Third Marine arrested

Shultz accuses Soviets of clouding talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The arrest of another Marine guard on espionage charges is deepening fears of Soviet penetration of U.S. embassies, and Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the spying casts a "heavy shadow" over super-power peace talks. "They invaded our sovereignty and we're damned upset about it," Shultz said Wednesday as he prepared for a weekend flight to Moscow for arms control talks with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other Kremlin leaders.

"I intend to say to the Soviets they can't expect to continue, incessantly, massively, to work to create a hostile environment for our people overseas without cost to themselves and their relations with us," Shultz told reporters.

Shultz said the talks would take place "in a difficult environment generated by their actions, and these things cast a heavy shadow on our discussions."

Minutes earlier, the Pentagon announced that Sgt. John Joseph Weirick, 26, of Eureka, Calif., was arrested on suspicion of espionage while working as a security guard at the American consulate in Leningrad in 1981 and 1982.

Weirick, who also worked in Moscow and Rome, was the third Marine guard suspected of spying at U.S. posts in the Soviet Union and is expected to be sent to the brig at the Marine base in Quantico, Va., where Sgt. Clayton Lonetree and Cpl. Arnold Bracy already are being held.

Because Weirick was transferred to Rome after working in Leningrad, security in the Rome embassy is being scrutinized. And Pentagon sources, speaking on condition they not be named, said the spy scandal that has focused on Soviet-bloc posts might be symptomatic of a much deeper breakdown in embassy security around the world.

The sources said the Weirick case may be similar to those of Lonetree and Bracy, whose contacts with Soviet women allegedly led to access by agents to sensitive areas in the Moscow embassy.

In other developments:

—The Soviet Union took extraordinary measures to protect its new Washington embassy after the United States tried in 1979 to bug apartment buildings inside the compound. The Washington Post reported today.

John Carl Warnecke Sr., who helped design the $65 million complex, told the newspaper the discovery of listening devices caused the Soviets to dismantle parts of the new chancery building and X-ray "each inch of steel the night before it was put up." They also refused to accept materials prefabricated outside the compound, Warnecke said.

The incident provoked an official

Soviet protest.

—A fourth Marine, Staff Sgt. Robert S. Stuffiebeam, was charged Wednesday with three counts of improperly fraternizing with Soviet women, but no espionage charges were lodged against him.

—Reps. Daniel Mica, D-Fla., and Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, just back from Moscow, urged Shultz on Wednesday to reconsider his plans to go to the Soviet capital because "American diplomacy and national security have been blindsided" by the security breach at the U.S. Embassy.

Mica and Snowe said their three-

Clements wants entire repository program review

WASHINGTON (AP) — More Texas firepower has been mustered to halt the Energy Department's site-selection process for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump.

On Wednesday, Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock announced that Texas Gov. Bill Clements joined the delegation in asking Congress to review the way DOE carried out its search for the waste repository.

"I'm glad to see the governor asking for the same things we've been asking for for the past year and a half," Combest said. "If we have to delay for two or three or 10 years a project that will be used to store materials for 10,000 years, then so be it."

More drilling regulations recommended

AUSTIN—A bill that would give Texas more regulatory powers over the drilling of shafts has been presented to a sub-committee by Rep. Chip Staniswalis of Amarillo, it was announced Wednesday.

The bill would expand the Texas Water Commission's regulation of subsurface excavations, such as those planned in the site characterization study in Deaf Smith County. Legislation was passed in 1983 to protect the state's groundwater from possible pollution from the drilling of shafts, but there was concern it would not cover all the problems.

Staniswalis presented HB-1586 to the House Natural Resources Committee Wednesday but noted that some changes in the measure might be needed. Both the Railroad Commission and State Land Office are developing amendments for the bill, Staniswalis said.

In a letter to the Republican congressman, with copies sent to the entire delegation, Clements called for a probe into the Nuclear Waste Policy Act program and a halt to virtually all of its activities, including land acquisition.

"The entire Nuclear Waste Policy Act program should be reviewed by a congressionally appointed body over the next two years, and then appropriate action taken by the Congress to get the nation on a technically sound and reasonable track toward meeting our needs for safe and acceptable high-level nuclear waste management and disposal," the Republican governor wrote.

Three sites have been chosen by President Reagan for possible location of the nuclear waste dump, including Deaf Smith County in Combest's district. The others are Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Hanford Reservation, Washington.

Under the act, a similar search was to have been undertaken in the East, but Energy Secretary John Herrington deferred that indefinitely last year, a move Clements said "seems more centered on political expedience than technical excellence."

Combest said a determination will be made in the next week whether new legislation is needed to permit the formulation of a congressional committee to carry out a thorough review of the process DOE used to select its three potential repository sites.

"The question is whether we should start all over again from the beginning," Combest said. "It was a very delicate balance when it was passed and now that DOE has broken some of the agreement, maybe we should start over."

Combest said one thing he would like to find out is why DOE deleted Mississippi as a primary candidate for the repository when it has virtually the same attributes as the Texas, Washington and Nevada sites.

State reps to update nuke stance on Monday

Five state officials from the Governor's Nuclear Waste Programs office (NWPO) will be in Hereford Monday for a public information meeting.

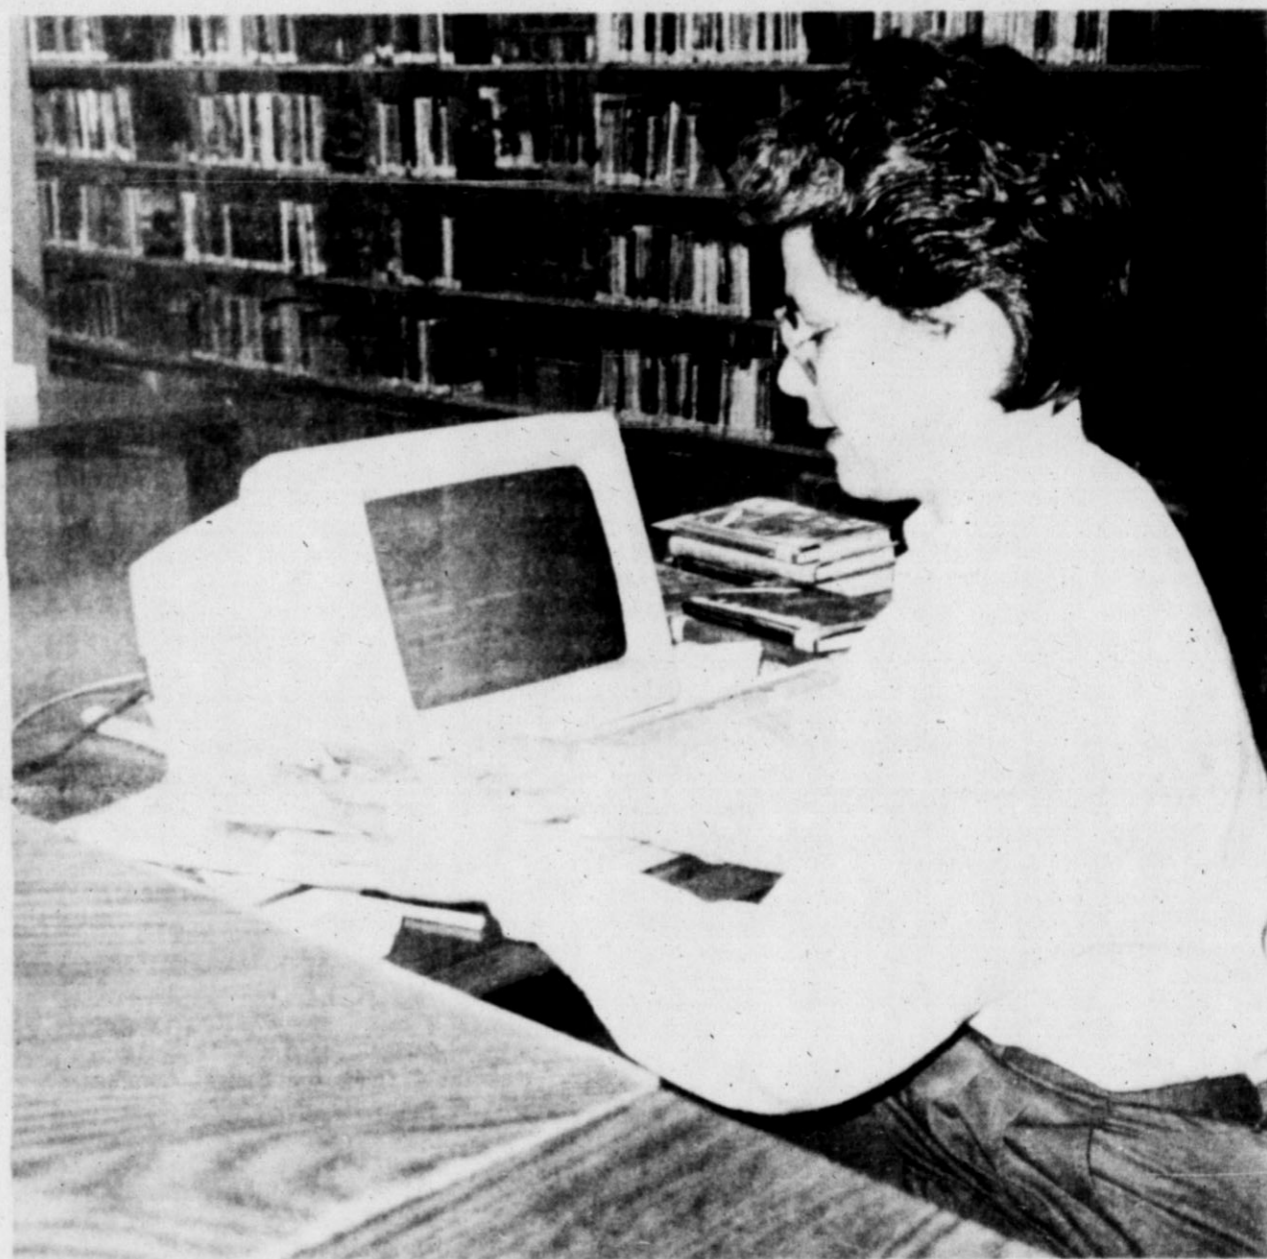

All interested persons are invited to hear these speakers, who are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Monday in the Community Center banquet room. Preceding the event will be a reception for the visiting officials at 5:30 in the Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

During the program, the state's current position regarding the storage of high-level nuclear waste in Deaf Smith County will be explained by Steve Frishman, NWPO director, and his assistant, Gary Rasp.

An analysis of local and statewide impacts from a nuclear waste dump will be examined by Jim Reed and Jim Garrett, both of Austin. Also making a presentation will be state geologist Susan Zimmerman.

The Texas Department of Agriculture plans to send a representative to the public meeting.

Monday's program and reception are being hosted jointly by the newly-organized Hereford chapter of POWER and the Nuclear Waste Task Force. Local POWER president Dempsey Alexander and the Task Force director, Delbert Devin of Tulia, will conduct the meeting.

Forgiving Fines

Becky Walls has been busy at the computer forgiving fines during Amnesty Week at the library. Patrons with overdue books have until Saturday to save money and library card reputation. Walls noted that lost or damaged books still will have to be paid for, but fines—no matter how large—are being forgiven when books are turned in.

The vote recount for Place 3 on the city commission is expected to take place Friday. Odds are that it won't change the outcome of the election, because the city election workers double-checked their count before releasing the returns Saturday night. In a race that close, however, you can't blame Boyd Foster for requesting the recount.

up proposals for the federal government's massive super-conducting super collider project. The proposed location for the Panhandle lies in the Canyon-Hereford, Dimmitt-Tulia area near Umbarger and Buffalo Lake. The local chamber is making plans to participate in the proposal, and representatives were to attend a meeting in Amarillo this morning.

Tax paying time is just around the corner and some members of Congress are having trouble with the inflexible rules and regulations of the IRS. The Congress sneaking in a $12,000 pay raise but some of the members, like Larry Combest from our district, returned the raise to the government.

Rep. Alan Simpson reported that the IRS has the idea that he must pay taxes on the $12,000 even if he returns it to the Treasury. According to a news service report, the IRS is standing firm on the contention that raises are raises. "If taxpayers get the money, they owe taxes on it, even if they return it." In more bureaucratic terms, it is called "constructive receipt." These are the guys who keep "simplifying" our tax returns!

14 local offenders up for parole soon

While three persons indicted in the January 1986 drug bust here remain at large, some of those now in prison will be up for parole soon, according to District Attorney Roland Saul and Sheriff Joe Brown.

The Texas Department of Corrections this week sent Deaf Smith County official papers on 14 inmates who would be up for parole soon, but specific dates of eligibility were not given on all of the papers. Eight of those were in TDC on the drug bust convictions.

Saul said the TDC sends the parole notices so that counties may protest or recommend an early release of a prisoner. If a lawman has a remark about the particular case, it is put on file for review at the parole hearing.

Brown felt the county comments may not do any good because of the prison overcrowding problem. He said some of the drug offenders were put in TDC custody as late as December 1986, but he did not indicate whether they were ones on the parole list.

Saul said on some of the cases he might suggest a special parole condition—that the subject be required to relocate outside of Deaf Smith County. He said that would deter the offenders from getting involved with the same crowd and possibly getting into trouble again.

In addition to the three at large subjects on the indictment list, one is in an Illinois jail waiting return to Texas, Saul said.

Those serving for drug indictments who are up for parole are: Tomaso Chavez, Juan Pablo Palacios, Frank Trevino, Juan Jose Balderas, Manuel Mendiola, John Perry Gaal, Danny Beltran and Blackie Mendoza.

Others up soon are Nickie Garcia, Benny Rios, Arnie Morrison, Richard Oliveras, Ruben Marry and Ramiro Cantu.

Democrats confident about budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is poised to reject President Reagan's budget for one of its own, a Democratic vision of fiscal 1988 with less military spending, stronger domestic programs and higher taxes than Reagan says he'll allow.

In a series of votes today, the House will consider the president's $1 trillion plan before voting on the Democratic spending blueprint. Congress' majority party was confident of victory.

"I think the choice is clear," Rep.

William H. Gray III, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Wednesday as a day of prickly partisan debate closed. "We have, I believe, a budget that represents a consensus. It is balanced and fair."

House Republicans, who refused to help Democrats draft the spending plan and declined to offer a comprehensive package of their own, ridiculed the result.

"This is just another tax and spend

Police report

Hereford police filed six offense report Wednesday and arrested a 21-year-old man for second offense of no liability insurance.

Offenses filed were of an assault at the high school, a theft at Saven-Gain, burglary of a residence in the 400' block of Avenue H, threatening phone calls, and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle from Campbell Used Car Lot.

Also a child reported lost was found. Police issued 14 traffic citations.

Place 3 recount set Friday

A recount of votes in the Place 3 city commission race has been tentatively set for Friday, according to City Manager Darwin McGill. He said the mayor will appoint four people to a recount panel. The candidates, along with two representatives—if desired, will be allowed to watch the recount. Incumbent Tom LaGato edged Boyd Foster by 14 votes in the election. Foster filed a petition to seek a recount.

Preparing For Bean Supper

Members of the Hereford Camp Fire Council will be sponsoring a bean supper from 5-8:30 p.m. Friday at the Hereford High School cafeteria. Tickets are priced at $3 per person and children under five will be admitted free of charge for the meal which will include tacos, beans, cobbler, chips, salsa, coffee and tea. During the event, a large stuffed bear will be given away. Sorting beans in preparation for the supper are, from left, Camp Fire leaders, Ann Cummings and Louise Armstrong; board of director, Mary Hamby; and leader, Beverly Hammond.

Recipes for cookbooks being sought by ACS

Cookbooks benefitting the American Cancer Society will contain recipes from area cooks and will be on sale April 26 to kickoff the Cancer Crusade.

"We hope everyone will send in their favorite recipes, either to me or in care of Deaf Smith General Hospital," said Charlotte Clark, board member of the Deaf Smith County unit of the ACS. The deadline for submitting recipes is May 1.

A memorial section will be featured in the cookbooks. It will contain favorite recipes of someone who has passed away with cancer and can be submitted in memoriam for that person by family or friends. Another section will contain recipes of meals for one or two people as well as a section containing high fiber recipes, recommended by the ACS for the prevention of some types of cancer.

Recipes of all categories of food preparation and a section on microwave cookery will also be featured. Informative dividers pages will complete the 6"x9" cookbooks.

Submitters of recipes are requested to send in three or four favorite recipes as soon as possible. One or more of the recipes will be published in the cookbook along with the submitter's name.

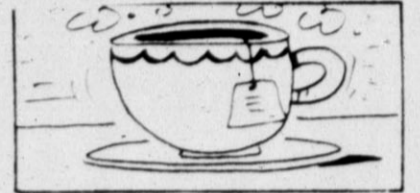

A special format is required: clearly print or type the recipes using abbreviations, such as c., tsp. and Tbsp., pkg., qt., pt., oz., and lb. List the recipe title first, then ingredients, followed by the method. At the bottom of the recipe, write in your name.

"We hope to get all cookbook orders in during the last week of April, which is the week of Cancer Crusade," said Clark. It will take at least 90 days for the Kansas publishing company to complete the cookbooks; we hope to have them here in time for the Deaf Smith County Jubilee held in August.

For more information on the cookbooks, contact Clark at home: Rt. 3, Box 304, Hereford, phone 276-2681, or at Deaf Smith General Hospital, 801 E. 3rd St., Hereford, Phone 394-2141.

Tour of Tables discussed recently by church women

The devotional was given by Ann McClarty at a recent meeting of the women of St. Thomas Episcopal Church. It was taken from a chapter of the book being studied by members entitled, "I'm Really Hurting But I Am Bouncing Back."

President Mary Fraser opened the session with a prayer. During the business portion, members discussed their annual project, The Tour of Tables to be held from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, June 7, at the Hereford Community Center.

Serving as co-hostesses were Linda Gilbert and Rachel Hine.

Father Charles Threewit offered the closing prayer and it was announced that the next meeting will be May 2 in the home of Vera Threewit.

Obese people may consider stapling

DEAR READERS: A while back I printed a letter from a man who signed himself "J from Cedar Rapids." He wanted to know if he should encourage his wife to have the stomach stapling operation. I say "yes" provided she is morbidly obese (weighs 100 pounds more than she should) and her doctor approves of it.

My readers had a great deal to say about the subject. Here is a sample of what's been going on in my office.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope that man from Cedar Rapids will encourage his wife to have the stomach stapling operation. My daughter, age 17, weighed 426 pounds. She was always a heavy child and tried hard to get rid of the excess poundage by dieting. Time after time she failed, became despondent and was obsessed with the fear of dying. Our family doctor recommended the stapling surgery as a life-saving measure. She had the operation Nov. 29, 1984, and within 12 months shed 100 pounds. At this moment she weighs 242 pounds and feels terrific. If she overeats or eats too rapidly she gets a mild indigestion pain in her chest and stops. I hope Mr. J's wife has the operation. Tell him, please, to select a surgeon who is a specialist in this field. We did and are delighted with the results.—G.K., Woodside, N.Y.

DEAR G.K.: Thanks for your comments. Read on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I saw Mr. J's letter and couldn't wait to sit down and write a few lines of encouragement. Two and a half years ago I had the stomach staple surgery and it was the best thing I ever did for my marriage and my self-esteem. In seven months I lost 100 pounds and went from a size 22 dress to a 12. My husband is thrilled. He says it's like sleeping with a new woman. Please warn Mr. J that this procedure is expensive. I fought with my insurance company for three months before they paid the bill, which was a whopper. I was in the hospital nine days and stayed on liquids for six weeks. My only regret is that I didn't do it sooner. Go for it, lady!—Skinny Munny in Idaho

DEAR SKINNY: What a great testimonial! Here's another:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Eight years ago I weighed in at 298 pounds. I was miserable and fed up with myself. I now weigh 102 pounds and do not even look like the same person. I am sure that stapling operation saved my life. Please send me Mabel's address so I can write to her and cheer her on.—J.L. in Newton, Kan.

DEAR NEWT.: Thanks for the letter. Sorry I can't give you Mabel's address. It is against my policy to put people together through this column. Read on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In 1982 I weighed 315 pounds, had high blood pressure and was a borderline diabetic. It took me two years to lose 165 pounds but I am so excited with the results I could shout from the rooftops. I am going in next week for a surgical procedure to get rid of the excess skin. I hope J's wife has the operation. It changed my life. P.S.: Many of my friends have had it, including some men, and they, too are highly enthusiastic.—Carol M. Bentwaters, England

DEAR JOLLY OLD ENGLAND: Thanks for the transcontinental boost. I am delighted that you and the others wrote such encouraging letters. My medical consultants agree that when done by a specialist, this operation apparently has very little risk and can be enormously successful. But under no circumstances should it be done unless you are morbidly obese. No surgical procedure is 100 percent safe.

Nolan Ryan, Jose Cruz lead Astros over Dodgers 7-3

By The Associated Press

Houston's Nolan Ryan suffered through last season with a painful elbow, and teammate Jose Cruz had a slow start because of an ankle injury.

But they were in mid-career form Wednesday in leading the Astros to a 7-3 victory over Los Angeles, completing a three-game season-opening sweep.

It completed a frustrating series for the Dodgers, who announced prior to the game that Vice President Al Campanis had resigned after saying on ABC's Nightline Monday night that blacks were unqualified to be field managers or general managers.

Ryan, 40, pitched six shutout innings and struck out 10 batters, increasing his major league record strikeout total to 4,287. Cruz, 39, hit a two-run homer to key a seven-run seventh inning that rallied the Astros from a 3-0 deficit.

Cruz's (Cruz) off to a real nice start and I'm pleased with the way I threw today," said Ryan, 1-0. "I'm happy for him."

"Overall, it was a strong performance for me," said Ryan. "The elbow felt fine. I mixed my pitches well."

Cruz's home run capped the Astros' rally. Phil Garner, Jim Pankovits, Bill Doran and Billy Hatcher drove in runs in the inning, and Pankovits scored on left fielder Ken Landreaux's throwing error.

All Houston's runs came after Rick Honeycutt gave way to Tom Niedenfuer, the first of three Dodger relievers. Honeycutt shut out the Astros for six innings, retiring the final 10 batters he faced.

The Dodgers got strong starting pitching in all three games but lost in the latter innings when relief pitching faltered.

"I said all spring that our starting pitching could carry us into the 7-8-9 innings with the opportunity to win," Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said. "You saw that for the last three games. We could easily be 3-0 or 2-1, but we're 0-3 because we couldn't hold the lead."

But Dodger catcher Mike Scioscia isn't conceding the season to the Astros.

"We know we can play with them," he said. "We feel we have a better ball club. The way the 24 players on this team feel is all that matters. It's not what the press or fans think."

Reliever Matt Young, 0-2, gave up four runs in relief and again had a rough outing Wednesday.

"Even though Matt came in today and gave up four runs, if you string them all together, they wouldn't reach the right field wall," Scioscia said. "I'm not complaining because cheap hits are a part of the game. I'm just saying that shows the bullpen is starting to throw the ball like they can."

Los Angeles' runs came in the seventh on a two-run infield hit by Steve Sax and a single by Mike Ramsey. Sax's hit tipped Ryan's glove and although Astros second baseman Doran chased it down, two runs scored.

"The Dodgers have a good ball club. We have to beat them, too, not just the Reds," Cruz said.

The Reds and the San Francisco Giants also remained unbeaten in Wednesday's only other National League game.

The Giants won their third straight by beating San Diego 2-1, while the Reds won their second in a row over Montreal; 7-2.

Reds 7, Expos 2

Bo Diaz and Buddy Bell each had three RBI as the Reds, who scored 18 runs in the two games, continued to get contributions from throughout the lineup.

"From one through eight, all these guys are capable of having two-or three-hit nights," said Dave Parker, whose leadoff homer in the sixth inning tied the score 2-2. "You're going to see a lot of these three- and four-run innings because of us being a good offensive ballclub."

Bell's three RBI came on a bases-clearing double in a four-run seventh that put the game away for the Reds.

Bill Gullickson allowed four hits over seven innings to get the win. Jay Tibbs was the loser.

Giants 2, Padres 1

Chris Brown homered for both runs and Roger Mason pitched seven strong innings as the Giants got off to their best start since 1979.

The Giants got both runs in the fourth off San Diego starter Andy Hawkins.

Jeffrey Leonard's double preceded Brown's homer, an opposite-field shot to right. Mason, bouncing back from 1986 elbow problems and a back strain that deprived him of his final spring start, limited the Padres to four hits over seven, then left in the eighth after Benito Santiago doubled and Stan Jefferson singled him home.

Scott Garrelts replaced Mason to earn his first save.

Spurs suffer 111-110 loss to Sacramento

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Sacramento Kings coach Jerry Reynolds thought his team's NBA game with the San Antonio Spurs was going to be close, but it turned out closer and better than he thought it would.

Eddie Johnson's basket with three seconds remaining Wednesday night gave the Kings a 111-110 victory over the Spurs.

But the Spurs still had a chance to win the game when Johnny Moore's shot from half-court at the buzzer rimmed the basket and came out.

"I thought it would be a close game," Reynolds said. "The Spurs have lots of quickness and they do things that are hard for us to stop."

"At the end of the game, neither team could stop the other one," Reynolds said. "It looked like Moore's shot would hit all string, but fortunately it didn't go in."

Johnson said he wasn't even supposed to take the last shot that won the game for Sacramento.

Reggie (Theus) and Otis (Thorpe) were the first options on the last shot," Johnson said. "Alvin Robertson was doubling down on both of them, so I took the shot and hit it."

Spurs coach Bob Weiss said his Robertson did the right thing in covering Theus and Thorpe.

"Alvin was playing it correctly," Weiss said. "We did not want them to get it to Thorpe at the end, and Eddie hit it. Another one eluded us."

Johnson's (Moore) shot had a chance to go in. He had a good look at the basket before he let it go, and people in this league are capable of hitting that shot," Theus said. "The Spurs made a tremendous run at us, but we did come up with the win."

The victory gave the Kings a chance to move out of the Midwest Division's cellar and moved the Spurs, who have now lost seven straight, into the cellar.

Johnny Dawkins scored 14 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter to erase a 10-point Sacramento lead.

His 18-foot jumper with 21 seconds left put San Antonio ahead 110-109, the Spurs' first lead since early in the third period.

"We got a double dose of Johnny Dawkins tonight," Johnson said. "He's been struggling but he really caught fire tonight."

Johnson and Theus had 24 for Sacramento. Walter Berry and David Greenwood had 20 each for San Antonio.

Banning of three boosters at UT is recommended

AUSTIN (AP) — Three boosters involved in possible violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules should be banned for a time from associating with the University of Texas athletic program, a university committee has recommended.

The committee, formed to investigate allegations of NCAA rule violations, made the suggestion Wednesday in a report to university president William Cunningham.

Disciplinary action should be taken against any UT staff members found guilty of breaking NCAA rules, committee chairman Charles Alan Wright, a law professor said.

Wright said the suggested penalties are "not harsh."

Penalties could affect head football coach David McWilliams, assistant athletic director Ken Dabbs or assistant football coach John Mize, all of whom are named in the NCAA's charges.

Cunningham will use the report as he prepares a response to the NCAA charges, outlined in a letter the university made public March 20. The university must respond by Monday to the letter.

Texas already has indicated it will contest some of the NCAA allegations, but the proposal to ban some boosters amounts to an admission that it thinks some of the NCAA's complaints are valid.

The university will have the chance to discuss its position at a meeting of the NCAA Committee on Infractions April 24-26 in Hilton Head, S.C. The infractions committee would decide what penalty, if any, to assess UT for any rules violations.

Wright would not specify the exact recommendations included in his committee's report. But he said Cunningham seemed receptive during the 90-minute meeting Wednesday.

"I've got to digest the report," Cunningham said after the meeting. "I'll have a response in a few days."

The NCAA had named 10 boosters in the allegations of possible wrongdoing in UT athletics, but Wright said the recommended that "very few" be banned. Another source told the Austin American Statesman the number was three.

"We recommended some be disassociated for a period of years from the athletic program and some be reprimanded," Wright said. "Some, who didn't have any idea they were doing anything wrong, we recommended they just be admonished."

Wright said the committee unanimously endorsed corrective measures and that the measures might involve hiring new staff in the program.

One measure called for more information to be given to alumni and boosters on NCAA rules and is being implemented.

Another corrective measure would involve providing counseling to athletes faced with personal or financial problems.

Knox Nunnally, a lawyer and former UT football player hired to investigate alleged wrongdoings in the Texas football program, said such a counselor would preclude coaches from being put in compromising positions by players' requests for help that extended beyond limits imposed by the NCAA.

"I don't suppose you can ever make an athletic program 100 percent secure," Wright said, "but you can minimize chances of violations."

Campanis' comments stir up much controversy

By TIM LIOTTA
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Al Campanis' forced resignation from the Los Angeles Dodgers' front office following his comments on the qualifications of blacks to hold management positions has focused the attention of baseball on the issue.

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said that he believed strongly in bringing more blacks to front office positions and that he would put his job on the line if necessary to improve the situation.

"We have blatantly said baseball needs to improve (on blacks holding front-office jobs)," Ueberroth said on ABC's "Nightline" Wednesday night. "If we didn't intend to do something about it we would have ignored it. We're going to do something about it."

Ueberroth's declaration came two days after Campanis, the Dodgers' vice president of player personnel since 1968, appeared on "Nightline" and said blacks may not be qualified for high-level jobs in baseball.

"Nightline" had invited Campanis to talk about Jackie Robinson, who as a Dodger 40 years ago became the first black to play major-league baseball.

Campanis was asked about the small number of black baseball executives and field managers.

"I don't believe it's prejudice," Campanis said. "I truly believe that they may not have some of the necessities to be, let's say, a field manager, or perhaps a general manager."

"I don't say all of them, but how many quarterbacks do you have? How many pitchers do you have that are black? So, it just might be — why are black men, or black people, not good swimmers? Because they don't have the buoyancy?"

Asked on Wednesday's program to detail specific actions he might take, Ueberroth said: "I won't debate it on television. ... The only thing that worries me a little bit is that people are on the attack and not talking."

Hall of Famer Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager in 1975 with the Cleveland Indians and now a coach with the Baltimore Orioles, said Campanis "was saying what a lot of baseball people think, and I'm glad it's finally in the open."

Dodgers third baseman Bill Madlock, interviewed Wednesday night on "Nightline," said, "It seems like every 10 years they come out and say, 'Why is there not black head coaches in football and why there's not black managers in baseball?' Then, after that, it seems to die down. Then another 10 years and it comes up again."

"I hope this time it can take it a little further and really get down to why there are not blacks in higher echelon jobs in professional sports."

Two former Dodgers, Von Joshua and John Roseboro, told the Los Angeles Times that they experienced trouble trying to rise through the club's management hierarchy.

Joshua, a coach with the Dodgers' San Antonio affiliate in the Class AA Texas League, contended that he hasn't been promoted because he is black.

Roseboro, a longtime catcher with the Dodgers, resigned in 1978 after two years as a hitting instructor.

"I didn't see much growth in my position or in the future," Roseboro told the Times.

Why more blacks like Joshua and Roseboro aren't in management positions is the "real question," Reggie Jackson, a 20-year major leaguer, said on "Nightline."

"You can talk about a team not having (black) players on the field, but the real question is, where are the people in the front office that are black?"

After Campanis issued public apologies Tuesday that did little to quiet the outcry, the Dodgers asked for and received his resignation on Wednesday.

"Comments given by Al Campanis are so far removed from what the organization believes that it is impossible for Al to continue his responsibilities," Dodgers President Peter O'Malley said after breaking the news to the 70-year-old Campanis. "It was just, in my judgment, the appropriate, proper and right thing to do."

Campanis himself understood the Dodgers' course of action, calling his resignation "something that I think that had to be done for the good of the club and for all concerned. That's all I have to say."
