A new complex for Westgate nursing home is due to be completed around the first of the year. The facility will join the retirement and nursing areas and house a barber and beauty shop, central kitchen and administrative offices. Ritter Construction of Amarillo is in charge of the new complex.

East coast readies for hurricane blast

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Coastal residents from South Carolina to Maryland boarded up homes and businesses and moved inland today ahead of Hurricane Gloria, packing near-130 mph winds and billed as one of the most powerful hurricanes to threaten the East Coast this century.

The National Weather Service issued a hurricane warning for the coastal area from Cape Romaine, S.C., to Cape Henry, Va. The bulletin said hurricane-force winds were imminent and coastal flooding of up to 12 feet over normal tides could be expected when the storm hits land as early as tonight.

Gale-force winds ahead of the hurricane's eye were expected to hit the North Carolina coast by early afternoon.

Schools were closed today in two North Carolina counties, boats were moved to safety along the entire Eastern Seaboard as far north as New Hampshire, and businesses reported heavy demand for canned food, batteries and plywood.

At 9 a.m. EDT, Gloria's eye was near latitude 30.1 north, longitude 75.7 west, or about 350 miles south of Cape Hatteras, N.C. Latest reports suggest that a gradual turn toward the north with an increase in forward speed may have begun, the National Weather Service said. It was moving north-northwest at 15 mph, with gale-force winds extending 200 miles to the north and 150 miles to the south of the eye.

There was a 45 percent chance that the center of the storm would pass within 65 miles of Wilmington, N.C., by 2 a.m. Friday, with Morehead City at 42 percent, Myrtle Beach, S.C., at 38 percent and Cape Hatteras at 31 percent, the weather service said.

"It is a strong storm," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami. "Everyone along the East Coast needs to pay attention to it."

"If it continues on the track it's on right now, we expect it will hit the North Carolina coast Thursday night," Gil Clark at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., said Wednesday.

"If this storm continues on this track, we're looking at another Hazel," Robert E. Muller, chief meteorologist at the weather service forecasting center at Raleigh-Durham Airport, said, referring to the October 1964 storm that killed 347 people with its 150 mph winds and 17-foot tidal surge.

Gloria, once packing 150 mph winds and among only five known Category 5 storms, weakened to 130 mph as the sun set and water temperature dropped, Clark said. It still was "on the borderline between Class 3 and 4" early today.

In Maryland, residents of Smith Island, the southernmost part of the Chesapeake Bay, were urged by Somerset County civil defense director John Somers to evacuate "if you cannot guarantee your and your family's safety."

New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean ordered state police and emergency officials on alert, and Long Island Lighting Co. in New York said it had called in workers from vacation so it

C of C to elect four new directors

Election of four new directors for Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce has been set for October, and the board approved eight nominees during a regular monthly meeting Tuesday.

The eight nominees are Jerry Walsh, Frito Lay; Fred Rivera, Rivera's Produce; Jack Mars, Energas manager; Lajeon Henry, Pants Cage; B.J. Gilliland, Gilliland-Nieman Associates; R.L. Blakely, Exxon distributor; Allen Parson, K-Bob's Restaurant; and John Perrin, farmer-rancher. C of C past presidents served on the nominating committee.

Ballots will be mailed to all chamber members on Oct. 10 and the deadline for return of the mail ballots will be Oct. 25.

Directors whose three-year terms expire will be Charlie Bell, Rosie Griffin, Steve Nieman and Gary Phipps.

In other business Tuesday, the board discussed the video presentation which is being prepared for industrial prospects and newcomers to Hereford. The project is being underwritten by a number of business firms and institutions.

Mike Carr, executive vice president, reported that director Doug Manning is representing the Deaf Smith County C of C on a study committee formed by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce. The committee was formed to take an objective look at the arguments for and against a proposed nuclear waste repository in Deaf Smith County. The group was formed earlier this month and plans to issue a statement after a 60-day study.

Directors approved a financial report for August and heard several progress reports on committee ac-

Farm bill opens in House today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers considering a $141 billion, five-year rewrite of the nation's farm and food policy must decide how much of the burden taxpayers and consumers should be asked to bear to support farm subsidies ranging from milk to peanuts.

The question of who should pay for what always is present when Congress debates farm policy, but this year is different. The debate this time takes place against a backdrop of financial depression in some rural areas unlike anything since the 1930s.

While they do not dispute the hardships on today's farm, the Reagan administration and some consumer groups contend Congress is poised to help farmers who don't need aid along with those who do.

With the House scheduled to take up the 1985 farm bill today, more than 200 possible amendments to the massive legislation already had been introduced. Some of the most controversial, dealing with dairy and sugar subsidies, were to open the debate.

The first test, on whether to keep sugar price supports at their current 18-cent-per-pound level or to reduce them, was regarded as a bellwether of how well the traditional farm coalition will hold together to protect other crop programs.

Among other amendments was a move to do away with a proposed farmer referendum on wheat and corn that would institute substantial marketing restrictions along with higher price supports. Another amendment would scrap the peanut program, which grants franchises to farmers to grow a limited quantity of peanuts at a high support price, while another would rescind the Agriculture Committee's proposed freeze on "target price" income supports.

The big question is who gets to pay

Robert Thompson, the assistant secretary of agriculture for economics, says the bill's provision freezing income protection payments is "an extremely blunt instrument" for helping farmers.

New department figures show that in the past year, only 17 cents of every dollar in income subsidies went to farmers defined as in financial stress because of heavy debt.

"All these people who talk about helping low-income farmers are simply missing the mark," Thompson told reporters Wednesday.

Time To Pucker Up

What better way to break the monotony of a lazy fall day than to have a watermelon seed spitting contest? Hereford Senior Citizen Association members took advantage of 50 watermelons donated by Eunie

West and decided to have a little fun Thursday afternoon. The winners of the two prize watermelons were Ezra Bagwell and Martha Lueb (the other 30 contestants got the pleasure of just eating the melons).

Handshakes not sign of agreement between Soviets

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — If smiles and handshakes took the place of agreements, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze might have no differences between them.

But Shultz said the two did not agree on a thing, even though they appeared to get along wonderfully well in a four-hour meeting Wednesday that was intended to help set the stage for the summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 19-20.

Babies rekindle hope amid quake rubble

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three babies found alive in the rubble of a hospital rekindled hopes more survivors of Mexico's killer earthquakes could be found, but officials said time was quickly running out.

Late Wednesday, Mayor Ramon Aguirre's office said officials had confirmed more than 4,000 people died in a great earthquake last Thursday that measured 8.1 on the Richter scale, and a second quake the following day that registered 7.5.

Police said 4,596 people had been killed. There was no immediate explanation for the different figures. Officials originally said the quakes measured 7.8 and 7.3, but changed the figures based on readings from several different sources.

Aquirre's office has said 417 buildings damaged in the back-to-back quakes will have to be razed. On Wednesday, President Miguel de la Madrid met with city officials to begin a review of construction codes, land use and building density.

"We did not reach agreement on any of these items," Shultz said of their agenda of differences, particularly on arms control.

Nevertheless, Shultz said their talks were "most worthwhile" and were conducted in an "easy and frank atmosphere." He even received an apology from Shevardnadze for not having attended a United Nations meeting where Shultz spoke on Monday.

"Our capability for conversation was very easy," Shultz said. Shultz said the talks focused on arms control issues, particularly the deadlocked Geneva arms control talks.

"There were no particular new proposals put on the table, but there was a thorough exchange of views," Shultz said.

A senior State Department official who attended the talks indicated it was still possible Shevardnadze might unveil a much-anticipated new arms control proposal in his meeting with Reagan on Friday.

Soviet officials have been coy all week on whether Shevardnadze had a new proposal. Asked by a reporter Wednesday before his meeting with Shultz whether he was carrying one, the Soviet official said, "If I tell you all, afterward I will have no answers." (See SUMMIT, Page 2)

Hance blames White for unemployment

AUSTIN (AP) — Kent Hance, expected Republican candidate for governor, says Democratic Gov. Mark White may be responsible for some of Texas' unemployment.

"For the first time in 15 years, the Texas unemployment rate is above the national average, a fact that should concern our governor a great deal," Hance said in a statement released by his Austin office. "Yet during the last legislative session, White's waffling on a key bill directly resulted in a direct loss of jobs in Texas."

Texas' unemployment was recorded at 7 percent of the state's work force in mid-August, compared to the national average of 7 percent, according to the Texas Employment Commission.

White's office said there would be no immediate comment from the governor but a spokesman said statistics showed a total of 487,000 new hires had been created in Texas since White took office.

Hance said White refused to take a position one way or the other on credit card legislation during the 1985 regular legislative session.

Two arrested in extortion slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bond has been denied for two San Antonio men charged with capital murder in the alleged extortion slaying of a banker's wife.

John Lawrence Rogers, 31, and Lesley Lee Gosch, 30, were arrested at a northwest side apartment complex early Wednesday in connection with the shooting death of Rebecca Jo Patton.

Mrs. Patton, 42, was found shot in the head several times at her home in fashionable Alamo Heights, a suburb of San Antonio.

Minutes before her body was found, her husband, Castle Hills National Bank President Frank Patton Jr., received a telephone call from an alleged extortionist demanding a large amount of money in return for Mrs. Patton's safety. No money was exchanged in the extortion plot.

The arrests came less than two days after University National Bancshares Inc. of San Antonio, the holding company for Castle Hills National Bank, offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the crime.

Man convicted for execution of alien

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — A San Antonio man faces a possible death sentence after being convicted in the slaying of a Mexican national who was shot and stabbed in an attack on five illegal aliens near Bulverde last spring.

The jury returned the capital murder guilty verdict against Rudolfo Hernandez, 36, after deliberating six hours on Wednesday.

The punishment phase in Hernandez's trial was scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. today at the Comal County Courthouse. He could be sentenced to execution by injection.

Courthouse officials said Hernandez appeared "smug" when the verdict was read.

Victor Serrano Cervan, 20, was slain in March after he and four other Mexican nationals hopped a San Antonio-bound freight train at the international border in Eagle Pass, then accepted a ride after arriving in San Antonio.

The five were driven to the countryside, reportedly robbed and attacked. The four others survived.

Wednesday, the seven-man, five-woman, all-Anglo jury began its deliberations at 12:35 p.m. after defense attorney John Chunn failed in his attempt to elicit a directed verdict from District Judge Robert Pfeuffer.

German prostitutes infecting US soldiers

WASHINGTON (AP) — German prostitutes have infected some U.S. soldiers with AIDS, and those soldiers appear to be spreading the disease to wives and girlfriends, as heterosexual transmission of AIDS moves from theory to reality, a Harvard researcher testified today.

Dr. William A. Haseltine of the Harvard Medical School told a Senate hearing that an Army study found that 5 percent of the U.S. soldiers in Berlin seeking treatment for venereal disease are infected with the AIDS virus.

He said they apparently were infected by local prostitutes. Among prostitutes surveyed, he said, 20 percent to 50 percent were infected with AIDS.

Blood samples by the Army have shown that an infected male soldier can transmit the AIDS virus to a female sexual partner, and that she in turn can transmit the virus to other males, Haseltine said. And, he added, there are some reports indicating lesbian women can spread the disease to other women.

Committee set on textile import rollback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defying veto warnings, the House Ways and Means Committee appears set to approve a massive rollback in textile imports, the storm center of the congressional debate over trade.

As the panel prepared for action, House caucus chairmen clashed in debate Wednesday over proposed tariffs to drive down overseas barriers to U.S. exports. House GOP leaders produced sweeping trade legislation.

"We need a stick in the closet" to punish countries that erect trade barriers, Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, told the debate sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

"We should bash down their doors — diplomatically, not on the floor of the House," retorted Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., chairman of the House Republican Conference and a critic of a Gephardt-sponsored tariff bill.

An early floor vote on the textile measure, strongly opposed by the Reagan administration, appeared likely following today's Ways and Means hearing, at which extraordinary steps were planned to shrink the number of spectators.

Garza says earthquake will create jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico's earthquake might have a "positive side" — creation of thousands of construction jobs that could slow, at least temporarily, the influx of Mexican citizens illegally entering the United States, Rep. Kika de la Garza said after a trip to the disaster area.

Most of the illegal aliens crossing the U.S.-Mexico border are not from Mexico City and the other areas hardest hit by last week's earthquake, de la Garza told a news conference Wednesday.

"But in the demolition and reconstruction, there will be thousands and thousands of jobs," he said. "So I think it would behoove us, rather than spend the money trying to stop them at the border, to send the money down there and put people to work."

De la Garza, D-Mission, said he spent all day Monday in the Mexican capital meeting with U.S. and Mexican officials who told him that the city has enough food, medical supplies and volunteers but needs drinking water and money.

have insisted farm income should at least be held constant in any new legislation. As written, the bill contains a virtual four-year freeze on income support payments, and even liberalizes the subsidies by creating new exemptions from the current $50,000-per-farmer annual payment limit.

Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., and Rep. Willis Gradison, R-Ohio, sent around five-pound bags of sugar to House colleagues on the eve of the voting, with a letter attached arguing that Canadians are paying only half the price Americans bear for the same item in the grocery store. Downey and Gradison will attempt to cut the support price by a penny a year over the next three years.

The House dairy provision revives an earlier program paying farmers to refrain from milk production and taxing all dairy farmers to underwrite the diversion's cost. It also establishes a new price-support formula that would increase support levels, a move consumer groups argue would be an incentive to produce even more surpluses.

Rep. James Olin, D-Va., and House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., will propose a simple cut in the support price instead, with future cuts dependent on the size of the surplus.

Dollar-A-Door Walk

The Hereford Satellite Center will be sponsoring a Dollar-A-Door Walk to help support the local center due to state budget cuts. The workers of the vocational center will be walking Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and will be asking for one dollar at each door.

Red Cross gives update of earthquake

The Red Cross is sharing updates on Red Cross Roll with the Mexican Embassy in Washington, D.C., and requested they share the updates with their consulates.

National Headquarters of American Red Cross has established a box number, P.O. Box 37238, Washington, D.C., 20013, for handling contributions directly from the public.

The Mexican Red Cross is assisting more victims in shelters but the number is not growing as most of the homeless have gone to homes of friends and relatives.

Local telephone service is functioning within Mexico City but international service is still not functioning and may be out for considerable time.

Inquirers are encouraged to write relatives as Mexican Postal System was not affected.

The Red Cross suggests inquirers contact a friend or relative in another part of Mexico who can make an intercountry contact with the person in the affected area.

Inquirers are being advised to contact the Mexican Embassy, Washington, D.C.; phone 202-234-6000 or the Mexican Consulate in their area.

The American Embassy in Mexico City is advising the state department of names of Americans who have checked with the Embassy or who have been located.

The inquirer should keep in touch with other close relatives. This accounts for one percent of known American citizens in Mexico.

All Embassy personnel are accounted for and uninjured.

The telephone number for the Department of State for inquiries on United States citizens is 202-653-7959.

Military inquiries cannot be handled at this time due to the distribution of international communications. The Red Cross suggests referring to the above for procedures.

The American Red Cross said the damage within Mexico City is concentrated in small pockets in which there is nearly total devastation.

Outside of the pocket, damage is minimal and equipment and supplies for rescue efforts appear to be adequate.

The following information is a result of the initial survey by the League of Red Cross.

Areas affected in Mexico City metropolitan area are: Autodromo Hipodroma, Alameda Park, Alamos, Algarin, Atenor Salas, Benito Juarez (most badly damaged), Centro, Colonia Naples (some), The Colonias; Roma and Del Valle, Condesa, Cuauhtemoc (most badly damaged), Escuadron, Guerrero, Hipodromo Condesa, Lower Reforma, Moderna, Morelos, Nueva Santa Maria, Obrera, Piedad, Navarte, Revolucion, Roma Norte, Roma Sur, San Rafael, Santa Maria La Rivera, Tacubaya, Trancito, Unidad Nonalco Tlateloko, University District (lightly damaged), Viaducto Piedad, Zocalo, Zona Rosa.

The American Red Cross said there is no shortage of doctors, nurses or other support medical personnel in Mexico City.

SUMMIT

But after the meeting, he had nothing to say about it.

The 57-year-old Shevardnadze said he agreed with Shultz that the meeting had been worthwhile. "It was an interesting, frank and useful meeting."

But he also said there were "quite a lot of things to do" before the Reagan-Gorbachev summit in November.

Although there wasn't much apparent progress, Shultz and other U.S. officials clearly were encouraged that Shevardnadze was less confrontational and more cooperative in his tone than his predecessor, Andrei Gromyko.

"What we are seeing so far is a different style," said a senior U.S. official who briefed reporters on the condition he not be identified. "It seems to be more conversational — the decibel level is considerably lower. We don't know yet ... what the significance of the change of style is."

But he said he hoped it was "a precursor" of an effort to achieve understandings and agreements.

Ann Landers

Pronounce it right

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the latter part of 1985, the people of this planet will be treated to a phenomenon. Beginning in October, continuing through Christmas and into 1986, we will be able to see the return of Halley's comet. It appears only once every 75 years.

So why am I writing to Ann Landers? Since you are read nationwide, I hope most newscasters will see this and learn the correct pronunciation. I've already heard reports of "Hailey's" comet. They rhyme it with Bailey, as in Barnum and. Actually it ought to rhyme with Sally, tally, alley or rally.

Please advise your TV newscaster friends that this will be their last chance until 2060 to talk about it. Not many will have a second shot and it would be awfully nice if they pronounced it properly.—A NORFOLK NEBULA

DEAR NEB: Thanks for your advance warning to all radio and TV commentators. I hope they will tape this column in their booths around Sept. 15th and practice saying HAL-EEEE'S comet. HAL-EEEE'S comet. Anyone caught saying "Hailey's" after I have gone to the trouble of printing this warning should receive 40 lashes with a wet noodle.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word to "Judge Not in California," the parents of a sexually active teenager? It sounds as if they did everything possible to raise their child to be a respectable, well-behaved young lady, but something went wrong. This letter is not intended as criticism. I am writing in the hope that what I have to say might help other parents.

I, too, was sexually active during my teenage years. My parents never knew a thing about it. They would have been shocked. Mom and Dad did not believe in showing affection to an older child because they thought it was babyish.

When I was 8 years old they stopped hugging and kissing me. For seven long years I was not touched affectionately by either of them. When I turned 15 I began to sleep with boys. I didn't know why I behaved that way then, but I know now. I'll sign this letter—HAVE YOU HUGGED YOUR CHILD TODAY?

DEAR H.Y.H.: The need to be held, touched and cuddled begins at birth and it continues throughout life. Children whose parents deprive them of these pleasures in their growing-up years often seek it elsewhere. You certainly figured it out, dear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is for "On the Spot in the Southwest"—the woman who buys a newspaper every day and resents the way her co-workers freeload. Here's how we solved the problem in Long Island, N.Y.

Three readers of Newsday in our department agreed to take turns buying the paper for one week. That paper was read by all of us. We set up rules. Nobody is allowed to clip coupons, rip out articles or work the crossword puzzle. Whoever buys the paper takes it home.

A fourth person took it upon himself to pick up the paper when no one was looking. When we explained the setup he agreed to become a paying member of the group. Now we all read the paper and everyone is happy with the arrangement.—FAIR

DEAR FAIR: A fine solution. I recommend it as an ideal solution for offices, factories, shops, etc.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex—Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Audio-visual program on comets being seen

Through the centuries comets have been blamed for plague and sickness and for deciding the outcome of wars and insurrections.

The legend and lore of comets, as well as the reality, will be explored in "A Comet Called Halley" until Nov. 24 at Moody Planetarium of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

The audio-visual program coincides with the once-in-a-lifetime return of Halley's Comet this fall. Shows will be at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.; Monday through Friday, 7:30 p.m. Thursdays; and at 2 and 3:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children and Texas Tech students.

The comet which orbits the solar system on a 76-year cycle was named after Edmond Halley, the 17th century astronomer who first observed that some comets return to the inner solar system periodically. Halley used the newly developed gravitational theory of his colleague Isaac Newton in studying the orbital paths of hundreds of comets.

Several of the charts were peculiarly similar, leading him to predict the return of one comet in 1758. Halley died before the comet made the predicted appearance and became his namesake.

The comet displayed itself last in 1910. This year's return is not expected to be nearly as spectacular but nevertheless, the visit is being anxiously awaited by astronomers and casual observers. The comet will be visible in the northern hemisphere late this fall and in the spring of 1986.

Sanitation program regulates consumption

According to seafood expert Annette Redell Hegen, the two most common questions consumers have about shellfish is how can you tell if they're spoiled, and how can you tell if they're safe to eat?

"It's a rarely publicized fact, but there is a watchdog organization which regulates the domestic and imported shellfish we consume," says Hegen, a consumer information specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service Sea Grant Program.

The National Shellfish Sanitation Program is administered through the U.S. Public Health Service by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and in cooperation with state health departments, she explains.

The FDA regulates the areas from which shellfish can be taken, industry compiles by taking shellfish from these approved areas, and the state health departments assure that the product has been harvested and processed in a safe manner, the specialist says.

"With all these groups doing their part, consumers can be assured that high quality shellfish is reaching the market place," Hegen says. "But consumers must still refrigerate and handle the product properly to make sure they're putting a safe product on the table."

The state of Arizona has an area of 51,945 square miles.

All-star catcher named

Gary Carter, all-star catcher for the New York Mets, has been named National Honorary Sports Chairman for the Leukemia Society of America.

As sports chairman, Carter will be playing a key volunteer role in the Society's sports-related campaigns to raise funds to expand their research and patient assistance programs.

Carter said his involvement with the Society is motivated by more than wanting to help a voluntary organization; his mother, Inge, died from leukemia when Carter was 12 years old.

"Back in 1966, when my mother died, leukemia and related diseases took enough lives to wipe out a ballpark the size of Shea Stadium, where the Mets play their home games. Today, the news is much better for children and adults stricken with leukemia. Thanks to research programs like those sponsored by the Leukemia Society, survival rates are increasing and patients are living longer and fuller lives," Carter said.

"But so much more needs to be done to find the final cure, and I'm asking all sports fans to join me in helping the Leukemia Society of America solve the leukemia problem once and for all."

Carter is already involved with a number of promotions to raise funds for the Society. Profits from the sale of a poster designed by WOR-TV, featuring a drawing of Carter, are being donated to the Society. Additionally, Carter is requesting that all fans who want his autograph on a baseball card make a donation to the Society. A similar baseball card promotion conducted last year by Carter, when he played for the Montreal Expos, raised over $5,000 for leukemia research in Canada. Also, Newsday has agreed to donate $750 to the Society for each home run Carter hits out of Shea Stadium this season.

Dr. Lawrence D. Ellis, national president of the Leukemia Society, said the organization is "absolutely ecstatic" over Carter's involvement. "Gary Carter's accomplishments on the baseball diamond have made him a favorite of fans around the country. We are extremely honored that he has joined the nearly one million volunteers in the Leukemia Society's volunteer force."

The Leukemia Society of America is a national voluntary health agency sponsoring programs of research, patient assistance, public and professional education, and community service. Information about leukemia and related diseases, and the Society's programs can be obtained through the Panhandle Plains Area Office located at 2806 34th Street, Lubbock, Texas 79410.

Get Ready, Set, SPIT

The crowd grew quiet as the two finalists in the watermelon seed spitting contest took their places at the line. Margie Daniels, Senior Citizens executive director, dropped the flag and the pair spat. It was a tie for Ezra Bagwell and Martha Lueb. The event was held Wednesday afternoon on the center's main driveway in front of avid spitting enthusiasts.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Did he promise back in '82 to lower utility rates or didn't he?

Governor Mark White says he didn't. But several opponents and the Texas Republican Party say White came awful close to it back in 1982 when he was campaigning against GOP incumbent Bill Clements.

Last week in Beaumont, it was a group of loyal Texas Democrats who wanted to know the answer from White himself. Beaumont residents pay higher electric rates, and citizens hit hard by an economic slump there, asked White about the issue at a press conference.

The question came from a group of more than 40 black ministers, and White's own reply was: "Some people say I promised to lower rates—I didn't."

He went on to promise he would sign a bill making the Public Utilities Commission an elected board. He appoints it now.

White Misled Public?

Two Republican foes, Kent Hance and Tom Loeffler, are campaigning now against White's record on utility rates.

And old foe Bill Clements, now running again, said utilities was a "phony issue" when White brought it up in the last weeks of the campaign.

White was saying he would eliminate the automatic fuel adjustment charge on utility bills. Whether he actually said the elimination would lower rates is still a mystery.

Clements says White deliberately misled the public by suggesting he could lower utility bills.

White Defends Issue

White's foes were angered and they vowed then to keep the issue alive, just as White hoped it would go away quickly.

Only days after the election and before he took office, White began denying publicly that he had ever promised to lower rates. He has had to deny it ever since.

This summer, he went so far as to include his own little message in thousands of mailed utility bills in the Houston area where rates stabilized.

Price Of A Barrel

The Republicans wouldn't let him get away with that, either. Texas GOP treasurer Rob Mosbacher said White was playing it both ways by denying he had made the promise, then trying to take credit for rates which actually were depressed by a lower cost of oil.

Was White going to take responsibility for rate increases if the price of oil went up? Mosbacher asked.

Speaking of the price of oil, Texas may be facing another tax increase if the price of oil is lowered further, as OPEC officials have indicated will happen.

Tax Issue Remains

That's another issue Republicans hope to keep on the table to hound Mark White, and it won't be hard to do if another tax increase looms in the future.

White won't deny that one campaign promise he made was no new taxes. Republicans plastered his record on billboards around the state while he was trying to raise taxes weeks after taking office.

But White answered it was time to raise taxes and pressed on to call the famous special session which also passed the "no pass, no play" rule and other public school reforms.

Last session, the Legislature approved the barest bones budget in state history, and White forced the new indigent health care bill in another special session.

Now a study released last week indicates taxes may have to be raised to fund that program. The tax issues never, never go away.

Bill Messer Retires

State Rep. Bill Messer, the powerful Calendars chairman from Belton, rocked the House last week by announcing he will retire from the Legislature.

Largely unknown outside his district, Messer is one of the most powerful House members and was a top candidate for Speaker to replace his friend Gib Lewis. But Lewis told Messer he will run again and Messer decided to put his energies elsewhere.

Short Takes

Eugene R. Haney, a Republican insurance agent, won the District 140 House seat in north Houston vacated by now-Sen. Gene Green.

Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston, who says he has been running since July will officially become a candidate for the Railroad Commission this week.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock's tax enforcement officers seized $187,000 in cash, bank accounts and other assets from three delinquent Houston taxpayers.

Living contact lens results from surgery

DALLAS — Imagine a "living contact lens," one that never has to be taken out and cleaned because it grows to the surface of the eye and becomes an integral part of it. It sounds like science fiction, but it is possible today because of a surgical technique—one of several in the growing field known as keratorefractive surgery—now being done at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

Kerato refers to the cornea and refractive to the focusing of light. Keratorefractive surgery corrects defects in vision by changing the shape of the cornea to focus a visual image more sharply. It is effective in correcting many of the same problems that can be helped by glasses or contact lenses: to correct nearsightedness or farsightedness, to compensate for cataract surgery or to correct specific corneal deformities.

All of these problems result in poor focusing of light rays as they enter the eye through the clear cornea that covers the iris (the colored part of the eye), pass through the lens and focus on the retina, the light-sensitive tissue at the back of the eye. The retina converts light impulse into nerve impulses, which travel along the optic nerve to the brain, where "seeing" actually takes place. For good vision the light image must be sharply focused on the retina, not in front of or behind it. The cornea accomplishes about two-thirds of the focusing and the lens, the remainder.

Defects in either the cornea or the lens are traditionally corrected by glasses or contact lenses. Now surgery offers new alternatives.

"For some conditions the new corneal surgery offers the only hope of normal vision and for others it is an innovative alternative, but it's not for just anyone who wants to quit wearing glasses or contacts," explains Dr. Mary Beth Moore, UTHSCD assistant professor of ophthalmology who did a post-residency fellowship in keratorefractive surgery at the Louisiana State University Eye Center in New Orleans.

Take the "living contact lens," a result of surgery in which a thin layer of specially treated, donated corneal tissue is laid over the patient's cornea and sewn in place around its edge. The technique, called epikeratophakia, forms a graft of new tissue that changes the shape of the cornea and enhances its ability to focus.

"This process was originally developed to help patients who have had cataract surgery," says Moore. "It has been especially helpful in babies born with cataracts. The clouded lens must be removed, as in older adults, but most ophthalmologists do not put implanted synthetic lenses in babies' eyes because we don't know how the eye will tolerate the lens over 50 to 60 years. And young children are too active and impatient to wear contact lenses.

"There is a critical time in a child's life, from birth to about five years of age, when the eye must have clear vision for the visual system to develop properly. If the eye is not clearly focused during this critical time, the child will develop amblyopia, or 'lazy eye'. By the time a child would be able to wear contacts, it would be too late to reverse the amblyopia. Epikeratophakia offers an alternative for these children."

In addition to infants, older adults who have had cataract surgery without receiving an implanted synthetic lens are good candidates for epikeratophakia. Patients with extreme nearsightedness or farsightedness also can be helped by the surgery. People with keratoconus or keratoglobus, two types of corneal deformity caused by thinning of the cornea, can now be treated by epikeratophakia as an alternative to corneal transplant.

The new surgical technique was developed at Louisiana State University five years ago. Until recently, LSU was the only source of transplantable corneal tissue. Now there is one commercial source in California, and soon the Department of Ophthalmology, in conjunction with the Lions Sight and Tissue Foundation at UTHSCD, will provide tissue.

UTHSCD ophthalmic surgeons are taking part in a nationwide study of the effectiveness of epikeratophakia. Moore, along with Dr. James McCulley, chairman of the Department of Ophthalmology, and faculty members Drs. Wayne Bowman and Jim Merritt, will work either with patients referred for surgery by other doctors or patients who come to one of the health science center's affiliated teaching hospitals for care.

A second type of keratorefractive surgery, radial keratotomy, is effective for people with mild to moderate nearsightedness. This technique involves making eight short slits in the cornea in a pattern like the spokes of a wheel. The incisions flatten the cornea and cause light rays to focus farther back in the eye, closer to the retina.

Radial keratotomy was developed in Russia and has been practiced in the United States for about five years. Recently, a group of ophthalmologists evaluated the process at nine medical centers across the country and reported it to be effective. As a result, the procedure has gained more acceptance among conservative practitioners than it had originally.

Radial keratotomy will be performed by UTHSCD ophthalmologists under strict guidelines. Even though there have been many advances in radial keratotomy, much remains to be learned; therefore, UTHSCD ophthalmologists will follow a strict protocol and require that all patients meet rigid criteria. Included in these will be a requirement that the patient be intolerant to contact lenses and spectacles.

Because the incisions in the cornea weaken it to some extent, radial keratotomy is not recommended for people engaged in activities at high risk for receiving a direct blow to the eye.

A third type of corneal surgery, called keratomileusis, is effective for moderate to severe nearsightedness. In this process, a slice of the patient's cornea is removed, and a pre-carved piece of corneal tissue is sewn on. As in epikeratophakia, the transplanted tissue becomes an integral part of the patient's eye.

Keratomileusis has been used in Bogota, Colombia, for almost 20 years. However, there are very few locations in the United States where the surgery is performed because it takes extensive training, is difficult to perform and uses expensive special equipment. UTHSCD will initiate the surgery in about six months.

In addition to correcting the conditions mentioned above, keratorefractive surgery can correct some cases of astigmatism by means of slits in the cornea.

"Keratorefractive surgery is one of the most exciting developments in ophthalmology in decades," says Ophthalmology Chairman McCulley. "It is going to change the practice of ophthalmology and have a major impact on the way visual defects are dealt with in the future. The faculty members in our department, under the guidance of Dr. Moore, hope to be leaders in its development and in providing the latest surgical advances directly to patients in North Texas."

Soft water can save energy

Most people know that hard water requires use of more detergent or soap to get clothes and dishes clean.

But few people are aware that hard water can also result in wasted energy and higher water heating bills, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist Dr. Susan Quiring.

Researchers at New Mexico State University documented this problem after a year-long study of the effects of water quality on the performance of both gas and electric household water heaters, she says.

The study measured the energy consumption of six gas and six electric water heaters that had been in household use for 5 to 15 years in the Las Cruces, N.M., area.

The gas and electric heater groups were chosen so that half of each group had been operated exclusively on the area's untreated hard water. The other half had been operated exclusively on water that was softened in the home to remove harsh minerals, such as calcium and magnesium.

The gas heaters operated on hard water used 29.57 percent more Btus than those operated on softened water, reports Quiring. Likewise, the electric heaters operated on hard water used 21.68 percent more Btus.

The researchers then removed and weighed the sediment and scale that had accumulated in each of the tested heaters, says the specialist. In those operated only on softened water, the amount of scale weight from 1.09 to 4.27 pounds. But the heaters operated on untreated water had scale buildup weighing from 3.86 pounds in a 6-year old unit to almost 40 pounds in a 10-year-old heater.

Quiring advises Texans living in hard water areas to prevent such residue buildup either by installing a water softener or by draining enough water out of their water heaters each six months or so to remove sediment.

In A.D. 79, Vesuvius, a 4,190-foot volcano overlooking Naples Bay in Italy, became active after several centuries of quiescence. On Aug. 24 that year, a heated mud and ash flow swept down the mountain, engulfing the cities of Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae with debris over 60 feet deep. About 10 percent of the population in the three towns were killed.

At UTMB

Asthma being studied

A major study is underway by the adult allergy division of the department of medicine at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston to determine the primary factors influencing asthma in the Galveston-Houston area, especially the role of the house dust mite and to define factors that predict the recurrence of asthma attacks.

The final goal is to see if desensitization with mite antigens is an effective treatment for asthma, according to J. Andrew Grant, M.D., professor of medicine and microbiology and director of the adult allergy division. Working with him on this research project are Eduardo Enrique Arreaza, M.D., instructor of medicine and Singh Kuldip, M.D., assistant instructor of internal medicine.

The study was initially funded by seed grants from the Harris Kempner and George Mitchell families of Galveston. The doctors have recently joined a cooperative group of investigators from 16 universities sponsored by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

The study will last three and a half years during which time UTMB doctors will see patients regularly to determine the status of asthma and to adjust medications. During the first year and a half patients will receive routine care to stabilize their asthma as much as possible.

During the last two years patients will receive injections of either mite antigens or placebo. Neither doctors nor patients will know what is being given until the end of the study.

Patients in the study will be asked to record the severity of their asthma twice daily and to measure lung function with a peak flow meter. Visits to UTMB will be scheduled for annual tests, regular check-ups and allergy injections.

All routine physician fees, hospital charges, tests and drugs will be free during the study. Patients will be billed for management of any acute asthma relapses or hospitalizations at regular rates.

Asthma is triggered by inhaling, and occasionally by eating substances to which the asthmatic is allergic.

Dr. Grant says, "We speculate that allergens from the house dust mite may be the most important factor in the Gulf coast region. Other things such as exercise, cold air, viral infections and stress also make asthma worse."

Asthma attacks in allergic individuals begin when allergens bind to antibodies on target cells, releasing histamine and a number of other substances. Galveston researchers have demonstrated that histamine is released by a substance made by lymphocytes and monocytes. This substance has been called "histamine-releasing activity" or HRA. Workers at Johns Hopkins University and in Europe have evidence that HRA is important in causing the chronic symptoms of hay fever, hives as well as asthma.

Evaluating production of HRA by the white cells of patients will be one important project in the study, Dr. Grant said.

For the study, doctors are recruiting non-smokers ages 18 to 60 with chronic asthma, mild to moderate in severity. They are screening for persons likely to have dust mite sensitivity. Typical symptoms are worse indoors, perhaps at night and especially upon exposure to house dust. Persons living south of the Clear Lake area are preferred for the study because it will be necessary for the investigators to visit in their homes periodically.

Persons with asthma who would like more information about the study may call the adult allergy offices at (409) 761-3411 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

AVOIDING INSECT BITES

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Though not a serious threat to one's health, bites from fleas, mosquitoes, and chiggers are definitely a nuisance.

One way to minimize such bites is to take vitamin B-1, says Dr. John Green of the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Green says, "Vitamin B-1 is excreted from the body's sweat glands and causes an odor that is imperceptible to humans but disagreeable and offensive to insects."

"If taken regularly during the spring and summer months, it can be quite helpful in preventing insect bites."

The vitamin can be purchased without a prescription at drug stores.

Accent on Health

Traumatic injury is a killer, the No. 1 cause of death among Texans under 45 years of age.

But Texas Department of Health (TDH) officials say injuries are also a mystery because nobody is certain exactly how many Texans recover from or are disabled by injury.

"In essence, we know the most about the people who don't survive injury because they are so badly hurt," said Linda Lloyd, an epidemiologist with TDH. "But very little is understood about people who are injured and live. We don't know how many recover and return to a normal life and how many are disabled."

Ms. Lloyd is working with Brackenridge Hospital, the major trauma center in Central Texas, to learn more about the pattern of non-fatal injuries. The trauma registry that she is helping to develop is one of only a few in the country.

She said such epidemiological research is important in preventing deaths due to injury and reducing the severity of them.

Trauma, defined as a potentially life-threatening condition caused by injury, has a variety of causes including motor vehicle accidents, falls, drownings, electrocutions and other mishaps.

Ms. Lloyd said the trauma registry she is developing with data from Brackenridge includes information about the admitting diagnosis, the severity of a person's injuries, circumstances surrounding the incident and required medical treatment.

"We hope the data will provide us with information about the type of injuries most common among different age groups and when the injuries happen," said Ms. Lloyd.

That information can be valuable to physicians, she said, because medical treatment must be tailored for each patient.

"Take falls for example. That type of injury can happen when a construction worker falls from a scaffolding or when an elderly woman loses her balance and falls down the steps at home," she said.

Even though both patients are injured in falls, the medical treatment might be quite different," said Dr. Charles E. Alexander, Chief of the Bureau of Epidemiology. "If the man fell a great distance, he could suffer crushing injuries that would destroy his internal organs. On the other hand, the elderly woman might be more likely to break a hip."

Prevention of such injuries might also require differing strategies, depending on who was involved. "The steps taken to prevent falls at a construction site and in an elderly woman's home would be different," Lloyd said. "How many falls occurred in each place and the factors associated with the injury would help us determine how to best spend money or start programs aimed at prevention."

Many Western historians contend that Russia takes its name from the Rus, as the Viking adventurer-merchants who thrust eastward across the Baltic Sea before the mid-11th century were called.

Plant owners should winterized now

Even though temperatures are still climbing to the upper reaches of the thermometer, plant owners need to begin now to winterize their plants.

Texas Tech University Horticulture Professor Marihelen Kamp said people who have green foliage plants on the patio or in the yard need to prepare for winter now.

"With the date for the first frost approaching, plant owners should beware they can't just bring the plants in all at once and expect them to thrive," she said.

Foliage plants should be gradually moved into the areas they will occupy during the winter months. Kamp suggested moving the plants for a couple of hours the first week, and slowly extending the period of time until the plants are spending full-time in their warmer winter homes.

When plants have been brought in for the winter, less water and fertilizer are needed, she said. In homes with central heating plant owners also should be sure the plants have enough humidity.

"You can increase the humidity by misting, but only use distilled water in this part of the country, or place the plants in high humidity rooms like the kitchen or bathroom," she said. "The best thing to do is to group several plants together and they will make their own humidity."

Some flowers such as kalanchoe and geraniums can also be potted and brought inside for the winter, she said. To ensure successful potting, be sure the soil is moist when the plants are dug up and a good sized root ball is kept with the plant so as few root hairs as possible are destroyed, Kamp said.

Kamp also noted that fertilizer should not be applied at this time unless a slow release winterizing fertilizer is being used.

"Fertilizing will cause a spurt of new growth that could cause your plants to be hurt worse by the first frost. That goes for your trees and other perennials," she said.

Kamp also warned that evening temperatures will be around 40 degrees shortly and that can also cause trouble for tender plants.

"We will have lots of days when the day-time temperatures reach the 70s and 80s, but the night-time temperatures are down around 40 degrees," she said. "These low evening temperatures can cause chill injuries."

She noted that if plants are bought now, be sure not to set them out in the warm sunshine.

Herd battles Sandies Saturday

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces face another big challenge Saturday when they battle the Amarillo Sandies in a 2 p.m. District 3-5A football contest at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo. Hereford is coming off its first win of the season, a 21-6 victory over Lubbock High School that evened the Herd's district record at 1-1.

Hereford High

to meet tonight

The Hereford High Fellowship of Christian Athletes will conduct its first meeting of the year tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the new multi-purpose building at the field house.

FCA is open to all high school students regardless of their involvement in athletics.

Coach Ron Young and Ted Taylor are the group's sponsors.

Amarillo High School defeated Lubbock Coronado by an identical score of 21-6 last week in the Sandies' first district game of the season. Amarillo began the season with two non-district games, a 27-7 loss to Odessa, which is currently ranked 10th in the state in class AAAAA the Harris Rating System, and a 31-18 win over Pampa, a class AAAAA school.

"Amarillo High has a well-disciplined and a well-conditioned team. They're well coached, and they are conservative and methodical in both their offense and defense," said Hereford Coach Jerry Taylor.

"Amarillo High's probably 35 percent better than Lubbock High, both offensively and defensively. So it will take a superb effort on our part," Taylor states.

The Herd defense rose to the occasion last Friday night in the win over Lubbock High School, limiting the Westerners to 120 yards total offense. On Saturday, the Herd defense must rise even higher as Hereford aims to not let Amarillo do what it did last year to the Whitefaces.

The Sandies shut out Hereford 45-0, piling up 432 yards in total offense compared to 170 yards for Hereford.

"This past week I thought our defense hung in there and played good football. We're still making errors, but they're something that we can correct," Coach Taylor said.

"Our defense has been opportunistic about recovering fumbles," he continues.

"We need to be more hostile on our offense. I think we're going to continue to improve," he adds.

Amarillo once again is figured to contend for the District 3-5A crown, even though the Sandies have just three offensive starters and one defensive starter back from their 1984 squad.

Offensive leaders for Amarillo include quarterback Scott Brown, a senior, and junior tailback Timmy Smith. Hayden Flowers, a senior at the wingback position, is one of the returning starters for the Sandies.

The Amarillo offense is averaging 315 yards per game, including 237 yards rushing. Smith has 413 yards rushing in 35 carries in three games, averaging 11.8 yards per carry and scoring four touchdowns.

Brown has completed 13 of 33 passes for 234 yards, with three passes intercepted.

The Whiteface offense is averaging 290 yards per game, and the Herd defense has allowed 302 yards per game.

Hereford quarterback Stefan Hacker has completed 50 percent of his passes this season, 28 of 56 for 336 yards and one touchdown. Five of his passes have been intercepted.

The leading pass receiver for the Herd is Bobby Baker, who has caught 10 passes for 139 yards and one touchdown.

Allen Dudding leads the Whiteface ball carriers with 199 yards in 55 carries for a 3.6 average per carry. Dudding has scored two touchdowns.

Marcus Brown has 107 yards rushing in 16 carries for a 6.7 average per carry.

"Allen Dudding has been doing a good job at running back. We need to get more adept at running up the middle with our running backs," Taylor said.

"Bobby Baker is doing his job catching the ball. I thought Patrick Phibbs played his best game on defense last week," Taylor adds.

Phibbs, a senior cornerback, intercepted a pass against Lubbock High in the third quarter. He returned the interception from the Westerner 42-yard line to the 15-yard line, but a clipping penalty put the ball back at the 44-yard line.

The first grand slam home run hit in World Series play was hit by Elmer Smith of the Cleveland Indians, in 1920 against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Sophomore Runner

Arturo Martinez, a sophomore on the Hereford High School boys' cross country team, prepares for this Saturday's Hereford meet. The meet will be held at Veterans Park. The junior varsity boys' race starts at 11 a.m., and the varsity boys' race begins at 11:30 a.m.

Houston manager is ejected

Astros defeat Dodgers, 6-4

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

It was a game where Houston Manager Bob Lillis was ejected in the fourth inning but was smiling at the end of the game.

It was a game where the Los Angeles Dodgers lost to the Astros 6-4 on Kevin Bass' two-run homer in the 10th inning and still reduced their magic number for winning the National League Western Division title to six.

It was a game where Fernando Valenzuela pitched for the Dodgers and held a 4-0 lead through six innings and the Dodgers still lost.

Strange. "When our pitching staff gets a lead, they rarely relinquish it," said Mike Marshall, whose two-run triple in the first inning helped the Dodgers to a 4-0 lead.

"When you give Fernando a four-run lead going into the seventh, you can usually bank on it."

But the Dodgers got sidetracked on the way to the bank as pinchhitter Tim Tolman keyed a four-run rally off Valenzuela with a two-run single in the seventh and the Astros tied it at 4-4.

The score remained deadlocked until the 10th when Jim Pankovits lined a one-out single to rightfield off loser Tom Niedenfuer, 7-8, and Bass followed with his two-run homer for his first hit in 11 at-bats in the three-game series.

Despite the loss, the Dodgers' magic number dropped to six because second place Cincinnati lost to Atlanta 4-2. Now, any combination of six Dodger victories or six Reds losses will give the division title to the Dodgers.

Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda had hoped for a better break.

"We could have knocked two off the magic number if we had won tonight," Lasorda said. "Before they scored the last two runs, the only ball they hit hard on us was the home run (by Glenn Davis in the seventh)."

Lasorda didn't watch the end of Bass' home run.

"I didn't ever see that last homer, I just dropped my eyes," Lasorda said.

Marshall's three-bagger and a wild pitch by Houston starter Nolan Ryan gave the Dodgers a 3-0 first inning lead.

Los Angeles added another run in the controversial fourth inning when Astros Manager Bob Lillis and shortstop Dickie Thon were ejected on successive plays.

Lillis got the early trip to the dressing room for alleging Greg Brock interfered with Thon's attempt to field an infield chopper by Valenzuela.

On the next play, Valenzuela was forced at second base on a grounder by Mariano Duncan but Duncan was safe on a close try for the double play at first base. Thon protested and was ejected.

"I had my say a little too long this time," Lillis said of his second ejection ever in pro baseball. "He did interfere with Thon."

It was Tolman's second big pin-

In the early days of baseball, the distance between the pitcher and home plate was 45 feet, and the pitcher could only throw the ball with a straight arm, no bent elbow, in a windmill motion. In 1881, the distance was lengthened to 50 feet, and the only restriction on delivery was the hand had to remain below the shoulder. In 1893, the present distance of 60 feet, six inches was established — it was supposed to be 60 feet, but a surveyor read the plans wrong to 60 feet, six inches. The measurement is from the front of the rubber to the back tip of home plate, where the first-base line and the third-base line intersect.

chhit in five days. His three-run home run was the clincher in a 9-5 victory over Cincinnati on Saturday.

"They were trying to pitch me to pull but a fast ball slid up the middle of the plate and I was glad to see it," Tolman said.

Marshall is glad to be going home after a lengthy road trip.

"We're where we wanted to be," Marshall said. "Everybody's looking forward to playing our last 10 games at home and clinching it at home."

Julio Solano, 2-2, faced four Dodgers in the 10th and got the victory.

Cardinals 6, Phillies 3
Other than knocking in three more runs, it was an uncharacteristic game for Tommy Herr.

The St. Louis second baseman committed only his 12th error of the season in the first inning as Philadelphia scored two runs, then hit his seventh homer in the bottom of the inning to put the Cardinals on their way to a 6-3 victory over the Phillies.

Herr, who could become the first player in 35 years to knock in 100 runs with fewer than 10 homers, now has 105 RBIs.

"I don't anticipate hitting three home runs," Herr said, looking ahead to St. Louis' remaining 10 games. "I still think it's a pretty safe bet."

The Cardinals lead the second-place New York Mets, who lost 5-4 to the Chicago Cubs, by four games in the National League East and have a magic number of seven. St. Louis has won six straight and 13 of its last 14.

In the West, Los Angeles lost 6-4 to Houston in 10 innings, but second-place Cincinnati fell 4-2 to Atlanta in 11 innings, keeping the Dodgers' lead at six games while lowering their magic number to six.

In other games, San Diego whipped San Francisco 7-4 and Pittsburgh rolled to an 8-2 victory over Montreal.

Cubs 5, Mets 4
Chicago, which had lost its previous eight games to New York, rallied from a 4-1 deficit to further dampen the Mets' pennant hopes.

Pinch-hitter Chris Speier's two-out single in the ninth scored Dave Lopes from third, breaking a 4-4 tie.

first two batters in the ninth, then walked Lopes, who stole second after having been picked off and then swiped third. Speier, batting for winning pitcher Lee Smith, 7-4, delivered the game-winning hit down the left-field line after Bob Dernier walked.

Braves 4, Reds 2

Rookie third baseman Wade Rowdon committed two throwing errors in the 11th inning to allow the winning run to score for Atlanta.

Rowdon fielded Claudell Washington's leadoff grounder in the 11th and threw it over first baseman Pete Rose into the Reds' dugout. Then Rowdon threw wildly into right field after fielding Glenn Hubbard's sacrifice bunt, and Washington scored as Hubbard went to second.

Pirates 8, Expos 2
Rick Reuschel, the biggest bright spot in a dismal season for Pittsburgh, pitched a five-hitter against Montreal for his fourth straight victory.

Reuschel, 14-7, who has eight complete games in his last nine starts, had a four-hit shutout until Tim Wallach hit a two-run homer in the seventh, his 21st of the season and third in as many games.

The victory, combined with the six games he won at Class AAA Hawaii before being called up on May 21, gave him 20 for the season.

Padres 7, Giants 4
LaMarr Hoyt won his 16th game, scattering seven hits in seven innings, while Steve Garvey and Graig Nettles drove in two runs apiece for San Diego.

Hoyt, 16-8, walked one, his first pass in his last four starts and only his 20th in 203 1-3 innings.

Houston Cougars are starting off slow again in 1985

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Houston Cougars dream about the downside of last season, they have nightmares about the University of Louisville.

The Cardinals upset the Cougars 30-28 in the fourth game of the season and went on to post a 2-9 record.

The memory returns Saturday when the Cougars travel to Louisville, once again trying to overcome a slow start to an 0-2 record that included a season opening upset by Tulsa.

Cougar linebacker Robert Harper thinks he and his teammates have had enough of the sluggish starts.

"It just seems like we can't get our minds right at the start of the season," said Harper, a sophomore from Kansas City. "I don't know why, but it seems like we have to get beat by somebody before we realize that we can get beat."

The Cougars took a week off after the loss to Tulsa and lost its second game Saturday to Washington.

"You might look real good going against your own second team offense but when you get in that first game it's different," Harper said. "I think we start the season expecting to shut everybody down and when we don't, we don't know how to react."

Former professional quarterback Ken Stabler was also a pitcher at the University of Alabama. He turned down several offers from major league baseball clubs.

EXTRACTING THE JUICE

The real difference between white and red wines lies not in the color but in the way each is made. Briefly, white wine is pressed while red wine is crushed. Each wine-making area has its own methods. Yet, the underlying role is universal. To make white wine, the juice is extracted from the grape as quickly as possible, separated from the skins and left to ferment and become wine on its own. For red wine, the grapes are merely broken open to get a pulpy mass of juice, pips and skin. Unlike red wines, white wines start life ready to be drunk. Their makeup is simpler.

At THE STORE you will find an incredible selection of wines to suit your palate as well as your pocketbook. We invite you to come on by if you are not yet familiar with us and to feel free to ask our advice. We also have a wonderful selection of domestic and imported beers, many of which are chilled and waiting. For quality and service that will please you, we are here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7892. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9 use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

There is for greater variety among white wines than among reds.

'Hill Street' not thrilling, just good

NEW YORK (AP) — The new look on "Hill Street Blues" is mostly the old look, with some clever wrinkles. Those who liked the award-winning cop series before will still like it a lot. No one will be disappointed, but no one will be exhilarated, either.

There are hints from tonight's opening episode that anything might happen this season, but there is nothing especially shocking or compelling.

The new executive producers of the NBC series have reacted to complaints about the show and woven them into the plot, sometimes for satirical effect, other times to broaden the show's outlook.

"Hill Street Blues" was often accused of becoming too predictable. Every episode began with roll call in the squad room and ended under the sheets with Capt. and Mrs. Frank Furillo.

David Milch, the new co-executive producer, had said the roll call wouldn't open every episode. So what happens tonight? Two roll calls — one opening the show and one closing it. However, you won't recognize anybody in the first one.

Near the end of the show, Frank and Joyce are turning out the lights, but so are another couple, a more blue-collar duo who wouldn't be caught dead in satin sheets.

For the most part, the first episode pays homage to the past, the five award-winning years supervised by creator and producer Steven Bochco, who was fired after last season. He's also credited as one of four writers tonight.

The question in future weeks will be whether Milch and co-executive producer Jeffrey Lewis can forge a distinctive identity for "Hill Street" and prove they're not married to Bochco's parameters for his characters or to his storytelling techniques.

It's one thing to parody Bochco's conventions, but if "Hill Street" is to reverse its ratings slide, it needs to become stimulating, don't-miss viewing.

If this were the first season of "Hill Street Blues," tonight's program would draw rave reviews. But in its sixth season, the show is doomed to comparisons with its illustrious past. What was fresh and different then is old hat now.

It's still a very good show.

But if it hasn't injected more fire and excitement two months from now, very good may not be good enough.

Wharton letters reveal affair

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas professor and a graduate student say letters acquired by the university document for the first time an Edith Wharton love affair that scholars have suspected greatly influenced the American novelist's writings.

Twenty-five letters written by Ms.

Wharton written from 1907 to 1915 to Morton Fullerton, a foreign correspondent for the London Times, were examined in print by Dr. Alan Gribben, associate professor of English, and doctoral student Claire Colquitt.

Their articles were published in The Library Chronicle.

Dr. Dave Oliphant, senior editor of the quarterly publication, described the discovery of the Wharton letters as "quite a scholarly event that will change many interpretations of her life."

"It marks the first time this aspect of her life has been documented," Oliphant said. "The affair was often speculated by scholars but no proof was available before these letters."

Gribben writes that the letters, part of a collection of 300 acquired several years ago, "essentially confirm the deductions of R.W.B. Lewis, whose monumental and authoritative 'Edith Wharton: A Biography' revealed details of the hitherto-unsuspected love affair between Wharton and Morton Fullerton."

The luxury liner Morro Castle burned off the New Jersey coast in 1934, claiming 134 lives.

Landry says Cowboys need to 'get pumped up'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys will get to see films of the Miami Dolphins this week.

No, the Cowboys aren't playing the Dolphins Sunday. It's film of the Houston Oilers' 26-23 victory over Miami in the first game of the season they will be watching.

"That should be an eye-opener," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Any team who beats the Dolphins can play."

Landry said his Cowboys had better get pumped up about playing the Houston Oilers this Sunday even if they did beat them 20-10 during the National Football League exhibition season.

"We'd better get excited every week, regardless of the team we are playing," said Landry. "We're not good enough to overlook anybody."

The Oilers beat Miami, then lost to Washington and Pittsburgh. The Cowboys opened with a victory over Washington, lost to Detroit, then defeated Cleveland 20-7 Sunday.

"Houston is coming on strong," said Landry. "They have good people and can still be a strong football team. They have a very aggressive defense and they hustle hard. They have the ingredients to make a good race out of the (American Conference) Central Division."

Landry said Oiler quarterback Warren Moon is a "gifted athlete who moves well and has a good arm."

The Oilers have been making some good draft choices. They are building their offense line and you need a good offensive wall in this business."

Landry said the Cowboys were in good shape, although offensive tackle Phil Pozderac may miss the game with a knee injury. Running back Tony Dorsett was nursing a sore back but Landry said he expected him to be ready for the noon kickoff in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys also said quarterback Danny White was improved from his hurt ribs and sprained wrist and should be in top shape for the game.

Landry said, "White is starting to play well. He's nursing his injuries along. He's very tough and he has been able to overcome most of them."

Dallas is 3-1 against Houston in the regular season. The Cowboys are rated five-point favorites.

The Cowboys also announced on Tuesday that middle linebacker Eugene Lockhart had signed a four-year renegotiated contract for an undisclosed sum. Lockhart is expected to make $160,000 in the first year of the deal.

Showdown series is four days away

By The Associated Press

The showdown series in the American League West is four days away, and the California Angels and Kansas City Royals are doing their best to keep things tight until then.

Both teams won Wednesday night — the Royals 5-4 over Seattle and California 7-4 over Chicago.

The Angels are a half-game in front with 10 to play — all on the road, four in Kansas City. California has played one more game than Kansas City and won it.

The two teams meet for four games in Kansas City, starting on Monday.

In the AL East, Toronto's magic number remained at six and its lead was cut to six games over New York. The Blue Jays lost to Boston 4-2 in 13 innings while the Yankees beat Detroit 10-2.

Royals 5, Mariners 4
Kansas City, now 2-10 against Seattle this year, broke a 10-game losing streak against the Mariners.

Bret Saberhagen, 19-6, scattered nine hits in 8 2-3 innings, walked only two batters and struck out four.

Angels 7, White Sox 4
Juan Beniquez hit a three-run homer and Gary Pettis added a two-run double as California built a 7-2 lead, then Carlton Fisk and Ron Kittle homered as Chicago fought back.

Donnie Moore pitched 2 1-3 scoreless innings for his 29th save.

Fisk's homer was No. 37, Kittle's, No. 20. Fisk's tied Richie Allen's club record, set in 1972. It was also Fisk's 33rd as a catcher this season, setting a new AL standard.

Yankees 10, Tigers 2
Joe Niekro won his first game as a Yankee as Don Mattingly drove in four runs, two with his 31st home run.

Niekro, 1-1 since coming to the Yankees last week, allowed four hits in five innings before being forced to leave because of a bruised right shin. The victory was his first in the AL since July 30, 1972, when he was with Detroit.

Mattingly had three hits and raised his major-league leading RBI total to 135.

Mattingly's second hit, a double, was his 47th of the season, the most by a Yankee since Lou Gehrig had 47 in 1928.

Rickey Henderson stole his 75th base of the season, breaking the club record of 74 set by Fritz Maisel in 1914. He also scored four runs, raising that total to 138. That's the most runs anyone's scored in a major-league season since 1949, when Ted Williams scored 150.

Red Sox 4, Blue Jays 2
Rookie Mike Greenwell's first major-league homer, a two-run blast in the 13th inning off rookie pitcher John Cerutti, beat Toronto.

"Mac (Boston Manager John McNamara) asked me before I went to bat whether I'd hit him in the International League and I said yes," Greenwell said. "So Mac said, 'Good, go hit him.'"

Brewers 3, Orioles 0

Randy Ready singled and doubled, scored twice and made a key diving outfield grab. Jaime Cocanower scattered eight hits and five walks to improve his record to 5-7 and break a four-game losing streak.

Indians 7, A's 2
The century mark must wait another day — Cleveland staved off a 100th defeat. They must win their last eight games to keep the losses in double digits.

Twins 5, Rangers 1
Bert Blyleven refuses to take credit for his mastery over the Texas Rangers. Instead, he would rather pass out the accolades to his teammates.

"We scored the runs tonight," Minnesota's ace righthander said after the Twins 5-1 win over the Rangers Wednesday. "I can win with runs like tonight."

However, Blyleven's numbers against Texas prove that he can win even when he doesn't get a lot of runs. He is 5-0 against Texas this year with five complete games. His earned run average against the Rangers is 1.40.

Blyleven, 15-16, went the distance for the league-leading 22nd time this year, walking one and striking out four. The four strikeouts moved Blyleven past Jim Bunning and into the No. 10 spot on the all-time strikeout list with 2,860.

Dating back to last year, Blyleven has won his last six decisions over Texas. The last time he lost to the Rangers was on April 23, 1983 when he dropped a 2-1 decision to Rick Honeycutt. He is 16-6 lifetime against Texas.

The Twins took the lead with a run in the second on three consecutive two-out singles. Randy Bush started it with a hit to left. He advanced to second on Gary Gaetti's single to center and scored on Mark Salas' single to right.

Minnesota went ahead 3-0 with two runs in the fifth. Steve Lombardozzi singled with one out and stole second. Kirby Puckett followed with a walk, and Lombardozzi and Puckett pulled off a double steal. They both scored on Roy Smalley's single to right.

Young vigilante catches stereo thief in act

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—The $160 car stereo cost Jonathan Engelke a week's pay from his job as a surveyor's helper. When it was stolen Engelke embarked on a plan to get even with the burglar.

The car stereo was stolen from his car Sept. 14 while his car was parked outside a theater in a Fort Worth shopping mall.

Engelke, 16, set out last Friday to either get back his stereo or at least catch the person who stole it.

"(It) cost me a week's pay, and a week's pay is pretty important. I couldn't afford another $160 stereo so I bought one for $80" to use as bait, Engelke said.

Wearing a flak jacket for protection in case the thief was armed, Engelke carried a camera with a flash unit to catch the thief in action and handcuffs to hold him.

He parked the car in the theater parking lot in almost the same spot where it was parked the week before. He walked to the front of the theater, but instead of buying a ticket and going inside he went outside and hid behind some trash cans where he could see the parked car.

It didn't take long. As Engelke crouched behind the trash cans, he saw a youth walking through the parking lot looking inside cars. He stopped at Engelke's car.

The gleaming new stereo was apparently tempting and so was the unlocked door.

"When I saw him getting into the Jeep, I ran up and told him to freeze and put his hands over his head," Engelke told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Engelke whipped out his camera and began using the flash as both a diversion to blind the would-be thief and to record the act on film. He put the handcuffs on the youth.

"He said he was just looking at the stereo, but all the knobs were off, so he wasn't just there looking," Engelke said.

It turned out the youth was a theater ticket taker, 15, who had apparently been taking more than tickets.

Engelke marched the handcuffed youth to the front of the theater where he met J.M. Griffin, an off-duty Fort Worth officer who was working as a security guard.

The youth was an employee of the theater who was fired after the incident, Griffin said.

"We appreciate all the help we can get," Griffin said, but he didn't recommend everyone trying a citizen's arrest.

Burglary Detective K.F. Francis, who investigated the case before turning over the 15-year-old to juvenile authorities, said what Engelke did was "legal, but we don't advise it."

"Anything you can do to try to catch a criminal yourself puts you in an hazardous situation," Francis said. One of the detectives urged Engelke to join the police force when he gets old enough in about four years.

Engelke's mother, Jean, said she might have tried to stop him if she had known about the plan. "Jonathan showed responsibility and restraint," she said.

Engelke shrugs off suggestions that he is a hero for his actions.

"I was just somebody who had a beef with somebody who stole my stereo," he said.
