No proof found that Reagan approved diversion of profit

House is stressing that a preliminary Senate report finds no evidence that President Reagan approved diversion of Iranian arms sales profits to Nicaraguan rebels, but the report raises new questions about the adweapons to the Contras.

Drug dog assemblies Monday

Six Hereford School campuses will have assemblies for students and parents Monday to explain just how the drug snifting dog will perform and what happens when he finds the presence of illegal drugs on the grounds

Parents unable to attend the schoolday assemblies are encouraged to attend the same program at 7 p.m. Monday

The Hereford Schools board of trustees have adopted a policy for interrogations and searches by the trained does. State school board attorneys examined the policy for legality as did District Attorney Roland Saul Saul said the policy looks good and backs the idea of using a drug dog as a deterrent.

Also backing the idea is Juvenile Officer Colleen Duffy, who taught in a South Texas junior high where a drug dog made random visits.

She said that when the drug dog team was hired, about 75 to 100 kids were coming to school stoned. Soon there was a sharp reduction. Duffy said the searches were a sure-fire deterrent, because they never confiscated any marijuana that year she taught there

At that school it really got their attention. They realized the administration was serious about it."

Duffy will be one of the assistants in the program through her role as juvenile officer If a student is caught with any illegal substance, the school will turn the case over to her. She said about 20 of her present juvenile cases are drug related.

Assemblies are as follows: Stanton, 8:25-9:10 a.m. La Plata, 3-3,45 p.m. High School, 9 25-10 10 a m Shirley, 10:25-10:55 a.m. West Central, 2:15-2:45 p.m. Bluebonnet, 1, 30-2 p.m.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White — tee's 65-page report demonstrates a close relationship since 1985 between White House officials and principals supplying those weapons to the Contras during a two-year congressional ban on U.S. military aid.

Panel chairman Sen. David L. ministration's role in funneling Boren, D-Okla., meanwhile, said the report released Thursday paints "a picture of making foreign policy that was in real disarray," and he renewed his call for White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan to resign.

He is the wrong chief of staff for this president at this time," Boren said, adding that Regan had failed to ensure the president had the best possible advice in the controversy and that foreign policy-making, therefore, had fallen to amateurs

Iranian emigre sources on Friday said Manucher Ghorbanifar, the Iraman middleman in the arms sale to Tehran, was described as a "suspect. character" by American intelligence as early as 1984, in part because of information he allegedly provided about Libyan bit teams coming to the United States

The Iranian exiles speaking on condition of anonymity, said Ghorbanifar leaked word of the supposed Libyan terrorist effort to the Central Intelligence Agency in 1981

The assessment of Ghorbanifar's credibility matches that presented in the Intelligence Committee's report, which said that in 1984, a year before the arms deals began, the CIA described Ghorbanifar as a known fabricator" and suspect

The White House refused comment Friday on the purpose of the April 23 meeting. Instead, spokesman Larry Speakes stressed that the report found no evidence Reagan was aware of, let alone approved, any diversion of funds (from Iranian arms sales) to the Contras

The report said, "Poindexter noted on the memorandum received by the committee that he discussed it with the president." But the committee could not determine if Reagan and Peres discussed the issue

68 Hereford blocks protected

Success of Neighborhood Watch attributed to positive reception

By DEBE GRAVES Feature Writer

Crime Prevention Officer Butch Glenn attributes the local succeess of Neighborhood Watch to the positive reception it has received in the community. He says, "We still have a way to go, there are approximately three to four hundred residential blocks in Hereford, but in comparison with statewide averages and the Panhandle area in particular, we are doing nothing less than excellent.

There are now 46 block associations involving a total of 68 blocks in the local Neighborhood Watch program sponsored by the Hereford Police Department. Since its inception in 1962, the program has proven to be an excellent deterent to the fastest growing felony in the nation, burglary.

Panhandle Regional Planning Commissioner representative John Bradshaw has confirmed that Hereford has a far greater participation percentage in the program than any other town in the panhandle.

The most prevalent neighborhood crimes are burglary, auto theft, rape child molestation and arson. Neighborhood Watch associations have a proven success rate in discouraging criminals and, though believes that in the future ticipation rate is recommended. homeowners insurance rates may be discounted for those neighborhoods which participate in the program.

"Of course the program doesn't do away with crime but it greatly reduces the odds of that block falling victim to crime," states Glenn.

In Hereford the crime rate in several residential neighborhoods has been drastically reduced and in some cases eliminated since the neighbors banned together to form a block association. One such neighborhood had suffered through a rash of burglaries and since the initiation of neighborhood watch on the effected blocks no incidences of crime have been reported.

Glenn emphasizes that it is very simple to begin and maintain a block association. "Initially all it takes to establish an association is for one or two interested persons to canvas the neighborhood and determine if others desire to participate," he advises. "Many Hereford residents have been surprised at the favorable response they received from their neighbors."

Though some police departments require a minimum number of participants to establish a program, Glenn says that the HPD has no

When interest has been established the next step is to organize a neighborhood meeting. At this stage Glenn will become involved in helping fledgling groups organize and obtain the information they need to establish their association. The block meetings are usually held in a home on the block and last about one hour. It is important to have as many residents attend the meeting as possible because it is at this time that Glenn presents training on neighborhood crime prevention, home security and suspicious behavior which residents need to be able to spot.

'Neighborhood Watch operates to train citizens to act as the eyes and ears of the police. Since we cannot be everywhere at once it is important that we have people trained to detect suspicious behavior," states Glenn, "but vigillante actions are in no way encouraged or condoned. No one is asked to take personal risk or to be a

Suspicious activity includes: -Anyone forcing entry to or tampering with a residence, business

-A stranger entering a house which you know to be unoccupied

-The sounds of breaking glass or other explosive noises which may indicate housebreaking or vandalizing

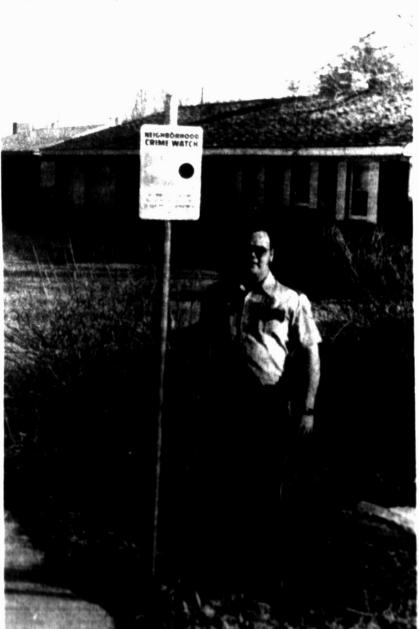

-Persons loitering around schools. parks, or other secluded areas in the neighborhood. This behavior could indicate a potential burglar or sex of-

-A scream which could indicate rape or kidnapping

-A person exhibiting unusual mental or physical behavior Cost of the program is divided equally among participants. The average cost in Hereford ranges from $5 to $10 per household. This one time payment covers the cost of street signs, alley signs, window stickers and other material used to alert criminals that the neighborhood is on the lookout for suspicious activity. The City of Hereford installs the street signs free of charge.

If you live on one of the unorganized blocks in Hereford, Glenn urges you to contact him at the HPD. 364-2323. He will be glad to assist you in establishing a Neighborhood Watch association to reduce the chances of crime in your neighborhood. Block associations are easy to set up, they work and it is a good return on the minimal investment of time and money.

National REC Association grass roots meeting slated for Monday in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, representing 25 million Americans, will meet here Monday in what officials describe as the nation's largest grass roots meeting on rural issues

About 10,000 officials of rural electric systems in 46 states will air concerns ranging from the slumping farm economy to Reagan administration budget proposals.

Rural America is threatened by Reagan efforts to "privatize" and eliminate loan programs for rural utilities, according to NRECA executive vice president Bob Bergland, a former Minnesota farmer, congressman and secretary of agriculture in the Carter administra-

Bergland will address those issues in his annual report to the membership during the first general session Monday.

COMMODITY

farmers get for commodities are compared with prices they pay to meet expenses. It then uses a 1910-14 measurement to express what happened. At 100 percent, the indicator would theoretically mean farmers had the same buying power as they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average price of corn in January was $1.43 per bushel at the farm nationally, according to the preliminary figures. That was 30 percent of the January parity price of $4.78 per bushel.

The report also said:

-Cattle averaged $54.70 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared with $53.20 in December, the same as a year earlier. These are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

-Hogs averaged $46.40 per 100 pounds, compared with $50.60 in December and $44.30 a year earlier.

-Corn, at $1.43 a bushel, was down from $1.50 in December and down from $2.33 a year earlier.

-Wheat prices at the farm, according to preliminary figures, averaged $2.44 per bushel, compared with $2.49 in December and $3.19 a year earlier.

-Rice averaged $3.72 per 100 pounds, compared with $3.76 in December and $7.90 in January 1985. -Soybeans were $4.69 per bushel, compared with $4.67 in December and $5.16 a year earlier, -Upland cotton was reported at 49.2 cents per pound, compared with 54.7 cents in December and 54 cents a year earlier. -Eggs were 59.3 cents per dozen, compared with 65.2 cents in December and 65.1 cents a year

Milk was $13.30 per 100 pounds, ared with $13.40 in December and $12.50 a year earlier.

-Broilers were 31.1 cents per d, live, compared with 30.6 cents n December and 30.5 cents a year

Other issues to be discussed during the three-day meeting are deregulation of electric utilities and the new tax bill and its impact on rural electric systems, their employees and Speakers include U.S. Rep. Mike Synar of Oklahoma, U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton.

Bergland said the association, which includes 81 rural electric systems in Texas serving 2.2 million people, is concerned about a number of Reagan administration proposals

 Reductions in loan levels and a "near doubling" of interest rates to rural utilities and the proposed elimination of the Rural Electrification Administration, the government's lending arm, by 1990.

The sale of federal power facilities that provide power supplies to 600 rural electric utilities, beginning with the Southeast Power Administration in 1989.

 Curtailment of rural development programs, including those earmarked for housing, fire protection and water and sewer projects.

It's not Greek at San Antonio church

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - It is not all Greek in the Greek Orthodox Church.

Father John Kaloudis said that in his more than five years at St. Sophia's Greek Orthodox Church, about 50 people with no Greeks in their family tree have joined the congregation.

Kaloudis also pointed out that the worship services were conducted entirely in Greek when he was growing up. Now at least half of each service is in English.

Kaloudis said the members of the near-North Side church are proud of their Greek heritage and demonstrate it in such events as the annual Greek Festival.

But, he said, most understand that the church must be more than a "Greek social club."

"The primary function of a church isn't to perpetuate ethnicity," Kaloudis said. "It's to bring people to knowledge of Jesus Christ.'

Joey Cash believes St. Sophia's is successful at that mission. Cash began attending the church when he married a woman of Greek descent, but found a congregation in which he felt right at home.

"When we got married, I had agreed I would visit her church," Cash said. "I just started going to the church, and I enjoyed the services. I decided to convert and became Greek Orthodox." Cash said except for the use of the Greek language, the services are similar to his Episcopal background. He said he has had no problem fitting into the congregation and has served several years on the parish council. "The Greek identity is definitely there, but I have not felt like an outsider," Cash said.

As part of Eastern Orthodoxy, the Greek Orthodox Church has its roots in the Great Schism of 1054, when the Christian church in the Byzantine Empire broke away from Catholicism.

The Eastern churches did not accept the infallibility of the pope, latory celibacy for clergy and the Catholic Church's change in the creed's definition of the Holy Spirit.

Eastern Orthodoxy is made up of autonomous churches organized along national lines, such as Greek, Russian and Romanian Orthodoxy. The national churches generally agree on matters of doctrine, but have their own cultural customs and some differences in matters of church discipline.

Kaloudis compared the differences among the national Orthodox churches to "going to a mariachi Mass here and then going to a Mass in

"They're still both Roman Catholics," Kaloudis said. "In fact, we probably wouldn't have that much deviation."

Greek Orthodoxy formally came to San Antonio in the 1920s, after a small Greek community established itself in the city. A 60th anniversary book prepared in 1986 by St. Sophia's Church stated the event that prompted the church's beginning was the death of a 3-year-old girl in 1924.

Because priests from Dallas and Houston were conducting the only Orthodox services in San Antonio, the girl's father had to wait more than a week for her funeral.

Later that year, the father gathered together other Greek men to form a church and raise funds to buy land.

In 1926, the church building had been completed. The twin bell towers still loom over the lower end of the St. Mary's strip, in sharp contrast to the trendy restaurants and bars that dot the street.

The most striking feature of the church's interior is the iconostasis, or icon screen, a wood wall in front of the altar with numerous glasscovered panels holding the icons. A distinctive Orthodox tradition, icons are stylized paintings of Biblical figures and stories.

Kaloudis said the icons began in the early church when few people could read and pictures were used to teach the crucial events in the Bible. Later, he said, the icons became a key element in a controversy about the nature of Jesus Christ.

"Some people wanted to throw out the icons," Kaloudis said. "They believed only in the divine nature of Christ, not that he was fully man and fully God. They said you can't make a picture of the divinity."

So the preservation of the icons demonstrated that the Orthodox churches held to the belief in Jesus being both God and man.

St. Sophia's icon screen features paintings of each of the 12 apostles, events in Jesus' life, Mary and other Biblical figures. The area in front of the iconostatis has many decorative touches, including other icons, an ornately carved chair and hanging candle-style lamps in silver bowls with tiny angel figurines.

By contrast, the sanctuary itself is rather unadorned, with plain dark wood pews and plaster walls. The congregation recently completed a $60,000 renovation that has renewed both the interior and exterior of the building.

The Greek Orthodox service has retained much of the intricate sybolism developed in Christian liturgies over the centuries. Kaloudis said the priest makes the sign of the cross in a definite fashion that conveys several messages.

Kaloudis said the priest holds the thumb up and two fingers together to symbolize the Trinity, with the three persons of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Two fingers, which represent two natures of Christ, are touching the palm, which stands for the earth. Thus, the gesture also signifies Christ's coming to the world.

Then, Kaloudis said, the sign is made by holding the hand in this position and touching one's forehead, heart, left shoulder and right shoulder. This series of movements is reminiscent of the Great Commandment's injunction to love God with all one's mind, heart and strength, he said.

Shriners honored for services

The Shrine of North America has been recognized by President Reagan's private Sector Initiatives' Program for "extraordinary contributions" to communities across the United States.

According to Eric Johnson, the President's Private Sector Initiatives Program director, the Shrine fraternity has demonstrated a strong public community spirit and shown how effective the Private Sector can be in addressing public needs.

The international fraternal organization is now being considered as a finalist for the top 100 Private Sector Initiative Programs in the United States, to be awarded by President Reagan at the White House later this year.

A memorandum from the President's Private Sector Program office, sent to International Shrine Headquarters in Tampa, lauded organizations that have "helped show there is a valuable role for the private sector to play in our society," and "that many problems can be handled without the intervention of government."

The Shrine of North America is an international fraternity comprised of 189 Shrine Temples across North America, whose membership numbers approximately 868,000.

In the news recently, a small group known as Concerned Citizens of Deaf Smith County announced plans for a voter registration drive before the local April elections in an attempt to increase Hispanic representation on local governing boards.

We'd be the first to agree that the community needs more Hispanic citizens involved in community affairs, including representation on governing bodies. We need more in civic clubs, study groups, the chamber of commerce-in all areas of community life.

According to a statement by the group's cochairman, the Concerned Citizens seem to think the only reason more Hispanics are not elected to office is because of racial discrimination. "Whenever Anglos see a Hispanic on the ballot, they'd come out in droves to vote, because they don't want us," was the quote.

We realize there is still some racial prejudice in elections, on both sides. However, we believe that the majority of citizens discriminate against people, not against race. This group seems to be overlooking the fact that Anglos sometimes turn out in droves when two Anglos are on the ballot, because they don't want one of them.

When you get right down to it, most voters judge a candidate on qualifications and popularity. A local candidate with a record of involvement in civic and other community projects, regardless of color, will have a much better chance of winning an election than one who has no name identification and no experience in working with other groups in the community.

Sure, we've got a small group of people who wouldn't vote for a candidate because of his race (it works both ways), but hopefully we've reached a point in time when those folks-white, brown or black-are in the minority.

Clements support

The inauguration of Bill Clements as our state's new governor marked the changing of the guard at a pivotal time in Texas history.

Clements has been working on a variety of state issues since his election victory Nov. 4.

Now, as he officially takes over the leadership of our state government, Clements needs the strong suport of all of the people of Texas to solve the pressing financial problems facing our state.

This is no time for partisan politics to create roadblocks along the path of economic recovery for our state. Too much is at stake to allow the pet projects of individual members of the legislature to stop legitimate efforts to eliminate the huge deficit Texas is

Prison watch

As Texas moves to ease its prison crisis, new ways of dealing with criminals need to be explored.

Merely building more fortress-style facilities in deep East Texas in which to warehouse felons is not the only way to go.

The state needs to consider a system of regional facilities in which to house non-violent offenders.

Another option the state should explore is contracting with private firms to build and operate some facilities. Such privatization is said to save both money and construction time.

Neither regional nor privately run prisons are the total answer to Texas' massive prison woes. They are only two of the many options...

Russia claims it already has such a defensive capability.

In four years our SDI research has progressed so rapidly that deployment could begin within another six.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee that a spacebased system that would "protect our North American continent" could be operational by the early 1990s.

But two leading Democrats in Congress are saying: "Over my dead body!"

The United States now has the capability to defend itself against enemy attack by intercepting missile warheads before they are halfway here. It is called the "Eris" system. (Exoatmospheric Reentry Vehicle Interceptor System).

We know it will work. A comparatively primitive version of the 'Eris" - during recent tests - intercepted a Minuteman ICBM warhead while it was traveling 20,000 feet a second.

The "Eris" would also enable our country to protect itself against a problem which has haunted our strategic planners for years - the threat of an accidental missile laun-

Heritage Foundation scholar Dr. Kim Holmes, concedes that "Eris" is imperfect. But he says it is not necessary to have a "perfect" system in order to destroy an errant Congress, however, must appropriate the necessary funding and Democratic Sens. William Proxmire of Wisconsin and J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana vow to block any attempt promptly to deploy a missile defense.

At the first Budget Committee hearing, Johnston said, "Early deployment of SDI would be a terrible idea even if you thought it would work."

He calls the idea "irresponsible," "dangerous"; says it "would open the door to an arms race in space."

An inevitable problem with appropriating the $3-plus billion the Pentagon wants for this research project involves partisan jealousies. Republican Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana says, "We must deploy something and soon." But Democrat Sen. Johnston says

SDI is not going to become a legacy of President Reagan and a monument to his Presidency. He says let them build a monument down on Pennsylvania Avenue "for a whole lot less money."

The debate is further confused by a comparison of technologies.

Johnston and Proxmire want our Pentagon first to invent an exotic array of weapons-lasers and particle beams-which they insist would be necessary to any effective space

The Penultimate Word

THE POWER OF PRESENCE

A call came today from a hospital. The nursing staff wanted a seminar dealing with their discomfort when they must be with a family immediately after a death. The request was unusual because they said they had more trouble dealing with families after a sudden death. If the patient was long term they had a chance to know the family and build a relationship. This relationship helped them when death came. The tough cases, to these nurses, were the ones who died shortly after arriving at the hospital.

These were Oncology nurses. They deal with tough cases every day. They deal with death every day. When death came and there was no relationship with the family they had nothing to say and felt helpless. They thought there was some kind of verbal salve they could get to lay on the wounds in times like these. Unfortunately, there is no such salve. Presence is all we can give. We can hold them and be there. That is all, and it does not seem to be enough, but it does far more than we imagine.

We tend to do too much talking during times like this. We talk because we do not feel comfortable just listening. We do not think listening helps so we fill the air with words, hoping some of them will be the right ones. They usually are not the right ones, but we try anyway, and feel better for the effort. If all we do is be there and listen we feel a great deal of fear and failure. I think the hardest part of learning to be a listener is getting comfortable with just listening.

A friend called me one night to say he was going to go talk to this friend, who was hurting, and he wanted to know what to say.

I said, "Nothing."

That was not the answer he wanted and there was a long pause on the phone before he said, "Well, I have to say something."

I said, "Why do you have to say something? He is the one who is hurting. Let him talk."

There was another long pause, and then he said, "What if he does not talk?"

I said, "Then just ride around with him and be there."

Another long pause, and then, "O.K., suppose he does talk, what do I say when he is finished?"

I said, "Say 'Goodnight'."

Then he thought he would trap me. Preachers cannot resist giving a text. He said, "Well, I thought there would be some scripture I could use."

I said, "There is."

He cheered up. He thought he had me. He said, "Tell me the text."

I said, "There is a text over in one of the books of Kings that says, 'So we boiled my son and did eat him'. Quote that one to him."

He said, "What?"

I said, "Look, if he is hurting he is not going to hear anything you say anyway, and you don't get to use that text very often."

When people hurt they don't need our words, our philosophies, our ideas or our texts. They need our presence. Preferably our silent presence.

Bootleg Philosopher

Stock market

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek looks at the stock market this week, sort of.

Dear editor:

One of the many things I don't know anything about is the stock market.

For instance, according to an article I read the other day, during the first 11 days of January "the most powerful rally in the history of Wall Street has left stockholders $243.2 billion richer after a dramatic buy-ing frenzy." I don't understand this.

ing frenzy." I don't understand this.

Say you own some stock in a company. And the stock goes up dramatically this week regardless of the fact the company is not paying any more dividends than it did last week. You're richer only if you sell. Just like the people who "made that $242.2 billion the first 11 days of January" are richer only if they sell.

In other words, a stock is like a politician-worth only what somebody thinks, not what the real value is. It's not unheard-of to pay more for a congressman than he turns out to be worth.

Now say that the stock owners who saw their stocks gain $242.2 billion in 11 days hold on to them, on the theory that the stock market will keep going up forever. Eventually, if the stock market does keep going up forever, they'd wind up richer on paper than the country is now in debt.

Now what if those stocks, like some politicians, turn around and go in the politicians, turn around and go in the opposite direction?

Recently I've been reading the business section in the papers and I haven't found one stock market expert who says the market has yet reached its peak. They say that the Dow Jones Industrial average, whatever that is, having passed the 2100 mark, can easily goto 2200 or 2000 or maybe 3,000. No crash likely. Buy more stocks.

In other words, I'm not the only one who deem't know anything

Some other dump what-ifs discussed

What if Hereford did not have people like Doug Manning who are so willing to dangle the carrot for the DOE? Surely their thinking must be that if they are holding the carrot then they are only one arm's length from the first bite. Without such attitudes site characterization would not be inevitable.

The people who are working very hard to bring the DOE business to town are playing right into the hands of the DOE and Committee for Energy Awareness (CEA).

By the way, the CEA is not a watch dog committee, but a lobby and public relations group hired by the nuclear power plants to promote their industry and to repair public relations and attitudes after the black eye the Three Mile Island accident gave them. Their involvement dent gave them. Their involvement in the waste issue amounts to nothing more than helping the DOE find a community full of unsuspecting people who are willing to close their eyes to this project's dangers and inequities and open their pocketbooks for a short lived affair that will leave leading access. Doug also indicated that there are many people who are neither for or against the dump. Polls made by several of our elected officials, both Republican and Democrat, have showed time and again that more than 80 percent of area citizens are against the dump. The people who are in favor are usually in the 3 percent to 5 percent range, leaving very few people undecided. I say you are either for or against. There isn't a middle road, and here are my

The people on or near many of these salt beds were willing to accept the risks of nuclear power for what was supposed to be cheap electricity. So, I ask, why should we be asked to share these risks?

You see, the DOE has been told not to study these areas because of the strong public opposition. They have been run out of one community after another. Cake designer's philosophy:

Productions, the line between art and cake is as fine as spun sugar. John Ortega, pastry chef, artist and floral designer, can airbrush your likeness into the freeting on a cake top. He can sculpt chocolars or baked layers in the shape of a cheetah, flamingo, pig or twirling ballerina. His latest innovation is lighted neon tubes through the middle of cakes.

"I like to look at my cakes as more of an art than a cake," he said. "I admit that I hate to see people cut into my cakes. I'd like to see people preserve them."

Ortega, 27, has been using pastry as his palette for six years, and his creations have gained him access to celebrities as colorful as his baked goods. He has presented cake portraits to singers Diana Ross and Tina Turner, comedian Joan Rivers, country-western stars Dolly Parton and Ricky Skaggs and former Texas Gov. Mark White. His next goal, Ortega says, is to do a cake for President Reagan. Ortega was once driven by limousine to Austin to present a cake shaped like a baby grand piano for Liberace's birthday; its icing top featured airbrushed portraits of the entertainer, his producer and his manager. One client sent an Ortega cake to a friend in St. Louis recently - via its own first-class airplane

"It's contemporary graphic, like Andy Warhol, with dimensions," Ortega said.

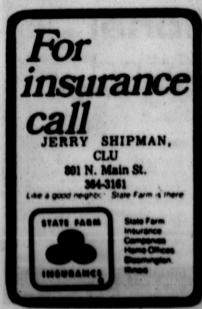

The River Oaks area studio where Ortega displays hardened sugar replicas of some of his work reflect its bizarre, eye-catching quality. There are hot pink and red neon lights, unpainted corrugated tin walls and leopard skin chairs with lavender legs. He plans to cover the walls in leopard print, too.

The flip side of Tasteful Productions is an adults-only version called Tasteless Productions, which provides made-to-order, sexually oriented confections.

Still, most of Ortega's cakes are for ordinary folk who want to add glamour to a special event with an elaborate wedding cake that lights up, a Cabbage Patch Kid birthday cake, a cake with a boat on it for a seafaring spouse. His tallest cake was a 9-foot replica of the Nutcracker for an Austin Junior League Christmas party; his largest, which served 4,500 people, was a reproduc-tion of the Polly Ryan Hosptial in Richmond, Texas.

growing up in San Antonio. Flavors range from butter pound cake and chocolate torte to vanilla mousse and amaretto. Icings are usually cream cheese-based. He occasionally uses recipes requested by the client.

Ortega says he started his business to satisfy two passions - food and art. He doesn't bake himself but contracts instead with a friend who uses his recipes. Nevertheless, his sweet line of business means he needs daily workouts at the downtown YMCA to stay in shape.

Ortega's cakes don't come cheap. The airbrushed portraits and Cabbage Patch type cakes cost $45, and the sculptures go for $1.75 to $2.75 per pound. But he insists they're not just for the rich and famous.

"The majority of people who get my cakes buy them because it's a very special occasion," he said.

Recently, Ortega made a cake for private birthday party for a 15-year-old in Waco, an 8-foot-tall motorized twirling ballerina.

And, as he says, Ortega will cater to any client whim. Recently, he made a cake for a Houston woman having a birthday party for a beloved pet, a basset hound. The cake was shaped like the dog, down to its droopy ears and eyes and apparently the guests enjoyed it a great deal.

face and catch the light. The dramatic volume is carefully texturized and shaped to literally float around the face. Swirling and waving with careful consideration to the individual woman's features and lifestyle, Tempest takes the beauty industry by storm!

LE MISTRAL is a slightly longer cut that blends a touch of nostalgia with a dash of new geometry. Vital to the allure of Le Mistral is color, and this season it can be anything from strawberry blond to sunny amber. This mid-length breath of freshness is feminine and romantic, but - at the same time - it's as modern as the 1990's!

Men's HairAmerica Designers James Turner (Burnsville, MN) and Salvatore Fodera (New York, NY) make an equally dramatic statement for Spring/Summer with:

ZEPHYR...a texturized cut that works for all the varied moods and needs of the '80's man. Zephyr provides easy-care convenience and flexibility that allows the "man on the go" every opportunity to be bold or subtle, gentle or strong, but always handsome!

Besides these three exciting contemporary looks for spring/summer '87, NCA's HairAmerica designers create, for the first time, "The Progressives"...a glimpse at looks that are just a step or two beyond "today's fashion." The men and women who will wear these incredibly handsome styles have dramatic statements to make. They get right down to the basics, matching function to style and, most importantly, look to attitude.

Nail TechniciansAmerica designer Lynn James (Rolling Meadows, IL) reaches out to the consumer with the inevitable. After oceans of lotions used to silken the hands, what should follow but the "silken nail!" A liver of silk, custom cut, then applied to the nail becomes THE contemporary nail look for Spring/Summer '87. Coats of lacquer finish off this beautiful fashion compliment with smoothness, depth of color and shine that were never before possible.

For the daring souls who look for even more dramatically progressive ways to express fashion flair right down to the tips of their nails, Nail TechniciansAmerica features alarmingly simple stencil cut designs right in the nail tip itself. Hearts...stars... diamonds...the possibilities are endless for the woman with a need to express herself in more than the traditional EstheticsAmerica's Jerry Weitzel (Chicago, IL) rides the "winds of change" and completes the total contemporary look for Spring/Summer '87 with "sirocco" - cool and hot makeup creations that fit any mood. The "cools" are full of moonlit colors. Moonwashed greys...shadowy lavendars..rosy pinks...these colors are perfect for the summer blond, the year-long blond or the woman who is simply "a blond at heart!" The "hots," on the other hand, catch every ray of the sun with reds, fuchias, tawnies and earth tones. They are truly all that is needed to make every woman "sun-kissed!"

Weitzel has created, as well, a fitting compliment to the "progressive" look. Makeup that uses colors, angles and contours to enhance lips, eyes and cheeks is the finish touch to the bold statements in hair and nails. Avant-garde? Maybe. Beautiful? Aboslutely!

Overall NCA Design Team Director for spring/summer '87 Lyal Mc-Caig says, "When men and women in America go to their professional NCA cosmetologist in search of the perfect Spring/Summer '87 look for hair, makeup or nails, they will have waiting for them variety and fashion flair like never before. The new 'American Looks' are fancy and fun, wearable and all-around WONDER-FUL! There's a look in this collection for every lifestyle and for every personality. NCA designers across America are waiting to adapt and design something special just for the client who really cares! To find an expert NCA cosmetologist, all anyone has to do is look for salons displaying the Association's logo. There are more than 50,000 NCA members across the United States, and all of them are prepared to help create every man or woman's 'American Look' for Spring/Summer

Herd varsity boys end victory drought

By GARY CHRISTENSEN

A long victory drought finally came to an end for the Hereford Whiteface varsity boys Friday when they scored a 61-41 victory over Pampa in a District 1-4A basketball game.

The win came in front of the Whitefaces' home crowd. The Herd used a full-court press often, and played a tight defense to shut down the Harvesters, particularly in the second half.

Hereford outscored Pampa 19-4 in the third quarter, after leading 30-25 at halftime. Herd Coach Mike Fields was able to play his bench in the entire fourth quarter.

The Whitefaces now have a 4-7 district record, after those seven 1-4A losses came in a row.

Hereford swept Pampa Friday night by also winning the junior varsity and sophomore boys' games. The HHS junior varsity won 61-46, and the HHS sophomores scored a 63-43 win.

The Hereford junior varsity has a 14-8 season record, and the Hereford sophomore team is 8-7.

On Tuesday night, Hereford plays at Dumas, with the junior varsity game at 6 p.m. and the varsity game at 7:30 p.m. The Hereford sophomores play at home Thursday against Borger, at 6:30 p.m.

Pampa led most of the way in the first quarter of Friday's varsity contest, including a 16-12 lead when the period ended.

But the Whitefaces began rolling in the second quarter. After Pampa had gained a 19-14 lead on a three-point play, Hereford scored six straight points for a 20-19 lead.

A field goal by Bobby Baker and four free throws by Todd Weaver were the six points that brought Hereford into the lead. Pampa tied the game up at 20-20 with 3:48 left in the first half, but the Whitefaces never allowed the Harvesters to take the lead.

Hereford went on to hold a halftime lead, 30-25. The Whitefaces then scored the first 12 points of the second half, with Pampa not scoring until there was 3:52 left in the third quarter.

Pampa could get only one shot from the field to go in the hoop in that quarter, and Hereford took a 49-29 lead into the fourth quarter. Pampa hit just six of 20 free throws in the second half, and 11 of 29 in the game.

The Whitefaces, however, in winning 61-41, hit 23 of 28 free throws.

Bobby Baker led the Whitefaces with 19 points, including nine in the third quarter. Rodney McCracken scored 10 points, eight of them in the first half, and Todd Weaver scored all eight of his points in the first half.

The rest of Hereford's scoring – 24 points – was spread out among eight different players.

Chris Johnson led Hereford in rebounding with six. Baker grabbed five rebounds, and McCracken and Brian Townsend each had four rebounds

Baker and Weaver had four steals, and Kevin Hansen had three assists.

"I'm happy for our seniors, because they've been through so many tough games. I figured it up—we lost five games this month where it was a two-point game with 10 seconds or less left in all of them," Hereford Coach Mike Fields said.

"We could have won any of them, but we did not win any of them. Our kids kept their heads up and continued to give everything they've got. I'm happy for them," Fields continues.

"We still feel good about our program, because we won all three games against Pampa tonight – varsity, junior varsity, and sophomore. It's been 10 or even 15 years since we've beaten Pampa in varsity basketball," he adds.

Fifteen Hereford junior varsity players got into the scoring column in their team's 61-46 win over Pampa. Hereford led 15-4 after one quarter of play, and 33-13 at

HHS varsity girls 'turn over' game

By GARY CHRISTENSEN Sports Editor

Three crucial turnovers in the last minute and a half of the game, coupled with a technical foul for calling a time out with no time outs left, turned an apparent Hereford victory into a 40-38 loss to Pampa in a District 1-4A girls' basketball contest Friday night in Hereford.

The HHS girls held a 38-34 lead with 1:44 left in the game. Pampa scored with 1:11 left off a Hereford turnover to cut the Whitefaces' lead to 38-36.

Hereford committed another turnover with a minute left. Pampa missed a shot with 30 seconds left, and moments later, was called for a three-second violation.

Still another turnover was committed by Hereford, but Pampa turned the ball over also. With 22 seconds left, Hereford's Susie Kalka missed in a one-and-one free throw attempt, and the score remained at 38-36.

Pampa tied up the game at 38-38 with 12 seconds left. Hereford players instinctively called for a time out, but the Whitefaces had none left.

Pampa made the technical foul shot for a 39-38 lead, and then made the first of a one-and-one with seven seconds left for a two-point lead, 40-38.

Hereford got the rebound of the missed free throw, but committed another turnover, and the clock ran out.

The HHS varsity girls are now 3-10 in district play and 8-18 overall. Hereford plays at Dumas Tuesday at

In Friday's junior varsity game, Hereford suffered a 42-31 loss to Pampa. The Hereford junior varsity team, which has a 5-12 record, plays at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The first half of the Hereford-Pampa varsity game ended with Pampa holding a one-point lead, 17-16. Hereford had a five-point lead, 14-9, midway through the second quarter.

Foul trouble at the post position hurt the Whitefaces. Carmen Brockman was called for her third foul with 1:32 left in the first half, and Katie Ramey was called for her third foul during the third quarter.

Pampa led by as many as nine points in the third quarter - 29-20 with 2:06 left, on a three-point play. The foul called at that time was the fourth on Brockman.

Two free throws by Amy Coneway, and field goals by Kalka and Ramey, late in the third quarter and early in the fourth quarter, brought the Whitefaces to within three points, 29-26

Tricia Kahlich scored a field goal and a free throw to bring Hereford within two points, 32-30. Pampa then led 34-30 before Hereford tied the game at 34-34.

A basket by Brandi Binder and free throws by Brockman enabled Hereford to tie the game. A pair of free throws by Susie Kalka gave Hereford a 36-34 lead with 3:20 left.

Another free throw by Kalka, with 2:49 left, and a free throw by Kalkich with 1:44 left, gave Hereford a 38-34 lead before the collapse took place which helped Pampa win the game.

Kalka led Hereford with 11 points, Kahlich had nine points, and Ramey scored six points. Ramey and Brockman each had seven rebounds, and Coneway had six steals and three assists.

The Hereford junior varsity fell behind 24-14 in the first half, and then trailed Pampa 32-19 after three quarters of play in the 42-31 loss to Pampa.

Renee Mercer led Hereford with 11 points, 12 rebounds, and six steals.

Susan Bell had six points, six rebounds, and four steals.

Michelle Kwilinski also scored six points. Theresa Brown had nine rebounds and five steals, and Susan Gage had seven rebounds and four steals.

NFL season finally ends after 6 months

HONOLULU (AP) - Six months and 24 games later, the NFL finally will close the book on football for

The Pro Bowl, final chapter of the campaign that began with exhibition games in July, will be played Sunday at 4 p.m. EST in Aloha Stadium.

While the league's annual all-star game may seem anticlimactic after the hype and hoopla of the Super Bowl, most of the players seem to enjoy the trip to Hawaii, the week of short workouts that affords lots of leisure time, and the game itself.

"I had no reservations at all about coming here," said linebacker Harry Carson of the Super Bowl champion New York Giants. "I've got the whole offseason to rest up.

"This has always been an honor," added Carson, who will be playing in his eighth Pro Bowl.

"I think everybody wants to play in this game," Los Angeles Raiders defensive end Howie Long said. "Some guys don't get into the playoffs, and this is like their playoffs."

"Maybe this game is a blessing in disguise," said Denver defensive end Rulon Jones, reflecting back on the Broncos' 39-20 loss to the Giants in Pasadena, Calif., last Sunday.

"You always remember your last game of the season, and if you play well in it, you finish with a positive feeling."

Denver quarterback John Elway admitte he was a little weary of football after the long grind of the exhibition and regular seasons, the playoffs and the Super Bowl.

"This is our 24th game coming up," he said. "But it's nice to be

Gibbs plotting ways to unleash Taylor

By KEN PETERS AP Sports Writer

HONOLULU (AP) - Joe Gibbs, who in the past has had to devise strategy to contain Lawrence Taylor, now is plotting ways to unleash him.

Taylor, the New York Giants linebacker, will be playing for the Gibbs-coached National Football Conference team Sunday in the Pro

"It's great. I get a chance to see Lawrence Taylor on my team," the Washington Redskins coach said. "The rules for this game limit blitzing, but I'm going to cheat - I'm going to send Taylor every time."

Gibbs said he was in awe of all the talented players on his all-star teams. Marty Schottenheimer of the Cleveland Browns, the American. Football Conference coach for the nationally televised game, was similarly impressed with the players on his squad.

The Pro Bowl coaching jobs which annually go to the coaches of the losing teams in the conference finals - will mark the second time at the all-star game for both Gibbs and Schottenheimer.

But they were assistant coaches their last trip to the game. Gibbs was on Don Corvell's San Diego staff for the 1980 Pro Bowl, and Schottenheimer was with Sam Rutigliano's Cleveland crew in 1981.

The game will give John Elway, making his first Pro Bowl appearance, another chance against the leaders of the Giants' defense.

Elway, who played well in the Denver Broncos' 39-20 Super Bowl loss to the Giants last Sunday, will be the starting quarterback for the AFC all-stars.

The NFC defense includes, in addition to Taylor, Giant linebacker Harry Carson, nose tackle Jim Burt and end Leonard Marshall.

Do Mavericks have 'elite status' in NBA?

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The most burning issue in Dallas is not whether the Cowboys of the NFL will abandon their 'Flex' defense in 1987.

Most coffee shop theory questions whether the Mavericks have finally reached elite status in the NBA.

By "elite" we mean the Boston Celtics and the Los Angeles Lakers and the Houston Rockets, clubs who have proven they belong in the June championship game.

This topic broke into a high fever after the Mavericks, who are off to their best start, flogged the Lakers by 15 points in Reunion Arena. Lakers Coach Pat Riley called the loss "embarrassing."

Considering the public whipping occurred on national television, it may have been the most impressive regular season victory in the Mavericks' history.

The Mavericks were so dominating they didn't even need Mark Aguirre, who had 35 points, in the fourth Never has a Dallas team so dominated the Lakers. The Mavs beat up on them once without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson in the lineup, so that one doesn't count.

The query before the house is were the Lakers just a tired team (it was their fifth road game in seven days) or could Dallas do the same thing to a rested Jabbar and Johnson?

The answer will come quickly on Mondaywhen Dallas visits the Forum where they should meet an inspired foe ("They just kicked our tails" - Riley) awaits.

As you recall, Dallas won two games before it lost a playoff series to the Lakers last season.

The talk is that Dallas is much improved, although witnesses to a recent five-point home loss to Washington might beg to differ. They may have celebrated their Laker slaughter a bit too long.

The facts are that at the midway point of the season the Mavericks were leading the Midwest Division and were 11 games over .500.

Guard Derek Harper has been amazing. He's averaged 16 points per game, shoots 52 per cent from the field, ranks seventh in the NBA in assists and fourth in steals. He is just one of 10 players in the NBA with more steals than turnovers. It's no wonder he recently got a 10-year con-

Seven-foot center James Donaldson has given the Midwest Division leaders respect in the lane. No longer do opponents drive down the middle for uncontested cripples.

If anything, you could get crippled trying to drive over Donaldson."If you get close to him you get bruised up," said Rolando Blackman. "He'll hit anybody around him."

He's averaging a club record 11.7 rebounds per game. Besides playing great defense, Donaldson is an adequate scorer and an excellent passer. Blackman and Mark Aguirre made the NBA All-Star team as reserves. Aguirre's attitude - which in the past has rivaled the stormy weather around the Horn of Africa - has been upbeat. His well-publicized "feud" with Coach Dick Motta has been on the back burner. Aguirre recently joined a special club in the NBA by scoring his 10,000th point.

Dallas' bench is beginning to take form with No. 1 draft pick Roy Tarpley providing ample rebound muscle and guards Detlef Schrempf and Brad Davis delivering some critical clutch plays.

The Mavericks are a tough cookie at home where they lead the NBA with an average of 16,934 fans per game. They were 16-4 at Reunion in the first half of the season.

Now comes the test of whether they can start defeating quality competiton on the road.

For example, they've never beaten the Celtics in Boston.

The question looms whether they can they beat the irritated Lakers when they are in LA.

The answer should come Monday

Henry Aaron wants to be known as complete player

By MURRAY OLDERMAN ATLANTA (NEA) — Henry Aaron is resigned to his fate. "I'm probably going to be labeled as a home-run hitter the rest of my life," he sighs.

Aaron was immortalized for hitting 755 home runs in his 23 years in major-league baseball. Henry is currently extolling the virtues of those who bat in runs.

Now comes the commercial — on behalf of Arby's, which like Henry is based in Atlanta. (Get it? RBIs.) Aaron has just presented trophies to Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and Joe Carter of Cleveland for leading the National and American Leagues last season in runs batted in.

Henry figures he was the logical man to get involved because "I am the all-time leader in runs batted in." In his career, he sent 2,297 men across home plate.

"What is more important than winning a ball game?" he argues. "And how do you win a ball game? By batting in runs.

"If I had to choose one player, I'd choose the guy who batted in a lot of runs over one who hit .350 and maybe scored 50 runs and batted in 50."

The list of RBI leaders, while reflecting Hall of Fame attainment (such as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams), also has some surprise entries. Nick Etten, Don Hurst, Deron Johnson, Larry Hisle and Al Oliver don't conjure up baseball immortality.

"Some of the greatest ballplayers," notes Henry, "don't show up on RBI lists. As great as Willie Mays was, he never led the league in RBIs."

Aaron topped the National League four times spread over a decade. Only Ruth, with six crowns, and Gehrig, with five, exceeded him.

"My role changed over the years," is work the muses. "When I first came (to the Milwaukee Braves), I was the guy who was supposed to get on base. We had (Eddie) Matthews and (Joe) Adcock. After we moved to Atlanta, I became a swinger because more of the responsibility fell on my shoulders."

That, and a ballpark with invitingly short outfield fences, led to his successful assault on Ruth's record of 714 homers, which he broke in the spring of 1974.

Still, Henry insists, "I don't consider myself today as a home-run hitter. I consider myself as being a complete ballplayer. That's what I want to be remembered as.

"I ran the bases well. I fielded very well. I just sent to Cooperstown all three of my Golden Gloves. And I won two batting titles. I never won a stolen-base title, but I had some pretty good stats.

"If I had a disappointment, I think I should have won the triple crown at least twice. I didn't ever win it."

The highest salary Aaron ever made was $240,000 in the declining years of his career. He blames the owners for the sudden glut of millionaires, but adds, "No ballplayer is worth a million dollars. I don't think anybody in this country is worth a million dollars. If there is one, he's not a ballplayer."

Aaron's current distinction is that he's the highest level black administrator in the game, as the man in charge of player development for the Atlanta Braves. He's the only

"It's been a concern of mine," he says. "I'm happy to say that at the winter baseball meetings, the commissioner expressed an interest in this area. Since this is the 40th year of Jackie Robinson coming into baseball, they should concentrate on giving minorities more power and getting them involved in the front office.

"We've demonstrated for the last 40 years we're giants on the field. And we haven't been able to demonstrate to the owners we can learn to lead. You could name a lot of black ballplayers who could make major-league managers."

But don't expect Henry Aaron to return to the dugout.

"I never wanted to manage," he says. "It would throw me back in the lions' den. After what I went through the last four or five years of my career, I wanted to get involved in other areas of baseball."

Binder Scores

Brandi Binder (42) of the Hereford High School varsity girls' basketball team scores a fastbreak layup in Friday's game against Pampa. Binder's basket gave Hereford a 16-15 lead with less than a minute left in the first half. Hereford lost to Pampa, 40-38, afte having a 38-34 lead. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Whacko!!!

Hereford's Amy Coneway (34) gets whacked by a Pampa opponent when trying for a fastbreak layup. Coneway made both of her free throws to start a Hereford rally late in the third quarter. Hereford was behind by nine points, 29-20, but battled back for a 38-34 lead in the fourth quarter before falling to Pampa 40-38. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Potassium in food may prevent strokes

BOSTON (AP) - There may be some truth to the old adage that an apple a day keeps the doctor away. according to a new study of the diets of stroke victims.

Fruits and vegetables are a good source of potassium, and the research, released today, suggests an extra serving daily may provide enough potassium to significantly reduce the odds of stroke.

The research was viewed skeptically by some experts who contend it's too soon to conclude that potassium prevents strokes. But even they agree that boosting consumption of fruits and vegetables is a healthy idea.

The researchers at the University of California, San Diego, found that people who got plenty of potassium were more likely than those with low consumption to escape strokes.

"The results indicate that one extra serving of fresh fruits or vegetables each day may decrease the risk of stroke by as much as 40 percent, regardless of other known risk factors," said Dr. Elizabeth study.

People following her advice should rearrange their diets so they don't take in more calories.

'We probably eat too much meat, so the obvious thing to have it (fruits and vegetables) replace is fatty food," she said.

The study, conducted with Dr. Kay-Tee Khaw of the University of Cambridge in England, was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

Among those who question the conclusions is Dr. Franklin Epstein of Boston's Beth Israel Hospital.

"It's conceivable to me that the people who ate less, and therefore ate less potassium, weren't feeling well," Epstein said. "Their appetites were poor. This might have predisposed those people to an increased risk of stroke."

Epstein cautioned against taking potassium pills because they might cause heart trouble in people with diabetes or kidney problems

Barrett-Connor agreed that people should get their potassium from food, because other things in fruits and vegetables may also help ward off disease.

Strokes are the nation's thirdleading cause of death after heart attacks and cancer. This year, they will kill an estimated 155,000 people in the United States.

The study was based on 859 men and women between ages 50 and 79 who lived in Rancho Bernardo, Calif. Doctors questioned them about diet and lifestyle and gave them physical exams. Twelve years later, 24 had died of stroke, and the physicians attempted to see how the stroke victims differed.

The researchers found that the stroke risk in men whose daily potassium intake was below 59 millimoles was about three times that of men with higher consumption. For women, the risk for those who took in less than 49 millimoles each day was five times that of women who ate more.

In this study, there were no strokes among men with consumption over 76 millimoles and women over 67 millimoles.

They calculated that a 10-millimole increase in daily potassium intake was associated with a 40 percent reduction in risk.

One serving of raw fruit or vegetables contains about 10 millimoles of potassium. Americans typically consume between 60 millimoles and 70 millimoles of potassium each day.

Exercise programs may help patients

The rapid decline of physical function caused by Alzheimer's disease may be slowed by the use of exercise programs adapted to the ability-level of the patient.

Family medicine Professor Berry N. Squyres of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) School of Medicine believes that exercise programs individualized to the patient's physical ability could have physical and psychological benefits.

"It is important that patients with Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia be provided with a social and physical environment that will maximize their ability to function and minimize troublesome behavior," Squyres said.

Squyres' work appears in the January issue of "Texas Medicine" which is devoted to Alzheimer's disease. This issue is only the second in the history of the state medical journal devoted to one subject.

Squyres said the sedentary lifestyle of Alzheimer's patients is a risk factor in cardiovascular disease, increased bone calcium loss and decreased oxygen utilization, cardiac output and red blood cell mass. Glucose tolerance is also decreased resulting in increased insulin requirements in patients with diabetes mellitus, he said.

The major cardiovascular benefits from any exercise program are increased oxygen utilization, improved heart function and a decreased risk of hypertension, he said.

Exercise programs also can increase the level of high density lipoprotein-cholesterol, the protein of cholesterol that reduces chances of heart disease and high blood pressure in active people.

Reduced tension and anxiety levels are also positive results of exercise programs. Squyres said studies have shown that physically active men are less depresed and more extroverted than sedentary men.

An exercise program ideally should be carried out at least three days a week, but Aquyres recommends five days a week.

"Because these exercise programs will not reach the standard for fitness given for the healthy individual, an almost daily program is recommended," he said.

The exercise routine should begin with eight to 10 minutes of stretching exercises. For some patients, this part of the program may be all that is feasible and the time may be extended, he said.

If the patient is capable, a 12-to-30minute exercise program including walking or stationary cycling should follow the warm up. Squyres said milder forms of exercises such as extending and rotating one arm or holding on to a chair and swinging one leg can also be used in this seg-

"This type of exercise has been used with a small group of geriatric mental patients who showed significant improvement in heart rate at rest and during exercise recovery, balancing ability and total daily activity level," Squyres said.

After an exercise period strenuous enough to produce an increased heart rate and respiration, significant perspiration, there should be a four-to-six minute cool down period,

"While normal exercise programs may not be possible for Alzheimer's patients, the benefits of such programs can be attained to some degree," Squyres said. "Because the caregiver should always participate with the patient in these programs, the caregiven also receives important physical and psychological ad-

With eating disorders

Tech psychologist offers help to group

For the small percentage of women - and sometimes men - for whom dieting becomes an obsession. a Texas Tech School of Medicine faculty member offers counseling to overcome eating disorders.

Dr. Joyce O'Rear, clinical psychologist at Tech's Amarillo campus, is forming a self-help group for persons with anorexia nervosa or bulimia. Dr. O'Rear said family members of persons with these disorders also are invited to attend.

"In anorexia nervosa; a simple diet progresses to the point of actual starvation," says Dr. O'Rear. "They continue to force weight loss to dangerous levels by actual starvation. The brain, as well as the body, starves when the body is underfed."

Bulimia is a "binge and purge" disorder. The patient tries to satisfy the natural hunger and cravings of the body and to manage emotional anxieties by going on a food binge. often followed by purging by vomiting, laxative abuse, or those affected by these disorders are females. "The most common age range of a typical anorectic is about 11-20," she says.

"Often family members become involved in the patients anguish," says Dr. O'Rear. "They begin to feel guilty and begin to 'walk on eggshells' to keep from upsetting the patient." She said this is why family members are invited to the sessions, as well as patients.

Former resident weds Saturday evening

Former Hereford resident, and Keep You." Deborah Dellene Hoover of Eastland, Texas, became the bride of David Ray Dunson, also of Eastland, during an evening ceremony Saturday in Daugherty Church of Christ in that city. Gary Montgomery of the church officiated.

The bride is the daughter of former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. Hoover of Plainview and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Dunson of Grandview, Texas.

The church was decorated with traditional brass arch, romantic spiral candelabra with cream white tapers and rose colored bows. The baptistery brass rail was drapped with greenery and accented with votive candelabra and aisle pews were marked by hurricane lamps tied with rose colored bows.

Sue Ann Hamlet of Phoenix, Ariz., served a maid of honor and best man was Larry Vernon of Eastland.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother, Steven Hoover, of Abilene, Doc Wheeler and Paul Duncan, both of Eastland.

The groom's 'daughter, Cassie Dunson was junior bridesmaid and junior groomsmen were the bride's son, Zachary Hoover, and the bridegroom's sons, Jacob and John David Dunson.

Candles were lit by Steve Hoover and Paul Duncan.

Members of the Haskell Church of Christ choir vocalized "Ice Castles's," "Endless Love", "Bridal Chorus", and "The Lord Bless You

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory tea-length schiffli embroidered chemise gown over satin. The gown was complimented with a lace collar and embroidered renaissance sleeves. The hemline was trimmed in deep Venise lace border.

The bride's asymmetrical fashion hat with satin crown was accented with lace border and silk flowers. She also wore the traditional sixpence in her shoe.

She carried a contemporary cascade of bridal white roses. stephanotis and enchantment lilies. Tied in the bridal bouquet was a string of pearls borrowed from the bride's mother which had belonged to the bride's maternal greatgrandmother.

The female bridal attendants were attired in tea-length rose colored tissue taffeta gowns designed with pouf elbow-length sleeves, princess tyled waistlines and flared skirts. They carried hand bouquets of enchantment lilies and the junior bridesmaid wore lilies and starburst palms in her hair.

The groom's sisters, Mrs. David Hardwick of Temple invited guests to register at the reception held in the church annex

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Steven Hoover, and Mrs. Allen Foreman served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Mrs. Larry Vernon and Mrs. Paul Duncan. Also, assisting in the houseparty was Mrs. Gary Montgomery.

The refreshment table was decorated with the three-tiered wedding cake, each layer placed on individual lilies, alstroemeria lilies, starburst palms, lepto and heather. The German chocolate cake and coffee were served from the groom's

The couple will make their home in Eastland following a wedding trip to Tamarron, Colo.

The bride, a graduate of Hereford High School, attended Abilene Christian Universeity and is employed by USDA-Farmers Home Administration in Eastland.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Cleburne High School, is selfemployed a a securities investor.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at K-Bob's Steak House. Other courtesies included a miscellaneous shower hosted by the ladies of the Eastland Church of Christ and a lingerie shower hosted by Shiela McMeans, Susan Blanks and Jana Cullers of Haskell.

COLLECTION
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles County Museum of Art says it has acquired "one of the finest private collections in the world of Pre-Columbian art from West Mexico."

Assembled by collector Proctor Stafford, the holding focuses on the fine arts aspect of ancient West Mexican ceramics. It includes 235 sculptures and vessels dating from about 150 B.C. to about A.D. 200.

The museum says the collection is "distinguished by its breadth and the outstanding, almost pristine, quality of each object, emphasizing the superb aesthetic qualities of early West Mex-

Special thanks to Garth Thomas disaster chairman for our chapter. Garth attended the Greater Amarillo Chapter's Disaster Committee meeting Wednesday evening at the Amarillo Chapter House. Our local Disaster Committee will meet Feb. 24. Tuesday, to update the disaster plan for our chapter and discussed training needed for our volunteers.

Debbie Black Davis, water safety instructor trainer for our chapter, will be meeting with Keith Scalon, Safety Services Specialist from St. Louis, Mo. to learn about changes in the water safety program. There are many changes coming up in the CPR, First Aid and water safety programs. These changes are being made to reflect new advances in procedures, teaching methods and learning efficiency. New films, video tapes, instructor manuals and student manuals will be coming out. Workshops for instructors will be made available when the material is available.

DEAR READERS: There are no words to thank you for your magnificient response to my plea on behalf of Dialogue, the splendid organization that helps the blind. They were flat broke and would have had to close their doors had it not been for your generosity.

I am thrilled to announce that Dialogue now has over $60,000 in the bank and several bags of unopened mail. Your demonstration of confidence and trust was heartwarming. Please count on me to be there for you as long as my typewriter holds out.-Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was very much interested in the letter about the man who took his handicapped wife to the ladies' room in Nashville. The women he encountered in there made it plain that they were offended by his presence. You told him he was "in the right place" even though he was made to feel that he was somehow encroaching on their property.

I know too well how that man felt because I have been in the same position. My 40-year-old husband was the vicitm of an industrial accident two years ago and is now a quadraplegic. I quit my job as vice president of a large firm and have devoted my life to keeping my wonderful husband in the mainstream of life. He is so courageous and beautiful I cry when I think of how callous and thoughtless people can be.

Every week I plan outings to museums, art galleries, trade shows, or the theater, checking out in advance the accessibility because he is wheelchair-bound. I consulted with his doctor and was told the best place to take him for "relief" was the men's room, not the ladies', so I tried

The men who were standing at the urinals were incensed when they saw me, although it was obvious that I was helping my disabled husband. I could tolerate their insults but my husband couldn't, so I decided to take him to the ladies' room.

Although there were some snide remarks, I found more understanding and compassionate women than

The sad truth is that there is so little understanding by able-bodied people of what life is like for those who are not so fortunate. Please, Ann, print my letter as a reminder.-Anonymous, Please

DEAR FRIEND: Thank you for telling your story. We all need to hear that message periodically because it is so easy to forget.

I wonder how many people who are reading this column grumbled when they had to get out of bed this morning and go to work or to school. "Wouldn't it be wonderful," you thought, "if I could just sleep for another hour!"

I hope you readers who had those thoughts will pause for a moment and think of "Anonymous" husband. What wouldn't he give to get up in the morning, jump out of bed, brush his teeth, put on his clothes and run for

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago I read a short article that was buried in the newspaper about the sexual transmission of AIDS, A doctor was quoted as saying, "When you have sex with someone, just remember that you are having sex with everyone your partner has had sex with in the last four or five years."

I am happily married to a fine man. We are both in our early 60s and have been faithful to one another throughout our marriage so there is no need for either of us to be concerned about AIDS. But I just can't get that doctor's comment out of my mind. I believe it should be passed on to as many people as possible. I know of no better way than to have it appear in your column. Thanks for your consideration. - Michigan

DEAR MICH.: I agree that the doctor's statement is a strong one and may be just what is needed to blast some sense into the heads of those idiotic bed-hoppers. Thank you for sending it on.

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent ORGANIZING WITH A MONTHLY BILL REMINDER

For most people, the only "good" bill is a paid bill. Unpaid bills can result in embarrassing second notices and may even affect your credit rating. Some people have the money to pay their bills, but simply have trouble getting the checks written and in the mail before the deadline. Others run short of money to pay all their bills, especially if one was an unexpected expense.

A monthly "bill reminder" is one way to avoid either problem. It's simply a chart with columns labeled: date received, type of bill, amount of total bill, date payment due, date paid, amount paid, new unpaid balance, and comments. As you receive each bill, fill in the information for the first four columns. The list of due dates will help you avoid late payments. When you pay the bill, fill in the remaining information and you have checklist of payments and outstanding balances that you can use to plan ahead for next month and to keep track of your spending.

You can also plan ahead for those irregular bills, such as insurance, that's due quarterly or bi-annually; income tax; vacation costs; club memberships and magazine subscriptions. Just enter these on the chart for the month in which they are due. You can also prepare for irregular expenses by taking the total cost of the anticipated bill and dividing it by twelve. Then enter in that much money as a "bill" on your bill planner each month. For example, if you have a yearly insurance bill of $480, enter $40 each month on your bill reminder and then save that money until the bill is actually due. The bill reminder can also help you save money. If you are able to make savings a "fixed" expense by entering it as a bill, you are more likely to save it. Some have called this "paying yourself first." If you only save what's "leftover" at the end of a month, you may not save anything.

A bill reminder is not an elaborate device. It can be done simply with a pencil and paper or you can do it on a home computer. Either way, it will help keep you organized and avoid unwelcome surprises at bill-paying

Men also doing feminist research

Women's studies may be new to academic curricula, but the field is producing new scholarship, research and analysis that is on the leading edge of human knowledge.

Dr. Laurie Churchill, the new coordinator of women's studies at Texas Tech University, said women are not the only scholars examining these issues. Men also are doing feminist research.

"Feminist studies challenges scholars and researchers in all disciplines to look at the assumptions and values they bring to their studies and challenges them to question those assumptions and values from the perspective of gender," she said.

Churchill has a doctorate in literature from the University of California, Santa Cruz, and teaches Latin and classics at Texas Tech.

"Gender studies may be a better label for the academic area that encompasses feminist research, theory and criticism of male-centered scholarship and dissemination of knowledge, what constitutes areas of inquiry and who participates in academic study," she said.

Women and men are studied within women's studies, which is both a feminist analysis of the human past and a determination for future equity, she said.

'Too often the issues of gender have been ignored within traditional approaches of academia because of the privileged place of males and the male view in Western culture and because of the exclusion of women from power," Churchill said.

The emerging scholarship is refreshing because of its interdisciplinary nature, she said.

"Feminist research has the potential to cross boundaries of the discrete disciplines. This crosspollination is exciting," she said.

Churchill is teaching a women's studies seminar during the spring titled, "Gende and Interpretation: The Impact of Feminism on the Academy." The seminar brings together women from phsychology. history, literature, journalism, speech communication, philosophy, political science, physical education and sport and other areas within a common frame of feminist scholar-

The emphasis of the course is on the study of gender, the cultural constructions of gender and how issues of gender have influenced traditional disciplines and traditional methodologies.

"I used the word 'feminism' in the course title because feminism indicates a political commitment and a politically motivated study. The idea is to transform the biases of patriarchal culture," she said.

Noting that several scholarly journals now are exclusively devoted to feminist scholarship and research. Churchill said women's studies is establishing the credibility needed to break the barriers of traditionalist views of education.

"Feminist research is just beginning to develop credibility. In classics, for instance, numerous articles and books are being published that focus on the social and historical realities of ancient women's lives and on ancient literary constructs of the feminine," she said.

Although the credibility of women's studies is increasing, the academic area still is perceived as marginal, she said.

"Although there has been some movement toward the center, we still have a way to go in establishing women's studies programs, for in-

"Traditionalists, in viewing women's studies as being politically motivated, often fail to see their own areas of study as politically motivated,"Churchill said.

Students at Texas Tech can earn an interdisciplinary undergraduate minor and an interdisciplinary master's degree in women's studies. The program is administered by the Women's studies Council. Goals of the program include helping students understand recent reinterpretations of women's nature and roles, training individuals for careers with a special focus on women and encouraging research dealing with the experiences of

Christian unity efforts standard

NEW YORK (AP) - Working for Christian unity has become thoroughly institutionalized, a part of the organizational machinery of virtually every major church body

But as the special week approaches, Jan. 18-25, when Christians around the world pray, as Jesus did, "that they may all be one .. . so that the world may believe," the goal is seen as still elusive and perhaps fading.

Some say the effort has sagged at a critical impasse.

"We are at an ecumenical. crossroads," says the Rev. William T. Rusch, ecumenical director for the Lutheran Church in America.

The doctrinal dialogues continue among denominational theological teams, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox, and the "convergence" agreements proliferate, but without steps implementing them. What's needed, says the veteran United Methodist ecumenist, the Rev. Albert C. Outler, is some sort of intercommunion "that could authenticate the oneness in Christ that so many feel is now so near and yet still so far."

His comments, and those of a wide variety of others, came in the January issue of Ecumenical Trends, published by Catholicism's Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, of Garrison, N.Y.

It coordinates the week of prayers for unity together with the doctrinal commission of the Protestant-Orthodox World Council of Churches.

"Reconciled to God in Christ," is the theme for the week taken from Second Corinthians 5:17-20, to be used in thousands of church services, many of them on an ecumenical basis.

The observance is sponsored in this country by units of the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, and by the U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' conference.

In the compendium of comments, Lutheran theologian Martin Marty of the University of Chicago says churches are bound to remain "rich in diversity" that won't be blended into

But he adds they must also "remain in the process of convergence, always moving toward each other and union in Christ." demonstrating their "mutual acceptance, shared ministries and witness." He says Christianity's "real divisions are within and across" and of liaison units among them. denominational lines, not so much between them.

As a step toward reconciliation, he, like Outler, says the most urgent need is for shared Holy Communion, "licit and encouraged. Now."

Most Protestant denominations allow inter-Communion, but not Roman Catholicism in ordinary circumstances, although Catholic-Lutheran and Catholic-Anglican (Episcopal) dialogue teams have reached doctrinal accords about it. The most far-reaching theological consensus, the 1982 "Baptism, Eucharist (Communion) and Ministry" document by Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox scholars, is now under consideration by worldwide Christianity.

Responses from all its major branches still were accumulating at World Council of Churches headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, with the start of 1987 set as the deadline for denominational reac-

Public invited to hear program on life in Russia

The Russians, who have toured the writers, arrangers and producers United States and performed in over who are currently backed by 30 countries, will be appearing at 10 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 8, at the First Church of the Nazarene. The event is free of charge and open to the public.

The group will tell about the life they experienced in communist Russia. These men are artists, song who are currently backed by selected top musicians.

They have been seen nationally on various television shows such as CBN's 700 Club wit Pat Robertson, Jerry Falwell's Old Time Gospel Hour, TBN, ABC, NBC and CBS and other religious and secular newcasts.

The event will feature Coulter's ar-

Spelling whiz too young to compete

HOUSTON (AP) - A 4-year-old spelling whiz's hopes of being in his school's spelling bee were dashed after school officials said he was too young to compete.

Rohan Varavadekar has been busy memorizing words and winning competitions in anticipation of his school's spelling bee. He hoped to win it and go on to the national competition in Washington, D.C.

Where is that? "Way far away. Where presidents are," he said. "It's winner of the competition Tuesday

"Last week, they (officials at the private school) told us we couldn't go to the final because he is too young for it." said his mother, Kranti Varavadekar. "I have no gripes about that, except that they let him win so much and get his hopes up."

But Betty Moore, principal of the non-denominational private school, said officials had told the parents from the beginning that because he is

But a second-grader was named a pre-kindergarten pupil, Rohan was ineligible to compete beyond the school contest.

She said he has been allowed to take part in other contests just for the experience.

Among Rohan's repertoire are words such as abbreviate, Velcro,

"That's my favorite," he said of the latter. "I don't know what it is. It's just so funny."

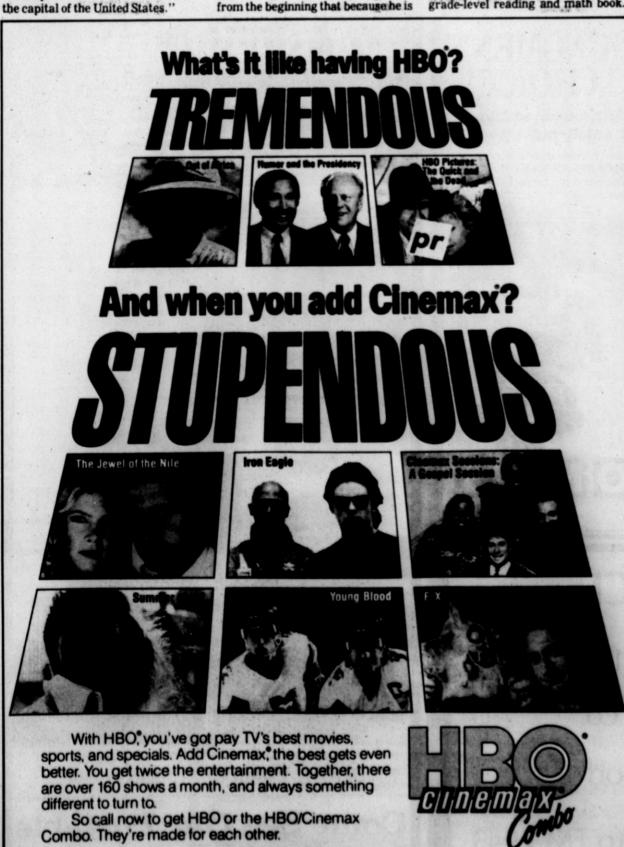

Rohan's homework is in a third grade-level reading and math book.

He learns reading, math, Spanish and music.

His parents are hoping that he will be allowed to skip kindergarten and enter first grade, but they also worry he will miss his childhood if he advances too fast.

"At school, they give him extra work," Mrs. Varavadekar says. "The school is very good. He loves his teacher, and they are aware that he is gifted."

Breast cancer will strike 1 in 10

NEW YORK (AP) - American cancer later in life, older women who women now under age 40 face a 1-in-10 chance of developing breast cancer at some point in their lives, according to American Cancer Society statistics released Thursday.

The statistics reflect an increased risk from 1980 figures that had set the odds at 1-in-11.

The change reflects longer lifespans among women, better cancer detection and possibly a modest increase in breast cancer rates, experts said.

"It certainly points up the fact that this is still a very serious disease," said Dr. Virgil Loeb Jr., the society's national president. "There's no way we can be content with our present figure."

Breast cancer is the most prevalent cancer among women, and ranks second among cancers as a killer of women, the society says.

It will strike about 130,000 women this year and kill 41,000, the society said in its new projections. Lung cancer is expected to kill 44,000

While females now younger than 40 face the 10 percent chance of breast have not developed breast cancer face lesser lifetime risks, said Herbert Seidman, the cancer society's assistant vice president for epidemiology and statistics.

With a current age of 50, the risk for the remaining lifetime falls to 8.7 percent, and with age 60, it is 7.2 percent, Seidman said.

The decline results in part from the fact that although an older woman faces a larger risk of breast cancer in any given year, she has already passed through years of risk that a younger woman has yet to face, Seidman said.

The lifetime risk calculations follow federal statistics on breast cancer and on the overall risk of death at various ages, he said. The 1-in-10 risk was calculated after breast cancer rates for 1982 and 1983 became available, he said.

The rise in that risk comes from several sources, experts said.

"I think one of the major reasons is that women are living longer, and more women are living to develop breast cancer" rather than dying of something else, said Lawrence Garfinkel, the society's vice president for epidemiology and statistics.

John Horm, statistician with the National Cancer Institute, said rates of diagnosed breast cancer had shown a modest rise of about 1 percent a year from 1975 to 1984. But it's not clear how much of that is a real increase in the disease and how much is simply better detection through screening programs, he

"If we weren't having the publicity campaigns for mammography (lowdose breast X-rays) and so forth, then I think we could say we're seeing a real increase. Given the publicity campaigns, I don't think we can say that," Horm said.

By DEBE GRAVES Feature Writer

The first good ol' fashioned melodrama to be seen on the stage of the Country Squire Dinner Theatre for many years, "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" is tickling the funny bone of Amarillo audiences.

jinks long associated with traditional melodrama in combination with vaudevillian musical numbers tell the story of a railroad coming through the farm of the Widow Fairlane, played by Steve Jones and her (?) lovely daughter, Lily, played the lovable hayseed, Willie Belch.

It only takes a few minutes for the audience to warm up to the drama and enter into the spirit of things with appropriate boo's and hisses for the villan and horrahs for the hero.

Longtime Country Rogue Regi Fowler takes the part of Noble Oakhart, a handsome hero who loves fair Lily almost as much as much as he loves his horse.

Talented Brenda Brooks returns to the Country Squire stage as the deceptive Ada Sly. Brooks last appeared in Tender Trap with Patrick Wayne. She is an advertising sales person for KZZQ radio and heads her own promotion company, Wildfire. She is credited with the casting, wardrobe and props for a recent Michael Martin Murphey video.

Hereford resident, Sheridan Chaney, makes her first Country Squire appearance as Leonie Asterbilt who, alas, is misguided in her love for the evil Craven. Since her graduation from Hereford High School last spring, Chaney has been employed by Susan's Modeling Service of Amarillo. She moved to Hereford three years ago with her mother, Sherry Chaney, and was active at HHS as president of the Drama Club and vice president of Orator's. A member of the National Honor Society and named in Who's Who, Chaney plans to attend Columbia College, in Chicago, beginning this fall. She will major in theatre and broadcast journalism.

Kira Davis joins the "Dirty Work" cast as a french maid, Baguette, and wins the heart of Willie and wolfwhistles of male members of the audience with her characterization.

With the additional performances of nine-year old Shalon Francis and pianist, E.P. Simmons, Dirty Works provides a fun evening of relaxing entertainment and an opportunity to loose cares, worries and all sophistication to join in the rivalry when good triumphs over evil.

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) -Orchids first caught Joe Kennedy's eye when he visited the 90-acre Kukenhoft Gardens south of Haarlem in Holland while he was working for Halliburton Oil Well Servicing Co.

"The garden was set aside by the queen for the bulb growers of Holland to grow bulbs or flowers for display," said Kennedy, who returned to the states to live in Iowa Park in 1984 after a 39-year career with Halliburton, 20 years of them overseas.

The Kukenhoft Gardens, which open in the spring, were ablaze with blooming "daffodils and azaleas, every type of tulip you can think of,

and I really saw a lot of orchids," Kennedy said.

Orchid lover's pride blooms over greenhouse

Kennedy raises more than 10 varieties of orchids in a glass and redwood greenhouse at the rear of his home. He also brings in orchid plants to a spacious room he added to the house. The room, like the greenhouse, has humidifiers and other equipment to control temperature and moisture.

"When the bug (for growing orchids) gets you, you can't shake it off," said Kennedy, whose hobby is shared by his wife, Charlette.

"We have orchids blooming at different times of the year," said Kennedy. "We have something blooming out here all the time."

Kennedy said he also has a few tulips as well as daffodils, hyacinths, African violets and roses. 'We spend time in the greenhouse fighting bugs and picking dead leaves. There is always something that has to be done in the greenhouse. You have got a lot of pests and diseases that can wipe out your whole orchid crop if you don't keep it under control."

Neighbors and three high school students helped him construct the prefabricated greenhouse, he said.

Now he has added a reverse osmosis machine for which he constructed a 160-gallon capacity water storage system using large plastic garbage containers. From this system he waters and mist sprays the plants in the greenhouse.

Using city water and pressure, the machine has four tube-like structures that take minerals out of the water, making the water at least 90 percent free of "contaminants." He uses cellulose acetate membrane and a charcoal filter.

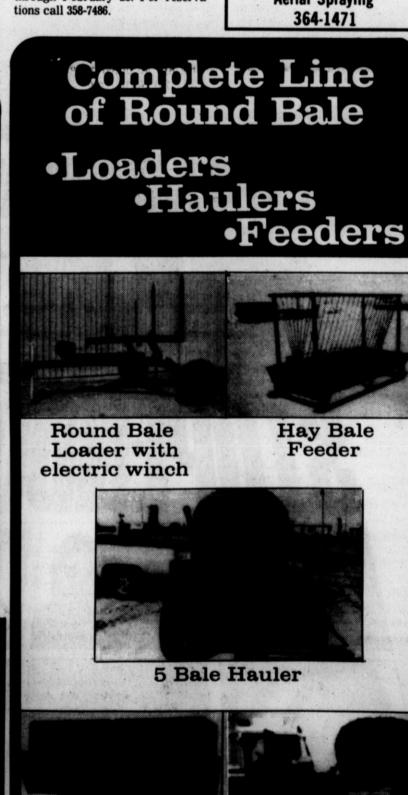

"The pure water goes into the container storage system and the contaminated water is flushed automatically into the sewer system or it can be used for watering trees," said Kennedy.

A reverse osmosis machine works very similarly to a dialysis machine

King's Manor Methodist Home, Inc. is a multi-purpose facility providing nursing care, extended or short-term nursing care, child care and various retirement home choices. It consistently receives high ratings from the state and from other entities involved in the nursing/retirement home industry. Though sponsored by the United Methodist Church, residents represent many church denominations. Westgate, the nursing center, is a part of the main building and is connected to the Manor, the retirement home, by the Administration building making it possible for residents of both areas to join together for activities and fellowship. A program of physical therapy is on-going and all residents are encouraged to participate. Currently, there are rooms available at Westgate for permanent or short term nursing care. Some of the rooms are adjacent to the rose garden containing a gazebo to be enjoyed on sunny days. Our nursing staff benefits from a good training program equipping it to give good physical care in a cheerful, compassionate manner. Both private pay and Title XIX (Medicaid) residents are accepted. Please call 364-0661 or come by the Administrative office for further information and a tour of the home. Our address is 400 Ranger Drive, Hereford Texas, 79045.

Film focuses on children of women in prison

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ann Jillian said her eyebrows shot up when her husband-manager Andy Murcia told her the newly arrived script was a prison movie for televi-

"I said, 'Oh, no, not another prison picture!" she recalled. She had been in prison in her last picture, NBC's "Killer in the Mirror."

But she said she found "Convicted: A Mother's Story" was not just another movie about women behind

"It was being made by NBC Productions and they had made (five Emmy-winner) 'An Early Frost," she said.

"The first thing that popped out of the script was that it was about priorities. Sure, it's about incarcerated women, but it's also about what priorities do we place on our children."

In "Convicted: A Mother's Story," which NBC will telecast next Monday, Jillian plays a mother who is separated from her two children when she is sent to prison. "After a year she learns her children may be put up for adoption by the state," she said. "That's what we focus on - the children. Not women in prison. The children and the psychological effect of being separated from their mother." Kiel Martin also stars as her boyfriend, who coerces her to "borrow" $10,000 from her employer with the promise that he only needs it for a few days and will return it. But he skips town with the money. Gloria Loring also stars as her sister, who reluctantly agrees to care for the children.

Jillian said that while she feels strongly that people should be punished for wrongdoing, she believes that children of women sent to prison are also being punished. The movie tells both the story of the mother's life in prison and what is happening to her children.

play a victim again. 'This was also a very emotional role, but it's about real life. I found myself furious at Kiel's character and wondering how I was going to play this submissive, naive woman. Later in the picture she runs into

Mid-season recital presented recently

Accent on Health

Both piano and organ students of Thelma McMinn presented a midseason recital recently in the sanctuary of the Temple Baptist Church.

The music presented was allseasoned; however, much of it was of the Christmas and holiday subjects. It was contemporary classical, romantic and 20th century in classification. One violin solo was rendered by Cindy Streun.

Each student performed two solos and joined in two ensembles. Ages ranged froma 5-year-old to a senior in high school.

Students participating were Kandi Sparkman, George Kearns, Cindy Alvarado, Stephanie Gonzalez, Melissa Hubbard, Yvonne Balderaz, Cindy Streun, Jessica Witkowski, Amy Liscano, Josh Liscano, Rachel Balderan, Ryan Noland, Vanessa Garcia, Velma Garcia, Amanda DelaCerda, Camila Garcia, Amy Andrews, Candice Campbell, Dusty Saul, Toni Campbell, Angela Gamboa and Rosie Zuniga.

Appropraite organ music was presented by Kandi Sparkman prior to the recital then was joined by her teacher in an organ-piano duet of "In Excelsis Deo" (Ellis) as the recital began. In the latter part of the recital, Kandi presented her senior selections on both the piano and the organ in solo and duet forms. Both she and Camila Garcia, a junior, were given a "charge" by their teacher of the value of music and its effect in the world and the importance of music study. Along with their association with their teacher and their accomplishments, each received a gift from their instructor.

Others who were recognized were participants in the junior music Festival of the National Federation of Music Clubs. They were Cindy Alvarado, Jennifer Bullard, Toni Campbell, Amanda Dela Cerda. Velma Garcia, George Kearns and Cindy Streun who received a gold certificate. Josh Liscano was recognized as having performed in the National Guild of Piano Teachers. All eight of these were presented statuettes of famous com-

At the close of the presentations, everyone present was invited to the reception in fellowship hall which was hosted by Mrs. Marvin Kearns and assisted in serving by Amelia Garcia, Lela Liscano and Grace DelaCerda.

Special recognition was given to Rosie Zuniga for the decorated cakes.

Grocery stores are in business to sell food that comes from a clean environment to protect its customers health. They are not in the sorting, handling and storage of huge numbers of empty beverage container business. They are dirty, attractors of rodents and bugs and create many problems with insurance and health inspections.

The consumer does not want to be forced to pay higher prices for beverages and carry dirty beverage containers back to the store. They can take them to a recycling center and get money for them now without tying up their cash for deposits. Urge legislators to defeat HB 210-Guerrero.

During the buiness session, the service committee announced that the chapter's donation of $115 will be given to Make-A-Wish. Also, the next meeting was set for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 5 at the Barn House.

Those present were Ruby Lee, Marge Bell, Carol Kelley, Jackie Fangman, Dona Hendrickson, Holly Bixler, Lou Ann Eubanks, Jesko, Rollins, Cathie Kerr, Dee Ann Matthews, Gay Maclaskey, Rhonda Nicklaus, Lisa Pyeatt and Janice
