Firemen have Independence Day off

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Hereford Volunteer Firemen were geared up to fight the traditional Independence Day grassfires, but the only blazes they contended with on Wednesday were beneath hamburgers cooking on the grill.

Fire Marshal Jay Spain had planned an afternoon picnic at a local park to encourage his firefighters to stay in Hereford and to give them something fun to do between calls. But the calls didn't come, and nobody minded a bit.

"The rain is the only thing that saved us," Spain remarked. The .03 of an inch of precipitation measured Wednesday morning by KPAN Radio was apparently enough to keep sparks from fireworks from igniting grass and weeds, which are typically dry this time of year.

Spain said his force battled "one

No grass fires for change

grassfire after another" last year, many times having all trucks out at once with fires "waiting in line" to be extinguished. Blazes in the rural part of the county have also been common in the past, with damage to wheat fields and farm structures reaching nearly $70,000 in 1982.

The holiday was also a safe one for local residents. Hereford police and the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office both reported no traffic accidents, while Deaf Smith General Hospital had only one emergency room call related to July 4th celebrating.

"We had one patient treated for minor burns to the face," reported DSGH Administrator Jim Bullard. "That happened about 11:00 last night." The local police force, using all available cars, responded to about 60 calls during the day. Most of the complaints were of fireworks being used in the city limits, which is prohibited by city ordinance, but only two people were picked up.

"We questioned two juveniles and turned the case over to the juvenile officer," police Captain Ray Morgan reported. He said the boys, ages 14 and 15, were throwing fireworks at children in the 200 Block of Avenue D.

Police also picked up three people for driving while intoxicated and one for public intoxication. All four arrests were made either last night or early this morning.

Bashes varied, widespread

Millions of Americans thrilled at skies flooded with color from Fourth of July fireworks, as fun in the form of giant banana splits and rock-skiing contests vied with parades and backyard barbecues in a joyous 208th national birthday celebration.

From sea to sea Wednesday, it was a bash for America as diverse as the people who populate the country.

The Beach Boys, stock car races, bathing suits, tall ships and a ceremony honoring the Statue of Liberty highlighted this year's Independence Day festivities.

Americans observe nation's birthday

But the holiday started in tragedy in Beverly, Mass., where a pre-dawn fire killed 14 people in a rooming house. At least two people were killed in holiday-related accidents, two others were missing and more than a dozen were injured.

In Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776, more than one million people watched fireworks in Fairmount Park, capping the city's five-day Freedom Week festival.

More than 500,000 people jammed the mall around the Washington Monument for a concert featuring the surfing sound of the Beach Boys, who made a triumphant return to the nation's capital after being banned last year by then-Interior Secretary James Watt.

Over 100,000 people took in the fireworks show in Grand Rapids, Mich.

"There isn't a blade of grass by the side of the river that wasn't bent by someone's posterior," police Lt. Ron Vierheilg said.

New York City beaches were reported "blanket to blanket" as almost 750,000 people sought refuge from hot, muggy weather.

Sun-seeking Californians also packed the shore near Los Angeles to watch 30 tall ships parade down the coast.

At Fort Meade Army Base in Maryland, people paid 25 cents each to help build and then eat a 350-foot banana split. "As far as I know, they ate all of it," said Spec. 4 Rick Sheperd. Two hundred pounds of bananas and 39 gallons of ice cream went into the concoction.

Cockatoo reported stolen Tuesday

A cockatoo, worth an estimated $500, was stolen sometime Tuesday night from 411 Star, Hereford police reported this morning.

Victim of the crime was Calvin Edwards, same address. He told police he was working in his garage, went to the house for a few minutes and came back to find the bird gone. It was in a wooden shipping box.

A neighbor said he had seen someone around Edwards' garage at the time of the theft - 11:45 p.m. - but was not able to provide positive identification.

Meanwhile since Tuesday morning, police investigated two incidents apiece of non-injury accident, minor theft and vandalism. Also looked into were one case each of assault with a deadly weapon, dog bite, family disturbance and possible prowler.

City issues 17 building permits

Hereford's city office issued 17 building permits in June for a total of $81,900.

The biggest license was granted for a $33,800 residence at 435 Texas.

In June of 1983, there were also 17 permits issued, though the total worth was a larger figure: $146,369.

So far this year, 72 permits for $1,953,800 have been given. That represents more than twice the total recorded through the first six months of 1983, when 61 licenses were issued for $949,684.

Three youths go for joy ride

Three Hereford juveniles managed to escape injury after "borrowing" their parents' car Tuesday afternoon.

Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown said the boys, ages 8, 13 and 14, were at home alone when they decided to go for a joy ride. The youngsters reportedly took a couple of shotguns along, shooting out the car window at birds and a dog as they traveled.

Brown said the 13-year-old was driving at the time the car was stopped by sheriff's Deputy Don Hatley. The boys were questioned and the case was turned over to juvenile authorities.

YMCA fund drive given $10,000

The Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation of Amarillo recently announced it would pledge $10,000 to the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA building fund drive.

According to Weldon Knabe, YMCA program director, $5,000 has already been given. The balance of the donation is to be presented next year.

Reagan: auto industry saved by nation

DETROIT (AP) — President Reagan, trying to woo blue-collar support from Walter Mondale, said today his administration's economic policies helped rescue America's auto industry from "the edge of a catastrophe" that had been building for 20 years.

"The American automobile industry is back — back with pride, back with teamwork and back with performance that can and will make us number one," Reagan said in a speech prepared for delivery at dedication ceremonies for a General Motors high-tech assembly plant in nearby Orion Township.

United Auto Workers leaders have blamed Reagan for plunging the auto industry into a depression that forced plant closings and massive layoffs earlier in his administration. The UAW has endorsed Walter Mondale, the likely Democratic presidential nominee.

Reaching out to union members, Reagan congratulated the UAW and other unions for accepting concessions on pay and other areas during the recession. "During these last few years of severe economic stress, organized labor has played a responsible and constructive role in rebuilding American industry," he said.

Reagan, arriving here from an overnight stop in Huntsville, Ala., toured an auto design studio at GM technical center north of Detroit before speaking at the Orion Township plant, which uses 157 welding and painting robots and about 1,000 computers to make the new front-wheel drive Cadillac DeVille and Oldsmobile 98.

Reagan said the current situation

General Motors workers told today was "a far cry from the gloom and doom of just four years ago. Sometimes it's hard to remember that only a short time ago people were counting America out, claiming we were a nation in decline, that our best days were behind us."

Recalling the high inflation of the Carter administration, Reagan said, "The auto industry, like the rest of the country, was on the edge of a catastrophe." The Big Three automakers lost $4 billion together in 1980, he said.

"Then came the recession, the culmination of years of too much taxing, spending and regulating by those who claimed they could spend your earnings better than you could," he added. Saying his administration tried to chart a new policy, Reagan said, "I know it hasn't been easy, the recession was deeper and longer than predicted."

"But these problems had been building up for 20 years," he added. "We were determined to find a real economic cure, not just resort, as they had so often in the past, to another political quick fix."

Michigan's unemployment rate is among the highest in the nation at 11.3 percent, but the auto industry is working almost at capacity.

Michigan is a key state in Reagan's re-election battle. To win a second term, he must cut into the traditionally Democratic blue-collar coalition in the Northeast, South and industrial Midwest that he successfully raided in 1980.

In the South, Reagan dropped his self-imposed embargo on criticizing the Soviet Union and suggested that Rev. Jesse Jackson abandon any plans to travel to the Soviet Union.

At an Independence Day "Spirit of America" festival in Decatur, Ala., Reagan renewed an anti-Soviet theme that has been muted in his recent comments. "The truth is that the totalitarian world is a tired place, held down by a gravity of its own devising, and America is a rocket pushing upward to the stars."

Texas taxes raised for schools

First state increase since 1971

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas lawmakers, many of whom dipped into constituents' wallets for the first time this week, are now home watching for the school improvements they hope to see and the political fallout some fear they'll see.

As the deadline for the 30-day special session drew near Tuesday night, the lawmakers approved a $4.61 billion tax package that is the first general tax increase in Texas in 13 years.

As the House vote neared, Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga was asked who would vote against it. "Republicans and contested Democrats," he said, referring to representatives who feared ballot box reprisals for the tax hike.

The tax package, effective Oct. 2, includes a one-eighth percent increase in the 4 percent sales tax, increased levies on alcoholic beverages and cigarettes and a sales tax umbrella expanded to cover more items.

Gov. Mark White said in return for their tax vote, legislators can look for some quick improvements in Texas public schools. The new taxes will fund a series of education reforms and highway improvements.

"I think you are going to find some quick improvement in early childhood development," White said, referring to a new pre-kindergarten program for 4-year-olds who need the help and reduced class size in early grades.

The school reforms also include a restructured State Board of Education, competency tests and pay hikes for teachers, graduation tests for high school seniors, a ban on "social promotions," tighter control of extracurricular activities and more state money for poor schools.

"We can now look proudly back and say we had the finest education reform package of any state in the nation," said White.

WEDNESDAY'S HIGH: 85 (normal high this date: 81 record: 101 (1953))
OVERNIGHT LOW: 63 (normal: 65 record: 53 (1924))
PRECIPITATION: .83 inches
OUTLOOK: Fair tonight with a low in the middle 60s and southerly winds of 5 to 10 miles per hour. Friday is expected to also have winds from the south, only about 5 miles per hour faster than tonight. A high around 85 is predicted.

Ten reportedly die over weekend

Ten people had died on Texas highways as the Fourth of July holiday came to a close at midnight, the Department of Public Safety reported. The unofficial tally was one shy of the 11 predicted by the DPS.

Officials said the final toll would not be known until Thursday morning.

The 30-hour Independence Day holiday officially began at 6 p.m. Tuesday and before dawn Wednesday, eight people had perished.

With the final and most dangerous hours of the holiday still to go Wednesday night, the death count was expected to exceed 11, said DPS spokesman Larry Todd.

"Some motorists will be tired and others will be drinking heavily," Todd said. "Going home can be the most dangerous time."

Sixty-four people died in accidents on Texas highways during the 78-hour holiday period last year.

The DPS said that 47 percent of those fatalities were caused by speeding or drunken drivers and predicted that half of the deaths this year would also be related to excessive speed and driving while intoxicated.

Survey indicates Bentsen favorite

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texan already interviewed as a vice presidential possibility by Walter Mondale, is the choice of more members of the Texas Democratic National Convention delegation than anyone else mentioned for the No. 2 spot on the party's ticket.

In an Associated Press survey of 190 of the 200 Texas delegates, one-third said favorite son Bentsen would be their preference for the vice presidential nomination.

About 20 percent of the delegates questioned said they would prefer to see the vice presidential nod go to a woman, and Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York was the most popular choice among the women mentioned.

Bentsen, 63, would bring a number of attributes to the Democratic slate, delegates said.

They cited Bentsen's experience in Congress and his broad appeal across the South as big pluses for Mondale. But most important, they said, Bentsen could help Mondale carry Texas, a state seen as crucial for victory by both the Republicans and Democrats.

Postman saves woman, marches on ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Postal carrier Jeff Robbins says he's no hero, but an Arlington woman who was pulled out of her car from a swimming pool probably begs to differ.

Lucy Haga, who can't swim, was sinking and trapped in her car by a seat belt after the vehicle went out of control, plunging into the eight-foot deep residential swimming pool Tuesday afternoon.

The car's front end had sunk to the bottom and the rear was going down when Jeff Robbins, running about an hour and a half behind schedule, arrived.

Robbins, 26, said he was delivering mail nearby when he heard screams for help. He ran to the site, saw the woman's car sinking in the swimming pool and pulled her out of the water, cutting her free from the seat belt.

After he saw she was all right, Robbins marched off in his wet uniform to complete his route, not even waiting for thanks.

Presidential campaign thought too long

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American public says presidential campaigns drag on too long, cost too much and should be restricted, according to a Media General-Associated Press Poll.

About the same number of those surveyed said their campaign opinions were shaped by the print media as said television was their major source of information.

The poll results are based on interviews with 1,243 adults interviewed across the nation by telephone June 7-19.

Seventy-three percent said the presidential campaigns are just too long, while 22 percent disagreed. Five percent were not sure.

Of those who thought campaigns were too long, 85 percent said they favor "federal laws to limit the length of the campaign period." Fifteen percent disagreed.

Woman has third 'Fourth' baby

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Most people celebrate the Fourth of July with fireworks or a cookout, but Christina and Timothy Heald have their own special tradition — they have babies.

The Milford couple beat "incredible" odds Wednesday when their third Independence Day baby was born.

Mrs. Heald, 31, delivered an 8-pound, 3-ounce boy, David, at 11:09 a.m. at Park City Hospital. Her first two children, Jennifer and Brian, were born there on Independence Day in 1978 and 1980, respectively.

"I guess that's incredible. I didn't expect it," Mrs. Heald said from her bed in the recovery room.

"She planned all three babies, but none came on the due date," said Mrs. Heald's mother, Eva Cassidy of Trumbull. "Jennifer was a week early, Brian was a week late and David was four days late."

Dobrynin taking Reagan message home

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet ambassador to the United States, saying he hopes for the best but is "not a magician," has returned to Moscow carrying the Reagan administration's views on opening talks to limit space weapons.

Anatoly Dobrynin said Wednesday he is not yet sure whether the Soviets will be in Vienna, Austria, in September for the talks they proposed last week. "We will see. We are negotiating this," he said.

The Reagan administration accepted the Soviets' offer, but said it would also raise the issue of limiting nuclear weapons. The Soviets walked out of talks on nuclear weapons last year after NATO began deploying new U.S. missiles in Western Europe.

They have said repeatedly that they will not resume the talks until the missiles are removed.

"I am hoping for the best, but I am not a magician," Dobrynin said as he was greeted at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport by his family after his arrival from Washington.

Officials impose indefinite curfew

SRINAGAR, India (AP) — Officials imposed an indefinite curfew on the Kashmir capital of Srinagar today to prevent violent protests against the dismissal of a state government led by critics of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Three people were seriously hurt Wednesday in the second day of scattered stone-throwing and clashes between political rivals in India's northernmost state. Police opened fire to disperse the crowds.

Six state officials, including the mother of fired Chief Minister Mohammad Farooq Abdullah, resigned Wednesday to protest Abdullah's ouster by Mrs. Gandhi's government.

Vice president dilemma

Mondale meets mayor, talks to women

By EVANS WITT AP Political Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — As Americans celebrated one of the most important days in the nation's history, Walter F. Mondale was wrestling with the question of whether to make history himself by choosing a woman, a Hispanic or member of another minority as his running mate.

The probable Democratic presidential nominee heard on Wednesday once again from women politicians supporting him that the way to win in November is to put a woman in the vice presidential slot.

The 23 women insisted there was no pressure and there were no threats, just a desire to defeat President Reagan using a reality "that it may be difficult for a man to fathom.

"There is a limitless reservoir of potential voters out there if he selects a woman to be his vice presidential running mate," said Sharon Dixon of Washington, D.C., after attending the meeting with Mondale at a hotel here.

Mondale also interviewed San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros on Wednesday, the first Hispanic of the six politicians questioned so far in Mondale's search for a running mate.

Mondale said Cisneros has a "magnificent record of leadership" and is an outstanding example of the realization of the American dream of opportunity who would make a "superb vice president."

The 37-year-old mayor said he was proud to break a barrier for Americans of Hispanic heritage.

"It is a great source of pride for my family, my city and people of my heritage that I would be invited here on July 4, 1984," Cisneros told reporters in a driveway news conference at Mondale's home in nearby North Oaks. "The very fact that I would be invited — a person whose grandfather came to this country in 1924, whose mother was born in Mexico, whose father was born in New Mexico one of 12 children of very, very humble means — speaks to our party as the party of unprecedented opportunity."

On the session with the women, Mondale's only comment was that it was "a very good meeting."

At a news conference, the women were unrelentingly upbeat and generally dismissed talk of a revolt at the Democratic Convention in 11 days if Mondale chooses a man as his running mate.

"It is our view that the Democratic ticket would be the strongest — with Fritz Mondale at the top — if it contained a woman as the vice presidential candidate," New York City Council President Carol Bellamy.

"The purpose of this meeting was not to place pressure," said Ann Richards, state treasurer of Texas.

"There is no reason at this juncture to talk about a protest movement at the convention because our overriding consideration is to win the election in November," said Ms. Dixon.

In Pittsburgh, a fireworks display downtown was postponed until Saturday after fire official Joseph Suma, a 57-year-old father of seven, fell into the water while checking the display and apparently drowned, officials said.

A 64-year-old man, not identified by authorities, was killed Wednesday when his gyrocopter fell apart during an Independence Day celebration in Milford Lake, Kan.

Firecracker accidents injured two adults and two children in Pennsylvania, and boating accidents seriously injured two people and left two others missing in Maryland, authorities said.

Ten people were hurt by an explosion at a fireworks display in Dearborn Heights, Mich., officials said. Police are uncertain if the injuries, six of which required hospitalization, was caused by a misguided rocket or spectators igniting fireworks.

Sun helps out

Many Texans celebrate Fourth

By The Associated Press

Sun, fireworks, beer and song marked the Fourth of July for thousands of Texans who celebrated the nation's 208th birthday.

In Austin, Willie Nelson was no red-headed stranger to the more than 30,000 fans who braved the blazing sun in Austin.

"Welcome to the 12th annual Willie Nelson Fourth of July Picnic," shouted Willie Nelson as he kicked off the 13-hour show — a 1970s tradition which was plagued by a variety of problems before the singer called it quits in 1980.

But "Texas is where it ought to be," said Willie, explaining his return to the Lone Star State.

Police said 23 people were arrested at and near the picnic site, mostly on charges of driving while intoxicated and public drunkenness. Emergency crews reported treating some 450 people, most of them for heat prostration.

San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros was all smiles Wednesday night when he returned to San Antonio from North Oaks, Minn., where Walter Mondale said the Hispanic mayor would be "a superb vice president."

"It is a great source of pride for my family, my city and people of my heritage that I would be invited here on July 4, 1984," Cisneros told reporters in a driveway news conference at Mondale's home.

Cisneros agreed with Mondale that he'd be a good choice for the vice president post: "I think I could do the job. I'm not promoting myself for the job. I'm not seeking it. But if I had to perform, I believe I could do a good job."

In Corpus Christi, Attorney General Jim Mattox praised American democracy but told a crowd at Sherill Park he didn't particularly care for U.S. involvement in Central America.

"Personally, I think the United States should get out of Central America. Every time we look around, the United States is supporting some dictator. And it's not just some dictator, it's our dictator. That really bothers me," said Mattox, drawing some cheers and applause.

But Mattox drew some boos, also, and some people walked out of the park after he began speaking.

In Stamford, old Cowboys gathered at the annual Texas Cowboys Reunion, four days of festivities highlighted by a rodeo and a memorial to remember fellow cowboys who "passed away."

"Like those we're remembering, give all you have and put self last and the cause you believe in first. Many of us today aren't learning from you (the old-timers). The true measure of life is not its duration but its donation," said Lewis Timberlake, of Austin, addressing a teary-eyed crowd of 250 at the memorial.

At 8 p.m. the so-called "World's Largest Amateur Rodeo" was launched. N.W. "Tom" Smith, the secretary-treasurer of the association, said they expect to have from 1,400 to 1,600 people before the rodeo ends Saturday.

In Dallas, firefighters were blamed by firefighters for a two-alarm fire that destroyed rooftops of four studio apartments and caused an estimated $50,000 in damages.

"It's been terrible," fire department dispatcher Milton Wright said.

Paul Harvey

Partly personal:

I lost my intellectual virginity in Chicago.

In the Tulsa, Okla., of the morning of my life there were cops and robbers but they were separate.

There were people who were different — but not separate. And then one day I transplanted my naivete to Chicago.

Where people, polarized around the prejudices, took sides.

Where the difference between the good guys and the bad was blurred. Where even the dead-vote.

Where the courts were so corrupt that you could buy your way into or out of anything — traffic tickets to murder.

Where mob bosses flaunted their freedom.

Where lawyers, paid extra, became "fixers."

Where judges spent half a million dollars to get elected to $30,000 jobs — and nobody asked why because everybody knew.

Where judges divided their time between lavish homes here and in Florida and the source of such wealth was never questioned.

And not one was ever — ever — convicted.

Gradually the transplanted newsboy grew callouses over his own conscience; idealism gave way to cynicism.

Yesterday I was on my way home from one of those wheeling-and-dealing meetings where a charitable organization is having to pay $10,000 a day to lawyers — and I was feeling sorry for us — U.S.

But then over my car radio came word that a Cook County judge —

Who had taken cash payoffs to fix traffic tickets — has been found guilty.

Cynics had thought because the jury was out two days that some bought juror was going to get him off.

Instead, the jury was out that long because it was that carefully re-examining evidence on which they convicted him on 24 counts — "mail fraud, racketeering, extortion."

His Honor, dishonored, is liable for $110,000 in fines and a prison sentence of 240 years.

More significantly — this prosecution is the first of many resulting from the federal government's under cover "operation Greylord" in which 17 have been indicted. Four of them are current or former judges. Others are attorneys, police officers and court personnel.

Observing this eventuation of justice will not restore the innocence of my sheltered younger years....

But it re-restores a flagging faith in the system.

Our country can still get out of whack and get fixed. The old machinery still works; it just needs to be tightened up once in a while.

A sense of humor is an asset in any field, but especially in teaching. Students seem to glean more from an instructor who seeks to make the subject matter fun by injecting a bit of humor into a potentially monotonous lesson.

"I guess teachers are really actors of a sort, to be able to get things across to the kids and hold their attention," smiled Terri Laing, learning disabilities instructor at Shirley Intermediate School.

Terri first started working as a teacher's aide at Shirley when she graduated from high school. She soon realized that teaching was "her thing" and began commuting to West Texas State University to study education. She earned a degree in learning disabilities with a reading concentration three and a half years ago.

Upon graduation, she taught learning disabilities one semester at Bluebonnet School in the mornings, and in the afternoons she taught a community class for pregnant students. She admitted that it was a big switch going from one to the other each day, but that she liked both.

Referring to the latter, she remarked, "It's a good program, and I really enjoyed the experience. It was a challenge covering so many different subjects, and hearing about the problems they were going through."

In her current position at Shirley she instructs fourth, fifth and sixth graders in reading, spelling and math. "A lot of the students have high I.Q.'s but are not performing up to their capabilities," she noted. "It is exciting working with them and seeing the progress they make."

Terri and her husband, Randy, have both resided in Hereford all their lives, and enjoy taking part in activities of the community. They have one daughter, Jill, who is almost 7 years old. She will be in the first grade at Northwest School this fall, and takes ballet and tap dancing.

Randy is employed by Tagco Industries and serves on the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department. Terri said he is among those who worked hard to get the Jaws of Life in Hereford. "The guys on the fire department are very committed to their responsibilities," she stated. "They've got to really want to do it when the alarm goes off at 3 in the morning."

Randy operated the Unique Shop on 25 Mile Ave. for a year, and Terri helped out when she was not in school. He had previously worked at Simmons Carpets. He attended Amarillo College and has been a member of Kiwanis.

The Laings attend First Baptist Church, where Terri sings in the choir and in a women's sextet. She and Randy both play volleyball with the church. Terri is also on a city league women's volleyball team that travels to surrounding towns, and she enjoys playing tennis and racquetball.

She is a member of Toujours Amis Study Club and serves as treasurer of the Hereford Chamber Singers. She has enjoyed participating in musical programs since high school, and one of her favorite Chamber Singers productions was the Disney extravaganza in which she portrayed Mickey Mouse. Her husband has helped with staging of several of these programs.

The Follies which were held in Hereford twice in past years drew the involvement of both Randy and Terri. "We never worked so hard as we did those two weeks of rehearsals, but it was something we both really enjoyed," commented Terri.

Recalling her sense of humor, dressing up in silly costumes and clowning around come naturally to Terri. She and several other women have performed for various community functions as the Chamber Pot Singers, wearing aprons and all manner of pots, pans and kitchen utensils.

She enjoys refinishing furniture, wallpapering and working around the house, and she loves to bake, especially cream pies.

The toffee crunch coffee cake below is one of her favorite recipes, although the 10 cent Heath bars are no longer available at that price! The bean pie makes a simple meal, and the dill strips are a nice switch from plain rolls or biscuits.

TOFFEE CRUNCH COFFEE CAKE

- 1 c. butter
- 2 c. brown sugar
- 2 c. buttermilk
- 2 eggs
- 4 (10 cent) Heath bars
- 4 c. flour
- 1 c. sugar
- 2 tsp. soda
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- 1 c. pecans
- Cut butter into flour and sugars until crumbs. Add buttermilk, soda, eggs and vanilla; beat well. Add pecans and finely crushed candy. Beat, pour into greased and sugared bundt pan, and bake 30 to 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

NOTE: Freeze candy for easier crushing. Spray pan with PAM; then dust with sugar instead of flour.

BEAN PIE

1½ lbs. ground beef
1 can Ranch Style beans
1 can cream of celery soup
1 pkg. cornbread mix
Brown ground beef and drain grease. Add beans and soup. Simmer for 15 minutes. Prepare cornbread as instructed on package.

Pour beef mixture in a 9x9 inch or 8x8 inch pan. Pour cornbread over meat mixture and cook until cornbread is golden brown.

DILL STRIPS

Slice hot dog buns lengthwise. Place on cookie sheet and bake 2½ hours in 225 degree oven. Remove from oven and butter freely with soft garlic butter. Sprinkle with dill weed and return to oven about 15 minutes.

These can be frozen. To serve, remove from freezer and warm in slow oven. These sticks are good cold but better if warm.

Ann Landers Happiness at last

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You printed several letters from women who shed no tears when their husbands died. Some said they welcomed widowhood as a "blessed release." You wondered why no widower wrote to tell his story. Well—here I am.

I can say without shame that I rejoiced when my wife of 46 years passed away. Our marriage was one continual fight. I was never unfaithful but for the last 28 years I was celibate. We lived like brother and sister, rarely touching.

Why did I marry her? Because she said she was pregnant. (She was not.) When I learned the truth I decided to try to make the marriage work. I knew within six months it was impossible. By then there was a baby on the way. Two years later there was another. I tried to leave when the children were grown but there was hell to pay, so I stayed.

Six months after my wife's death I told my children I wanted to marry a woman I had met through friends. They were furious and said they'd never speak to me again if I did such a "terrible" thing. I married her anyway and she is a saint. I have never been so happy. My only regret is that I let a domineering shrew rob me of so many years of my life.

I hope you will publish my letter. Perhaps some young men out there need encouragement to get out of a rotten marriage. I wish someone had encouraged me.—Happy Honey-mooner

DEAR HAPPY: From the looks of the divorce statistics, no one needs any "encouragement."

I'm glad you have found happiness at last. Thanks for sharing your story.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why didn't you tell "Jack-of-Hearts" it takes two to make a connection? Perhaps Ms. Rigid and Ms. Frigid didn't have dead batteries after all. They may have discovered that bargain-brand flashlights often come with dim bulbs and are corroded inside.

If you are looking for sport sex, Buster, you should expect to get short-circuited once in a while. Since you find it disappointing, try making love instead. It's a lot more work but the return on your investment will be terrific. I'm a —One-woman Man In Madison, Wis.

DEAR MAN: I hope your woman appreciates you. You sound like a winner.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read a news story that made me feel good.

A recent survey showed that marijuana use among teenagers is on the decline. The reason: Better information on possible health dangers. Teens are afraid of memory loss, lung damage and the disapproval of friends who have kicked the habit.

In the 14-to-18 year range, the users have shown a sharp drop in numbers. Government statistics, compiled in 1983 from 17,500 high school seniors, indicated that 28.5 percent smoke pot. The figure in 1978 was 37.1.

Please share this good news with your readers.—Fan In Richmond, Va.

DEAR RICH: That's the good news. The bad news is that teens are turning to alcohol. And the percentage of students who drink regularly would knock your socks off.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' "New Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Advanced lifesaving classes begin Monday

Advanced lifesaving and basic rescue and water safety classes are to begin Monday at the city pool, sponsored by the American Red Cross.

Advanced lifesaving is scheduled from 9 to 11 a.m. each weekday morning through July 20, instructed by Ronnie Tucker. Those interested in taking this class must be at least 15 years old.

Basic rescue and water safety (formerly junior lifesaving) is slated from 9 to 10 a.m. each day through July 20. Participants must be 11 years of age or older.

Registration for the regular session of water safety classes (to run July 9-20) will be held Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m. at the city pool.

Camps provide varied learning experiences

COLLEGE STATION — The right summer camp can do a lot more for children than simply provide fresh air and a few days away from home, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist, Dr. Delores Steglin.

According to Steglin, a specialist in child development, going to camp often helps children break away from their parents in a positive manner. "Even though children may feel some home sickness, camp provides a psychologically safe environment while they are separated from their parents," she explains.

The group activities involved in camping de-emphasize the "self" and help children see the usefulness of teamwork as well, she adds.

Most parents expect their children to learn or improve their physical skills in swimming or sports while at camp, notes the specialist. But camp can also be mentally stimulating if they are introduced to new ideas, projects, and activities, or meet youngsters from different geographic areas and backgrounds.

Special interest camps focused on learning about computers, science and math enrichment, space study, music and dance or horsemanship, also stimulate intellectual growth for the interested child, she remarks.

But the camping experience will be positive only if the parents select one that is most appropriate for their child, says Steglin. She suggests that parents consider the following before sending a child to camp:

-Whose needs are being met — mine or my child's? Do you want to send your child to computer camp, for example, because he's interested in it, or because you think he ought to be interested?

-Is the camp well organized and does it have a positive record? Talk to parents who have sent their children to the camp in previous years.

-What is my child's attitude about going to camp? If the child is resisting, try to find out why.

-Is my child emotionally ready for a separation from home and for what length of time? This may differ from child to child even within the same family. It will also depend on the child's previous experience at being away from home. The child who has never stayed overnight with a friend, for instance, may have trouble coping with a week at camp.

-Who supervises the children directly and what are their backgrounds? Do they have skills in working with children? What forms of discipline will be used?

-How much does the camp cost? Does it fit into the family budget and is the cost worth it for the experiences provided?

-Will the camp experience fill my child's needs or could those needs be better met in another way? Spending several days at the home of a favorite relative, attending a day camp, or simply playing in their own backyards may meet the needs of many children just as well as a camp.

For All-Star Game

Fans select starting lineups

NEW YORK (AP) — George Brett, elected by the fans to start his ninth straight All-Star Game, has some mixed feelings about being the American League's leading vote-getter this year.

"It makes you feel good," the Kansas City third baseman said Wednesday after the commissioner's office announced that he had received 1,594,542 votes. "But I don't think it's fair to other guys that I missed seven weeks and was picked to start. Sometimes a guy is having a good year and doesn't get picked."

Brett missed the start of the season with a knee injury and is now hitting .283 with seven home runs and 28 runs batted in. His vote total easily topped the runnerup at third base, Doug DeCinces of California, who got 880,441.

This year's voting produced four AL players who will be making their first All-Star starts at Tuesday's 55th edition of the midsummer classic, to be played in San Francisco's Candlestick Park at 8:40 p.m. EDT.

Catcher Lance Parrish, second baseman Lou Whitaker and outfielder Chet Lemon, all from the high-flying Detroit Tigers, and Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken will be in the starting lineup for the first time.

Other starters include two perennial all-stars from the California Angels, first baseman Rod Carew and outfielder Reggie Jackson, along with outfielder Dave Winfield of New York.

The pitchers and remaining members of both 28-man teams will be announced later this week. Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli will manage the AL team and Manager Paul Owens of Philadelphia will guide the NL.

Carew, who has been elected to start 15 straight times since fan voting resumed in 1970, was named to start for the 18th year. The first base voting was the closest as Carew's 1,219,420 votes edged Baltimore's Eddie Murray, who got 1,128,745.

Carew is batting .289 while Murray is batting .308 with 15 home runs and 66 runs batted in. Jackson was chosen to start his 11th All-Star game. He finished third in the outfield voting with 1,012,397, behind Winfield's 1,252,242 and Lemon's 1,106,485. Boston's Jim Rice was fourth in the outfield balloting with 879,099, followed by Chicago's Ron Kittle with 871,494.

Jackson is currently batting .244 with 13 homers and 40 RBIs. Winfield, voted to start his fourth All-Star Game, leads the major leagues with a .371 average, along with nine home runs and 42 RBI. Lemon is hitting .303 with 12 homers and 48 RBI.

Parrish was the second-leading vote-getter in the AL with 1,524,616, far ahead of Chicago's Carlton Fisk, who got 831,386. Parrish has a .270 average with 15 home runs and 46 runs batted in.

Whitaker, batting .302, got 1,341,177 votes while California's Bobby Grich was second at second base with 588,897.

One of those who came close but finished second was Tigers' shortstop Alan Trammell, who got 1,154,353 votes, second to Ripken's 1,442,082.

Ripken is batting .294 with 13 home runs and 41 RBI, compared to Trammell's .307, eight homers and 41 RBI.

"I expected it," Trammell said of his second-place finish. "I hope to be picked as a reserve and if picked.

Garvey top NL All-Star

NEW YORK (AP) — First baseman Steve Garvey of the San Diego Padres, the only man to win the outstanding player award in two All-Star Games, will be in the National League's starting lineup for the first time since 1980 for Tuesday night's 55th All-Star Game in San Francisco.

Garvey, who is batting .285 with four homers and 46 runs batted in, topped all players in both leagues with 1,701,083 votes from fans across the country who cast 6,333,903 ballots. He easily outdistanced New York Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez, who received 1,041,428 votes.

Joining Garvey as NL starters will be four other All-Star veterans — catcher Gary Carter of the Montreal Expos, shortstop Ozzie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals, third baseman Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies and outfielder Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves — and three newcomers to All-Star competition — second baseman Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs and outfielders Darryl Strawberry of the New York Mets and Tony Gwynn of the Padres.

Pitchers and reserves for the National League team will be announced later today. The NL team will be managed by Philadelphia's Paul Owens.

Garvey, who was the NL's starting first baseman for seven straight years from 1974-80, will be in the starting lineup for the eighth time. Schmidt, who is batting .297 with 16 homers and 56 RBIs, was second in the over-all voting with 1,638,291 votes. An American Leaguer, third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals, was third with 1,594,542.

Sandberg, who leads the majors with 112 hits and 11 triples, came on strong in the latter stages of the voting and passed both Steve Sax of the Los Angeles and San Diego's Alan Wiggins to earn the start at second base.

Strawberry, the NL Rookie of the Year in 1983, led all outfield vote-getters with 1,565,044 although he is batting just .262 and has been in a slump for almost two months. Murphy, the NL's Most Valuable Player for the 1982 and 1983 seasons, finished second with 1,379,722 votes, followed by Gwynn at 1,116,657.

The Reds tied it in the eighth on Cedeño's two-out blast, his sixth of the season. Three errors and two singles allowed Cincinnati to close the gap to 4-3 in the seventh.

"There will be no Golden Gloves flying over Vet Stadium in 1984," Owens predicted. Cardinals 4-5, Giants 3-1

Rookie starters Rickey Horton and Kurt Kepshire pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to their first double-header sweep of the season, convincingly snapping the San Francisco Giants' six-game winning streak.

"I really didn't have a whole lot working for me," said the left-handed Horton, who has a 1.56 earned run average. "I just made the right pitches at the right times and got a couple of double plays. I was lucky."

"I had butterflies, but I wasn't petrified," said the right-handed Kepshire, who was 7-5 at Class AAA Louisville when he was recalled last week. "I was more excited than anything."

In the first game, David Green provided the eventual winning run with a two-run homer in the sixth inning. He also collected the game-winning RBI in the nightcap with a run-scoring single in the fourth inning.

Holland balk costs Phillies game, 5-4

By JONATHAN VITTI Associated Press Writer

Al Holland ranted and raved and threw the ball down in anger, drawing a $100 fine, but the umpire's decision stuck. Ted Lawless was waved home from third with the tie-breaking run on Holland's 10th-inning balk.

The balk gave the Cincinnati Reds a 5-4 come-from-behind victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night.

Phillies Manager Paul Owens agreed with the umpire. "I thought he balked," Owens said. "He moved his hands while on the rubber. You can't move your hands while on the rubber and he did."

Lawless agreed with the umpire. "It did look like he did something not normal," said Lawless, who opened the top of the 10th with a double and reached third on a sacrifice bunt.

Holland disagreed with everybody. "I started, stopped and stepped off. To me, that's not a balk. To them (the umpires), it is. I didn't think that was a balk. They did...They don't know what they're doing," the reliever, who also allowed the tying run to score in the eighth inning, fumed.

Elsewhere, St. Louis swept San Francisco, 4-3 and 3-1, Montreal downed Atlanta 7-4, Houston topped New York 10-5, Chicago edged San Diego 2-1 and Los Angeles pounded Pittsburgh 9-0.

Including Wednesday's five miscues, the Phillies have committed 95 errors this year, accounting for 66 unearned runs.

Owens, who has not been hesitant to criticize his team this year, said: "We should have showered an hour ago," referring to the five errors that aided the Reds' rally from a 4-1 deficit. Cesar Cedeño's two home runs also helped.

Reliever Ted Power worked two scoreless innings to earn his fifth victory against four losses. Holland suffered his fifth defeat in nine decisions.

Cincinnati took a 1-0 lead in the fourth on Cedeño's first home run of the game.

The Phillies went ahead 3-1 in the bottom of the inning on Ozzie Virgil's 14th homer of the season and boosted it to 4-1 in the fifth on John Wockenfuss' fifth home run of the season.

Records 3,000 strikeouts

Niekro blanks Rangers, 4-0

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Knuckleballer Phil Niekro became the ninth pitcher in major-league history to strike out 3,000 batters and teamed with Jay Howell on a six-hitter. The 45-year-old Niekro, 11-4, fanned Larry Parrish in the fourth inning to reach the 3,000 career mark. He finished with five strikeouts to bring his career total to 3,003. The six hits off him were all singles as he lowered his earned run average to 1.84 with eight scoreless innings.

Ken Griffey's sacrifice fly in the second inning produced an unearned run off Dave Stewart and Don Mattingly had an RBI single in the third, his 100th hit of the season. Steve Kemp hit a solo homer in the sixth and the Yankees added two runs in the ninth on Willie Randolph's RBI single and Butch Wynegar's suicide squeeze bunt.

"I don't consider myself a strikeout pitcher," Niekro said. "And I sure don't scare anybody up there. My main concern was that it was a two-run ballgame (when he fanned Parrish). I was still concerned about pitching four or five more innings and winning the game. You can't rank things like that until

Blue Jays 6, Angels 3

Willie Aikens and Lloyd Moseby homered and Dave Stieb combined with Roy Lee Jackson on a six-hitter as Toronto climbed within seven games of Detroit. The Blue Jays trailed 2-1 in the fourth, but Moseby doubled and loser Ron Romanick hit Aikens with a pitch. Rance Mulliniks followed with a single to score Moseby and a single by Rick Leach loaded the bases.

Ernie Whitt then grounded to shortstop Rob Picciolo, who flipped, to second baseman Rob Wilfong for a forceout, but Wilfong's relay try for an inning-ending double play was wild and Aikens and Mulliniks scored for a 4-2 Toronto lead. Moseby hit a two-run homer off Curt Kaufman in the seventh. Reggie Jackson and Picciolo homered for California.

Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said Leach's takeout slide at second "won the ballgame. It was a good, clean slide. He was on top of Wilfong right away. It was no body roll or anything dirty. It was just good old hard baseball and it won us the ballgame."

Orioles 6, Twins 4

John Lowenstein slammed a two-run homer and pinch hitter Jim Dwyer added a two-run double while winner Dennis Martinez allowed five hits in six innings. Reliever Tippy Martinez allowed Ron Washington's RBI single in the seventh and Tom Brunansky's 13th home run in the ninth before recording his 12th save. Dave Engle and Randy Bush also homered for Minnesota.

Petty notches 100th race win

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When Richard Petty notched his 100th career Grand National stock car victory in 1969, he boldly stated his next goal was winning 200.

The 47-year-old driver from Randleman, N.C., achieved the milestone Wednesday, capturing the Firecracker 400 under a caution flag just two days after joking about what he'd strive for once he reached the magic plateau.

"No. 201," Petty quipped during qualifications for the annual July 4 race that attracted a crowd of 80,000, including President Reagan. "I'm not as optimistic as I used to be."

Petty, driving a Pontiac Grand Prix, outdueled Cale Yarborough coming out of the fourth turn and outraced him to the finish line by inches as the frontrunners took the yellow flag with two laps to go — meaning no driver could improve his position during the last five miles of the 400-mile event.

Yarborough lost a chance to finish second when rolled into the pits one lap too early, thinking the race had ended.

Reagan gave the traditional "Gentlemen, start your engines," command from Air Force One and talked with Petty in a bullet-proof lounge atop Daytona International Speedway after the race.

Petty and Yarborough, who led 79 of the 160 laps, were so close heading into the decisive third and fourth turns that the winner said their cars actually touched "two or three times."

Yarborough, in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, managed to get past Petty, who led the last 33 laps and 52 overall, but lost the advantage when Petty moved inside to pull even heading into the straightaway.

The yellow flag had gone up when Doug Heveron, who was not injured, spun off the track heading into the first turn. The accident started the last of three caution periods that consumed 15 laps.

The four-time Firecracker winner returned to the 2.5-mile.

Top women seeds win

BY ANDREW WARSHAW

AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd, the two top seeds, advanced to the final of the Women's singles at the Wimbledon tennis championships today with straight sets victories over Hana Mandlikova and Kathy Jordan, respectively.

Lloyd, playing one of her best matches of the year, crushed Mandlikova 6-1, 6-2 while Navratilova, the defending champion and going for a fifth singles title here, downed Jordan 6-3, 6-4.

Jordan put up the best resistance of the tournament to Navratilova, playing with great determination and fighting for every point.

But Navratilova, who had never lost to the American in 11 previous meetings, scored two crucial breaks of serve, one in each set, and held her own service with ease.

Lloyd last won Wimbledon in 1981 by beating Mandlikova in the final. The 29-year-old American took just 45 minutes today to demolish her Czechoslovak opponent in Center Court.

Pat Cash, a brash 19-year-old Australian, has made it to the semifinals of Wimbledon — and is eager for a shot at his next opponent, defending champion John McEnroe.

He will get that opportunity on Friday, and Cash wonders if McEnroe may be apprehensive.

"He's obviously quite confident but he might be a bit nervous playing me. Last time we played doubles, I returned his serve like it was a girl's serve, so I just hope I can do it again in a couple of days," Cash said Wednesday.

He conceded, however that in two previous meetings, also in doubles, he found McEnroe's serves to be "very hard."

McEnroe was in devastating form Wednesday as he crushed fellow American John Sadri 6-3, 6-3, 6-1. His only loss this year has been to Ivan Lendl in the final of the French Open.

After upsetting Gomez, he teamed with fellow Australian Paul McNamee in a marathon doubles match that was brought to a halt by darkness.

Having played for almost every day during the tournament, Cash was to have taken a well-earned rest today, but he had to complete the quarter-final doubles match — tied at two sets — against Sherwood Stewart and Mark Edmondson.

As for his chances in the doubles, Cash believes he and McNamee can take McEnroe and Peter Fleming's title.

Seeded No. 6, the two Australians already have won five tournaments this year. They trailed 1-2 in sets against Edmondson and Stewart, the No. 2 seeds, but then broke Edmondson when he served for the match and went on to level the contest.

In the two other men's quarter-finals, No. 2 seed Lendl of Czechoslovakia crushed his compatriot Tomas Smid 6-1, 7-6, 6-3, while Jimmy Connors breezed past qualifier Paul Annacone 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Annacone was the first qualifier to reach the last eight at Wimbledon since McEnroe in 1977, and Connors was impressed with his 21-year-old opponent from East Hampton, N.Y.

"He's a good player and I'm sure the things that he does not do too well will improve if he sticks with it. The difference between him and McEnroe is that Mac had been around and Annacone just came out of college, so his grass court record was not of much length," said Connors.

Q. How difficult is it to inspect rear drum brakes?

A. With a little care, the operation isn't difficult or time consuming. First, park on a level surface, engage the parking brake, block the front wheels, loosen lug nuts and jack up the rear end. It's a good idea to use jack stands under the frame. After pulling the wheel, the drum will pull free with a slight forward rotation. Use an old paint brush or vacuum cleaner to remove the dusty residue on the brake assembly. Inspect the interior for scratches and visible cracks. If worn, it should be commercially resurfaced. Examine the wheel cylinder for leakage, and all springs for evidence of breakage. To check lining thickness, if riveted, no rivets should be level with the lining surface. If bonded, linings should be no thinner than 1/16th inch - about the thickness of two plastic credit cards. Replacement is the reverse of the removal process.

Guests introduced during quarterly meeting

Miss Hereford Gina Griffin briefly addressed members of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce prior to the introduction of this year's Miss Hereford Pageant contestants during the organization's July quarterly meeting Tuesday night at the Community Center.

Members and guests enjoyed a dessert buffet hosted by the public affairs, Christmas tree and Christmas lighting committees prior to the program and business meeting.

Winners and runners-up in the Little Miss Hereford Pageant were recognized by Betty Gilbert, followed by the introduction of Miss Hereford contestants by DeeAnne Trotter, a former Miss Hereford. Dinner music was provided by Jan Walser.

It was announced that the talent and evening gown portions of the pageant will be combined at one evening event, to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 4, at the Hereford High School auditorium. Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under.

A wardrobe session for the 14 contestants is scheduled July 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the Vogue, and a swimming party is slated at 6:30 p.m. July 26 at the Country Club.

The business session was conducted by President Arvella Lauderback. Guests were welcomed and a new member, Tricia Workman, was introduced. Minutes from the previous meeting were read by Lanette Leasure, and Donna West gave the membership committee report, stating that six new members had been added.

Beauty spots of the month were announced by Sidney Kerr. The residential spot is the Bill Reinauer home, while the non-residential spot is the E.B. Black House.

The public affairs committee urged everyone to fly flags for the holiday, and Donna Jones said the pet show committee reported a successful show, with 27 animals entered.

Virginia Adams noted that the tour committee had completed a tour to Amarillo and a tour of local points of interest, and said that a trip to the museum in Canyon is planned in September.

The Town and Country Jubilee committee asked for volunteers to help at the annual event. Interested persons may leave their names at the Chamber of Commerce office. The committee meets the first Tuesday of each month.

Donna West volunteered to head a committee to prepare for the float which Miss Hereford and Little Miss Hereford winners are to ride in for the jubilee parade.

A nominating committee consisting of Ms. Gilbert, Ms. Adams, Margaret Schroeter, Ruby Carmichael and Georgia Sparks was appointed by Ms. Lauderback. Ms. Sparks reported that members of the welcome and fine arts committees served a welcome dinner to the Cowgirl Hall of Fame honorees and guests during the recent Rhinestone Roundup festivities. She commended them for their service.

Nursing orientation set

Orientation for the vocational nursing program of Amarillo College, Hereford Extension, is scheduled at 9 a.m. Saturday in the classroom of Deaf Smith General Hospital. California Achievement Tests are to be given at that time. Regular registration for the fall semester 1984 is slated from 7 to 8 p.m. Aug. 21 at Hereford High School. The first day of class is Aug. 27.

Seizure nearly fizzles Cotton Bowl display

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — The annual Fourth of July fireworks display held at the Cotton Bowl went off on schedule. Just barely.

Two truckloads of pyrotechnics ordered by the State Fair of Texas for Wednesday's extravaganza might not have arrived in Dallas had authorities in this suburb not confiscated them.

The trucks had been unexpectedly abandoned in a motel parking lot on U.S. Highway 80 in Mesquite, about five miles from the Cotton Bowl.

It took several hours and more than $1,000 to get the collected rockets, pinwheels and floral displays back on course for shows in both the Dallas stadium and in Plano, another suburb.

But officials say they would like to know why the explosive cargo made an unexplained stop in their city. They also want to know what became of the trucks' drivers, who have not been heard from since they apparently abandoned the truck Tuesday in a parking lot of the Villa Inn.

"It has never happened before," said Connie Zambelli, wife of George Zambelli, who heads the Newcastle,

Pa., fireworks company that shipped the material. "We have many drivers, but none have done this. This hasn't happened."

Mesquite Fire Chief Don Nelson said his officers towed the two rental trucks filled with the fireworks from the motel parking lot about 5 p.m.

when motel security guards notified them that they seemed to be abandoned.

Mesquite fire officials held the trucks until officials of the fireworks company paid more than $1,000 in impounding fees and fines for violating city fire codes.

MARMADUKE by Brad Anderson

The chicle that makes our chewing gum comes from a tropical tree known as the saponilla. It also grows a delicious fruit.

Some 98 percent of American households contain at least one television set.

"My horoscope said this would be one of my worst days!"

"I know the kitchen floor is cooler, Marmaduke, but..."

Horseshoes ran late, greased pigs start early

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — The beauty contest started late because the emcee had to finish a torrid horseshoes game. The greased-pig catching contest, though, went off early because the kids, itching to have at 'em, jumped the gun.

The only thing predictable about celebrating the Fourth of July in small-town America is that it will be fun.

Boston had its concert, Washington its Beach Boys, New York its fireworks extravaganza at the Statue of Liberty. But more typically across the land, in towns like Stephenville, a town of 15,000, the talent is home-grown, the games homespun, and the feeling that lingers is that the founding fathers would heartily approve.

"I think we all go home with a clearer idea of what living in America means," said Don Jones.

Jones is a former mayor of Stephenville and now a district judge. Sitting on the grass bank of the Bosque River, which meanders through the city park, he took in the view and liked what he saw: decorated booths smelling of barbecue, chili dogs, pies, people wearing shorts pushing baby strollers, balloons slipping from small hands and rising into a cobalt blue sky, the harmony of a gospel quartet adding its serenity.

"I think in some places the Fourth is treated as just a day to get off work," he said. "Here it's different. This isn't just another carnival. This is a whole town celebrating, as a town. That makes this day special to everybody here."

Just so. When those are your own kids and your neighbors' kids out there chasing greased pigs and playing tug-o-war, and you know them all, and your own volunteer firemen shooting the fireworks, your own Senior Citizens' Dixieland Band providing the music, it adds a flavor that no hired performers can match.

The pig catch, for example. The way you conduct a pig catching contest is, first, flood the Little League infield until it is sloppy mud, then "grease" two dozen pigs with well-drilling mud, a most slimy substance. Now turn loose among the pigs 50 boys and girls aged four to eight. Instruct them to catch the pigs.

The kids scream, the pigs squeal, the mud flies and the onlookers, through wild laughter, shout encouragement.

"Who is that little feller? Is that Brian Martin? Go get 'im, Brian!" Brian, age four, was too small to drag his pig by the hind legs to the finish line, the preferred method, and, a true Texan, elected to try to ride it there. He failed.

So it went Wednesday at the annual July 4 Fun Fair in Stephenville, about 90 miles southwest of Dallas.

The parade was a success; nearly as many townspeople marched as watched. The watermelon-seed spit-off was a success; winning spit: 107 inches in a mild crosswind. So was the cow chip throwing contest a success, and the hay rides, and the puppet show, and the pillow fight and the horseshoes matches. There was a lot of laughter in Stephenville yesterday.

And a lot of pride. When Miss Stephenville was crowned, the entire citizenry applauded. And when, waiting for darkness to fall and the fireworks to begin, the community choir took the stage and the entire town sang patriotic songs in the twilight. The final song, of course, the national anthem.

"I must say," said Jerry Flemmons, a native resident in his 50s, "When an entire town stands up together and sings the Star Spangled Banner, it does something to the back of your neck."

And to your eyes.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Algeria and Mexico have agreed to exchange petroleum technology and establish longterm cooperation in petroleum industrialization research, the government announced Wednesday.

The agreement was signed in Algiers, the Algerian capital, Tuesday by Mustapha Mekidechi, head of the Algerian Petroleum Engineering Institute, and Jose Luis Garcia Luna, director of the Mexican Petroleum Institute.

Both agencies are government research organizations.

Garcia Luna is a member of a government team accompanying Francisco Labastida Ochoa, the Mexico's secretary of energy and mining, on an international tour.

In a press release, the Energy and Mining Department said the Mexican Institute has promised to provide technology to set up a plant to purify propylene in Algeria and design a water desalination plant and a biodegradable detergent processing unit.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A new Pacific tropical storm, Fausto, was reported Tuesday in the Pacific Ocean about 220 miles southwest of Mazatlan and moving toward Mexico at the rate of about 10 miles per hour, the National Weather Bureau reported.

The bureau said Fausto was packing winds of between 55-75 miles per hour and officials have issued preliminary warnings for residents of the area and also navigational warnings from Baja California to Chiapas near the Guatemala border.

In recent weeks, there have been several tropical storm warnings issued for the Pacific coast but none of the storms have reached land.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The wife of former Mexico City Police Chief Arturo Durazo, who was taken into custody last week in Puerto Rico on charges related to corruption in office, says he is being treated "like the worst common criminal."

Silvia Garza de Durazo, in an interview from San Juan, Puerto Rico, with the prominent Mexican daily newspaper Excelsior, said, "We couldn't contemplate our plans. Arturo and I had decided definitely to live in Los Angeles, for a long while. We were optimistic."

Mrs. Durazo said that from Friday until Tuesday she and a lawyer had visited several jails in San Juan trying to find out her husband's whereabouts.

Durazo, 61, was detained last Friday by FBI agents at the airport in San Juan when he was trying to pass customs. The Mexican government has started extradition proceedings.

The government says the charges against Durazo are part of current President Miguel de la Madrid's crackdown on corruption. He is charged with illegal possession of firearms, tax evasion and extortion.

Polish fiddler helps rebuild Jewish cemeteries

POZNAN, Poland (AP) — A production of "Fiddler on the Roof" here ends with an army officer ordering Jews to leave their village. It is a poignant scene in a nation which in the past 50 years has witnessed the destruction and exodus of a large Jewish population.

"I wanted to produce 'Fiddler' here, where there are practically no longer any Jews," said Antoni Marianowicz, who translated the popular American musical into Polish and is the driving force behind Polish productions of the play.

Jews, "but where there are Jews, there is anti-Semitism."

In an April 15, 1981 letter to Marianowicz, himself a Jew, Stein said he hoped the arrangement would have "some small effect in helping the Polish people in their struggle for political liberty and against anti-Semitism."

Marianowicz hopes the "Fiddler" productions will net $9,000, which is only a fraction of the $1 billion the cemetery committee estimates is needed to restore the graveyards.

Besides the production in Poznan, "Fiddler" is also playing in the city of Lodz in central Poland.

According to the committee, of the 412 cemeteries, 129 have disappeared altogether. Only traces remain of 137, 78 are more than half ruined and 68 are less than half ruined.

The 200-year-old Warsaw Cemetery, one of the largest at 75 acres, is the final resting place of 200,000 Jews. Partially restored over the past decade, it resembles a forest more than a graveyard.

The dilapidated state of the Jewish cemeteries provoked angry grumbling by Jews from the United States and other Western countries who visited Poland in April 1983 for the 40th anniversary commemorations of the uprising in the Warsaw ghetto. But so far, no Jewish organizations outside Poland have made contributions to restore them, Marianowicz said.

For centuries, Poland offered Jews a haven between the more repressive policies of Russia to the East and Germany to the West.

Heavy concentrations of Jews formed in some Polish cities and in eastern Poland, most of which is now part of the Soviet Ukraine, where Jews lived in relatively isolated communities.

"They lived apart, and knew little about Polish culture," said Marianowicz. "In Poland, very few of the Jews spoke Polish well."

Many of those who escaped the Nazi Holocaust and returned to Poland during the uprising anniversary said they survived mainly because they were among the few people in their communities to speak Polish.

The Poznan production of "Fiddler" emphasizes the isolation of the Jewish community in the Ukraine. On the set, inspired by the dreamlike canvases of artist Marc Chagall, relatively simple Russian words on sign boards — such as "cheese" and "milk" — are deliberately misspelled.

Marianowicz also convinced lyricist Joseph Stein and the play's American agent, the William Morris Co., to direct their royalties from the Polish production to rebuilding the nation's 412 Jewish cemeteries.

Nearly a quarter of the cemeteries have disappeared entirely, and most of those that survive are a tumble of tombstones overgrown by grass, shrubs and trees during the 45 years since Nazi armies invaded Poland at the beginning of World War II.

"Most of them were ruined in the war, and not much has been done for them since," Marianowicz said in an interview.

During the German occupation, 3 million Jews died in Nazi death camps located in Poland. The Nazis also killed 3 million Poles who were not Jewish.

Most Polish Jews who survived the war fled. A second exodus came in 1968, when Polish Interior Minister Gen. Mieczyslaw Moczar led an official campaign against Poland's estimated 30,000 remaining Jews, prompting all but a few thousand to flee.

Most of the remaining Jews were elderly and not equipped financially to care for the hundreds of thousands of graves which have fallen into ruin or disappeared.

Several dozen Jewish and Roman Catholic artists and intellectuals formed the "Committee to Save Jewish Cemeteries" in the late 1970s to preserve what the former chairman, Eryk Lipinski, called "an important part of Poland's cultural heritage."

The governing board of the committee, including Lipinski and Marianowicz, resigned in late 1983 because they lacked support from the authorities, Lipinski said.

The government's problem is apparently financial rather than philosophical. In the grip of an economic crisis since 1979, Poland is more than $25 billion in debt to the West.

Representatives of Poland's Religious Affairs Ministry, which oversees the graveyards, declined to discuss their restoration efforts with an AP reporter.

"Anti-Semitism in Poland is theoretical now, because there are virtually no Jews," said Marianowicz.

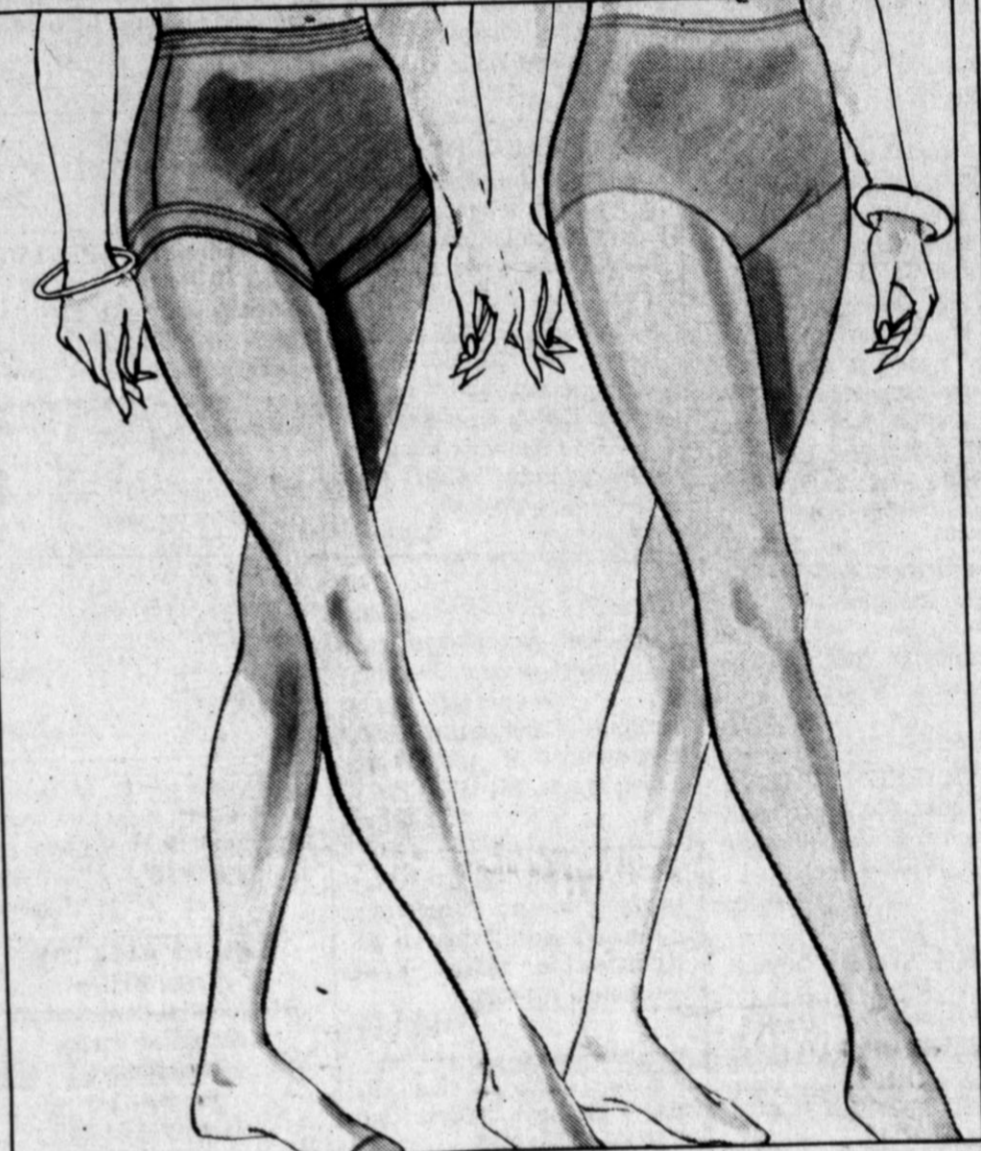

Another leader of Warsaw's Jewish community, Jewish State Theater Director Szymon Szurmiej, said in an interview that there is little ill will by the government toward
