Landfill hours may extend if possible

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

The Hereford City Commission discussed the possibility of changing the hours at the city landfill during its regular meeting Monday night.

Commissioner Emory Brownlow said that he had been hearing complaints that the landfill was not open long enough on Saturdays for people to use it. Currently the landfill is open between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. on weekdays, and is open until noon on Saturdays. The site is closed Sundays.

City Manager Darwin McGill said that it was the state which sets the hours the landfill can be opened. McGill said that he will study the situation to find an alternative to the state set hours.

Commissioners noted that they would like to see the landfill opened an additional three hours on Saturdays.

In other business the commission elected to make final payment and accept the new fire station located directly behind city hall. McGill told the commission that the architect found some minor repairs that needed to be made, but that the contractor, High Plains Builders of Amarillo, had already started to make the repairs.

The final payment will be for $76,783.

McGill also read the ordinance pertaining to the Southwestern Bell franchise. According to city law, an ordinance relating to public utilities must be read at three public meetings before it can be finalized. Monday's reading was the second of the three readings.

Commissioners also accepted a bid from Southwest Aerial for $1.04 per acre to spray the city for mosquitoes and flies. The aerial spraying will cost the city just over $3,700. The spraying is scheduled for early Friday morning.

A motion was also passed Monday to give Kids Inc. $2,000 for equipment and expenses. Commissioner Brownlow said that he felt this was a good way to help the children of the community since the city lacked in public parks and playgrounds. The motion was passed unanimously.

Commissioners then elected to pay a premium of $13,053 for professional liability insurance for law enforcement officers. The insurance is being purchased from the Imperial Casualty Insurance Co. and the Lone Star Agency of Hereford.

Smith gets probation for perjury

Former Assistant District Attorney Gerald "Jerry" Smith pleaded guilty Monday to a perjury charge before 154th State District Judge Pat Boone Jr. of Littlefield at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

The perjury charge stems from statements he made while under oath during grand jury proceedings in March 1983.

Smith, who left his post as assistant DA in December 1982, received a three-month probation following a plea bargain instigated by special prosecutor Travis Ware of Lubbock.

In the plea bargain, Smith was charged with a misdemeanor instead of a felony. Smith was facing two perjury charges, but Ware agreed to drop one in exchange for the guilty plea. Smith's deferred probation will be concurrent with a suspension of his attorney's license, as recommended by the Texas State Bar Association.

Smith will not be required to pay any fines other than court costs and a $36 per month to the adult probation office.

Ware said that the punishment was not "just a slap on the wrist." The prosecutor said that Smith will have to deal with terms of probation and will not be able to work as an attorney for 90 days.

The charge Smith pleaded guilty to Monday alleged that during grand jury testimony in March of 1983, Smith said that he had never engaged in criminal defense work.

That case concerned Abelardo Tijerina, the driver of a car that killed Refugio Enriquez Jr.

During the case, Smith was asked if he had ever represented anyone in a criminal case. Smith replied that he had not. The court said he represented an individual on traffic charges.

Tower Site

No cultivating is allowed past the sign declaring property on the northwest corner of FM 1056 and 1057 as belonging to the U.S. Government. The site will soon be the home of a 300-foot tower to be used for ground wave emergency network (GWEN) communications of the U.S. Air Force, according to Thomas F. Greany, senior consultant for Hill International, Inc., contractor for the job.

Tower not part of DOE project

Tower construction at the crossing of FM 1056 and FM 1057 has nothing to do with the Department of Energy, according to a subcontractor supervising the project, despite suspicions of residents west of Hereford who saw a sign declaring the plot as government property.

Thomas F. Greany, senior consultant for Hill International, Inc., said the tower is part of a GWEN—ground wave emergency network—for the U.S. Air Force. It will be used as a leg in very long-distance transmissions.

Hill International, of New Jersey, is a subcontractor of RCA, which is the prime contractor for USAF communications.

"It has nothing to do with the DOE or anyone else," Geary said. "It just has to do with the Air Force. We have a network we've been working on for some time."

A construction site worker told a bypasser last week that the tower was to be used by the DOE for secret communications concerning the proposed nuclear waste repository site characterization. Greany said the story the worker told was untrue.

Linda McClain, DOE project director for Texas, said the construction was not affiliated with DOE.

The 300-foot tower, to be balanced by 18 guy-wires, will be the only one in the area. Others are being constructed in Mississippi, Alabama, and California.

Construction on the northwest corner of that intersection includes places for a backup power unit and an equipment enclosure.

Farm values drop slowing, USDA says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The slide in farmland values is slowing but probably will continue at least through the remainder of this year and in the early part of 1987, an Agriculture Department official says.

Ewen H. Wilson, deputy assistant secretary for economics in USDA, said Monday that "no one can predict a turnaround in land prices" at this time, despite the indications that the value decline is slowing.

"What we're going to have to see is some response to the export market," Wilson said in an interview. "Land is getting down to the point where it has to reflect the prices and returns on commodities."

He said the new Food Security Act and its lower supports for major crops is expected to help boost exports later this year. As lower U.S. prices for wheat and other commodities become more attractive to foreign buyers, Wilson and other USDA economists say exports will improve.

News leak delays Supreme Court ruling on G-R bill, senator says

HOUSTON (AP) — A news report that the U.S. Supreme Court would issue a ruling on the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget bill kept the court from doing so, one of the authors of the bill said.

"My guess is, given the leak, the Supreme Court is unhappy and is deciding to show the leaker by holding it up," Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, told 750 people attending a Houston Chamber of Commerce luncheon on Monday.

The court had announced previously it would hand down three decisions Monday. But it announced only two, neither involving the balanced budget law.

"I've told the President and I've told the Sen. (Robert) Dole that if the Supreme Court strikes down significant provisions of Gramm-Rudman, there'll be a Gramm-Rudman II. I'm not about to let Congress off the hook on balancing the budget," he said.

Dole, R-Kansas, is the Senate majority whip. Gramm said if the high court finds problems with the bill, then "we'll go back and fix it."

ABC News reported Sunday that the court would announce in a 7-2 ruling Monday that the legislation violates the constitutional separation-of-powers doctrine.

The network had reported that the court was about to announce a decision striking down the law's provision giving important powers to the comptroller general, an officer of Congress.

The Gramm-Rudman law calls for eliminating the federal deficit gradually by 1991. If the deficit rises above yearly targets, automatic spending cuts go into effect. The comptroller general, who heads Congress' General Accounting Office, is in charge of ordering the across-the-board cuts.

Gramm, who referred to the ABC report as a rumor, said the problems with the comptroller general's role in the budget process would be easy to correct.

"To this point, the only challenge is the involvement of the comptroller,"

Gramm said. "If that's a problem, it's a problem with a 1921 law. We can correct that by simply repealing the offending provision."

A three-judge appellate panel said on Feb. 7 that, by calculating the precise amount of budget cuts for each federal agency and program, the comptroller general would be exercising "the sort of power normally conferred upon the executive."

Gramm said there is a fallback provision in the bill to get around using the comptroller. Congress also could amend the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, which gives Congress the ability to remove the comptroller. That provision in the 1921 law creates the separation-of-powers problem, Gramm said.

In 1978, ABC carried leaked reports from the Supreme Court over a period of two weeks.

One was the court's ruling on a controversial New York case involving newspaper efforts to gain entry to pretrial proceedings. The high court determined that the right to a public trial did not entitle the press and public to attend such hearings.

After the ABC leaks, an employee of the Supreme Court's print shop was transferred to another job.

The first round of Gramm-Rudman budget cuts, $11.7 billion worth, went into effect March 1.

The deficit for this year is estimated at more than $200 billion. The Gramm-Rudman law requires the figure to be no higher than $144 billion for the next fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

The suit against the Gramm-Rudman law was brought by 12 members of Congress and unionized federal workers.

Live television news banned in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government, further tightening the news restrictions that accompanied a nationwide general strike, said today it was banning live transmissions by foreign television crews.

Sakkie Burger, senior news director at the South African Broadcasting Corp., said he had been instructed by the Bureau of Information that facilities for transmissions out of South Africa should be provided only if material is recorded in advance.

"The reason is to determine responsibility for what is broadcast outside South Africa," he said.

Michael Hornsby of the Times of London, a vice chairman of the Foreign Correspondents Association, termed the decision "just another screw in the censorship of news media which we deplore."

According to the government, which has tightly controlled information about unrest since declaring a state of emergency last Thursday, its security clampdown during the general strike Monday forestalled major violence.

This morning, black workers were reported to be returning to their jobs in large numbers. The Putco bus service which shut down completely in the Johannesburg area Monday reported 80 percent of its normal capacity of about 670,000 commuters.

Two arrested; stock stolen

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office arrested two adults for stock pilferage during the past weekend, and heard reports of the theft of a car.

U.S. Sheriff, who lives south of Hereford, reported the theft of several goats and a calf, and Ray Barber reported the theft of a calf. The sheriff also reported a stolen car that was abandoned in the area.

Golf shop burglarized

City police are investigating a break-in which took place during the past weekend at the Pro Shop of the city golf course. Approximate amount stolen in the burglary was $500.

Also reported missing were clothes and a handgun. Police arrested one individual for public intoxication and heard reports of a bike theft, a fight, a juvenile problem and a barking dog.

Inmate slits throat with blade

An inmate in the Deaf Smith County Jail suffered what Sheriff Joe Brown called a self-inflicted stab wound to the throat Sunday. Francisco Frank Trevino, 24, of Hereford, was found by jail employees at around 4 p.m. Sunday.

The condition is not serious. A spokesman with Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo declined to report Trevino's condition. Trevino was taken to the hospital in Deaf Smith General, then later transferred to Northwest, Brown said.

According to Brown, the inmate broke a disposable razor and slashed his throat.

Trevino was arrested in a Jan. 23 narcotics raid and is facing charges of delivery of narcotics.

Ann Landers

Try a trial separation

Dear Ann Landers: I am 42 years old and have been married for 23 years. About five years ago I came to the conclusion that I no longer love my husband. We have nothing in common. I enjoy people, excitement and good fellowship. He likes quiet, TV and being alone.

"George" refuses to compromise. Everything must be all his way or not at all. He thinks church and community activities are a waste of time and complains they will cost money if we become involved.

I got him to a marriage counselor when I threatened him with a divorce three years ago. He said the counselor was crazy and no one was going to tell him what to do.

We have not had sex for five years. He says it is not worth it. He criticized me so much I finally told him to leave me alone.

George doesn't drink, gamble or abuse me physically. We are not rich but with us both working for 23 years we are financially comfortable. Our kids are grown and have left home. My problem is I don't want to spend the rest of my life working and looking at TV.

I am thinking about asking for a divorce. Being married to this man is the same as being dead. Am I living in a fairyland world, as he says? Or do I have the right to expect more out of life than I am getting.

I have discussed this with one person, a close friend who is divorced. She thinks I should make the best of it because divorce is hell. But her husband left her for another woman and she still loves him. My situation is entirely different.

To stay with this man and continue to feel that life has passed me by, or to venture out into the unknown, that is the question. What do you say, Ann?

MISERABLE IN VIRGINIA
DEAR MISERABLE: A woman of 42 is very young today. There should be nearly as many years ahead of you as behind. To remain in a loveless, sexless marriage is foolish.

Tell George either he agrees to joint counseling so you can work together to improve your marriage or you are parting company. If you do part, don't rush to a divorce lawyer. Sometimes a trial separation is enough to make both parties opt for staying together and working things out.

Dear Ann Landers: Others have registered their pet peeves with you, now it's my turn. I am irked beyond belief by total strangers who butt in to my life with the command that I "smile." What's which these idiots, anyway?

Don't get the wrong idea, Ann. I'm not a sourpuss or a grouch. Nor am I one of those fanatics who gets bent out of shape when a store clerk says, "Have a nice day." I simply consider the order to smile a rude invasion of my privacy.

Just yesterday I was walking to a hospital to visit a very sick friend. An insensitive boob on the elevator cheerily shouted, "Smile, it can't be that bad." Well, it WAS that bad.

Please tell people there is no way of knowing what a stranger is thinking, feeling or going through, so BUTT OUT! — FEELING BETTER ALREADY IN FT. LAUDERDALE.

DEAR F.L.— O.K. course it's rude to tell strangers to do anything, but I suspect the "smile" folks are making an effort to cheer up a person who appears to be unhappy. So consider the thought behind the deed. It might help keep your blood pressure down.

Accent on Health

In at least one way, Americans have no appetite for new technology, according to the Texas Department of Health.

Yet irradiation could be a boon to the food industry if consumers would accept its proven benefits, Dennis Baker, director of the TDH Food Program, Food and Drug Division said. The department has authority to license food irradiation plants in Texas, although no such facilities have been built.

Irradiation, also called picowave processing, is the controlled exposure of produce, meats, and other foods to low doses of radiation. The radiation kills bacteria, parasites, and pests in food, eliminating the need for many preservatives, even refrigeration for some items. Pesticides, such as those used to rid imported produce of the Mediterranean Fruitfly, are unnecessary when food is irradiated and properly packaged before shipment.

Baker said irradiation has been used in Europe for several years, and has proved to be a safe and inexpensive means of preventing food spoilage. In the U.S., pharmaceutical supplies, some spices, and the astronauts' food are sterilized by irradiation.

"Most important for people to understand is that no radioactivity remains in the food. None does, but American consumers are ultra cautions about anything they associate with radiation," Baker said. The very name of irradiation wrongly suggests to some people that irradiated foods contain radioactivity."

Baker said the federal Food and Drug Administration exerts strict controls over which foods may be irradiated and how much radiation may be used in the process.

"The FDA had taken a very conservative approach in setting irradiation levels," he said. "And since no radioactivity is left behind in the food, (TDH) feels that irradiation could be a preferred alternative to chemical preservatives and pesticides now in use."

Still, the food industry hesitates to gamble on whether it will be able to sell its products, no matter how safe irradiation might be, since the public already tends to reject the process.

"The irony is that the same people who object to irradiated foods—which emit radiation—will gladly use color TVs, microwave ovens, and suntan appliances, which do emit low-level radiation," Baker added.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Turn down heat on hot peppers

DEAR POLLY — When cleaning hot peppers for canning, I wear gloves to keep the peppers from burning my hands. However, even with rubber gloves, my hands still burn. Is there any way to avoid this burning? It lasts a couple of days. I've washed my hands in just about everything possible, but to no avail. — ELSIE

DEAR ELSIE — Rubber gloves should keep the pepper oils from touching your skin. However, you may be particularly sensitive to the chemicals that cause the burning. Try doing all of the cleaning and working with the peppers under running water. This will wash the oils away as you work so there will be less chance of contact with your skin. Also, immediately after working with the peppers, rinse your hands liberally in white vinegar, which helps inactivate the burning substance. Of course, be very careful not to touch your face—especially eyes, mouth or nose—to avoid spreading the oils.

If none of this helps, perhaps you can recruit a family member or friend who is less sensitive to the pepper oils to clean your peppers for you. Do any readers out there have additional ideas for this problem? Let us hear. — POLLY

'Y' sets youth trip to WTSU on Wednesday

A trip to the West Texas State University activities center is scheduled Wednesday as part of the "Summer Adventures" program of the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The day begins at 8 a.m. with the sign in. Games of parachute and scooter ball will be played at 9 a.m., and prize races are set for 10 a.m.

Youth signed up Wednesday for the "Summer Adventures" program will then leave at 11 a.m. for the WTSU activities center. Plans are to return to the YMCA at 5 p.m.

Jerry Brock, program director at the YMCA, said each youth should bring his own lunch, but that the YMCA will provide drinks. He also said they are to bring their own swimming suits, extra money. Brock added that they may bring inflatable rafts or boats if they desire to.

Cost for the Wednesday "Summer Adventures" program activities are $10 for YMCA and G.L.A.D. members, and $15 for non-members.

Rangers' Hough loses no-hit bid in 9th

By The Associated Press

Wally Joyner made sure his 24th birthday was a happy one. While he did so, he added knuckleballer Charlie Hough to the long line of pitchers he's made miserable this season.

Because Hough's knuckleball was so difficult to hit, the 38-year-old right-hander entered the ninth inning of Monday night's game against the California Angels with a no-hit bid.

Because his knuckleball is so tough to catch, Hough and the Texas Rangers wound up dropping a bizarre 2-1 decision to the Angels.

It was Joyner, the Angels' rookie sensation, who broke up Hough's no-hit bid with a one-out single to center which drove in Jack Howell from third base to tie the game at 1-1. Howell had reached third on a three-base error by Texas left fielder George Wright.

Shortly later, Joyner, who leads the majors in home runs with 19, raced home from second base with the winning run when Texas catcher Orlando Mercado couldn't hold a Hough knuckleball on a swinging third strike by George Hendrick.

Hendrick had swung and missed on a 3-2 pitch with two outs. Joyner at second and Reggie Jackson at first were running with the pitch, which glanced off Mercado's glove.

Hough didn't cover home on the play. Joyner, who turned 24 Monday, never broke stride rounding third and scored standing up, reaching the plate a few steps ahead of Mercado.

"It was just a mental lapse on Charlie's part, not to cover home," Joyner said. "But he'd been out there for nine innings. He was tired and

Rangers make roster changes

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have bought the contract of outfielder Bobby Jones from their Class AAA farm club at Oklahoma City to replace catcher Darrell Porter, on the roster, the American League team announced Monday.

Porter was placed on the 15-day disabled list because of a nagging injury to his left leg, sustained May 27 at Chicago. The Rangers said designated hitter Larry Parrish was moved from the 15-day disabled list to the 21-day list to make room for Porter.

Also, the Rangers announced that the club signed right-handed pitcher Rick Raether, a 6th-round draft pick from the University of Miami, Florida, and outfielder-first baseman Mike Spear, a 30th-round pick from Manchester High in Richmond, Va.

Raether, who was 9-2 with a 2.77 ERA and 17 saves in 41 games last season, will join the Tulsa, Okla., franchise on Wednesday, and Spear was sent to Sarasota, Fla.

relieved to strike out Hendrick and just forgot (to cover home).

"I was going the whole way. I was going just in case George got to first. I see the ball go by the catcher, my job is to go home."

After Hough fluttered a called third strike past pinch-hitter Ruppert Jones leading off the bottom of the ninth, Howell, pinch hitting for Gary Pettis, hit a high fly ball down the left-field line.

"I got there, the ball came back on me," Wright said. "You're expected to make those plays. I just didn't make it. The ball came back, I just over-ran it."

Joyner followed with his liner to center on a 2-2 knuckler from Hough. Joyner went to second when Mercado couldn't catch a knuckler to Doug DeCinces, who then struck out.

Jackson was walked intentionally, setting the stage for the bizarre finish.

"The strangest, you talk to guys in this room in the game for 20 years, they'll tell you it's the strangest game they've seen," winning pitcher Kirk McCaskill said. "It was great to be involved in it. It's unbelievable. It still hasn't sunk in."

McCaskill, 6-4, hurled a four-hitter while walking three and striking out 10. He allowed just one hit after the second inning. The only run scored by the Rangers, in the second, was unearned because of an error by Pettis.

Hough, who finished with the first one-hitter of his career, took the blame for not covering home.

"I just flat out blew it," he said. "It was definitely my fault. We'd have had the guy (Joyner) if I had just walked up there."

Mercado said Hough was pointing to first when he got to the ball, which had rolled about halfway to the backstop, some 20 or 25 feet from home plate.

"I expected Charlie to be at home plate," Mercado said. "I forgot about Hendrick. I have to look for Wally."

"The count was 3-2. I just tried to stop the ball. I just tried to catch it. I don't even look to first, I don't see anybody at home. Both of us (Hough and Mercado) blew it."

Manager Gene Mauch of the Angels, in his 25th year as a big-league manager, said he'd never seen a game end like this one.

And Mauch praised Hough's effort, saying: "Every pitch he threw danced. The ball that Joyner hit, it was dancing all over the place."

Hough walked four and struck out eight. Ironically, he struck out the side in the ninth. But the third one ultimately beat him.

As far as McCaskill was concerned, Mauch said, "It's as good as I've seen him pitch."

Hough had pitched 13 innings — the longest stint in the majors this year — in his previous start at Minnesota last Wednesday night. The Rangers eventually beat the Twins 6-2 in 16 innings in that game.

Hough allowed only one hit in his final eight innings that night.

In the second inning, after Ward singled and Ruben Sierra grounded into a double play, Toby Harrah hit a fly ball to deep right center. After a long run, center fielder Pettis attempted a basket catch as he neared the fence but the ball popped out of his glove.

Harrah reached second on the error and scored on a line drive single to center by Steve Buechele.

The heartbreaking defeat reduced Texas' first-place lead in the AL West to 2½ games over California and Kansas City. The Royals beat Oakland 3-2 in 11 innings. Red Sox 19, Yankees 1

Just another game of catch for Roger Clemens. Just another victory for the Boston Red Sox.

Clemens raised his record to 12-0 with a four-hitter Monday night, and the Red Sox scored early and often in routing the New York Yankees 10-1.

"It's a lot easier pitching with a big lead," Clemens said. "With a cushion, I could just throw fastballs."

The Red Sox rapped 16 hits and gave Clemens all the runs he needed by scoring three times in the first inning. Jim Rice had a two-run single in the opening inning and added RBI singles in the third and fourth.

"After that, I could go out and play pitch-and-catch with Richie (catcher Gedman)," Clemens said.

Clemens' start is the best in the major leagues since Ron Guidry opened the 1978 season with 13 straight victories. Guidry was the loser Monday night, getting pounded for five runs in less than three innings. It was the sixth straight loss for Guidry, 4-7, the longest skid of his career.

Clemens lowered his American League-leading earned run average to 2.17. He struck out four and raised his total to 108, also best in the league.

Clemens did not walk a batter.

Clemens became the first Red Sox pitcher to open a season with 12 straight victories. The major-league record is 19 set by Rube Marquard in 1912 while the AL mark is 15, by Cleveland's Johnny Allen in 1937 and Baltimore's Dave McNally in 1969.

Tigers 5, Orioles 4

Alan Trammell's two-out double snapped a sixth-inning tie and Tom Brookens hit a three-run homer in the eighth after Baltimore intentionally walked Pat Sheridan.

Frank Tanana, 7-4, won for the Tigers, who had lost 12 of their previous 16.

Royals 3, A's 2

Rudy Law doubled home the go-ahead run in the 11th inning to give Kansas City its victory over Oakland behind the combined six-hit pitching of rookie Scott Bankhead and two relievers.

Willie Wilson walked to lead off the 11th against Jose Rijo, 2-5, who came in to start the inning. After Argenis Salazar struck out, Wilson stole second and Law followed with his double. George Brett was intentionally walked and George Orta drove in Law with an RBI single to give the Royals a 3-1 lead and their eventual winning run.

Blue Jays 9, Brewers 2

Garth Iorg drove in three runs and Ernie Whitt, George Bell and Tony Fernandez hit home runs to give Toronto 12 homers in its last five games and a victory over Milwaukee.

Milwaukee's Robin Yount went 4-for-5 and improved his average to .371, second in the AL to Wade Boggs' .380.

Placed Third In Amarillo Tourney

The Braves team of the Hereford Kids Inc. girls' major league placed third out of 14 teams in the Kids Inc. Softball Tournament in Amarillo last Saturday. In the tournament, played at Southeast Park, the Braves won their first three games before losing two straight. Early in the tournament, the Braves beat the Babes 10-5, a team that later advanced to the championship game. One of the Braves' losses was to the Explosions, the other team to ad-

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Though the South American champion is gone, that continent is far from out of contention in the World Cup.

Uruguay, which beat Brazil to win the most recent South American title, was eliminated from the world soccer championship Monday in a 1-0 loss to arch-rival Argentina. The Brazilians, who have yet to be scored on in four victories in this tournament, eliminated Poland 4-0.

Both winners appear to be as strong as ever.

Today, defending World Cup champion Italy was to play France in Olympic Stadium here and surprising Morocco was to take on West Germany in Monterrey. The other South American team remaining, Paraguay, plays England on Wednesday, when Denmark opposes Spain in the last two second-round games.

Argentina had not played its neighbor from across the Rio Plate in a World Cup game since 1930, the tournament's first year. Uruguay won that game 4-2 to take the title.

This time, it was all Argentina, even though the score was a mere 1-0. Uruguay, playing without suspended Coach Omar Borrás, showed virtually no offense until the final moments, when it desperately pressed for a tie.

Pedro Pasculli got the only goal three minutes before halftime on a brilliant three-way passing play.

N.L. contest called after only 39-minute delay

Umpires stop game quickly

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates felt like someone had pulled the plug on them.

"That's the quickest I've ever seen a game called in any league. This has to go down in the Guinness Book of World Records," Pirates General Manager Syd Thrift said after Monday night's rain-shortened 4-1 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The contest, the Pirates' fifth straight loss, was stopped in the top of the fifth inning, with the delay totaling 39 minutes. The Pirates felt the umpires reacted precipitously, considering that National League instructions direct the umpires' crew chief to wait 75 minutes after the first delay and 45 minutes after a second DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Dawkins, the crack guard for Duke, the losing finalist in this year's NCAA basketball championship game, started making his leaping dunks and jump shots at an early age.

"When I was 11 or 12, I was playing against men who were 20 to 30," he recalled. "I grew up going against players taller and better than I was. And getting respect from those guys was not an easy thing to do."

Gerald Riggs of the Atlanta Falcons was the workhorse of NFL ballcarriers in the 1965 season, logging the ball 397 times for 1,719 yards.

delay before calling a game.

"I've never heard of any game being called in less than 45 minutes," said Pirates Manager Jim Leyland, who said he would file an official protest. "We didn't get something we had coming."

In other NL action, New York beat Montreal 4-1 in 10 innings; Chicago stopped Philadelphia 7-5; Atlanta edged Cincinnati 4-3 in 10 innings and San Diego blanked San Francisco 4-0.

Jack Clark homered to back Danny Cox's four-hit pitching as the Cardinals climbed past the Pirates by a half-game into fifth place in the NL East. Cox, 2-5, maintained his mastery over the Pirates, who have beaten him only once in nine career decisions.

A half-hour after the game was called by crew chief John Kibler, it had stopped raining and the Three Rivers Stadium outfield contained only several small puddles.

Mets 4, Expos 1

Darryl Strawberry singled home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning as New York scored three times to beat Montreal in a game delayed for more than two hours by rain. The victory fattened the Mets' lead to 1 1/2 games over the Expos in the National League East.

Cubs 7, Phillies 5

Leon Durham's two-run homer and a two-run double by Shawon Dunston helped make Jamie Moyer's major-league pitching debut a success as Chicago defeated Philadelphia.

Braves 4, Reds 3

Ken Oberkfell's third hit, a run-scoring single in the 10th, lifted Atlanta over Cincinnati. Dale Murphy had walked with one out and took third on Bob Horner's third single of the night before Oberkfell came through with his game-winning single off John Franco, 0-4.

Padres 4, Giants 0

Andy Hawkins pitched a seven-hitter and Garry Templeton highlighted a three-run seventh inning with a two-run single as San Diego defeated San Francisco.

It was the first shutout of the season for Hawkins, 5-4.

Steve Garvey collected his 2,500th career hit with a seventh-inning single.

Add safety features to dwellings

LUBBOCK — Though building a tornado proof dwelling is possible, it is impractical and uneconomical for everyone except people who want to live in a windowless, concrete bunker.

However, taking some precautions with existing houses or adding some safety features to dwellings under construction can improve their durability in the high winds spawned by tornadoes and hurricanes, says Texas Tech University civil engineering professor James R. McDonald.

"Anything you do to make your home stronger," McDonald said, "will help it withstand high winds and mitigate damage. That is not to say it will make it tornado proof, but it will improve your chances against the majority of tornadoes, hurricanes and thunderstorms."

During the past 15 years, McDonald has worked through the Texas Tech Institute for Disaster Research to study high winds and their effects upon structures. His studies have shown that homeowners must guard against two factors in high winds: the force of the wind itself and the windborne debris it carries.

His broad recommendations are to secure things to the ground, strengthen your dwelling and divert wind from the house when possible.

More specifically, McDonald recommends for existing homes:

- Securing all satellite dishes, antennas, etc. with extra guy wires.
- Adding extra supports between roof rafters and ceiling joists in hip or gable roofs not made with prefabricated trusses.

- Picking up or securing loose objects—lumber scraps, lawn chairs, lawn tables, benches, trash cans—around the house.

- Keeping cars in the garage rather than on the street so they will not be blown into houses.

- Installing double posts—at four-foot intervals instead of eight-foot intervals—in stockade fences to strengthen them for deflecting wind and debris.

- Cutting down all tall trees, such as pines, which can fall into roofs or walls.

- Planting trees and shrubs which can deflect air flow from the house.

- Constructing earth berms around the house to reduce its exposure to the wind.

- Anchoring storage sheds, recreational vehicles and boat trailers to the ground.

People having houses custom built should follow those same precautions, but since they are involved in the planning of their dwellings from the beginning, they can insist on certain construction methods which will improve the strength of their houses.

"In home building, there's always a crunch for money," McDonald said. "The home buyer may insist on a more expensive carpet, drapes or light fixtures and forget about the construction methods because they aren't as visible."

For housing under construction,

McDonald recommends:

- Requiring a hip roof, rather than a gable roof, because of the lower magnitude of wind force at work upon it.

- Forbidding roof rafters to be toenailed into the top wall plate when the roof is connected to the walls. Rafters should be secured using hurricane clips or other solid anchoring systems to attach them to the top of the wall.

- Insisting upon use of bolts imbedded in the foundation to anchor walls to the concrete slab, rather than using nails driven into curing concrete.

- Using metal plates and nails to attach the lower end of studs to base plate rather than toenailing studs in place.

- Installing 3/4-inch diameter steel rods, imbedded in the foundation, on eight-foot centers to solidly secure wall panels from the foundation to the ceiling.

- Securing roof decking to rafters with sufficient nails to prevent any lifting from the wind.

- Using nails generously to hold wood or composite shingles in place.

- Bracing all chimneys at the roof line.

- Assuring that posts at corners of overhanging porches are securely anchored to the roof and ground.

- Nailing sheets of plywood to the top plates, studs and bottom plates at all corners to provide stiffer corners with more lateral strength.

- Installing two smaller garage doors instead of one large one on double garages and using heavy duty tracks for each garage door.

- Using metal ties to secure brick veneer walls at periodic mortar joints to the studs in the wall frame.

- Providing for a strengthened interior room the family can use as a shelter.

McDonald said, "None of these things are particularly new or innovative, but people often overlook them in building their homes."

"With all other things being equal, a house incorporating these precautions is more likely to withstand high winds than an identical house next door which didn't," McDonald said.

Abundant Life

BLAMING OTHERS

By Bob Wear

BLAMING OTHERS for our mistakes is always a faulty action, even when we get by with doing so. Blaming God for all of the bad and undesirable things which occur is even worse. This widespread practice of 'blaming others' who are not guilty undermines, confuses, and distorts the whole human scene. In many instances, we should be seeking a solution rather than 'blaming' somebody. Of course, some things which happen to us may be the fault of other people; and there are times when the blame must be correctly placed.

THE REFUSAL to accept responsibility is a damaging practice, wherever and whenever it occurs. It is a perversion of life, the quality of personal integrity is dissipated, and the capacity for this essential characteristic is eventually lost. Thus, people become increasingly incapable of meaningful living, and unfit for satisfactory human association.

FRAGMENTED PERSONALITY and uncertain character are identifying marks of people who are always blaming others, including God. Oftentimes, because of some of these practices people become very bitter, and understand less and less about the workings of the life experience. This kind of action will create all kinds of difficulties which affect adversely every facet of our social order.

TO BE ALWAYS 'blaming others' and refusing to accept our personal responsibility will place an unfair burden on responsible people. In fact, this kind of damage just grows and grows; and everybody gets hurt.

"ON ITS HIGHEST LEVEL Man's contemporary desire to escape responsibility expresses itself not in emphasis on luck, or in emotional submission to fate, but in a thoroughgoing deterministic theory, ascribing all personal qualities to heredity and environment."—Fosdick. We often hear, "you made me do it", or "somebody made me do it", or "it's their fault", ad infinitum.

IN ORDER to help ourselves, and for the common good, we must accept responsibility for ourselves, and do so in the most enlightened way.

DR. GOTT

Lump not caused by appendicitis

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 13-year-old girl. Lately, when I press just under my left breast I feel a hard, round object. I know this seems funny for a girl my age, but could it be appendicitis?

DEAR READER — No, this is not appendicitis. The lump may be in the breast, the subcutaneous tissue or on the ribcage. Because I cannot define your problem from the information you supply, I suggest you make an appointment with your doctor. He or she will examine you and clear up the mystery.

Appendicitis causes pain and tenderness, usually in the lower right abdomen. It is not associated with a lump.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In the past five years I have had three sebaceous cysts, one tumor and part of my cervix removed (cone biopsy). Three blood relatives died of lung cancer.

Are these factors related?

DEAR READER — I do not believe that your relatives' lung cancers are related to your problem.

Sebaceous cysts are common and play no role whatsoever in causing your problems. I assume from your question that no further gynecological surgery was performed.

I am less certain about the "one tumor" you had removed. Depending on its location and whether it was malignant, it may be related to future difficulties. On the basis of the tumor and the cervical biopsy, you would be wise, I think, to ask your doctor to review the whole situation with you. I believe this is the kind of individual care to which every patient is entitled.

Supreme Court ends school busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elementary schools in Norfolk, Va., have received a green light from the Supreme Court to end busing in a move critics say will "re-segregate" black and white children.

The Reagan administration said the case could be a model for other communities.

By a 6-3 vote Monday, the court turned down a plea to postpone the end of busing which for 15 years has produced racial balance in the city schools.

Come September a new neighborhood schools plan approved by the city school board will return 10 of the city's 35 public elementary schools to being almost all-black.

Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, said busing contributed to white flight from the schools. The legal principles advanced in the Norfolk case could apply to "many, many other school districts around the country," he had said prior to the court's order. He declined to comment afterward.

Hundreds of school districts, including those in most major cities, operate court-ordered busing plans for racial desegregation. But only a few have persuaded courts, as Norfolk did, to declare their systems fully integrated and end court supervision.

Monday's court action does not necessarily resolve the challenge by some black parents in Norfolk to the planned end to busing. The justices did not rule on that formal appeal and may not even consider it until October.

The only action the justices took was to deny a postponement in the end to busing pending further consideration.

Even if the formal appeal is granted review before the end of the current court term in July, no decision is likely until sometime in 1987.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and Harry A. Blackmun voted to postpone the dismantling of the busing plan. And Justice John Paul Stevens voted to speed up the court's study of the formal appeal while postponing any action on the emergency request until that consideration.

Lawyers for black parents challenging the end to busing said "the proposed re-segregation would place several thousand black children who have always attended integrated schools in segregated schools for the first time in their lives."

They added: "A fully desegregated school system ... is on the verge of deliberately re-establishing major components of the unconstitutional dual system that was eliminated only after 19 years of litigation."

Norfolk school officials, in urging the court not to postpone the September effective date, said, "All elementary students have been assigned to schools for the fall. All teachers have been notified of their fall assignments."

Busing of young children to racially balance Norfolk's elementary schools began as part of a court-ordered desegregation plan in 1971, and has continued even though the school system in 1975 was declared totally integrated.

The city school board voted in 1983 to abandon busing for racial balance, but postponed putting that decision into effect for several years.

Under the neighborhood schools plan, children will be allowed to attend the elementary school closest to their home.
