Lupe Chavez wore ugliest tie to Fun Breakfast

Homer Garrison gets Bull Chip

Ugly tie modeling, a newspaper pitching contest, and the awarding of the Bull Chip, kept attendants of today's Chamber Fun Breakfast awake.

Homer Garrison, known for his big smile and hearty handshakes at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, received the Bull Chip Award.

Garrison is active in many other community programs and church work, but the Bull Chip emphasis was on service to senior citizens.

He has served for four years as president of Hereford Senior Citizens and is now president of the HSC Foundation board.

For three years Garrison helped complete the dream of local senior citizens - he led the association in making plans for the senior center on Ranger. He worked directly with the consultant in the fund raising to obtain $700,000. Garrison put in many hours persuading citizens of the need for such a center.

He is at the center daily to greet, visit and encourage. He is an advocate for the elderly and is in touch tie of purple and pink print held in with legislators to voice their needs. He serves on the area Agency on Aging Council. For three years he was chairman of Texas Review and Comment Committee.

Garrison also volunteers his time to deliver meals and to drive patients to Amarillo for cancer treatment.

His efforts earned him the state nomination for the Gernard Award, for outstanding work in improving the quality of life of the rural elderly.

He was an organizer and is a past president of Golden K Kiwanis and is active in Chamber of Commerce and Heart Association, plus sings with the Golden Agers quartet.

The Hereford Brand sponsored today's breakfast and the Ugly Tie Contest. Lupe Chavez nabbed the top prize in the contest with a foot-wide place with a brooch tie tack. Jonny Cloud wore a tie hand painted in kindergarten art deco for second place. Waldo Baxter's tie was just plain ugly and he won third place. They won $50, $15, and $10 respec-

Honorable mentions went to Jerry Shipman, Mike Bowles, Jerry Brock, Bob Huffaker, Jim Arney, Hap Cavness, Craig Smith, Raymond White and Jody Blackwell.

David Ruland won the newspaper pitching contest, held among former Brand carriers, with a perfect shot from the middle of the Community Center banquet room to the front where a door and mat were set up.

Fr. Charles Threewit and Georgia Sparks won the two $25 door prizes in Hereford Bucks.

Emcees John Stagner and Charlie Bell relinquished their microphones long enough for Mike Carr, Chamber executive director, to introduce new chamber members and Delight Thames, Miss Hereford.

New chamber members are Jim Klepac of Jim's Jewelry, Bill Bankston of Bankston Electric, Ken Klechak with Palo Duro Produce, Mark Andrews of Mark Andrews Agency, Dennis Newton, John Treadwell and Beverly Rawles.

Several upcoming events were advertised. Glen Nelson led a "horse" (Bill Patton and Al Daniel) for a skit promoting the Senior Citizens Roundup on June 13. Twelve hours, 10 a.m. until 10 p.m., are planned of activities and eating at the center that Saturday.

Inez Witherspoon told about the Mid Plains Pioneer Association's 64th Pioneer Day on May 23 at the Bull Barn. Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. and a short business session will follow at 11:30 a.m. Registration fee is $3. The noon meal meat will be catered by Caison's and potluck buffet will be served.

The YMCA has a basketball clinic coming up and this Saturday will have a junior high soc hop. Jack Johnson, the Y's new fitness director was introduced.

Earnest Langley gave a pitch for the Hereford Community Concerts, calling the subscriptions the bargain of the century." Four concerts include the Johnny Mann

Singers and Dancers, lifesize marionettes performing "A Christmas Carol", an organ and horn classical performance, and a quartet in concert with Sigmund Romberg

Julie Ann Thompson, new director of the domestic violence outreach center, announced that the office will have a formal opening Monday at 1 p.m. with a Hereford Hustler's ribbon cutting at 1:30 p.m. The office is in Room 301 of the courthouse, phone 364-7822. Thompson has scheduled a public meeting on June 2 for general information on the office and to solicit volunteers.

Gulley lists anthropology and archaeology as hobbies, he is a member of the Texas and Panhandle Archaeology Societies, as other interests.

Geneology is another long term interest as Gulley proudly proclaims the family research done by a cousin as "fantastic," The research traces the Gulley family roots to 422 A.D. and uncovers many royal relations such as King Henry III and Charlemagne.

"Perhaps the most notable American ancestor is Thomas Harris a successful plantation owner in the Virginia wilderness in 1611, nine years before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock," says Gulley who laughs at the, "watered down blood line" of distant ancestors while marveling at the tremendous number of relations who contributed to his heritage. Gulley and his wife Jane, a music teacher at Shirley Intermediate School, and son Cameron, a freshman at LaPlata Junior High, reside in Hereford.

The pedigreed judge moved to Hereford in 1968 as an attorney with the Witherspoon lawfirm. In 1977, just a little over 11 years after receiving his license to practice law, Gulley was appointed to his judgeship.

AUSTIN (AP) - Threats from several senators to filibuster against an abortion regulation bill have put the controversial measure on indefinite hold.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Wednesday he will not allow a vote on the bill on the Senate floor because the filibusters that might ensue would take up too much of the body's limited time.

Abortion bills stalled by threats

"Enough senators have told me that they would filibuster an abortion bill from now on so that I can't tie up the Senate for the rest of the session while budgetary matters are pending," Hobby said.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, is carrying a bill that would strip physicians of their medical licenses for performing abortions during the third trimester of pregnancy. Although Lyon said he had 27 solid votes for the bill, some senators said they would only support it if Lyon did not attempt to reinsert criminal penalties against doctors who perform late-term abortions. "If he intends to open it up to amendments, then I would oppose bringing the bill up, and if it were necessary to filibuster in order to keep the bill from coming up under those circumstances, then I would join in that effort," said Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth. Under a bill approved by the Senate Health and Human Services committee, physicians' licenses could be canceled, revoked or suspended for performing the procedure illegally.

Sen. Kent Caperton called the criminal penalites "ridiculous" and said he was ready to filibuster if Lyon tried to reinstate the provisions.

The House is scheduled to vote Monday on a bill sponsored by Rep. Mike Millsap, D-Fort Worth, that would outlaw abortions on fetuses able to survive outside the mother's womb. Under the House bill, physicians could be charged with a Class A misdemeanor.

Hobby said he would allow a vote on the House version. "That's one filibuster instead of two, and I would presume the im-

Applications are now available in Texas for the 1987 Coors Veterans' Memorial Scholarship Fund, according to Bill Craig, veterans service officer for Deaf Smith County.

For the third year, the Adolph Coors Co. and the Texas distributors will award scholarships through the Texas Veterans Commission. To be eligible for consideration, applicants must have completed at least one year of college, have a cumulative grade-point-average of at least 2.75 on a 4.0 scale and be under 22 years of age as of July 1, 1987. Deadline for applications is July 1. Applicants must be dependents minister probation for over 500 people, according to Gulley.

The long hours of preparation pay off for Gulley in that he has a very good track record for his cases being upheld in appeals courts.

Gulley, who hears civil cases such as divorces and criminal matters, says, "The work doesn't end with the trial, we (District Court staff) must prepare for a series of motions and hearings concerning procedures which occur after the trial."

Gulley holds an Associate in Arts degree from Southwest Texas Junior College, a bachelor of ccience degree from Trinity University, a master's degree and a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

He has been awarded a diploma of Judicial Skills by the American Academy of Judicial Education and served for three years as a faculty member of the Texas Criminal Trial Advocacy Institute at the Texas Criminal Justice Center in Huntsville and was selected to serve on the faculty of the Texas College of the Judiciary in December of 1986.

The college plans and conducts educational programs of the Texas Center for the Judiciary for all Texas judges.

Gulley explains, "A new judge is required to attend 30 hours of seminars during his first year. All other judges must obtain 16 hours of instruction per year. The center holds five regional seminars each year to supply classroom credit hours to the judges."

This year Gulley wrote and presented a paper relating to awarding attorney fees in civil and criminal cases. Gulley spoke on the subject at regional seminars in Huntsville, Wichita Falls, Laredo, Lubbock and Longview.

Though deeply honored by his appointment to this prestigious faculty and warmly received by judges throughout the state, Gulley remains, at heart a country person as he changes his robes for jeans and boots and some time with nature.

Check rules with rabbi

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After 10 years of an unhappy marriage, I got a divorce and moved to Brooklyn. I am seeing a very fine man who seems interested in marriage. The problem is difficult to describe without sounding like an imbecile.

I am of the Jewish faith but am ashamed to admit that I do not know much about my religion. I know even less about some of the rules. I became aware of my ignorance when I started to date a man who is deeply religious (Jewish also).

"Jacob" works with a furrier and we see each other weekends. He says it is against his religion to carry money on the Sabbath, which begins Friday at sundown and goes through Saturday. This means whenever we eat out on Friday night I have to pay. Also I am not that crazy about kosher food and we eat only at strictly kosher restaurants.

The most serious problem is that Jacob says he cannot ride on the Sabbath so we have to walk everywhere. When the weather is bad (rain, snow, ice) I find it very unpleasant.

A Christian friend suggested that -Jacob might be using religion to have things his way. Will you please tell meif what he says about the restrictions are true?--Confused in Brooklyn

DEAR CONFUSED: It is true that those who follow the dictates of Orthodox Judaism are not permitted to carry money or ride on the Sabbath. Also they are prohibited from eating non-kosher food.

I suggest you find out if Jacob is a strictly observant Orthodox Jew. If so, you should consult with an Orthodox rabbi about all the religious intricacies-and believe me, there are

On Sunday, May 17, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Cnayon, will host its fourth annual Museum Day.

A family-oriented afternoon of exhibits, singers, dancers, role players, wagon rides, antique cars, and contests will entertain young and old alike, according to Suzanne Hewitt-Knorpp, event coordinator.

Three-point field goal coming to Texas

By GARY CHRISTENSEN Sports Editor

The three-point field goal certainly had an impact in men's college basketball last season, and it will have its impact on Texas high school boys' and girls' basketball next season.

Within the last month or so, the basketball rules committee of the National Federation of State High School Associations voted for the three-point goal for high school basketball in the 1987-88 season.

In the March-April issue of the Texas UIL publication, The Leaguer, Bill Farney, UIL athletic director, said the three-pointer will be used in Texas high school basketball if there is not much objection or protest against the rule.

Coach Mike Fields, Hereford High School boys' head basketball coach, said the 19-foot, nine-inch shot will change high school basketball in some ways and not in other ways.

"It's not really that far. It's about where you shoot against the zone defense," Fields said. "For high school basketball, it's about the right distance. It's about as far out as most of them will shoot a jump shot."

Farney, as quoted in The Leaguer, said, "Frankly, we do not expect coaches or administrators to protest. ... Eleven states used it this year on the high school level.

"In the states it was used, coaches claim it has generated additional excitement about the game and forced coaches to change strategies. No longer is a two-point lead near the end of the game a safe lead."

Farney continued, "With a good outside shooter, a team can force its opponent to open up the post play. The distance of the shot is not so long as to be frivilous but is long enough to be challenging."

In men's college basketball, much objection to the three-pointer was voiced across the country. Objections included arguments against the three-point goal completely, and arguments that the three-point line should be farther away from the

"I'm kind of like a lot of college coaches," Coach Fields said. "I like the game the way it's always been. This rule will make it a lot more exciting to watch.

"It won't be too much fun to lead the whole game and then lose when the other team hits three of four three-pointers in the last minute. But maybe you'd be lucky enough to have your team do that.'

Fields said the three-pointer will have an effect on the zone defense: "If a team runs a zone defense, you'll see a lot more odd-man fronts, to take care of the shooter at the top of the key and also the shooters out at

The Whiteface coach also agrees that the three-point field goal will be good for his post players.

"If I like the rule at all, it is that it will open up the post players. That hurt us here at Hereford last year, because everybody else would concentrate on our two post players, (Rodney) McCracken and (Bobby) Baker," Fields noted.

Fields believes more teams will use the man-to-man defense because of the three-point field goal.

"You should see a lot more teams running a man-to-man defense, which I like to use," he said. "I think the best teams runs the man-to-man defense. For those teams, the rule will not affect them that much.

"But all these things won't happen if somebody doesn't have a player who can shoot the three-point goal."

In college basketball last season, frequently a player, instead of taking a good, open shot, would look down to the floor to see if he was behind the three-point line. Often, he would end up taking a poor shot or have his shot Fields, who is having his off-season basketball players work on the threepoint shot, said, "It hurt our shooting at first, because our kids were concentrating on the three-point line. But the more they were playing with it, the more confident they became.

"I think a lot of teams won't be shooting well at the start of the season because of the three-pointer."

"It will backfire on you sometimes," he continues. "You can't really change your philosophy on what you do. But at the same time, if you have a player who can hit the shot, it's good for you.

"On our team last year, David Manchee would have made a lot of three-pointers. Half of his shots were that far out. "I think we'll have some players next year who can shoot it. But you don't know until you see it." UIL athletic director Farney has said objections to the rule, coming in to his office, have been minimal. He said coaches or administrators who want to comment on the rule may appear before the athletic committee of the UIL legislative council on June

Field agreed that most coaches will accept the three-pointer. "I think most coaches will go along with. it. It makes the game more exciting for the fans. It will make the game more fun to see, so it may put more fans in the stands."

Last year, by a narrow margin, the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches defeated a recommendation to use the three-pointer. Farney, who noted that the vote was taken before the NCAA tournament, added in his announcement in The Leaguer, "The feeling of the coaches now is that if the vote had been taken after the college season, the item probably would have passed. I think coaches, players and fans recognize the potential for excitment of the three-point shot."

What will the impact of the threepoint shot be in West Texas or in District 1-4A? Fields answers, "It may make the strong teams like Borger stronger.

"For us, in the next two to three years, it will be an advantage for us, since we have some good players. coming up. And it helps to have height like we do, to open it up for those players.

"Borger shot over 50 percent from the field and they may have gone all the way with the three-point goal, but you don't know."

Before he read Farney's anno ment in The Leaguer, Fields said he thought the three-pointer would be in boys' basketball only.

"In a way, it surprises me that we'll have the three-point goal in girls' basketball, since they don't use it in women's college basketball."

But the beginning of The Leaguer article does say boys' and girls' basketball: "Unless coaches and administrators vehemently protest, Texas high school boys and girls basketball players will be aimi the three-point shot next year.

The three-point field goal has been allowable in Texas on an experimental basis for three years. When all teams were in agreement to use it. the three-point goal was experimented with in not-district games and tournament contests.

Al Unser moves into vacant spot in Indy 500

By MIKE HARRIS AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Threetime Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser is back in a driving uniform and back in his element.

Unser, who has been without an Indy-car ride since the end of last season, Wednesday moved into the ride left vacant when Indianapolis Motor Speedway medical officials ruled Danny Ongais, recuperating from a concussion suffered in a crash in practice last Thursday, would not be cleared to drive at Indy any more this month.

Unser, the winner of 38 career Indy-car races and the series champion only two years ago, said he turned down several offers before taking the one-race deal with Penske Rac-

Asked what speed he could attain in practice the next two days that would make him comfortable going into qualifying, Unser, still dressed in his driving uniform, said, "I could say 210, but really anywhere above 205. I want to make the race right now and then worry about getting the race set-up. I'm not concerned with fast laps at this point. That doesn't mean anything now."

Eighteen of the 33 starting positions were filled in qualifications last Saturday and Sunday. The field will be completed in further time trials this weekend.

Bass' clutch hit gives Astros 2-1 win victory

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston right fielder Kevin Bass is still waiting for the Astros to become the team they were last season when they battled the New York Mets for the National League title.

"I'd say right now we're not the same team, we had a lot of little clutch things going for us last year that haven't happened this season." Bass said.

But it was Bass' clutch 10th-inning line drive to center fielder that provided the Astros with a 2-1 victory over the Mets in the Astrodome Wednesday night.

"I guess it was just our turn to win one," Bass said. "We had things happen for us last year, the little things, that make the difference."

The Mets, who beat the Astros in the NL championship series and went on to win the World Series, aren't the same either, Bass said.

"They don't seem like the same Mets, either. The little things aren't going their way," Bass said. "That's what makes this such a great game."

The Mets had Wednesday's game going their way until the eighth inning, when the Astros tied the game 1-1 on a double play grounder by

Bass hit a bases-loaded grounder to third baseman Howard Johnson, who stepped on third base, forcing one runner and threw to second base instead of throwing home to stop the runner from scoring.

Johnson said later he was trying for a triple play.

"I had it in my mind that if the ball was hit hard on one hop close to the bag, I would try for the triple play," Johnson said. "It would have been a tough play if I had gone to the plate because the runner would have been in my line."

Mets Manager Davey Johnsondisagreed with his third baseman's strategy.

"We should have won the game, HoJo (Johnson) should have tagged third and gone home," Johnson said. "There's not much of a way you can triple Bass; it's hard enough to double him. You can't rely on the triple

The decision proved expensive, because the game went into extra innings and the Astros escaped with a victory.

Bill Doran walked off reliever Gene Walter in the bottom of the 10th, went to second on Denny Walling's ground out, and scored on Bass' liner to Mookie Wilson in center field.

Wilson said he considered pretending he caught the low liner but decided it was too risky.

"I could have acted like I caught it, but I couldn't take the chance." Wilson said. "I was pleased with the way I threw it."

Houston struggled against Darling, who shut out the Astros until the eighth inning.

"I was very happy with the way I pitched," Darling said. "It would have been nice to beat Mike again."

The Astros had 11 men left on bass in another rough outing for Houston starter Mike Scott, who has had only nine runs scored for him in his last five starts.

"I got behind ... with the kind of stuff I was throwing," Scott said. "I was happy we stayed in the game with the stuff I had."

New York took a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Gary Carter singled to center field and went to third base when Billy Hatcher tried to make a shoestring catch and allowed the ball to get through him for an error.

Johnson drove Carter home with a single to center field.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Cincinnati 12, Montreal 6; St. Louis 7, San Francisco 6; Chicago 5, Los Angeles 0; Atlanta 10, Philadelphia 5, and Pittsburgh 9, San Diego 5.

Reds 12, Expos 6 The Red Wrecking Crew was at it again, getting two-run homers from Eric Davis, Barry Larkin and Dave Parker and a solo shot by Bo Diaz in rallying from a 6-0 hole. Cincinnati has 50 homers in 33 games, including a major-league high 15 by Davis.

Host Montreal grabbed a 6-0 lead in the first two innings. First-inning doubles by Casey Candaele and Mitch Webster and a sacrifice fly by Tim Wallach made it 2-0, then Webster hit his first career grand slam in the second inning.

Davis' homer got the Reds going in the fourth and Diaz homered in the sixth. Cincinnati, first in the NL West, pulled ahead in the seventh as pinch hitter Lloyd McClendon doubled home a run, scored on Tracy Jones' single, then Larkin hit a tworun shot off reliever Randy St.

Jones got his fourth hit of the game, a bases-loaded double in the eighth to make it 10-6. Parker's tworun homer in the ninth closed the rallied the Cardinals, who stayed atop the NL East.

After Pendleton homered off Jeff Robinson, the Cardinals got the decisive run when Willie McGee doubled and scored on a single by Curt Ford. McGee hit what appeared to be a single, but he beat right fielder Candy Maldonado's throw to second.

The host Giants, who lost their third straight game, were led by Will Clark's two homers and four RBI. Cubs 5, Dodgers 0

Rick Sutcliffe became the NL's first six-game winner, allowing two hits in 6 1-3 innings. Lee Smith pitched the final 2 2-3 and gave up one single.

Sutcliffe, 6-2, struck out seven and walked four through 6 1-3 innings as he earned his third straight victory. The six wins gave him one more than he had in 27 starts last year.

Braves 10, Phillies 5

Dale Murphy continued his hot hitting with two homers, four RBI and three runs scored for visiting Atlanta, which has won five of its last six. Murphy's second homer was measured at 436 feet, the longest at. Veterans Stadium this year.

Murphy has hit safely in 14 of the last 16 games.

Pirates 9, Padres 5

Barry Bonds hit his second threerun homer in as many games as Pittsburgh rallied, scoring the go-ahead run on reliever Craig Lefferts' seventh-inning balk.

Bonds' sixth-inning homer gave the Pirates a 5-5 tie. Johnny Ray and Mike Diaz singled in the Pittsburgh seventh and advanced on a passed rescinded by Bowa.

ball. Lefferts balked as he hesitated in his motion to the plate while pitching to Sid Bream, scoring Ray, and Bream followed with an RBI double to left. Greg Booker replaced Lefferts and pinch-hitter R.J. Reynolds doubled in another run.

The victory was the Pirates' fifth straight at home. They last won sixin a row at Three Rivers Stadium was

Many run risk of serious injuries to joints

Athletes and others who do vigorous exercise regularly runa high risk of injuring muscles, bones or joints. The Texas Medical Association says such injuries are common at the beginning of an athletic season and among people who begin to exercise after long periods of relative inactivity.

Many sports injuries require no treatment other than rest, and possibly physical therapy to increase the circulation of blood to damaged tissues and strengthen the affected muscles. But some injuries require further medical treatment, including surgery.

Here are some of the common sports injuries that require medical attention:

Rangers' Parrish has a 'smoking bat'

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It may have been the law of averages. More likely, it was Larry Parrish's smoking

Texas came to town Tuesday night with a 3-10 road record to face a team that was 13-1 at home and 61-27 lifetime against the Rangers in Yankee Stadium. In addition, in the 15 years the Rangers have been in Texas they have never won a season series from the Yankees, losing 14 and breaking even in 1984.

But there are few things Parrish likes more than zeroing in on the Yankees' pitching staff. And right now he is among baseball's hottest hitters.

"We were saying before the game that if you go to the law of averages, we were to due to win and they were due to lose," Parrish said Wednesday night after driving in three runs with a single, double and sacrifice fly in the Rangers' 8-6 victory, their third triumph in as many meetings with the Yankees.

Parrish singled home the tying run against Tommy John in a four-run fourth inning - Don Slaught followed with a two-run homer that put Texas ahead to stay 4-2 - had an RBI double off Tim Stoddard in the sixth to make it 5-3 and hit a sacrifice fly off Bob Shirley in the eighth for a 6-3 lead.

In his last eight games, Parrish is 15-for-28 with five doubles, four homers and 17 RBIs, raising his average from .222 to .310. The lifetime .267 hitter raised his average against New York to .313 and his 15 homers against the Yankees are the most he has hit against any American League team.

"I always enjoy playing here," Parrish said. "I like the home plate area and the lighting in this ballpark is good. You can see the ball really well. You know when you hit well against a certain club, but more important for me is the ballparks I like to hit in.

"In the American League, there are two parks - Detroit and Milwaukee - where I don't like to go up to the plate. I can't seem to get 7-5 and Toronto stopped Minnesota comfortable there. I think I'm hitting .080, or something like that, in Milwaukee.

"But I look forward to coming here. It's always a great thrill to play in Yankee Stadium. As a kid growing up I was a Yankee fan."

Parrish's hot streak began shortly after he took a cortisone shot for his ailing right wrist.

"I don't know if I've ever felt better than I do right now at the plate. The last week or so I've really felt comfortable." he said. "I've been swinging the bat really well. I'm not really worried about who's pitching.

"It's just a feeling you get into. You know your swing is right there where you want it. When you get a feeling like that you really don't care whether the guy throws you a fastball, a breaking ball, an off-speed pitch - you feel you can handle it."

The victory gave the Rangers a four-game winning streak and prevented the Yankees from taking over first place in the AL East. They trail Mil$ne percentage texas is 13-6 overall since its 1-10 start and the sixth-place Rangers are only three games out in the AL West.

Steve Buechele also homered for Texas while Jose Guzman, 2-2, overcame five walks in the first four innings and allowed 10 hits. Included were a solo homer by Dave Winfield in the fifth and a two-run shot by Claudell Washington with two out in the ninth.

Guzman needed last-out relief from Dale Mohorcic.

John, 2-1, who will turn 44 later this month, had his second straight rough outing, allowing five runs and eight hits in 5 2-3 innings. Slaught's homer was the first off a Yankee starter in nine games.

"He's gotten the ball up the last couple of starts," Yankee Manager Lou Piniella said of John. "Tommy can't do that and be effective. At the beginning of the year he was getting only ground balls."

In other AL games, Kansas City edged Baltimore 8-7, Seattle rallied past Boston 5-4, Oakland downed Milwaukee 8-2. Detroit beat California 10-7, Cleveland topped Chicago

Royals 8, Orioles 7

Veterans George Brett, Willie Wilson and Frank White kept Kansas City close. Then a newcomer won it for the Royals.

Danny Tartabull, having left runners in scoring position his previous two at-bats, hit a two-run single with two outs in the 12th inning Wednesday night that gave Kansas City an 8-7 victory over the Baltimore

"I was fortunate to be in that position, and fortunate enough to get the ball through the infield," said Tartabull, acquired in an off-season trade with Seattle.

Wilson went 5-for-6, including a single setting up Tartabull's single. Brett, activated from the 15-day disabled before the game after recovering from separated cartilage in his right ribcage, drove in two White hit a three-run homer, capping a four-run rally in the eighth that
