Ten injured in accident near country club

Talking To Little Victim

Teresa Munoz, an employee of Hereford Country Club, provided authorities with Spanish-English translations Thursday afternoon following a two-vehicle, 10-injury accident near her place of employment. Helping load one of the victims onto an

Ten people were injured, two of them seriously, Thursday afternoon as a result of a two-vehicle, head-on collision in front of Hereford Country Club.

Five-year-old Rosalee De La Cruz and Robert Contreras, 1½, were each reportedly in serious condition this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. They were transferred there Thursday from Deaf Smith General Hospital for observation of possible head injuries, according to DSGH Administrator James Bullard.

The accident, which occurred at approximately 2:55 p.m., involved a 1977 Dodge Van and Pontiac GT. The former, driven by 16-year-old Glenda Gonzales of 121 Catalpa, was described in the police report as having been headed east in the wrong lane of Country Club Drive.

of the same road was the van, operated by Route 3's Roberto Contreras Sr. and containing five passengers. According to Police Sergeant Pat Michael, there was no evidence either vehicle was speeding just prior to the wreck.

Soon policemen, volunteer firemen and nine ambulance personnel were on the scene. Helping translate some of the victims' comments from Spanish to English was Teresa Munoz, an employee of the country club.

The older Contreras, 28, and his son had been in the Pontiac with 16-year-old Peggy Contreras and Joey Contreras, 3. They were all initially taken to the local hospital, where Peggy Contreras remained this morning in stable condition.

In the van along with De La Cruz and Gonzales were Priscilla Chavez, 10; Delores De La Cruz, 16; Angela Rodriguez, 3; and Vincent Rodriguez, 2. Delores De La Cruz and Angela Rodriguez were each listed in stable condition this morning at DSGH, Bullard said.

The hospital administrator explained all but the two serious injuries were multiple lacerations to several parts of the victims' bodies.

Bullard pointed out disaster drill procedures were used in the Deaf Smith General emergency room. Ten or 11 hospital employees helped take care of the injured, he said.

According to Michael, there was nothing to indicate alcohol was involved in the accident. He anticipated some traffic citations might be issued once more complete details of the wreck become available.

Six gunned down at club

By WALTER C. PUTNAM

DALLAS (AP) — Six people were killed at a plush nightclub early today when a 39-year-old Moroccan arguing with his dance partner pulled a semiautomatic pistol, killed her and began firing at random, police said.

A seventh person was wounded critically in the shooting spree, authorities said.

The suspect shot his dance partner twice before walking to the door turned and fired at other patrons as they sat around the U-shaped bar about 12:30 a.m. at Lanni's Restaurant and Lounge, a witness said.

The man left the lounge, reloaded the 9 mm pistol and then returned and fired more shots, police said.

The suspect was arrested after he wrecked his car and was traced to his girlfriend's house, based on information he gave when he filled out a membership application at the Italian club Wednesday night, said the lounge's manager, Jerrell Todd.

"I can't believe this. This is unbelievable," said the lounge's manager, Jerrell Todd, 35. "He was in here last night."

Five of the victims were dead at the scene and the sixth died a short time later at Parkland Memorial Hospital, police said. The names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of relatives. Four of the victims were women, said Lt. Ron Waldrop.

A seventh person, who was wounded in the shooting spree, was listed in critical condition at Brookhaven Medical Center Hospital, said night supervisor Matt Crum.

All the victims were shot at close range, Waldrop said.

The suspect "was dancing with one of the victims. They had some words prior to the shooting," said police investigator R.B. Counts. He said he did not know what started the argument.

"Most of these people were around the bar, in the middle of the bar. It's kind of U-shaped."

The man was apprehended without a struggle three hours after the shooting by heavily armed police who combed an area near the shooting after the man's car was involved in a traffic accident as he attempted to flee from pursuing officers.

Heavily armed police officers fanned out in the area where the man ran to while police helicopters equipped with searchlights circled the area.

Police traced the suspect from the automobile registration and the name, address and telephone number he left on the membership application, Todd said.

County's revenue sharing funds described

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Revenue sharings funds are monies sent back to the various counties and cities from the federal government, according to Deaf County Judge Glen Nelson.

"It's kind of a refund," he explained. "It's actually tax money that we have paid." It is up to the county to determine how the money is spent, although the public is given a chance to make suggestions as to where the funds should go. "It can be used for the same things you can use tax money for," Nelson said. There are rules and regulations governing the use of revenue sharing funds, and certain things a county must do to qualify for the payments. For one thing, the county must keep the funds in a separate account, and must show the Office of Revenue Sharing (ORS) how the money is spent.

Interest earned from revenue sharing funds falls under the same rules as the funds themselves, and must be handled the same way. "That interest is not just free money for the county," County Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley emphasized, "we still have to account for it just as we do all revenue sharing monies."

The ORS says the money must be budgeted, or allocated, within two years after it is received, County Auditor Alex Schroeter pointed out. "If we put the money in the budget under the general government category, that's allocating it."

Because of reporting regulations, the commissioners court has found it easiest to spend the funds on specific, large budget items such as road maintainers and other machinery. The county library was built with revenue sharing funds, and the court used monies from another year to buy the Walker Building, which houses the Department of Public Safety.

Because of the annual budget is drawn up before the county learns the amount of that year's revenue sharing payment, officials take a guess as to how much money they will have to work with. For the past several years the county's allocation has been more than was expected, so there has been a carryover of funds.

When the county last published a financial statement, the amount of funds not spent had grown to $96,000. It may have looked like a lot of money, and the figure prompted at least one local organization to ask for a piece of the pie.

"It may not have been spent last year, but it might be needed this year," Nelson claimed. "We've got to have some kind of a cushion."

The commissioners court, in turning down three requests for money at Monday's regular meeting, said the county does not really have any money "lying around." Commissioners say they are concerned about possible costs to the county as the result of a hiring discrimination law suit now being litigated in federal district court.

The commissioners court also learned earlier this month that jail construction and renovation could cost at least $300,000 more than they had planned on spending.

The 1984-85 budget, which goes into effect in October subject to final approval on July 9, shows specific uses for $384,490.32 of the funds. The money will be divided up between the Hereford senior Citizens center, the Family Services Center, the county museum, public library and law library and the Hereford Satellite Center. Two large chunks have also been allocated for transportation and general government expenses.

Schroeter pointed out that last year only a portion of funds budgeted for transportation were actually used, and that other areas might need more or less than what the budget shows.

The amount of money the county gets is based on the population of the county, per capita income, and adjusted taxes. Taxes include property taxes, city and county; sales taxes and taxes on licenses and permits obtained in the county.

Jackson returns with 48 prisoners

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-eight American and Cuban prisoners flew from Cuba to freedom and a tumultuous welcome here early today as their escort, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, returned home from his five-day swing through the Caribbean.

While most praised Jackson's mission, one Cuban turned the tables on the Democratic presidential candidate by ridiculing his bid to seek improved U.S.-Cuban relations.

"To go to Cuba to join in a moral offensive with (President) Fidel Castro ... is a moral offense," said Andres Vargas Gomez, the lone non-prisoner among the group.

Vargas, who had spent 20 years in prison followed by house arrest in Cuba, thanked Jackson for his efforts but said, "I cannot be here and allow that you might believe that Fidel Castro is a human being ... and that we are here on account of his kindness."

As the scene unfolded at the terminal building at nearby Dulles Airport, Jackson stood impassively behind Vargas while the Cuban spoke. Later, Jackson said, "I have a different view but that's what makes America America."

He said Vargas' remarks reflected the bitterness accumulated over two decades imprisonment. One freed Cuban prisoner, Daniel Conde Freire, said of his newfound freedom: "It's something I have wanted for so long, to come to the United States and get away from that small hellhole."

Aside from Vargas, Jackson returned with 22 Americans and 26 Cubans;

FHA building to be remodeled

Farmers Home Administration has announced plans to remodel its Hereford office, located at 313 W. Third St. Curtis Simmons, county supervisor, asked that patrons take care of important business before July 6.

"We expect to be working on July 6 and 7, and again on July 9 and 10," he said. "It would be very inconvenient for people to come to the office on those days."

Simmons said workers will be there to answer the telephone if there is an urgent need.

Settlement deadline today

Both sides of a hiring discrimination suit against Deaf Smith County have apparently abided by their deadline to submit a suggested settlement, though possibly not with the results the presiding judge had hoped for.

Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney Randall Marshall said this morning that his firm and attorneys for the county were to each turn in their version of a proposed settlement today to Judge Mary Lou Robinson of the U.S. District Court in Amarillo. "Both parties were very close to agreement," Marshall said, "but we couldn't agree on which specific individuals should get monetary relief."

Robinson in May ruled the county was guilty of discriminating against Mexican-Americans who applied for jobs in the sheriff, social services and building maintenance departments and in county commission Precinct 3. She suggested that attorneys negotiate a settlement and gave them until June 25 to do so. On Monday, that deadline was extended until 5 p.m. today.

Plaintiffs in the class action suit were represented by Cecilia Garza, who claimed to have applied for and been denied a position in the sheriff's department early in 1982.

Two people arrested Thursday

Hereford police arrested two people Thursday for public intoxication, the department reported this morning. Investigated were one incident apiece of harassment, vandalism and parked vehicle blocking a paving project.

Mexico seizes shrimp trawler

PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — A Texas shrimper says he has paid a fine for fishing illegally off Mexico's coast and expects Mexican authorities to release his trawler and crew in the next few days.

Jasper Bodden, co-owner of the Port Isabel-based trawler, BBC, said Thursday that his boat has been held in the Port of Tampico since it was seized by a Mexican gunboat June 22.

The five-man crew of the boat had been fishing illegally about three hours south of the border at the time of the arrest.

The BBC was the first U.S. shrimper seized this year by the Mexican Navy, which last year detained and fined 40 Texas trawlers.

Fishing by U.S. boats in Mexican waters has been illegal since a fishing treaty expired in 1979.

Pakistani arrested in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. officials believe a Pakistani arrested last week in Houston was acting as an agent for his government, trying to export high-speed switches which can be used in nuclear weapons triggers, a prosecutor says.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Sam Longoria told a magistrate's court hearing Thursday officials should be certain 33-year-old Nazir Ahmed Vaid does not leave the country.

"We strongly suspect Mr. Vaid is operating at the instructions of the Pakistani government and that the purchase of the krytrons was for Pakistani use in obtaining a nuclear bomb," Longoria said. Krytrons are the high-speed switches, he said.

U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley agreed there was probable cause to believe that Vaid had committed a crime and ordered him bound over for grand jury action. Botley refused to reduce a $200,000 bond.

Texas loser under drinking bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas would be the big loser under a bill approved by Congress that would cut federal highway money to states with drinking ages lower than 21.

The state could lose more than $150 million during the two penalty years, fiscal years 1986 and 1987, a state highway official estimated Thursday after the bill was approved.

Texas' drinking age is 19. The bill calls for states which have not done so to raise the drinking age to 21 by Oct. 1, 1986, or lose 5 percent of their highway construction money for that fiscal year.

The penalty would go up to 10 percent in fiscal year 1987. The House on Thursday approved Senate changes in the bill and sent it to the White House.

President Reagan has said he would sign a national drinking age bill.

Women not ready to be veep

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's daughter, Maureen, is warning that Democrat Walter F. Mondale could set back the feminist movement two decades if he selects a woman as his running mate and then loses the November election.

"If they are not successful, then 18 ollsters will come out of the woodwork telling you why it was the vice presidential choice that did it," Ms. Reagan said. "It will take us 20 years to undo the damage."

In an interview Thursday with The Associated Press, Ms. Reagan, an adviser on women's issues to the Republican National Committee, also said women won't be qualified to be vice president or president until they go through the process of establishing national constituencies by running for president or vice president or holding other national office.

Jackson disavows Farrakhan remarks

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of controversy over his opinions about Judaism, the Rev. Jesse Jackson has disavowed as "reprehensible and morally indefensible" comments about Jews made by militant Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan, an early supporter of Jackson's presidential campaign.

Under increasing public and private pressure from Democratic Party leaders, Jackson said Farrakhan's views "have no place in my own thinking or in this campaign..."

"I will not permit Minister Farrakhan's words, wittingly or unwittingly, to divide the Democratic Party," Jackson said in a statement released on his behalf Thursday.

The Senate joined the growing chorus of condemnation Thursday night, voting 95-0 to condemn Farrakhan's remarks about Jews and Israel.

Guerrillas wanted negotiations

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A guerrilla leader says the bloody assault on El Salvador's main hydroelectric dam — the biggest rebel operation in six months — was aimed at pressuring the government to accept the leftists' terms for peace talks.

At least 130 people were killed and 40 wounded during eight hours of fighting Thursday when hundreds of rebels overran an army garrison and briefly seized the Cerron Grande Dam, the government said. The dam provides one-third of El Salvador's electricity.

Salvador Samayoa, a leader of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, read a statement about the attack to San Salvador radio station YSU late Thursday.

Boat captain stirs up dispute

MACHIAS SEAL ISLAND (AP) — A 69-year-old charter boat captain who ferries birdwatchers out to this tiny island off the Maine coast has revived a 168-year-old territorial dispute between Canada and the United States.

"That's our island, and they're stealing it," said Capt. Barna B. Norton, a native resident of Jonesport, Maine.

The 15-acre island itself is a comma-shaped heap of granite and grass whose greatest significance may be as a navigational hazard. It lies 10 miles from the nearest U.S. point in Cutler, Maine, and 11 miles from Grand Manan Island, the nearest Canadian land.

But both countries have claimed sovereignty since 1816. And Norton has earned a living for 38 years by taking tourists to see the rare birds that nest in spring and summer.

Jackson praised as prisoners return

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cubans jailed for political crimes against the regime of Fidel Castro and Americans imprisoned on drug-running and other charges tasted freedom in the United States today, in some cases freedom for the first time in more than two decades.

Most praised Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson for his one-man mission that unlocked their cells, but some of the 27 Cubans said the gesture should not be seen by the world as a humanitarian move on the part of the Cuban leader.

Several among the group reunited with families and friends told of "barbaric" conditions they had suffered at the hands of their Cuban captors.

Rafael Trujillo Pacheco, 46, who had spent 23 years jailed in Cuba for alleged political crimes, told reporters: "It's something I have wanted for so long, to come to the United States and to get away from that small hellhole."

Those left behind in Cuba should "keep the faith in God that everything comes slowly. They surely will have their freedom also," he said.

Richard Mazura, 30, of the Bronx, New York, said of Jackson: "He came into the prison and told me I was going home. The man turned the key."

His mother, Zina, waved to reporters as she got into the back seat of a car. Asked how she was feeling, the beaming Mrs. Mazura said, "Doesn't my face tell you?"

Larry Cheatham, 44, of Lynchburg, Va., shouted as he left the airport, "Tell Jackson, thanks a million. Rev. Jackson is Jesus Christ right now."

A freed Cuban, 43-year-old Daniel Conde Freire, grinned broadly as he spoke about his relief in finally making it to the United States. He said of Jackson, "he's making politics... He's trying to look for votes."

But six of the 22 Americans brought back with Jackson had to wait for freedom. They were arrested by federal and state authorities on various outstanding warrants, said Stephen Trott, assistant U.S. attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's criminal division.

Trott said the six would be brought into court later today. He declined to specify the charges on which they were being held, and said they were not allowed to see their families immediately.

Richard Burch, a brother-in-law of detained prisoner Clarence Elbourn, said he felt "very damn rotten" when he found he wouldn't be able to see him.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has agreed to buy the computer company of Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot in a deal worth about $2.5 billion.

The automaker said Electronic Data Systems would help GM make order out of a $19 billion payroll, the work of 700,000 employees and the world's biggest industrial output.

GM and Perot announced the merger Thursday, with GM Chairman Roger B. Smith saying the two companies would "create the largest and most technologically advanced computer services company in the world."

Perot said the merger would help the company become "the General Motors of the computer industry."

The purchase price was $2.5 billion, apparently making it the biggest non-automotive acquisition in the 76-year history of the auto company.

GM said that the holder of each share of EDS common stock could exchange the shares for $44 cash or $35.20 in cash plus two-tenths of a share of a new class of GM stock created for the merger, to be called Class E, plus a GM promissory note payable in seven years.

If all of EDS' 58 million common shares were exchanged for the cash offer, the deal would be worth $2.552 billion.

In trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange, GM climbed $1.25 to $65.25 a share while EDS rose $1 to $41.375.

Although GM will be using EDS to help run its carmaking, marketing and internal operations, analysts expect EDS to keep its rich portfolio of computer contracts that include services for the Pentagon and large businesses such as insurance companies.

GM made record profits of $3.73 billion last year and is expected to double that this year.

Tax package ready for house debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas taxpayers with a sweet tooth can rest easy.

New taxes on ice cream and doughnuts are not in the $4.8 billion tax package ready for debate in the House.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved the revenue measure Thursday afternoon as a solution to the costs of public school reform and highway improvements.

House officials indicated it probably will be debated Saturday, after being laid out on member's desks for at least 24 hours.

Senate public hearings on the measure began Thursday.

If passed by both houses it would be the first major tax bill passed since 1971. Over a three-year period, the package would generate the $4.8 billion necessary to fund Gov. Mark White's education and highway improvement program.

However, the tax bill will not become effective unless the Legislature also finally approves the $2.8 billion education bill that has been tentatively approved by a 10-member conference committee. A final committee vote was scheduled today.

A big catch-all amendment presented by Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, committee chairman, made most of the final changes in the revenue bill. It was approved 9-5.

Ice cream and doughnuts, custom-made computer software and most personal services, except laundry and dry cleaning, were restored to their current positions as untaxable under the state sales tax.

The state cigarette tax was increased two cents, instead of the one cent originally proposed. One cent will go for a state cancer research program and the other cent will be used to develop urban area state parks. The 1983 Legislature approved a cent for urban parks but did not increase the cigarette tax to provide the funds.

Advertising remains in the bill as one of the services taxed, bolstered by an amendment that includes all outdoor advertising.

Rockets, missiles and flight simulators would remain exempt under the bill.

Despite several efforts, the increase in state college tuition increase remained at 2 percent each year until it reaches 15 percent of education cost. Committee members indicated there likely would be efforts to change the tuition hike in floor debate.

Inclusion of cable television under the sales tax was redefined to be sure it covers paid TV programs sent to subscribers in a scrambled form, such as movie services.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, added an amendment that would allow the comptroller to investigate the sale of motor vehicles between individuals to be sure the proper motor vehicle tax is paid. Berlanga said a lot of personal deals are reported to county clerks at far below the actual sales price.

On the motion of Rep. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, a separate vote was taken on each of the 15 articles in the bill.

The closest vote, 8-7, came on removing sales tax exemptions for services which includes advertising, amusement admissions, motor vehicle parking and storage, repair and maintenance of personal property and repair and remodeling of buildings.

JACKSON

but for six of the Americans, their fling with freedom was brief. They were taken into custody to face charges of violating U.S. laws.

Most of the Americans had been held in Cuba on drug charges. Stephen Trott, assistant attorney general for the Justice Department's criminal division, could not say what charges the six faced but he believed all were wanted for felony offenses.

The scene at Dulles was chaotic, with dozens of Jackson supporters comingling with reporters, friends and relatives of the prisoners and curiosity seekers as they awaited the midnight arrival.

Jackson spoke briefly about his success in securing the prisoner release but made clear the main purpose of his mission to Panama, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Cuba was peace.

"The signs of war are growing," Jackson told reporters. "The military budget is one the rise. Danger signs are on the rise. Dialogue and understanding on the decrease...."

"It's time to stop the killing... There comes a time when we must learn to forgive each other, to redeem each other and to move on."

Jackson said his goal was to challenge leaders of the region "to go on the moral offensive in the summertime and not to engage in a military offensive in the fall."

"It's time to stop the killing, the shedding of blood, the destruction of families. It's time to go another way."

Jackson said that, as a result of his discussions in Cuba, he hoped President Reagan would agree to meet with Castro.

"I would think our president, certainly, if he used his communicative powers and strength of this nation, that would be a key in bringing peace in this hemisphere."

Earlier, however, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said in an interview with the New York Times that Castro had not given any sign he was ready to moderate Cuba's "subversive" policies in Latin America.

Shultz described Castro's decision to release the prisoners as a "propaganda victory."

Reagan, questioned by reporters Thursday night, declined to discuss the possibility of a meeting with Jackson, but said of the prisoners, "I'm glad they're home."

At Dulles, with Jackson standing nearby, Vargas Gomez had an emotional reunion with his wife, Maria, 67, whom he had not seen since 1961. She is a Miami schoolteacher.

Simple precautions should be taken

COLLEGE STATION — July begins the peak picnic — and food poisoning — season. But with a few simple precautions, this unpleasant and sometimes serious illness can be avoided, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service food and nutrition specialist.

The "poison" is actually produced by a certain bacteria, a type of staphylococcus, which contaminates the food, says Mary K. Sweeten. The poison is eaten with the food and produces symptoms such as nausea and vomiting.

For most people, food poisoning is just a miserable experience, but it can be serious for babies, elderly people and those with other il-nesses, she notes.

The bacteria often reach food from the hands of the person preparing it. But even when you're careful to wash your hands, bacteria from the skin, hair or throat, can be spread to food, she explains.

Since these bacteria are especially fond of protein, Sweeten recommends precautions when taking high protein foods — such as meat, poultry, salads containing egg, custards and some baked foods — on picnics.

The most likely sources of food poisoning are those dishes that you don't normally heat or reheat before serving on a picnic.

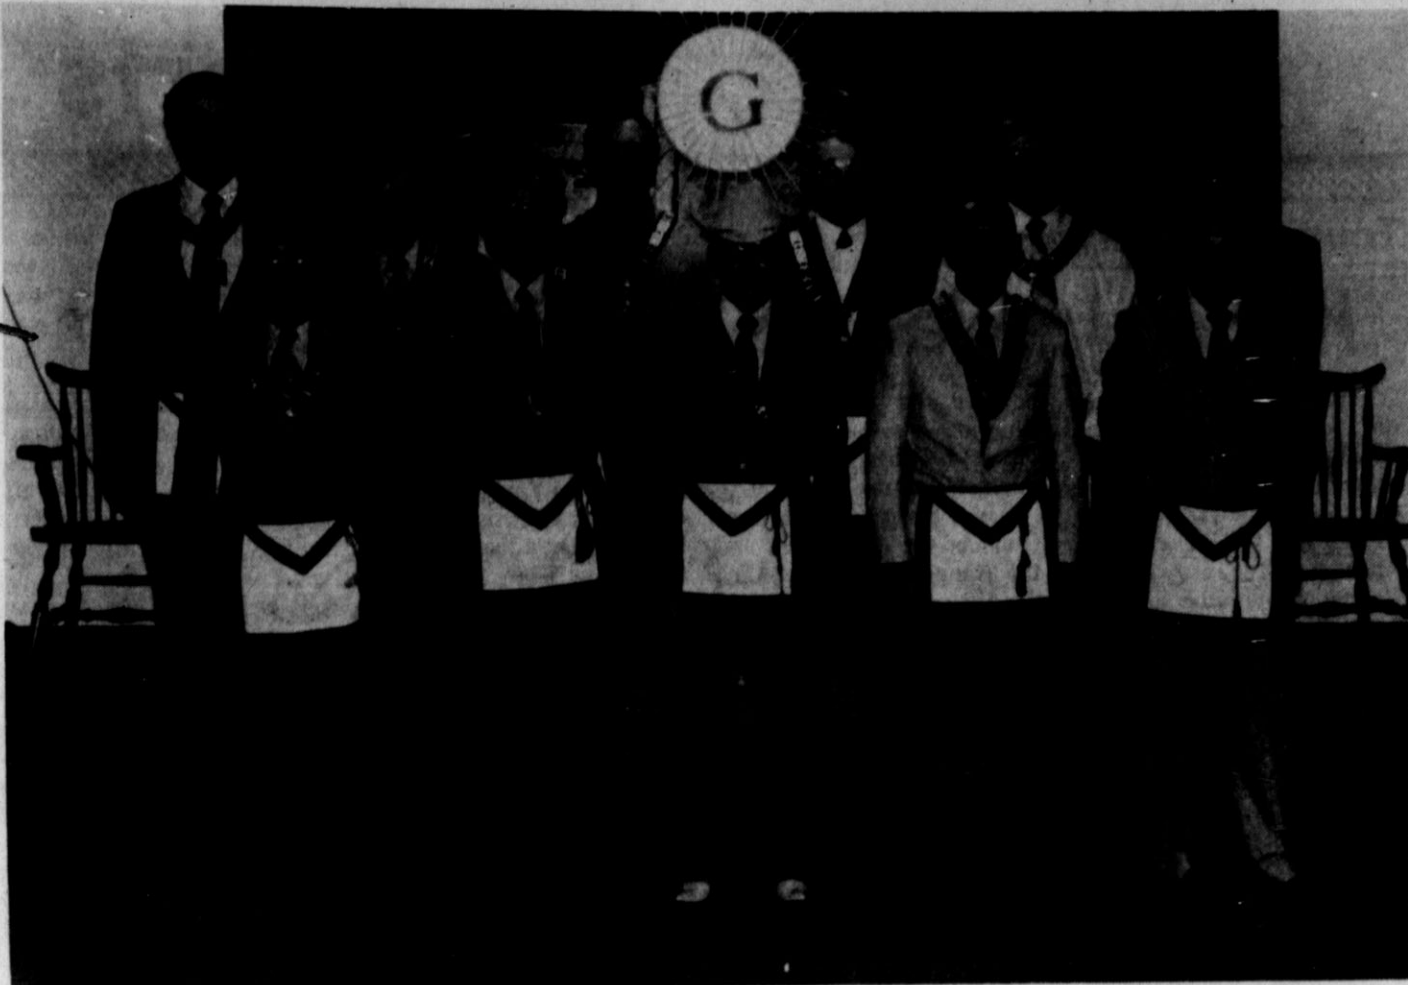

"It's never wise to assume that high-protein foods are safe after being kept at room temperature," she says. "Since refrigeration prevents the bacteria from making their poison, the most effective way to avoid food poisoning is to eat them right away or else keep them cold until they are served."

Refrigeration temperatures should be below 45 degrees Fahrenheit, which may be difficult to maintain in an ice chest or other type of cooler, she cautions.

"Contrary to myth, mayonnaise isn't commonly the main culprit in food poisoning," says the specialist. So it's important to keep all hot foods hot and cold foods cold to reduce the chances of taking food poisoning along on your picnic.

African golfer shoots 5-under-par

OAKVILLE, Ontario, (AP) — In retrospect, Nick Price said, the two-week break from competition probably was overdue.

"I played pretty well through the Tournament of Champions, then didn't play well at all for the next seven weeks," said the South African golfer.

"I think I was mentally tired."

So Price took two weeks off, then returned to the PGA Tour "with all the cobwebs gone, with my mind clear" and shot a 5-under-par 67 over the windswept Glen Abbey Golf Club course and took a two-shot lead in Thursday's opening round of the 75th Canadian Open championship.

"The key to the round, the key to any good round, is that I holed a lot of putts," said Price, who last season won the World Series of Golf.

He one-putted nine times on the extremely fast greens and needed no putts at all on the 417-yard, par-4 fourth hole. He found the cup with a 112-yard wedge shot for an eagle-2.

"When you're playing well, the breaks seem to go your way," Price said.

Lee Trevino, however, got a break he didn't need.

On the 16th hole, his driver snapped as he hit his tee shot, with the clubhead following the ball down the fairway.

"I've used that driver for two years and really like it," said Trevino, 44, a three-time Canadian Open champion. "I don't know whether I can replace that shaft or not. I don't know what I'm going to do."

He got in with a 70, one stroke back of Richard Zokol and Larry Rinker, who shared second at 69. Rinker one-putted to save par eight times while Zokol, seeking to become the first Canadian to win this tournament in 30 years, dropped 25-foot birdie putts on two of his last three holes.

Gary Hallberg and veteran Charles Coody were tied with Trevino at 70.

Jack Nicklaus, who designed this course as a permanent site for the Canadian national championship, had a 73 and said he "had to work very hard to get that. It seems like I shoot a 73 in the first round of this tournament every year."

Nicklaus, who holds a record collection of 17 major professional titles, has not yet won the Canadian Open.

"I'd better do it soon, before I get too old," said Nicklaus, 44.

Masters champion Ben Crenshaw had a 74 in the winds that gusted over 30 miles per hour, and PGA titleholder Hal Sutton struggled to a 76. Defending champion John Cook had a 71.

Long-hitting John Adams, after a huge drive on the downwind, 516-yard 16th hole, holed out an 8-iron second shot for a rare double-eagle. But he gave the strokes back immediately, hitting out of bounds and taking a triple-bogey 7 on the 17th. He finished with a round of par 72.

Our blessings that have come to pass,
We tend to disregard;
Because we see the greenest grass
In someone else's yard.
The magic thing we call success
Eludes us, come what may,
And thus it seems that happiness
Will never come our way.
However, through the Church we find
That there's no need to roam,
For happiness and peace of mind
Are always close to home.
So, don't go searching all around,
And some day you'll agree:
The greenest grass of all is found
Wherever you may be!
