockenfuss and Alan Trammell drove in two runs apiece as Detroit romped to its seventh straight victory. The Tigers scored two runs off loser Dave Righetti in the second, two more in the third and chased him in a two-run fourth as they beat the Yankees for the fourth time in seven days. Trammell's RBI single and Lou Whitaker's sacrifice fly in the second inning gave Petry all the runs he needed.

Brewers 2, Rangers 1
Moose Haas scattered six hits in eight innings and Don Money singled home the winning run as Milwaukee won its third game in a row. Haas gave way in the ninth to Rollie Fingers, who earned his second save by striking out two of the three batters he faced. The Brewers broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning when Gorman Thomas doubled and scored on Money's single off Rick Honeycutt.

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 4

Jim Rice belted a two-run homer, Carney Lansford added a solo blast and Dwight Evans threw out the potential tying run at the plate from right field to end the game. Boston's John Tudor blanked the Blue Jays until the eighth when he needed relief help as Toronto scored three runs. Rice also singled a run across in the sixth following a triple by Evans. His homer in the eighth after Evans singled pushed Boston's lead to 5-0.

Toronto's Al Woods singled with the bases loaded and two out in the bottom of the ninth, but Evans cut down Alfredo Griffin at the plate to end the game.

Royals 11, Indians 6

Amos Otis, Lee May and Hal McRae each collected three hits to lead a 16-hit assault on four Cleveland pitchers and help Kansas City end a four-game losing streak. McRae tagged reliever Dennis Lewallyn for a two-run homer in the sixth, giving the Royals a 9-6 lead, and they added two more runs when May singled and pinch-runner Dennis Werth scored on a double by Jerry Martin, who went to third on a wild pitch and came home on an infield hit by U.L. Washington. Andre Thornton hit a two-run homer for Cleveland.

Angels 7, A's 2

Brian Downing hit his sixth homer and drove in two runs and Tim Foli had a two-run single as California defeated Oakland behind Ken Forsch's seven-hit pitching. Downing led off the bottom of the first inning with his homer and singled a run home during a three-run second inning. Foli's two-run single highlighted another three-run burst in the third.

Oakland starter Matt Keough was ejected at the start of the third inning for not heeding a warning not to rub the back of his neck and the bill of his cap while on the pitching rubber.

Twins 12, Mariners 4

Bobby Mitchell and John Castino belted home runs and Ron Washington laced four hits to lead an 18-hit Minnesota attack. Minnesota starter Roger Erickson gave up singles to the first five Seattle batters, but went the route, scattering 13 hits. After the Mariners took a 3-0 lead in the first inning, Castino opened the Minnesota second with his first home run of the year, a blast off loser Edwin Nunez. Mitchell's first major league homer capped a four-run fourth.

Local Writers Contribute to County History Book

Project County History Week is proclaimed by Mayor Bartley Dowell, April 25-May 1, for a week of emphasis on sales of the Deaf Smith County history book, "The Land And Its People." His signature is affixed in the reception room of the E.B. Black Historical House where Project County History office is located. Troyce Hanna, project chairman, is at left, and the mayor's wife, Jeane, who did research on Hereford city history, at right. Mrs. Hanna wrote the story on county cemeteries for the book.

Writing and research for "The Land And Its People" have been done by many county residents. In this group are, from left, Debe Graves, who wrote stories on ghost towns and the POW camp; her husband, Ike, who helped gather her material; Dorothy Conkwright, who provided the basic story on ranching and registered cattle raising, and Margaret Ann Durham, who listed American Field Service students and their host families. In front is the Graves' four-year-old daughter.

Book Orders Due May 1

Among the scores of volunteers compiling the history of Deaf Smith County, writers and those who have gathered story material occupy a special place. Each of them has a particular knowledge or interest in a field to be covered in the complete county history.

Writing is virtually complete now and final editing is underway before the remaining copy goes to the publishers. Family histories, most of them written by members of the families themselves, were sent last week.

Emphasis in the coming week, before the last of the stories are mailed, is on advance sale of books which will provide most of the funds for publication. The more books sold, the more pages can be included to hold stories and photographs. Books may be ordered before publication.

Orders should be sent before May 1 to Project County History office in the E.B. Black Historical House, 508 West 3rd, or by mail to P.O. Drawer 2297. The office is open on weekday afternoons. The telephone number is 364-8371.

In addition to the writers pictured on this page, contributions to the general history section have been made by Doris Morgan, who collected histories of the hospital, doctors, clinics, and other health services; Jewel Smith, longtime director of the County Welfare office who tells of its work and of other social services; Mae McCracken, with stories of groups which have promoted music in the community; Billy Hutson, who wrote about the history of the U.S. Post Office in Deaf Smith County; and the late Cecil Braly, who wrote a history of the Western Union Telegraph Company's part in county history.

Other stories have been written, or compiled from researchers' notes, by members of the project office staff. Marge Mehlberg, a relative newcomer to the county, were fascinated by the XIT Ranch and checked numerous sources for her article about it, as well as writing some other history; Marian Kreig found area law enforcement officers helpful in getting material for their story; Nelda Guy Ricketts takes imaginary strolls on Hereford's Main Street during past decades, assisted by several oldtimers; and Juanita Owen and Sue Coleman have put together collections of notes on subjects as varied as highways and railroads to pioneer picnics to Mexican-American residents.

History book subjects range from foreign students to crop dusting, by writers who are knowledgeable on each topic. Juanita Brown, left, wrote the story on American Field service students in Hereford High, while Pauline and Carl Kropff tell of early fliers and airports in the county.

History and culture of the county's people are recounted by this group: from left, Rachel Henslee tells of the organization and administration of its government through the years; Edna Reinart adds a fascinating account of a major ethnic segment, the German-Czech-Polish residents; Roberta Wilson recalls music and musicians who guided the area's taste; Diana Pierson writes the county library history; and Carolyn Waters the saga, sometimes humorous, of its schools.

Major Schroeter, left, gets back to the county's foundation, its soil, in his contribution, The Land of Deaf Smith County. Pioneer spirit, even today, is cited by James W.

Witherspoon, right, as the decisive factor in the county's progress as he writes of business and industrial development.

All former news writers on The Hereford Brand, this trio reflected their own special interests in their stories. Jim Steiert, at back, writes of farming, wildlife, and game; his wife Kerrie, a county native too young to know the dust bowl years, heard others' tales about them for one story, and in another she relates the history of the firefighters. Roberta Campbell, left, tells of some unusual implements and methods used by early farmers to overcome adverse conditions in the new land.

Steering Committee

Tuesday Is Deadline To Enter

Tuesday is the deadline for Miss Hereford Pageant contracts to be turned in at Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office.

The pageant, which is sponsored annually by the Women's Division, will be held the evening of Aug. 14 at the Hereford High School auditorium.

Jim Dawson will be master of ceremonies at this year's event, which will be using the theme "The Rainbow Connection."

Serving on the steering committee this year are Mary Herring, Shirley Wilson, Janice Faulkner, Betty Lady, Carolyn Cannon and Lynda Muse.

The recipient of the Miss Hereford title will preside over the Town and Country Jubilee scheduled Aug. 20-22. Dana Ulibarri is the current Miss Hereford.

All three vying for the coveted title will be guests at several future events including a June Fun Breakfast, the July quarterly meeting of the Women's Division, several get-acquainted parties, and a modeling session given by Carmen Flood. Mrs. Flood will illustrate various ways to apply make-up and demonstrate the correct way of wearing clothes.

Anyone wishing to enter the pageant may pick up a contract at the chamber office.

Teaff, Watson Are Guests At First Christian Church

The public is invited to hear Grant Teaff and Johnny Ray Watson at 10:50 a.m. Sunday at First Christian Church.

Teaff, who will be the featured speaker, is a Baylor University football coach. Accompanying him with music and songs will be Watson, a former standout basketball player.

Both men are active witnesses in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and are concluding a First Christian Church men's retreat which was conducted over the weekend at a camp near Canyon.

Teaff is a noted speaker and is the author of a best selling book entitled, "I Believe." It is published by Word Books, Inc. He has been called one of the top five communicators in America.

Miller, Cook Exchange Vows

Debbie Jo Miller, of Lubbock, and Ricky Holland Cook, of Pineville, La., were married recently in Ford Memorial Chapel of First Baptist Church at Lubbock. Performing the ceremony was the Rev. J.M. Bozeman, retired Baptist minister from Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Miller of Lubbock and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Holland G. Cook of Hereford. Four candelabra decorated the church, and a unity candle was lit by the couple after their vows. The bride gave her mother a red rose on the way to the altar and gave her mother-in-law one on the way out.

Mrs. Whit Childers, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Randy G. Cook, brother of the groom, was best man. Diane Denzer was bridesmaid and Robby Cook, the groom's brother, was groomsman.

Margaret Evans, of Lubbock, played wedding selections, and Dale and Amy Moore, also of Lubbock, were the vocalists. Serving as ushers were Jerry Billeck, Jeffrey Arnwine, Craig Solomon, and Dennis Yeager.

Alisa Michelle Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randy G. Cook, and Kelly Childers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whit Childers, were flower girls. Jerry Billeck and Jeffrey Arnwine were candle lighters.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white organza with Venice lace trim featuring a sweetheart neck, bishop sleeves, and a cathedral train with a flounce edged in Venice lace. She wore a cap with a finger tip lace veil edged in Venice lace.

Her bouquet contained white and baby blue lilies

Art Show Set This Afternoon

This afternoon from 1-5 p.m. the Hereford Art Guild will host an art show in the large east room of the Community Center. Members of the Guild will be displaying their works.

The art show is open to the public.

with alternating white and baby blue silks streamers and stephanotis. She wore a single strand of pearls with matching earrings borrowed from the groom's mother.

Bridal attendants wore romance blue organza floor length gowns with cowl necks and belted with blue silk ribbons. They carried silk flowers similar to the bridal bouquet, all of which were made by the bride.

A reception was held in the chapel following the ceremony and Evelyn Thompson registered guests. Carolyn Casey and Karen Cook, sister-in-law of the groom, served cake, and Wanda Bartels served punch.

The bridal bouquet was a centerpiece for the bride's table. The three-tiered heart shape white cake was trimmed with baby blue lilies. Centerpiece for the groom's table was a bouquet of blue silk roses. The cake was a heart shape German chocolate.

After a wedding trip to points of interest in Louisiana, the couple is at home at 106 Camellia, Pineville, La.

The bride graduated from Lubbock High in 1973 and nursing school in 1979. She has been working in maternal child care at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock for three years.

The groom graduated from Hereford High in 1974 and received his BBA degree from West Texas State University in 1979. He worked for Elanco Products Co. for two years and is presently employed by Tri-State Delta Chemical Co.

Guests attending from Hereford were Mr. and Mrs. Holland Cook and Robby, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Solomon, Susan Grimsley, Loraine Riddle, and Jim and Kelly Cherry. Other out of town guests were from Barling, Ark.; Clarksdale, Ms.; Dallas, Gruver, Wichita Falls, Plainview, Childress, Ralls, Ropesville and Littlefield.

Scholarships Being Offered

A scholarship is being offered by the P.E.O. to graduating senior girls of Hereford High School. This organization is an international association of women who desire to help further the education of all women.

The recipient will be chosen on a variety of criteria including merit, need, scholastic ability and Christian character.

Application for this scholarship can be obtained from the HHS senior counselor or from the following P.E.O. members. They include Berta Ottesen, Donna Jones, Pat Fisher or Karen Abney.

Applications are due on May 1 and can be turned in at the counselors office or to one of the P.E.O. members.

CARD OF THANKS

The children and their families and the sister and brother of Ethel Newsom would like to say "thank you" for all the expressions of sympathy shown at the time of the loss of their mother and sister -- to the nurses at Westgate; to Jarrell Sharp; to Bera and Bobby Boyd and Bert Bostic; to the Pall Bearers and to the Methodist ladies that served a lovely meal. For the prayers; flowers; food; phone calls and visits; and for the memorials to the First United Methodist Church Memorial Flower Fund and numerous other memorials and the placing of flowers on the altar of the church at the time of her birthday by the Friendship class -- all of these were most appreciated and will be long remembered by the families of Carroll and Ruth Newsom; Wayne and Pat Newsom; John Newsom; Jane and Norman Bookout; Gladys Short and Richard Daniels.

Red Cross Chapters To Conduct Schools

American Red Cross chapters will conduct aquatic, first aid and small craft schools to help meet the need for qualified swimming, lifesaving, first aid, CPR and boating instructors.

This spring and summer, hundreds of new instructors will be trained at the 7-to-10 day schools, sponsored by Red Cross chapters and strategically located at camps and college campuses across the nation.

Most of the schools are scheduled in May and June to allow aquatic and boating instructor candidates to take training before starting summer activities. These Red Cross schools also offer a unique opportunity to train first aid instructors to conduct in-plant courses for their employers to help business comply with the requirements of the Occupational Health and Safety Act of 1970.

Men and women 17 years of age or over, who are better than average swimmers and physically fit, are eligible for instructor training at the aquatic and small craft schools.

First aid instructor candidates are not required to have swimming ability, but must meet fitness requirements. Some swimming instruction may be available to these students, if desired.

A comprehensive curriculum of lectures, seminars, course instruction and practice sessions teach the following techniques: basic swimming, water safety; adapted aquatics (swimming for the disabled); basic, standard and advanced first aid; cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR); canoeing; sailing, and boating. Not all subjects are taught at all the schools, however.

Faculties are comprised of highly-trained Red Cross volunteers who are experts in the field in which they instruct.

Between the Covers

Biographies Featured This Week

Dianne Pierson
Biographies head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Librar. "Barbra" by Donald Zec and Anthony Fowles is a fascinating and well-balanced portrait of one of America's most controversial and often misunderstood leading ladies. Love her or hate her, Barbra Streisand is a phenomenon. She is the most spectacularly successful and talented actress and singer working today. She demands control of every aspect of her work—and gets it.

Barbra Streisand has charisma. She was a box office sensation in "Funny Girl," for which she won an Oscar. She has starred in such topgrossing films as "The Owl And The Pussycat," "What's Up Doc," "The Way We Were," and "A Star Is Born." "Barbra" provides an inside look at how a gawky girl from Brooklyn became a superstar.

"The Patchwork Clan" by Doris Lund is the story of the Sweeney family and how it grew to seventeen. When Ann Sweeney had a miscarriage while carrying her sixth child, she thought she would never recover from the loss. But when she and John discovered the joys of adoption, a renewed sense of love and commitment came into their lives.

First there was Marcus, a delightful redheaded imp-part American Indian, part black, part "something else?" This miracle was soon followed by another; at forty-one Ann gave birth to twins! Then the Sweeneys adopted Faith and Terry. Minh, A Vietnamese teenager, followed. Maria, a blind Colombian Indian girl, arrived in 1977.

But it is the arrival of Carey and Michael, two brothers, aged seven and five, from a New York City ghetto, that swells the "patchwork clan" to seventeen and pushes the Sweeney's strength and ingenuity to the limit.

"Patchwork Clan" is the story of how a family copes and learns to grow with each new arrival. It is a true testament of love, pain, and pride. "Patchwork Clan" is a very special book.

"P.S. I Love You:" an intimate portrait of Peter Sellers by Michael Sellers also heads the list of new books available this week. Peter Sellers was one of the great comic geniuses of the screen, a peerless performer whose impersonations of Inspector Clouseau in the great Pink Panther movies, have earned him cult status among several generations of moviegoers. Genius exacts a price, and in Peter Sellers' case it was paid in part by his family.

Michael Sellers paints a vivid portrait of the vulnerable, troubled man behind the jovial public figure. Sellers was wed four times, but never found lasting happiness with any woman. This revealing biography is filled with wonderful stories about this glittering milieu. Here is the full story of a glamorous, tragic, and altogether remarkable life.

Other new books available this week include "Mae West" by George Eells and Stanley Musgrove, "Bob Hope" by Charles Thompson, and "Polanski" by Barbra Lemming.

Other library events:
Public Story Hour - Thursday morning at 10 a.m., Heritage Room of the Library.

Extension Homemakers Attend Spring Meeting

Family News

Four hundred extension homemakers traveled to Hereford this week to attend the District I spring meeting of Texas Extension Homemakers Association. "Century III-Decade for Development" was the theme of the meeting held at the Bull Barn.

Mateel Brown of Amarillo, District I Director, presided at the all day meeting. Chris Coleman and Chris Stevens, members of Pack 55, Den I Cub Scouts presented colors and led the group in the pledge to the U.S. and Texas flags.

Kate Bradley, Deaf Smith County TEHA chairman, welcomed the group.

Paul Gross, District Director, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, introduced all county extension agents. Sue Farris also a district director challenged each homemaker to have a personal project this year.

Martha Crawford, State T.E.H.A. treasurer, from Ballenger, brought greetings from the state board. During the luncheon, Deaf Smith County extension homemakers presented a style show.

LaJean Henry from the Pants Cage and Betty Martin from Louises' narrated the event as club members modeled clothes from their stores. Models were Louise Packard, Cindy Norvell, Terri Johnson, Carol Odom, Bertha Dettman, Brenda Campbell, Jeannette Ramey, Johnnie Messer, Anna Messer, Judy Williams, and Debbie Keyes.

Louise Walker and Penny Reinart, county extension agents from Deaf Smith County narrated a style show of blazers participants had made earlier in a blazer construction workshop. Modeling blazers were Elzora Brown, Nancy Duncan, Gayle Carter, Carol Odom, Clara Trowbridge and Brenda Campbell.

The afternoon program featured JoAn Dwyer with Rape Crisis and Sexual Abuse Service of Amarillo. Rape awareness was the subject.

In the business session, Kate Bradley was recognized with a plaque for 19 years of perfect attendance at county council.

Deaf Smith County was hostess to the annual meeting.

Local club members and their committee were Roberta Campbell and Johnnie Messer, on the hostess identification committee; Jewell Hargrave and Mariellen Homfeld, refreshment table; Gazle Carter and Martha Lueb, exhibits; Clara Trowbridge and Carol Odom, courtesy bags; Anna Messer and Sherri Blackwell, door prizes; and Cindy Norvell, style show.

Receiving Honor

During the American Cancer Society luncheon held Wednesday at Hereford Country Club, Eloise McDougal was recognized for serving in the society for over 20 years. Presenting Mrs. McDougal with a certificate and pin is Danny Ingram of Amarillo, district representative for the society.

20 Years Service Recognized

Eloise McDougal was recognized this week for having served Deaf Smith County Cancer Society 20 years. She has been president of Deaf Smith County American Cancer Society, campaign chairperson, education chairperson (twice), service and rehabilitation chairperson, and is currently serving as public education chairperson.

The status of the 1982 Deaf Smith County Cancer Crusade is reported as follows: The house to house drive was held Monday, April 19, with the one-hour door to door walks for cancer. This initial start of the County's Cancer Crusade has amounted to $4500 for the 1982 Cancer Crusade.

The business and county campaigns are now underway and the Cancer Crusade Bike-A-Thon will be held May 15.

Charlotte Clark, chairman of the house to house drive, wishes to express her thanks for the volunteer crusaders who contributed their time and efforts in this quest to support the Cancer Society.

The need still exists for each one's support. Funds are needed to continue research, expand education, provide service and rehabilitation to individuals and give assistance to families.

Memorials and contributions may be mailed to Hereford State Bank, Cancer Crusade, Box 272, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Jim Bullard, general chairman of the 1982 Deaf Smith County Cancer Crusade, expresses his thanks to the community for the support, and encourages those who would like to support this great cause and were not at home when crusaders visited their home to make contributions to Hereford State Bank.

Annual Pet Show Planned May 15

Once again it is time for the Women's Division annual Pet Show scheduled from 10 a.m. until noon May 15 at Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

This event is open to the public free of charge. The only stipulation is that all animals must be on a leash.

Linda Shipp is chairman for this year's show. Other committee members include Jane White, Olivia Denning, Debbie Gonzales, Carrell Ann Simmons and Janie Maldonado. Judging the event will be

Dr. Aaron Hutto, Steve Lewis and Jane White. Jay Eubank will serve as announcer.

First place trophy will be presented for the most obedient pet, and first and second place awards will be given in the following categories: longest tail, shortest tail, smallest pet, biggest pet, shaggiest pet, longest ears, biggest feet and most unusual pet.

Each entrant may choose two categories out of the eight listed above.

Terri Johnson Is Elected Director

Terri Johnson, vice chairman of the Deaf Smith Extension Homemaker's Council, was elected district I director of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association at their spring meeting in Hereford this week.

Ms. Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Townsend, has been a member of Westway E.H. club for six years.

During that time, she has attended five state conventions and has been a visiting delegate at four of these. She was a bus hostess for the trip to the convention in Fort Worth. She attended a national meeting in Albuquerque, N.M. in 1979.

She has held several offices in both her club at the Deaf Smith Extension Homemaker's Council. She has also served as county T.E.H.A. chairman for two years. She is presently serving on the state citizenship committee.

After the state meeting in 1979, Ms. Johnson, organized a five county T.E.H.A. training at Ceta Canyon. Those attending said it was an excellent workshop conducted under Terri's leadership.

Terri will represent the district at board meetings and state conventions in 1983 and 1984. Terri will be installed as a state officer at the state convention in El Paso in September.

She is the widow of the late Terry R. Johnson and the mother of two youngsters, Jill, age 11 and Wade, six. She is employed as secretary of city manager, Dudley Bayne. The family attends First Baptist Church.

Ms. Johnson is a member of the Hereford Riders Club Board of Directors and vice president of the group. She keeps books for the team ropings and junior rodeos. Terri is also a member of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Missionary To Speak At Church Service

"A very strategic training center for East and Central Africa," is the way Assemblies of God missionary to Kenya, Mrs. Sandra Goodwin, describes the East Africa School of Theology.

Mrs. Goodwin will be guest speaker Sunday at 6 p.m. at First Assembly of God, 606 E. 15th. The Rev. Steve Bookout is pastor.

E.A.S.T., opened in October of 1979, is committed to the task of training those whom God has raised up for the purpose of establishing His Church. Students are enrolled from Ethiopia, Sudan, Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania and Malawi.

Sensitive to the academic, spiritual, and practical needs of its students, E.A.S.T. is striving to meet the requirements of the Church for well-trained laymen, Christian workers, pastors, evangelists, missionaries and teachers.

Courses of study offered are for a three-year diploma in Bible and a four-year program leading to a Bachelor of Arts degree in Bible-Theology. Students in the degree program are cross-enrolled with the International Correspondence Institute of Brussels, Belgium, an extension school sponsored by the Assemblies of God Division of Foreign Missions.

From 1971 through 1977 Mrs. Goodwin taught in the Arusha Bible School, a regional school in Tanzania which later transferred to Kenya to become the East Africa School of Theology. She also ministered throughout the area in seminars for youth, pastors, and women's organizations.

Mrs. Goodwin is a graduate of Southwestern Assemblies of God College in Waxahachie.

She also holds a B.S. degree from West Texas State University in Canyon, and an M.A. degree from the Assemblies of God Graduate School in Springfield, Mo. Recently she taught for a year in the Behavioral Sciences Department of Evangel College in Springfield.

Prior to her missionary appointment in East Africa, Mrs. Goodwin and her late husband, Sidney, ministered in Ghana, West Africa. Before going to the field in 1962, they pastored churches in Canutillo and Hart. Most recently, Mrs. Goodwin served as coordinator for the I.C.I. Office of Information, working with the Brussels and U.S. offices concerning all aspects of promotions.

Mrs. Goodwin has one daughter, Gwenda, a 1980 graduate of Evangel College, who is presently serving in a volunteer missions assignment in Brussels.

The public is invited to attend this special missions rally.

TO GET YOU TO INSTALL
GAS AIR CONDITIONING
BEFORE THE SPRING RUSH,
WE'RE OFFERING YOU A

FREE FAN

FOR ORDERING
A NEW GAS AIR CONDITIONER BEFORE MAY 1ST

There are a lot of good reasons to install gas air conditioning . . . and Energas is offering another one for doing it NOW!

Gas air conditioning uses less energy to save you money . . . has pilotless ignition to make it even more efficient.

Gas air conditioning units are quality constructed with handcrafted stainless steel components for years of trouble free service. There are fewer moving parts to break down. With no compressor to wear and become increasingly inefficient, gas air conditioning keeps its original cooling capacity throughout its long life. All of this dependability is backed by a ten-year, no-sweat warranty.

Install gas air conditioning now and take your choice of Nutone Sea Island ceiling fans in white or brown with brass-plated accents. It will add beauty and comfort to your home. And, combined with gas efficiency and good conservation practices, the fan will save energy, too. Installation of fan is not included.

Install gas air conditioning now . . . and get your free fan.

10 YEAR NO SWEAT WARRANTY

*Manufacturer's limited warranty covers all defects in materials and workmanship on the sealed refrigeration unit for 10 years from date of sale of the air conditioner when it is installed in a single family residence. All other parts are warranted for one year from date of installation.

Guests Explain Correct Fashions To Members

Members of TOPS NO. 941 had as their guests, Louise Walker and Penny Reinart, of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service, during their meeting Thursday morning at Community Center.

The women modeled clothes and explained to the group ways to select the proper styles which are suited to individual figures for a more flattering look.

Mrs. Walker stressed that the design in necklines, jacket and sleeve lengths and styles, waistline treatment and skirt fullness are among the most important points to consider. She also said that three styles can also be used to distract from a women's best and worst features.

Mrs. Reinart discussed body proportions as a major factor in deciding which lines to choose for a more attractive total look.

Club leader, Gennelle Ward introduced the speakers and welcomed other visitors.

TOPS, Take Off Pounds Sensibly, is a non-profit organization of world-wide proportions. Anyone desiring to lose weight is eligible to join by contacting Mrs. Jay Ward, Mrs. S.T. Loerwald or Mrs. Sue Rogers.

El Llano Study Club Elects New Officers

New officers were elected by members of El Llano Study Club when the group met recently in the home of Avis White. Zula Arney served as co-hostess.

Jane Coplen will serve as president; Kathy Johnson, vice president; Mrs. Arney, secretary; Delores Foster, treasurer; Donna Warrick, reporter; Mrs. White, historian; Helen Eades, parliamentarian.

Also during the business meeting conducted by Helen Eades, a report was given on the luncheon honoring nominees for the Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards held recently at W.T.S.U.

Mrs. Eades was the club's nominee. She was accompanied to the luncheon by Ursalee Jacobson.

Plans were made for the final meeting and salad supper to be held in May at the home of Mrs. Eades.

The evening's program was given by two orators from the Hereford High school speech team.

Donna Jones and Karen Abney were recognized as guests by members present. They included Sue Amstity, Jean Ballard, Opal Bookout, Elizabeth Cesar, Mozelle

Childers, Jane Coplen. Also, Jean Dowell, Delores Foster, Ursalee Jacobson, Kathy Johnson, Leona Kimball and Donna Warrick.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

A woman in Illinois has a son who is "into weight lifting." She has noted that the stronger the muscles become in his upper arms, the weaker the muscles become in his fingers.

In other words, the boy can press his own weight, but he can't turn off a water faucet.

The answer is a simple one. Teenagers develop only one part of their bodies at a time. If they're making good grades, don't expect them to pick up their room. If you want them to have eight hours sleep a night, they can't handle the garbage. If you want the truth out of them, don't push them to turn off the lights in their room.

If you want logic, you should have raised collies. We have all lived through the years of parental innocence. I had a son who played basketball four hours a day. The muscles in his legs looked like a bas-relief map of Brazil. Those legs carried him back and forth on that gym floor a hundred times a day. The walking muscles that would transport him home on foot have not developed today.

I had another child who talked on the phone so much we all chipped in and bought her a tongue transplant for her 16th birthday. She could not have formed the words "thank you" had she been given Erik Estrada.

To understand teenagers, you must understand their anatomy. No two things work at the same time.

On the eve of their 16th birthday, their hands will form little fists in anticipation of car keys which dangle from them every minute.

These same fingers cannot replace a towel on a rack.

The eyes that develop X-ray vision to see a piece of pound cake wrapped in aluminum foil in the back of the refrigerator will not see a dog that is tunneling under the door in an effort to relief himself.

By the time a teenager is 17, there are few things that are "operational." The hearing is gone. The voice is never heard. There is no sign he or she recognizes anyone. The muscles throughout the body are a mass of inertia.

The only thing that really works is the mind. It accelerates to age 35 and holds there until he or she is 35. Then it goes back down to age 17.

"Games lubricate the body and the mind." Benjamin Franklin

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have.

The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season.

Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

Ann Landers
Initials A Big Mistake

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The fellow who wants to name his baby with initials only is making a big mistake. Please advise him not to do it.

My father insisted that I have initials only (J.R.). He thought it would be distinctive, but it's been one hell of a burden all my life.

Teachers called me a liar because they insisted I had a first name I didn't like and refused to use. I had trouble in the service, with insurance companies, trying to vote, opening bank accounts, being a police officer for 28 years—you name it.

If you want to start a kid off on the wrong foot, just give him initials instead of a name. He'll have trouble all his life.—J.R.—So Help Me, That's All There Is Yesterday I was at Mike's house when some friends came to visit. They admired the crest and asked where he got it. He replied, "My grandmother has the original painting. I borrowed it and had it reproduced."

I was stunned—and hurt. Later when I told Mike how I felt, he said I was being silly—that I have no right to be upset. I believe he was very rude not to have given me the credit due. Your opinion is wanted.—Unappreciated.

DEAR UN: Rude? How about ungracious and dishonest? Mike must also have the hide of an alligator to have told that whopper in your presence. Add "grossly insensitive" and give serious consideration to throwing him back into the tank.

DEAR J.R.: I believe you. I believe you. Thanks for the testimonial of a witness in the torture chamber.

DEAR ANN: I hope you will answer because sometimes it's the little things in life that are really important.

My boyfriend's grandmother had an oil painting of their family crest. Mike admired it so much that I borrowed the painting and copied it as a surprise for his birthday. (I am not a professional artist, but I do have some talent.)

My painting looked pretty good and Mike was thrilled. He hung it in his living room.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know I am awfully late in getting around to telling you about my wonderful in-laws, but I hope you will forgive me and print my letter anyway.

I married George in 1950. His parents came from Eastern Europe the following year. They couldn't speak one word of English, but we communicated immediately in the universal language that all people, everywhere, understand—love. Their warm smiles and kind eyes told me everything I needed to know.

Within a week of their arrival they asked to be enrolled in a class for new Americans. I drove them to their classes and helped them with their homework. I was amazed at how well they did. Had I been in their country, I would not have done half as well.

When our children were born, it was my mother-in-law who moved in and took over the household. My American-born mother managed to be on a cruise or a trip all four times. She speaks perfect English, but there is no communication whatsoever. Blood is not really thicker than water. Someone made that up. Sign me—Lucky In Pennsylvania

DEAR LUCKY: Beautiful letter. They are lucky, too.

Louise's Latest Fad Diets Can Be Dangerous

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
Fad diets—they're becoming a "national obsession."

Americans spend billions of dollars on fad diets, pills, supplements and books in hopes of losing enough weight to become more attractive, healthier, sexier and younger looking.

But such desires to lose weight quickly actually can be harmful to your health.

"What is a fad diet?" is the first question that comes to mind.

A fad diet is any diet concept that remains unproven scientifically to successfully and harmlessly lose weight.

TYPES OF FAD DIETS
One of the most common fad diets used by Americans today is the "crash diet."

For example, the dieter may try to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. This is called the "yo-yo syndrome" because one quickly takes off the weight, returns to old food habits and regains the weight.

Some people are successful at losing weight in short times but seldom are able to keep off extra pounds over the long run.

Medical authorities now believe it's better to be a few pounds overweight than to put the body through the stress of losing and gaining weight over such a short time.

The low-carbohydrate diet is another fad approach to losing weight quickly.

These types of diets are dangerous because carbohydrate intake is limited in an attempt to rapidly take off body fat.

Dieters, however, may go into ketosis — an abnormal condition which can lead to coma or death—on low-carbohydrate diets.

Another area of concern in fad dieting is the use of megadoses of vitamins to improve health.

Large amounts of fat-soluble vitamins A and D become stored in the body and can be toxic.

Vitamin A in large amounts can cause loss of appetite, desquamation (shedding of cells from the skin), bone and liver pain and enlargement of the liver.

Too much vitamin D can raise the blood calcium level, stunt growth in infants and form calcium deposits in various organs.

ARTHRITIS PATIENTS
Often times, arthritis patients follow fad diets in an attempt to relieve pain.

The American Arthritis Association says there is no cure for the disease and that some diets may be harmful to the individual.

Some common fad diets used by arthritis patients are:

honey and vinegar, megadoses of vitamins, modified crash diets and eating only fresh fruit.

For best results, the AAA recommends that those with arthritis eat a balanced diet and maintain or attain a normal weight.

RECOGNIZING FAD DIETS
Food fads often may be difficult to identify.

Consider the following facts about fads before deciding what diets are good to follow.

(1) The author or proponent of the diet will try to undermine your confidence in the American food supply. But don't worry, we still have the safest food supply of any nation. (2) They may attack the Food and Drug Administration, The American Medical Association, the Public Health Service or any recognized authority on nutrition.

(3) They use "scare" tactics on health and play on emotions rather than issue factual data about their diet.

(4) They have something to sell, such as a book, supplement or food.

(5) They make extravagant claims about their product.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Today In History

Associated Press
Today is Sunday, April 25, the 115th day of 1982. There are 250 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 25, 1898, the United States declared war on Spain.

On this date:

In 1945, delegates of 45 nations met in San Francisco to organize the United Nations.

In 1971, a Soviet spaceship landed safely after docking with an orbiting space laboratory.

In 1973, the United States set up talks between Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris aimed at achieving "strict implementation" of the Vietnam war ceasefire.

And in 1980, President Carter announced an attempt to free 52 American hostages in Iran a day earlier had ended in failure, with eight American soldiers killed in the effort.

Ten years ago: There were widespread anti-war protests throughout the United States as American planes stepped up attacks on North Vietnam.

Five years ago: President

Carter and King Hussein of Jordan conferred in Washington on Palestinian and other Mideast issues.

One year ago: Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., said the United States would stop all trade with the Soviet Union if it invaded strife-torn Poland, a threat softened considerably by the White House two days later.

Today's birthdays: Supreme Court Justice William Brennan is 76 years old. Singer Ella Fitzgerald is 64.

Thought for today: The grandest homage we can pay to truth is to use it. — Ralph Waldo Emerson, U.S. writer (1803-1882).

EXPORT EARNERS

Foreign Market Share of Major U.S. Crops

SOURCE: Department of Agriculture

NEA/Moffitt Cecil

As American agricultural products become increasingly important food sources for other countries, foreign markets become increasingly important to American farmers. Twenty-five cents of each farm dollar earned came from exports in fiscal 1980. The exported share is even higher for specific major crops such as shown here.

By 50 Million Bushels

Corn Stockpile Shrinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are feeding more corn to cattle, hogs and poultry than had been estimated, reducing the U.S. stockpile of corn by about 50 million bushels, according to the latest Agriculture Department analysis.

A new supply-and-demand report released Friday said that the larger "domestic disappearance" of corn occurred during the first three months of 1982.

The revised corn use figures based on a new quarterly inventory of grain stockpiles as of April 1 should help bolster grain prices slightly, perhaps adding an average 2 or 3 cents a bushel. "Despite lower animal product output, corn feed use for 1981-82 is likely to be up about 4 percent from 1980-81," the latest analysis said. "The severe winter has increased feed requirements, and improved livestock-grain price ratios may boost feeding rates in coming months."

Although there was more corn fed in the first quarter than the experts had originally projected, there still is an ample supply to go around.

The report estimated that the U.S. corn stockpile next Oct. 1 — the beginning of the 1982-83 corn marketing year — will be about 1.98 billion bushels. That would still be nearly double the corn carryover last Oct. 1.

As a result of greater domestic consumption and participation in the government's farmer-owned reserve program, corn prices for the 1981-82 marketing year now are expected to average $2.45 to $2.55 per bushel, compared with $2.40 to $2.55 per bushel in the immediately preceding forecast.

Corn prices nationally at the farm in 1980-81 — when supplies were far less — averaged $3.11 per bushel.

Looking further into the demand-supply situation, the report said that, including the old-crop carryover last Oct. 1 and the record 1981 harvest, the U.S. corn supply this season was 9.24 billion bushels.

Domestic use is expected to account for nearly 5.09 billion bushels, including 4.3 billion bushels as feed for livestock. Exports will require nearly 2.18 billion bushels.

The analysis also noted that U.S. meat production will be down this year, mainly because of a cutback in pork output. Beef and poultry production "remains near the 1981 levels," the report said.

"If (hog) producers reduce March-May farrowings 14 percent, as indicated in the March survey, and if effects of the harsh winter weather reduce the number of pigs saved per litter, fourth-quarter production could be about a fifth below the high level of a year earlier," the report said.

That could have a major impact on corn use next fall

Farmers Still Depressed; Consumers Find It Easy

WASHINGTON (AP) — While farmers are still being crimped by depressed market prices, consumers are continuing to find it easier at retail food stores, according to government's latest figures.

"The major factor holding down food prices in March was a recovery in supplies of fresh vegetables, Assistant Agriculture Secretary William Leshner said Friday. Leshner, the department's chief economist, said retail lettuce prices, for example, dropped by a third last month, reflecting an increase in supplies following a temporary shortage caused by insect damage in California earlier this year.

Tomato prices dropped more than 10 percent in March as supplies recovered from the January freeze damage in Florida, Leshner said.

The Labor Department's monthly inflation report Friday showed that food and beverage prices over-all declined 0.3 percent in March, including a 0.6 percent drop in food bought at grocery stores after adjustments allowing for seasonal variations.

Retail meat prices, however, were up 0.1 percent last month, with higher prices for pork and other meats offsetting a 0.4 percent drop in beef and veal prices. Lamb and mutton production, at 33 million pounds, increased 14 percent from March 1981.

Red Meat Production Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commercial production of red meat in the United States last month totaled an estimated 3.3 billion pounds, down 3 percent from March 1981, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Friday that output in the first three months of this year was 9.34 billion pounds, a 5 percent drop from output in the first quarter of 1981.

The department said beef production in March totaled 1.88 billion pounds, down 1 percent from a year earlier, while veal output increased 11 percent to about 38 million pounds.

Pork output, reflecting cutbacks in farmers' hog operations, was 1.35 billion pounds, down 6 percent from year-earlier levels.

Lamb and mutton production, at 33 million pounds, increased 14 percent from March 1981.

Farmers To Plant More Soybeans

ST. LOUIS — American farmers plan to plant 68.6 million acres of soybeans this year, according to a survey released today by American Soybean Association (ASA) Senior Economist Dr. Robert Acton. The survey indicates farmers will plant 564,000 more acres of soybeans this spring than last. In 1981 soybean planted area totaled 68 million acres. The survey was a random sample of 150,000 farmers in 29 major soybean-producing states conducted by a questionnaire mailed March 23.

The ASA planting intentions survey indicates a 971,000 acre reduction in soybean plantings over USDA's February 18 Prospective Plantings Report that showed soybean planting intentions of 69.5 million acres.

The Mid-South (Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, Oklahoma and Tennessee) will produce 14.3 million acres, a 3 percent decrease from 1981.

The survey also showed that farmers plan to plant 8.3 million acres of corn: a 1 percent decrease from 1981. The Eastern Corn Belt showed a 1 percent increase of 442,000 acres over 1981. The Western Corn Belt showed a 2 percent decrease under 1981. The Mid-South showed a 2 percent increase of 47,000 acres.

Holly Considers Merger

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Michael S. Buchsbaum, chairman of the board of Holly Sugar Corporation, has reported that he had received a letter from RepublicBank Dallas, indicating its interest in heading a bank group which would extend a credit facility to Holly in connection with a proposed cash merger between Holly and an investor group led by Buchsbaum in which Holly shareholder would receive $65 per share.

The letter contemplates a total loan of $60 million to be used for both short-term seasonal borrowings and for the payment of Holly shares. The loan would be subject to a number of conditions, including, realization by Holly of $37 million in net cash proceeds from the sale of non-beet sugar processing assets, contribution by the sugar beet growers aggregating $33.6 million over the next three years and execution of covenants, security interests and definitive agreements satisfactory to the banks.

The proceeds of the loan, the asset sales and other resources would be used to pay for Holly shares held by shareholders other than the members of the investor group.

Buchsbaum said representatives of beet growers have looked at the proposal with approval and that he would offer the merger to the Holly board.

Any transaction must be approved by the board.

Meeting Set

Rabbit Club Forming

An organizational meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center Tuesday for persons interested in raising rabbits for show or sale.

Jerry Brock, a Hereford rabbit breeder, said the first meetings will be to see how much interest there is in rabbits and focus on education.

The meeting Tuesday will also feature the results of a rabbit show Sunday at the Amarillo Tri-State Fairgrounds.

Brock said other meetings will include films on rabbit care and breeding, how to judge and show rabbits, raising the animals commercially and how to use the skins for garment making.

He said the club will be open to everyone with a focus on 4-H and Future Farmers of America projects.

Questions about the meeting may be referred to Brock at 364-5524, or the Extension office, 364-3573.

March Broilers Down 2 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The March hatch of broiler-type chicks was an estimated 390 million, down 2 percent from a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

Those chicks, as slaughtered broilers, will be reaching consumers later this spring.

Further, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Wednesday, there were about 321 million eggs in incubators on April 1, down 3 percent from a year ago.

Another indicator of the broiler industry cutting back was in the number of broiler-type pullet chicks that breeders placed in domestic hatchery supply flocks. Those totaled 3.49 million chicks in March, down 15 percent from a year earlier, the report said.

Looking at egg-type chicks, the report said the March hatch was 43.8 million, a 2 percent decline from March 1981. Eggs in incubators on April 1 totaled 41.3 million, down 6 percent from a year ago.

The domestic placement of egg-type pullet chicks for hatchery supply flocks by leading breeders in March totaled 353,000 birds, an increase of 33 percent from March 1981, the report said.

Turkey hatchings in March were reported at 18.7 million poult, down 6 percent from a year earlier. Eggs in incubators on April 1 totaled 26.4 million, a 3 percent decline.

Ring Around Seed

More Life from the Land.

RA 450 hits 80.72 bu/a, all-time Texas high.

The Texas Soybean Association's 1981 yield winner, Mike Carthel of Lockney, says he'll "put Ring Around's soybeans up against anybody's." Carthel planted Ring Around Mitchell 450, the variety that offers growers a real advantage when it comes to shatter scores, standability and phytophthora resistance. And, in spite of dry weather on the High Plains and weakened underground irrigation, he came up a winner with 80.72 bu/a and a new high for the state.

BRED FOR SUCCESS

Yields like this are only part of the Ring Around soybean story. For example, Ring Around research is responsible for time-tested Mitchell soybeans and has also developed RA 480 especially for the High Plains of Texas. RA 480 gives good shatter resistance and can take the highest pH of any known soybean variety.

A GUARANTEED STAND

In addition to the latest research and the highest quality, Ring Around gives you one of the strongest guarantees ever. When you plant Ring Around brand soybeans, you're guaranteed a satisfactory stand—or we'll replace each and every bag for replanting during the 1982 planting season. While your seed might not make a stand for virtually any reason—frost, drought or other problems (anything, in fact, except chemical damage or intentional destruction)—the guarantee still stands. And that's true regardless of which high yielding Ring Around proprietary soybean variety you buy. No guarantee on public varieties, of course. Just remember—no stand, no problem. Ring Around guarantees it.

Chaloupka Reports Concern

WACO — In a telephone report from Tokyo, the president of the Texas Farm Bureau said Wednesday

there is great concern in Japan about Congress limiting imports of Japanese products into the United States.

Carrol Chaloupka of Dalhart is one of the farm leaders from 24 states on a trade mission to Japan. The group of state Farm Bureau presidents told Japanese industrialists and agricultural representatives in Tokyo that $15 steaks and $20 cantaloupes in Japanese markets ought to make them reconsider trade barriers in agriculture that are "unwise and self-defeating."

Chaloupka told the TFB headquarters this week that rural areas control a majority of the members of the Japanese Diet, and that they have been largely successful thus far in restricting competing imports into Japan.

The U.S. delegation, led by American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Delano, arrived in Tokyo last Sunday for a six-day mission to try to influence a relaxation of Japanese trade barriers against agricultural imports.

Chaloupka said his group met with a group of food purveyors Wednesday, and were warmly received. "They're on our side," Chaloupka said. "They know of the high quality and reasonable price on our products—including beef."

Chaloupka said the visit by the American farmers had attracted national media attention in Japan.

"We had one of the largest news conferences I've ever seen, and our story is getting out across the country here," he said. The Dalhart beef and grian producer said in an interview for Japanese television that Japanese beef producers would benefit from competition—that the market could be expanded to take American beef.

"We're going to have to keep pressure on the Japanese government," Chaloupka said. "They've got to know we have no alternative but to go to Congress to get restrictions on Japanese imports unless we are treated fairly in their markets. They've got to let us compete over here. They've got to make some concessions." The U.S. farm leaders found wide agreement with proposals to reduce protectionism against U.S. farm products from representatives of Japan's auto and electronic industries, but have met with opposition from agricultural interests.

The Japanese agriculturalists argue that current import restrictions are necessary to help Japan build its own agricultural sufficiency and to reduce a current over-production in rice supplies.

AFBF President Delano, a diversified farmer from Virginia, argued that reduced trade barriers would be as beneficial to Japan's economy as to our own. He noted quota and tariff restrictions that have driven prices of beef steaks to $15 and more in Japan that consumers in Hong Kong can buy for $4.50.

He told his Japanese conferees that full access to U.S. farm markets would meet substantial consumer demands in Japan now unfulfilled because of high prices and lack of product availability. And he warned that continued protectionism in Japan would lead to counter-productive pressures on Japanese exports in the U.S.

Delano called for a balanced long-range trade policy in the interests of both trading partners.

"This is a relationship between the export of Japanese cars and television sets," he said.

Researchers Working on Test For Farmers To Check Own Meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is planning to introduce a new program to tackle the old problem of chemical residues showing up in the nation's meat supply.

According to informed sources in the department and in the meat industry, the program will involve an effort by USDA and producer groups to reduce or eliminate the residues of drugs before cattle, hogs and other livestock are sent to market.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the program probably will be announced next week.

According to one of the sources, the program will be called TRAP — an acronym which stands for "total residue avoidance program."

The department, through the Food Safety and Inspection Service and the Extension Service, would work with state and local agencies, producer groups and others to educate farmers on the residue problem and how to solve it through better management.

Further, according to the sources, industry and government researchers are working to develop simple new tests which farmers could use to check meat animals and poultry for chemicals before they are sent to slaughter plants.

Actually, the idea of a "total residue avoidance program" has been in the development stage for nearly a year. The task now is to put it to practical use at the farm level.

The Food and Drug Administration sets tolerances or allowable levels for various drugs found in carcasses of slaughtered animals. Sometimes, however, the chemical residues exceed the allowable levels.

Currently, the USDA has under review a proposal announced last month to extend another testing procedure to detect excessive antibiotics in animal and poultry carcasses at the slaughter plant.

The procedure is called STOP — swab test on the premises — and has been used successfully since 1979 to detect the presence of antibiotics in slaughtered dairy cows.

Consequently, the department proposed to extend its use to veal calves, beef cattle, sheep, swine, goats, horses, chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese.

By using STOP, slaughter plant inspectors can tell within 18 hours if a carcass has any trace of antibiotics. Normally, samples would be sent to a laboratory for tests, a procedure that often takes one to two weeks and sometimes longer. During that time, the carcasses are held at the plant.

If the STOP test is negative — no antibiotics present — the carcasses are allowed to proceed through the marketing chain. If positive, laboratory tests are required.

Officials say that in the three years STOP has been used there has been a sharp decline in the rate of antibiotic violations in slaughtered dairy cows, 0.6 percent last year against about 4 percent before the test was begun in 1979.

Cattle Ranchers Vital Link In Food Industry Chain

COLLEGE STATION — Today's ranchers should view themselves as members of the food industry rather than "just being in the cattle business," a state livestock leader declared at Texas A&M University recently.

J.D. Sartwelle, longtime rancher and board chairman of Port City Stockyards at Sealy, said cattlemen are indeed a vital link in the food chain. "We need to understand who our consumers are today and their concerns for diet and health. Our U.S. meat team is playing in a different ballgame than it has in the past. Soon one-half our daily meals will be eaten outside the home. There are more working wives today and basically there is less time for food preparation," Sartwelle told enrollees at the annual Beef Cattle Short Course. It was sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and other groups.

Citing some of the challenges ahead for the Texas cattle industry, Sartwelle stressed the need for more economy in beef production and more attention to promotion and marketing of the product. "This is a time when many ranchers must make a stern reassessment of their businesses if they are to survive during this period of bankruptcies, recession and unemployment, Sartwelle said.

"We must heed signals of the market situation and become objective in our outlook. Beef is still No. 1 in the supermarket, and we must continue to produce and provide this produce in the way that consumers want it. We need to explore ways to increase sales of our food product, especially in the export market," the rancher said. New product development is another area to explore, he added.

A feature of the Beef Cattle Short Course was a presentation by Frank Connell of Thornton, president of the American Brahman Breeders Association, of a leatherbound copy of the new book, "American Brahman—A History of the American Brahman Breed," to Dr. H.O. Kunkel, A&M's dean of agriculture. The volume is to be placed in the Texas A&M University library.

West, Central State Still Needs Rain

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rains over South Central Texas and parts of the Upper Coast and East Texas this week should give a boost to young crops and pastures, but the western half of the state and parts of Central Texas remain dry, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Young corn, cotton, grain sorghum and rice are generally making good progress although corn and grain sorghum have been plagued by aphids, cutworms, rootworms and birds in some areas, particularly the Coastal Bend, he said in his weekly crop report.

Cotton planting continues in Central and North Central Texas, and some limited planting has started in the Trans-Pecos area, he said.

Cotton planting also has started in the San Angelo area of West Central Texas.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Dryland wheat continues to suffer from lack of rain while the irrigated crop looks good. Corn planting is active and land preparation continues for other crops. Onions, potatoes and sugarbeets are making good progress. Some alfalfa is being treated for weevils. The fat cattle market is fairly strong.

SOUTH PLAINS: Corn planting is past the halfway point. Preplant irrigation is in full swing, with surface moisture short. Dryland wheat is in dire need of rain. Onions, potatoes and sugarbeets look fair to good. Ranges are greener, but need rain.

ROLLING PLAINS: Wheat and other small grains are maturing but need moisture along with ranges. Cotton farmers continue to prepare land for planting but are trying to hold back on expenses. First cuttings of alfalfa were being made in Wilbarger County. Some farmers are sprigging Coastal bermudagrass.

Grange, Bankers Oppose Moratorium

By DON KENDALL, AP
Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has been joined by the National Grange and the American Bankers Association in opposing any formal moratorium on repayment of federal farm loans.

Both told a Senate subcommittee on Wednesday that a moratorium like one endorsed by a House panel would be unfair to the vast majority of farmers who have managed to pay their bills on time despite the depressed farm economy.

Edward Andersen, master of the Grange, said a moratorium was not needed because the administration has the authority to defer loan payments in individual cases where it's necessary.

James Eatherly of the American Bankers Association, agreed, adding, "Lumping together all loan problems would permit abuses, and deferral across the board is not fair to other borrowers in the same situation."

Agriculture Secretary John Block and top USDA credit officials, backing President Reagan's plan to rein in the widening lending operations of the Farmers Home Administration, have repeatedly pledged to Congress that they are doing everything possible to keep financially troubled farmers in operation.

Although delinquencies on FmHA loans are now running about 10 percent higher than a year ago, they said, FmHA is using loan deferral, payment rescheduling and other methods to keep farm liquidations at a minimum.

"Farm loan delinquencies and defaults are higher than normal, and higher than one likes," Eatherly said, "but currently do not reflect a crisis condition."

Mary Kay Thatcher, assistant director of national affairs for the American Farm Bureau Federation, supports the administration's FmHA budget plan but suggested more emphasis should be placed on farm ownership and operating loans instead of on programs for water and sewer project, business and industrial development and community facilities.

Undersecretary of Agriculture Frank Naylor has said that 80 percent or more of all farm borrowers are managing to keep their loan payments current.

But farm belt congressmen and several national farm organizations, citing the rising number of farm liquidation sales across the nation, have called for a formal moratorium on repayment of FmHA loans, which account for about 14 percent of all farm lending. They have also demanded an immediate infusion of federal, low or moderate interest credit into the farm economy.

"The Farmers Home Administration is not meeting today's credit needs of farmers and will not be able to do so under the (administration's) recommendations," said Paul Sacia of the National Farmers Union.

Meanwhile, the NFU said in its weekly newsletter that Senate and House agriculture committees not only should support releasing the $600 million in FmHA funds but should go on record in favor of raising price support loan rates on the major crops.

DAY!

Afterall, what are neighbors for?

Scratch at the no-frills surface of the so-called discounters and food warehouses. Take a critical look at how their prices have gone up and still on the rise. We at Furr's have, and at Furr's Afterall, we've done the neighborly thing to do: Furr's Crash Calculation Prices to help you balance your bruised budget without missing out on Furr's famous neighborly service.
