Bias speaks on drug abuse

Drug Awareness

Father Dan Egan, known as the "Junkie Priest" for his extended work with drug addicts, joined Lonise Bias, mother of the late Len Bias, in presenting a program relating to drug abuse prevention to a crowd of over 500 parents who gathered in La Plata gym last night. The program was a part of Drug Awareness Week in Hereford.

Mrs. Lonise Bias, mother of the late Len Bias a University of Maryland basketball star who died of cocaine intoxication in 1986, came to Hereford to bring a message to parents and children. "The message is love," proclaimed the veteran of numerous radio and television broadcasts, "love for ourselves, our children, our community and our great country."

Bias spoke last night before an audience of over 500 during a presentation in LaPlata gym. She was to speak to LaPlata students at 9:20 this morning followed by appearances at Hereford High School at 10:45 and Stanton Junior High at 1 pm.

Bias made an emotional appeal that parents return to teaching basic moral values. "Today's youth are very sophisticated," she stated, "by that I mean intelligent. They won't buy the stuff we bought but the good moral principles are still the same and love has to be advanced to a higher level with them."

Stressing the importance of verbalizing love as well as signs of affection, such as touching, Bias said teens and children require quality time and the assurance of secure love.

"Our beautiful young people need to know they are loved beyond a shadow of doubt because of the perils that wait for them when they step out the front door," she admonished.

Bias cited homes broken by divorce, double standards and lack of moral values as contributing to the nation's massive drug problem.

"Modern conveniences have made us lazy and we have to work at some things. We are going to have to work and get to know our kids. We are going to have to roll up our sleeves and work to keep our families together," she exhorted, "If we can't cope and give up how can we expect our children to hang in there and cope."

Stressing that the turn around for the national drug problem must begin in the home Bias stated, "These kids are paying attention to you everyday. You have to live it. We expect our kids to give 100 percent everyday, yet some of us are giving only 40 or 50 percent."

Bias told the audience of her experiences in counseling parents and children regarding drug abuse and stated that today's 11 and 12 year-olds are facing pressures their parents didn't have until adulthood.

"Our young people need to be taught to be babies again and enjoy it," she said in response to a question concerning the fast paced sophistication of America's youth.

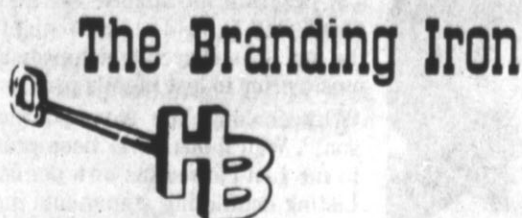

"There is a cause for everything and there is a cause for our young people taking drugs," she stated, "We as parents do not have all of the answers but the ultimate responsibility for teaching good moral standards which will alleviate pressures placed on children is the ours."

"It's time we close the doors, turn off the television and radio, put down the paper and listen to our children."

Bias recommended teaching children their worth as individuals and the value they can contribute to society along with teaching them there is nothing wrong with being good.

Harshness in dealing with a child on drugs only breeds rejection, cautioned Bias. She advised treating the abuser with "TLC" and seeking professional help.

Bias raised the issue of her son's death saying, "You may be saying, (See BIAS SPEAKS, Page 2)

Ruben Gutierrez has been in the service station business for 17 years. He now owns a Kerr McGee station on First street but he bought his first station while still attending Hereford High School.

Gas station fuels man's career

Bought station in high school

"I had just moved here," he recalls, "I had been going to school in Dimmitt and had been working on a farm." While a senior at HHS Gutierrez approached a courageous banker who lent the industrious teen money to purchase a station which was next door to one his brother owned.

"I hired a guy to run it in the mornings and when I got out of school in the afternoon I went to work," remembers Gutierrez who says finishing school wasn't that hard for him even though he put in 10 or more hours a day at the station.

Challenges were nothing new for the teen, Gutierrez speaks with pride of his background, "My father died when I was four years-old, my mother, Zoila, raised eight children by herself."

Born in Mexico, Gutierrez and his family waited several years for permission to immigrate to the United States. "We moved to Dimmitt in 1964, I was almost 13 years-old and knew no English," he recalls.

"I learned English in school, I just got after it," he says, "On Sunday afternoons we would go to the Goodwill Store and be tutored in English. I remember Leta Kaul teaching me."

Gutierrez speaks English with no discernible accent today. He says it took him about two years to master the language and he has doubts about the bi-lingual programs in school today. "I don't go for it because it sets kids back. First and second graders may need it but after that kids can pick up what they need to know."

Gutierrez met and married his wife, Susan, through a friend. She helped him with his efforts to become a naturalized citizen. "I owned a business and a home and was married before I completed the process, it took much longer back then," Gutierrez comments.

Members of Wesley United Methodist Church, the couple have three children Ruben, 12, Rebecca, 7, and Regina, 4. Though his children do not have the difficult living situation he grew up with Gutierrez places emphasis on earning privileges through responsibilities. "I don't just give them money, I tell my son if he wants to play golf he must mow the lawn and then I will give him the money," Gutierrez says.

Civic responsibility is another example he sets for his family. "I fell like a person ought to add something to their community and I'm never afraid to take a stand. Some people are afraid to speak out for fear they might be wrong and get em embarrassed, but I figure if you're wrong you're wrong it's nothing to be embarrassed about," he states.

Asked to sum up his life Gutierrez responds, "I've worked all my life and I'm pleased with where I've been and with what I've accomplished."

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the mother who can handle her children with dispatch is the one who gets them ready and sends them next door to play before the youngsters there can get to her house.

This is the time of year when a little hard work on your lawn will pay with you a lot of hard work later on.

The speed limits on Texas' rural interstate highways is expected to go into effect Saturday morning. Pending the governor's signature and highway department crews posting the new signs, the speed limit be raised to 65 mph on the rural interstates. The nearest rural interstates for local motorists would be I-20 between Amarillo and Lubbock, or I-40, the east-west interstate through Amarillo.

We forgot to inform our readers Monday that it was "Tax Freedom Day." What that means is the average American worked the first 184 days of the year just to get his taxes paid, and now we're working for ourselves!

Economists calculate that if every cent a worker earned during the first 124 days, it would satisfy his or her personal federal, state and local tax bill for 1987. This also equates to two hours and 43 minutes of every eight-hour work day.

The Tax Foundation reports that the "magic" day has moved backwards only two times in the past 57 years—from May 3 to April 30 in 1983 and from April 30 to April 28 in 1984. Just for the record, the tax freedom day came on Feb. 13 in 1930!

A friend says he overheard this story in the coffee shop. Clint Formby, the KPAN Radio man, and Doug Manning, who has been known to take shots at Formby in his "Penultimate Word" column, were having a cup of coffee and Manning got up to leave.

"Go ahead, I'll buy your coffee," said Formby.

"Thanks, Clint," said Manning. "I'll preach at your funeral someday, but I don't have any 90-cent sermons."

"That's okay," countered Formby. "You can give the other 25 cents to my wife."

Clements OKs speed limit of 65

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements signed the proclamation that will raise the speed limit on rural interstate highways to 65 mph, beginning Saturday.

"Any federal bureaucrat who thought the 55 mph limit was reasonable never drove a highway mile in Texas," Clements said after signing the measure Wednesday.

The new speed limit, authorized earlier by Congress and the state highway commission, takes effect this weekend.

It applies to about 2,441 miles of the 3,147-mile interstate highway system in Texas, the stretches outside urban areas. It does not apply to federal or state highways, where the maximum limit remains 55 mph, officials said.

Clements also autographed a 65 mph highway sign like those being posted across the state this week. He said he believes the action will be a popular one with motorists.

"Texans have wanted the speed limit changed to 65 mph virtually since the day the federal government lowered the limit from 70 mph to 55 mph in the early 1970s," he said.

Clements also said the lower speed limit, enacted during the Arab oil embargo, had caused difficulties for Texans.

"The reduced limit didn't have much of an impact on smaller states like Rhode Island or Delaware. It had a major impact in Texas."

"It affected the family who wanted to drive across the state to visit relatives but only had a weekend. It affected businesses and industries that wanted to get their products from one point to another as quickly and as cheaply as possible," he said.

To obtain a balanced state budget

Clements says he is 'being flexible'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and top legislative leaders were in a bargaining mood after Clements said he is willing to back down from his no-new-taxes pledge to obtain a balanced 1988-89 state budget.

Emerging from a two-hour meeting with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Comptroller Bob Bullock on Wednesday, Clements said he is being flexible in agreeing to a tax bill that could exceed the $2.9 billion limit he set earlier this year.

Under the proposals being considered by the leaders, Clements said, the sales tax rate would be lowered. At the same time, the base would be broadened to include items and services not now taxed.

If that raises more money than the $2.9 billion he previously said was the maximum he would approve, that's all right, Clements said.

"It's entirely possible. You betcha. That would hopefully be an objective, that we might increase our revenues and at the same time reduce the rates," Clements told a news conference.

Asked about his oft-repeated threats to veto any tax plan that wasn't "revenue neutral," Clements replied: "Well, we're not going to dwell on that."

Clements' announcement came the day after he concluded a 17-city tour launched to rally public support for his position against higher taxes.

Aides said the change was a move by Clements to end the impasse that has kept the governor and the Legislature at odds for months. It comes less than four weeks before lawmakers end their regular session.

"You show leadership by compromise and trying to solve problems, not by drawing lines in the dirt," said Reggie Bashur, the governor's press secretary.

"He's trying to be flexible. He's trying to accommodate in the pursuit of solving the problem and doing it without a special session," Bashur said.

The impasse developed after Clements proposed a $36.9 billion budget that would require the $2.9 billion in extra taxes. Then the Senate approved a $39.9 billion budget that needs nearly $6 billion more, and the House approved a $39.4 billion spending plan.

"What I have done here is once again demonstrate my flexibility. I've been telling ya'll all this time how flexible I am, but you wouldn't believe me. And now you have positive proof of it," Clements told reporters Wednesday.

The governor said the tax reform plan being negotiated would emphasize fairness and equity by adding to the tax rolls about 150,000 Texans who now escape paying taxes, while lowering or eliminating taxes for others who the governor says pay too much.

The sales tax rate — currently 5½ cents — would be lowered. Bashur said Clements favors a rate around 4½ cents.

"What we're trying to do here is come up with a broader base and lower the rate. If we can't come out of here with a lower rate, then our sessions are not going to be successful," Clements said.

All three leaders said no final deal has been struck.

"We are considering the various alternatives," he said, adding that "it's far too early to get into those details" on exactly how far above $2.9 billion the new revenue total will go.

"Those decisions will be made in due course," he said.

The leaders said alternatives are being discussed that would retain essential state services and provide a major overhaul of the tax structure that has been outdated as the state's economy increasingly becomes service-oriented.

"I personally think we will need to raise additional revenue above what we now have to address some of the needs. We're going to be moving posthaste on trying to solve this problem," Lewis said.

Hobby noted that other options being considered include changes in the franchise tax and other levies paid by businesses.

As a deal is negotiated, Clements' aides said the governor might gain several things he has wanted from lawmakers. Among items being discussed, they said, are:

— Increased power for the governor over state spending in emergencies, the so-called budget execution authority that Clements has sought since taking office Jan. 20.

— An "inspector general" appointed by the governor to oversee education spending.

— A "rainy day fund" to give the state a financial cushion to help weather economic downturns.

Bush seeks support of Hispanics

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush, stumping for support among Hispanics at a $1,000-a-plate fundraiser, said he was confident that a congressional Iran-Contra hearing would not hurt his bid for the presidency.

"I look forward to the outcome and what it means to my vice presidency and my running (for president) because I've told the total truth," Bush said Wednesday. "No one has contradicted me and no one will."

"To some degree, I'll be glad when it's over because I think people are really focusing on the main problems facing this country," Bush said.

Bush told reporters before his meeting with Hispanics that their voting strength is important.

"They are vital to my carrying this state of Texas in a primary. It is very important to my overall plans to be president. There is no way that anybody can diminish the importance of our state," he said.

Reporters were barred from the 45-minute meeting attended by about 175 Hispanics leaders from across the state. "He very, very much wants the support of Hispanics across the United States and has asked us to keep an open door to all Hispanics, Republican or Democrat," said Roy Barrera Jr., a former state district judge and Bush's state campaign vice chairman.

"I think that in 1988, we're going to see the Hispanic bloc that has traditionally gone to the Democratic Party split up," said Barrera, an unsuccessful GOP candidate for state attorney general.

"I see that based upon the fact that there are going to be so many young Hispanics who are going to be participating and who don't feel the allegiance that their parents felt to the Democratic Party and are going to vote for the person," he said.

Retaliation urged on milk import ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than two weeks after a temporary solution to a Mexican ban on U.S. milk, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is urging the United States trade representative to prepare for retaliation against price controls.

The controls come in the wake of stepped up health regulations on imported milk, which effectively sealed the Mexican-Texas border to exports from American dairies.

A confrontation was avoided when the Mexican government agreed to allow U.S. dairies 60 days to comply with the new regulations.

Bentsen, D-Texas and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, reacted Wednesday in a letter to U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

"The price controls which have been imposed only on U.S. milk are in effect a new ban on U.S. milk imports," Bentsen said in his letter. "Such an action, like the earlier ban, is a clear violation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade."

Bentsen said the Mexican action should not be treated lightly, particularly considering the earlier agreement.

New AIDS virus may cause epidemic

BOSTON (AP) — A lethal relative of the AIDS virus is likely to spread from Africa to the rest of the world, which could seriously complicate the already difficult job of finding an AIDS vaccine, researchers say.

The microbe, HIV-2, also could raise questions about the accuracy of AIDS tests.

HIV-2, discovered in 1984, genetically resembles HIV-1, the virus that causes AIDS found in the United States, and SIV, the virus that causes an AIDS-like disease in monkeys.

In a report in today's New England Journal of Medicine, doctors from the Pasteur Institute in Paris showed that HIV-2 can cause acquired immune deficiency syndrome indistinguishable from that triggered by HIV-1.

"It seems to be localized at the moment" in West Africa, said Dr. Francois Clavel. "But there is no reason why this epidemic would not spread over Africa or Europe or other countries like HIV-1 did, unless we are very vigilant and can detect carriers of the virus."

Earlier, Pasteur researchers reported finding HIV-2 in two AIDS patients. Clavel said the latest study, documenting HIV-2 infection in 30 people, provides strong evidence that the virus actually causes the disease.

The two viruses appear to attack the body in similar ways. Clavel said that while some parts of HIV-1 and HIV-2 are genetically alike, others are different, and the overall genetic similarity is about 40 percent.

Just what this means for finding an AIDS vaccine is unclear. Clavel said drug manufacturers may be able to base a vaccine on parts of the two viruses that are identical, so one vaccine would block both AIDS viruses.

However, Dr. Norman Letvin of the New England Regional Primate Research Center, an expert on the monkey AIDS virus, says he fears that people vaccinated against HIV-1 will remain susceptible to HIV-2.

The emergence of HIV-2, he said, "adds another huge level of complexity onto the issue of successfully vaccinating the population. None of this is good news."

In their report, the French researchers wrote that "it appears clear the HIV-2, a virus related to but distinct from HIV-1, is the cause of AIDS in some West Africans and that a new AIDS epidemic is possible (but not yet documented) in West Africa."

Because of this, Clavel said, the standard screening test used to check blood for AIDS often will miss the HIV-2 virus. So these tests, at least when used in Africa, should be modified to include sensitivity to HIV-2.

BIAS SPEAKS

"Drugs are inanimate, drugs can never make a drug addict it takes a drug plus a person," he stated.

Egan expressed that decaying moral values and a society which has confused materialistic pleasures with happiness have made this young generation prime targets for drug abuse.

"All human beings are looking for one thing in life and it is happiness," he stated, "Pleasure by nature is in the body and because it is in the body it is passing. Happiness by nature is in the soul and because it is in the soul it is lasting."

He stressed that unhappy people will seek drug induced highs, which are a pleasure, to substitute for happiness which is unrelated to possessions. "If a person's reality is happy and secure drug highs are not desired," he explained.

"Pleasure equals material things yet we have been sucked in by society to believe these things are real, they are not real they can be destroyed," he stated listing reality as love, kindness, compassion and sympathy which bring happiness but cannot be seen.

Exhorting parents to know the difference between their children's wants, "a new tv", and needs, "secure knowledge that they are loved", Egan stated that many parents are going along with misplaced societal values which are desensitizing kids.

"If you keep giving them everything they want they end up with a lot of garbage that brings them pleasure but not happiness. Happy kids do not run away, they don't commit suicide and they don't do drugs," he stated.

Parents need to evaluate themselves he said, "You are good at giving them what they want but are you good at giving them what they need."

Egan and Bias spoke to an adults only audience last night as part of Drug Awareness Week sponsored by the Hereford Independent School District, District Attorney's Office, Sheriff and Police departments, Ministerial Alliance, various civic clubs and the Chemical People.

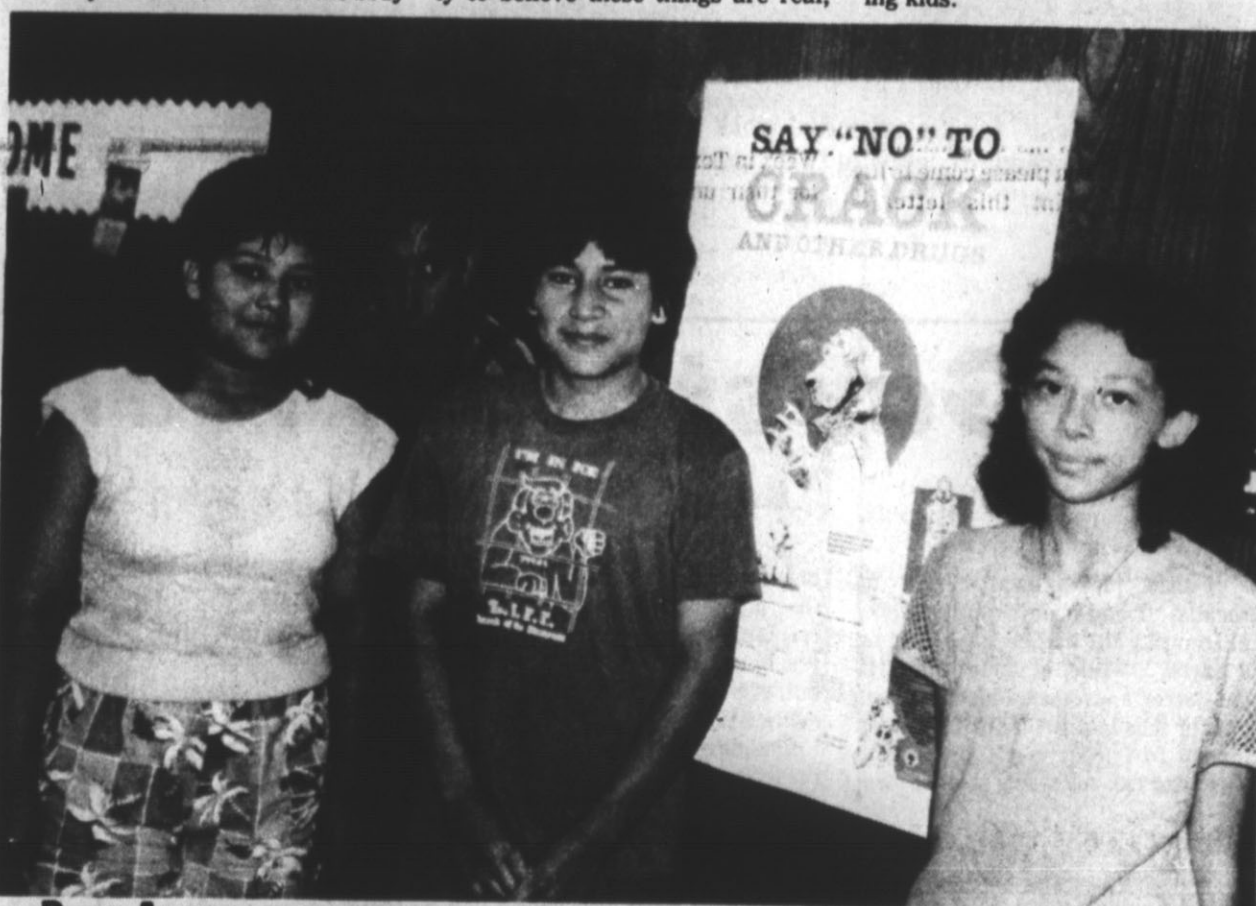

Hereford Cablevision taped the program for broadcast on the local channel on Friday at 7 pm and on Sunday afternoon at 3.

A program for Spanish speaking people will be held at 7:30 tonight in the San Jose church which provided music prior to last night's program.

"Why couldn't you save your own son?", Well it has never been proven to me Len caused his own demise." Listing conflicting statements made during the investigation and the latest coroner's report Bias added, "He was a sacrifice used to draw attention to the problem which kills millions. Len Bias has done more in death than he ever could have done had he lived. God took one man to save millions."

Bias preceded Father Dan Egan who also spoke about love as a preventative tool against the war on drugs. Egan, who will be 72 years-old next month, has spent more than 30 years working with young drug addicts and is now engaged in presenting educational programs on prevention which he considers more critical than rehabilitation.

"Hugs not drugs," said the energetic priest, "it may sound silly but it is true." He explained that too much attention is often placed on the drugs and not enough given to the real issue which is the user.

Ann Landers

Views vary on whippings

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disappointed in your response to the girl whose mother used the strap on her. The gym teacher noticed the bruises on her legs and backside and called it "child abuse." Why are you against strapping a child when the Bible tells us in plain language that this is what parents should do?

The Book of Proverbs mentions many times that the rod must be used. Proverbs 23:13 says: "Withhold not correction from the child for if thou beatest him with the rod he shall not die." Proverbs 23:14 says: "Thou shalt beat him with the rod and shalt deliver his soul from death."

There is no substitute for a good whipping. I have seen the results of trying to reason with kids. They are arrogant, disrespectful and mouthy. Parents may wish for a more "humane" way but there is none. Beating children is God's way of getting parents to gain control over their children.

It all boils down to whether people should believe God's word or the word of some so-called "expert," such as a psychologist. After reading hundreds of news stories about teenagers on dope, teenagers who steal and murder and teenagers who commit suicide, I'll take the Bible any day.—Davisville, W.Va.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were on target when you said hitting and strapping destroy a person's self-esteem.

For years I have been struggling with self-hatred. Therapy has helped me to function as normally as possible, but all the confidence and creativity has been beaten out of me.

With the help of some wonderful high school teachers I was able to make it to college. I have a good position, but I am terrified to try for promotions because I am afraid of the challenge.

I have never been able to sustain a relationship with a man because I always pick men whose lifestyles and attitudes guarantee the destruction of my self-worth. Marriage and children are out of the question. I am afraid I might replicate myself, and this would be a nightmare.

Like "Abused in Stockton," I never questioned my mother's practices. Years later I am learning that mental and physical abuse is savaging.

I hope you will print my letter. There are too many misguided parents out there who do not realize that they are creating emotional cripples in the name of religion.—Victim in Harrisburg, Pa.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every time the in-laws come over they bring their dog. As soon as we open the door, "Rex" is off like a bolt of lightning. He chases our cat through the house and scares her half to death. The barking drives me crazy.

Yesterday, the cat jumped on the dining room table. I had just set it for dinner. She knocked over the glasses and ruined the flowers. Rex was so hyper he threw up on the carpet.

My in-laws are lovely people and I don't want to disrupt our fine relationship, but I can't take it anymore. My husband refuses to talk to his parents about this, although I've explained that it is his responsibility, not mine. Will you please come to my rescue and print this letter?—Headache in Beaverbrook, Ohio

DEAR HEADACHE: The solution is simple. When the in-laws come over, put your cat in another room and close the door.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

3-2 over Philadelphia

Puhl's pinch hit boosts Astros to win

By The Associated Press

Terry Puhl has gone from a regular spot in the Astros lineup to the team's ace pinch hitter, and the Houston outfielder admits it's been an adjustment.

Puhl's pinch-hit single with two out in the top of the ninth scored Jose Cruz with the winning run Wednesday night, as Houston handed the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 loss. Puhl is now 6-12 as a pinch hitter.

"I kind of cherish my at-bats now," said Puhl, who was a regular for seven years before being hampered by injuries the past two seasons.

"I try to get good swings and concentrate a lot more when I'm hitting now," Puhl said. "I think if I ever get back to being a regular I'll be a better hitter."

Puhl's game-winning hit made a winner of reliever Larry Andersen, 3-1, who celebrated his 34th birthday by pitching two scoreless innings.

"I don't remember ever pitching on my birthday before," said Andersen, "so this was really great."

Andersen was released by the Phillies last May 13 and signed with Houston two days later.

"It sounds corny but I have a place in my heart for Philadelphia," Andersen said. "I have a lot of friends here and they are really good people."

With the score tied at 2-2, Cruz opened the Houston ninth with a single off losing pitcher Kent Tekulve, 1-1. Cruz went to second on Mark Bailey's sacrifice and moved to third on pinch-hitter Craig

Reynolds' ground out.

Puhl then hit a smash that Tekulve could not hold, and beat the reliever's throw to first base.

"I think I should have handled it," Tekulve said. "It was in and out of my glove."

Since both pinch hitters Reynolds and Puhl are left-handed batters, there was some question as to why Phillies Manager John Felske did not bring in a left-handed pitcher to replace the right-handed Tekulve.

"I used my best pitcher," a slightly irate Felske explained. "That's why I let Tekulve pitch to two left-handed batters. I thought he could get them out."

Tekulve agreed with his manager. "I've been in this league a long time," said Tekulve, 40, "and I've seen a lot of left-handers."

It was the third straight loss for the Phillies despite seven strong innings by Don Carman, who allowed just two runs on six hits and struck out six.

"Carman really pitched outstanding," said Felske. "We played well but we're still not making the big plays. It's no fun to lose."

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, St. Louis shut out San Diego 3-0; strong starting pitching helped New York over Cincinnati 3-2 and Los Angeles get past Pittsburgh 2-1; Montreal downed Atlanta 6-2; and Chicago beat San Francisco 9-4.

Cardinals 3, Padres 0

Joe Magrane isn't the least bit intimidated by the major leagues.

The rookie left-hander, in just his third appearance since being elevated from the minors on April 24, pitched a four-hit shutout as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Diego Padres 3-0 Wednesday night.

"I went right at the hitters," Magrane said. "I was just very aggressive. I don't try to worry about them hitting me. If I do what I'm supposed to do, everything will fall into place."

Most of the San Diego hitters fell into place for Magrane, who didn't allow a baserunner beyond first base and faced only 29 batters. The only hits off him by the 7-22 Padres were two singles by Luis Salazar, one each by Randy Ready and Steve Garvey.

Magrane, the Cardinals' top pick in the 1985 draft, received help from right fielder Curt Ford, who leaped just above the outfield fence to one-hand an eighth-inning drive shot by Salazar. Magrane walked none and struck out three.

Mets 3, Reds 2

The Mets snapped a three-game losing streak behind Rick Aguilera, who tied a career high with nine strikeouts, and Jesse Orosco, who pitched the ninth for his seventh save.

Aguilera, 3-1, gave up a run in the first inning on consecutive singles by Kal Daniels and Kurt Stillwell and two wild pitches. The right-hander got 13 of 14 batters at one stretch but, in the eighth, he allowed singles to Daniels and Stillwell with none out. He struck out Dave Parker and Eric Davis before Buddy Bell's bloop single to left field made it 3-2. Then Aguilera, who walked one, struck out Bo Diaz to end the inning.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 1

Orel Hershiser pitched a seven-hitter, striking out seven and retiring 16 of the last 18 batters for his third complete game of the season.

"I had a good curve ball tonight and I didn't want to get beat on my second-best pitch," said Hershiser. "I had good movement on my sinker, but I was throwing the curve for strikes and I stayed with that."

Rick Reuschel, who gave up six hits, has lost four straight games to the Dodgers dating back to June 1981, and still is looking for his first victory at Dodger Stadium since August 1977.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Terry Puhl's infield single, on which reliever Kent Tekulve got a glove but couldn't handle, drove in Jose Cruz with the winning run with two outs in the ninth. Cruz opened the inning with a single, was sacrificed to second by Mark Bailey and went to third as pinch-hitter Craig Reynolds grounded out.

Solid relief pitching helped the Astros. Larry Andersen pitched two scoreless innings and Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his sixth save. Cubs 9, Giants 4

The heavy-hitting Cubs got two home runs from Jody Davis and two RBI from Andre Dawson, who tied Eric Davis for the league lead with 27.

Davis raised his home run total to seven. The Cubs, leading the National League East, have 14 homers in the last six games and have outscored the opposition 38-15 in 26 games. They're also 6-0 in night games this year.

Candy Maldonado hit two homers and Bob Melvin got one for the Giants. Expos 6, Braves 2

Bryn Smith, making a comeback from elbow surgery last November, picked up his first victory with five strong innings, although he gave up a two-run homer to Glenn Hubbard.

Tim Raines, who is batting .450 in his five games since re-signing with Montreal as a free agent on May 1, had two hits and knocked in a run. Vance Law homered for the Expos, who have won four of the five games Raines has played.

Consumers take pro-active approach

The quest for healthy eating has taken on an extra dimension as consumers seek more of the right foods, instead of just looking at what should be cut back, according to the Food Marketing Institute (FMI).

Armed with more and better nutrition information, consumers are consciously selecting foods that produce a positive result of increased fitness and energy, thereby enhancing the quality of life, said Tim Hammonds, vice president of research and education for FMI, which tracks consumer attitudes about nutrition with an annual survey.

"I believe we are seeing a very important transition of attitude," said Hammonds. Consumers have graduated from a "general concern" about nutrition to more specific issues.

But, even as consumers become smarter about the health benefits of good nutrition, they still need help with specific food selections, he pointed out.

"The need is for broad-based, simple health guidelines that consumers can easily grasp and use," Hammonds said. Guidelines from government and various health associations show what elements in foods to limit to help prevent specific diseases, such as heart disease and cancer.

Beyond this, there are basic nutritional concepts that can be used daily to make healthy food choices at the supermarket. Local dietitians recommend these:

—Choose foods daily from each of the four major food groups—Milk and other dairy products, including cheese and yogurt, vegetables and fruits, poultry and fish, and breads and cereals.

—Have at least the minimum number of servings suggested from each group—three to four servings from the milk group, three to five each from vegetables and fruits, two to three from meat group, and six or more from breads and cereals. Limit total amount of food eaten to maintain desirable body weight.

Cheerleader camp set camp. The camp is open to all area high school, junior high school and middle school cheerleaders. For further details about the camp call 1-800-238-0286. (Inside Tennessee call 1-800-523-6135.

In 1985, Americans spent about $90 billion on home remodeling. About $45.5 billion—slightly more than half—was spent by do-it-yourselfers, according to Georgia-Pacific, a maker of building products.

Texas defeats Cleveland 7-2

Hough, Parrish power Rangers to victory

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Indians had two strikes against them before the first pitch was thrown Wednesday night at Arlington Stadium.

In the first place, they were facing Texas Rangers knuckleballer Charlie Hough, who had beaten them eight straight times.

Second, Larry Parrish, who had homered against them Tuesday night, has always enjoyed success against knuckleball pitchers. And Phil Niekro, the dean of knucklers, was starting for Cleveland.

So the Rangers' 7-2 victory should have come as no surprise. Hough went the distance, didn't allow an earned run, didn't walk a batter and struck out six.

And Parrish touched Niekro for a 2-run homer, his second in two nights.

"Hough is one of the best knuckleball pitchers in the game," said Cleveland manager Pat Corrales. "And tonight he was better than ours."

Not only did Parrish homer off Niekro, but so did Pete Incaviglia and Pete O'Brien, accounting for six of the seven runs off the veteran right-hander, who lost for the first time this season after two victories.

"I've always had success against knuckleball pitchers," said Parrish, who faced Phil and brother Joe Niekro when he was with Montreal in the National League. "Maybe that makes me one of the weird guys."

"Phil acually pitched pretty well, but as with most knucklers, if the ball doesn't move, it's nothing but a 75-mph off-speed pitch, and they usually get hurt with them."

Incaviglia was the first to hurt Niekro when he connected for his 11th homer the year with two runners aboard in the first, wiping out a 2-0 lead Cleveland had built in the top of the first on two unearned runs.

"He made a mistake," said Incaviglia, "and luckily I didn't let him get away with it."

In the fourth, Parrish hit his sixth home run of the season, increasing the lead to 5-2. O'Brien's fourth of the season came with the bases empty in the fifth, and Parrish plated the final run with an RBI single off reliever Rich Yeti in the eighth.

Parrish came into the Cleveland series fresh from a two-game suspension levied against him for bumping an umpire on April 24.

His home run against the Indians in Tuesday's 6-5 victory tied him with Toby Harrah for the most home runs (56) hit by a Ranger at Arlington Stadium in a career.

Wednesday night he became the new career leader.

And also on Wednesday night, Hough became the all-time Texas leader in innings pitched, totaling 1,417 to surpass Fergie Jenkins' mark of 1,410.

In other American League games, it was California 3, Milwaukee 0; New York 4, Chicago 1; Kansas City

6, Toronto 3; Baltimore 6, Minnesota 0; Boston 6, Oakland 2; and Detroit 7, Seattle 5.

Angels 3, Brewers 0

The Milwaukee Brewers have gone from the sublime to the ridiculous.

After winning 20 of their first 23 games, including a record-tying 13-0 start, the Brewers have not only dropped three in a row but have suffered the indignity of two consecutive shutouts for the first time since 1981.

"When you can't score runs, you can't score runs," Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn philosophized following Wednesday's 3-0 loss to the California Angels.

"Every team goes through that. We hope it's just a short-term thing. It's not something you can turn on and off. But give the guy on the hill some credit, too."

The guys on the hill for California were Mike Witt, who allowed four hits while striking out nine over seven innings, and DeWayne Buice, who allowed one hit the rest of the way for his first major-league save.

California, which has won four in a row and has a one-game lead over Kansas City and Minnesota in the AL West, got the only run it needed against Milwaukee on Jack Howell's second-inning homer off Mike Birkbeck. The Angels added two in the ninth on Howell's double, Dick Schofield's single, a sacrifice fly by Darrell Miller and Gary Pettis' single.

Yankees 4, White Sox 1

Rick Rhoden pitched New York's second straight two-hitter as the Yankees moved back into second place in the AL East, 3½ games behind Milwaukee. Rhoden gave up singles to Ron Karkovics in the third inning and Ron Hassey in the fourth in his first victory since April 20.

New York went in front 1-0 in the first inning and stretched the lead to 4-0 in the third. Rickey Henderson doubled and scored on Don Mattingly's single. Mattingly came around on singles by Dave Winfield and Gary Ward and Lenn Sakata's RBI single chased Chicago starter Floyd Bannister.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 3

Hal McRae doubled home two runs and Bud Black checked Toronto on six hits through six innings in his first start in exactly a year. McRae, the Royals' 41-year-old player-coach, doubled to cap a three-run first inning against Jimmy Key as the Royals stretched their winning streak to four games, longest of the season, and climbed into second place in the AL West.

Orioles 6, Twins 0

Scott McGregor pitched a three-hitter for his first victory of the season and Cal Ripken capped a four-run third inning with a three-run homer. Ripken's homer was his ninth of the season, giving him 30 RBIs. His last nine hits have been for extra bases, including four homers.

Red Sox 6, Athletics 2

Mike Greenwell, again filling in for the injured Jim Rice, hit a tie-breaking three-run homer in the seventh inning. Greenwell, who drove in Boston's first run with a third-inning grounder, hit a pitch from Steve Ontiveros just inside the right-field foul pole, 302 field from home plate, for his third home run of the season.

Tigers 7, Mariners 5

Darrell Evans, Kirk Gibson and Matt Nokes hit home runs as Detroit snapped a four-game losing streak. Winner Walt Terrell allowed eight hits in 7 1-3 innings for his first victory since April 9, making him 21-6 lifetime at Tiger Stadium.

Seattle's Ken Phelps had four hits, including his eighth homer.

Lead Houston two games to none

Sonics are on emotional high

By JIM COUR
AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — Playoff hero Dale Ellis of the Seattle SuperSonics is talking about a playoff sweep over the Houston Rockets.

"I'd love to sweep the Rockets," Ellis said. "Sweeping would be even sweeter because of the incident."

Ellis and teammate Kevin Williams were arrested and jailed early Sunday following an altercation at a Houston nightclub.

He responded with a game-high 30 points in a 97-95 Seattle victory Tuesday night for a 2-0 Sonics' lead in the teams' NBA second-round playoff series.

"We're on an emotional high," said Ellis.

The Sonics will try to make it six straight playoff victories — and take a 3-0 lead over the Rockets — in the best-of-seven game Western Conference semifinal series tonight in the Seattle Coliseum.

Seattle won the first two games in Houston, including a 111-106 overtime decision last Saturday night.

Coach Bill Fitch is pessimistic about his Rockets' chances of coming back against the surprising Sonics.

"Definitely, they are putting the dirt in our face," Fitch said. "We're either all through or it's just starting. It doesn't look good."

Only four teams in NBA history have come back from a 2-0 deficit to win a best-of-seven series. And the only team to lose the first two games at home and win a series was the Los Angeles Lakers against San Francisco in 1969.

If the Sonics win game three, they could close out the Rockets Saturday afternoon in Seattle.

"We want our fans rocking and hanging from the rafters," said Sonics Coach Bernie Bickerstaff. "We're amazed to have won two games in Houston, but we did."

However, Bickerstaff isn't making any claims about a series sweep, pointing out that the Rockets could win two games in Seattle as easily as the Sonics won two in Houston. "Now, it's just a matter of will and self discipline," he said.

After posting a 39-43 regular-season record to get into the playoffs for the first time in three seasons, the Sonics weren't supposed to be in this position.

They were underdogs against Dallas but took the Mavericks 3-1 in a best-of-five game opening-round playoff series. They were underdogs against Houston, too, after the Rockets disposed of Portland 3-1.

Seattle's five wins in a row in the playoffs are the team's longest winning streak of the season. It's also the longest winning skein in the franchise's 20-year history, although the Sonics won the NBA championship in 1979.

"I've never been on a team where we've been on such a fantastic roll as this," said Sonics forward Tom Chambers.

The Sonics beat Dallas and won their first game in Houston without starting center Alton Lister. They won Tuesday night despite the arrests and jailing of Ellis and Williams. They were released in time to play the game, and Ellis said he used his arrest as additional motivation.

Ellis and Williams probably won't appear in Harris (Texas) County Criminal Court on charges stemming from an altercation in the Houston night club until after the Sonics are through with the playoffs, Sonics President Bob Whitsitt said.

The Sonics got Lister back against Houston Tuesday night and he played 16 minutes. He missed Seattle's final seven regular-season games and its first five playoff contests with a broken bone in his right foot.

The 7-foot Lister believes he can be more effective Thursday night.

"The main thing is my mind was put to ease," he said. "Now I know I can play and not be tentative. Now I know I can be out there and contribute."

Fitch said he is not surprised by the Sonics' playoff performances.

"I've always felt that Seattle had a better team than their record indicated," he said. "They have always played the good teams well this year. They just didn't always fare too well against the bad clubs."

Ralph Sampson of the Rockets noted that Houston committed 18 turnovers in game two.

"Seattle forces you to make mistakes and they capitalize on the errors," he said.

ON 400 HITTERS

NEW YORK (AP) — What price individual brilliance in baseball? There have been 13 batting averages of .400 or better in this century and not one was on a pennant-winning team.

Nap Lajoie of the Philadelphia A's was the first to do it, batting .422 in 1901. The A's finished fourth. The last man to reach that lofty mark was Ted Williams in 1941. Ted batted .406 but the Boston Red Sox were second to the Yankees in the American League.

The other 400 hitters were Ty Cobb, three times; Rogers Hornsby, three times; George Sisler, twice; Joe Jackson, Harry Heilmann and Bill Terry, the last National Leaguer to do so. Terry hit .401 in 1930.

Although the Giants, both in New York and San Francisco, played in the World Series 15 times, they never won a seven-game series. They lost three.
