

Weinberger wants to query Iraqi pilot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger is calling upon Iraq to produce the fighter pilot who carried out the attack on the USS Stark without bothering "to find out what ship he was shooting at."

The defense secretary, speaking Wednesday night at a defense industry banquet, called upon the Iraqis to have the pilot "detail the events leading to the missile firing or firings, because we still don't know all the facts."

Calling Sunday's missile attack in the Persian Gulf "indiscriminate," Weinberger said, "I don't have any question in my mind that the pilot of the Iraqi aircraft meant to fire his missiles at the target he saw on his radar screen. He apparently didn't care enough to find out what ship he was shooting at, or he was reluctant to get close enough to make anything like a positive identification."

Meanwhile, controversy over the attack on the Stark was complicating the Reagan administration's plans to seek congressional approval to sell F-15 replacement jets to Saudi Arabia. Two senators criticized the Saudis for not intercepting the Iraqi jet, which was spotted on AWACS radar by U.S. Air Force and by Saudi personnel flying on patrol in the gulf.

Sens. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Frank R. Lautenberg, D-N.J., introduced a resolution to disapprove the sale of 12 F-15s to the Saudis. DeConcini said he wants "more accurate and predictable assurances about (the Saudi) role in the Middle East peace process and as our ally."

Sources told The Associated Press the Reagan administration was holding off submitting its request for approval of the $500 million replacement jet sale, in part because of the stir over the attack on the Stark as well as fallout from the Iran-Contra hearings.

The White House and Weinberger defended the Saudi actions during the Stark attack and denied the royal kingdom refused a request to intercept the Iraqi jet. But by the time a Saudi ground controller secured authority to authorize two Saudi F-15s to carry out the intercept, the Iraqi Mirage F-1 had gotten away, Weinberger said.

Capt. Glenn Brindel, the Stark's skipper, told a news conference in Bahrain, where the ship was anchored, that his crew had only seconds to act after the first missile was spotted.

Brindel conceded the ship's Phalanx anti-missile battery would have fired on its own if it had been on automatic, but he said the crew intentionally kept the system on manual to avoid shooting friendly aircraft over the busy gulf.

Asked whether he felt partly to blame for the deaths, the captain said, "I don't know all the facts. I feel grief and a lot of sorrow. I don't know if it's my fault, an operator's fault, or an act of God."

Hereford High class of '87 receives scholarships totaling $152,830

Aside from the honor graduates named at the Senior Awards Assembly at Hereford High School Wednesday, a host of scholarship awards and grants were announced.

Scholarships presented by local organizations and individuals highlighted the awards assembly, and other scholarships already announced were recognized at the event. The total amount in scholarships accepted amounted to $152,830, according to Willie Braddy, high school counselor.

Dale West and Shyla Gerk led the rankings of honor grads as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively. The valedictorian of the class receives free tuition to any state-supported school. The salutatorian receives free tuition to a number of private schools.

West also received the University of Texas Ex-Student Association Excellence Award for $16,000, and a National Merit Scholarship award of $2,000. Shyla was offered a four-year Marvin Jones dean's scholarship and a four-year music scholarship at Texas Tech University, in addition to a four-year opportunity scholarship at Texas A&M. However, she plans to attend Baylor University.

Following is a list of the local scholarships presented at the awards assembly:

Local Roundup

School board sets 3 meetings

Hereford Schools trustees will convene Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday in special meetings, all in the administration building.

Sunday at 2 p.m. the board will meet with consultant Dr. John Townley concerning hiring a superintendent and for a first reading on a new dress code policy.

Monday at 5 p.m., the agenda calls for action on the new agriculture building contract, preliminary approval of high school renovation and building plans, upgrading of the roof on the new gym contract, a second reading of the dress code policy and the 1987-88 teacher salary schedule. The board has tentatively scheduled an interview with a superintendent candidate.

Tuesday's meeting also is a tentative interview at 6 p.m. and will be in closed session.

Weather

WEDNESDAY HIGH: 83 THURSDAY A.M. LOW: 82

OUTLOOK: Tonight, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, a few possibly severe. Lows in lower 60s. Wind southeast 10 to 15 mph. Friday, mostly cloudy and cooler with high near 70 and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

WEEKEND OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy with scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Highs near 80 and lows in mid 60s.

Three arrested Wednesday

Hereford Police Department report three arrests made on Wednesday. A 33-year-old male was arrested on charges of driving with suspended license, running a stop sign, and a third offense of no liability insurance. A 35-year-old male was arrested for assault in a family disturbance call and a male subject was arrested on warrant for failure to pay a fine.

Offenses reported included a 15-year-old female runaway, domestic disturbance on Ave. D., prowler reports in the 800 block of North Lee and the 800 block of South Texas were unresolved.

A kitten was reported stolen in the 800 block of Elevins, the kitten was later recovered. A lawn mower was reported missing in the 100 block of South Centre, but it was later determined that the mower had not been stolen. A report of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle on Stanton was determined to be false.

A boy's bicycle was found in the alley of the 200 block of Ironwood. It is a red, 29-inch model.

Charges have been filed on a 23-year-old male for disturbing the peace in the 700 block of South Texas.

Criminal mischief reports included damages to a newspaper rack in the 700 block of South Main and mud smeared on freshly painted doors in the 400 block of Irving.

A vehicle parked at the Santa Fe Depot was burglarized with numerous items taken including a .22 caliber revolver.

Firemen responded to a call of an accident with injuries at 8:00 a.m. but determined no actual injuries were involved. A total of three accidents were worked, and 11 citations were issued.

Theft trial concludes

A four woman, eight man jury found Donald Cockrum guilty of theft late Wednesday and sentenced punishment of one year in county jail and a $2,000 fine.

Cockrum was being tried in 222 District Court for charges of burglarizing a vehicle and theft of a gun. Testimony by a woman who ruined his alibi prompted Cockrum at one point to indicate that he wanted to plea bargain. He changed his mind and let the jury settle the burglary and theft charges.

Cockrum testified that he spent the night of Oct. 11, 1986, in Amarillo with a woman friend, but she said he didn't.

Cockrum claimed the gun had been given to him as collateral on a loan and that the money he made from the sale of a gun was spent on the Amarillo trip.

It is not known if Saul will file charges of perjury on Cockrum.

Baccalaureate set Sunday

Baccalaureate for the 1987 Hereford High graduates will be at 8 p.m. Sunday in Whiteface Stadium.

Bill Devers, of First Christian Church and Good Shepherd Ministries, will bring the sermon. Mack McCarter, pastor of First Christian, and Ellis Parson, Summerfield Baptist Church pastor, will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Commencement is Friday, May 20, at 8 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium.

Students Honored

Former SBA head says White House aides pressured him on Wedtech bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Small Business Administration official says two assistants to then-White House aides Lyn Nofziger and Elizabeth Dole applied strong pressure to award a contract to Wedtech Corp., the New York City defense contractor at the center of several criminal probes.

In an interview Wednesday, David V. Gonzales said deputies to Nofziger and Mrs. Dole urged the SBA to give Wedtech a no-bid, $32 million contract to build small engines for the Army.

Gonzales and his boss, SBA administrator Michael Cardenas, refused to arrange for Wedtech to get the contract, siding with an Army procurement officer's arguments that Wedtech's price was too high. A few days later, the White House forced Cardenas to resign and Gonzales was fired.

The January 1982 discussion about Wedtech "was the first time we had ever had White House staff sit there and advocate for one company," recalled Gonzales, Cardenas' former special assistant.

"We always received phone calls from ... (congressmen on Capitol Hill)," Gonzales said. "We dealt with those five days a week. But to have the White House intervene on behalf of a specific company was out of the ordinary."

Although there was opposition to the contract within the Army, The New York Times reported today that a high Army official urged contract officers to give special consideration to Wedtech in overseeing the contract once it had been awarded.

The Times also reported that a memorandum sent to the secretary of the Army used President Reagan's name in seeking such consideration.

The correspondence, signed by Assistant Secretary of the Army Jay R. Sculley, urged contract officers to "take all possible actions to avoid unnecessary perturbations" to Wedtech.

Gonzales said he was questioned for two hours last week by investigators for independent counsel James McKay, who is conducting a criminal probe of the ties to Wedtech of Nofziger, former White House political director for President Reagan, and Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Gonzales and Cardenas refused to agree to the suggestions of White House assistants Pier Talenti and Henry Zuniga that Wedtech receive the contract.

Zuniga worked in Mrs. Dole's public liaison office, and Talenti was an assistant to Nofziger. Mrs. Dole now is secretary of transportation.

In a statement issued by her office Wednesday night, Mrs. Dole said she "had knowledge of any attempt by any White House official to influence the award of a contract to Wedtech."

"The policy of the office of public liaison was to avoid any involvement in the letting of contracts by other government agencies."

Zuniga, now SBA district director in El Paso, Texas, said the charges made by Cardenas were incorrect.

"Cardenas did not even attend the meeting," Zuniga said in an interview published in today's El Paso Times.

Zuniga said it was his job at the time to support minority-owned businesses. "It was hiring almost exclusively former drug addicts," he said. "Support of this type of company fit right in with what I was trying to do."

"Everything was above board at that time. We went (to the meeting) to see that Wedtech got a fair shake."

Wedtech is the focus of federal and New York state investigations into allegations that it paid off more than a dozen public officials to help it win contracts.

Talenti is cooperating with the federal grand jury being run by McKay, The Washington Post said in a story last week.

Honors given to seniors

In addition to the announcement of honor graduates and the presentation of scholarship awards, the senior assembly Wednesday included special recognitions to seniors and some under-graduates.

The valedictorian and salutatorian received special certificates from Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and exchange students were presented with bronze boots by the C of C.

During the awards assembly, Katie Ramey and Steven Lafuente sang the class song, accompanied by Shyla Gerk. Amy Conaway played the processional and recessional, while Dale West gave the welcome and led the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Massive AIDS testing urged

BOSTON (AP) — All sexual encounters should be considered potentially risky unless both partners have taken the AIDS test and are absolutely faithful to each other, says a report published today.

All sexually active Americans, including married couples, should voluntarily take the test to find out whether they are infected with the AIDS virus, according to the new guidelines by a researcher at the National Cancer Institute.

"HIV status is the single most important piece of information for use in planning the scope of one's sexual activities," Dr. James J. Goedert wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine.

HIV, or human immunodeficiency virus, causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome. The AIDS test reveals whether someone is infected with HIV. Those who carry the virus in their bodies can pass it to others through sexual intercourse did not expect his suggestions to be "acutely" controversial but hoped they would stimulate discussion about promiscuity.

"I hope people in bars will start saying, 'Have you been tested?'" he said.

In a report made public earlier this month, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control recommended voluntary AIDS testing for some groups, but not for every sexually active adult.

The CDC suggested testing for, among others, drug abusers, people seeking treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, pregnant women who live in areas where AIDS infections are common and people who got blood transfusions between 1978 and mid-1985.

At the AIDS Action Council in Washington, executive director Ann McFarren said she thinks universal AIDS testing is a waste of money that could be better spent educating people about the disease.

PTL rejects offer to buy complex

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Officials of the financially troubled PTL ministry have received several offers for its 2,300-acre Christian theme park, but aren't interested in selling, says a spokesman for the PTL's new leadership.

In other developments involving PTL, a former ministry official revealed possible financial abuses that a newspaper said could further threaten PTL's tax-exempt status, and a judge in Tennessee blocked attempts to remove items from a home owned by former PTL evangelists Jim and Tammy Bakker.

Mark DeMoss, a spokesman for the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who took over PTL when Bakker stepped down following reports of a sexual encounter with a church secretary, said officials have received several calls from people interested in buying the Heritage USA complex near Fort Mill.

DeMoss told The Greenville News in a report published today that Falwell and the PTL staff have no intention of scuttling the complex. He declined to say how much had been offered or by whom.

The PTL ministry is under extreme financial pressure. Officials said last week they cannot account for $92 million in receipts and donations, and Falwell has told viewers of the "PTL Club" television program that the ministry will be shut down unless it can raise $25 million in 90 days.

Since then, collections have totaled $1.439 million. DeMoss said officials were optimistic of at least making a preliminary goal of $7 million by month's end.

There are no contingency plans for shutting down the ministry, DeMoss said.

On Wednesday, USA Today reported that Gary Smith, a PTL vice president and general manager who resigned in 1980, made allegations that could threaten PTL's tax-exempt status from 1974 to 1979. The ministry's tax-exempt status for 1981-83 already is being challenged, the newspaper said.

Elderly America:

Myth-vs-Fact

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column is the first of five to be presented addressing the economics of old age. Information is provided by the Villers Foundation's "On the Other Side of Easy Street" or furnished by Hereford Senior Citizen's Center executive director, Margie Daniels. The column is being produced in conjunction with May being designated as Older Texan Month and will end with the local Jump on the Wagon Jubilee set for June 13 at the Senior Citizen Center.

A casual look at poverty rates provided by the Census Bureau may provide a distorted picture of the economic condition of America's elderly. It is a fact that the U.S. has made significant gains during the past 25 years in improving the economic well-being of the elderly.

In 1959, one out of every three of the elderly was poor. By 1985, the ratio had dropped to one in eight. Yet poverty among the older segment of society still exists disproportionately than for any other age.

It is true that the "affluent elderly" do exist—5.6 percent of all households headed by an elderly person had income exceeding $50,000 in 1985, according to the Census Bureau. That's one out of every 18 elderly households.

However, according to the Census Bureau, some 3.456 million elderly Americans (men and women aged 65 and older) were poor in 1985, which was an increase of 126,000 from the previous year. This age group was the only age group to experience such an increase. The number may seem low since the total elderly population in 1985 was 27.322 million, but the key to the issue is understanding the definition of poverty.

The federal government's definition of poverty, as applied to the elderly, states that the "poverty line" in 1985 was $5,156 for an elderly person living alone. The 1985 poverty line for an elderly couple was $6,503, which meant that an elderly couple was not officially poor if they earned over $125 per week, 199 for an individual.

The official measure of poverty is lower for the elderly than for other age groups. If the same poverty standard were applied to the America's elderly as is now used to measure poverty among other age groups, the number of elderly poor would increase by 450,000 to 700,000 jumping from 3.5 million to as high as 4.2 million.

For example, the official poverty line for a single adult younger than 65 was $5,593 while younger couples had a poverty level of $7,231. Thus, when a person was 64 years old with an annual income of $5,500, they were considered poor. But once the 65th birthday arrived, and the income is still $5,500, that person, according to the federal government's Census Bureau, is poor no more, since the poverty level in 1985 was $5,156 for an elderly person living alone.

The reason that the elderly have a different level of poverty is because such categories were developed in the 1960s by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Their "Economy Food Plan" calculated the cost of the food plan for different households and then multiplied by three, since the USDA surveys showed that the average family spent a third of its income on food. Under this criteria, it was presumed that an adequate diet for an elderly person would be less costly than for a younger person, because older people in good health have lower nutritional requirements than younger people.

The problem with this system of calculating poverty is that such a plan was designed to meet the needs of healthy people. Yet elderly people may have serious health problems requiring special diets and nutritional supplements, thereby spending as much—if not more—on food than younger people. Also, household costs are not figured into calculating the poverty line. While the elderly as a group may spend less of their total income than the non-elderly on certain expenses, such as housing, they spend substantially more than younger people on health care.

It is a fact that poverty among the elderly is more widespread than in any other adult age group. Census Bureau figures for 1985 show that 12.6% to 15.2% of people aged 65 and over were overly-stricken while only 8.4% to 11.3% of other age groups qualified for the same distinction. Also, minorities, women, and the oldest old were more likely to be poor than others.

The elderly also experience long-term poverty. Greg Duncan of the Institute observed that escaping from long-term poverty is generally possible only by "acquiring a job with decent pay or marrying someone who has one." For most of the elderly-poor, these are not options.

Such myths have led Americans into believing that most of the elderly retire into affluence and have great comfort in their later years. Yet the facts show that millions of older Americans will finish their lives in economic distress—a way of life for too many of American's elderly.

Six clubs have 100 percent attendance

Chairman Johnnie Messer presided over the Deaf Smith County Extension Council meeting Monday afternoon in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

Messenger Club had the opening exercise and served refreshments. There were eight clubs represented with six clubs having 100 percent attendance.

Each club representative gave a report of her meetings and activities since Jan. 1, 1987. Also, during the business meeting, new rules and regulations were adapted for choosing the woman of the year. Only the current year's activities will be counted.

Included in County Extension Agent's Beverly Harder's report was appreciation extended to all who had written to the state officials in regard to the budget cuts effecting extension and 4-H organizations. She stated the letters had helped because the budget was not cut but possibly may be increased.

Upcoming events announced included the 4-H Clothing and Bake Shows in June and a canning seminar in mid-June. Also, Harder will give a showing of creative breads at 1:30 p.m. May 27 in the Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room.

Everyone was urged to enter something in the crafts show during the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo planned in mid-September.

It was decided to enter a float in the annual Town 'n' Country Jubilee in August. The committee chosen to coordinate the plans were Johnnie Messer, Mariellen Homfeld and Sherry Blackwell.

Delegates elected to go to the state meeting in September in Fort Worth were Gayle Carter, Mary Carter and Carol Odom. Alternates were Helen Caraway, Wilma Goetsch and Sherry Blackwell.

The next council meeting will be August.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is mealtime. I set the table with a feeling of dread because I know what is going to happen. Everyone sits down. I know I'm not going to eat. I take small portions and pick at the food, hoping nobody will notice. Then it starts:

"She's not eating again."
"She's a smart girl, she should know better."

"We'll just make her pay the hospital bills."

"She's doing it for attention."

This is a typical meal with my family. The air is filled with tension and resentment. They do not understand that I am caught in a trap. Being anorexic is a lonely, scary experience. It involves self-denial, self-starvation and, worst of all, self-hatred.

Although food is my constant obsession, I will not allow myself to enjoy it. When I do eat, I am overcome with guilt and hate myself because I feel fat. I can't seem to make my family understand this.

It is important for people to learn more about eating disorders because this problem is becoming increasingly common. I am a college student and know at least 10 young women who are suffering with this nightmare. Please publish my letter and give us some advice.—Steady Reader at Penn State

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am reluctant to purchase items that are offered through telephone solicitation, but I am turned off completely and refuse to listen to the pitch when the caller uses my first name. I expect honest strangers to call me "Mr." Am I wrong?—F.F.C., Chicago Attorney

DEAR F.F.C.: You aren't wrong. The caller who uses first names when making a telephone pitch is attempting to create the impression that he or she is a personal friend. This is misrepresentation and should not be tolerated.

The best way to make your point is to say, "I don't believe we've met and I resent strangers who call me by my first name. I'm ringing off." Then do it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 16 years old, a junior in high school, and already I am writing to Ann Landers. My girlfriend and I want to ask a couple of senior guys to our junior prom. Who should pay for the tickets, us or the guys?—Utica, N.Y.

To replace Dick Motta

Mavs interested in Nelson

DALLAS (AP) — Milwaukee Bucks Coach Don Nelson is the leading candidate to replace Dick Motta as Dallas Mavericks coach, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

The News, quoting informed sources, said the Mavericks plan to ask the Bucks for permission to interview Nelson.

Motta said he was retiring as coach of the Mavericks Wednesday after seven years. Dallas had just completed its most successful season ever, winning 55 games, but were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs by underdog Seattle.

Motta became embroiled in controversy after discussing jobs with the Los Angeles Clippers and the New York Knicks.

Bucks owner Herb Kohl has said he would give any team permission to talk to Nelson.

Mavericks owner Donald Carter said he told general manager Norm Sonju and player personnel director Rick Sund that he did not want to discuss a replacement at least until Tuesday.

"I want four (working) days for this thing, this shock to wear off before I even let my mind work, or before I make a comment," Carter said. "But you and I both know that Don Nelson is a good coach."

Sund began his NBA career in Milwaukee, where he worked six years, including the last four when Nelson was the head coach.

"I think it's better at this point that I don't respond to any coaching situations," Sund said.

The sources indicated that the Mavericks probably would start with a list of at least six candidates, including Golden State coach George Karl. Others include former Phoenix coach John MacLeod, San Antonio coach and former Mavericks assistant Bob Weiss, Mavericks assistant Richie Abubato and Milwaukee assistant Del Harris.

Pistons plan to go inside versus Celtics

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Detroit Pistons plan to emphasize their inside attack more. Seven-foot Robert Parish and 6-10 Kevin McHale, two excellent shot blockers, will be waiting.

The Pistons shot poorly from the outside Tuesday night when the Boston Celtics captured an easy 104-91 victory in the opener of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final. Tonight, Detroit tries to even the score before the series switches to the Pontiac Silverdome for a pair of weekend games.

"We just used bad judgment on offense a lot of times because of the style we play," Detroit forward Adrian Dantley, an excellent low-post player, said. "We're a perimeter shooting team but we took quick shots. We have to take it (the ball) to the hole."

"But with Parish and McHale standing under the basket, it's very difficult. Saying it and doing it are two different things. But that's something we definitely have to do."

McHale, who was seventh in the league with 2.23 blocked shots per game, doesn't think it's an impossible task for the Pistons.

"It depends who's going inside," he said. "There's different ways of going inside. It can be very dangerous if (6-5) Adrian Dantley goes inside and draws fouls or (6-1) Isiah Thomas."

The Celtics' first option on offense usually is to get the ball down low and use their size to get good shots. If the big man is double-teamed, he can pass the ball outside to an unguarded teammate.

"They're going to do it probably in a different way than we do when we have the big man power it up," McHale said. "They'll probably drive more."

That approach worked well for the Milwaukee Bucks, who extended Boston to a seventh game before losing the conference semifinal last Sunday. But the Bucks have more and bigger players capable of doing that than do the Pistons.

There's little doubt about Boston's strategy for Game 2 — get the ball as close to the basket as possible for the big men to take high percentage shots.

"We've been doing the same things for the last four or five years," Boston forward Larry Bird said, "so we're not going to make any major changes."

Celtics guard Jerry Sichting, playing for the injured Danny Ainge, hit three long shots in the first nine minutes Tuesday night, Ainge, who has a sprained right knee, is questionable for tonight's game.

There's little question that Thomas, Detroit's dynamic guard, will shoot better. He hit only six of 24 shots in the opener, while the Pistons made only 42 percent of their field goal attempts.

"I wish I could count on that," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said, "but it's not going to happen again."

One of them is in the pits

Indy 500 has two races

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There will be two races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Sunday. One is on the track. The other is in the pits, where timing can mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Barring an unexpected turn of events, the leaders likely will make six pit stops to take on fuel and change tires during Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

Last year, winner Bobby Rahal needed a seventh stop to change a worn left front tire, while runner-up Kevin Cogan made it on six stops and totaled four fewer seconds in the pits than Rahal.

But Cogan, who was leading the race under the yellow light with two laps to go, lost when the green came out and Rahal accelerated past him in a sprint to the checkered flag.

"Pit stops will be much more important than ever," Cogan says, "because I think there will be more crashes than ever. The pit stops will have to be timed well, and any advantage you can gain in the pits will be important."

Because of the yellow light rule, which allows cars to bunch up behind the pace car and leader during caution periods, it's extremely advantageous if a driver can make a pit stop while everybody else is running relatively slowly. The last time in the pits, then, can be made up almost immediately.

If a driver has to come into the pits while everyone else is running at full speed under the green, the lost time can be very difficult to make up — unless another yellow comes out fairly soon.

Cogan, who took the lead with 12 laps to go last year, was locked into first place when the yellow came out for a crash by Arie Luyendyk with four laps remaining. There is no passing allowed during the yellow, so Cogan appeared to have victory in hand.

But it was a double-edged sword, because the yellow allowed Rahal to close the gap behind Cogan as the Speedway crews worked frantically to clear the track of the debris. Rahal positioned himself behind Cogan, then rocketed in front when the green flag was waved and turned a record final lap at 209.152 mph for the victory.

Cogan finished 1.44 seconds behind Rahal — the second-closest winning margin in Indy history.

Third-place Rick Mears was .44 seconds behind Cogan, providing the closest 1-2-3 finish ever.

Scramble is won with a 28

The Wednesday Night Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course was won this week by the team of Steve Nieman, Mike Self, Kevin Hucks, and Scot Russell.

That team had a score of 28 in Wednesday's competition, one stroke ahead of two other teams. The members of the winning team each won $94.50 in merchandise.

The second place teams were: Bobby Baker, Chuck Cosper, R.L. Blakely, and John Yocum; and John Stagner, Wendell Burdine, Pat Goforth, and Odell Russ.

No openings remain for next Wednesday's scramble, but interested individuals may sign up on the waiting list.

Pirates beat Astros 5-3 behind rookie pitcher

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates pitching coach Ray Miller extended his hand and a simple message to rookie pitcher Dorn Taylor.

"Congratulations on the first of many," Miller said after Taylor earned his first major league win in Pittsburgh's 5-3 victory over the Houston Astros Wednesday.

For Taylor, the thrill was his biggest since the Pirates recalled him from Class AAA Vancouver on April 23. In four previous starts, he pitched well in spots but didn't have a decision, even though Pittsburgh was 3-1 in games he started.

Supported by two-run homers from Sid Bream and Barry Bonds, along with a solo homer by Andy Van Slyke, Taylor pitched into the seventh inning. Another rookie, Hipolito Pena, finished for his first save.

"They both pitched great," Pirates Manager Jim Leyland said. "The ball was carrying well to right field tonight so I wanted to get a lefthander in there and Pena's sinker was working well."

Taylor's usual out pitch, the slider, wasn't working. He abandoned it early and was able to get by with a fastball and change up.

"I threw better in some of the other games I didn't win," Taylor said. "Tonight was one of those nights."

Taylor is not a typical rookie. He didn't sign a professional contract until he was 23 and didn't make the major leagues until he was 28. Considered by many a longshot in spring training, he said he went to camp ex-

SuperSonics

need to 'rebound' against Lakers

By JIM COUR
AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — If the Seattle SuperSonics have any chance against the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference finals, they literally have to rebound their way back into it.

Down 2-0, the Sonics will try for their first victory in the best-of-seven game NBA playoff series Saturday at the Seattle Coliseum. They know they need a strong effort on the boards.

The Sonics were outbounded 42-29 in a 112-104 loss to the Lakers in Los Angeles Tuesday night.

"I'm not doing squat on the boards," said Sonics forward Tom Chambers. "It seems like I'm out on the floor not getting any rebounds. I need to do better."

"I didn't do my job on the boards," added 7-foot center Alton Lister. "But it's just one game and you don't have to panic. You just try to correct it the next time."

Lister had two rebounds and Chambers three in Game 2, leaving Sonics Coach Bernie Bickerstaff frustrated and unhappy.

"If you're not blocking out, you at least have to attack the boards," Bickerstaff said. "It doesn't matter how big you are, the one who wants it is the one who gets it."

The Lakers won Game 1 of the series 92-87 in Los Angeles last Saturday.

Game 3 is scheduled for Saturday night and Game 4 will be here Monday afternoon.

pecting to make the team.

Instead, he was one of the last cuts. After going 0-1 at Vancouver, he moved into the Pirates' starting rotation.

"It's getting much easier every time out," Taylor said. "I'm learning more and more about the hitters."

Van Slyke gave the Pirates a 1-0 first inning lead with his third homer of the season off Danny Darwin, 2-4. Van Slyke, acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals April 1 in a trade for Tony Pena, has struggled with the Pirates. He started the night batting .241 and admits he's been worrying too much.

"He has a chance to be a great player," Leyland said. "He'll hit. Before this thing is over, he'll carry this ballclub."

Bream's homer came in the third and Bonds got some revenge with his sixth-ning homer. Taylor's first pitch of the game had backed Billy Hatcher off the plate and Bonds, Pittsburgh's leadoff hitter, had been hit in the hip by Darwin.

"He hit me on purpose," Bonds said.

"We weren't trying to hit Bonds and I don't think they were trying to hit Hatcher," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said. "If you put either one of those guys on it's like a double because they can steal."

Lanier is more concerned by his team's lack of offense. The Astros lost three straight coming into Pittsburgh and dropped the last two games after Mike Scott beat the Pirates in the series opener.

Alan Ashby and Jose Cruz hit solo home runs and combined a pair of singles for Houston's other score. The Astros had six hits, four by Cruz and Ashby.

"We can swing the bats a lot better and we have to," Lanier said.

Pittsburgh completed the homestand with San Diego, Atlanta and Houston with a 6-3 record, their best record since they were 6-3 from Aug. 16 through 25, 1981.

"This is a pretty good baseball team," Leyland said. "The personalities are clicking and they're having fun playing. That's a big part of it."

Tigers beat Rangers 6-4, Petry gets 100th victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Detroit right-hander Dan Petry had been hoping to celebrate his 100th major league victory Monday when the Tigers opened a three-game series against the Texas Rangers.

But chills and a high fever postponed his attempt until Wednesday night.

It was worth the wait.

"This was a big one for me," Petry said after pitching the Tigers to a 6-4 win over the Texas Rangers. "I've been waiting a long time for 100 wins. Three figures is really nice."

The way things went for him in the first inning, it appeared he might have to wait a while longer before toasting No. 100.

Given a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, Petry served up a solo homer to Scott Fletcher and a 2-run shot to Pete O'Brien in the bottom of the first to fall behind 3-1.

"I felt so strong because I hadn't pitched in a while," Petry explained, "and the pitches weren't going where I wanted them to."

But in the fourth, veteran Detroit first baseman Darrell Evans hit a 3-run homer off Texas starter and loser Bobby Witt, 1-3, to give the Tigers a lead they never relinquished. Petry, 2-3 on the year and 100-77 on his career, gave way to Mike Henneman in the eighth after the Rangers put two runners aboard with one out.

"I wanted to be there for the final out," said Petry, "but Sparky (Detroit manager Sparky Anderson) had to make the move."

"Dan did a really great job," said Anderson, whose team has won seven of its last eight. "Any time you can hold a team to four runs in this park, you've done a great job."

Witt left with his team trailing 4-3 in the sixth when he pulled a muscle in his pitching shoulder.

After the game, the Rangers said he was being placed on the 15-day disabled list.

"I hurt it on the last pitch I threw (to Billy Bean, who walked)," said Witt, who allowed five hits, walked five and struck out eight.

Mitch Williams and Dale Mohorcic followed Witt to the mound and combined to strike out 13 Detroit batters, a season high for the Texas staff in one game.

Special guests honored by cafeteria employees

Hereford Independent School District Cafeteria employees met Monday evening in the junior-senior cafeteria for a covered dish supper. Sixty employees were present at the final meeting of the current school year.

Special guests were five former employees and retirees. They included Frankie Dungan, Roberta Royal, Thelma Carroll, Violet Kelley and Ruth Voyles of Dimmitt.

Trudie Gray, cafeteria supervisor, was recognized for 20 years of service and was presented a corsage from cafeteria managers by Christine Eavns. Gray started working as a substitute then was assigned to La Plata cafeteria in 1967 as a baker. In 1969, she became manager of La Plata, the position she held for five years. The past 13 years, she's been cafeteria supervisor for the HISD.

Freda Bridwell and Betty Bartels were recognized for 10 years of service. Bridwell is manager of Alkman cafeteria and Bartels is an employee of Bluebonnet cafeteria.

Receiving certificates for perfect attendance and dedication were Frances Kerr, Janie Cervantes, Marilyn Benjamin and Mary Ann Montano, junior-senior cafeteria; Freda Bridwell, Alkman; and Alicia Jimenez and Bea Knabe, Northwest. Ten employees of the cafeterias attended a three-hour seminar in Amarillo recently. The program on sanitation and health was presented by Conny Kuratko R.D. from Lubbock and was sponsored by the nutrition education and training program of the Texas Department of Human Resources. The goal of the workshop was to stress the importance of serving safe food and how to keep food safe by proper purchasing, storing, food preparation, cleanliness of equipment and work area. Also, sanitary hygiene was stressed. The definition of sanitation in food service is "keeping yourself, food and the entire kitchen area free from dirt and disease causing bacteria."

Those attending the seminar and receiving certificates were Ruby Williams, Deborah Samples, Bea Knabe, Nita Houle, Glenda Drager, Betty Deckard, Freda Bridwell, Dotie Harland, Trudie Gray and Joan Noyes.

Serving as hostesses were employees of La Plata Junior High cafeteria and the junior-senior cafeteria.

The next meeting will be held in September.

During the past two centuries, man's indiscriminate hunting and destruction of habitat has exterminated the North American wapiti (elk) throughout 90 percent of its former range.

Mothers Night Out attended by Young Mothers Study Club

Officers for the next club year were installed when members of Young Mothers Study Club met recently for Mothers Night Out at a restaurant in Umbarger.

Kathleen Brockman will serve as president; Shelly Brock, vice president; Carla Hollinger, secretary; and Jeanne Landers, treasurer. Each was presented with a silk red rose tied with white ribbon.

The meeting was called to order by President JoAnn Carnahan. Lisa Blakley was named as the club's Mother of the Year and presented an engraved necklace by Jeanne Landers. Grace Paschel received an engraved baby spoon for her new daughter Jacklynn by club members.

It was decided that the club would host a tea from 7-8:30 p.m. June 8 in the home of Kathleen Brockman, 130 Beach, for all prospective members. Also, members were asked to remember their secret pals during the summer months.

Correspondence was read from the Nuclear Waste Task Force and Big Brothers Big Sisters extending their appreciation for the club's recent donations.

Make snacks nutritious

Children always seem hungry and ready for a snack. When their hunger strikes, don't panic. Snacks are a perfect way to give them a little extra nutrition.

"Fresh fruits, celery, carrot sticks, and cheese are just a few ideas for some good nutritious snacks," says Marilyn Haggard, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "They don't take much more time to prepare than other types of snacks and they're much better for children."

Other good ideas for nutritious snacks are popcorn, dairy products, small sandwiches, and any of the variety of crackers, muffins, and breads.

Since as much as one-fourth of their day's calories come from snacks, it's important to watch what children eat.

"Children will eat whatever food is around. The best way to keep them from eating junk foods is to keep more nutritious snacks in the house," the specialist says.

"A bit of dip on vegetables and fruits may make them more attractive. Just be careful not to give the child too much because dips often are high in fat and salt content," says Haggard.

When feeding small children, be careful about the size of the portion served. The specialist say they need snacks made to a size they can handle, and shouldn't be given round, hard or slippery pieces of food that they can choke on.

Irlbeck presides at meeting

Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening with Noble Grand Jo Irlbeck presiding.

Reports on sick members were made with 24 visits and 15 cheer cards recorded.

Noble Grand Irlbeck surprised members with a weigh-in as a fundraiser with each member paying a penny a pound.

Trendy bison gives beef a run for the money

DALLAS (AP) — When Europeans first washed ashore in the New World, as many as 60 million bison roamed the plains, providing a meat market on the hoof for the natives.

By 1900, though, those massive herds of buffalo had dwindled to near extinction, slaughtered for meat, hides and sport. Only efforts by cattlemen and conservationists, who succeeded in getting buffalo secured on refuges, saved the ox-like bison from going the way of the dinosaur.

Nearly a century later, buffalo is again attracting the attention of the dining public, showing up with greater frequency in the past several years on restaurant menus and in the meat counters of upscale supermarkets. Restaurant patrons see it as a trendy, exotic game meat worth ordering as a dining adventure, but the growing number of nutrition-conscious diners view it as a healthful alternative to beef.

"Not only is buffalo meat leaner than beef," says Judi Hebbing, executive director of the National Buffalo Association in Fort Pierre, S.D., a group for buffalo growers founded in 1966, "but it is lower in cholesterol and calories."

Fat, cholesterol and calories — the words if preceded by "low" — provoke Pavlovian responses among '80s eaters.

"Health-conscious people are discovering what the Indians and pioneers knew years ago," Ms. Hebbing says.

Buffalo, while tasting much like beef, differs from the typical sirloin or T-bone.

"It's a denser meat, not as filled with fat, thus not as juicy, perhaps a bit chewier," says Steve Robbins of Preferred Meats Inc., a Dallas wholesaler. "But it is by no means tough."

Robbins has seen the market for buffalo grow in the past few years, to the point where his firm sells 400 to 500 pounds of the relatively rare bison each week. (Of the estimated 75,000 head of buffalo being raised in the United States, about 10,000 are slaughtered each year.)

"As the public becomes more nutritionally conscious," he says, "you see more people asking for it.

And you see restaurants wanting to do new and different dishes.

"The market is real sporadic," Robbins says. "Some restaurants use it as specials."

Such a restaurant is Dakota's, the American grill-style restaurant in downtown Dallas.

Dakota's chef, Jim Severson, runs buffalo as a special perhaps every other week. "Customers are usually real surprised that there's not that much of a flavor difference with beef," Severson says. He uses primarily the most tender buffalo ribeyes, having great success grilling them and serving the meat on a bed of ranchero sauce with fries made from strips of cactus pads.

Of course, the cost, because of the buffalo's relative rarity, is higher than for similar cuts of beef. While a beef ribeye at Dakota's might cost $18, buffalo would be $24.

Montana's, a new restaurant at LBJ and Skillman in Dallas, offers buffalo fajitas for $8.50. "Sales have been real good," says Larry Luby, one of Montana's owners. "The chicken and beef fajitas run about 2-to-1 with buffalo."

For those wanting to try buffalo at home, Kuby's and Simon David in Dallas carry buffalo in their meat counters.

The following recipes, from the "Buffalo Cook Book," offered by the National Buffalo Association at Fort Pierre, S.D., can help you get started.

Ms. Hebbing warns: "Buffalo, with its low fat content, does not need to be cooked as long with as high a temperature to get the job done. Overcooked buffalo meat will bring you the same results as overcooked beef, something nearly as palatable as shoe leather. It simply doesn't pay to rush the cooking process."

If you consider the shorter cooking time, she says, "You will find you can interchange buffalo meat with all your favorite beef recipes."

BROILED BUFFALO STEAK

1- to 2-pound loins of buffalo steaks or rib steaks (¾ to 1 inch thick)
2 tablespoons melted butter
salt and pepper
Trim off excess fat. Brush steaks with part of melted butter. Preheat broiler. Place broiler tray and steaks 4 to 5 inches from source of heat. Broil for about 4 minutes, turn, brush with remaining butter and broil 3 to 4 minutes more. Do not overcook. Center of meat should be slightly pink. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Serve immediately.

Note: when broiling meat on outside grill, place meat at least 6 inches from the source of heat. Watch steaks carefully so they don't overcook.

BUFFALO SWISS STEAK

Less tender steaks or chops may need longer, slower cooking and may be prepared as Swiss steaks.

¼ cup flour
Salt and pepper
2 steaks (1½ to 2 inches thick)
Cooking oil
1 cup tomato juice
Mix salt and pepper with flour. Dredge steaks with seasoned flour. Pound as much seasoned flour as possible into the steaks.
Heat cooking oil in heavy skillet, add pounded steaks and brown on both sides. Add the tomato juice, which should cover meat.

Simmer for 1½ to 2 hours or until steaks are tender. Serves 4.

BUFFALO STEAK DIANE

4 top strip steaks, cut ½-inch thick
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
3 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 teaspoons snipped chives

Mushrooms for garnish (optional)

With a meat mallet, pound steaks to one-third-inch thickness. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard. Pound into meat.

In skillet over low heat, melt butter. Add steaks, cooking 2 minutes on each side. Transfer to hot serving plate. Repeat for remaining steaks.

Add remaining ingredients to pan, increase heat and bring to boil. Return meat to pan; spoon sauce over meat. Garnish with mushrooms. Serves 4.

Marker found for health hazard

DALLAS (AP) — A biochemical marker has been discovered that may help doctors identify women likely to develop dangerously high blood pressure during pregnancy, researchers said.

How pregnancy causes hypertension is unknown. But the abnormality can be detected early in pregnancy, meaning it could be helpful in identifying high-risk groups for treatment, scientists from Vanderbilt University wrote in the May issue of Circulation, a journal of the American Heart Association.

High blood pressure complicates 7 percent to 10 percent of pregnancies and occurs most frequently in teenagers, particularly blacks, who have not given birth before, Dr. Desmond Fitzgerald said.

Fitzgerald and his colleagues reported finding abnormally low levels of the hormone-like substance prostacyclin in the urine of mothers who later developed pregnancy-induced hypertension, or PIH.

"PIH is a very dangerous disease," said Fitzgerald, assistant professor of medicine and pharmacology at Vanderbilt School of Medicine in Nashville, Tenn.

He estimated that it kills 10,000 infants a year in the United States, and said those who survive PIH may suffer from problems such as growth retardation, learning disabilities and cerebral palsy.

PIH usually occurs after 22 to 24 weeks of pregnancy and disappears almost as soon as the baby is born. If the disease is detected early, physicians usually prescribe bed rest and anti-hypertensive medications.

The disease can progress rapidly. Symptoms can include fluid retention, headaches, weakness, confusion and ultimately seizure and coma. The last stages of the symptoms are rare, Fitzgerald said.

A plate left by Sir Francis Drake when he claimed California for England in 1579 was found in Marin County in 1936.

PIH

The word "dry" has lost most of its original meaning. It used to denote "without any or much sugar." Thus, all sherry is dry until it has been sweetened. Today, "dry" is used to mean "comparatively dry," or medium dry. Or, it may be part of the name in which case it does not mean anything at all. The word is also used to mean the driest of a range. The person who really wants a dry sherry, then, should look for one labeled "This." Nearly all fine are sweetened slightly for the British and American drinker. They are, nonetheless, the driest, palest, and perhaps least-blended of all sherries. They are comparatively young and delicate.

DR. GOTT—See specialist for vein problem

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am female, only 30, yet have protruding veins on the tops of my hands. It is as if my skin has become transparent. There is an occasional pulling or stretching sensation on the inside bend of my arms, and now the appearance of my hands has changed. There are "sink holes" right before the knuckles. My doctor has no explanation.

DEAR READER — The prominence of our veins depends on factors other than the veins themselves. For example, supporting tissue — such as fat and muscle — fills in the areas under the skin around the veins. When that tissue shrinks, as it may with age or weight loss, the veins appear more prominent.

From your description, I'm concerned that you may be losing subcutaneous tissue. This could result from a serious illness or a nutritional deficiency. Ask your doctor to refer you to a specialist in internal medicine. Such a diagnostician may be able to identify the cause of your problem and suggest treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 13 and have horrible gas. Every day after school lunch, my stomach churns and makes noises. I have tried a change in my diet and take at least 20 minutes to eat, but the problem remains. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — School lunches, being high in fat and carbohydrates, can predispose certain youngsters to gas and intestinal rumbling — and carbonated beverages are particularly notorious for causing gas. The problem is worsened if you eat little or no breakfast, then "dump" these gas producers into an empty stomach.

Try altering your school diet so that it more closely resembles what you eat at home. Don't chew sugarless gum or mints; if they contain the inert sugar sorbitol, they can be real gas producers.

If a change in diet isn't effective, take Mylicon, an over-the-counter anti-gas medicine. Finally, see your doctor if the gas problem continues.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my newsletter on DIGESTIVE GAS. Others who are interested in this report should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I sneeze at least 15 to 20 times each day, releasing a reservoir of mucus. There is no one thing that triggers this problem. Can you suggest something for relief?

DEAR READER — Sneezing is a reflex reaction to irritation of the nose and upper airway. It usually indicates that the person has inhaled something to which he or she is sensitive. The discharge of mucus is the body's way of washing the substance away.

In my practice, the most common cause of sneezing is allergy — to dust, pollen, fumes and air pollution, such as smoke. You could be suffering from chronic allergies, and this problem may be cured once the irritant is identified.

First, check with your doctor. If he or she is unable to offer suggestions, seek a consultation with an allergist. By skin-testing you to various allergens, the specialist may be able to pinpoint the cause of your sneezing and — perhaps — make up a vaccine that could be used to desensitize you.

Some wine will spoil if exposed to light; hence tinted bottles.

Recovery is important for co-dependents

Though Ruth doesn't drink, she's experienced problems with alcohol her entire life as the child of alcoholic parents and through marriages to two chemically dependent men.

She never could understand why she wasn't able to help those she loved to stop drinking. She'd always been so loving, so supportive.

But with a counselor's help, Ruth has discovered that by providing her parents and husbands with unconditional love, she had essentially sanctioned their drinking.

Ruth now realizes she suffers from co-dependency, a problem which causes her to unwittingly, yet repeatedly, enable those she loves to drink.

And though she and other co-dependents don't appear to suffer as much as the alcoholic or drug abuser from the physical and emotional side effects of chemical dependency, they are every bit as much in need of help.

Among the most devastating consequences of co-dependency are the self-destructive behaviors which cause the co-dependent—also referred to as an enabler—to drift from one relationship to another with people who abuse alcohol or drugs.

Co-dependents suffer the intense stress of daily living with someone whose drinking or drug use is out of control. They frequently assume the role of wife, husband, mother, father, breadwinner and homemaker in an effort to keep a family from falling apart.

Enablers invariably suffer the strain of constant worry about whether the substance abuser will lose a job or drive drunk.

Other co-dependents have physical problems mimicking those of the chemically dependent person, including indigestion, ulcers and high blood pressure.

Most enablers also have extremely low self-esteem, feeling they're somehow responsible for their loved one's drinking or drug use.

On the surface, the solution to the co-dependent's problem seems clear—simply leave the person abusing drugs or alcohol.

However, since enablers often grow up around alcoholism or drug abuse, they frequently don't know any other lifestyle. They become oddly accustomed to living amid the chaos of chemical dependency which is why they often have many relationships with people who drink or abuse drugs.

In one instance, an elderly woman who had divorced five alcoholics, undertook caring for an alcoholic neighbor shortly after she moved into a retirement community.

In fact, if co-dependents don't seek help when a loved one enters treatment, they may sabotage that person's recovery, fearing the inevitable changes that will result when the chemically dependent person becomes sober.

As with alcoholism and drug abuse, recovery from co-dependency begins with recognition of substance abuse as a disease not unlike diabetes or cancer over which one has little or no control.

It is also essential that co-dependents ally themselves with a group such as Al-Anon which is dedicated to helping enablers take control of their own lives. Al-Anon also provides a valuable opportunity for co-dependents to share their experiences with people much like themselves.

Enablers who have been subjected to intense abuse by a chemically dependent family member may need to seek out one-on-one counseling to resolve any deep-rooted problems.

In her book "Marriage on the Rocks: Learning to Live With Yourself and an Alcoholic," Janet Geringer Woltz offers the following additional suggestions to aid in the enabler's recovery if he or she chooses to remain with the chemically dependent person:

—Face reality and recognize the chemically dependent person has an illness you can't control whether you yell, threaten to leave or hide his or her liquor supply.

—Set the past aside and make a fresh start. Remember to live each day as it comes.

—Don't badger the chemically dependent person to seek help. Often when enablers assert themselves and concentrate on their own recovery, the chemically dependent person follows suit.

—Reestablish the friendships you severed when it became too embarrassing to attend social functions with a spouse who drank too much. Don't be afraid to go to activities alone. It's all part of taking control of your own life.

—Stop feeling guilty for a disease that you didn't cause, that you can't cure and that you will never control. Realize that even if you did aid the person in drinking or abusing drugs, you probably functioned as best you could under the circumstances.

—Break your obsession with chemically dependent person. Instead of worrying whether he or she will come home that night, practice some relaxation techniques. If you can't help but worry over what kind of shape he or she will be in at the end of the day, reduce your stress levels by postponing your fretting until 5 p.m.

—If you're tempted to lash out at someone who comes home drunk the third night in a row, it may help to control your anger by remembering that person is sick. Try instead to channel your anger into other, more productive activities such as exercise or working around the house.

—Don't allow the person who continues to drink or use drugs to sabotage your recovery. Stand your ground in taking control of your own life.

Sweet and Fancy Decorating Club meets, elects officers

The members of the Sweet and Fancy Decorating Club met recently at the Dean Herring home for a brunch of quiche, blueberry muffins, cinnamonrolls, a fruit platter, and orange juice.

The meeting was called to order by President Karen Martin who asked that all members try to settle their accounts as soon as possible.

The annual cake decorating classes for fall were planned for the first four Mondays in October. Information for these classes will be available in late summer for the public.

King's Manor cakes for June will be supplied by Beckie Fry and Manuela Melendrez.

Marta presented a gift certificate to Alice Koenig, club treasurer, for her dedicated work of the past year. Officers for the coming year were elected and then installed by Alice Koenig. 1987-88 officers will be Carol Kelley-president; Marrie Leverette-vice-president; Beckie Fry-secretary; and Karen Martin-treasurer.

Teresa Paetzold will be in charge of King's Manor cakes and courtesy. Kelley will continue to keep all pans and screens and Eilda Balderaz and Betty Henson will be the calling committee.

Members present included: Isabel Cervantez, Fry, Margaret Games, Henson, Kelley, Koenig, Martin, Paetzold, Nora Perez, Hope Torres, Melendrez, Melody Willis, Elizabeth Flores, Hernandez, and Leverette.

There's a milk to suit every taste

Processing developments over the past two years have made possible such a wide variety of milk types that some people find it hard to know the difference. Listed below is a lineup of the kinds of milk currently available in the dairy case. Whatever your taste or dietary needs, there's certain to be a milk to fill the order.

Whole Milk must contain at least 3.25 percent milkfat and 8.25 percent solids not fat. The solids not fat include protein, carbohydrate, minerals and water-soluble vitamins. In addition, almost all whole milk marketed is fortified with vitamin D.

Lowfat milk has had sufficient milkfat removed to bring the levels to between 0.5 and 2 percent. It also must contain at least 8.25 percent solids not fat. Vitamin A is added to offset its loss caused by removal of some of the milkfat. It must contain 2000 International Units (IU) of vitamin A per quart. Lowfat milk is labeled with the percent milkfat, e.g., 2 percent lowfat milk. Addition of vitamin D is optional. Milk-derived ingredients may also be added to lowfat milk. If nonfat milk solids are added to reach the 10 percent solids not fat level, the product must be labeled "protein fortified" or "fortified with protein."

Skim milk, also called nonfat milk, has had sufficient milkfat removed to bring the level to less than 0.5 percent. It must contain at least 8.25 percent solids not fat and must be fortified with vitamin A. If nonfat solids are added to reach the 10 percent level, it must be labeled "protein fortified" or "fortified with protein." Addition of vitamin D is optional.

Chocolate milk is made by adding chocolate or cocoa and sweetener to milk—whole, lowfat or skim. Both the lowfat and skim must be fortified with 2000 IU of vitamin A per quart. Addition of vitamin D is optional.

Eggnog is a mixture of milk, eggs, sugar and cream. It may also contain added flavorings such as rum extract, nutmeg or vanilla. It's a seasonal product most readily available during the Christmas holidays.

Nonfat Dry Milk Fortified With Vitamins A and D is obtained by removal of water from pasteurized skim milk. It takes 100 pounds of milk to make about eight pounds of nonfat dry milk, which contains not more than five percent by weight of moisture and not more than 1.5 percent by weight of milkfat, unless otherwise indicated. It is fortified with vitamins A and D and has all the proteins, minerals and water soluble vitamins of the nonfat portion of milk.

Evaporated Milk is a canned whole milk concentrate containing not less than 7.5 percent milkfat and 25.0 percent milk solids. It is prepared by evaporating about 60 percent of the water from fresh whole milk. This concentrate is then homogenized, fortified with vitamin D (400 IU per reconstituted quart), sealed in cans and sterilized by heat. Addition of vitamin A is optional.

Sweetened Condensed Milk is a canned whole milk concentrate containing not less than 28.0 percent milk solids and 8.0 percent milkfat. It is pasteurized and may be homogenized. The quantity of the nutritive sweetener used is sufficient to prevent spoilage.

Buttermilk is made by adding a special bacterial culture to pasteurized milk to produce the desirable acidity, body, flavor and aroma characteristic of this product. Salt is usually added. Yellow flecks in some buttermilk are bits of real butter added for extra flavor.

Sweet Acidophilus Milk is made by adding a bacteria culture known as Lactobacillus acidophilus to fresh pasteurized milk, generally lowfat or skim. These bacteria are thought to maintain the balance of beneficial microorganisms in the intestinal tract. Acidophilus cultured milk may be prescribed for people who are taking antibiotics.

Pyramid Lake in Nevada covers an area of 168 square miles.

Accent on Health

More than two million Texans have high blood pressure, yet many do not know it. High blood pressure, or hypertension, is called the "silent killer" because it has no symptoms. Although the disease has no cure, it can usually be controlled, according to the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

"Many people with high blood pressure may feel they are in good health," said Dr. Cliff Price, Associate Commissioner for Personal Health Services. "However, they may be risking premature death or illness from heart disease, stroke, or kidney failure."

To focus attention on this all-too-common health treat, Gov. William P. Clements, Jr., has proclaimed May as High Blood Pressure Month in Texas. His proclamation urges all Texans to have regular blood pressure check-ups as a part of routine health care.

Also, the TDH Chronic Disease Prevention Program, in cooperation with the National High Blood Pressure Education Program, is sponsoring its annual statewide public information campaign about the disease. This year's theme is "Choose Health, Texas."

Early detection of hypertension is especially important since treatment early in the disease can prevent lifelong disability, even death.

Statistically, persons most susceptible to hypertension include anyone with a family history of the disorder, older adults, and blacks. Hypertension affects about three quarters of Americans older than 75. Blacks are three times more likely to suffer from hypertension than whites.

While risk factors such as age and heredity cannot be controlled, behavioral traits can be, according to Dr. Price. He said that overweight, cigarette smoking, high salt intake, alcohol consumption, and use of oral contraceptives, all contribute to hypertension.

By controlling these behaviors, and in some cases, taking prescribed medication, people with high blood pressure can live otherwise normal, healthy lives.

The Newspaper BIBLE
DOES IT PAY TO DO RIGHT?
Oh, the joys of those who do not follow evil men's advice, who do not hang around with sinners, scoffing at the things of God; but they delight in doing everything God wants them to, and day and night are always meditating on his laws and thinking about ways to follow him more closely. They are like trees along a river bank bearing luscious fruit each season without fail. Their leaves shall never wither, and all they do shall prosper.
But for sinners, what a different story! They blow like chaff before the wind. They are not safe on Judgment Day; they shall not stand among the godly. For the Lord watches over all the plans and paths of godly men, but the paths of the godless lead to doom. (Psalm 1)
Don't do as the wicked do. Avoid their haunts—turn away, go somewhere else, for evil men don't sleep until they've done their evil deed for the day. They can't rest unless they cause someone to stumble and fall. They eat and drink wickedness and violence! (Prov. 5:14-17)
I know (O God) you get no pleasure from wickedness and cannot tolerate the slightest sin. Therefore proud sinners will not survive your searching gaze, for how you hate their evil deeds. You will destroy them for their lies; how you abhor all murder and deception. (Psalm 5:4-6)
