Soviets reject help from U.S.

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today projected an official calm about the nuclear disaster near Chernobyl, celebrating May Day as usual and insisting radiation levels had fallen despite U.S. reports of an unabated inferno and discharge of radiation.

But about 80 British and American students who arrived in Moscow from Kiev, about 80 miles south of the Chernobyl nuclear power plant, were taken to a clinic for radiation tests that a British educator said were suggested by the Soviets.

Secretary of State George Shultz said today that the Soviets rejected the U.S. offer of help and that casualties from the accident are higher "by a good measure" than the Kremlin has acknowledged.

"They did reply that they appreciated the offer (of assistance) and they don't sense any need for it at this point," said Shultz in Bali, Indonesia, where he is accompanying President Reagan on his 13-day Far East trip.

The Soviets also turned down an offer from Sweden to accept radiation sickness patients at a Stockholm hospital, officials in Sweden said.

On Wednesday, the Soviets reported that two people had been killed and 197 injured in the accident at the Ukrainian nuclear power plant. The government statement said a reactor building had been ripped apart, but gave no cause.

Existing space gives larger emergency room

By CINDY SMITH

What is 58 by 78 feet in size and holds three bathrooms? The Deaf Smith General Hospital's new surgery recovery area and new emergency room.

J. W. Dickerson, mechanical engineer, explained that the hospital is taking existing space in the hospital and remodeling it to get more use out of the building.

"Every existing utility was underground and we excavated the hole leaving a four foot below grade crawl space," said Dickerson.

"Technically, this area will enable the doctors to work on five people at once in the emergency room area," said Dickerson.

The new area will provide three bathrooms, one for the public, one for the nursing staff, and one for patients; six recovery beds, two trauma rooms with new examining lights, and three more emergency examining areas.

Also within the area will be a private examining room for treating patients with more personal matters.

"The new area is divided into the surgery recovery area and the emergency room," Dickerson said. "We'll have a controlled area and the recovery, storage, and utility area."

Dickerson explained that anything attached to surgery has to be in a controlled area. "You have regulations, codes that have to be complied with. We have an outfit called Joint Commissions that govern your electrical and hazardous areas," he grinned.

Dickerson has laid all the plans of the new area himself. "This will be more of a clean, sterile area to be separated from the sick area," he explained.

According to the Dickerson, the emergency areas for general

It's surprising how many people still don't know that there are two elections Saturday, and you have to make a choice if you're going to vote for Democrats or Republicans.

Personally, I am unhappy with that choice. I don't know who to blame most—Kent Hance or my favorites in the county races. Either Hance shouldn't have switched parties, or some local folks should be on the GOP ballot!

I'm endorsing Hance for governor. I believe he is the strongest nominee the Republicans could field against Demo Gov. Mark White, who seems sure to win that nomination again. Besides having all the qualifications, Hance is a West Texan and he can correct the second-class treatment this region too often endures.

We also endorse Gerald McCathern as the Demo nominee for U.S. Representative, District 19. Aside from being a Hereford citizen, there is no doubt in our mind that McCathern is much more qualified for the job. His background in agriculture and oil give him the experience needed for this important post.

We'll pass on selections for the other state offices on the Demo ballot. There are too many liberals to suit our philosophy. However, we have done some research on candidates for the Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals. We have had a number of people ask us for recommendations in these races because little is known of the candidates.

For Justice, Supreme Court, Place 1, we endorse Shirley Butts. In Place 2, our pick is Robert Campbell, and for Place 4 we favor Jay Gibson. For Judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, we like Preston Dial.

Kent Hance, GOP candidate for governor, will make an election-eve appearance at the Hereford airport from noon to 12:30 p.m. Friday, it was announced today. He will be accompanied by eight to 10 state press representatives. The public is invited to attend the campaign appearance.

Three sentences given

Judge David Wesley Guley of the 222nd District Court handed down sentences Wednesday in cases involving two individuals arrested in the Jan. 22 narcotics arrests and one case on a vehicle charge.

Jose Mendoza and Natividad Guerreo each received seven years probation and a $2,000 fine.

On the other charge, Guley sentenced Miles Shewchuck to three years on probation for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Polling places listed

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday for the party primary election which includes candidates from the county level to the governor's post.

"We know a lot of our supporters want to vote in the Democratic primary because of local races. We're just asking them to sit down and think about priorities. Many of them say they will vote for Kent in November, but we've got to make sure he wins the GOP nomination first," said Mrs. Hance.

She said various towns were reporting an unusual number of Republican absentee ballots. Hance faces Clements and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler in the GOP primary Saturday. The winner of the primary will battle the Demo nominee in November. Mrs. Hance said a poll also shows that 50 percent of the Republican voters are still undecided about the governor's race. Because of some confusion she had heard in campaign appearances, Mrs. Hance pointed out that there is no such thing as a "registered" Democrat or Republican. In a primary election, a person can vote (See HANCE, Page 2A)

Cattlemen pleased with ruling to limit dairy herd slaughter

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Officials in the cattle industry were happy about a federal judge's order that the U.S. Agriculture Department must limit the slaughter of dairy cattle, but the USDA had no comment.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled Wednesday that the government must formulate regulations to limit the number of dairy cattle slaughtered to no more than 7 percent of the national dairy herd per year.

The government on April 1 began the $1.8 billion program to slaughter more than a million dairy cattle over 18 months to cut milk production. Beef producers filed suit, claiming the USDA caused a dramatic plunge in beef prices by marketing too many dairy cattle at once.

Woodward gave the Agriculture Department until June 1 to devise the regulations.

USDA spokeswoman Sally Michael said the department would not comment until officials have had a chance to study the decision.

David Hutchins, a beef commodity broker in Amarillo, said, "I'm very pleased. Ecstatic, you might say. Whatever happens from this point at worst is going to be constructive. He (Woodward) basically agreed with all the cattlemen's arguments. I think it will go a long way toward easing the public's concern about the dairy program."

A complaint of assault, disorderly conduct, and trespassing also was filed.

Police also recovered a stolen bicycle.

MHMR board to act

AUSTIN (AP) — Officials of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation say they see nothing wrong with their present policy of moving patients into community centers as fast as possible.

The board was asked Wednesday by Rep. Bob Richardson, R-Austin, and Gary Hughes, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, to stop the transfers until the full impact of such moves is known.

The board is expected to act on the request at its regular meeting Friday in Lubbock.

"I am not arguing the merits of institutional versus community care," Richardson told a news conference. "Nor am I asking to permanently halt community placements. We just need to slow down until we can get a handle on the impact of the current policy and be sure that proper preparations are made."

"TPEA calls upon the MHMR board to stop all further community placements of patients and clients until there is full evidence of the quality of the community care and until the proper planning and budgeting has been done to avoid a financial disaster to those facilities losing certain clients," Hughes said.

He predicted as many as 2,000 state employees may be laid off because of the transfers.

Congressional candidate released

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Lowell "Duke" Embs, Republican candidate for the 21st Congressional District, says he "borrowed" some items from some vehicles at a wrecker and storage facility so he could protect himself as he slept in a park.

Embs, 56, was released Wednesday from Tom Green County Jail on a personal recognizance bond, said jailer Dan Blackwell. Embs is charged with burglary of a vehicle.

In a 1982 campaign for governor, Embs, who had been involuntarily committed twice to mental hospitals and subsequently released, proclaimed he was the only candidate who had been declared legally sane.

He was arrested about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday after an employee of Home Motors reported he observed a man walking away from the wrecker and storage facility with a golf club, an ice chest and other items from a parked pickup truck, police said.

At his arraignment Wednesday morning, Embs told Justice of the Peace Ruth Nicholson he was innocent. He told a Wednesday afternoon press conference at the jail that he entered two vehicles, a wrecker and a pickup truck, parked at Home Motors and removed some things, but not with the intent to steal.

"I decided to spend the night in the park. I've spent a lot time on the streets the last four years," Embs said. "There are some real rats out there, and you have to be prepared."

"I borrowed the flashlight so I wouldn't fall into the river. I took the screwdriver because it would be a handy close-in weapon. I also took one golf club, a putter, from a golf bag in one of the vehicles to use as a weapon."

National

U.S. snoops with satellites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ability of American spy satellites to peer into other nations has been impressively demonstrated in recent days as the U.S. government released detailed information on the Soviet nuclear disaster, U.S. officials say.

"We have very, very good satellite technology," Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, and a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said Wednesday. "This has been quite a demonstration of it."

With the Soviet government providing scant information, considerable detail about what happened has come from U.S. intelligence sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

At least two types of American satellites are now orbiting over the Soviet Union, picking up information and beaming it to the United States, those sources said Wednesday.

One is a KH-11 photo reconnaissance satellite that is sending back pictures of the devastated reactor at Chernobyl. The other is a "Big Bird" satellite with infrared capability that can easily track the enormous heat generated by the still-burning nuclear fire, those sources said.

At least one of those satellites was rerouted to have it pass directly over Chernobyl after the accident occurred, the sources said.

In recent weeks, there have been a series of charges by administration officials that congressional sources with access to intelligence are leaking it to the press, and countercharges from Capitol Hill that the leaks are coming from the administration.

But in the current case, there is little criticism from Congress about the information being made public.

Members irked by ASCS decision

Members of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association are irked about the ASCS decision to exclude sugar beets from the Acreage Reduction Program and is sending letters to its members advising what specific items should be used in appeals to the ASCS.

The first local appeal to the ASCS (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service) was denied last week, according to the Hereford ASCS manager, John Fuston.

"It looks like the people in Washington are going to make the decision to disapprove the sugar beet appeals on the 50-92 contracts," he said Wednesday. Fuston said his office has another "stack" of appeals to send.

Originally, the ASCS allowed sugar beets to be planted on the set-aside land in the reserve program for payment. Later, after the beets had been planted, it reversed its decision and disallowed beets to be included in the program, thus eliminating subsidy payments on that crop.

Bill Cleavinger, president of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers, said the ASCS has agreed to grant appeals to those applicants who have properly documented the information. The association's letter emphasizes that producers indicate their intentions to participate in the 50-92 program, show changes in operation to participate in the program, verify the planting of the crop or signing of a contract between Dec. 23, 1985, and Feb. 28, 1986.

The letter also suggests showing the ASCS how the change will financially impact operations — such as showing how sugar beet herbicides may preclude planting alternate crops, and how the timing of the ruling hinders planting another acceptable crop.

"When they reversed their original ruling that had come back from ASCS, we (the association) contacted our American Sugar Beet office in Washington," Cleavinger said. The national office is working with congressmen to get relief.

"They send the rules down, and be abide by those rules according to the law as it is presented to us, then they change the rules," Cleavinger commented. "We think this is very, very poor management."

Cleavinger said it indicated that the authorities at the national level of the USDA have no idea how important timing is to farming.

Fuston estimates that producers in the Holly Sugar growing area would lose about $3 million to $4 million due to the ASCS ruling, because most had already planted the beets depending on the subsidy from the 50-92 program.

that although Soviet officials had provided some information about the disaster, the Kremlin's account was incomplete.

"We're trying to keep track of what's going on over there, but we're limited in our knowledge," Reagan told reporters.

The Soviets celebrated May Day, the officially sanctioned workers' holiday, with the traditional parades today in Moscow and other cities, including Kiev. Leading newspapers relegated a day-old government report on the disaster to their inside pages, and played up holiday news.

A British diplomat said today that Soviet tests reportedly indicate the British and half-dozen American students were not exposed to harmful levels of radiation. The students were tested at a Moscow hospital by Soviet doctors.

The diplomat said the embassy in Moscow was told the tests indicated none of the students were exposed to harmful levels of radiation. The diplomat spoke on condition of anonymity.

None of the students would talk in detail about the situation in Kiev, saying they were exhausted by an overnight train ride, but some said the situation in the Ukrainian capital was calm and that there was no hint of a nuclear accident.

Soviet authorities and the state-run media have given few details of the accident, the condition of those injured or details on the nuclear contamination caused by the cloud that has stretched 1,000 miles across parts of the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and Scandinavia.

A report on Wednesday evening's television news said there had been no "gigantic destruction or fire" at the four-reactor complex, and specifically denied reports that thousands had died in the accident.

Wednesday's government statement said 49 of the 197 injured had been discharged from hospitals after medical examinations, and that the air quality in the region of Kiev, the Soviet Union's third-largest city, "evokes no concern."

The government said the quality of drinking water meets Soviet standards, that work was continuing to "eliminate the consequences of the accident," and that farms and factories were functioning normally.

Neither state-run television nor the government has said whether there had been an explosion at Chernobyl, as had been reported by U.S. sources in Washington.

The government statement said the damaged reactor was safely shut down and that "the emanation of radioactive substances decreased." There was no allusion to reports by the U.S. sources that a second reactor may have suffered a meltdown or may be threatened by one.

The U.S. sources, who spoke Wednesday on condition they not be identified, said a fire at the first reactor was still venting smoke, vapors and radiation into the air over the Ukraine.

The Soviets' tight-lipped handling of the disaster drew angry attacks from Western European countries confronted by drifting radioactivity, and measures continued to counter any health or safety risks.

Sweden warned against drinking contaminated rainwater, and children lined up at health centers in Poland for medication against possible radiation poison.

cases, will be eight feet tall and the two trauma rooms will be 9-foot, 6-inches. The trauma rooms will be used for emergency ambulance cases and some severe walk-ins.

Dickerson explained that they had to put in new girders and beams to raise the roof approximately 14 feet in the clear. "There are three different ceiling levels in Deaf Smith General Hospital," he commented.

When completed, the new area will provide an emergency waiting area complete with a nurses station and office personnel on duty at all times. The emergency waiting area will be furnished with tables and chairs for the families of the patients.

Dickerson said electrical outlets, the utilities, and the clean and dirty soil and linen rooms will also be located in this area.

"We've got it all sheetrocked now. We're waiting on oxygen outlets now and when that's done we'll get the painters in and we'll float the sheetrock to put the ceiling," Dickerson said in shop talk.

Dickerson speculates that the area will be complete in 30 working days.

"We've got the heating, air conditioning, and duct system in, and after putting in the ceiling, a nurses call system will be installed," he said.

He explained that there are only four full-time workers in his department. To him the best part of the remodeling is that they're doing all the work themselves. "We couldn't afford the new area if we didn't," said Dickerson.

"Technical men come in and help us and we provide our own labor. This goes into our saving on the full price of the rebuilding," explained Dickerson.

The expansion will cost about $100,000 and will come from operating funds.

Since Dickerson has been in the technical and construction work for years, his experience has come in handy when it came to remodeling the area.

"We'll buy bulk supplies from retailers and save and then they come in with the technical help. Copper pipe that we have to hook up vacuum and oxygen lines comes to about 800 feet of pipe," said Dickerson.

"We were able to buy from a contractor and saved a half or more of the total price and we installed it ourselves," he said.

"This is the reason we are able to do this because we can afford it by doing it ourselves," he smiled.

CATTLE

Cattleman's Association in Lubbock, said the ruling will help the industry immediately.

Birdwell said futures prices per hundredweight for beef for delivery in May, June and July rose $1.50 Tuesday and Wednesday. Futures prices can rise a maximum of $1.50 a day, he said.

"I think (the rise in futures prices) was anticipating the favorable ruling by Judge Woodward," Birdwell said.

Charles E. Ball, Executive Vice President of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association in Amarillo, said he is happy with the decision because Woodward "is saying there will be orderly marketing for the five-month period. He's telling the USDA to come up with regulations to accomplish these things."

He said details of Woodward's order were to be clarified Thursday in a memorandum judgment.

"What we had asked for was simply orderly marketing of the cattle."

Five Texas cattlemen, a Montana producer and three beef industry groups filed suit April 8 claiming that the program brought a $25 million loss in the value of beef cattle sold during the first week.

When testimony was presented last week, Woodward allowed more than 30 other cattle associations nationwide to join the suit.

The cattlemen alleged that the 1985 farm bill's plan caused a "catastrophe" in the cash and futures beef markets.

Though USDA officials claimed that they were merely administering a program set forth by Congress, Woodward said that the Agriculture Department had exceeded the powers given it by the 1985 farm bill and had been acting "in violation of the mandate from the Congress."

The program called for 1.55 million dairy animals to be slaughtered or exported during the 18 months beginning April 1, Ball said.

New Addition

Mechanical engineer J.W. Dickerson looks over the electrical panel that will service lighting, nurses call, x-ray equipment, plug-in electrical outlets, and as he said "everything" for the new addition at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

She's a woman of many voices

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Will the real Donna Jones please stand up?

Ms. Jones wears half a dozen faces. She is Tacky Lizzie, country singer Fannie Mae, Wonder Woman, a cabaret singer, a clown, a drill sergeant, a valentine, Mae West or you name it. With a change of wig and costume she adopts the mannerisms and voice to fit the character.

It's all part of her job as founder, owner and lone performer of Make My Day Singing Telegram Services.

Ms. Jones has a costume and presentation for every occasion — birthdays, anniversaries, hospital stays, going away, congratulations, officer installations, fish-o-grams for fishermen and even I-love-you's. She also does a longer program for banquets and does employee roasts.

The material and song of each character is from her own creative mind. "When someone calls me, they choose the character for the occasion. I find out something personal about the honoree and incorporate that information into the song I write to sing for that person. The songs always include humor and are in good taste, never risqué.

"Sometimes the person receiving the telegram will be a little embarrassed, but it's because he or she is the center of attention and not because of what I do or say," Ms. Jones says. "I try to include the people present in my presentations. You have to stay pumped up all the time, but it's a real high to make everyone happy."

Ms. Jones works alone most of the time, but has hired an assistant on some occasions. Her mother, Lurania Blackburn, makes her costumes.

Make My Day Singing Telegram Services was born of need.

Ms. Jones was a sales representative for Xerox, working on commission. "I wasn't going to get paid for three months after a machine was sold. I was divorced and had three sons, Josh, Travis and Zach, to feed. I've always had a sense of humor and had sung and had acted some, so I came up with this idea. I got the nerve to actually do it after I played the lead role in 'Little Mary Sunshine' for the Paris Community Theater. When I finished that show I figured I could do anything," she said.

She formed her singing telegram service in January 1985. She made a deal with a Paris florist to put a marquee advertising her services in front of the business. In exchange she buys balloons used in her acts from the florist. The most telegrams she has sung in a week is 23 and the most in one day is 19.

But Ms. Jones doesn't depend on the telegrams to feed her sons. She is a sales representative for Office Equipment Co. and recently took a third job as a rock and roll singer with Excaliber.

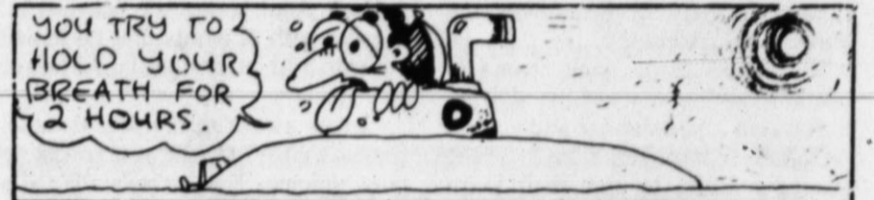

"Between the three jobs, I don't have any social life," she says, "but I have fun and I enjoy my work. It's rewarding to celebrate the birthday or a special occasion in someone's life."

Bell gets volunteer award

For their various education and community service programs throughout Texas, the employees of Southwestern Bell Telephone have received the Governor's Corporate Award for Outstanding Volunteer Service.

Texas First Lady Linda Gale White presented the award to Jim Adams, president-Texas Division of Southwestern Bell Telephone, at an awards luncheon (April 8) in Austin.

The 1986 Blue Ribbon Selection Committee cited exemplary youth programs and the dedicated volunteer efforts of more than 5,000 Southwestern Bell Telephone employees who donate many hours to such programs as Adopt-A-School, Communities in Schools and Junior Achievement.

"This award is a tribute to our employees and their unselfish efforts to serve others," Adams said. "It demonstrates the pride they have in their communities and their commitment to the future of Texas."

Adams said Southwestern Bell Telephone employees also volunteer time or make financial contributions to other community programs such as Special Olympics, United Way, Crime Watch, Easter Seals telethons, American Heart Association, the March of Dimes, Muscular Dystrophy Association and Cerebral Palsy—to name a few.

An example of financial contributions includes more than $3.1 million donated to United Way organizations statewide by Southwestern Bell Telephone employees in 1985.

Lakers earn 2-0 lead over Mavericks

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas-Los Angeles playoff series has heated up, said Lakers' Coach Pat Riley, and that's the way he wants it.

"I like it this way. I like it intense," Riley said following the Lakers' 117-113 victory over the Mavericks on Wednesday night.

"Now I want us to split in Dallas." Defending NBA champion Los Angeles breezed through the opening round of the playoffs, trouncing San Antonio in three games. The Lakers then opened the Western Conference best-of-seven semifinals with a front-running, 130-116 decision over the Mavericks last Sunday.

But Dallas came back strong in Game 2, leading most of the way until Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin "Magic" Johnson took over in the waning minutes to give their team the victory and a 2-0 lead in the series.

"Nobody yawned through that one," Riley said. "It was an uphill battle for us all the way. This is what the playoffs are all about. This was a great game."

"Dallas has to be very confident going home because of the way they played in this one."

The third and fourth games of the series are scheduled Friday night and Sunday in Dallas.

Tonight, the Philadelphia 76ers are at Milwaukee, where they beat the Bucks in Game 1 on Tuesday night.

Friday, Boston visits Atlanta, with the Celtics leading 2-0, and Houston is at Denver, with the Rockets ahead 2-0.

"It was good for us to play a tough game because that's going to be the nature of things the farther we go," said Abdul-Jabbar, who scored eight points in the final 4½ minutes, 12 in the final quarter, and 26 in the game. "Give Dallas credit. They played very well, and they'll come out and play us tough again next time."

"It was anybody's game down the stretch, but I think our experience and poise took over and won the game," said Johnson, who had 10 points in the closing period and 21 for the evening.

"I think having a close game like this will help us. What we have to do is come out early and play aggressive like we did in Game 1."

The Lakers' victory overshadowed a fine outing by Derek Harper of Dallas, who had 19 points, 16 assists and seven steals.

"Losing hurts, but now we realize we can play with these guys," Harper said. "I really think we have the advantage going back to Dallas."

"If we can put a couple of games like this together at home, we'll have a good chance of evening things up."

Mark Aguirre led the Mavericks' scoring with 28 points, but he fouled out with 5:33 left and the game tied at 102.

"I was aware of my foul trouble, but in that situation, you've got to play defense," Aguirre said. "It's tough to deal with, but you've got to survive and come back stronger."

The Lakers, who had trailed since midway in the second quarter, tied the contest at 100-all with 6:11 remaining.

The clubs then traded baskets until the Lakers made it 114-110 with 1:31 left on a hook by Abdul-Jabbar and a pair of free throws by Johnson.

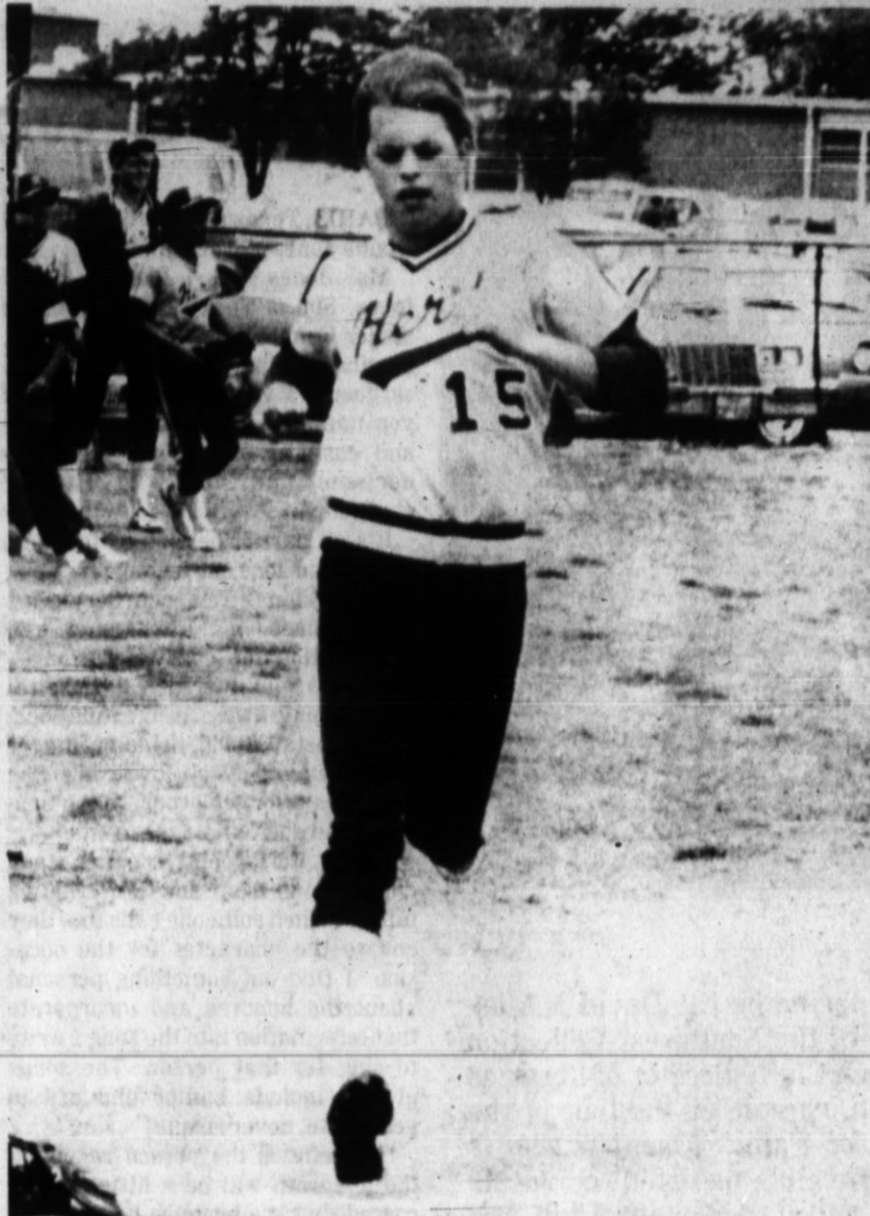

Another Abdul-Jabbar hook and a free throw by James Worthy in the final minute gave the Lakers a four-point advantage.

"I didn't think they were flat, I thought we played well," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "Los Angeles has one of the great finishers in the league, and he came through."

"The turning point was when Kareem's hook was blocked with the shot clock running down and he got his own rebound and made the hook (making it 108-108)."

"That guy has done that to me so many times in my (coaching) career."

One-time heavyweight champion Jess Willard was 6-6 and weighed 250 pounds. He was nicknamed the "Pot-tawatomie Giant."

Webster Scores

Philip Webster of the Hereford Whitefaces scored a third-inning run in last Saturday's 17-5 victory over the Tascosa Rebels. Webster reached the base paths in that inning with a pop fly single into centerfield. Earlier in the game, Webster hit an RBI single in the first inning, and advanced all the way around for a run on a fielding error by Tascosa's centerfielder. Herd suffers 5-1 loss to Coronado

The Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team had a tough outing Wednesday against Lubbock Coronado pitcher Tyler Wilt, who limited Hereford to four hits in leading Coronado over the Herd, 5-1, in a District 3-5A game played in Lubbock.

Hereford had just eight baserunners altogether in the contest. The Whitefaces' loss dropped them to 7-7 in the district, mathematically eliminating them from what was a slim playoff hope.

Overall, Hereford is 14-9-1 on the season. The Whitefaces play district leader Lubbock Monterey on Friday in Lubbock at 5:30 p.m., and end the season in a home game against Palo Duro at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Hereford scored its lone run Wednesday in the fourth inning. Curtis Cotten walked, Phillip Webster singled, and Doug Watts drove home Cotten with a single.

The only other hits for Hereford off Coronado pitcher Wilt were both by Kyle Streun. Streun hit a single in the second inning and stroked a triple in the sixth inning.

Wilt struck out 11 Hereford batters and walked three.

Coronado scored three runs in the first inning. Hereford committed three errors in the inning, and Coronado had two singles.

An error, sacrifice and RBI single in the second inning gave Coronado a 4-1 lead. Coronado's other run was scored in the fourth inning when three singles were hit.

Coronado had nine hits in the game, and the Whiteface defense committed four errors.

The Hereford pitchers were Donny Rieves for four innings and Bobby Medina for the last two innings. They walked just two batters, but recorded only one strikeout between them.

Smith-Kerfeld is successful relief act

By The Associated Press

Dave Smith and his setup man, Charles Kerfeld, are a big reason the first place Houston Astros are off to such a good start this season.

The Smith-Kerfeld relief act was a big success again last night in preserving a 1-0 victory for the Astros over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Houston led, 1-0 in the seventh inning behind the pitching of winner Mike Scott (3-2) when the Phillies stirred. Greg Gross started the inning with his 96th career pinchhit. Milt Thompson popped up trying to sacrifice bunt, and Rick Schu then doubled Gross to third. That was all for Scott.

Kerfeld, who Tuesday night had a string of 29 2-3 scoreless innings stopped, started off by intentionally walked hot hitting Mike Schmidt.

Then he worked a 3-2 count on slumping Glenn Wilson.

"The 2-2 pitch was borderline," Kerfeld said. "On the 3-2 pitch, it's beat me or I beat you. And he popped up."

Kerfeld pitched the eighth and turned the job over to Smith in the ninth.

Smith had to sweat a little before he posted his seventh save in seven appearances this year.

"The ultimate sin for a reliever is to walk the first batter in the ninth inning," said Smith.

"I not only walked the first batter in the ninth, but leading only 1-0."

Smith walked fleet Milt Thompson, who reached second on a sacrifice bunt by Schu. Then Von Hayes lashed a line drive right at Astros' second baseman Bill Doran.

Doran turned and, seeing Thompson break for third, he threw to shortstop Craig Reynolds to double the runner.

Smith said of the unthinkable walk: "It's tough after not pitching for seven days."

Phillies' Manager John Felske wasn't too happy with Thompson, his rookie center fielder, who made a mistake leaving second.

"Thompson has to freeze himself on that play. He has to make sure the ball gets through," said Felske.

Smith continued his winning way of the last two seasons. He has saved 15 straight games and 34 of the last 38. This latest save tied him with Fred Gladding for the Houston career save record.

Kerfeld, who had been a starter until relegated to the bullpen this year, said he likes his new job.

"I love it. It's exciting. The game is on the line when I get in. It's kill or be killed."

"When the money is on the line that's when a guy proves if he can or he can't."

Houston manager Hal Lanier said Kerfeld throws hard, has a good breaking ball, and is a perfect set-up man for Smith.

"Charles gets them out until the ninth and we get to Dave."

Lefthander Kevin Gross pitched well for the Phillies, allowing only five hits in seven innings, but he was saddled with his third loss in four decisions when one of those hits was Davis' home run.

The Phillies left 12 runners on base, including the bases loaded in the third, two on in the fifth and the sacks full again in the eighth.

In other National League games, San Diego shut out St. Louis 5-0, New York downed Atlanta 8-1, Montreal beat Cincinnati 8-0, San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 6-5 in 12 innings, and Los Angeles defeated Chicago 4-0.

Padres 5, Cardinals 0

Maybe next time, Mark Thurmond should get his wife to rub a rabbit's foot.

"This afternoon, I told my wife if she rubbed my feet, I'd throw a no-hitter. And she did," Thurmond said Wednesday night after he almost upheld his part of the bargain, pitching a one-hitter against St. Louis as the San Diego Padres beat the Cardinals 5-0.

Thurmond took a perfect game into the seventh inning before Willie McGee's one-out blooper fell in shallow center field for a single. Thurmond allowed only one other baserunner, a two-out walk in the ninth inning to Vince Coleman, and struck out three.

No Padres pitcher has ever thrown a no-hitter, and Thurmond's one-hitter was the 10th in team history.

The loss was the ninth in the last 10 games for the Cardinals.

Mets 8, Braves 1

Darryl Strawberry went 5-for-5, including a two-run homer, and Gary Carter hit the 250th home run of his career, sparking New York to its 11th straight victory. The Mets' winning streak ties a team record.

Dwight Gooden, 4-0, pitched six-hit ball for eight innings. The only run he gave up was pinch-homer to Dale

Murphy in the fifth. Giants 6, Pirates 5

Chris Brown tied the game with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning and then won it in the 12th with a two-out, bases-loaded single. The victory gave San Francisco a 13-8 record, its first winning April since 1973.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 0

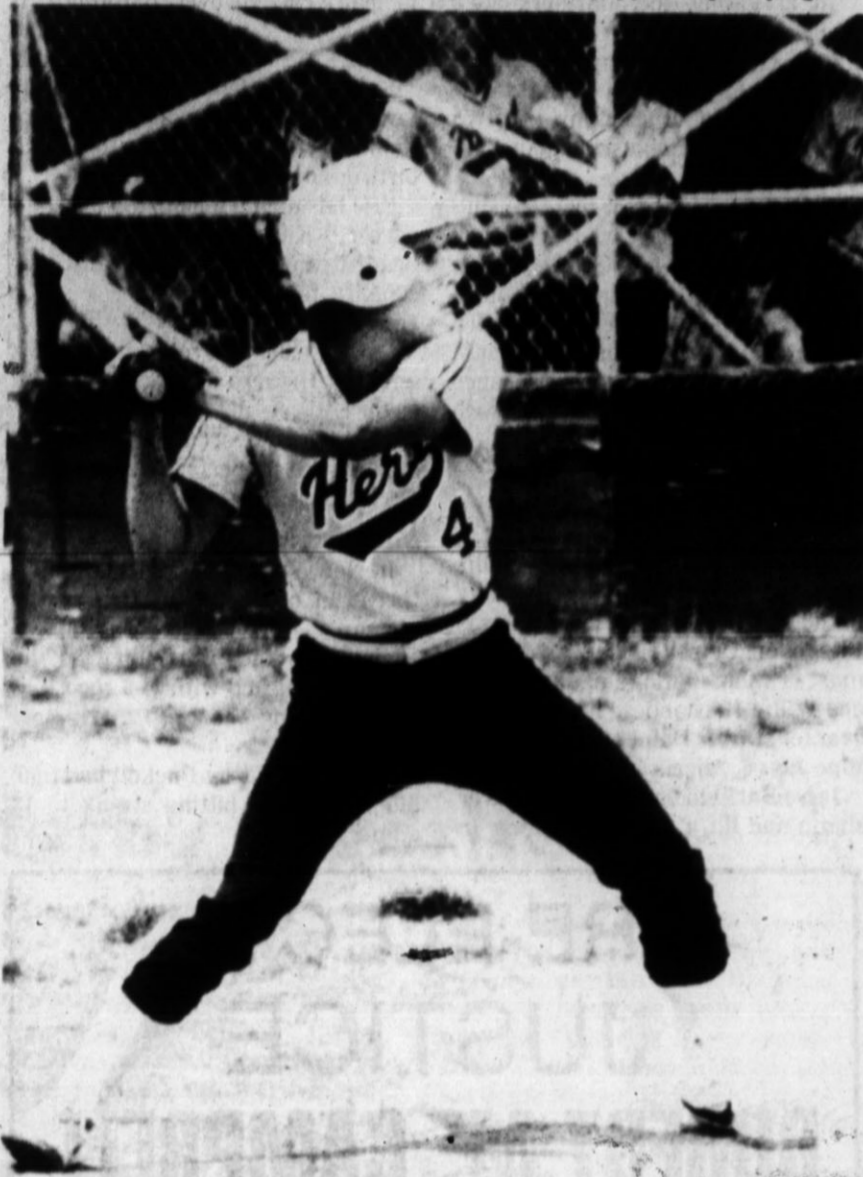

Bob Welch scattered six hits, and Mike Marshall, Franklin Stubbs and Steve Sax hit home runs that paced host Los Angeles to its fourth straight victory.

Welch, 3-1, struck out six and walked one in his second shutout of the season.

Expos 8, Reds 0

Jay Tibbs shut out his former teammates with a four-hitter and Hubie Brooks drove home four runs to lead Montreal past Cincinnati.

Tibbs, 3-0, struck out eight and walked three in sending the host Reds to their fifth straight loss. The Expos acquired Tibbs in an off-season trade with Cincinnati.

Herrera At Bat

Keith Herrera, second baseman for the Hereford Whitefaces, is shown at bat during the second inning of last Saturday's District 3-5A game in Hereford. Herrera walked this time at bat, and hit a two-run triple in the third inning of the Herd's 17-5 win over Tascosa. The Whitefaces play at Lubbock Monterey Friday at 5:30 p.m., and play their season finale Saturday at 1 p.m. at home against Palo Duro. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

In rain-delayed game with bench-clearing incident

Indians get past Rangers, 6-4

By The Associated Press
In a game that had a little bit of everything, it was only natural that it should also have controversy.

It took more than five hours to play the game featuring nine pitchers, seven doubles, a two-hour rain delay, two hit-batsmen, a brief bench-clearing incident, and saw two Texas Rangers ejected.

When it was all over early today, the Cleveland Indians had defeated the Rangers, 6-4, for their fourth straight victory.

It was the hit-batsmen that had Cleveland manager Pat Corrales upset.

In the seventh inning with the Rangers trailing by two runs and Pete O'Brien on first, Pete Incaviglia was hit on the hand by pitcher Jim Kern. Incaviglia had been brushed back earlier in the game, and after being hit, Incaviglia threw his batting helmet at the pitcher and both benches emptied. But order was quickly restored.

Incaviglia was lifted from the game because of the hand injury, but X-rays after the game were negative.

In the ninth inning Rangers' pitcher Mickey Mahler hit Tony Bernazard with a pitch, prompting a warning from home-plate umpire Nick Bremigan.

"We weren't throwing at them," an angry Corrales said. "I wasn't going to put the tying run on base. But I think they were throwing at us."

"When they hit Bernazard, I said 'Don't go out there and fight, just win,'" Corrales said.

Rangers pitcher Dave Rozema was thrown out of the game in the top of the seventh inning for arguing with Bremigan. Manager Bobby Valentine came out to defend Rozema, but was also tossed.

"I stayed out there for five minutes trying to find out why (Rozema was thrown out)," Valentine said. "But he never gave me a reason why, but he doesn't have to."

In the end all Corrales could do was take a deep sigh of relief.

Don Schulze, 2-0, struck out four in relief to pick up the win. Starter Jose Guzman, 1-4, took the loss.

The Indians opened the scoring in the top of the third inning when with one out, Bernazard singled to left and Chris Bando followed with a double to center, scoring Bernazard.

Texas took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of third. Curtis Wilkerson opened the inning with a line drive to left field that caromed off Mel Hall's glove into the left-field corner for a three-base error. Oddibe McDowell followed with a double to center, scoring Wilkerson. McDowell scored when the next batter, Toby Harrah, singled to right.

The Indians came right back in the fourth to score two runs and take the lead. With one out, Brook Jacoby doubled down the right-field line and Tabler followed with his home run over the left-field wall, his second of the year.

Cleveland added a run in the rain-delayed fifth-inning to take a 4-2 lead. Bret Butler led off with double, and after the rain delay, Franco beat out a ground ball to second, moving Butler to third. Butler then scored on Joe Carter's double play.

The Indians final two runs came in the seventh when Franco doubled home Chris Bando and Butler.

The Rangers rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh, with Pete O'Brien doubling home Wilkerson and McDowell, both of whom had singled.

Cleveland starting pitcher Tom Candiotti lasted only 2-3 of an inning after injuring his right thumb trying to bare-hand McDowell's ground ball up the middle. Candiotti tried to pitch to three more batters but gave up a walk and a single before being relieved by Schulze.

Elsewhere in the American League it was, Boston 9, Seattle 4; New York 3, Minnesota 2; Toronto 6, California 4; Kansas City 7, Detroit 3; Milwaukee 5, Oakland 1; and Chicago 8, Baltimore 6.

Red Sox 9, Mariners 4
The Seattle Mariners are having trouble finding some things ... such as victories and the baseball.

The Mariners dropped a 9-4 decision to the Boston Red Sox on Wednesday night for their fifth consecutive defeat. They are last in the American League West at 7-14 after a 5-3 start.

On Wednesday, the Mariners struck out 16 times against three Boston pitchers a night after Roger Clemens fanned a major-league record 20 batters. The 36 strikeouts broke the two-game total of 32 Seattle had set Tuesday night.

In 21 games the Mariners have whiffed 202 times, or 9.6 times a game. Over a 162-game season the total would be 1,555. The major-league record was set by the 1968 New York Mets who struck out 1,203 times.

The chief contributor has been outfielder Phil Bradley, who has struck out 22 times in his last 48 at-bats.

Ed Romero's two-run, bases-loaded double broke a tie as Boston rallied for five runs in the seventh. The Red Sox added two insurance runs in the eighth. They finished with 13 hits, including three by Jim Rice, and 10 walks.

Royals 7, Tigers 3

Argenis Salazar doubled home the tying run and scored on Willie Wilson's single to key a five-run rally in the ninth inning that lifted Kansas City over Detroit. The Royals did most of their damage against relief ace Willie Hernandez, 1-1, who took over for starter Dan Petry.

Blue Jays 6, Angels 4
Jesse Barfield broke out of a power slump and hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning to lead Toronto over California.

Barfield was given a shot of cortisone earlier this week to help ease pain in his left wrist.

White Sox 8, Orioles 6

In Chicago, Ron Kittle's two-run homer capped a six-run third inning to lead Chicago over Baltimore. It was Kittle's 100th major-league homer.

Kittle dedicated the homer to his father. "He deserves the 100th more than I do and it has nothing to do with birth or anything," Kittle said.

"He has meant a lot to my baseball career," Kittle said. "He keeps my as the Brewers defeated Oakland."

Milwaukee overcame a four-hit, eight-strikeout performance by A's pitcher Jose Rijo.

Yankees 3, Twins 2

In New York, Don Mattingly hit a three-run homer — his first of the season — off Minnesota's Bert Blyleven in the fifth inning as the Yankees finished with 14-6 record in April, erasing the 13-10 mark they posted in 1974.

The Twins' Kirby Puckett had four hits to run his hitting streak to 13 games.

Headed For Home Plate

Rodney McCracken takes off from third base when teammate Keith Herrera hit what turned out to be a two-run triple for the Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team Saturday against Tascosa. McCracken was in the game at that time as a pinchrunner for Herd catcher Doug Watts. Later in the game, McCracken singled in the fourth inning and scored when Curtis Cotten hit a three-run homer. Hereford walloped Tascosa 17-5. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Event is nearly as sure as proverbial death and taxes

112th Kentucky Derby is Saturday

By Murray Olderman

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (NEA) — The 112th consecutive running of the hallowed Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs will be held on May 3.

That is nearly as sure as the proverbial death and taxes.

Through hail and storm, through war and devastation, come the first Saturday in May, the "Run for the Roses" is held.

Leading up to this year's Kentucky Derby — and continuing, perhaps, through the May 17 Preakness and the June 7 Belmont Stakes — the names of Snow Chief and Badger Land are being heard. They are among the 3-year-olds trying — like, most recently, Secretariat (1973), Seattle Slew (1977) and Affirmed (1978) — to use the Kentucky Derby as the first jewel in their Triple Crown.

Snow Chief is the latest wonder horse out of California, winner of the Florida Derby (in which Badger Land finished second) and the Santa Anita Derby. Badger Land retrieved esteem by winning the Flamingo.

Other Kentucky Derby possibilities this time: Broad Brush, winner of the Wood Memorial, and fast-finishing Mogambo, winner of the Gotham.

Whoever wins, the Derby itself is as fixed on the calendar as the IRS deadline. That is, with one exception: In 1945, the U.S. government banned horse racing for the remainder of World War II, but the ordinance was soon lifted after V-E Day — and the Derby was run on June 9.

Actually, the very first Kentucky Derby was held on a Monday in May 1875, because that was the day that Churchill Downs opened (the winner, Aristides).

Among the 10,000 in attendance was a 13-year-old kid, Matt Winn, who saw the race from the infield atop the flatbed of his father's horse-drawn wagon. Matt never missed a Derby again until he died in 1949 at the age of 88.

Part of a group that bought the track in 1902 for $40,000, Winn became president of Churchill Downs in 1938. He built the Kentucky Derby into one of those "must-see" events of a lifetime, like the World Series, the Super Bowl and the Indianapolis 500.

The largest attendance for a Kentucky Derby was 163,628 in 1974, the centennial running of the race, and 23 horses (including winner Cannonade) stampeded out of the dual starting gates.

In the Derby, thoroughbred owners quest for the most coveted trophy in their sport — an 18-carat gold cup now worth $45,000 — not to mention the $600,000-plus (depending on the size of the field) for finishing first.

Yet there are some who shy away from saddling up their expensive horseflesh for the Kentucky Derby. They claim that 3 is too young an age for a tender thoroughbred to be jostled for 1 1/4 miles under the most trying conditions.

The ages of race horses are reckoned from Jan. 1, when all thoroughbreds born anytime during preceding year are counted as 1 year old. The traditional breeding time calls for them to be born in the early spring. However, some have been foaled as late as July. So there have been horses in the Derby who had not actually reached their third birthday, chronologically.

The Kentucky Derby evokes some of the mistiest sentiment in sport, starting with the 80,000 mint juleps (using 8,000 quarts of Kentucky bourbon) that are poured from daybreak. Throats get lumpy and eyes get wet when the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" blare through the loudspeakers and over the twin spires which are symbolic of Churchill Downs.

Everybody is standing — only 45,500 are privileged to sit down at anytime the rest of the day because that is the number of total seats in the place.

Last year, when gate prices were doubled — to $20 for infield positions, $30 for clubhouse gardens and $5,500 for a 16-seat table on Millionaires Row — attendance dropped to 108,000.

The pari-mutuel handle set a record of more than $12 million for the day, with $5,770,000 wagered on the Derby. Because it is also simulcast to 45 other tracks around the country, a practice begun in 1984, the total Derby handle reached $20 million.

By precedent, the sun is likely to shine on the field, too.

Since 1970, it has rained only once on Kentucky Derby day. It happened when inaptnly named Sunny's Halo sloshed through the goo to win in 1983.

'Snow Chief' is derby favorite

By DICK JOYCE

AP Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — California-bred horses have had little success in the Kentucky Derby, but trainer Mel Stute already has visions of winning a Triple Crown with Snow Chief.

Snow Chief, currently on a five-race winning streak and with earnings of $1.7 million, is expected to be the solid favorite over as many as 16 rivals for Saturday's 112th running of the Derby. He has won all four starts this year, including the Florida Derby and Santa Anita Derby.

Stute, 58, is confident his colt will win the Derby against this crop of 3-year-olds, and went to baseball history for a comparison.

"All the DiMaggios played ball," Stute said of one of baseball's greatest brother combinations, "but there was only one Joe."

Entries were being taken today at Churchill Downs for the 1 1/4-mile, first leg of the Triple Crown, which also includes the Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Everglades and Flamingo winner Badger Land, who was second to Snow Chief in their two meetings this year, figures to be the main challenger.

Other leading contenders are expected to be Broad Brush and Mogambo, who ran 1-2 in the Wood Memorial; Arkansas Derby winner Rampage, California Derby winner Vernon Castle; Bachelor Beau, the Blue Grass winner, and English-bred Bold Arrangement.

Fobby Forbes, Ferdinand, Wise Times, Wheatly Hall, Groovy, Icy Groom, Mr. Classic, Royal Doulton and Pillaster were expected to complete the field.

Stute said only Oxygian, Storm Cat and Tasso were in Snow Chief's class, but injuries cost those 3-year-olds a trip to the Derby.

"This is a little better horse than he's been given credit for," Stute said. "If he can win the Derby, this is a fresh horse for the Triple Crown. He ran away from Badger Land the last two times."

Snow Chief beat Badger Land by 1 1/2 lengths in the El Camino Real Derby at Bay Meadows and by 1 1/4 lengths in the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park.

A dark bay son of Reflected Glory-Miss Snowflake, Snow Chief is trying to become the first California-bred to win the Derby since Decidedly in 1962.

'John Henry' to return to races in Arlington Million

NEW YORK (AP) — John Henry, thoroughbred racing's all-time money winner, is physically fit and ready for a comeback at age 11 after an examination by the gelding's veterinarian.

John Henry, who was retired last August after winning $6.6 million, will soon start working out under former trainer Ron McAnally in preparation for running in the Aug. 31 Arlington Million in Chicago, owner Sam Rubin said Wednesday.

Rubin said the decision to race John Henry, who was formally retired after injuring his right front leg while training for a race at Hollywood Park, was made last week when he was paraded at Keeneland.

"He bucked and kicked. He saw the track and thought a saddle was going on him," Rubin said. "He's a gelding. There's nothing else for him to do but race."

Final approval for John Henry to resume training was given Wednesday by veterinarian Dr. Robert Copelan of Paris, Ky., after he examined the gelding.

John Henry, who was sold as a yearling at Keeneland for $1,100 and then purchased by Rubin as a 3-year-old for $25,000, won 39 races in 83 career starts. His last victory came in his final start in the $100,000 Ballantine Classic at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., in October 1984.

Last week, Hollywood Park announced its inaugural running of the $150,000 John Henry Handicap to be run May 4, one day after the Kentucky Derby.

SAW IT COMING

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Gene Keady, the Purdue basketball coach, knew what was in store for him midway in the college basketball season but was powerless to do anything about it.

Purdue embarked on a three-game road trip to Indiana, Ohio State and Illinois. Keady sadly commented: "I feel like a cowboy driving a herd into a blind canyon where he knows he will be ambushed."

Purdue lost all three games and Keady's post mortem line was: "When I mentioned the ambush I didn't know there would be an avalanche also."

Big hits listed

NEW YORK (AP) — When Geraldo Rivera opened Al Capone's vaults, he found nothing but high ratings — one example of a how opportunistic programming can exploit the networks' in-between week of predominantly reruns and rejects.

The so-called "black week" comes after the end of the traditional prime-time season and before the start of the summer that week, the A.C. Nielsen Co. doesn't supply age, sex and income demographic breakdowns, so the networks schedule mostly reruns, saving fresh products for the key month of May.

Tribune Entertainment's syndicated "The Mystery of Al Capone's Vaults" was a treasure bust, but a ratings bonanza. National ratings for the April 21 special won't be available until Friday, but if they parallel Nielsen's 12-city overnights, the program would beat even the top-rated "Cosby Show."

Two advertisers also struck gold with their films last week. The "Hallmark Hall of Fame" movie, "Resting Place," ranked third and the "General Foods Golden Showcase Presentation," "Alex: The Life of a Child," was sixth.

Chronicle KTRK TV poll shows Clements commanding lead

HOUSTON (AP) — The latest Houston Chronicle-KTRK-TV poll shows former Gov. Bill Clements will win the Republican gubernatorial primary Saturday without a runoff unless there is an unexpected increase of non-traditional GOP voters.

Clements has pulled further ahead among traditional primary voters in recent weeks, while his opponents, Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt and former Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, have gained no ground, according to a follow-up survey of likely GOP primary voters conducted Sunday through Tuesday, the Chronicle reported today.

Clements has 62 percent of the support of those surveyed, Loeffler 16 percent and Hance 15 percent, with 7 percent undecided.

The earlier survey indicated Clements with 53 percent, Loeffler 19 percent, Hance 16 percent and 12 percent undecided.

The survey did not cover next Saturday's Democratic primary contest between Gov. Mark White and five challengers. White wrested the governor's office from Clements in 1982. Other surveys have shown he would win re-nomination.

The nominees will face off in the Nov. 4 general election.

The poll was conducted for the Chronicle and KTRK through the University of Houston Public Affairs Research Center, which re-contacted 333 of the 414 likely GOP primary voters surveyed by the center March 21-27. The statistical margin of error is plus or minus 6 percentage points.

"Clements is pulling away among traditional Republican voters. There is a bandwagon effect out there. The marginal voters are going to Clements," Richard Murray, the University of Houston political scientist who conducted the survey, told the Chronicle.

The original survey participants were chosen from lists of registered voters in 100 precincts throughout the state with histories of GOP primary voting. The sample was drawn to reflect traditional GOP primary turnout, with extra sampling in West Texas, which was represented by Hance, and in Loeffler's 21st District, which stretches from the San Antonio suburbs through San Angelo to Midland. Both areas traditionally have had low GOP primary turnout. The UH Center contacted 3,200 voters in the key precincts to find the 414 who were the basis of the original survey.

In another race, the Chronicle-KTRK-TV poll showed that state District Judge Roy Barrera Jr. is leading his two opponents for the GOP nomination for attorney general, but close to half of likely primary voters are still undecided about the race.

Barrera, of San Antonio, former prosecutor Ed Walsh of Round Rock and state District Judge John Roach of Plano are vying for the opportunity to run Nov. 4 against Democratic incumbent Jim Mattox, who is unopposed in his Saturday primary.

The recent survey indicates that Barrera has the support of 23 percent of those surveyed, Walsh 18 percent and Roach 15 percent with 45 percent undecided.

The initial survey indicated that 65 percent of the likely voters were undecided.

Kilgore youths divide state

DALLAS (AP) — Fifteen Kilgore fifth graders are abolishing Texas, dividing it into five new states, wooing elected officials and setting up their own governments.

"I would be honored to accept your draft to serve as governor of the state of Eastex," Dallas Mayor Starke Taylor wrote one student in accepting his invitation to govern one of their newly created states.

The youths are students in Learning Expanding Academic Potential, a program for advanced first-through fifth-graders, said program coordinator Patsy Thipps.

They have been instructed to divide Texas into five separate states, elect a governor and two senators and choose a capital for each state.

"The Articles of Annexation say the voters can divide the state in five separate states if they decide they want to," said Thipps, adding the idea grew out of an magazine article that pointed out the provision.

After reading the article, LEAP teacher Carolyn Martin turned the provision into an multi-faceted educational tool.

"It teaches them research skills, higher thinking and how to be creative," said Martin.

After Kilgore attorney Rob Schlei discussed the annexation provision with the class, the students were split into five groups of three.

Martin and Nelda Densman, who also teaches the class, divided the state into East Texas, a coastal section, a southern section running from Texas' southern tip to El Paso, a central section and a section including West Texas and the Panhandle.

In addition to choosing leaders, students must choose a state name, bird, flower, motto and flag, as well as create a state seal, Martin said. Already, students have made a salt map detailing their sections' terrain, typography and resources.

"We provide them with a Texas map, Texas almanacs, Texas history books up to the eighth-grade level and articles from the Dallas and Longview newspapers," Martin said. "But from there, it's up to the students."

Each group must write the chambers of commerce in their section for information and write a person from their area that they have elected governor, the teachers said.

Letters have been drafted to Taylor, Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire, El Paso Mayor Jonathan Rogers, Amarillo Mayor Rick Klein and Gov. Mark White, Densman said.

Taylor was the first to accept, although Klein said Tuesday he had yet to receive his letter.

"Naturally I'm flattered," Taylor said Tuesday. "I think it's definitely a creative idea and I think Texans from time to time have thought about doing that very thing (dividing the state)."

"I thought your offer sounded super," Taylor said in his acceptance letter. "I wouldn't have to campaign or risk boring people with long speeches."

Ultimately, each group will use the compiled information, leaders and state symbols to promote their "state" at a mock chamber of commerce convention and convince judges that theirs is the best of the five.

In previous projects students have presented their state seal on a cake or a chocolate chip cookie, she said. Some use the foods to flaunt their natural resources. Students with the Valley in their state give the judges orange or grapefruit juice.

Michael Madford, 11, leader of group in charge of the section studying the Rio Grande region, said he had never been to the area and enjoyed the research.

"I think it's a lot of fun," he said. "We've learned a lot about the geography and the history. Most of it is stuff I didn't know. I don't know much about barren land."

His group originally called the area Laredo, but decided it wasn't very original. They renamed it Desierra. The first three letters, he said, were the first three letters in the word "desert" and the remaining letters come from the Spanish word for land (tierra.)

First Place Award Winner

This desk recently captured a first place award in a regional competition in Canyon. It took Hereford High School student John Ford the entire school year to complete. HHS woodworking students left Thursday morning to take part in the state competition in Waco. The desk and the rest of the HHS entries will be on display at the Hereford State Bank on Tuesday.

Corn, wheat inventories up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inventories of corn and wheat are sharply larger than a year ago, reflecting the huge 1985 harvests and weak export sales, according to an Agriculture Department report.

As of April 1, the corn inventory was estimated at 5.95 billion bushels, up 50 percent from the year-earlier level, the report said Tuesday. Of the total, 67 percent, or 3.98 billion bushels, were stored on farms.

The April 1 wheat inventory was put at 2.12 billion bushels, up 27 percent from a year ago. The on-farm total was 799 million bushels, a 12 percent increase from the yearearlier level, the report said.

Soybeans in storage as of April 1 were reported at 1.18 billion bushels, up 31 percent from a year ago. Farm inventories totaled 599 million bushels, up 23 percent from April 1, 1985.

Planting of the 1986 corn crop is under way, and the new wheat harvest will begin in a few weeks in southern areas.

In a related report, the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility said farmers in the major corn states had planted an estimated 16 percent of their 1986 acreage, four percentage points ahead of a year ago. By April 26, planting was reported under way in all states except South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Winter wheat was said to be 31 percent headed, well ahead of the pace a year ago. Some damage was reported as a result of cold weather "but is not expected to be extremely severe," the report said.

Cher turning 40

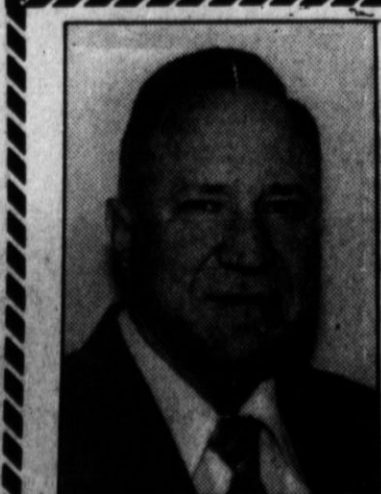

NEW YORK (AP) — Cher, who turns 40 next month, says she'd rather be turning 25.

"I'm not like Jane Fonda or any of these other women who say how fabulous they think it is to turn 40," she said in the May issue of Vanity Fair. "I'm not thrilled with it."

Cher, whose birthday is May 20, also is puzzled by her enduring celebrity, which seems to be based more on who she is than the progress of her career.

Ann Landers

Contact organization

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 18-year-old guy with a very big problem. Recently my mother found some homosexual magazines under my mattress and told my father. When they faced me with the evidence and asked if I was gay, I didn't see any point in trying to lie.

This has really destroyed my folks. They are begging me to change. I understand their disappointment. I am their only son and they want grandchildren to carry on the family name. We have had plenty of talks and I have heard everything from, "Would you be willing to go to a hypnotist?" to, "We'll buy you a new car."

All my friends at work now I'm gay and accept me the way I am. Actually, I don't want to change. I've known since I was about 8 years old that I was different.

But I can't stand to see my parents so torn up. When my dad said, "I'd rather have you killed in an accident or die from cancer," I realized how this has affected him.

Shall I try to deny my true feelings and go to a hypnotist? Could he change me? Was I born this way, or what?

Some people say a psychiatrist can make gays straight. Is it true? Should I move out and lead my own life? I can't take much more of this.—FEELING LOW IN MEMPHIS

DEAR MEMPHIS: Some people say hypnotism and psychiatry can change a homosexual into a heterosexual. I am not at all sure this is true.

You ask what causes homosexuality. Nobody knows for certain. Some of my consultants insist sexuality is fixed at birth. Others say it is environmental. I believe some people are born homosexual and others become gay for a variety of reasons.

Moving out and leading your own life is not the answer. Your parents need to understand a great deal more than they do so they can accept you the way you are. Unless they are willing to try, you will be lost to them forever.

I hope they will contact the Federation of Parents & Friends of Lesbians and Gays, Inc. This organization is for parents who were bewildered and heartsick to learn that their children were homosexual. By understanding this deviation from the norm and meeting with other parents who have traveled the same road, they were able to accept their children and make peace with themselves. The address is P.O. Box 24565, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (39 cents postage) envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for that lady from Wisconsin who thinks her jeweler switched diamonds on her when she took her ring in to have the mounting changed. I'll bet her diamond didn't look the same way because she wore it while she did her housework. When a diamond is subjected to grease and grime it loses its brilliance.

Here's a tip. Boil the ring in a small pan with a tablespoon of dishwasher detergent. It works like a charm.—EUNICE F. OF PHILADELPHIA

DEAR EUNICE: Sorry dear, I'm mixing your suggestion. A friend of mine put her 12-carat, pear-shaped diamond in a pan to boil, added detergent and forgot about it when the phone rang. Twenty minutes later she heard a noise. The water had boiled out and her diamond had shattered. (P.S. There's no insurance to cover a freak accident like that.)

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting - What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents and along, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Clean Air Week being observed

Clean Air Week, which is dedicated to improving the air we breathe, is being observed nationally this week.

Sponsored by the American Lung Association-The Christmas Seal People-the continuing objective of Clean Air Week is to reduce air pollution wherever it exists-outdoors, in the workplace, in the home.

The theme of Clean Air Week 1986, "Toxic Chemicals in the Air-Indoors and Outdoors," encompasses the entire scope of the complex air pollution problem.

When the Federal Clean Air Act became law in 1970, it took into consideration only outside air pollution and called for emission standards to be imposed on each major source of pollution.

Some improvement has been achieved, but much of the nation's air is still unhealthy.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which administers the Clean Air Act, has established standards for only six hazardous pollutants: asbestos, beryllium, mercury, vinyl chloride, benzene and radionuclides. However, no standards currently exist for many more toxic outdoor air pollutants.

Now a new issue has emerged. In the last few years, it has been established that an individual's exposure to air pollutants does not occur only outdoors, but at work and in the home. There are no Federal standards or regulations covering indoor air pollution, which some environmental scientists believe is an even more serious problem than outdoor air pollution.

The Clean Air Act is currently under review for reauthorization by Congress and needs to be strengthened ed if it is to meet its goal of guaranteeing the American people their right to clean and healthful air.

The American Lung Association of Texas is urging Congress to strengthen the Clean Air Act with respect to toxic pollution in three ways:

(1) Force timely EPA decisions on suspect chemicals;

(2) Reaffirm the requirement that standards must be set at levels to protect public health with an ample margin of safety; and

(3) Require sources (manufacturing plants, etc.) to prove compliance with the standards that have been set.

The ALA is also urging Congress to designate the EPA as the agency, with primary jurisdiction for research on the health effects of indoor air pollution and jurisdiction for establishing and enforcing control programs. Take into consideration: that estimated health care costs attributable to outdoor air pollution alone amount to between $5 billion and $40 billion annually with the closest estimate approximately $16 billion; that indoor air pollution is estimated to add $15 to $100 billion annually in additional health care costs; and that an estimated 1,700 people may die from cancer every year from outdoor air pollution, and thousands more from indoor air pollution.

For more information about Clean Air contact the American Lung Association of Texas at 3520 Executive Center Drive, Suite G-100, Austin, Texas 78731-1606 or call toll-free 1-800-252-LUNG.

Accent on Health

A person never grows too old to prevent cancer. But some older people fail to practice cancer prevention, mainly because they are uninformed, according to the Texas Department of Health.

Commissioner of Health, Dr. Robert Bernstein, said, "Many older people are unaware that 60 percent of all cancers can be prevented, or cured if found early. And they are uncertain about what lifestyle changes they should make or health habits they should develop to lessen their risk of cancer."

Dr. Bernstein explained that many older persons harbor misconceptions about cancer prevention. Some think they are too old to change unhealthy habits. Others, having known of numerous cancer victims, may believe cancer is inevitable as they grow older, and therefore see little point in taking precautions. Still others fail to see a doctor unless they already know they are ill, which often is too late for effective treatment, he said.

"The reality is that anyone, at any age, can have cancer. But at the same time, anyone can avoid some cancers and be cured of some others by following a few rules," Dr. Bernstein said.

He cited five preventive measures, which also are recommended by the American Cancer Society. Everyone should:

Have a regular yearly health checkup. Finding and treating cancer before symptoms appear is the most important step in curing cancer.

Maintain a proper diet. High-fat foods have been linked to breast and colon cancer. Less fat and more fruits, vegetables, and cereals can reduce cancer risk.

Use a sunscreen. Skin cancer is directly linked to the amount of exposure a person has to the sun's rays. Sunscreens, hats, and protective clothing are "musts" for reducing exposure, especially for fair-skinned people, or those who burn easily.

Do not smoke. Smoking is the single most preventable cause of cancer.

Know your environment. Avoid exposure to chemicals and other substances which are known to cause cancer. Among these are tobacco, asbestos, vinyl chlorides, and PCBs.

In addition, a woman 40 or older should have an endometrial tissue sample test at menopause, a mammogram every year or two, and should practice breast self-examination monthly. Starting at age 50, women should have mammograms and blood stool tests yearly, and procto exams two years in a row, which if negative, should be repeated every 3-5 years.

Beginning at age 50, a man should have a blood stool test and a digital rectal exam of the prostate every year, and should have a procto exam on the same schedule recommended for women.

"Everyone must realize that cancer prevention is a life-long necessity," Dr. Bernstein said.

First Texas Silver Haired Legislature to be elected

The Texas Silver Haired Legislature is an elected, representative nonpartisan body of citizens 60+ years of age. The first Texas Silver Haired Legislature will be elected on May 30, 1986 and will meet this fall in the Texas Capitol for the purpose of considering and voting on legislation that concerns the needs of older Texans. The mock legislative session will closely resemble that of the Texas Legislature. At the close of the session, the Texas Silver Haired Legislature will select several issues which it feels are priority concerns of the elderly and present these to the Texas Legislators.

Although the Silver Haired Legislature is new to Texas, the concept is not new. Many other states have organized and convened a senior legislature with great success.

The legislature, which will debate bills and pass recommendations to the 1987 Texas Legislature, will be made up of 116 Texans over the age of 60. Each of the state's area agencies on aging will sponsor at least four delegates. Five will come Tarrant, Dallas, Harris and Bexar counties because of their large senior populations.

The Silver Haired Legislature will meet every other year to debate and approve priorities important to senior citizens. The delegates are elected to two-year terms and may be re-elected once.

Why did the Texas Legislature offer this opportunity?

1. To provide older Texans an opportunity to become knowledgeable about the legislative process through involvement.

2. To develop a forum for older Texans for discussion of senior citizen's issues and establishing legislative priorities for the Texas Legislature to consider.

3. To provide advocacy training enabling delegates to continue their role within the community and offering informed assistance to policy makers.

4. To provide an avenue through which older citizens may serve as a resource to public and private sectors, boards and commissions.

Balloting will begin with absentee voting Thursday, May 1, through Friday May 23, 1986. Election Day will be Friday May 30, 1986.

Absentee ballots may be mailed to:

Panhandle Area Agency on Aging
P.O. Box 9257
Amarillo, Texas 79105

Each envelope mailed must be clearly marked on the outside ABSENTEE BALLOT. Each envelope mailed must have your written signature above your return address.

The growing impact of Senior Citizens in every aspect of Texas life is the reason for this forum and what is done will have a direct effect not only on those 60+ now but all who follow.

In 1957, Premier David Ben-Gurion ordered the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Gaza Strip and Gulf of Aqaba in favor of United Nations rule.

Ways with Wine

by David Hutchins

CALIFORNIA'S BIG RED

Cabernet Sauvignon is the name of the most famous red wine grape produced in California. Cabernet Sauvignon also is the chief wine grape of Bordeaux. The California wines made with this grape are similar in style to the red wines of Bordeaux. They are very dark-colored wines. They are either big-tasting, intense and tannic, or oaky, soft, light-bodied and elegant. Bottle aging allows wines to develop a velvet subtlety to their fullest extent. The tannin, detectable in good, young Cabernet Sauvignon, dissipates with age. This allows the wines to demonstrate their complex, superb flavors. Because a good Cabernet Sauvignon requires fine grapes and a high degree of skill to produce, it may cost more than other California wines.

At THE STORE we stock only the finest wines from all over the world, not only in name but in vintage. Let us assist you in your choice to insure you get the best value suited to your personal taste and budget. "A World of Wines" awaits you here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 where we are open Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. DR. GOTT Disc operation may not help

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a ruptured disc and other back problems. I've consulted with orthopedic surgeons, neurosurgeons and a rheumatology specialist, all of whom say surgery might not help. A day doesn't go by that I'm not in pain. I'm thinking of having the nerves clipped, or am I out of my mind?

DEAR READER — Back pain caused by a ruptured disc can be severe and chronic enough to make you think you are losing your mind, but I believe you are quite sane to examine options.

An operation may or may not help you. A neurosurgeon can assess the possibility of cure only if you are willing to undergo further testing — such as a myelogram (a type of X-ray to examine the spinal cord) — to establish whether the disc is, indeed, the cause of your pain. If it isn't, then you may wish to consider other alternatives, such as surgical interruption of pain fibers. In my opinion, a capable neurosurgeon is the best person to evaluate the cause and treatment of your back problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am on a daily dose of 5 mg. prednisone for Crohn's disease. My question relates to long-range side effects of the drug. Do calcium supplements replace the calcium eaten up by the prednisone? Do patients remain on the drug permanently?

DEAR READER — Prednisone is a high-powered form of cortisone that is often used in the treatment of allergic inflammations. Prednisone is an effective drug, but its use is usually limited by its side effects, which include cataracts, diabetes, loss of bone calcium, alteration of facial characteristics and susceptibility to infection. Calcium supplements may help, but will not prevent the bone-calcium loss caused by the medication. Some studies have reported that alternate-day dosage reduces the complications of prednisone without affecting its effectiveness. In other words, by taking 10 mg. every two days, rather than 5 mg. daily, you may be better off. Ask your doctor about this. Although some patients may require long-term prednisone therapy, doctors tend to urge limited, short-term treatment to avoid side-effects. Again, your physician is the best judge of this issue in your case.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was diagnosed as having a small blockage in a small artery. All the main ones are fine. My cholesterol is 154 and my triglycerides are 75. How did I get this blockage when my cholesterol and triglyceride levels are so good?

DEAR READER — Regardless of your cholesterol level, arterial blockage is a normal consequence of the aging process. It probably begins during adolescence. High blood cholesterol can, of course, accelerate arterial blockage. However, even with a low serum cholesterol level (as you have), arteriosclerosis will occur in all of us as we grow older.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 63, and yesterday, in my garden, I got chewed up by mosquitoes. I take Coumadin and I think they love the ice water in my veins! What can I do to keep these pests at bay?

DEAR READER — Your best bet is to use a mosquito repellent. I doubt that the bugs are attracted to you because of the Coumadin (a blood thinner). You'd probably make a good meal for them anyway.

Method demonstrations given by 4-H members

Six Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers presented method demonstrations when members of Cultural Extension Homemakers met Friday afternoon in the Energas Flame Room.

Jeremy Blair and Thad Hill of the Pioneer 4-H Club presented "Pig Sty to Pig Pen." They stated for healthy well-developed hogs you need proper housing with adequate space in a good well-drained location. They suggested using commercial feeders with one hole for each pig and also suggested using floatable heaters in the waters during the winter months.

Jill Dutton and Jennifer Hicks from the Showmanship 4-H Club presented "Look-Listen-Live." They said most train car accidents are caused by carelessness because people are used to the crossings and are in a hurry and fail to heed warning signals. They listed several warning signs among which are the regular stop sign, stop-look-listen sign, flashing lights and the arms that drop down. They stressed that if people would obey the laws and regulations most of these accidents could be avoided. They said, "By using common sense, lives could be saved. Cars can swerve but trains cannot."

"From Mutton to Buttons" was the demonstration given by Jim Brett and Kinann Campbell of the Pioneer

Club. They stated that Texas is the largest producer of sheep and wool and that all parts of the sheep are used "but the baa." Some of the good edible parts are lamb chops and leg of lamb. They mentioned that buttons are made of the bone as are some bone China and film used in cameras.

Brett and Campbell also explained that many of the drugs come from the sheep such as Heparin and insulin and that 49 percent of the meat is edible.

The meeting was called to order by President Nell Pope and the opening prayer was led by Jewell Hargrave. Bertha Dettmann led the pledges to the United States and Texas flags.

Hostess, Raelene Smith, read "Can Mom Live Through Closet Cleaning With Dad?" by Vera Krameras as the opening exercise. Nine members answered roll call with "favorite home remedy my mother used."

Those attending included Pope, Fannie Townsend, Jewel Rogers, Marie Thames, Smith, Hargrave, Dettmann, Vernis Parsons, Edith Hunter, Treva Blair, Jeremy Blair, Patty Hill, Thad Hill, Alyssa and Macy Hill, Brett Campbell, Teressa, Rusty and Jill Dutton and Jennifer Hicks.

Working mothers' kids can eat nutritiously

The notion that children of women who work outside the home subsist on convenience foods and snacks is probably a myth.

According to a survey study published recently in the "Journal of the American Dietetic Association," working mothers feed their families 7 percent more salads and 8 percent more eggs than mothers who do not work outside the home.

The study showed that working parents' children under age 12 eat more vegetable dishes, more bacon, more unsweetened cereals, and less candy, pizza and salty snacks.

"This study does not measure whose diet is actually healthier," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Alice Hunt.

She points out that it also does not include meals eaten away from home, and families with working mothers eat 10 percent more of their meals in restaurants and fast food outlets than families with full-time homemakers.

"The children in any family can get balanced meals if parents will make sure they are getting meat, poultry or other protein foods, dairy products, grains and cereals, fruits and vegetables each day," says Hunt. "In addition, parents should limit the amount of extra fat and sugar their children consume."

The key difference in the nutritional value of children's diets may depend more on what parents know about nutrition than whether the mother works outside the home or not, she adds.

When oil boom turns to bust

Family making adjustment

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP)—Marvin Walls isn't likely to forget last Christmas.

It was memorable in several ways, but the thing he said he most likely will remember about the season is that two days after the holiday, the job he'd held for six years — service supervisor with Dowell Schlumberger Inc. — was gone.

Walls' experience is a clear example of the impact of oil field problems on workers who have lost jobs because of such difficulties.

Dowell Schlumberger closed its office here two days after Christmas and merged with its Graham, Texas, facility, leaving Walls and 10 co-workers unemployed, as well as four part-time employees.

Remembering the event, Walls said, "I'd been on location over by Burkburnett all day and had another job to go to over there in a couple of hours. I called in on the radio and said since we had the other job to do, we'd just stay where we were instead of coming back to the office, but I was told to come on in anyway."

"We did and when we got in, we were told to go home. That night right after we got home, we were called and said to report the next morning at 8 a.m. for a meeting."

When we got there, all the locks had been changed. Management showed up about 10 after 8 and told us the office was being closed and we were out of jobs," he said.

Walls was one of the lucky ones. He got another oil field job about three weeks later, and when the opportunity came to go to work for Howmet Turbine Components Corp., he grabbed it.

"I doubt if I'll ever go back to the oil patch. The work there is good when you're in a boom, but booms don't last forever," he said.

Both he and his wife, Susan, admit there have been some benefits to losing his oil field job even though it caused their income to be cut in half.

"I'm learning things about my family I never knew before," Walls said.

"That's true. For years, he spent more time with his crew than he did with me and the girls (two daughters, ages 5 and 9). Now, he's home each night with us. I like having a husband around," said his wife of 10 years.

Even though Mrs. Walls has had to go to work to help augment the family income, she says she actually likes it.

"It's brought us closer together, especially the girls," she said of her husband losing his job.

"I've always been a housewife ever since we got married, and now it gets me out of the house," she said of her job.

Her husband, while glad she's helping out, said he never wanted his wife to work. "As long as I could support my family, I felt like she should stay home," he said.

The young Wichita Falls couple has had to make major changes in their lifestyle.

"When we used to go grocery shopping, we'd just take anything that happened to grab our fancy. Now, we go into the kitchen and take inventory before we go and we buy only what we need," Walls said.

Another change Walls has had to make involves his love of sky diving.

"I used to go up to Grandfield, Okla., every so often and didn't think anything of shelling out $200 for the day. Needless to say, I've given up sky diving now," he explained.

While he might miss it, his wife considers his departure from the sky-diving scene one of the pluses of his losing his oil field job.

The unpleasant experience of losing the job with Dowell Schlumberger has made Walls take a close look at himself.

"I don't think I'll ever take a job for granted now, and I think it's made me a better worker. Now I know what it feels like not to have a job, so I'm going to do everything I can to make sure I keep one," he said.

Chemical People to meet

The Deaf Smith County Chemical People Task Force will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the ballroom of the Hereford Community Center.

Special guests at the meeting will be several members of the Hereford High School Keywanette Club. A summer recreational and entertainment activity for Hereford teens will be discussed.

Chemical People is an organization of local citizens who are concerned about the problem of drug and alcohol abuse, particularly among the youth. The meetings are open to the public and are scheduled on the first Tuesday of each month.

Book on Bundy becomes mini-series

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seattle newspaper reporter Richard Larsen remembers Ted Bundy as a charismatic young law student working hard for the Republicans. He seemed to have a bright future in politics and was "very handsome, very well-liked," Larsen said.

Bundy indeed went on to make headlines — but as a notorious murderer.

In the early 1970s, a killer stalking young women in the Seattle area was known only as "Ted." Nobody connected it to Ted Bundy. Eventually police came to suspect Bundy of killing more than 36 women in six states. He is now in prison in Florida waiting execution.

Larsen wrote a book about Bundy called "The Deliberate Stranger." It has been adapted to a two-part miniseries by NBC, starring Mark Harmon as Bundy. The program will be broadcast Sunday and Monday.

George Grizzard plays as Larsen. Marvin Chomsky ("Peter the Great") directed, and Hesper Anderson wrote the screenplay from Larsen's book.

In 1972, Larsen was covering politics and the governor's race for the Seattle Times. "I noticed this good looking guy, very bright, working for (Republican Gov.) Dan Evans. He seemed to have a special quality," Larsen recalled.

Larsen became friends with Bundy and wrote a story about him in the aftermath of the 1972 gubernatorial campaign, in which the Democratic Party contended Bundy had acted as a GOP spy while attending numerous political functions. "I didn't think it was a valid charge and wrote a piece defending Ted," Larsen said.

Larsen is now an associate editor of the Seattle Times, where he writes a column and does commentary on public issues.

"In the early part of 1974 there was a sense in the Pacific Northwest that something awful was happening," Larsen said. "Women were disappearing, essentially college girls from the campuses. They just seemed to vanish. That summer there was a stunning event. Two girls vanished the same day from a picnic at a state park.

"Several women at the picnic said a young man approached them. Very handsome, called himself Ted. He asked them to get in his car, but they declined. From that, the police got the name 'Ted,' and they became known locally as the 'Ted Murders.'"

Larsen said he saw Bundy several times after that: Then Bundy was arrested in 1975 in Utah, where he was enrolled in law school at the University of Utah.

Bundy was convicted of kidnapping in Utah and taken to Colorado to stand trial in a case there. He escaped twice, and the second time he got away.

Soon afterward, he was arrested in Florida and charged with two murders in a sorority house. He was convicted and sentenced to death. He was never tried in Washington.

Asked if he was satisfied with the television adaptation, Larsen said, "I'll give you a tentative and conditional reply on that. I'm a hound for accuracy. Any actor who doesn't look right is an error. They made a lot of changes for dramatic reasons."

Newspapers endorse White, divided on candidates

DALLAS (AP) — Democratic Gov. Mark White outpaced his primary opponents in editorial endorsements across the state for Saturday's election, but no clear favorite emerged from newspaper picks in the more vigorously disputed GOP gubernatorial primary.

White was cited for his efforts to upgrade education and wean the state from dependence on the oil and gas industry, and one newspaper dismissed his Democratic primary opponents as a "cloud of gnats."

Such clear-cut views did not surface on the GOP primary race despite campaign polls showing former Gov. Bill Clements the strong frontrunner over former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler.

"We realize that Clements may very well win the GOP primary without a runoff, but we think Texas Republicans should keep their eyes on their real foe ... the battle for all the marbles is in November, not May," said the Port Arthur News.

Several newspapers decided not take sides in Saturday's races, preferring to wait until the November general elections.

The Dallas Morning News endorsed Clements in the GOP primary, observing that Texas had a budget surplus when he left office and saying he would take a firm hand with the present fiscal woes. "Clements believes the state has a spending, not a revenue problem," said the paper, which also picked White.

Newspapers backing Clements said he has proven himself a leader and fiscally astute. "Bill Clements is a businessman, and a real good one at that," said the Lufkin Daily News, which did not endorse a Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

The Dallas Times Herald said Clements deserves a chance to go up against White again, citing him as the most qualified candidate, although the newspaper said his no-tax campaign pledge may be short-sighted.

Other newspapers, especially in West Texas, said a rematch probably would result in White repeating his 1982 victory.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times said Clements' "abrasive" style is not needed now. "Hance could be an effective governor ... Perhaps equally important from a partisan standpoint, Hance is electable ...," the paper said.

Hance's campaign issues of stricter measures in the prison system and a crackdown on illegal aliens won support from some newspaper editors.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram described him as an innovative conservative with "reasonable ideas for a more effective state prison system."

Newspapers did not make much of Hance's switch to the Republican Party before his run for governor, though the Houston Post said he demonstrated his "political mettle" by swapping parties.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, which made no endorsement in the Democratic primary, said Hance has a plan for "running prisons like prisons while keeping convicts there longer."

"He best represents the changing alignments that have made Texas a two-party state," said the Star-Telegram. The paper chose White in the Democratic primary, saying he has proven his leadership ability.

Loeffler was described by many papers as promising but not yet able to win a statewide race.

However, the San Antonio Light said Loeffler did an outstanding job as a congressman and the San Antonio Express-News said he has "youth, drive, national experience and a proven record of accomplishment."

Both San Antonio papers also endorsed White.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram said Loeffler has the "vigor to lead this state boldly into the future," and the San Angelo Standard-Times commended his reputation for spending restraint.

Most newspapers snubbed White's opponents for the Democratic nomination. "His opposition is little more than a cloud of gnats," the Caller-Times said, describing White as the clear choice among Democrats.

"Don Crowder has run a surprisingly lively campaign ... but virtually disqualified himself when he earlier referred to White as a 'nerd' and a 'scumball,'" the Port Arthur

News said in its White endorsement.

White has drawn criticism for the controversial school reform package he helped engineer and the tax increase used to pay for it. But editorial endorsements praised him for his support of education and economic diversification.

"He has stood firm on the education reforms he helped bring about, despite the angry shouts of offended school teachers," the Austin American-Statesman said.

"He's been a good governor, forceful and unafraid to meet squarely the problem of our times," said the Edinburg Daily Review, which did not endorse a candidate in the GOP primary.

"White has been a staunch supporter of the oil and gas industry and has led efforts to diversify the state's economy," said the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

On the tax increase issue, White was credited by several newspapers for making a tough decision. "White had the courage to change his mind and that is not a bad thing in a leader," the Houston Post said.

Other newspaper endorsements were: American-Statesman, Clements; Amarillo Globe-Times, White and Hance; Dallas Times Herald, White; Houston Chronicle, White, no Republican endorsed as of Wednesday; Standard-Times, White; Tyler Morning Telegraph, Clements, not endorsing in the Democratic race; and the Wichita Falls Times & Record-News, White and Clements.

A Swarm of Trouble

Members of the First Baptist Church found this swarm of honey bees Wednesday in a tree on the lawn of the church. The bees were reported to have started swarming Wednesday morning and were expected to leave in late afternoon. (Brand Photo by Shawn Cockrum)

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Soprano Montserrat Caballe, violinists Isaac Stern and Itzhak Perlman and the New York Philharmonic helped its conductor, Zubin Mehta, celebrate his 50th birthday.

The concert Tuesday night at Avery Fisher Hall included works by Vivaldi, Dvorak, Donizetti, Richard Strauss and, of course, a round of "Happy Birthday."

After the concert, televised by PBS, Nancy Mehta gave a birthday party for a smaller group of her husband's friends.

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion designer Calvin Klein and actress Elizabeth Taylor were the hosts at a star-studded cocktail party to raise money for AIDS research.

"AIDS knows no prejudice. It strikes men, women and children. But with your help, we will win," said Miss Taylor.

Ryan White, the 14-year-old Kokomo, Ind., hemophiliac who is afflicted with the deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome, was among those at Tuesday night's party, which was expected to raise at least $500,000.

Also attending were comedian David Brenner, Yoko Ono and her son Sean Lennon, actresses Brooke Shields and Dina Merrill, singers Peter Allen and Grace Jones, and fashion designers Mary McFadden, Donna Karan, Jackie Rogers, Willi Smith and Jeffrey Banks.

"It makes me feel pretty good that everybody would turn out tonight to help AIDS research," said Ryan, who recently won a court order allowing him to return to school after being barred because of his disease.

NEW YORK (AP) — Musicians Buck Clayton, Sy Oliver and Morton Gould were among the 500 people attending a ceremony unveiling a 22-cent postage stamp honoring Duke Ellington on what would have been his 87th birthday. Those at Tuesday's ceremony heard the Ellington Band, conducted by Ellington's son Mercer, play "The 22 Cent Stamp."

Duke Ellington, who died in 1974, composed "The 3 Cent Stamp" in 1943. Mercer Ellington introduced his father's retitled tune by saying, "Of course the rates have gone up. And so did the tempo."

Among Ellington's more than 900 compositions are such standards as "Satin Doll," "It Don't Mean a Thing if it Ain't Got That Swing" and "Mood Indigo."

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Several hundred actors, including Peter O'Toole, are prepared to defy a ban by their union, Equity, on performing in South Africa, the union's former president said today.

Derek Bond, who resigned as Equity president because of the April 11 ban, said a protest letter signed by hundreds of leading performers was delivered to the union's London headquarters.

The letter said that although those who signed it abhorred apartheid and pledged never to perform before racially segregated audiences they "reject utterly the right of Equity to issue an instruction to its members not to perform in South Africa."

"We give due notice that, in the right professional circumstances, we would disregard such an instruction," the letter continued.

LONDON (AP) — Punk rock star Bob Geldof, who helped organize the concert that raised millions of dollars for African famine relief, says he once tried to kill himself with marijuana.

"I've been elevated to this position where I get a lot of respect and affection, but I was a mess when I was 18 or 19," the 32-year-old musician said in an interview with the magazine Woman's Own.

"I tried to kill myself on marijuana. Then I was hooked on Valium and Librium for a year," the Boomtown Rats singer was quoted as saying.

Texas Most Wanted

MIDLAND, Texas — Since his first arrest at the age of 17, the life of John Torres Briones appears to have been heading in just one direction—down.

Briones, 42, has an extensive criminal record that lists 31 separate arrests. He has spent most of his adult life in prisons and county jails throughout Texas.

His life story takes up nine pages of criminal history and includes 13 arrests for driving while intoxicated, two arrests for aggravated assault on a police officer, two for aggravated assault on civilians, and arrests on other charges ranging from desertion, to burglary, to delivery of a controlled substance.

Out of all those arrests, he has been ordered to spend 13 years in the Texas Department of Corrections. In reality, his record indicates Briones spent about five and one-half years in prison and invariably got into trouble with the law a short time after his release.

Not too surprisingly, Briones is in trouble once again. He is wanted for the September 25, 1984, murder of an Odessa man and the August 14, 1984, aggravated assault of a Midland police officer.

This week Briones has been added to the Texas Most Wanted List. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by the Governor's Office for information leading to his arrest.

The murder charge against Briones stems from the shooting death of Jose Hernandez Perez. Police reports indicate Perez, 26, was gunned down in an Odessa bar around 1:30 a.m. Witnesses identified Briones as the assailant and said the shooting was the result of an argument between the two men.

At the time of the shooting, Briones was being hunted by the Midland Police Department.

Investigators say that at around 11:00 p.m., on August 14, 1984, Officer Dale Seago stopped a vehicle containing Briones and his wife in the driveway of their residence in Midland.

Officer Seago knew that Briones had an outstanding DWI warrant and tried to make an arrest. Police reports show that Briones allegedly hit Officer Seago, then ran inside the garage at the residence.

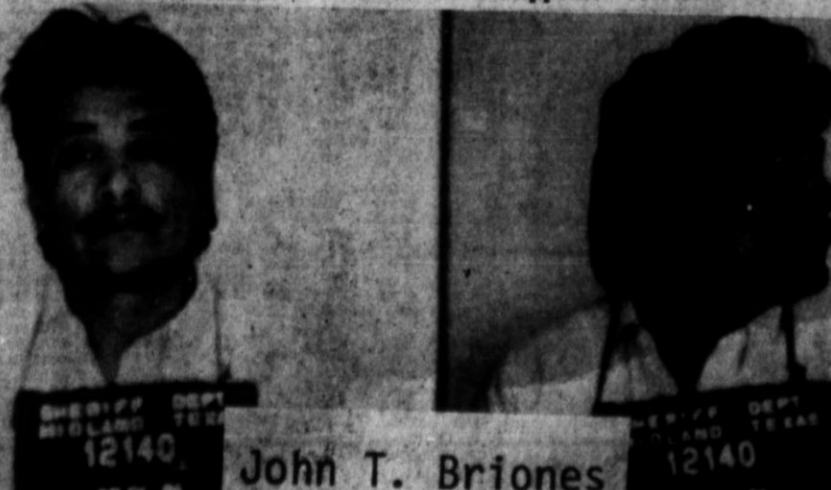

Officer Seago said he struggled with the suspect, then heard his gun hit the ground. When he went to pick it up, the suspect slammed the garage door on top of him. By the time Officer Seago recovered, the suspect was gone.

Briones is described as a white male of hispanic descent, 5-9, 160 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. He has numerous tattoos on his body, including one on his chest, and others on his arms.

Law enforcement officers warn that Briones should be considered dangerous.

Anyone with information on Briones' whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative effort between the Department of Public Safety and Texas Crime Stoppers.
