Bass Receives Stay

HOUSTON (AP) - Charles room when the stay was W. Bass came within seven hours of becoming the nation's first convict to be executed by lethal injection but nowthe can't be executed for at least 30 days.

An indefinite stay was issued by three judges of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals less than seven hours before Bass was scheduled to be executed at 12:01 a.m. today for murdering a Houston. city marshal in 1979.

The 26-year-old Houston man already had been transferred to a holding cell a few yards from the death issued after the judges met by telephone in an emergency session, officials said.

"It was close," said Bass lawyer, Anthony Griffin. "It was also close because death is not appealable."

The drama continued for several more hours though. as Texas Attorney General Mark White asked the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn the appeals court stay.

Justice Byron White, who handles cases from the 5th Circuit, rejected White's request at 8 p.m. CDT. The request was resubmitted 45

William H. Rehnquist, who referred the question to the full court.

That blocked Texas officials from going to any other individual justices with their effort. It also meant that Bass could not be executed for 30 days, because the passing of the execution time meant another date would be to be set and Texas law requires that execution dates be set 30 days in advance. The execution order had specified that Bass was to have been

Bad economic news continued, with announcements of steel plant closings in Texas and Pennsylvania, extendeds layoff at an Oklahoma City General Motors Corp. plant, and closings at tire and molybdenum facilities.

The biggest surge in new housing was reported in starts of multifamily buildings - those with five units or more - which jumped 135.6 percent last month. Starts of singlefamily units fell to a seasonally adjusted rate of 614,000 in July, compared with the 616,000 rate of June.

Stock prices surged broadly, with 10 stocks gaining in price for every one declining on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks surged 38.81 points to close at 831.24, surpassing the previous record gain of 35.34 points on Nov. 1, 1977.

Kaufman said long-term government bonds now yielding about 12.5 percent might fall into the 9 percent to 10 percent range within the next 12 months. He said the rate on federal funds, which are overnight loans among banks, could dip to 6 percent or 7 percent.

On Monday, another Wall Street economist, Albert Wojnilower at First Boston Corp., said he too expected short- and long-term rates to be "noticeably lower next year."

Kaufman said the primary reason for his "new outlook" is that "a smart business recovery in the second half of this year is now much less likely to materialize" than

On Tax Increase

Senate Support Dwindling

WASHINGTON (AP) -While President Reagan has been trying to quell a revolt by his conservative allies in the House, Senate support for his $98.3 billion tax increase has been slipping to the point that he may need a dozen Democrats to help pass it. Not one of the 45 Democratic senators supported the original version when it was passed on a 50-47 vote last month. Only three Republicans voted no. But vote-counters say nine or more Republicans will oppose the compromise bill when the final vote is taken later this week.

That means Reagan and his allies will have to turn to Democrats if the bill is to become law, and they got their first breakthrough Tuesday. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a persistent critic of Reagan's economic policies, announced he will support the compromise because "we face a deepening danger of economic collapse." Kennedy said the Senate

Conviction Leaves Prosecutor Unshaken

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - The prosecutor of a Galveston man apparently unjustly convicted of an assault to which a mass murderer has confessed says his faith in the law is not shaken.

"The system works, but it's not perfect," said Galveston County District Attorney James Hury Tuesday after he dropped charges against Howard W. Mosley.

Watts, in a weeklong series of interrogations, has admitted killing 11 women and assaulting several more in the Houston area. He also gave detailed descriptions of assaults in which his victims escaped.

Mount St. Helens Rumbling Again

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) -Rockfalls and earthquakes were recorded at Mount St. Helens late Tuesday night, indicating that a minor eruption at the volcano may have started, authorities said.

Christina Boyko of the University of Washington geophysics center said at about 11 p.m. PDT Tuesday that while it was uncertain if an eruption was under way, "it's possible that it may have started in the last couple of hours."

She said the southwest Washington volcano may have entered a "transition phase" that usually signals the start of an eruption.

Both rockfalls and earthquakes were being recorded on seismic instruments at the geophysics center, she said. Earthquakes tend to decrease and rockfalls increase at the onset of the type of non-violent, domebuilding eruption scientists predicted was likely, she added.

Such a transition period usually lasts two to four hours, Ms. Boyko

Americans' Personal Income Rose Before Taxes Last Month Consumer spending rose

WASHINGTON (AP) -Americans' personal income rose a full 1 percent before taxes last month, the government said today. It attributed much of the gain - the largest since a similar increase last August - to the Social Security cost-of-living adjustment first seen in recipients' July checks.

-General Motors Corp. said its Cadillac Division planned to close its stamping plant and its metal plating plant in Detroit by autumn 1985 because the operations will be consolidated with similar activities elsewhere. About 1,600 workers will be affected. GM also blamed poor sales for extending by two weeks a two-week layoff for 28,000 workers at a GM plant in Oklahoma City.

—Colt Industries said it will close its Crucible Stainless and Alloy Division facility in Midland, Pa., Oct. 15. The Midland steelmaking facility is for sale. The plant once employed 4,500 steelworkers and now has a crew of only 50 union workers.

-AMAX Inc. said the Climax Mine near Leadville, Colo., will suspend molybdenum mining and milling operations for seven by the July 1 tax cut, rose 2.1 percent, more than 10 times the 0.2 percent gain of June and the biggest jump since July 1980.

were saving more and going into debt less. That, he said, "suggests that consumers are well positioned to lead the economy out of recession in the coming months."

Indeed, consumer spending jumped 1.1 percent in July, reversing the decline of the previous month and matching May's gain.

The department reported that July's total personal income rose $25.1 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2.6 trillion. The increase was well above the 0.4 percent of June and not far off the 0.9 percent of May, the report said.

Government figures on overall national economic activity in the April-to-June quarter showed the economy was growing for the first time since last summer. Revisions on those figures are due out Thursday.

Texas Counties, Cities Receive First Share

AUSTIN - State Comptroller Bob Bullock made history last week by sending 25 Texas counties and 20 cities their first share of taxes collected from legal charity bingo.

Bullock mailed checks totaling $116,513 in local taxes collected where voters have approved legal charity bingo and county commissioners or city councils have levied the 2 percent gross receipts tax authorized by the new Bingo Enabling Act.

"This first payment is a small one," Bullock said, "But it is real money going to work in the local budgets of these communities. As more Texas cities and counties levy the tax, we expect to see this amount grow." The biggest tax check went

The execution would have been the state's first since July 1964, when the execution was carried out in an elecric chair nicknamed "Old Sparky." The chair was retired after the Texas Legislature changed the method of execution to lethal injection in 1977.

Rick Gray, executive assistant to Attorney General White, said Rehnquist's action was "a partial victory" because the case is now before the Supreme Court.

"It bypasses the 5th Circuit and quickly gets it to the ultimate body that eventually would consider it," said Gray, adding that he hoped the high court would not consider the matter immediately, because he wants the state to have time to respond to arguments made by Bass'

Crank Caller's Stories Change On Lost General

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland was located early today, about two hours after the Army withdrew a request for West Texas authorities to help locate the retired general because they decided the woman who reported him missing was a "crank," a Fort Bliss spokesman said.

A non-commissioned duty officer, who declined to give his name, said the general had been reached by telephone in West Texas. He said he could not reveal the general's location because it was "classified information." He would not elaborate.

Ed Starnes, public affairs officer at Fort Bliss, earlier said the woman said she was tracking drug smugglers with the general and that he was picked up by UFOs.

"We've ruled it to be a crank," Starnes said, who said the all points bulletin had been issued as a "precaution." He said the general was not expected in the area until Starnes said that Fort Bliss officials had contacted the Pentagon in their unsuccessful efforts to locate Westmoreland, who was commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam during the height of the war. He said military officials do not keep records of Westmoreland's travel plans because he is retired.

Military police at Fort Bliss put out an all points bulletin to authorities in West Texas to try to find the 68-year-old general, he said. Police said the message included the possibility that "foul play" could be involved in the general's disappearance.

Col. D.B. Whitmarsh, the provost marshal at Fort Bliss, later talked with the woman and decided she was a crank, Earlier, Starnes had said the woman's stories kept changing. He added, "Since we don't know where the general's at, we're following the ones most rational ... It gets weirder all the time."

Starnes said officials had not determined the woman's

He said she told police in Monahans on Tuesday that she was traveling with Westmoreland to El Paso and that the general disappeared. Monahans is about 40 miles southwest of Odessa.

"She says she is an Air Force general traveling incognito, and she met the general in a gas station in Van Horn," Starnes said. "We're getting several stories. They've been everything from her being a four-star incognito to an Army general to the fact that UFOs picked him up."

The woman also told authorities she was working undercover with the general to track drug smugglers, Starnes said. She told police if they did not contact officials in Washington, "she would call Ronald Reagan in the morning," Starnes said.

Starnes said state and county authorities throughout West Texas were on the lookout for the general. He said there was no answer at the South Carolina home of the Monahans police dispatcher Roger Kemp and patrolman Joe Hoard said they received a Teleype message from Fort Bliss that Westmoreland was missing. "It stated basically that he was missing and he was last seen in our area and that's about it," Kemp said.

Hoard said Westmoreland was reported missing around Van Horn.

Starnes said the attendant at the gas station the woman stopped at in Van Horn remembered the woman, and said she was traveling with a man who said he had to get to El

Capt. Dennis Prevost, command information officer at Fort Bliss, said he knew "with reasonable certainty" where Westmoreland was but added, "I have not established phone communications, not with him personally." Asked whether Westmoreland was missing, he said, "We can't confirm or deny because we don't know yet. Until we've established communication or failed to do that we can't confirm or deny that. He was not en route here."

Attorneys Await Evidence Fate

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Defense attorneys, overruled on three key motions in the U.S. District for a hired killing, was con-Judge John H. Wood Jr. murder case, today awaited word whether their motion to supress FBI electronic surveillance would meet the same fate.

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions rejected Tuesday defense motions to have Sessions disqualify himself from presiding, to move the trial out of San Antonio on a change of venue, and to try key defendants Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra and Charles Harrelson separately.

Sessions ruled that he would entertain renewed motions for a change of venue if a jury could not be seated here, and to sever Chagra's case from the others if "antagonistic defenses" arose during trial.

The defense motions were the first of about 45 heard by Sessions in a laborious 11-day pretrial hearing that ended last Saturday.

Defense lawyers argued for eight days against introduction of FBI telephone taps and visiting room visits of Chagra and Harrelson at their respective jails.

A grand jury charged that Chagra, 39, paid Harrelson $250,000 to shoot Wood to prevent the federal judge, known as "Maximum John," from esiding at Chagra's 1979 arcotics trial. Sessions later presided and sentenced Chagra to 30 years without parole for continuing criminal enterprise.

Harrelson, 44, an exconvict who previously served a 15-year state sentence victed on state narcotics, weapons and bond-jumping charges and sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Charged with conspiracy and obstruction of justice in Wood's death are El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra, 35, brother of Jimmy, and Jimmy's wife, Elizabeth, 28, Jo Ann Harrelson, 41, the alleged triggerman's wife, is accused of obstructing justice and perjury, and Leon Nichols, 51, Elizabeth Chagra's father, was indicted for income tax evasion.

Sessions rejected a motion asking him to disqualify himself because of an friendship with Wood, saying the defense "presented no evidence of any social relationship between this judge and Judge Wood. Rather, defendant simply established that this judge was a colleague of Judge Wood ... "

All six defendants asked that the trial be moved from San Antonio because of pretrial news coverage, but Sessions ruled that while "the publicity has been of high intensity from time to time," there was no certainty that the "defendants could not obtain a fair trial by a fair and impartial jury drawn from the San Antonio Division."

"... The court does not at this time deny defendants' motions for a change of venue. The court simply holds that it should first try to strike a jury in the San An-

Eccentric Show Not Poking Fun

NEW YORK (AP) - "Vernon. Florida." from the man who brought "Gates of Heaven" to the home screen, may be the most eccentric suggests to parishoners a hour of prime-time TV this year, or any year.

Listen to Henry Shipes describe the joy of hunting turkey; to J.W. Martin and his wife consider a glass jar of "growing, crawling" sand, and to another worthy - and unidentified - citizen discourse on "the four-track mind."

Or, as one bearded codger says, "Reality? You mean this is the real world? I never thought of that.'

"Vernon, Florida" is the work of Errol Morris, who created a stir in 1980 with "Gates of Heaven," a bizarre documentary on pet cemeteries. His latest effort was shown for the first time at the 1981 New York Film Festival, and will be broadcast tonight as part of public TV's "Non Fiction Television" series.

The hour-long film may appear, at first blush, mocking, even cruel exploitation of a backwater town and a few of its idiosyncratic residents. But Morris is not poking fun. The portaits that emerge as his camera moves from one curious character to another. and back, assume before long an unmistakeable downhome nobility.

Conversation that would be mundane in another context is smalltown philosophical from the mouths of Morris' people. Indeed, there seems to be a universal truth - and no joke intended - in a sidewalk conversation overheard by the filmmaker:

Lone Star Steel To Close

LONE STAR, Texas (AP) One of the largest employers in East Texas, Lone Star Steel, will close its mill here Saturday, adding as many as 4,000 people to unemployment rolls and prompting officials to forecast hard times in the oil patch.

The Lone Star mill, which has already cut back on hours and shifts, will indefinitely lay off 3,500 to 4,000 workers and close the plant Saturday "until the demand is up again," said Joseph Shenton, corporate vice president of Lone Star's parent company. Northwest Industries of Chicago.

"You know how bad the current state of the oil patch is," Shenton said Tuesday. "The number of active rigs in the U.S. is down to 2,645 from 4,600 a year ago."

City officials in towns around the plant said they feared for the area following the massive layoffs. Lone Star drew workers from the nearby towns of Daingerfield, Ore City, Hughes Springs, and Gilmer, and as far away as Longview and Tyler.

"I think we can handle it for a period of time," said Lone Star city secretary Marquita Pankey. "But Lone Star can't last forever without the steel mill."

"It will drastically affect this city," said Ms. Pankey. "Ninty-five percent of our people either work for Lone Star or one of its subsidiaries."

"If the plant doesn't reopen in the next 30 or 45 days I suspect our people will see the hardest times they've seen in a long, long time," said Ore City Mayor B.R. Barnett, adding that most people in town worked at the mill.

At the steel workers' union hall, Lone Star Steel employees gathered Tuesday afternoon for a wake of sorts.

"About all a man can do right now is tighten his belt and hope," said Bruce Jackson, one of the laid off steel workers.

"We've all suspected it was coming," said Al Frederickson, "You could just kind of feel it."

In Mt. Pleasant, officials of the Texas Employment Commission met Tuesday night to formulate plans on how to handle the layoffs.

Texarkana State Sen. Ed. Howard, whose district includes Lone Star, said he had been assured that the TEC would have enough personel available to process the flood of unemployed workers.

Howard said Lone Star Steel was "the number one private employer in East Texas. The closing of the plant, he said, will have "one heck of an economic impact on the entire East Texas

Lone Star spokesman Mayo Lanigan said the last shift at the plant would end at midnight Saturday. The company started notifying workers about the closing at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

"This is a sad day for us," Lanigan said. "We are the last of the major U.S. producers of oil country tubular goods to substantially curtail operations. It is our number one priority to be the first producer to return everyone to work."

Shenton said all operations the plant would be halted, except for the warehousing operation and the company's special-order tubing business. Lone Star is one of the nation's largest producers of oil country tubular

People in Daingerfield, eight miles to the north, are "confused and disturbed," said City Manager Larry Moser, adding that "95 percent of our population will be affected dramatically."

"I'm in the middle of my budget process. I plan to go back and take a long hard look at it now. I suspect I will be cutting back," Moser said. "My chief concern is how I am going to keep the community going from here on."

In Ore City, city secretary Meredythe Rawls was shocked when told of the shutdown.

"My God, my son works there. He's never said a word about it." she said. "I'm sure sorry."

The 600-acre plant opened in 1948, and was last shut down in 1961-62, said Harold Warnix, president of the Steelworkers of America

Mexican Airline Facing Financial Crash

MEXICO CITY (AP) - It first took off in 1921, hauling payrolls to oil workers on Mexico's Gulf Coast, and soared to rare heights for a private airline in the Third World. Today, even while carrying the biggest passenger load in Latin America, Mexicana de Aviacion may be on a course to oblivion.

Deeply in debt and losing money for the first time in 15 years, the company faces the prospect of being absorbed by its smaller, less efficient competitor, the state-owned airline Aeromexico.

Last month, the government acquired 58 percent of it called "ruinous competition" between the two carriers and muster forces for route negotiations with the United States.

Enrique Loaeza Tovar, a political protege of President Jose Lopez Portillo and already director-general of Aeromexico, was named to the same post at Mexicana. He announced flight schedules and some other operations would be "coordinated" but no decision on a merger would be made until after Lopez Portillo's successor. Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado, takes office Dec. 1.

The takeover shocked many of Mexicana's 12,000 employees, who like to boast that theirs is the world's fourth oldest airline and that Charles Lindbergh made its first mail run - from Brownsville, Texas, to Tampico and Mexico City - in a Ford Tri-Motor in 1929.

Although some minority stockholders and Mexicana's 8,000-member ground workers union indicate they will resist a merger, few believe Mexicana's special identity will survive.

"It was like a great Mexican family," said a Mexicana marketing specialist. "People spent their entire careers here. The top executives moved up within the ranks. Now the leadership is imposed. A lot of people are demoralized. Most of the senior directors have applied for retirement."

Mexicana suffered when the Mexican economy faltered as oil prices fell, interest rates climbed and the peso was devalued.

Some say Mexicana was doomed despite a reputation for better service, comfort, safety and on-time performance than Aeromexico. which was nationalized in 1959 and has lost money nearly every year since. "Mexicana was in a no-win

Last year the airline flew eight million passengers to 41 cities in the United States, Mexico and Central America and reported a $35.8 million profit. Aeromexico, with a similar fleet and routes, had three million fewer passengers.

Mexicana's troubles began in February, when a 43 percent devaluation of the peso offset January's 30 percent fare increase and nearly doubled the peso burden of its $437 million in foreign currency loans.

Even nature turned against the airline. Clouds from the Chichonal volcano forced it to cancel 221 flights in two weeks on profitable routes to southern Mexico's oilfields.

After Mexicana's 1982 losses passed $11 million at mid-year, the government announced it had acquired a majority of the company's stock from former board chairman Crecencio Ballesteros.

Ballesteros, a construction company owner, bought Mexicana in 1967 from Pan American World Airways, which had owned it since

With the current U.S.-Mexican aviation treaty expiring at year's end, Mexico hopes to get more routes for its carriers between the two countries. But many industry analysts, who believe Mexicana might have recovered its losses, say the extension of government control will hurt Mexico's competitiveness with U.S. airlines.

"Mexicana was one of the best run airlines in the world," said Roberto Otero of Pacific Southwest Airlines. which competes against both Mexican companies between Los Angeles and Puerto Vallarta. "Unfortunately for Mexico, the government is the worst administrator."

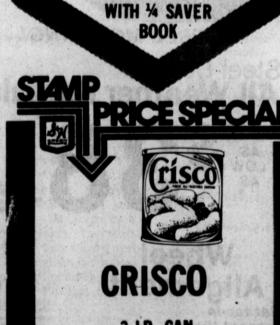

U.S. carriers say Mexico has virtually barred their charter flights in the past two

Dempsey Leaves UH for Arizona AD Post

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) -Honesty, integrity, excellence, fund-raising.

They're some of the words used by - and to describe -Cedric Dempsey, an old University of Arizona hand and its new athletic director.

Dempsey, 50, who has honed a national reputation as a highly successful athletic director and fund-raising specialist during the past 15 years - including the last three at the University of Houston - told reporters Tuesday, "It's a pleasure to be back home."

He spent 1963 through 1967 at Arizona as a freshman basketball coach, associate professor and assistant athletic director.

Dempsey was athletic director at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif., for 12 years, assuming the same post at San Diego State in 1979. But he stayed there only four months before going to Houston.

"Arizona has been home," he told reporters after being warmly introduced by his new boss, President Henry Koffler, who said Dempsey has but three faults: "He's 6-21/2, has hair and is good looking."

Dempsey said, "Some people, including Thomas Wolfe, we're back."

Dempsey, who will be paid $66,000 a year, replaces David Strack, who resigned this spring after 10 years. A university administrator, Bill Varney, had served as acting director since July 1. The appointment must be approved by the Arizona Board of Regents.

Dempsey said he plans to run a "program of integrity" that provides the "necessary ingredients to pursue excellence and for students to become the best they can" while being honest and responsible.

That, he said, means student-athletes are expected to perform academically.

Dempsey also said he intends to maintain and improve fund-raising efforts. improve the range of studentathlete services - from academic counseling and tutoring to housing and job placement; achieve sound fiscal management, and, "achieve a balance between the business and public relations aspects of college athletics today and academics - teaching young people that there is something else in life."

Dempsey accepted the offer Monday night after a nine-said, 'You can't go back.' But member search committee unanimously named him its top candidate. Four candidates from the university also were interviewed by the committee.

> He said he had no plans to bring any people from his Houston staff. He also said he was not worried about an estimated $417,000 deficit that awaits him, saying he'll cope with that "by raising some money."

Arizona has good support from the legislature and anticipated no problems in being able to raise funds through promotional and other efforts. A 1980 fundraising program he ran at Houston brought on $1.5 million for athletics.

He did say the university's athletic facilities are in good shape overall, but suggested the tennis courts are not first-

Dempsey said he felt class and that its track doesn't appear as if it will be able to accommodate next year's Pacific-10 Conference meet which Arizona is scheduled to host.

> Earlier, Jack Cole, chairman of the search committee, said Dempsey without question had been the top candidate.

Members of the Arizona athletic department - including rivals for the job - hailed Dempsey's selection. A number of them met with Dempsey when he was in Tucson last month to be interviewed by the committee.

The search began in June, shortly after Athletic Director David Strack resigned after 10 years, effective July

Cole said the committee felt Dempsey met its qualifications better than anyone else, but added that the other candidates were well-qualified.

He praised Dempsey's abilities and administrative experience, saying, "As an athletic director at a major university, he has some excellent fund developing programs. His teams have been extremely competitive..." Cole said Dempsey has shown an ability to select top-notch coaches, and is "an excellent individual, highly respected by the academic as well as the athletic communities."

And he added that during the entire selection process, nobody had said anything negative about Dempsey.

Before the appointment was completed, Dempsey said Houston had offered him inducements, including more money and an offer of a highranking administrative post for his wife, to get him to

Hostetler Keys Rangers Victory

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

On a hot August night, Dave Hostetler became a hero ... again. The Rangers' rookie slugger continued his heroics this month by belting a 400-foot home run in the 11th inning Tuesday night, lifting Texas over the Chicago White Sox 4-3. It was the eighth homer in August and the 22nd of the season for Hostetler, who was promoted to the Rangers from the minors in June.

"That's the biggest thrill for me this season," said Hostetler, who sent a Dennis Lamp sinker "that didn't sink very far" over the centerfield wall. The loss was only the fourth in the last 19 games for Chicago.

There was only one way Hostetler could have been happier: if his hit had won the game for starter Dave Schmidt, who was married Monday and was within one pitch of his first major league

Mike Squires doubled home pinch-runner Ron LeFlore to tie it in the ninth.

The White Sox took the lead 3-1 in the top of the 11th when LeFlore singled home a run and Squires made good on a suicide squeeze bunt.

Newcomer of the Year in the Southwest Conference last year even though he started only three games, missed spring practice after "I think you have to have two quarterbacks to get through the season successfully in this conference," Holtz said. "In the past, when Tom Jones has been injured, it has caused the football team to digress. If he gets hurt this year, there will be no dropoff in either leadership or performance." At 270, Korte may be the strongest player in college football - he can bench press almost 600 pounds. Mohammed is 275 pounds.

"If we do not run to the right side a lot, someone should psychoanalyze the play caller," said Holtz, who calls the plays.

Smith has the Arkansas career record for lost yardage plays - 48 tackles for a minus 258 yards. The other end will be Ron Faurot and Earl Buckingham, both considered starters last year. At tackle is Phillip Boren, another starter.

"Richardson is so important to us," Holtz said. "If he can stay healthy, Richard could be as dominating a middle guard as we've ever had." The 5-foot-11, 260-pound Richardson has never gone through an injury-free

A complete player, Mason spoiled Arkansas at tight end. Eddie White has done all the right things, at one time or another, but all three of his pass receptions last year were in the first two games.

Exports To Decline Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) -The decline in farm export values this year will be even sharper than government experts had been predicting, acccording to the latest estimates by the Agriculture Department.

Exports now are expected to decline to $40.5 billion this fiscal year, down 8 percent from the record level of $43.8 billion in 1980-81, officials said Tuesday.

Values rose annually for 12 consecutive years before their current decline. The new forecast also was $1.5 billion less than the $42 billion officials projected three mon-

Study Reveals Possible Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) -More than $140 million a year could be pruned out of Agriculture Department programs intended to curb plant and animal diseases, according to a private study. The savings could be accomplished by shifting responsibility for some of the programs to states and the private industry, and by charging fees for some services which are now available free of charge.

But the report said it would be difficult to reduce the overall role of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service "if the nation is to continue to have an effective system" of protection for crops and livestock.

Among its duties, the APHIS — as the agency calls itself - helps guard against the introduction of foreign diseases that could devastate U.S. livestock and crops. Foot-and-mouth disease and last year's outbreak of Mediterranean fruit flies are examples. The $58,200 study, which was released Tuesday, was burg in Hidalgo County, and conducted by Caro Luhrs Associates of Washington, D.C., between April and July of this year.

"In general, there is wide satisfaction with the existing system and a reluctance to tamper with it," the report said. "This is not to say that opportunities for change do not exist with respect to individual programs."

Noting the administration's policy for cutting federal spending, the report said that by 1985 "the APHIS budget could be reduced by one-half or more from its current $280 million" a year.

The study's recommendations include the shifting of some responsibility to the states and industry, with the federal government maintaining a supervisory or cooperative role.

The study recommended beefing up emergency systems for responding to outbreaks of animal and plant diseases, including contracts with states for field personnel, laboratory support and help from National Guard units.

"A major disease or pest emergency requires strong federal leadership from APHIS," the report said. "A swat team of technical and operational experts must be continually maintained within APHIS. Such individuals should have rotating training and handson field experience both in the U.S. and other countries."

COLLEGE STATION -Figures in all categories were up slightly in a seven-state July cattle on feed report just issued.

"The report stated that numbers of cattle on feed July 1 were up four percent, April-June quarter up two percent, numbers placed on feed during April-June up three percent and net placements up five percent," says Dr. Edward Uvacek, Jr., economist in livestock marketing with the Texas

Police Want To question Woman In Burglary Case Against Boxer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas discovered someone had (AP) - Police want to question a woman in connection with a felony burglary charge filed against the World Boxing Association's No. 3-ranked junior middleweight contender, Tony Ayala Jr., a prosecutor says.

Assistant District Attorney Gail Dalrymple said Tuesday police had been unable to find the young woman who lived in the house where Ayala, who is scheduled to fight former champion Roberto Duran in November, was arrested late Sunday night.

Arresting officer Angel Coronado said in his offense report that the woman arrived after Ayala was taken into custody and "stated that arrested person (Ayala) had attempted to talk to her last Sunday as she was walking to the house and told her that he was the boxer and that he had just moved in the neighbordhood. (She) acknowledged and kept on walking."

Miss Dalrymple said the young woman referred to in the arrest report was one of two sisters of Jim Carpentier. Carpentier told officers he came home Sunday night, entered house through the garage, locked the garage door and notified police.

Carpentier had his telephone disconnected Tuesday and a robbery detective said he had been unable to locate the family for further questioning.

Coronado said that he found a plastic name tag with the name "Pam" on it in Ayala's right front pocket after spotting him coming from the bedroom area of the house.

The felony burglary charge against Ayala was followed Monday by a motion from the district attorney's office to revoke his probation and send him to prison for 10 years.

Ms. Dalrymple said that no date for a hearing had been set by State District Judge Mike Machado, but that Ayala had at least 10 days to prepare a defense.

Machado sentenced Avala to 10 years probation in April 1980 after he pleaded guilty to beating up a girl. Ayala admitted attacking the 17-yearold girl in the women's restroom of a drive-in theater, striking her in the abdomen and rupturing her

Ayala claimed he was drunk at the time of the drivein incident, and his attorney, Alan Brown, told reporters that Ayala was "drunk as hell" during the Sunday night incident.

Brown contends Ayala, 19, nicknamed "Torito (Little Bull)" because of his aggressive style, simply was intoxicated and wandered into the wrong house Sunday night. Ayala was free on $20,000 in bonds on the burglary and probation revocation charges.

But Ms. Dalrymple answered "absolutely not" Tuesday when asked whether additional charges had been

She said police were trying to locate Carpentier's sister for questioning about spotting Ayala near the house prior to the his arrest at 11:26 p.m.

The prosecutor said 19 traffic citations issued to Avala also could be used as evidence to convince Machado to revoke his probation and send Ayala to prison.

Automobile Insurance

The insurance industry this week unveiled its recommended increases in automobile insurance rates and asked the State Board of Insurance for nearly twice as much as recommended by the board's staff.

The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office recommended an average statewide increase of 33.2 percent for auto rates. That hike would generate an additional $587 million for insurance companies.

The SBI staff has recommended only 17:3 percent, or about $306 million in additional revenues each year.

The industry recommendation apparently would place the greater portion of the burden of higher rates on car owners in small cities and rural areas, with proposed rates for those areas phone customers millions of higher than the staff pro- dollars in higher rates.

Stores Closing In Protest

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) - Juarez businessmen stuck to their plan to close their stores today in protest of government monetary policies, despite the Mexican finance minister's plea for national unity.

"We're closing," said Juarez Chamber of Commerce member Jose Arturo Ramos after he and about 45 members watched Minister Jesus Silva Herzog's speech on television at the chamber office Tuesday night.

Ramos had said earlier 'just made an honest Tuesday that chamber mistake." Tony Ayala Jr. members in Tijuana. Nuevo Laredo, Ojinaga and Piedras Negras would join Juarez merchants in the protest, but he said late Tuesday that he of the boxing brothers, could guarantee the border businessmen's solidarity.

> The businessmen are protesting a recent government freeze on dollar accounts in Mexican banks, which they say have interfered with border trade. Tuesday night, Silva said in his televised address that the ban on transferring dollars abroad would remain in effect.

"People here are incensed he did not address at all the problems of the border," said Juarez economist Juan Alvarez after the speech.

Ramos said the dollar shortage caused by the freeze has prevented merchants from paying their bills on the other side of the border and has kept them from importing goods necessary in the border cities. "We would prefer to close for one day and make our point," he said. "If they (government officials) don't come up with a solution, we could close forever."

Chamber president Octavio Munoz Corral said the dollar shortage soon would result in shortages in goods that the

Ramos said the one-day closing of businesses was designed "to get the government's attention."

He said the chamber planned further actions if the government did not take steps to alleviate the dollar shortage and to set a firm rate of exchange. Included in those actions would be protest marches, refusal to pay monthly sales taxes and a temporary withdrawal of

STATE CAPITAL

By Lyndell Williams TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN-Texas legislators already have been called back to Austin once this summer for a special session, but at least one representative thinks the Legislature must convene once more before the regular session begins in January. LaMarque Rep. Lloyd Criss this week called on Gov. Bill Clements to call another special session in an attempt to forestall an estimated 1,800 percent increase in the unemployment taxes paid by Texas employers.

That increase, which would boost the tax from $6 per employee to about $120 per employee, will take effect automatically in October to raise the Unemployment Compensation Fund back up to the $225 million floor required by law.

The fund has been drained recently by the large increase in the state's unemployment

Criss says the mammoth increase would impact not only employers, but workers and consumers as well.

"This sudden tax increase could not come at a worse time for the Texas economy," Criss says, adding that it "would bankrupt many marginal companies . . . and inevitably increase prices for consumers."

The LaMarque Democrat has asked the Legislative Council to draft four-point legislation to repeal the $225 million floor, raise the minimum tax rate, raise the wage base for the tax and assess penalties based on the prime lending rate for late payment of the tax.

Gov. Clements had not responded to Criss' request, but earlier had voiced similar opinions about the adverse effects such a huge increase

Clements Endorsements

Texas Attorney General and Democratic gubernatorial nominee Mark White may believe his party is more unified this election year than it has been for several years past, but more and more leading Democrats appear to be lining up behind Gov. Clements, the Republican incumbent.

Democrats Waggoner Carr, Will Wilson, John Ben Shepperd and Gerald Mann have all thrown their support to Clements. In addition, Mrs. Margaret Martin, the widow of former attorney general Crawford Martin, also endorsed Clements.

The endorsements came on the heels of House Speaker Bill Clayton's "near endorsement" of Clements last week.

Clayton had high praise for the Dallas Republican's performance as governor, but stopped short of officially backing him against White.

Carr's endorsement of Clements must have been a particularly bitter pill for White to swallow since Carr was White's boss when the current attorney general served as an assistant to Carr during the 1960s.

"Mark White did his job well," Carr said, but he chose to back Clements because of his "strong leadership."

The bride is a graduate of Northampton High School in Northampton. The groom also attended Northampton High School and is currently employed at Hereford Bi-Products.

Ann Landers

Friend Probably Won't Listen

have a friend whom I love it dearly. She has done me a million favors, but the woman has the worst table manners for a grown-up that I have ever seen. She stuffs food into her face until her jaws bulge, then uses bread to mop up her plate. The way she jams her fork into her mouth, I worry that she might stab herself. The worst is when she talks with her mouth full and splits chunks of food on everyone around

I am planning an elegant party for out-of-town friends and am seriously considering not inviting her. I know her feelings will be hurt if she isn't included, but I don't know what else to do. I have dropped hints from time to time, but she acts as if I am talking about someone else.

My letter in your column might help. She is an avid fan. Please, Ann, do us both a favor. - Florence, S.C.

DEAR FLO: Here's the letter but don't expect it to produce a miracle. The clods never think you mean them. Invite your friend and seat her far enough away from the guest of honor so she doesn't get spat on. The woman's atrocious manners are a reflection on her and will not diminish you in the least. To exclude her would be wrong,

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I and you would surely regret

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night I was listening to the radio and decided to turn to one of those late, late discjockey stations. He played the top 10 popular records, and I have never heard such boring, unimaginative junk in all my life. Who buys that stuff anyway? - McComb, Miss., Reader

DEAR McComb: The big buyers are rom 15 to 25 years of age. And stop complaining. Be thankful he didn't play the bottom 10.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Had It" who complained about shoddy workmanship.

My husband is an auto upholsterer with 25 years' experience. His reputation is the best in town. He puts in 10 to 14 hours a day and does perfect work, down to the last stitch. He can redo any car's interior back to the factory original or make it any way the customer wants it. He works alone because he can't find helpers who meet his standards.

It takes him six days to do a complete interior. This means seats, headrests, doors panels, ceiling, armrests and carpet. The price is $950. For a 14-hour day that's about $11 an hour - not much for such a skilled craftsman.

If he charged more, the customers would tell him they can get it done for 40 percent less down the street.

I can't count the times my husband has given an estimate and the customer has said, "So-and-so can do it cheaper and faster- why can't you?" When he tries to explain the difference in workmanship, he gets blank stares.

If workers don't care about quality anymore, it's because the public doesn't appreciate it or isn't willing to pay for it. Sign me - A Craftsman's Wife In Las Vegas Whose Identity Will Probably Be Guessed

DEAR WIFE: Thanks for an excellent letter. Tell your husband to charge more he's worth it. In every city there are discriminating people who appreciate quality and are willing to pay for it. And please urge your perfectionist craftsman to train ssome apprentices. His skills must not die with him.

Paul, who was industrious himself — working as a tentmaker — believed that people should work if they wished to eat.

SPIRIT? While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul traveled through Turkey and arrived in Ephesus, where he found several disciples. "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?" he asked them. "No," they replied, "we don't know what you mean. What is the Holy

"Then what beliefs did you acknowledge at your baptism?" he asked. And they replied, "What John the Baptist taught."

Then Paul pointed out to them that John's baptism was to demonstrate a desire to turn from sin to God and that those receiving his baptism must then go on to believe in Jesus, the one John said would come later.

As soon as they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then, when Paul laid his hands upon their heads, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they spoke in other languages and prophesied. The men involved were about 12 in number.

Then Paul went to the synagogue and preached boldly each Sabbath day for three months, telling what he believed and why, and persuading many to believe in Jesus. But some rejected his message and publicly spoke against Christ, so he left, refusing to preach to them again. Pulling out the believers, he began a separate meeting at the lecture hall of Tyrannus and preached there daily. This went on for the next two years, so that everyone in the Turkish province of Asia -- both Jews and Greeks heard the Lord's message. Acts 19:1-10

POLLY'S POINTERS

Cleaning a griddle

DEAR POLLY - We make pancakes on an aluminum griddle with a Silverstone nonstick interior. On the perimeter where the pancakes cook, a dark brown crust has been deposited on the pan, destroying the nonstick quality of this area of the griddle. Regular detergents do not remove this thick brown coating. Could we place the griddle in the self-cleaning cycle of our oven? The chuminum would be very high — 900 degrees or more. The aluminum would be all right, but what about the Silverstone finish? — CARVER

DEAR CARVER — Don't do it. Although Silverstone is very durable, it is not made to withstand temperatures as high as that of the self-cleaning cycle of your oven. And, if your griddle has a plastic handle of any kind — even one that is ovenproof — it will be destroyed by the high heat. Ovenproof plastics generally cannot withstand temperatures greater than 350 degrees or so. Soak the griddle in very hot water and automatic dishwasher detergent. This is much stronger than any detergent used for handwashing dishes and should do a good job of breaking down the deposit. You may have to soak for several hours and replenish the hot water so it stays hot. Soaking in hot water and ammonia would be another effective cleaner. When the deposit has been softened by the soaking and strong detergent, scrub the surface with a plastic net scrubber. Avoid harsh abrasives since they will also destroy the finish. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Some time ago, you advised a reader to remove price stickers from plastics and glass with cooking oil rubbed onto the spot. A year ago, we used a commercial glue to fasten wall panels to the existing walls. It got all over the floor and everything else and left ugly marks. I had even resorted to using a razor blade on it, but nothing helped. I gave it the cooking oil treatment and in 30 minutes, the mess was all gone. And so was a big brown stain in my oven — and tar stuck to my plastic dining room chair cushion — and fingermarks on the arms of a maple chair. My husband says everyone should beware of me and my cooking oil or get rubbed out! - MARJORIE

Need to reduce cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am worried about my cholester-Atherosclerosis runs in my family and the men have heart attacks at an early age. I had my cholesterol checked and it was 315. I don't really have much cholesterol in my diet. I don't eat eggs, drink only 2 per-cent milk and use margarine instead of butter.

I do eat fatty foods. I like lunchmeat and cheeses. I eat a lot of them. Is bacon bad? Are all fatty foods bad? Do you have any other sugges-

DEAR READER - If you have a family history of heart attacks at an early age you are wise to start now to prevent one. And even without such a history if you have as high a level as you say, you need to reduce it. What needs to be done is best determined on an individual basis. I usually recommend a weight reduction program through a sensible diet and exercise program as the first step. In many cases that will be sufficient to lower the cholesterol to optimal levels. If it is not, then I recommend eliminat-ing high cholesterol foods, which include egg yolks and organ meats.

Then if you still need to do more, cut out all fats so that only about a third of your calories are from fat. When that doesn't do it, you need to eliminate saturated fats. Many scientists believe saturated fats stimulate your body to form cholesterol. Luncheon meats and pro-cessed cheese are very high fat foods. So is bacon. If your cholesterol is as high as you report you need to make a real effort to eliminate fat particularly saturated fat from your diet.

Usually cutting out fat, saturated fat and cholesterol will not be effective unless a person also eliminates excess body fat, which requires calorie restriction. Fortunately, fat is the major source of excess calories in the diet so eliminating fat often decreases calorie intake enough to produce good results.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My father was told he has arthritis, an enlarged kidney and an overworked lungs and heart. He was given several medications. He forgets to take them. He is extremely overweight and really needs the medicines. When I remind him he says he doesn't believe in that stuff.

I don't understand why he feels that way. He works much too hard but still persists no matter what anyone, including the doctor, says. He is getting worse each day, choking, has pain and limping. Is there any way to get through his thick head about the dangers of not taking his medicine? ing his medicine?

DEAR READER - You are dealing with a problem familiar to physicians, "denial of illness." Many people, for a variety of reasons, cannot accept that they are ill. They respond by being bad patients and refus-ing to take needed medi-cines. It makes it hard on the patient, the family and the Pain is a great ally in such cases. So are medical emergencies, but unfortunately they are often too severe. Someone in the family should talk to the doctor about it. He may be able to convince your father that he really needs help. Another approach is hospitalization. It is a shame to use hospitals for that purpose but it can be life saving in some instances.

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for making soap out of grease drippings and lye? — BERNICE

DEAR BERNICE — The recipe I've found is, unfortunately, a bit too long to print in this column. However, the brand of pure lye I've seen (available in the cleaning section of your supermarket and at hardware stores) has instructions on the can. You may also be able to obtain instructions from The Soapmaking Institute, Lakeville, Connecticut, 06039. Soapmaking institute, Lakeville, Connecticut, 08039.

Soapmaking can be an enjoyable, creative and satisfying hobby— as well as a way to make inexpensive but unique Christmas gifts for your family and your entire battery of friends. However, a word of caution is in order. Do remember that lye is a potentially dangerous substance. You must use extreme caution when working with it. Wear rubber gloves, be sure your working area has adequate ventilation to protect from any fumes and above all, keep lye and all lye products securely out of the reach of children. Meanwhile, here are some creative ideas to use when you embark on your soapmaking adventure.

Pour freshly made soap into plastic cookie molds or styrofoam forms for interesting and unique shapes.

Dissolve a petal or two of your favorite flower in water, simmer, cool, and use this colored water in your soap recipe to add natural color and fragrance.

Add unique fragrances to soap by using spices like cinnamon, cloves or turmeric. These spices also add rich color. Never use perfumes or alcohol-based products to color

So experiment, be careful and have fun! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When thawing frozen bread, leave it in the tightly closed plastic bag until the bread is completely thawed and no drops of moisture can be seen in the bag. DEAR LISA - If the stains are fairly recent, I'd try washing them out by hand with regular soap and water. If the stains persist, chlorine bleach will usually remove such stains, provided the fabric can be safely bleached. Alcohol is also effective in removing some mildew stains. Survival Technique Practiced is Cutting

NEW YORK (AP) - The primary survival technique today in the world of small business is cutting. Cut inventories, cut borrowing and spending, cut jobs, cut prices, cut capital spending plans.

"They're holding garage sales to keep from going out of business," said Prof. William Dunkelberg, a Purdue University economist who also advises the National Federation of Independent Business.

Things are tough, said the professor, who analyzes responses in the quarterly surveys of the federation, which claims more than 500,000 members and represents a cross section of small concerns, including all kinds of business people: pharmacists, contractors, manufacturers, farmers.

Some people might even consider conditions frightening. Dunkelberg cites the response of a consulting firm to the April survey:

"We deal closely with many farmers and small business men, and they are both in desperate financial condition. Of the 1,700 we are in close contract with, at least 1,300 verge on bankruptcy."

Matters haven't changed much since then. Dunkelberg offered this summary of results after analyzing the July returns:

-While inventories are probably low after two quarters of heavy inventory liquidation - because of weak sales and high interest rates - "even small holdings are undesirable."

To correct this imbalance. "18 percent plan to liquidate inventories further in the third quarter, the highest figure since the 23 percent planning liquidation in October 1981."

-Small-business credit demands have declined over the past two years. Many businesses were unable to afford loans at the average, 17.6 percent short-term interest rate that prevailed in the second quarter.

"We have a financially crippled business sector, over-leveraged and cash-flow problems."

-Small businesses won't be hiring soon. Job openings were at a record low. Only 10 percent reported openings, almost all for skilled workers, the lowest since the NFIB survey was begun in

-Price cutting is widespread. It has "never been more pervasive in the history of the NFIB survey.' Sixteen percent of small businesses reported lower selling prices in the second quarter of the year.

-Capital spending plans are shrinking. After remaining fairly stable for 11/2 years, actual outlays and planned outlays "took a nosedive."

Based on such findings. Dunkelberg believes small businesses won't be contribuing a great deal to an early recovery.
