Thirteen massacred in San Salvador cafe

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Gunmen dressed as Salvadoran soldiers sprayed a crowded outdoor cafe with automatic weapons fire, killing at least 13 people including four U.S. Marines and two other Americans, officials said today.

James Williams, a U.S. Embassy spokesman, said two Marines escaped injury in the Wednesday night attack. All the Marines were embassy guards, and all were in civilian clothes, he said. The United States has U.S. Marine guards at all its embassies worldwide.

Williams said officials of Interdata, a computer company, told the embassy that two of its employees who were American citizens were killed in the attack.

Earlier, he said four Guatemalans and five Salvadorans had been killed. Williams said he was not sure whether the two Interdata employees were among those originally identified as Guatemalans or Salvadorans. He said Interdata did not identify the two employees.

Witnesses said at least 12 people were wounded, but that number could not be confirmed.

Williams said it was not clear if the attack was directed at the Marines. No group immediately claimed responsibility for the shootings.

"At this point it appears to have been an act of random terrorism," he said. He characterized the gunmen as "a squad of guerrillas dressed as though they were members of the Salvadoran armed forces."

The State Department said the Marine Corps was notifying relatives, and would then release the names of the dead.

Navy Cmdr. Albert A. Schaufelberger was the only other American serviceman to be killed in El Salvador. He was shot to death when he went to a university to pick up his girlfriend in May 1983.

The Marines were seated at a sidewalk table when the gunmen "pulled up in automobiles, hopped out and began spraying" patrons of the cafe located in Zona Rosa, an area of nightclubs and restaurants in the capital. They escaped in a pickup truck, Williams said.

He said there were between six and 10 assailants. State Department spokeswoman Vivienne Ascher in Washington said there were between eight and 12 gunmen. She said the cafe was located near the U.S. ambassador's residence in San Salvador.

Filing Claims

About 70 people were waiting this morning to file unemployment claims at the Hereford Community Center. The filing was scheduled for the center due to the recent closing of the Swift packing plant which left about 350 Hereford workers jobless. Sandy Tollett, at right, of the Amarillo office of the Texas Employment Commission, was part of a team sent to assist in taking claims.

Hundreds evacuate Dallas fire area

DALLAS (AP) — A massive pipeline fire in north Dallas could have been worse if firefighters had not been on the scene when it began, authorities said.

The inferno occurred about 11 a.m. Wednesday, sending a plume of deep black smoke billowing into the sky.

At least one person was injured, and hundreds of people were evacuated from the Prestonwood Town Center shopping mall, a savings and loan building, and several office condominiums.

Officials said a construction company backhoe sliced through a 12-inch underground pipeline while digging a ditch. The fuel began to flow into a deep drainage ditch and, as the fuel spread, the first fireball erupted next to Vernon Savings about 11 a.m., authorities said.

"It was just like an inferno — one big fireball, then another, then another," said Peggy Miller, a personnel consultant who watched the fire from a sixth-floor office of the Vernon Savings Building before she was forced to leave.

"I was hypnotized. I couldn't believe it," she told the Dallas Morning News.

The fuel line, which is owned by Explorer Pipeline Co. of Tulsa, Okla., originates in Lake Charles, La., and passes through Greenville in East Texas, where it splits in two legs, one running to Tulsa and the other through north Dallas to Carrollton, where it splits again to Irving and Grapevine.

The pipeline is the sole supplier of jet fuel to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, according to Joe Dealey Jr., public information manager of the airport.

However, the pipeline, which is used to move several types of fuel, was carrying unleaded gasoline — not jet fuel — on Wednesday.

Airport officials said Wednesday they had a three-day supply of jet fuel, and spokesmen for the pipeline company said the line would be repaired before the airport's supply ran out.

Bob Kruse, Addison fire chief of operations, said the fire was not as bad as it might have been if firefighters had not been inspecting the break.

Jose Diaz, 23, was admitted to RHD Medical Center in fair condition, with second-degree burns on his face, hands and eyes, hospital spokesman Bob Reznik said.

"He says he was cutting grass near the location of the fire for a landscaping firm," Reznik said. "He doesn't speak English so it's hard to find out exactly what happened."

The fire took place near the border dividing Dallas and suburban Addison, and blazes spread to parts of both cities, officials said.

At Medical City Hospital, about four miles from the fire site, the flames easily could be spotted, said Doris Sharrock, administrative assistant to the hospital's executive director.

"It's just columns and columns of black smoke and flames. It's really something," said Ms. Sharrock, whose office is located on the 12th floor.

The hospital activated its "disaster plan" — alerting physicians, recharging the emergency room, drugs and blood supplies — but no injured people were brought in, she said.

"The flames were unbelievable," said Jack Brown, manager of Adelstein Jewelers, located in a plaza across the street from the shopping mall. "We were very concerned because the gas lines run under the plaza itself and it could have blown up the whole plaza."

House conditionally approves nerve gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three years of defeats, President Reagan has finally won House approval — with strings attached — for new U.S. chemical weapons.

"I've got President Reagan's tire tracks down my back," Rep. John Edward Porter, R-Ill., an opponent, said after the House voted 229-196 Wednesday to permit new nerve gases two years from now under certain conditions.

Those strings include a requirement that America's NATO allies formally request that the weapons be built and stored in Western Europe.

The Republican-controlled Senate approved new chemical weapons two weeks ago, but without the restrictions attached by the Democratic-run House. A conference committee will iron out the differences, but Porter said he expects the restrictions to be dropped.

"The NATO hurdle would be insurmountable if it remains," Porter said after the vote. "But it won't. It'll be dropped in the conference."

For three years, the House had refused to approve building gas weapons, continuing a moratorium begun in 1969. It rejected arguments by Reagan that the weapons were needed to offset a threatening Soviet chemical arsenal.

The Senate twice approved the weapons, but the House position had prevailed in the conference sessions.

Porter credited Reagan with "a masterful job of lobbying," noting the president met at the White House on Monday with a group of 40 House members.

The Army wants to build binary weapons, so named because they would be composed of two chemicals kept separate until they mix after a shell is fired or bomb dropped.

The Pentagon says binaries would be safer than the current stockpile of aging weapons stored in eight states and Europe.

The House approval also included restrictions that require the Army to store the binary components in separate states and closely restrict any shipments or transports.

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., told his colleagues that "we need to be able to counter the Soviet threat" with new U.S. weapons.

That was an argument heard often from nerve gas proponents during four hours of debate.

The vote Wednesday came as the House worked through a bill authorizing most of a proposed $292 billion defense budget for fiscal 1986, which starts Oct. 1. The Republican-dominated Senate has approved a $302 billion defense bill.

The House voted 342-79 against cutting the Trident 2 missile program.

The missile is scheduled to be installed aboard the Trident submarine force starting in 1989, replacing the Trident 1 with its shorter range and lesser accuracy.

Combest slated Friday

Congressman Larry Combest will be in Hereford Friday for a community meeting with interested citizens, and has also scheduled two other meetings not open to the general public.

Combest, U.S. Representative for the 19th Congressional District, is scheduled to be in the community room at Hereford State Bank from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The public is invited to this community meeting.

Rep. Combest is also slated to speak to the Kiwanis Breakfast Club Friday morning, and visit the Department of Energy office at a time to be determined. He will hold a public meeting in Friona at 9:30 a.m. Friday, and another at Bovina at 2 p.m. Friday.

Shed case remanded

The U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that a vegetable packing shed operator is a "farm labor contractor," thus reversing a decision made last year by District Judge Mary Lou Robinson concerning Barrett-Fisher Company here and a group of vegetable packing workers.

The ruling also remands the case to Judge Robinson's court for further consideration.

The civil suit, concerning a wage dispute in connection with strikes during the onion harvest of 1980, went before Robinson in February of 1984 to determine if Barrett-Fisher should be required to comply with the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act. The judge ruled in April of 1984 that the plaintiffs, Benita Almadarez and others, were not migrant workers within the meaning of the act.

Upon that ruling, the case was dismissed and the appeal was filed by the plaintiffs, represented by Texas Rural Legal Aid.

Since the appeal was won, Robinson now must rule on whether Barrett-Fisher qualifies for statutory exemption, the existence or not of all violations of the act, or the appropriate relief.

The plaintiffs claim that the shed failed to pay for all hours worked, and thus violated labor laws. They claim that the company failed to keep accurate payroll record, neglected to disclose terms of employment and failed to comply with work agreements.

Berri may produce hostages tonight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Nabih Berri, the Shiite Moslem militia leader who says he has taken responsibility for the welfare of 40 Americans seized in last week's TWA plane hijacking, promised to produce some of them in Beirut tonight.

Berri, Lebanon's justice minister, did not elaborate. But he has emerged as the chief negotiator between the hijackers and the United States and his Amal militiamen are guarding the hijacked plane where the three crew members are being held.

He also has said he has control of, or access to the other hostages, and has insisted that the chief demand of the hijackers be met — that Israel release 700 Shiite Moslem prisoners taken from south Lebanon during the Israeli army occupation that ended early this month.

Gunmen inside the hijacked Boeing 727 fired over the heads of reporters at the Beirut airport today after a Lebanese reporter tried to sneak aboard the plane by posing as an airline attendant. The captain and his two crew members said they are aboard, surrounded by many gunmen.

Berri also said he had accepted a Swiss offer to use its territory to hold any exchange of the American hostages.

Berri made the disclosure after meeting with Swiss Ambassador Jean-Paul Ramsiere who delivered a letter from Swiss Foreign Minister Pierre Aubert saying, "Switzerland puts all its potential at the president's disposal to contribute to resolve the hijack tragedy."

Gunmen hijacked the plane last Friday on its way from Athens to Rome, and since have released most of the 153 passengers and crew. They killed U.S. Navy Petty Officer Robert Dean Stethem of Waldorf, Md.

"Trick, journalist," hijackers screamed when they spotted the Lebanese reporter's camera this morning. The reporter rode onto the tarmac in a food van and carried fruit up the steps to the plane.

He ran down the staircase as a gunman appeared at door of the plane and shot over his head. The gunman then turned his AK-47 assault rifle on other journalists and

Farming families have tension, too

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The family that farms together doesn't always achieve the idealized life of cooperation and contentment that some people think flourishes in rural America, a University of Nebraska professor says.

Like families everywhere and in every situation, there are plenty of chances for tension to ferment, particularly when the younger generation begins to take an active role in managing the farm, says Ron Hanson, an agriculture economist.

"It's not as easy as it sounds for a son to come back home and bring a young wife and farm with mom and dad," Hanson said recently at an agriculture forum.

For dad, there is the feeling that he worked "long and hard to develop the farm operation to what it is today," and there is the memory of a "son who idolized his dad," Hanson said.

"Dad may have a dream in his heart that someday this will all be his son's, but when the son comes home and starts to take control — starts to make decisions that dad made by himself — that is hard for any father to accept."

For mom, there is the stomach-churning tension of being caught in the middle, of hearing "the complaints of her husband on this side and the frustrations of the son on the other side."

She tries to "reason with the father to understand the son and reason with the son to understand the father."

But that does not work because "both are bullheaded; sometimes sons grow up just like their fathers," Hanson said.

"Who can mom take her complaints to?" he asked. "Often, no one in the family wants to hear what mom wants."

And for the young daughter-in-law, there often is "quite an adjustment" in the long hours of work on a farm, he said.

"Many farmers marry city girls because those farm girls know what is out there," Hanson contends. "All those farm girls ever dreamed about was growing up and getting away."

The young wife often finds herself getting promises of nice things to come and then is told that "it's been

Crime watch meeting Monday
A second meeting for rural residents interested in the Country Crime Watch prevention program will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the west banquet room of the Hereford Community Center.

John Bradshaw, coordinator for crime prevention programs in the Panhandle, will give a brief program on personal brand before moving into organizing the county for a crime watch program.

Randy Williams, coordinator of the city police Neighborhood Watch program, said statistics show that persons in a patrol and watched area are 50 percent less likely to become a victim of crime.

Bradshaw said this meeting will be used to see how the county can be set up into watch areas and to select the guard signs to be used. The two most popular signs are the blue, white and black sign and an orange and black figure of a thief with a negotiation sign over him.

School board retreat Saturday
There will be no final decisions made or any votes taken, according to an agenda for the annual retreat of the Hereford Independent School District board of trustees. The annual retreat will be held at the West Texas State University activity center on Saturday and will serve as a "philosophical" meeting, according to the agenda.

The agenda includes discussion of expectations for the superintendent, administrative officials, and how the board will determine the duties of the committees and the format of meetings.

Other items on the agenda are building program, transportation, maintenance, playground equipment, maintenance, public relations, administrative and financial matters.

Mischief, trash fires reported
Criminal mischief and harassment reports were made by Hereford police on Friday.

Police reported that a trash fire was reported at a residence where a trash can was overturned and a fire started.

Closing arguments set in trial

ALVARADO, Texas (AP) — A 21-year-old man who claims to have been high on amphetamines says he was "just kind of there" when a teenage girl was kidnapped earlier this year.

Daniel Walter Necker Jr. of Mesquite testified Wednesday that at the time of the Jan. 11 abduction he had been taking the drug regularly for about a week to 10 days.

"I was doing it every day. All the time. I wasn't sleeping none," Necker said. "I wasn't participating in the kidnapping. I was kind of just there."

Necer spoke in his own defense during the second day of testimony in his trial on charges of aggravated kidnapping. He is accused of abducting Amy McNeil, 13, and of holding her for two days while trying to receive a $100,000 ransom from her father, a prominent businessman.

Both the defense and the prosecution closed their cases Wednesday afternoon and the jury was expected to begin deliberations after closing arguments today.

40,000 gallons of milk recalled

WACO, Texas (AP) — Southland Corp. has recalled about 40,000 gallons of milk from stores in Central Texas and the Dallas-Fort Worth area after a random sampling of milk delivered to a Dallas dairy showed traces of an antibiotic that could cause a rash to someone with a low tolerance for it.

Kirmon Smith, director of the division of milk and dairy products of the Texas Department of Health, said milk tested in a Dallas Oak Farms dairy plant contained more antibiotics than allowed by standard milk regulations.

Milk containing the antibiotic, which was determined to be penicillin or a derivative of penicillin, was placed on shelves late Tuesday afternoon and voluntarily removed by 3 or 4 a.m. Wednesday, said Doug Reed, assistant manager of public relations for Southland Corp. in Dallas.

"It shouldn't be taken out of proportion. I don't feel there is a health problem," Smith said.

Consumption of the milk shouldn't cause a serious health problem because of the small amounts involved, Smith added. The typical reaction to penicillin by a person with a low tolerance is a rash, he said.

Angry artist lets sculpture melt

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas sculptor Bill Easley says he destroyed a wax model of a statue he planned to give San Antonio in honor of the state's 150th anniversary because of concerns expressed by local art leaders.

Easley said he let the wax model of Alamo defender Toribio Domingo Losoya melt in his back yard Saturday after learning of comments made at a meeting of the San Antonio Fine Arts Commission.

Easley, a Dallas sculptor, had planned to give a full-size statue of Losoya to San Antonio as a gift during Texas' Sesquicentennial in 1986 and had lined up potential corporate sponsors for the project.

But Easley said he became distressed after learning commissioners had reservations about accepting his statue.

Members of the commission last week expressed skepticism because of a previous experience with a sculptor.

'Suspicious' fire damages embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fire of "suspicious origin" damaged the Nicaraguan embassy early today, District of Columbia fire officials said.

Police said the building was broken into, and the fire was started in a room on the first floor.

"There was forced entry," said Police Sgt. Ronald Pavlik. "As best we can determine, someone broke in and set the fire."

Officials said one firefighter suffered minor injuries. A fire department lieutenant, who would not allow his name to be used, said there was an embassy worker in the building at the time the fire broke out, who got out safely.

Police said there were no suspects in custody.

Damage was confined to one room on the first floor of the building, fire department communications supervisor James Hall said. No damage estimate was immediately available, he said.

Nuclear project documents examined

HOUSTON (AP) — Documents surrounding the South Texas Nuclear Project lawsuit are being examined for information which may point to potential safety problems, Houston Lighting & Power Co. officials said.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission will then review HL&P's examination of the court documents to make sure they were adequately checked, Robert D. Martin, NRC regional director, said Tuesday.

HL&P spokesman Don Beeth said it is rare when reviews of documents in such projects reveal a safety problem that went unreported.

A judge in Matagorda County ordered the documents unsealed last month. Among the documents to be studied is a deposition in which an HL&P official said he found "serious problems" last year in the ventilation system at the plant in Bay City, about 90 miles southeast of Houston.

Thomas J. Jordan, the utility's quality assurance manager, said in a deposition that the company found problems in Bechtel Power Corp.'s work on the heating, ventilation and air conditioning system at the plant.

He said the problems were serious, but he did not think they affected the plant's safety.

Remains of Americans identified

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Two decomposed bodies unearthed this week have been identified as those of American men who disappeared from a restaurant Jan. 30 and apparently were killed by drug dealers, a Mexican official said.

A spokesman for the American consulate, however, said the families of the two men are seeking further forensic evidence.

Juan Antonio Yanez, a spokesman for the Jalisco state attorney general's office, said Wednesday that forensic experts had positively identified the remains as those of John Walker of Minneapolis and Alberto Radelat of Fort Worth, Texas, both in their 30s.

He said the experts based their conclusion on dental records and items found with the bodies, including a watch and a medal.

Walker's wife, Eve, and Radelat's father, Dr. Felipe Radelat, visited the morgue Wednesday, and Yanez said they also made a positive identification.

But a spokesman for the U.S. consulate said: "It's my understanding that they want further forensic corroboration."

He said he did not know how to reach Radelat and Mrs. Walker, who went to the consulate Wednesday.

"They had just come from the morgue. They were not feeling like talking to anybody at that time," said the spokesman, who requested anonymity.

Mortgage loan rates may drop

By The Associated Press

Mortgage loan interest rates and inflation likely will hold steady or drop over the next few months, analysts said as the government reported a slight decline in May personal income and an increase in spending.

"Mortgage interest rates at worst will stay flat and possibly continue to decline for at least several months," Mark J. Riedy, president of the Federal National Mortgage Association, said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Standard & Poor's Corp., a New York-based business information company, said it expects consumer price inflation to hold steady at last year's rate of 4 percent and may even slow through most of next year.

Separately, an economist for the Claremont Economics Institute of Claremont, Calif., said he expects inflation may move even lower for the rest of the year as the economy revives.

Michael Bazarich, vice president for Claremont's forecasting and advisory services, said he also expects the long-term trend in interest rates to be lower, while rates may rise slightly later this year.

The government said that Americans' personal income declined 0.5 percent in May, while personal consumption spending advanced 0.7 percent.

The Commerce Department said income fell $16.5 billion to an adjusted $3.172 trillion annual rate after rising a revised 0.7 percent in April.

A one-time retroactive wage payment to postal employees and unusually large subsidies to farmers contributed to the April increase, which was revised upward from 0.6 percent, mostly because of later data on farm payments.

On the home loan rate issue, Riedy said that mortgage rates, averaging 12 percent, may drop to 11.5 percent before increasing slightly — but not above 12 percent — by year's end.

Standard & Poor's said in its report on inflation that the cost of food and apparel should increase no more than 3 percent and the rise could be as low as 2 percent. It said the threat of Japanese competition plus lower borrowing rates will keep auto prices down.

Squabbling among OPEC members will make it a good deal cheaper to keep cars on the road, and utility costs overall should hold steady, it said.

This other development:

Chrysler Corp. said it would pay $310 million cash and issue $327 million in new debt to buy 34 million shares of Gulfstream Aerospace Corp. at $19 a share.

Berri received a message from Pope John Paul II urging a peaceful solution, an aide said. But Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro denied it, saying there was "neither a telephone call, nor a letter" from the pope to Berri.

The radio quoted the official as saying President Amin Gemayel was in touch with Berri and U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew in an effort to resolve the stalemate.

An Israeli official in Jerusalem today reiterated that release of the Shiites depends on the situation in southern Lebanon. The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Israel sees no linkage between the hostage situation in Beirut and the release of the Shiites.

The American hostages, excluding three crew members, have been taken off the Boeing 727 and spread out in Shiite neighborhoods of Beirut, according to Berri.

Robert McFarlane, President Reagan's national security adviser, said Wednesday that while most of the hostages were under the control of the Amal militia, about six with Jewish-sounding names "are held by more extreme elements" — the fundamentalist Hezbollah, or Party of God.

One gunman today requested that three toothbrushes, toothpaste and soap be sent to the plane for the pilot of the plane, Capt. John Testrake, of Richmond, Mo., and his two crewmen, 1st Officer Philip G. Maresca of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Flight Engineer Benjamin C. Zimmermann of Cascade, Idaho.

On the ABC News program, Nightline, Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said the hostage situation is primarily the United States' problem.

McFarlane was asked today to respond to that. He said: "Terrorism is generally an international problem. ... Israel's history against terrorism is very good."

Drill team invited to perform

Hereford's 4-H Horse Club drill team was invited to perform today at the district 4-H Horse Show in the Bill Cody Arena in Amarillo.

The Hereford group will be the only drill team performing. The activity will be part of preparation for state 4-H competition in July.

The riders also are scheduled to be in the Range Riders performance July 4 in Amarillo and in the Hereford Town and Country Jubilee in August.

Riders performing at district were Brandy Messer, Briss Meser, Chris Burrus, Camegon Burrus, Stephanie Majors, Niki Peebler, Credece Futrell, Aaron Savage, and Jason Garrett.

The club regularly practices at Rowland Stables.

44 percent of students

AUSTIN (AP) — School officials say 44 percent of high school students in Austin made at least one "F" during the last grading period of the year.

A total of 42 percent of the junior high school students had a failing grade in one course for the period ending May 29.

The 44 percent represents more than 6,500 of Austin's 14,980 high school students. This compares with 38 percent for the previous period ending April 17.

School Superintendent John Ellis said the increase was not surprising. "The last grading period tends to be a period of reckoning," he said.

Board to maintain interest rate

AUSTIN — As a result of a large pre-sale order of more than $110 million for Texas Veterans Land bonds, the largest pre-sale of land bonds in Texas history, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said the Veterans Land Board will be able to maintain the current 9.97 percent interest rate for veterans land loans — a rate well below current commercial rates.

Mauro announced that the Veterans Land Board accepted a winning bid from an investment syndicate headed by CitiCorp New York to underwrite the sale of $175 million in bonds to continue funding for the popular program.

"The success of today's sale means two things for Texas Veterans," said Mauro, who serves as Chairman of the Veterans Land Board. "It means the Texas Veterans Land Program, which is the finest veterans program in the U.S.A., will continue to make $20,000 land loans to eligible Texas Veterans for another 24 months at 9.97 percent."

"In addition, it means investors continue to see the financial wisdom of investing in Texas bonds and Texas Veterans," Mauro said. "This outstanding rate is a tribute to the innate strength of Texas bonds nationally and the success of our 'Buy Texas' campaign in increasing the awareness of our excellent bonds."

The Texas Veterans Land Program enables Texas Veterans to receive a $20,000 loan to purchase a minimum of ten acres of land. More than 85,000 Texas Veterans have participated in the program since it started in 1949. The current interest rate for the land program and the Veterans Housing Assistance Program will remain at 9.97 percent.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Once again our Cub Scout Day Camp has come and gone. It was three days of fun and activity for the cub scouts in our area.

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to all of the adults, boy scouts, cub scouts, local businesses and civic groups who helped with camp. The names are too numerous to list, but I will never forget all of the generous people who gave their time, talents, and services so that we could have a great camp that was affordable to all.

Rainy weather gave us a twist in plans at the last moment and we truly appreciate the Campfire personnel for so graciously sharing the Bull Barn with us. There were businesses who offered services we were not able to take advantage of because of the rain. We also thank you for the offers.

Many of the volunteers came from Friona. A special Thank You to that group for commuting over everyday.

I know I speak for the cub scouts and their parents when I say "God Bless You All Richly and Thank You For Making Camp Tumbleweed 1985 Truly A Celebration of Scouting!"

Sincerely,
Janet Coleman

Many women insecure

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With all the attention given to the problem of child molesting—it is on the evening news, newspapers report it regularly, magazines feature articles on the subject, specials are shown on TV, and you have written about it a half-dozen times within the last six months—I cannot understand one aspect of this horrible sickness. Please explain it to me.

Why is it that the mothers very seldom side with their children against these despicable fathers? In case after case the women claim they had no knowledge that anything was going on. Or they say the child is imagining things, in spite of the solid testimony of the abused youngster and clinical evidence produced by a physician.

I had the terrible experience of walking in on my husband when he was molesting our 4-year-old daughter. I became so enraged I could have killed him. How can a man do such a thing to an innocent child? When I looked at her beautiful face I knew at once that I had to make sure this terrible thing would never happen again.

I went at once to talk to my clergyman. I found no help there. He said I must be mistaken because my husband was such a fine man—a pillar of the church.

Then I made an appointment with a therapist. I was told my husband would probably never change without professional help. I relayed the information and my husband refused to seek help.

That very day I started divorce proceedings. I knew what I had to do. My child needed me more than my husband. Why don't other women see this, Ann?—BAFFLED IN MONTANA

DEAR MONTANA: This may be difficult for you to believe, but many women are so insecure and frightened of being without a husband that they will put up with anything rather than risk losing him. They refuse to accept the realities of the situation because they do not want to be forced into making the choice.

Pathetic? You bet. This is why other family members must take positive action to save these children from the devastation of sexual abuse, no matter what the consequences.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Say it again, please. Grandparents are not babysitters. Grandparents are people who have probably raised several children, taught Sunday School, coached Little League, been homeroom mothers, Cub Scout and Brownie leaders, hosted slumber parties, sponsored cheerleader groups, washed football uniforms and chauffeured vans full of kids to baseball and basketball games.

When their sons and daughters went off to college, Grandma got herself a job. She worked for several years and now she and Dad are looking forward to retirement.

Grown-up kids should stop leaning on their parents and hire a professional baby-sitter. We adore our grandchildren and love to spend time with them, but it must be at our convenience.

We'll call when we want to take them for an afternoon or a weekend. We'll enjoy them and return them when the holiday is over. Tell them not to louse up our retirement. We have plans of our own.—FREEDOM EARNED IN CONNECTICUT.

DEAR FREEDOM: Others have sung the same song in this space. I'm glad to print the lyrics again.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Hot towel

DEAR POLLY — If you've frozen something in a Pyrex dish and need to use the dish for something else, turn the dish upside down on a piece of aluminum foil and cover the bottom with a hot towel. The frozen food will drop out. Immediately wrap the food and return it to the freezer. When you're ready to reheat the food, unwrap it and pop it into the same dish.

To freeze soups or any liquid, place a plastic bag in a large plastic bowl and pour the cooled liquid into the bag. Seal the bag and freeze it, still in the bowl. When frozen, lift the bag out of the bowl and return it to the freezer.

Freeze hamburger and sausage patties on a cookie sheet, then drop them into a plastic bag. They won't stick together and you can take out the portions you need. This also works for chicken, pork chops and steaks.

If you have a problem with fleas in your home, put a little flea powder in your vacuum cleaner bag. It kills the fleas picked up by the vacuum.

Rejuvenate an old, scratched coffee table by covering it with ceramic tile glued onto the top. You can coat the tile with a sealer for easy cleaning.—JEAN

DEAR POLLY — If you rinse spinach and other greens in vinegar water, it hastens the cleaning process.

If you are on an exchange diet, here's a handy tip for having a variety of foods available for your bread exchange. Cook quantities of rice, noodles, spaghetti and other grains and pastas and package them in half-cup portions in freezer bags. Store in the freezer. One-half cup rice or pasta equals one bread exchange.—MARGUERITE

DEAR POLLY — What's the best way to prepare strawberries for the freezer?—HILDA

DEAR HILDA — There are three basic ways to prepare strawberries for freezing.

You may freeze them whole and unsweetened by simply packing the whole, cleaned berries in plastic freezer bags or freezer cartons, sealing them and placing the packages in the freezer. Or, you can spread the berries on a cookie sheet, freeze them, then pack the frozen berries in freezer bags or containers, which will ensure that the berries stay separated and individually frozen instead of being stuck together. Freezing the whole unsweetened berries is the fastest and easiest method. However the berries will not maintain their high quality as long as they will if they are frozen with sugar or syrup.

The second method is to toss whole or sliced berries with sugar, then pack them in freezer containers. You may use as much sugar as you prefer, but a proportion of about three-fourths cup sugar to four cups of berries will preserve the quality best.

The third method is to pack the berries, whole or sliced, in freezer containers, then cover them with a simple syrup. To make this syrup, thoroughly dissolve three cups sugar in one quart of water and bring to a boil. Chill the syrup before pouring it over the berries. This may be made in quantity and stored in the refrigerator in tightly closed jars or containers to use as needed.

Whichever method you use, be sure to allow a little room at the top of the container so the contents can expand slightly when frozen. Otherwise, the cover of the container is likely to pop off and the fruit will suffer freezer burn.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Freezing Fruits and Vegetables," which has more information on how to freeze summer's bounty, including blanching times for vegetables and the recommended freezing methods for various fruits. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title.—POLLY

National Cancer Institute awards contract to M.D.A.

HOUSTON, Tx. — The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute has been awarded a $1.8 million contract from the National Cancer Institute to continue operation through 1989 of its toll-free telephone service designed to help Texans with questions about cancer.

Cancer Information Service (CIS) counselors provide information about cancer prevention, detection, treatment and rehabilitation to cancer patients and their families, the public and some health professionals.

Established in 1975, the CIS staff and trained volunteers at M.D. Anderson have assisted more than 99,000 Texans with their cancer questions and concerns, with the annual number of calls growing from 5,150 in 1977 to 20,075 in 1984.

Callers to CIS reach trained counselors who are backed by a roomful of carefully indexed cancer resource materials. Questions usually are answered over the phone, but callers also frequently receive written information to help answer their questions.

In addition to operating the toll-free telephone lines, the CIS has developed a variety of cancer education programs for several segments of the Texas population identified as being at increased risk for cancer, such as certain minorities, rural groups and smokers.

To intensify the cancer education effort in the minority community, the CIS organized the Cancer Awareness Black Advisory Group and Cancer Awareness for Spanish-Speaking Audiences task force. CIS staff and the members of these groups have developed and sponsored numerous cancer education programs and activities in the community.

CIS also works with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service to provide up-to-date cancer information for county extension agents in rural communities of Texas. Thus far, more than 365 agents and home economists have been trained as community cancer resource specialists.

Along with several other M.D. Anderson departments, the CIS developed the CancerWISE Community Speakers Bureau to meet the public's growing demand for cancer information. More than 500 presentations have been made to school and civic groups with a total audience of 24,000 persons.

"While about 50 percent of all American diagnosed with cancer will be cured, experience has taught us that disease cannot be eliminated by treatment alone," said Dr. Charles A. LeMaistre, UT Cancer Center president. "Effective public education will be a key element in ultimately preventing cancer."

"The new Cancer Information Service contract will allow M.D. Anderson to continue its efforts to replace cancer myths with life-saving facts for all Texans," he said.

The toll-free service operates from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, in English and Spanish. CIS telephone numbers are 1-800-4-CANCER in Texas or 792-3245 in Houston.

Anesthesiologists work to cut fear out of surgery

DALLAS — Kids are frankly afraid of needles, and adults don't like them much better. So the anesthesiologists at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas took an innovative approach to pre-operative medication: cut out the fear of surgery.

Before a patient at Parkland Memorial Hospital goes to surgery, he gets an oral tranquilizer and a dose of milk of magnesia instead of injections. Each represents an unusual approach to pre-operative medication that has been quieting fears and saving money for several years at the hospitals served by UTHSCD anesthesiologists.

"Surveys have shown that a child's greatest fear at the hospital is fear of needles. An adult's first fear is an unknown fatal disease, but needles are his second concern," said Dr. A.H. Gieseck, chairman of the Department of Anesthesiology at Southwestern Medical School. "The major reason for pre-operative sedation is to bring the patient to the operating room in a relaxed, comfortable state to be prepared for surgery. There is no reason to increase the patient's anxiety by using hypodermics when they are not necessary."

To sedate a patient before surgery, the anesthesiologist gives an oral tranquilizer rather than a hypodermic injection to induce a state of twilight sleep or partial anesthesia. The tranquilizers administered are Valium-like drugs. For outpatient surgery, a short-acting tranquilizer, Halcion, is used. "All have a base of benzodiazepine and are ideal for relieving anxiety, providing mild sedation and suppressing unwanted side effects," according to Gieseck.

The second innovation helps to protect the patient against a common cause of post-operative pneumonia. The anesthesiologist orders a dose of milk of magnesia to neutralize digestive acids in the stomach. Although the patient should not have had a meal for eight hours before surgery and should have an empty stomach, it is still possible that he or she could regurgitate during surgery.

"Gastric acid from the stomach, inhaled into the lungs, burns their surface. This is a chemical burn, causing blisters and an accumulation of fluid, just like an acid burn to your skin," explained Gieseck. "Damage to the surface of the lungs keeps them from absorbing enough oxygen and makes the patient susceptible to pneumonia. The milk of magnesia guards against such a burn by neutralizing the stomach acid and making it less harmful."

The two simple-sounding innovations not only guard the patients' welfare but also save hundreds of thousands of dollars in medical expenses for the hospital population. "The ordinary intramuscular pre-operative medication involves three drugs. The patient is charged about $45 for three shots. Our patients are charged $2 for the tranquilizer and $1 for the milk of magnesia," said Gieseck.

The savings to individuals and taxpayers is sizable, considering that the anesthesiologists following this program include approximately 35 UTHSCD faculty members and 60 anesthesiology residents who administer anesthesia for nearly 25,000 surgeries a year. They work at Parkland, the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Children's Medical Center and the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

"I want to emphasize that the patient's safety and comfort are our prime concerns. In cases involving emergencies or intense pain, an intramuscular sedative may be necessary, but for ordinary cases our plan is very successful," concluded Gieseck.

The two innovations, introduced to the Southwest through UTHSCD, have gained general acceptance on the East Coast but are not commonly used in the Dallas area.

Grant awarded to training program

More than $527,000 has been awarded to the Primary Care Pediatrics Residency Training Program at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) in an unprecedented renewal of a competitive grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. "This three-year grant comes to us in a time of intense competition," said V.J. Gururaj, M.D., professor of pediatrics and the project director of the primary care residency grant.

"Many grants were approved this year, but not funded. That we, were both approved and funded under these circumstances indicates the strength of our application and our program," he said.

"The size and duration of the grant is an endorsement from the Department of Health and Human Services of the direction we have taken with our program and the strides we have made in bringing primary care pediatrics to West Texas," he continued.

"Primary Care" pediatrics is comprehensive care of each patient using all available community resources. The three-year grant continues a five-year emphasis in the Department of Pediatrics toward primary care.

"The grant will allow us to fund new initiatives in primary care, such as resident training in parent education, care of handicapped children, and child advocacy, abuse, and neglect—all important areas in contemporary pediatrics," Dr. Gururaj said.

Renewal of the grant also will strengthen previously developed primary care areas, such as continuity of care for each patient, behavioral aspects of pediatric care, and provision of medical care for designated Health Manpower Shortage Areas.

In addition to its direct benefits for Lubbock, the primary care program is an educational resource for other residency programs, and has served as a model for development of similar programs at TTUHSC Regional Academic Health Centers in El Paso and Amarillo.

The TTUHSC programs in Lubbock, El Paso, and Amarillo serve a 135,323 square mile area of Texas larger than all of New England.

The "Primary Care Pediatric Residency Grant" first was awarded to Dr. Gururaj in 1980 as a $440,000 two-year grant to begin the program and fund four primary care residency positions for the Department of Pediatrics at TTUHSC. At that time, the primary care positions were in addition to traditional general pediatric residency positions.

The primary care philosophy became the educational outline for the entire pediatric residency program, and in 1982, second-phase funding of the grant was awarded, providing $550,000 three-year monies for expansion of the program.

The grants in 1980, 1982, and now in 1985 total more than 1.5 million dollars for the development and implementation of primary care pediatrics in West Texas.

The primary care residency program provides on-site clinical instruction at TTUHSC, Lubbock General (County) Hospital, the Well Baby Clinic, private practices, and a regionally-organized rural health program. Secondary sites include Lubbock State School and various public schools.

Clinical instruction is supported by mini-courses, some extending through three years of study, and independent study, such as computer simulations. Teaching methods are varied, including a system of advisors and preceptors (personal teacher/role models).

Laser may replace scalpel

HOUSTON (AP) — A hand-held carbon dioxide laser, being tested by doctors at the Texas Heart Institute, could "ultimately replace the scalpel" during heart bypass surgery, Dr. Denton A. Cooley says.

"The success rate of the bypass at the Texas Heart Institute is about 98 percent. The laser is unknown. To use it any other way would be malpractice. You have to crawl and then walk before you can run. We've just taken the first step," Dr. Lee Sutter, an engineer with the California-based Directed Energy Inc., which designed the device, said Wednesday.

The laser, a gun-shaped instrument two feet long and weighing about a pound, currently is being used during bypass operations to remove plaque deposits from coronary arteries.

Coronary laser techniques are being used only experimentally because they have yet to establish a success record comparable to traditional bypass surgery, but limited experiments with the laser show great promise, doctors said.

The laser has been used on three patients since January, said Dr. James Livesay, the only surgeon who has permission from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to use the carbon dioxide laser for cardiac surgery.

Each of the three patients, Livesay said, suffered from two blocked coronary arteries, with blood flow restricted by 75 percent to 99 percent. The laser was used to remove the blockage in the vessels.

Tests done a week after the laser surgery showed that five of the six arteries were open and "much improved," Livesay said.

The laser technique will be used on 17 other patients with severe heart disease during the next 18 months, Livesay said.

Lasers have been used in recent years for eye, skin and genital tract surgery, and for cancer treatment. But the experiments at the Texas Heart Institute mark the first time that the carbon dioxide laser has been used in coronary surgery.

Obstructions in coronary arteries traditionally have been surgically treated only by opening the artery and removing the blockage, or by doing a bypass, or by using a balloon inflated in the artery to compress the blockage.

"Now we are on the horizon of a new era in cardiovascular surgery," said Cooley, who has performed thousands of bypass operations as surgeon-in-chief of the heart institute. "Ultimately, it may replace the scalpel."

In performing the laser procedure, a three-inch needle at the end of the laser gun is inserted into the artery, which is about the size of a drinking straw. When the laser is properly aimed, the surgeon triggers a series of impulses. The intense beam of light vaporizes the obstruction.

A burst of helium cools the blockage site and prevents the outer wall of the artery from being burned. Any debris left from the blockage is flushed out with a solution. The surgery is then routinely completed by sewing ends of a vein graft above and below the blockage site, forming a bypass path for blood.

Livesay said routine use of the laser in heart surgery will require years of research, but noted that the laser may eventually reduce the time required to keep a patient on the heart-lung machine in the operating room.

The laser should not add any additional cost to the bypass procedure, Livesay said.

"The laser could modify the way we approach arterial disease in the future. Current advances in medical laser technology could reduce the need for heart bypass surgery in more than 170,000 Americans who undergo this surgery every year," Livesay said.

"Within the coming years, we may see lasers being integrated with a unique system that can be delivered by a catheter without the need for surgery. For now, lasers will be used to improve the results of conventional bypass techniques," he said.

Rebekah Lodge charter draped for Bessie Saulcy

The lodge charter was draped in a memorial service for Bessie Saulcy during the meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 Tuesday evening with her family members present.

Anna Conklin was assisted by Roberta Combs, Thama Pearson, Peggy Lemons and Lydia Hopson in the service. Music was furnished by Helen Bishop singing "Precious Memories" with Elmer Combs, Pearson and Stella Hershey rendering "Where We'll Never Grow Old." Susie Curtsinger accompanied at the piano.

Noble Grand Faye Brownlow presided at the regular business session. It was announced that the Hereford degree team will travel to Dimmitt this evening to induct a new member into Dimmitt Rebekah Lodge No. 54.

Karrol Rettman served as hostess to guests Kelly and Billie Odell of Lubbock. Odessa Mullins and Alle Lawrence, both of Roaring Springs, and Less, Eddie and Irene Mullins of Hereford.

Other members present were Ver-na Sowell, Edna Mathes, Sadie Shaw, Dorothy Lundry, Irene Merritt, Ben Conklin, David Rettman and Ada Hollabaugh.

Annette Funicello was born in Utica, N.Y., on Oct. 22, 1942.

Man accused of killing wife to end suffering

HURST, Texas (AP) — Although a grand jury has indicted a 77-year-old man for murder in connection with the mercy killing of his wife, a prosecutor says it's unlikely the man will be sentenced to a long prison sentence.

"It's hard to speculate. There's a real good chance something could be worked out," Davis McCown, a Tarrant County assistant district attorney, said Wednesday.

A Tarrant County grand jury returned a murder indictment Tuesday against Hilmer Sallander, who is accused of strangling his 72-year-old wife, Dorothy, on March 24 to end her suffering from Alzheimer's Disease.

Alzheimer's Disease is a fatal brain disorder characterized by gradual, then total, loss of memory and reasoning power. The disease's victims often become helpless and uncontrollable.

Sallander has been released on $5,000 bond, authorities said Wednesday.

Mrs. Sallander was discovered dead in the couple's apartment in this northeast Fort Worth suburb.

Hurst police said Sallander called early in the morning of March 24 to tell them his wife was dead. When officers arrived at the apartment, they found Sallander bleeding from cuts to both wrists, investigators said.

Sallander was taken to Harris Hospital Hurst-Euleuss-Bedford, treated overnight and released the following day. No charges were filed, but the case was referred to the grand jury by Hurst police.

Neighbors of the elderly couple described Sallander as attentive to his ill wife. However, the neighbors called the burden her illness had placed on him "unbearable."

A Florida jury recently sentenced an elderly man who shot his wife, also a victim of Alzheimer's Disease, to 25 years. Sallander could be sentenced to from five years to life, prosecutors said.

McCown said he doubts a punishment like the one received by the Florida man will be given to Sallander, but added that he wasn't surprised by the indictment.

The grand jury could have found Sallander's alleged action "excusable or justified" and not returned an indictment. But such a decision usually does not occur with murder charges, McCown said.

"I feel certain everybody was aware of the type of disease and the circumstances of their home life and her condition," McCown said. "(But) it was their (grand jury's) duty to indict him and let the people down the line consider the punishment."

Anniversary of singer's death sets off wave of nostalgia

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — To a squeezebox's jerky two-four lament, this melancholy-minded country has plunged into an orgy of nostalgia marking the day 50 years ago that the tango's greatest singer — Carlos Gardel — met a sudden and enigmatic death.

The charter plane carrying Gardel on a Latin American tour crashed and burst into flame in Medellin, Colombia, on June 24, 1935.

Gardel was 44 and had a 24-karat smile, dark good looks and soulful eyes that legend has it seduced a string of women across the Americas and Europe, and prompted many who weren't to say they were.

But Gardel's greatest attribute was the powerful, plaintive voice with which he crooned his way into the hearts of millions. They called him the "zorral criollo" — the "native thrush" — for the songbird's lovely trill.

His untimely death hardly diminished his popularity. Just the opposite: through his 900-odd recorded songs he continues to gain new fans.

The anniversary has shifted the always-active "Gardel industry" into high gear.

Publishing houses are printing several new books about the singer, including a "First Gardeliano Dictionary," a compendium of trivia about Gardel.

Record companies have increased production of new commemorative albums of his greatest hits, which include "The Day You Love Me," "Silence" and "My Dear Buenos Aires."

At his gravesite, if the city's sprawling Chacarita Cemetery where former President Juan Peron also is buried, flowers are piling up at the base of the bronze statue stop his tomb, which is covered with commemorative plaques mounted by admirers.

Fans occasionally can be seen scrambling up to place a cigarette between the statue's smiling lips. Gardel loved a good smoke.

In two Texas deaths

Tainted cheese suspected

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Health officials are trying to determine if a California brand of cheese implicated in 31 deaths, including that of a Houston infant, may have contributed to the death of a Fort Worth woman.

Luz Romero, 83, died at 1 a.m. Wednesday at St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Worth, said Dr. Nancy Bowen, assistant health director for the Fort Worth-Tarrant County Health Departments.

The cause of death had not been determined, said Susan Pearson, public relations manager at the hospital. Ms. Romero had been hospitalized since June 16.

An autopsy was to be performed today, a spokesman for the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's office said.

Her family said that shortly before Romero became ill one week ago, she ate cheese made by the California company whose products are linked with the deaths. Lab tests showed that she was infected with Listeria monocytogenes, which caused the deaths in California.

Dr. Nancy Bowen, assistant medical director for the Fort Worth Health Department, said she is less suspicious of the cheese connection because four other cases of listeriosis in Fort Worth in the last several months seem to have no link to any Mexican-style cheese.

Leftover Jimenez brand queso fresco cheese found in Romero's refrigerator has been taken to the health department for analysis by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Contaminated cheese linked to earlier deaths was produced at Jalisco Mexican Products Inc. in California. It has been distributed in at least 14 states under Jimenez and three other brand names — Jalisco, La Vaquita and Guadalajara. Only Jalisco and Jimenez have been found in the Fort Worth area, Ms. Bowen said.

In Houston, local health department officials Wednesday blamed the cheese for the death of an infant last month.

A 28-year-old Mexican-American woman delivered a stillborn baby on May 24 after complaining of a stiff neck and having a 102-degree fever. The woman, whose name was not released, had a positive test of the listeriosis bacteria, officials said.

The woman frequently consumed Jalisco cheese products, a health department official said.

While at least two other Fort Worth patients ate cheese manufactured at the same plant as the one implicated in the California deaths, no cause-and-effect relationship has been established, health officials said.

Ms. Bowen is "one of the cases that we know is connected with the cheese," Ms. Bowen said Wednesday.

Test results should determine if the cheese Ms. Romero ate was contaminated, Ms. Bowen said. Ms. Romero was diagnosed as having listeriosis, the bacterial infection linked with certain Mexican-style cheeses and blamed for deaths in California.

"We do feel that there is enough cause for alarm here that anyone with (Jalisco or Jimenez brand queso fresco or queso blanco) cheese still on their shelf should return it immediately," Ms. Bowen said.

Another elderly man remained hospitalized in Fort Worth in critical condition Wednesday with listeriosis.

Three other patients with the disease have been treated and released from Fort Worth hospitals in the last 2½ months, and one baby is listed in good condition at John Peter Smith Hospital, officials said.

John C. Calhoun was secretary of state for President John Tyler.

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My knee has given me the problems for a couple of years. Playing ball on concrete or walking long distances in high-heeled shoes seems to set it off. Are there any exercises I should do to strengthen it?

DEAR READER — I would not recommend exercises until you have been examined by an orthopedic specialist. Your problem may be the result of stress in or around the joint or kneecap. If exercises are appropriate for you, they may have to be tailor-made.

Until you see the doctor, give up sports played on concrete, wear low-heeled shoes for walking and try to restrict your activities to movements that do not cause knee pain.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I work with a man who has severe body odor. Some co-workers call him names behind his back, and I feel sorry for the guy. My wife suggests leaving a bar of soap on his desk, but that sounds extreme. After all, he is my friend. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — I would take a kind, gentle but direct approach. Tell him that you and his co-workers have noticed his strong body odor, and you like him and are concerned. You probably realize that body odor can indicate an underlying, serious condition — like liver or kidney disease. On the other hand, all your colleague may need is to wash more frequently or change his soap.

As a general rule, a direct approach is preferable to a sideways hint.

Texas edges Seattle 5-4

Ranger defense plays key role in win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said defense, including three crucial double plays, played the key role in the Rangers' victory over the Seattle Mariners.

"The defense was outstanding," Valentine said Wednesday night after the Rangers' had claimed a 5-4 victory. "We made some great defensive plays. There were some great individual efforts and you put it all together and it's a win."

Second baseman Wayne Tolleson, who was in the middle of two double plays and drove in the winning run with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly, agreed with Valentine's assessment.

"We were just able to turn some double plays at the right time and it kept us in the game," Tolleson said. "Several of the guys made big plays, like (Gary) Ward's throw and (Glenn) Brummer's play at home."

Leftfielder Ward threw out Seattle's Spike Owen at the plate to end the Mariners' fourth and keep the Rangers within a run. Owen beat the throw after Ward's outfield catch, but Brummer had the plate blocked and tagged out Owen when the Mariner shortstop fell past the plate. The play did keep the Rangers close enough for their sixth-inning rally to make the difference. The Rangers entered the sixth trailing, 4-3, and had not had a hit since the first. But Pete O'Brien broke the streak with a leadoff single, Gary Ward grounded into a fielder's choice and Larry Parrish walked, chasing Frank Wills, 2-1.

Tommy Dunbar then hit a run-scoring single off Ed Nunez and Glenn Brummer followed with an infield single that loaded the bases and set up Tolleson's first game-winning RBI, only his second RBI of the year in 95 at-bats.

Yankees 10, Orioles 0
After three straight losses to the New York Yankees, Earl Weaver was happy to get out of town...even if that town was Baltimore.

"I'm glad we're leaving," the Baltimore manager said after Wednesday night's 10-0 loss to the Yankees. "People paid good money the last three days, and watched two of those (10-0 games). Two of the games were no-contests."

During the three-game series, the Yankees pounded Baltimore pitching for 44 hits and outscored the Orioles 26-4. The Yankees collected 14 hits in the final contest, with Ron Hassey belting two solo homers and Dave Winfield a two-run shot among his four hits.

Royals 3, Twins 2
Hal McRae hit a solo home run and doubled in another run to power Kansas City over Minnesota.

McRae snapped a 2-2 tie with his second home run of the season, off Pete Filson, 3-4, with one out in the bottom of the eighth.

White Sox 8, A's 7
Ozzie Guillen scored all the way from second base on a wild pitch in the 12th inning as Chicago took a thriller from Oakland. The White Sox were one out away from a 7-4 loss, but tied the game in the ninth on a solo home run by Carlton Fisk, his 16th, and a two-run shot by Greg Walker, his 10th.

Then, in the 12th, Guillen led off with a single and moved to second on Marc Hill's sacrifice. Rick Langford, 0-1, then let loose with a wild pitch and Guillen raced around to score before catcher Mickey Tettleton could get to the ball and make a play.

Earlier, Dave Kingman had hit two mammoth three-run homers to help the A's take a 7-4 lead into the ninth.

Blue Jays 5, Brewers 1
Jim Clancy scattered seven hits in seven innings and George Bell hit a two-run triple to lead Toronto over Milwaukee, snapping a six-game losing streak for the Blue Jays.

The Blue Jays reached Pete Vuckovich, 2-5, for all the runs they needed in the third inning, when they scored three times. Bell's triple capped the uprising.

Tigers 9, Red Sox 3
Lou Whitaker and Kirk Gibson each homered and drove in three runs to back the combined eight-hit pitching of Walt Terrell and Aurelio Lopez as Detroit beat Boston.

Terrell, 8-2, scattered eight hits over the 7 1-3 innings before Lopez came on for his fifth save. Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 8-5, who was bidding for his fifth straight complete-game triumph, gave up 11 hits before leaving after 7 1-3 innings.

Indians 2, Angels 0
Bert Blyleven pitched a three-hitter and retired the final 24 hitters and George Vukovich hit a two-run single to snap a scoreless tie in the sixth as Cleveland beat California.

Blyleven, 6-6, struck out seven and didn't walk a batter while pitching his eighth complete game and fourth shutout of the season. The shutout was the 50th of his career.

Two teams tie in Wednesday golf scramble

Two teams tied in the weekly Wednesday Scramble at John Pitman Municipal Golf course yesterday, and the merchandise prizes will carry over to next week.

Two of the four-member teams carded a 30 on the nine-hole scramble Wednesday. One team was composed of Steve Nieman, Rick Haggard, Terry Shelton and Larry Pennington; the other included Albert Valdez, J.R. Blackwell, Larry Watts and Rusty Nasta.

The scramble is open to all golfers, with the sign-up starting each Wednesday evening. Players are assigned to teams on an A-B-C-D golfer ranking and team members are different each week. Merchandise prizes go to members of the winning team. If there is a tie, the prizes increase and are added on to next week's play.

World golf record to be attempted Friday

A world record for consecutive holes of golf played in a 24-hour period will be attempted Friday at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course in Hereford.

Mike Horton, golf professional for seven and one half years at the golf course, and James Salinas, a three-time city champion, are aiming at breaking the world record of 401 holes as part of an effort to raise funds for a Ladies Golf Association project.

They will attempt their golf marathon beginning about 5:30 a.m. Friday, the day with the most daylight hours of the year, and finish at dark.

The Ladies Golf Association has a project this year of building a meeting and entertainment room on to the Pro Shop for local golfers.

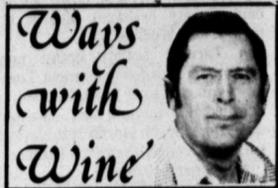

The association has pledge sheets for anyone who wishes make pledges according to holes played, birdies, eagles, or holes-in-one.

Pledges may be made at the Pro Shop or with any member of the Ladies Golf Association.

KEEPING TRACK

It is exasperating to attempt to purchase another bottle of a superb bordeaux only to find that you have forgotten its name. Why not keep a wine log? It does not have to be fancy. A notebook will do. Simply jot down the name of a wine, its vintage, the date and your impression of it. This way, you will not have to rely upon memory when it comes time to select a wine to go with a special dinner. With even a modest wine cellar, a systematic wine log can be very useful. For the particularly ambitious, it also makes sense to remove the wine label from the empty bottle with warm water. Then, mount it in the log.

Whether you know exactly which bottle of wine you want or would like our advice THE STORE wants you to know that we carry a fantastic selection of domestic and imported wines. Wines from Germany and France as well as some from California and New York can be found right on our shelves. We have wines to suit every palate and priced to suit every pocketbook. Come by and see us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat., 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

Astros defeat Atlanta 7-3

Reynolds homers against Braves again

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Craig Reynolds said he never consciously thinks about hitting home runs in Atlanta, but he smashed his third round-tripper of the season against the Braves to lead Houston to victory.

Reynolds is batting only .185 against Atlanta but he has hit both his other home runs against the Braves. He had three hits as Houston pounded four Braves pitchers for 14 hits in a 7-3 victory Wednesday.

"I never consciously go up thinking about a home run here, just because I'm in a good hitter's park," Reynolds said. "It just kind of happens."

Reynolds led Houston's attack with a single, double and home run. Kevin Bass, Glenn Davis and Denny Walling all had doubles as the Astros took a 2-1 lead in the four-game series.

Joe Niekro, the Astros' all-time winningest pitcher with 139 victories for Houston and 197 overall, scattered 12 hits for the victory. Frank DiPino worked the final 1 1/3 innings.

Niekro also helped his team with the bat when he set a team record with three sacrifices in the game.

"I didn't know it was a record, but it took me a long time to do it," Niekro said. "It was the third strike before I got the first and third ones down."

Despite his 4-7 record, Niekro said he thought he had pitched well all season.

"I've averaged staying in about seven innings a game, which is pretty good," Niekro said. "When we score seven runs we should win any ball game. Sure, I think about 200 now that it's close. Ten years ago I never dreamed I'd get so many victories."

Reynolds' home run over the right field fence gave Niekro a 1-0 edge in the first inning. The Astros stretched it to 2-0 in the second when Bass opened the inning with a double and scored on a single by Davis. Alan Ashby singled Phil Garner home against Steve Bedrosian, 3-6, to make it 3-0 in the fourth.

Bedrosian's first RBI of the year in the Braves' fourth cut the Astro advantage to 3-1.

The Astros knocked Bedrosian out of the game with a three-run, four-hit sixth. Opening singles by Garner and Davis brought on reliever Rick Camp. One run scored when Niekro hit into a double play, and Bill Doran and Reynolds singled in one each.

Jose Cruz hit his fifth homer of the season to close out the Astro scoring in the ninth.

Atlanta's Ken Oberkfell, who had four hits for the second time in his career, drove in a Braves run in the eighth inning.

"It was nice to get four hits, and I'm happy about it," Oberkfell said. "But I just wish it had been in a winning cause."

Rafael Ramirez had a run-scoring double, his third hit, in the ninth to account for the other Braves' run.

Dodgers 5, Padres 1

Andy Hawkins, baseball's hottest pitcher, was finally grounded. And perhaps it was fitting that the game's hottest home run hitter, Pedro Guerrero, was the man who brought him down.

Hawkins, who had won his first 11 decisions, served up a leadoff home run to Guerrero, who has hit 10 of his 14 homers in June, to start a four-run Los Angeles Dodger rally in the bottom of the seventh inning that resulted in a 5-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Earlier, another of the National League's premier hurlers, New York's Dwight Gooden, was hanging on for dear life. But he worked out of a ninth-inning jam and pitched the Mets to a 1-0 victory over the slumping Chicago Cubs.

Hawkins would not fault himself on the Guerrero home run.

"Give him credit. He hit a pretty good pitch," Hawkins said. "They're not paying him a million dollars a year for nothing."

Meanwhile, at Shea Stadium, Gooden was struggling, but Manager Davey Johnson had seen enough of his bullpen recently to determine that the Mets would live or die with their ace right-hander.

Gooden, after surrendering hits to Keith Moreland and Ryne Sandberg to start the ninth, got Leon Durham and Richie Hebner on pop flies, then ended the game by striking out Thad Bosley to hand the Cubs their eighth straight loss.

"All I had left, I was going to let it go right there," Gooden said of the fastball he threw by Bosley.

Gooden, 10-3, now has three shutouts, six complete games and a personal four-game winning streak. He struck out nine.

Giants 5, Reds 2

Bob Brenly called his performance a hit-or-miss proposition, and he wasn't kidding.

"I hit two on the nail and missed six completely," said Brenly, who knocked in four runs with two homers and struck out twice. Brenly's three-run homer in the third capped a four-run inning off Cincinnati's Mario Soto, 8-6, and he added a solo shot, his seventh, off Tom Hume in the eighth.

Phillies 1, Cardinals 0

"It was like an older car with a few dents," the 42-year-old Jerry Koosman said, referring to himself and a knee operation he underwent May 8. "We fixed the dents, changed the oil and are ready to go again."

Koosman, looking as sharp as ever in his 601st major league game, pitched six innings before giving way to hard-throwing Don Carman, who got his second save.

Expos 4, Pirates 3

Montreal's Jim Wohlford reached reliever John Candelaria for a pinch single with two outs in the eighth inning to score Vance Law, who had tripled off Jose DeLeon, 2-9, earlier in the inning.

Tim Burke, 3-0, pitched 3 1/3 innings of one-hit relief and Jeff Reardon recorded his major league-leading 20th save with a scoreless ninth.

Winfield leads outfield in A.L. all-star voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees has a large lead in fan balloting for one of three starting outfield spots for the American League All-Star team, but eight other players are still in contention for the other two berths.

In figures released by the baseball commissioner's office today, Winfield increased his outfield lead and now has 320,066 votes. Reggie Jackson of the California Angels is next with 263,472, but seven other outfielders are within 95,000 votes of one another and are clearly in contention.

Baltimore's Fred Lynn, a five-time All-Star Game starter, is third with 237,207, but leads a group of four players separated by just 5,412 votes. Jim Rice of Boston is fourth with 236,330; Kirk Gibson of Detroit is next with 235,642; Minnesota's Tom Brunansky, tied for the league lead in home runs with 16, is sixth with 231,795; followed by New York's Rickey Henderson with 201,456, Boston's Tony Armas with 181,765 and Chet Lemon of the Tigers with 169,377.

Rod Carew's lead at first base also narrowed. The California Angels star has 282,109 votes, compared to 231,008 for AL RBI leader Eddie Murray of Baltimore.

George Brett of Kansas City leads all AL vote-getters with 465,185 for third base. Runner-up Doug DeCinces of California is far behind with 146,590.

Lou Whitaker of Detroit and Cowboys open training camp on July 14

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Rams will be the first National Football League teams to open their 1985 preseason training camps when they greet rookie candidates on July 14.

The Minnesota Vikings, with Bud Grant returning as coach after a one-year retirement, again will report to training camp later than any other team. They start at Mankato State University on Aug. 1.

The New York Giants and Houston Oilers meet in the Hall of Fame exhibition game at Canton, Ohio, on Aug. 3.

Baltimore's Cal Ripken also have commanding leads at second base and shortstop, respectively. Whitaker has 371,182 votes to 182,775 for California's Bobby Grich, while Ripken's 448,747 votes is 172,653 ahead of Detroit's Alan Trammell.

Lance Parrish of the Tigers has 378,263 for the starting catcher's spot; Carlton Fisk of the White Sox has 272,211.

The All-Star Game is scheduled for July 16 in Minneapolis.

NCAA to hold 'integrity convention'

By DOUG TUCKER AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A radical new penalty structure could amount to a death sentence for some programs, the president of the NCAA said on the eve of the special "integrity convention."

The two-day convention, marking a deepened involvement in athletic problems by college presidents, opened today with more than 1,000 delegates representing about 500 schools. To be voted upon Friday are 12 proposals, most dealing with a crackdown on recruiting and academic abuses.

Many presidents indicated in a survey commissioned by the NCAA Presidents Commission that they believe such scandals have begun to threaten the integrity of higher education itself. The most severe step in the proposed new penalty structure could force schools guilty of major violations twice within a five-year period to suspend their football or basketball programs as long as two years.

"I know there is some concern and some contention that if football gets caught as a repeat violator and the program is suspended, that would terminate the whole program," Davis said at a news briefing. "I think that's what the presidents want."

Davis also predicted that the series of get-tough measures "will sail right through," when voted upon Friday.

"The presidents and chief executive officers have a pretty high degree of resolve on this one," Davis said. "The feeling is that something must be done."

The special convention, only the fifth in the NCAA's 79-year history, has also attracted almost 100 media representatives, many times the number that normally cover NCAA conventions.

The Presidents Commission, a newly created branch of the NCAA governance consisting of 44 college presidents and chancellors, has been urging college presidents to take an active hand in their athletic departments. As many as 300, many more than ever attended an NCAA meeting before, were expected in New Orleans to personally cast their school's vote.

Davis, the faculty representative from Oregon State, also said the college chiefs believe most coaches will welcome the harsher sanctions, which include prohibiting cheating coaches from recruiting and seeing to it that a penalty would follow a coach if he changed schools.

"The good coaches are saying, 'Let's have a system where we tighten up and toughen up the enforcement program,'" Davis said.

The first baseball player cut from the first Angels camp was country and western singer Charlie Pride.

Of stolen military weapons

Police ask for help in finding source

DALLAS (AP) — Police have asked the Army inspector general's office to help determine the source of a large cache of stolen military weapons uncovered more than a year ago in Dallas.

arresting Richard Lopez on April 27, 1984 on four counts of selling hand grenades to undercover officers.

mine where the weapons came from. "Until we know the source of the munitions, we don't know if we can do anything to prevent any further arms distribution to cities such as Dallas," Holliday said.

Holliday said the inspector general's office now is reviewing an investigation by the Army's criminal investigation department in Fort Hood last year and will "see if everything's been done that can be done."

Continental wants merger approved

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines is calling on the U.S. Department of Transportation to expedite the approval of the Southwest Airlines and Muse Air merger, company officials said.

ment debate surrounding the merger to be resolved as quickly as possible. The amendment prohibits airlines operating out of Dallas' Love Field from flying to states not bordering Texas.

"Since we found out Monday that the merger needed to be formalized by Friday, Continental has pulled out all the stops to resolve this issue quickly," airline officials said.

Continental wants to inaugurate daily flights from Love Field to Houston Intercontinental Airport beginning Aug. 1.

If the Southwest-Muse Air merger is approved this month, it would be 30 days before Continental could fly out of Love Field, officials said.

Many farm problems exist due to bureaucracy in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Take it from two former secretaries of agriculture. Many of the problems of farmers — and all Americans, for that matter — exist because Congress has become a Byzantine bureaucracy dominated by special interests.

Earl L. Butz, who often groused about Congress when he was secretary of agriculture, says his view hasn't mellowed. "It's hardened," Butz said Wednesday.

Butz and three other former secretaries of agriculture visited with reporters after having lunch with Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

It's the system of subcommittees that Butz believes is a flaw in today's Congress. Each panel has its own fiefdom, including a following of special interests.

The recent one-vote margin in the Senate on adoption of a budget compromise worked out with the White House rankles Butz. In return for winning votes, the Reagan administration was forced to swallow an export program for subsidizing U.S. farm exports with surplus commodities, or payment-in-kind.

Butz said the export PIK program "runs counter to the philosophy of this administration and people in this room" — indicating Agriculture Secretary John R. Block and former Secretaries of Agriculture Bob Bergland, Clifford M. Hardin and Orville L. Freeman.

"You do that because a senator or half a dozen senators practice blackmail," Butz said. "You're not around this town very long until you learn that when some senator says, 'I don't have my mind made up yet on this legislation,' all it means is the White House hasn't met his price yet."

Hardin, who says his years as head of Nebraska University were tougher than being secretary of agriculture, agreed with Butz, adding that the structure of Congress — not the individuals — "may be our single most important, most serious domestic problem."

Even if all 535 members of Congress changed without changing the rules governing the House and Senate, "we'd still have the same situation," Hardin said.

"Party leadership has been eroded, at least," Hardin said. "Special interest people have more opportunity to get their desires met than at anytime in history."

Hardin said he thinks that has happened as a result of the vast network of subcommittees and a decentralization of Congress.

"There are more places for them (lobbyists) to touch, more places that they can have an opportunity for success," Hardin said.

Bergland, a former three-term congressman from Minnesota, said it is natural for a member of Congress to protect and look after the interest of constituents.

"I don't see that necessarily is an overpowering thing," Bergland said. "I'm more critical of presidents not using vetoes. You could impose discipline in Congress if the presidents would put their money where their mouth is."

Two Democrats and two Republicans were included in the group: Bergland, who was secretary during the Carter administration; Butz, secretary in the Nixon and Ford years; Hardin, Butz's predecessor in the Nixon administration; and Freeman, who served a full eight years in the Kennedy and Johnson era of the 1960s.

Block said he hoped the meeting would become an annual tradition among former secretaries of agriculture. Later, the group visited congressional farm leaders, expressing their views on the problems of agriculture and what should be done.

The four former secretaries said they agreed generally with the administration's view that farm programs should be more market oriented, that conservation and exports should figure prominently in new legislation.

Asked about his purpose of having the bipartisan foursome meet with lawmakers, Block said that "collectively, we probably can stimulate more interest in a greater push to come to grips with legislation and all of the problems we face in agriculture."

Farming listed as one of nation's most hazardous occupations

COLLEGE STATION — Farming has the dubious distinction of being one of America's most hazardous occupations. The responsibility for making farming a safer business rests squarely on the shoulders of the farm manager.

"The farm manager is the key to a successful farm safety program for both his family and hired workers," points out Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To begin, a farm manager should promote a good attitude toward safety, Nelson points out. The best way to do this is to set a good example, convincing others by carrying out safety responsibilities and following safe work practices conscientiously and with conviction. Good or bad, the example set by a farm manager will be followed by others.

A farm manager must also train workers properly so that they know how to do their jobs safely. Give special attention to new employees and older employees who recently have been assigned a new or infrequent job. Before leaving workers on their own, have them demonstrate that they know safe operating procedures, suggests the engineer.

Enforcing safe work methods and procedures is another area of safety management. Failure to enforce safety invites an increase in unsafe acts by workers and an increase in unsafe conditions in machinery and work areas, contends Nelson.

Another good managerial practice is to conduct periodic observations of workers to check compliance with safe work procedures. Whenever unsafe procedures are noted, the farm manager should inform the worker immediately and explain why the act was unsafe and how it should be done correctly.

A farm manager also must prevent unsafe conditions. Unsafe conditions may result from normal wear and tear on equipment as well as farm what workers do or fail to do. A manager should encourage workers to look for unsafe conditions and correct them when possible. Conditions which they cannot correct should be reported immediately. Improper work methods that could contribute to injuries also should be reported.

Periodic safety inspections of all equipment and facilities is important, notes Nelson. Such planned inspections are a systematic way of finding physical hazards which could contribute to accidental injuries. A manager should allow enough lead time to thoroughly inspect and prepare equipment prior to field use.

Unsafe conditions should be corrected immediately, says the engineer. If this is not possible, temporary, precautionary measures might include tagging of unsafe equipment, devising temporary special procedures, using barricades or warning employees about the condition. Use a follow-up system to ensure that corrective measures are completed in a timely fashion.

If an accident occurs, conduct a thorough investigation as soon as possible and collect all the facts and opinions regarding its cause. Then take corrective steps immediately, advises Nelson.

A safety-conscious farm manager also keeps abreast of the latest information on safe operating procedures and takes special note of safety articles in magazines and newspapers, adds the engineer.

Local FFA members win state awards

Four members of the Hereford Chapter of the Future Farmers of America represented Area I FFA at the state degree awards meeting held recently in Dallas.

Robbie Phillips was named the state winner in Swine Proficiency and will have his application in competition with other state winners in the western region of the United States. Each of the four regions will select a winner to compete for the national award, which includes trip to visit agricultural operations in Europe.

At the competition, Kenneth Schlabs was awarded second place in the contest for Star American Farmer.

Shaun Rickman was named the runner-up for Star Lone Star Agribusinessman and Phillips won third place in competition for Star Lone Star Farmer of the State of Texas.

Rickman also was declared the winner of the Co-op award in Ag Mechanics and Dan Meiwes was named the second place winner in the Crops Farm Employee category.

"The winners at the state degree check will all receive recognition at the state convention in Houston during July," said Marcus Phillips, Hereford FFA sponsor. "We are very pleased with the results of the State Check. Hereford FFA probably fared better than any other chapter at the check."

10 Hereford FFA members in conference

Ten leaders of the Hereford Chapter of the Future Farmers of America participated in the Area I Leadership Conference held last week at Clarendon College.

The members who attended the conference were in sessions for three days improving leadership skills. Sessions were held on writing and giving speeches, motivational skills, etiquette, chapter organization and meetings and interviews.

Marcus Phillips, chapter advisor, accompanied the members. He said that all the members who attended were inspired by the sessions.

Those attending were Robbie Phillips, chapter president; Matt Schilling, vice president; Chris Urbanczyk, secretary; Rickie Vogel, reporter; Terry Watson, treasurer; Dale West, Sentinel; Jodi McElhaney, student advisor; Dennis Paetzold, parliamentarian; Chris Grotegut, district treasury; and Brenda Martinez.

Paul Harvey

The game of baseball has evolved over the generations in the nation s in which it is played.

There is at least a minor modification of the rules of baseball every season. Trifling things, such as allowing a pitcher to 'blow his breath on his hands on a cold day.'

But for anybody to dare to suggest any major change in the game; most fans would give up their hot dogs first!

Yet we have a Knox College professor, Hermann Mueller, daring to recommend that we abolish the home-run.

Prof. Mueller's rationale is this: baseball is the only game in which it is the person, not the ball, which does the scoring.

In football, it's the ball which must cross the goal line. In hockey, it's the puck which must enter the net. In basketball, it's the ball which must pass through the hoop.

In baseball, however, it is the player, the batter, who must himself traverse the bases and run home in order to score.

Except, says Prof. Mueller, in the case of the home-run. Then the ball does the scoring, traversing the bases in a formality.

Running the bases is ritualistic. The score does not come when the ball crosses the outfield wall; the score comes when the player crosses home plate.

The professor says that's "not fair," that the defensive player has no chance to interact with a ball hit over the fence or into the stands.

There is no possible defensive response to a 450-foot George Brett moonshot.

Prof. Mueller would call it "a strike."

He says the real batting skill in baseball is to "hit 'em where they ain't," thus to challenge the defense. The foul lines are there to give the defensive player a reasonable chance of interacting with the ball.

But against the home run there is no defense. I asked Stan Isle, senior editor of Sporting News, about this proposal.

He said it is not preposterous, but he says whatever merit there may be to such a suggestion, the home run has become too significant and too exciting ever to be abolished.

There's too much spectator appeal for the going, going, gone wallop that ends up downtown.

I asked sportscaster Harry Caray what did he think about abolishing the home run.

He said, "Holy cow!" (c) 1985, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Newspaper Bible

YOU CAN'T DENY THE EVIDENCE

When the Council saw the boldness of Peter and John, and could see that they were obviously uneducated nonprofessionals, they were amazed and realized what being with Jesus had done for them! And the Council could hardly discredit the healing when the man they had healed was standing right there beside them!

So they sent them out of the Council chamber and conferred among themselves. "What shall we do with these men?" they asked each other. "We can't deny that they have done a tremendous miracle, and everybody in Jerusalem knows about it. But perhaps we can stop them from spreading their propaganda. We'll tell them that if they do it again we'll really throw the book at them."

So they called them back in, and told them never again to speak about Jesus. But Peter and John replied, "You decide whether God wants us to obey you instead of Him! We cannot stop telling about the wonderful things we saw Jesus do and heard Him say."

The Council then threatened them further, and finally let them go because they didn't know how to punish them without starting a riot. For everyone was praising God for this wonderful miracle-the healing of a man who had been lame for forty years! Acts 4:13-22
