Schultz hopes to learn more about arms plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Reagan administration officials are welcoming indications that the Soviet Union is about to unveil new arms control proposals in Geneva, but Moscow is keeping the administration guessing on whether it has such a plan.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz hoped to learn more at a four-hour meeting this afternoon with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze at the Soviet U.N. mission here.

U.S. officials were hopeful the Soviet minister would unveil a proposal to break the current impasse at the arms control talks in Geneva, they seized on a statement by Shevardnadze in his U.N. address Tuesday as confirmation he would do so.

"We welcome Mr. Shevardnadze's indication that the Soviet Union will bring new proposals to the Geneva talks," said Charles Redman, the State Department spokesman, speaking for the administration.

He referred to Shevardnadze's statement that "The Soviet delegation has brought to the current round of the negotiations substantial, large-scale and far-reaching proposals."

But a Soviet spokesman, Vladimir Lomeiko, told reporters that Shevardnadze was speaking about the proposals Moscow has already made, which Washington has deemed insufficient.

Redman acknowledged that he didn't know anything more than what was in Shevardnadze's speech and that the administration has heard nothing new so far.

It appeared that if the Soviet Union had a new proposal, they were going to unveil it at a time and place of their own choosing.

Reports persisted Tuesday that Shevardnadze was about to propose a 40 percent cutback in offensive nuclear warheads — in exchange for curbs on President Reagan's "Star Wars" plan, known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Soviet foreign minister planned to confer with Reagan at the White House on Friday. If he has a new plan, he probably would reveal it then.

Visitors From Venezuela

Local hybrid grain sorghum companies hosted three agricultural officials from Venezuela here Tuesday. The visitors included, left to right: Nelson Rivas, production manager for FONAIAP (National Foundation of Ag Research); J.M. Calabria, adviser to the Minister of Agriculture; and Hector Mena, national sorghum coordinator of FONAIAP. The Hereford-Plainview area produces about 85 percent of the world's hybrid grain sorghum and provides some 370,000 bags of seed a year to Venezuela alone.

Economists say Feds too timid

By The Associated Press

Continued good news on inflation — for consumers if not for farmers and oil companies — has prompted some private economists to suggest the Federal Reserve Board is being too timid in stimulating the economy.

Retail prices rose 0.2 percent in August, the government said Tuesday, meaning inflation for the first two-thirds of 1985 is running at an annual rate of 3.3 percent — the lowest in nearly two decades.

Sandra Shaber, senior economist at Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., and Roger Brinner of Data Resources Inc., in Lexington, Mass., said the pattern is likely to continue for at least the rest of the year.

"If 0.2 is the current core, then that means we have had enough benefit from weak oil prices and weak farm prices that the Fed has overdone it again," said Brinner.

His suggestion was that the Fed's inflation expectations are too dour and are serving to inhibit its willingness to let more money into the economy.

The last time retail inflation was running at such a low annual rate was 1967 when it wound up at 3 percent.

In the latest report, energy costs fell across the board. Gasoline prices were down 0.8 percent, natural gas costs were off 1.1 percent, and fuel oil prices fell 0.7 percent.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

—Orders for durable goods jumped 3.4 percent last month, the Commerce Department said, but a big part of the increase stemmed from a surge in automobile sales spurred by special financing breaks.

—The nation's seven major automakers reported domestic car sales for the period from Sept. 11-20 rose 32.3 percent compared with a year ago and set a record for the third consecutive 10-day selling period.

—The Labor Department said Americans' average weekly earnings rose 0.5 percent in August after adjusting for inflation, the best increase this year.

Pride delayed Mexico's aid, lives lost

MEXICO CITY (AP) — More lives could have been saved last week following Mexico's twin earthquakes if Mexican leaders had not waited two days before requesting relief assistance, a U.S. government official has told the Dallas Morning News.

In a copyright story in today's edition, The Dallas Morning News quoted the official, who asked not to be identified, as saying, "We were ready to go immediately. We could have saved more people."

The U.S. official said the delay in seeking aid was caused by "national pride, that it does not need to rely on foreign help to get things done."

"They did not admit to themselves the damage was as great as it was," the official said.

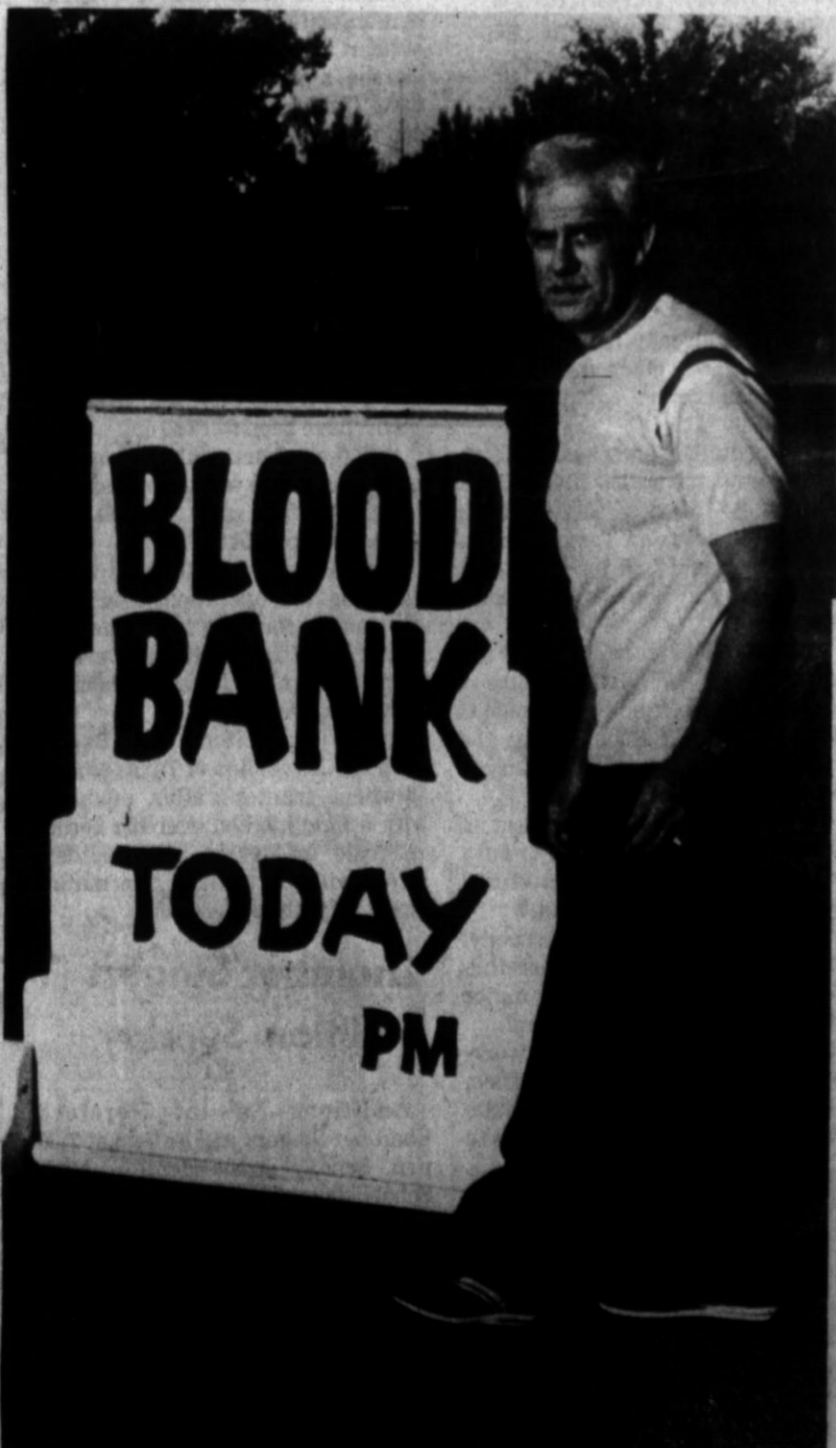

The U.S. official said Mexican Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda contacted the U.S. Embassy after the quake Thursday and said "they had extensive damage and would get back to us."

The official Mexican request was not made until Saturday, after the second earthquake, and even then the first U.S. plane load of supplies was brought in that evening "pretty much on our own," the official said.

On Thursday, Mexican President Miguel del la Madrid said the country "had the resources" to respond to the emergency. By the next day, however, he said, "We don't have the elements to deal with this as quickly as we would like."

Victoria Guzman, a spokesman for the Mexican government, told the News Tuesday that the country acted "as quickly as possible."

Sepulveda said Friday that Mexico had not by that date solicited aid, "but neither can we refuse to accept it."

Rescue efforts slowed to protect who may be alive

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rescuers saved two small babies trapped for more than five days in a hospital ruined by two major earthquakes, and President Miguel de la Madrid pledged that rescue efforts would go slowly to protect others who still may be alive.

Mayor Ramon Aguirre's office said late Tuesday that the death toll had reached 3,500 from the quakes

Relief fund gets good response

AUSTIN (AP) — Setting a $15.5 million fund-raising goal, leaders of the task force coordinating the state's Mexican earthquake relief efforts say their work likely will take a long time.

"The response is strong right now. Part of our task is going to be to sustain the interest, that good will ... after it is no longer on the front page. The devastation that has occurred will take a long time to rebuild," said Bob Krueger, task force co-chairman.

Texas Response — Citizens for Mexican Relief, held its first meeting Tuesday and established a $1 per Texan goal. That would raise some $15.5 million, said Krueger, former U.S. ambassador-at-large to Mexico.

"A dollar a Texan. It's not that much. It's a possible goal," Krueger said.

More than $1 million already has been donated, said Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio, the task force's other co-chairman.

"This isn't a government effort. This is a neighborly effort, a people-to-people effort, a citizens' effort on Hernu may have ordered the vessel to be "neutralized" and that the agents possibly interpreted that as permission to use violence. Hernu resigned last week during the uproar over the Greenpeace affair.

Gen. Maurice Schmitt will become chief of staff, a post Imbot has held since 1983.

In other developments, a lawyer for Police Capt. Paul Barril, sought in connection with leaks to the press over the Greenpeace affair, said today he was "at the disposal of the judicial authorities."

Lawyer Francis Szpiner did not say disclose Barril's whereabouts. He said the allegations against Barril, a controversial figure who was fired from his post as deputy commander of a special anti-terrorist squad, amounted to "a miserable maneuver by political authorities mired in lies."

Two French agents and a warrant officer of the army combat frogmen's school in Corsica were arrested Tuesday for allegedly leaking details about the Greenpeace scandal to the press.

State

Study could lead to closing of colleges

AUSTIN (AP) — The upcoming study of higher education in Texas could lead to the closing or merging of some state colleges, says the Austin lawyer selected by Gov. Mark White as chairman of the Select Committee on Higher Education.

White's office announced the appointment of Larry Temple and the other committee members Tuesday. The 1985 Legislature established the panel to undertake "a comprehensive examination of the critical issues facing and influencing the state's higher education system."

Temple said the panel is "not designed to be any kind of carbon copy" of a similar committee, chaired by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot, that recommended sweeping reforms for Texas public schools.

The panel, however, will look at the controversial matter of shutting down state colleges, he said.

"I wouldn't want to foretell any end results. But the possibility of merging or closing institutions is clearly one of them. We've got 37 separate state-supported universities," Temple said.

Pickens to get $1.5 million for story

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Oilman and corporate takeover tycoon T. Boone Pickens Jr. will receive an advance of $1.5 million for an autobiography to be published in 1987, the Amarillo Globe-News reported today.

After several meetings in New York this month, the president and founder of Mesa Petroleum Co. signed a contract Monday night with Houghton Mifflin Co. that also guarantees royalties, the newspaper said.

The Amarillo resident had been meeting this month with other publishers when Houghton Mifflin approached him, said Carolyn Amussen, a spokeswoman for the Boston-based publishing company.

Pickens couldn't be reached for comment but a Mesa spokesman confirmed that a contract had been signed.

In addition to tracing Pickens' early childhood in Oklahoma, his high school days in Amarillo and his rise to fame as president of the second largest independent oil company in the nation, the book is expected to detail Pickens' philosophies on corporate restructuring, Amussen said.

Pickens will work with Joseph Nocera, a senior editor of Texas Monthly magazine, to write the book, the newspaper reported.

National

Hurricane expected to turn north

MIAMI (AP) — Gloria, one of the strongest and most dangerous Atlantic hurricanes ever, was expected to turn its eye from the Bahamas and head north toward the Eastern Seaboard within the next two days, forecasters said today.

The 300-mile-wide hurricane, with fluctuating 150 mph winds and an 8- to 10-mile-wide eye, was classified today as a "borderline" Category 5 storm on a scale that rate hurricane strength from 1-5, said Hal Gerrish, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Gloria was centered near latitude 25.5 north, longitude 71.5 west about 700 miles south-southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., and 550 miles east of Miami, said forecaster Miles Lawrence in an advisory.

Gloria was moving northwest at 15 mph toward the central Bahamas, where a hurricane warning remained in effect.

But forecasters expected the hurricane to veer north and pick up speed, reducing the risk to the Bahamas but threatening the East Coast from the Carolinas north to New England.

Hodel, White square off on proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coastal states seeking a bigger share of offshore oil revenues than the federal government has been willing to give them have won a second round in the seven-year, $5.8 billion feud.

The Senate Energy and Commerce Committee, in an 11-7 vote Tuesday, adopted a proposal already approved by the House Interior Committee that would give states an immediate $1.6 billion of accrued revenues, plus 27 percent of future revenues, including royalties.

The committee voted for the proposal despite Interior Secretary Donald Hodel's testimony earlier in the day that the proposal would give three states — California, Texas and Louisiana — the bulk of about $5 billion out of the federal Treasury during the next 30 years.

Texas Gov. Mark White, who also testified at the hearing, argued in favor of including royalties, saying that the states are being generous to the federal government in agreeing to 27 percent instead of a 50-50 split.

After lengthy negotiations with seven affected coastal states, the Interior Department had agreed to give them 27 percent of rents and bonuses that are paid for the leases but would not agree to split royalties, which are paid on the oil production and are the major source of continuing revenue from the leases.

International

Palestinians attack boat, take hostages

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP) — Two Palestinians shot an Israeli woman and seized two other Israelis hostage aboard a small yacht at the Larnaca marina today, police said.

Police sources who spoke on condition they not be identified said the gunmen were demanding the release of Palestinians held in Israel in return for freeing their hostages.

The attack occurred on Yom Kippur, the Jewish day of atonement when virtually all normal activity ceases in Israel.

Special police units surrounded the crowded marina, and no one was allowed to enter or leave the area.

Bomb damages British Airways office

ROME (AP) — A bomb exploded outside the British Airways office in downtown Rome today, shattering windows and injured as many as 10 people, police said.

Police said they had captured a suspect who allegedly threw three explosive devices at the airline office. Two of the explosives apparently did not detonate, they said.

Andrew Fiddaman, head of British Airways in Rome, who was working in an office nearby, said four Italian employees working at ticket counters had been injured.

It was the second explosion in eight days to rock the Via Veneto area, center of Rome's night life. A grenade blew up on Sept. 17 at the Cafe de Paris, causing 30 injuries.

Working On Decorations

Beverly Bryant, left, and Priscilla Power, both members of the Hereford Chapter of Church Women United, are busy making table decorations for a luncheon Friday. Members of the local unit will be serving as hostesses that day at the 44th State Assembly of Church Women United in Texas being held Thursday through Saturday at Snodgrass Hall of First Christian Church in Austin.

Equipment Donation

The Golden K Kiwanis presented the Hereford Senior Citizens Center with a projector, a mobile screen and a wall screen Tuesday. Dr. I.M. Atkings, president, at left, made the presentation to center director Marjorie Daniels and Homer Garrison, association president. The purchase was made with funds raised by the club from light bulb sales.

RELIEF

the part of a state that shares a large border ... with Mexico," Cisneros said.

Krueger said cash is a big need of the Mexican government in the wake of the two deadly quakes that killed an estimated 3,000 people. Several thousand more are missing.

The relief task force has established a bank account in Austin to receive contributions.

Krueger and Cisneros said a system has been established to transfer the money daily to a Mexico City bank, where it will be immediately available for use by Mexican officials.

"There is not going to be anything taken off along the way. A dollar given will be a dollar received," Krueger said.

He also said controls are in place to guarantee the money goes for assistance. "The people of Texas can feel confident that if they give that money will be received and will be put to very good use," he said.

The two said Texas companies and individuals already have pitched in with medicine, other medical supplies, construction equipment and cash.

Continental Airlines has made arrangements for relief flights from Houston to Mexico City and for flights of goods from Texas cities into Houston, said task force member Ben Reyes, a Houston city councilman.

Cisneros said four relief flights in a donated Boeing 707 jetliner were to have been made from San Antonio to Mexico City by Tuesday night, and truck convoys are being organized from the Rio Grande Valley.

"It's been a strong statement of support from Texans," said Krueger, who with Cisneros visited Mexico City over the weekend.

"They have lost lives, cruelly. They have lost buildings unmercifully. They have lost hospitals, major sources of medical care," he said.

Cisneros said the task force, working out of Gov. Mark White's office, is in daily contact with the U.S. State Department and Mexican officials to make certain the right kinds of aid are being sent.

Cisneros, who Reagan administration officials tried to discourage from going to Mexico City, said those problems have been worked out.

"All the institutional, bureaucratic questions can be worked out and they have been," he said. "I don't think there's any conflict at all."

Tom Adams, a White aide who is directing the operation, said he is constantly checking with the U.S. Agency for International Development to learn the latest needs of the Mexican government.

In another effort, the Baptist General Convention of Texas took its 18-wheel tractor-trailer equipped with a field kitchen over the border en route to Mexico City Tuesday, said Orville Scott, news information director for the convention.

Government urges common sense diet

WASHINGTON (AP) — When he was questioned about nutrition nearly five years ago during his Senate confirmation hearing, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said he thought people were as good as hogs at selecting the proper foods.

A hog will "eat about the right amount of protein to go along with the grain," Block said. "He won't overeat on the grain. And people surely are as smart as a hog."

Block on Tuesday announced a revised set of dietary guidelines to help Americans eat better. He was asked about his 1981 Senate Agriculture Committee testimony and whether he had changed his mind.

"I don't think I've changed, entirely, anyway," Block replied, noting that the guidelines said there is some confusion about what to eat "because we don't know enough about nutrition to identify an 'ideal diet' for each individual."

"I think that was basically what I was saying in that statement before the Senate Agriculture Committee," Block said.

The government's new dietary guidelines say Americans should use common sense and eat a variety of foods, being careful not to overdo it — something a good parent might tell a child.

"I always thought our mothers gave us pretty good advice, and I think that motherly advice was good then, I think it's good today," Block said.

The recommendations were in "Nutrition and Your Health: Dietary Guidelines for Americans" issued by the departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services. The first guidelines were issued in 1980.

"Maybe it's important that the government emphasize some of those things that your mother would have emphasized ... that people should eat whatever they eat in moderation, and that people should have a balanced diet of foods," Block said.

The nation's eating habits were also the topic of hearings and proposed legislation on Capitol Hill on Tuesday:

- Sens. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, introduced a bill requiring food labeling telling consumers the amount of salt in the product and the amount and type of fat. Currently, federal regulations require foods to list the amounts of nutrients only if they make any sort of nutrition claim or if they are fortified with vitamins and minerals.

- A senate subcommittee heard medical experts and physical fitness experts decry the diets of young people, saying they are endangering their future health by eating the wrong foods and not exercising enough. "A great deal of evidence demonstrates the childhood origins of heart disease," said Dr. David W. Harsha, a professor at the Louisiana State University Medical Center. "I don't think kids feel good," said physical fitness advocate Bonnie Pruden.

Officials said USDA will make single free copies of the 24-page pamphlet available from: Dietary Guidelines, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Copies also will be available from HHS through the National Health Information Clearinghouse, P.O. Box 1133k, Washington, D.C. 20013-1133, and through the Public Affairs Office of the Food and Drug Administration, HFE-88, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md. 20851.

RESCUE

would soon start demolishing the more seriously damaged buildings and leveling the mounds of rubble that dot the city.

A top government official speaking on condition he not be identified told The Associated Press that Mexico is grateful for the relief aid pouring in from around the world; but said some of it may not be useful.

"We do not need blankets. We do need money to rebuild the city, to rebuild the schools. Tell them that," said the official.

The American Embassy announced that the United States is sending 800 3,000-gallon water storage tanks, some smaller water tanks and water purification kits. The quakes have left thousands without drinking water and hundreds of people line up each day to receive a bucketful of water from water trucks.

Efforts continue to try to find shelters for the estimated 300,000 people left homeless. In devastated parts of the capital, parks and cars have become temporary home to scores of people.

ARMS

It was Shevardnadze's first address to the United Nations since being named earlier this year to succeed Andrei Gromyko as Soviet foreign minister.

While firm in laying blame for global tensions as the doorstep of the United States, Shevardnadze, 57, did not use the same harsh language to denounce the United States as Gromyko used in recent addresses.

U.S. officials agreed the tone of the address "was dramatically different" but said the substance was unchanged.

Chamber Singers audition Sunday

Auditions for the Hereford Chamber Singers will be held at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the Hereford High School choir room.

Director Bill Devers said the group will continue to practice each Sunday from 8 until 10 p.m.

Fund established for Rakow family

A fund to help defray expenses for the Frank Rakow family has been established at the Hereford State Bank, according to friends of the family. Rakow recently sustained a heart attack and has undergone open heart surgery. He and his wife have four children at home.

The USDA guidelines announced Tuesday "present sensible information that doesn't pretend to define an 'ideal' diet that ensures good health — something we need more research to determine," Block said. "Instead, the guidelines suggest variety, balance and moderation in the diet and leave the specific food choices to the individual."

A consumer group urged USDA to apply the guidelines throughout the department's policies and information materials relating to food and human health.

Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice, a national research, education and advocacy organization based in Washington, said: "While we are gratified to see the revised guidelines intact and changed little from the original ones published in 1980, we are chagrined at the loss of time that could have been spent educating Americans about healthier eating habits and shaping policies that promote nutrition and health."

The American Meat Institute, which represents the meat packing and processing industry, said it "endorses the philosophy" outlined in the guidelines, which underscore the importance of balance and variety in the diet.

The basic guidelines include:

- Eat a variety of foods.
- Maintain desirable weight.
- Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol.
- Eat foods adequate in starch and fiber.

- Avoid too much sugar.
- Avoid too much sodium.
- If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

Officials said USDA will make single free copies of the 24-page pamphlet available from: Dietary Guidelines, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Copies also will be available from HHS through the National Health Information Clearinghouse, P.O. Box 1133k, Washington, D.C. 20013-1133, and through the Public Affairs Office of the Food and Drug Administration, HFE-88, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md. 20851.

Ann Landers

Efforts can be destroyed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in answer to the teacher from Dubuque who is quitting because she "can't bear to see what we are doing to the generation that is expected to lead us into the 21st century."

I agreed with her until she dumped on parents who are "too busy making money."

I was a latch-key kid from the age of 7. Both parents worked and had neither the time nor energy to do the things most parents do with their children. I was an only child growing up in New York City, left to my own devices until my parents came home. Sometimes it was as late as 9 or 10 o'clock at night. I did not become hostile, I didn't use drugs and I did not steal. My grades were good and I never got into any trouble. When I married at age 22 I was still a virgin.

When our son was born I was thrilled. I decided to stay at home and be a full-time mother. I was always available to chaperone a class trip, bake a cake, have my son's friends in or drive them to a movie or a ballgame.

My husband coached Little League summer after summer. He helped with the Scouts, went hiking and camping. We had splash parties, pajama parties, Halloween parties—you name it. Occasionally when my husband and I went to a movie or had dinner with friends, grandparents babysat. No strangers for our kid.

Everything we did revolved around the welfare of our son, but in the end, all our efforts counted for nothing. The boy is a drug addict, a thief with no morals and no conscience. He has made our lives a nightmare. Eventually we had to banish him from our home because of the criminal friends he harbored. The troopers and police were always at our door looking for someone. I became enraged when parents are blamed when children go wrong. I would like to remind "Dubuque" that parental influence counts for nothing when society at large is sick. Our children are exposed to filthy lyrics, pornographic magazines, sexy ads and trashy films. Freedom has become a license. What parents teach in the homes is undone on the outside. Now, thanks to television, they don't even have to leave their homes.

Unlike the kid with his finger in the dike, there seems to be no help on the way, and we've run out of fingers. Isn't it nice that "Dubuque" is a teacher and has a job she can quit? Parenthood goes on forever.—ONE OF MANY

DEAR ONE: Thank you for a letter millions of people will be able to relate to. I have said repeatedly that peer pressure and outside influences can undermine and even destroy the efforts of loving parents. Too many parents these days are feeling guilty for things that are not their fault.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I understand most donors to sperm banks are medical students. How do they know that one day their own progeny won't meet and marry a brother or sister? Wouldn't the results of such a union be disastrous?—UTAH

DEAR U: Not necessarily. Genetics experts say half-brothers and sisters would have only 50 percent of the "family" genes compared with full-blood brothers and sisters, who would have 100 percent. Even with the latter the child would be OK, unless there is a hereditary disease in the family.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

DEPRESSION A LARGE PROBLEM

ATLANTA (AP) — Depression often is a major problem for people with arthritis because it can make the pain of the disease seem so much worse, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

It says some people experience depression as a side effect of medications taken for arthritis. Others become depressed as a result of having to give up favorite activities and alter their lifestyles.

But there are ways to keep negative emotions from overwhelming you, the foundation says. It suggests trying to pinpoint what is causing the depression, then thinking of ways to work around the problem. It says to talk about your feeling with others.

Program on Deaf Smith presented

"Deaf Smith-man or Myth?" was the program presented by Donna Lindeman when Velela Study Club met Monday in the home of Juanita Brown.

The speaker said that Smith was born in Dutchess County New York on April 19, 1787, the son of a Baptist preacher. He came to Texas in 1817 looking for excitement. With this decision the state of Texas gained one of the most valiant and courageous men in its history.

She added that Smith's life was spent serving Texas but most remember him as Gen. Sam Houston's chief scout for the Texas army. He was one of the half of dozen men on whom Houston relied the most, and his loyalty was unwavering.

Lindeman explained that he fought gallantly at San Jacinto, where under orders from Houston, burned Vince's Bridge that cut off all escape for either armies leaving no alternative but victory or death.

Smith died Nov. 30, 1837 at the age of 50 in Richman, Tex. in Galveston County. Monuments have been erected to him but none as large as the one in which we live, Deaf Smith County.

Also, during the meeting with Marcella Bradley presiding, roll call, "What do you know about Deaf Smith?" was answered by the nine members present.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and letters of communication were read and discussed.

Those attending included Bradley, Brown, Betty Gilbert, Lindeman, Joyce Ritter, Suzanne Stevens, Norma Walden, Patricia Weldon and Margaret Zinser.

Local CWU to host luncheon

The Hereford Unit of Church Women United will be serving as hostesses at a luncheon Friday during the 44th State Assembly of Church Women United in Texas. The event, which is being held in First Christian Church in Amarillo, begins Thursday and will conclude Saturday.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. Doris Anne Younger of New York City, N.Y. She will develop the theme "We Are Made New By His Love" (Rev. 21:5). Dr. Younger is the general director of Church Women United, the largest ecumenical body of church women in the United States.

Other speakers include Alta Byars, Marilyn Van Petten, Patsy Britting, Rev. Frank Deitz, Diane Bosch, Bill Rice, Mrs. Mickey Gergeni, and Barbara Gundersen.

Parents influence success

If you child is having trouble adjusting to school, parental attitudes may be one possible problem, the Texas Medical Association says.

Sometime parents are afraid to let new people care for their children. Children pick up such signals and become anxious also. Parental stress about busing or other problems also can make a child feel uncomfortable.

Doubts and fears of parents and children can be eased by visiting the school and talking with the teacher. Such discussions can familiarize everyone with the child's schedule and upcoming activities. A visit also can give parents an early opportunity to inform the teacher about the child's special abilities, problems, or complicating situations, such as a recent family divorce that may have upset the child.

Another important discussion can be between parent and child. It can help to reassure the child that he or she can handle new circumstances just as in the past. Getting frequent updates about the child's progress and attitudes can help parents keep in touch with problems.

Persistent problems may mean the child has a learning disorder. To find out about possible problems quickly, tests can be done to determine hearing, sight, or learning handicaps that can cause the child years of frustration and failure if undetected, TMA says. The teacher often can give recommendations about available testing.

No matter what the cause of poor performance in school, it is important to help the child before troubles last too long. Help may be something as simple as aiding the child with homework.

Combest calls for stricter penalties

WASHINGTON — Congressman Larry Combest (R-Texas) announced today he is co-sponsoring legislation to help combat the growing problem of child pornography.
 Congressman Combest is co-sponsoring H.R. 2539, the Children's Protection Act of 1985, which would provide for the seizure of all assets and profits resulting from child pornography businesses. This legislation would also prohibit advertising of child pornography and make it punishable to transport minors across state lines for the purpose of sexual exploitation.

"The child pornography business is one of the most horrendous enterprises in existence today. It exploits innocent children, often times leaving them with permanent emotional and physical scars," Combest said.
 Combest noted that, "The United States Customs Office estimates that in the last three years they have seized more than 247,000 pieces of pornography and 70 percent of that pornographic material depicted children."

 "In this country alone, at least one million children have been sexually molested and then filmed for the abuser's pleasure or profit. Additionally, more than 260 child pornography magazines are sold in this country," Combest said.
 Congressman Combest is also co-sponsoring legislation, H.R. 3109, which would provide for life imprisonment without parole for those who sexually exploit children for commercial gain through the use of or threat of force or serious bodily injury or death. The strongest current penalty for a first offender is a $100,000 fine and/or 10 years in prison.
 "We must enact stringent laws that will help eradicate this heinous crime and severely punish those individuals who would exploit and harm our children," Combest concluded.

AN EXAMPLE OF ART DECO
 WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A fine example of art deco is the lobby of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. headquarters building here.
 The lobby, restored and renovated in 1982, has won four American Institute of Architects awards for design excellence. The lobby features Italian marble wall panels, golf-leaf ceilings, and nickel silver accents.
 The Reynolds Building, completed in 1929, was the model for the Empire State Building in New York City.

Texas Tech to help in farm family survey

LUBBOCK — More than 1,750 farm and ranch families throughout Texas will be surveyed about work and family life during the next few weeks as part of a national research project sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The information collected will be used for improving and developing programs to aid farmers, ranchers and their families throughout Texas. Director of the project is Texas Tech University family economics Professor A. William Gustafson.

The mail survey will collect information about the effect of off-farm employment of family members, family functioning and the economic situation of Texas farm and ranch families. The survey contains questions about family relationships, risk-taking, attitudes toward government and economic data.

"The survey is not lengthy and I hope people will take time to complete and return it," Gustafson said. "The survey offers a chance for farm and ranch families to give factual information to those who can help to improve the situation on farms and ranches in Texas."

Key points of survival in 1990's listed

COLLEGE STATION — What must a farmer do to survive financially in the 1990's?

Dr. Bill Black, an economist in marketing and policy with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, outlines a few key points for economic survival in farming as he views changes in the coming years.

"First, become part of an integrated system—the most common way to forward contract," Black advises farmers. "Find a home for what you produce before you plant. Make your products more consumer-ready. And let the buyer finance part of your production."

"Learn to manage a business, not just a farm," Black emphasizes. "You can't rely on land appreciation for equity accumulation."

The economist also advises farmers to "be on top of technological changes in biotechnology and management and economic developments. Be an early adopter."

In addition, "be outlook-oriented-futuristic," Black emphasizes. "Plan for the future. Seek information and analyze what information you get. Be aggressive but sound."

"Control risk and exposure—either by selling ahead or pricing ahead," adds the economist.

"Grow as fast as your equity permits, and remember, increased equity won't come from rising land prices."

"Finally, spend more time managing than riding the tractor. Don't produce for an unknown market," says Black.

The cooperative project, called S-191 by the USDA, is partially funded by the Texas Tech Home Economics Research Institute. The Texas survey is being administered through the Texas Tech University unit of the Texas A&M Agricultural Experiment Station.

Gustafson, who was asked by the USDA to direct the project, has both bachelor's and master's degrees in agricultural economics and a doctorate in family and consumption economics.

Nelson felt good about FarmAid

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Financially strapped American farmers reaped publicity from FarmAid, but the immediate cash harvest was less than $10 million from the big-name benefit concert that rocked the heartland with country, blues and rock 'n' roll.

"It went great. I'm real happy. It exceeded my expectations," Willie Nelson, the driving force behind FarmAid, told The Associated Press early today as he boarded his bus to leave the stadium after the marathon concert.

Nelson said telephone pledges during Sunday's concert totaled about $5 million, according to Walt Adams of The Nashville Network, a cable system that carried 12 hours of the concert live to 25 million subscribing households.

Another $4 million was raised before the first note sounded, through ticket sales and corporate donations. Concert organizers had said earlier they hoped to raise up to $50 million to help the nation's struggling farmers.

Concert publicists said they expected the flow of FarmAid money to continue, by telephone and mail, for weeks or even months.

Managing risk course offered

Managing risk is a key to the economic survival of farmers, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has planned a short course to deal with that issue. The activity is Oct. 13 at the Computer Training Center at Stiles Farm at Thrall, six miles east of Taylor on U.S. 79. Producers will be briefed on yield and price strategies, crop insurance, crop budgets, accounting reports, cash flow projections, whole farm planning, the market outlook, grain futures, commodity options and options hedging.

Hosts To Venezuelan Officials

Local hybrid grain sorghum companies hosted three ag officials from Venezuela here Tuesday to view test plots of sorghum. This area alone provides some $2.5 million in seed to Venezuela each year. Hosting the meeting here were, left to right: Larry Richardson, Richardson

Seed Co. of Vega; Art Stoy, Garrison Seed Co.; Arnon Lauderback, Seed Tec Inc.; and Bill Lyles, Warner Seed Co. From 85 to 90 percent of the world's hybrid grain sorghum is produced within a 120-mile radius of Hereford.

Millions lost to disease and insects

Even though Texas harvested a record 187 million bushel wheat crop this year, producers suffered millions of dollars in yield and quality losses due to disease and insects—principally from leaf rust and the Hessian fly.

The newly expanded statewide Texas Wheat Producers Board and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has entered into an agreement designed to bring a halt to these annual losses, according to Leo Witkowski, Hereford, Tx, a member of Texas Wheat Producers Board.

Witkowski said that the contract calls for the Board to provide some $135,000 over a three year period from its half cent per bushel self-assessment program to TAES to enhance its on-going statewide wheat breeding efforts in an attempt to develop resistance to these maladies in current or new varieties of both hard and soft wheats.

In signing the agreement, Dr. Neville P. Clarke, TAES Director at College Station, indicated that specifically, the producer funds will be used by the Station to support expanded research on project H-6599, "Wheat Cultivar Improvement and Germplasm Enhancement", for "Development of Multiple Pest Resistant Wheat". The project is under the direction of Dr. W.D. Worrell, Wheat Breeder, and Dr. J.E. Slosser, Crops Entomologist, at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center at Chillicothe-Vernon.

Even though directed from the Chillicothe-Vernon Center, the work will be coordinated with plant pathologists at other stations and varieties suitable for the various areas of the state will be tested at other research centers, especially Bushland Dallas, Overton, Temple, College Station and Corpus Christi.

Minimum tillage and other cultural practices that have been designed to decrease cost of production and that are increasing in popularity in some areas will be studied to determine the effects they may have on perpetuation of the disease and insect problems under Texas climatic conditions.

In announcing the amendment of the current budget to include the stepped-up research, Witkowski indicated that the statewide, farmer-elected 15-man Board was unanimous in their belief that along with expanded market development the disease and insect genetic control was the item most expected from local supporting producers in each of their areas of representation.

The World War II Allied invasion of Sicily was launched July 10, 1943.

Sept. 30th last day to buy insurance

COLLEGE STATION — Texas farmers have until the last day of September to buy crop insurance for small grains.

"Crop insurance is basically a risk management strategy in which a farmer pays a premium to protect against large, unpredictable yield losses," says Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Crop insurance can assure a farmer of a minimal cash flow in case of a major crop loss so that he will have a chance to farm the next year," adds the economist.

Producers who insured their small grain crops last year will have their contracts renewed automatically unless they cancel them, Lovell points out. However, any changes in the level of coverage or price election must be made by Sept. 30.

This year multiple peril crop insurance (mpci) for 1985-86 wheat, oats and barley will be available only under the Actual Production History (APH) program, Lovell explains. Under APH, yield guarantees are based on actual production records of the insured or grower rather than on county average yields as was the case under the area coverage plan.

BLINDED! SO THAT OTHERS MIGHT SEE!

Paul continued, "I used torture to try to make Christians everywhere curse Christ. I was so violently opposed to them that I even hounded them in distant cities in foreign lands. I was on such a mission to Damascus, armed with the authority and commission of the chief priests, when one day about noon, sir, a light from heaven brighter than the sun shone down on me and my companions. We all fell down, and I heard a voice speaking to me in Hebrew, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me? You are only hurting yourself.'"

"Who are you, sir?" I asked. And the Lord replied, 'I am Jesus, the one you are persecuting. Now stand up! For I have appeared to you to appoint you as My servant and My witness. You are to tell the world about this experience and about the many other occasions when I shall appear to you. And I will protect you from both your own people and the Gentiles. Yes, I am going to send you to the Gentiles to open their eyes to their true condition so that they may repent and live in the light of God instead of in Satan's darkness, so that they may receive forgiveness for their sins and God's inheritance along with all people everywhere whose sins are cleansed away, who are set apart by faith in Me.'"

"And so, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to that vision from heaven! I preached first to those in Damascus, then in Jerusalem and through Judea, and also to the Gentiles that all must forsake their sins and turn to God—and prove their repentance by doing good deeds."

Acts 26:11-20

Cancer fight being planned by council

AUSTIN (AP) — A $7 million fight against cancer in Texas has been launched by the Texas Cancer Council despite protests from some members that the program slighted the eastern part of the state.

The council was created by the 1985 Legislature after a task force appointed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis recommended emergency action to halt the spread of this disease.

Members of the 16-member council indicated Tuesday they would have recommendations for the 1987 Legislature to expand the effort to find and treat cancer in Texas.

Dr. Donald C. Spencer, Austin private physician, and former state Sen. Don Adams, vice chairman of the council, disagreed with a Texas Department of Health plan that would not require hospitals with fewer than 100 beds to report cancer cases.

Hospitals required to make reports would get $6 for the "abstract" of each cancer case, describing in detail the circumstances.

"Most of the hospitals in East Texas are under 100 beds, as well as in South Texas," said Adams, an Austin attorney and lobbyist who formerly was a senator from Jasper.

"Region 7 (which includes most of East Texas) has the highest incidence of cancer in the state but it is not included in the payment for reports on cancer patients," Spencer said.

"It would take only about $100,000 more to get these reports from East Texas," said Dr. Joaquin Cigarroa, Laredo physician.

Dr. Robert Bernstein, state health commissioner, said when the 1985 Legislature cut the appropriation from $11.7 million to $7 million for the next two years, the Department of Health was forced to ask for cancer reports only from hospitals with more than 100 beds in "high priority" areas for the Texas Cancer Registry.

Bernstein said his department believed these reports would represent about 90 percent of the cancer cases in Texas since they would include the Dallas-Fort Worth and the Beaumont-Port Arthur and Houston areas.

"I am convinced this cancer registry can be the most important thing we do," said Spencer. "I am very anxious we work on a very firm basis."

State Sen Chet Brooks, a member of the council from Pasadena, said he was convinced the 1987 Legislature would "add money to the pot" for the cancer registry if the council's current efforts are successful.

James Dannenbaum, Houston, chairman of the council, said he hoped there might be additional funds from "outside sources" to supplement the cancer registry appropriation.

The council approved the state spending $603,625 for hospital reports on cancer cases without any opposing votes.

The council also approved, without any opposing votes, a special public health project in East Texas that Dr. Joseph T. Painter, Houston, said would provide guidelines for public education of blacks on cancer risks, including the importance of nutrition.

"I wonder about spending $141,000 for this project when you could take this money and get abstracts on 23,000 cancer cases in East Texas that we won't have otherwise," Spencer said.

Doctors combine modern microsurgery, leeching

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors who reattached a boy's severed ear with microsurgery feared the operation might fail when drugs didn't overcome a complication, so they turned to one of their profession's oldest tools: leeches.

"It wouldn't have worked if we hadn't been able to use the leeches," said Dr. Joseph Upton, who headed the team of Children's Hospital surgeons that operated on Guy Condehli, 5, of Medford, who had been attacked by a dog.

Reattachments of severed ears are rarely successful because the ear's blood vessels are exceptionally tiny — so small they can't be seen with the naked eye. The only reported success was five years ago in Australia, Upton said.

When Guy and his severed ear were rushed to Upton after the attack Aug. 16, "I decided to give it a try, even though the success rate is almost nil."

Members of the surgical team worked for 12 hours under microscopes that magnified by 40 times the torn veins and arteries they had to reconnect. The operation worked, and blood flowed through the reattached vessels.

But Guy's recovery was complicated by poor circulation. Although blood flowed into the ear, clots formed in the veins so it could not return to the heart. Three days after the operation, the ear turned blackish blue with congested blood.

At first, doctors gave the child heparin, a medicine that prevents clotting, and made cuts in the ear to let out blood. However, the child was losing a lot of blood, and doctors feared the operation would fail.

As a surgeon in Vietnam, Upton had sometimes used leeches to heal wounds, and he decided they were worth a try.

"I started calling around the country to my friends trying to find some hungry leeches," Upton said. He eventually found a variety of medical leeches, known as Hirudo medicinalis, in England and had some flown to Boston.

He attached two of the 1½-inch-long worms to the child's ear. They slowly filled with blood and eventually became 8 inches long and looked something like fat cigars.

Besides sucking blood, the leeches inject an anesthetic and anticoagulant into the flesh to keep blood from clotting.

"The ear perked up right away," Upton said. "It was obvious it was going to work."

The doctors continued the therapy for a week and used up about two dozen leeches. By that time, normal circulation was restored in the child's healthy-looking reattached ear.

The boy's mother, Darlene, said Tuesday she had no doubts about the leeches. "I said, 'If it works, do it. Whatever it takes.' He put the leeches on, and it was incredible how much better it looked."

Guy was discharged from the hospital about two weeks after the operation and is going to kindergarten.

Dr. Richard Wolfe, a medical historian at Harvard, said leeches have been used since ancient times to draw bad blood from wounds, but they fell from favor in the mid-1800s.

The child did not seem to mind the leeches and could not feel them, said Upton. And the tedious surgery and difficult recovery were far better than the alternative of losing the ear.

Bitter strike becomes test of wills

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — A bitter month-long strike by union meatpackers against Geo. A. Hormel & Co.'s flagship plant has grown into a contest of wills. And neither side shows signs of relenting.

"There comes a time when injustice and dignity in the workplace have to be addressed and you can't back up anymore," said Jim Guyette, the tall, broad-shouldered president of Local P-9 of the Food and Commercial Workers union.

The local's 1,500 members walked off their jobs on Aug. 17 in the first strike at the Austin plant in 52 years.

Standing on the other side of the picket line is Richard L. Knowlton, Hormel's chief executive, who says the company already pays $1 to $2 an hour more than the average wage in the meatpacking industry and can pay no more.

"When they (Austin workers) see what's happening in the rest of the industry, they'll see what I told them two years ago is true: they've got the best contract in the industry," Knowlton said.

Knowlton calls the union's allegations of poor working conditions and a high injury rate at the 3-year-old plant "a bunch of hooey."

"It was a good company — always has been. I choose to believe it still is," he said.

Guyette was elected on a platform of no concessions to Hormel, a giant in the meatpacking industry with $1.4 billion in sales last fiscal year. That promise was tested last October when Hormel, saying it had to remain competitive, slashed wages by 23 percent.

Union locals at other Hormel plants agreed to the move, which trimmed the base wage from $10.69 to $8.25 an hour. But P-9 leaders refused to go along, contending that Hormel — maker of SPAM luncheon meat, Black Label bacon and Cure #1 ham — was profitable and could afford to pay more than other meat companies.
