County judge, WDIC chief, Rep. Combest ired by decision

DOE rejects local prepayments

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County officials were informed Wednesday that Department of Energy officials have rejected a proposal to make advance payments on future Payments-in-lieu-of taxes (PET), in connection with the site characterization studies for the nation's first nuclear waste repository. County Judge Tom Simons, County Commissioner and Waste Deposit Impact Committee Chairman Troy Don Moore locally reacted in anger to the announcement as did Congressman Larry Combest.

Moore stated, "In separate meetings late yesterday afternoon, the DOE Salt Repository Project Office Manager, Jeff Neff, advised the County Judge and me and then the WDIC Executive Director that he had exhausted the last potential avenue for securing financial assistance for the Deaf Smith community, through use of a 'prepayment' on future in-lieu-of-tax liabilities.

Neff has been in Hereford this week for meetings with local staff, this morning he confirmed DOE's decision not to make prepayments. "Fundamentally the decision was made because our attorney's interpretation of the law is that we do not have the legal authority to make advanced payments," he stated.

Emphasizing that the PET payments will be made according to valuation of property and that the amount of the payments will not be affected by this decision, Neff stated, "The payments will begin as we start to acquire property of value and though initial payments will be small the size of the payments will increase as the project develops. The money will be the same, it will just be spread out over a period of time."

"Perhaps as great a concern to the Community as potential financial assistance should be the lack of Headquarters' support shown for

our fear', says Moore

Mr. Neff. He made a commitment to address impact assistance using 'creative financing'. It was on his own initiative that the concept of 'leveling payments' was introduced to community leaders," says Moore. "It was his staff that called meetings to explore potential mechanisms for distributing these funds through the County to all taxing entities in the County. The end result is that the clear expectation was created that the local Salt Repository Program Office could deliver on impact assistance."

"Since it cannot deliver, even after extensive effort on Mr. Neff's part, we can only be left with serious doubts concerning the value of entering into any serious negotiation with the SRPO. By this decision, DOE can again only reinforce our fear that policy affecting our residents will be managed thousands of miles away by bureaucrats who view Deaf Smith County as a barren wasteland, instead of the prime agricultural community that it is," concluded Moore.

Simons agrees, "Neff told me that there is to be no PET money available for this early aspect of site characterization and that they feel they have exhausted every possible alternative within DOE. He said the system is not able to authorize him to advance payments and that at this point the addition of a line item to the budget is our best hope."

Expressing the belief that all county officials had been given a positive opinion that there would be PET payments made in advance to assist with impacts resulting from site characterization studies and the influx of DOE and its subcontractors, Simons stated, "Strong implications were given that the money would be there for us, we are very disappointed because we had been led to believe that by using their terms and methods we could get the PET funds early, yesterday the bottom fell out."

In a telephone interview from the floor of the House this morning Congressman Larry Combest confirmed that he had been briefed on the decision yesterday. "I was told their attorneys have spent a great deal of time looking into the possibility of advance payments and that from a legal standpoint they have determined they cannot do this."

Combest says this decision is, "symbolic of what has been going on during the whole program, they have made other promises or alluded to other possibilities which have been taken as promises and then said they couldn't do what they promised after all. I just wish they would check these things out before they start making these statements."

Neff takes credit for the controversial decision along with Ben Rusche, director of the Nuclear Waste Project Office. "Initially we thought the idea of prepayments would work and I was happy about that, however our accountants and attorneys have stated that in their opinion we would be breaking the law to do this," stated Neff. "Many times we have to go through the process of asking these questions to see what is possible. It is unfortunate that in this case our expectations were not fulfilled."

Moore responded, "The collective result is that DOE admits its inability to comply with a clear Congressional intent that local communities need not be adversely impacted by the Nuclear Waste Repository Program. For reasons only it can explain, it

Strong quake rattles 16 states, damage minor

By PETE BROWN Associated Press Writer

An earthquake shook residents of 16 states from Kansas to South Carolina and parts of Canada, breaking windows, tumbling chimneys and forcing hundreds to flee swaying buildings up to 700 miles away.

The tremor, registering 5.0 on the Richter scale, triggered an alarm at a Minnesota nuclear plant and cut telephone service in three Illinois counties, but only minor damage and one minor injury were reported.

"It felt like somebody with big shoes was walking overhead, but nobody lives overhead — we're on the fourth floor," said Richard Horwitz of Chicago. "Our parakeet was chattering away, and it just stopped."

The quake, at 6:49 p.m. CDT Wednesday, was centered near Lawrenceville, Ill., 55 miles north of Evansville, Ind., the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said. Shaking was felt from 10 seconds to nearly a minute.

Hundreds of students ran screaming from a building at a vocational college in Indianapolis, and about 70 people were evacuated from a swaying, 12-story apartment house in Columbia, S.C., 700 miles from the quake center.

John Larson, a Lawrence County, Ill., sheriff's dispatcher, said there were several reports of broken windows and other minor damage. An 18-month-old girl received stitches after the quake forced a bunk bed to fall on her head.

Police dispatcher David Hoffee in Olney, Ill., said there were reports of broken windows, fallen chimneys and a roof collapse at a funeral home.

At the Prairie Island nuclear plant near Red Wing, Minn., the quake triggered a seismic alarm, but no damage was immediately detected, according to Sam Macalus, spokesman for Northern States Power Co.

The quake was felt in Kansas,

Allies not sharing burden in Persian Gulf, claims Dole

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says it is happy with allied support of its Persian Gulf policies, but the Senate's Republican leader says Western Europe and Japan should do more to protect oil shipments in the volatile region.

The dispute centers around U.S. plans to begin escorting Kuwaiti oil tankers, a move which has raised fears the United States may become embroiled in the Iran-Iraq war. Kuwait is an ally of Iraq.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told a House committee Wednesday that even if its allies won't help, the United States can't back down.

The "fundamental issue is leadership, the leadership of the free world to resist the forces of anarchy and tyranny," Weinberger told the Foreign Affairs Committee.

But Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., was critical of the position taken in Venice, Italy, at the summit of leaders of the seven industrialized nations.

The leaders issued a communique Tuesday pledging diplomatic support for U.S. actions, but no military help.

That was fine with President Reagan, who pronounced himself "delighted" with the communique. He neither sought, nor was offered, military help.

But Dole disagreed. "It's good rhetoric," he said in a speech on the Senate floor. But "it looks like we're going to get no real commitment from our allies to meet their responsibility ... to defend their own interests."

"The talk from our allies is 'let's be calm,'" Dole said. "But I must say, it's easy to be calm in the cozy capitals of Europe and Japan when Uncle Sam has his ships and planes patrolling the gulf, and his red-white-and-blue flag protecting the tankers bringing the oil that London and Paris and Tokyo desperately need."

Dole said the American people wonder why the allies aren't helping and can rightly ask, "What about our allies? ... Why aren't they there, standing beside us? Why aren't they sharing the burden, sharing the risks?"

Capitol Hill fears about deepening U.S. involvement in the gulf have risen in the wake of last month's Iraqi attack on the Navy frigate USS Stark in which 37 U.S. seamen were killed.

The United States receives only about 6 percent of its oil from the Persian Gulf, Weinberger noted, while Japan gets 70 percent of its fuel from the region and U.S. allies in western Europe get about 30 percent.

But those figures are misleading, Weinberger argued, because they "ignore the fact that the world oil market is one market, and should Persian Gulf oil supplies be disrupted, oil prices will rise for everyone."

Besides, he added, the basic issue is leadership.

"If we, who so strongly advocate free access to ideas and markets, abrogate the responsibilities of leadership, who will take our place in the Persian Gulf and elsewhere around the world?" he asked.

Reagan sees opportunity for nuclear arms agreement

VENICE, Italy (AP) — President Reagan, in a picturesque outdoor news conference capping the 13th summit of western allies, said today he sees an "increased opportunity" for a nuclear arms agreement this year as well as a third meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Reagan, in an opening statement, embraced the economic discussions of the three-day summit. But questions immediately turned to other matters — beginning with the Iran-Contra affair.

Asked about his own role in the matter, Reagan took the view again that prohibitions against aiding the Nicaraguan rebels had not applied to him and said that, in any event, "I don't think the law was broken."

He repeated that he had not solicited any funds to help the Contra rebels during the congressional cut off of aid.

And Reagan repeated that he never gave anyone orders to assist the rebels during the cut off.

Reagan fielded questions in a sun-splashed garden on the island of Guidecca, his home during a nine-day stay in Venice.

He was asked whether the summit and a NATO ministers meeting beginning today would advance prospects for a superpower summit to conclude a new arms pact with the Soviet Union. His answer:

"I can't deny that I believe there is an increased opportunity for a summit conference and an increased opportunity for an actual reduction of armaments, particularly of the nuclear kind."

As for a possible third meeting with Gorbachev, the president said, "All I know is that we have made it plain that they (the Soviets) have the invitation (to visit the United States) and we are waiting for them."

Reagan noted that Secretary of State George Shultz was in Iceland briefing the NATO foreign ministers on the elements of a possible arms agreement with the Soviets that would reduce the number of nuclear missiles in Europe.

With his news conference, Reagan began a media blitz to put his imprint on the outcome of the summit and promote the superpower agreement.

Robertson opens 4-state campaign swing in Pampa

PAMPA, Texas (AP) — In the first stop of a four-state campaign swing, the Rev. Pat Robertson said he did not want to be drawn into the scandal involving the PTL ministry.

"That's one dog I don't want anything to do with," Robertson said, referring to the controversy over which Jim Bakker lost his television ministry because of an admitted sexual liaison with a former church secretary.

In his speech Wednesday, Robertson said he expects to formally announce in September as a Republican candidate for president.

Robertson praised the media's role in the Gary Hart controversy, saying Hart's moral standards were an appropriate thing for the public to know.

"I would hate to think of the president of the United States having someone other than his wife bedding down in the White House," Robertson said.

"I would think that the president would at least have the moral standards of Marine guards," he said, alluding to a recent scandal in which

Marine guards were accused of allowing free access in the U.S. embassy in Moscow to female KGB agents with whom they had a sexual relationship.

Hart withdrew as a Democratic candidate for president after reports linking him to Donna Rice and questions about his marital fidelity.

During a brief question-and-answer session with the public, Robertson was asked about the Iran-Contra controversy and said a lot of the controversy was due to biased reporting by "an unpatriotic national press."

The nation's long-range goal, he said, should be the "elimination of communist tyranny in every nation on Earth, including the Soviet Union and Cuba."

Robinson also called for restraint on government spending and no new taxes. He said polls show him leading Vice President George Bush in several states and that he feels confident he can carry Texas.

Robertson was scheduled to be in Santa Fe, N.M., for a breakfast this morning and then go to Denver and to various Iowa cities.

Cullen Davis' wife returns to stand today

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The key alibi witness in a multimillion-dollar wrongful death trial returns to the stand to explain why she never told a grand jury in 1976 that Cullen Davis was in bed with her the night a killer gunned down four people at the defendant's hilltop mansion.

Karen Master Davis, 38, once the defendant's mistress and now his wife, testified Wednesday she awakened at 12:40 that August night 11 years ago and Davis was in bed beside her at her suburban Fort Worth home.

She told the same story to an Amarillo jury in 1977 that acquitted Davis of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

Then as now, the compelling question concerning her testimony was why she neglected to mention the critical awakening to a Fort Worth grand jury nine days after the shootings.

She said under oath then that she took two or three sleeping pills at 9 or 9:30 p.m. and did not awaken until Davis' brother Ken telephoned at 4 a.m. to say police were looking for Cullen in connection with the shootings.

Prosecutors at the Amarillo criminal trial had tried to convince jurors that Karen, after her grand jury appearance, concocted the 12:40 scenario to help Davis avoid conviction and a possible death penalty.

Mrs. Davis had also insisted before the 1976 grand jury that Davis told her on Aug. 4 he returned home the night of the shootings shortly before 11 p.m. That scenario conflicts with Davis' contention now that he returned home around midnight after going to dinner and a movie alone.

Under abbreviated cross-examination Wednesday, Karen said she "obviously" was mistaken about what Davis told her. She was to return to the stand today for more questioning.

The current civil case is a consolidation of wrongful death suits filed against Davis by his ex-wife Priscilla, 45, and her second husband, Jack Wilborn, 66.

Their daughter, Andrea, was the killer's first target. She was shot in a utility room and left to bleed to death on the basement floor of the $6 million mansion.

The gunman, dressed in black and wearing a woman's black wig, critically wounded Priscilla and a young mansion visitor, Gus "Bubba" Gavrel, and killed Priscilla's live-in boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30.

Gavrel's date that night, Beverly Bass, then 18, escaped unharmed.

The three survivors testified previously that Davis was the man in black.

Karen Davis, the 13th defense witness, told the jury she awakened for no apparent reason that fateful night and noticed the time on a lighted digital clock.

At 12:40 a.m., two lay dead and two lay wounded at the mansion and the killer was chasing Beverly Bass across the darkened grounds.

The shootings occurred at the height of a bitter divorce suit between Cullen and Priscilla in which Priscilla allegedly was demanding a $50 million settlement. She later received $3,475,000.

With Priscilla looking on, Karen portrayed Cullen as a born-again, Bible-reading Christian who is a devoted husband and a "compassionate, tolerant and loving" father to her two sons by a previous marriage.

Parents of fraternity pledge request grand jury transcripts

AUSTIN (AP) — A Dallas couple have asked a state district judge to release sealed transcripts of grand jury testimony that would help them answer a string of agonizing questions about the alcohol-poisoning death of their son.

Mark Seeberger, an 18-year-old pledge of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at the University of Texas at Austin, was found dead in his dormitory room Sept. 18 after swallowing from 16 to 20 ounces of rum during a fraternity outing.

"We'd really like to find out what happened that day, that night and afterwards," the youth's father, Jeff Seeberger, told state District Judge Bob Perkins in a hearing Wednesday. "Just for peace of mind."

A grand jury empaneled by

Perkins reviewed Mark Seeberger's death and found that even though he was handcuffed during the fraternity-sponsored ride, he was not coerced into drinking the rum.

The pledge's parents are seeking to obtain the sealed transcripts of the grand jury investigation in which approximately 20 were questioned before the grand jury. Jeff Seeberger's testimony came during a hearing requesting those records. Perkins postponed a decision until June 25.

Prosecutors in the Travis County District Attorney's Office oppose releasing the transcripts.

Although the grand jury declined to return indictments in the case, it issued a report that was critical of fraternity leaders who "engaged in an effort to suppress cooperation by witnesses to the incident toward investigative authorities."

Because no charges were filed in the case and because grand jury proceedings are secret, there has been no public testimony about the pledge's death.

During the hearing, Seeberger testified that although prosecutors allowed him and his wife to read the transcripts and take notes from them after the investigation was over, questions still remain. He testified that of the transcripts he and his wife had time to read, he was particularly alarmed by the "Watergate approach" that some of the people involved took in trying to thwart the investigation into his son's death. He said he would like more time to examine those records.

Jeff Seeberger said he and his wife wanted the transcripts because none of the people with their son the night he died would tell them what had happened. He said attorneys hired by the family to look into the possibility of filing a civil suit against some of

Rains continue across Texas

By The Associated Press

Rain continued across most of Texas today as the state's weather remained under the influence of a subtropical high pressure system over the Southeastern states.

The system pumped tropical moisture across the state from the Gulf of Mexico, triggering rainfall that ranged from light to moderate rainfall to brief, heavy showers.

A flash flood watch covered the Hill Country, Edwards Plateau, Southeast Texas, South Central Texas and the coastal bend through tonight.

Skies were partly cloudy early today over the Panhandle and extreme West Texas and mostly cloudy over the rest of the state.

Forecasts called for mostly cloudy skies with a chance of showers and thunderstorms statewide through tonight and into Friday. Skies will be clearing over West Texas.

Lows tonight will be in the 60s and 70s.

Highs Friday will be in the 80s and 90s.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s in West Texas and in the 70s elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 53 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains of Southwest Texas to 80 at Galveston and Corpus Christi.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 65 at Amarillo, 72 at Wichita Falls, 73 at Fort Worth and Waco, 74 at Austin and San Antonio, 73 at Houston, 77 at Brownsville, 61 at San Angelo, 68 at Lubbock, 67 at Midland

Pope asks Poland to honor accord

TARNOW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II today called on the government to honor its agreements with the now-outlawed rural Solidarity movement, declaring that Polish farmers must be elevated from "second-class status."

At a Mass before more than 1 million people about 80 miles from the Soviet border, the pontiff spoke of the accord for the first time since he began his visit Monday.

He did not cite Solidarity by name, but referred instead to the city near Tarnow in which the agreements were signed by the government in February 1981, the heyday of the first free labor movement in the Soviet bloc.

John Paul said the agreements were an attempt to find a "solution to various painful problems. It would seem that in the present time these agreements should not only be passed over in silence, but should find their full realization."

American fertility at new low, unlikely to change soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — American fertility has fallen to a new low, and that's unlikely to change in the next few years, according to population experts at the Census Bureau.

After peaking in 1957 during the post-World War II baby boom, fertility has been declining steadily, bureau reports show.

Fertility "seems relatively stable now at a low level," says Donald E. Starnsin, chief of the population estimates branch at the bureau. "The baby boom is over and ... there is no particular reason to expect, in the near future, a turnup."

His comments followed publication of a bureau study Tuesday that reported the nation's 1986 general fertility rate was 64.9. That means there were 64.9 live births for every 1,000 women ages 15 to 44. The figure was down from 66.1 a year earlier and slightly below the prior record of 65.0, recorded in 1976.

The fertility decline comes during an era in which many young people are pursuing educations and careers in lieu of marriage and families, leading some to speculate that many births are only being postponed.

"To some extent it's a postponement, but I can't believe ... that the level from a couple decades ago will return. It isn't likely to happen; it's dropped off too much," Starnsin said.

"People are concerned with the quality of life, and if they have to choose between having more children and maintaining the life they have experienced, I expect they will go towards quality of life," Starnsin added.

"It's harder maintaining a family now, with both adults working. Having more women in the labor force discourages having as many children as people did 20 or 30 years ago."

A development that could help boost fertility, Starnsin suggested, would be creation of "a national child-care system that is a lot better than what we have now. But that is expensive, and who is going to pay for it?"

The 1985 general fertility rate is the lowest in records going back to 1930.

While detailed statistics prior to 1930 were not available, Starnsin commented: "I can't believe that in the 19th century, and before 1930, considering the size of families then ... it was lower than that."

The general fertility rate peaked in 1957 at a whopping 122.7 births per 1,000 women ages 15 to 44.

That was the top year of the post-World War II baby boom, the record year for births in the United States with the arrival of 4,322,000 babies.

Last year there were 3,687,000 births in the United States, down from 3,750,000 the year before.

The new study, "United States Population Estimates and Components of Change: 1970 to 1986," also reports on other population measures, including:

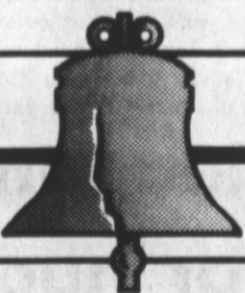

The Jan. 1, 1987, national population totaled 243 million, up 2.2 million from a year earlier.

And, there were 8.7 deaths per 1,000 population. The death rate has fluctuated in the 8.5 to 8.7 range since 1977, after declining from 9.4 in 1972.

DOE

has decided to exercise selective rigidity in its interpretation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, reserving its flexibility to programs having greater apparent political consideration, like the second repository delay.

"The only assumption the Deaf Smith community is left to make at this point is that Congress is the remaining vehicle by which our needs, now or in the future, can be met. The WDIC is committed to work through the Governor's office and the State's Congressional delegation to secure this protection."

Neff says the community has two alternatives, the first is an appeal to the Comptroller General for an opinion on the legality of DOE issuing advance payments. "There is no clear indication that this would be a successful route," he says and offers the less than addition to the budget as a "viable option and one Mr. Rusche has indicated he will work toward."

Combest disagrees, "I don't think, very honestly, that the chances of that are good, the budget process has gone far and the change would require legislation which I feel would draw fire from those who are opposed to legislating in this manner."

Combest says he has requested the legal authorities who have researched the situation for DOE to draw up a proposal which would make necessary changes to the existing act and permit advanced payments. "I have requested DOE support changes in the law which will allow this and I have asked them to draft legislation which I will introduce in the House," he stated, "I think we are going to have to see some changes in the Act."

Though legalities are the prime reason Neff credits for the decision he admits that consideration of setting a precedent and problems in terms of the county making reimbursements overpayments, should the site be closed down, also created possible conflicts.

According to Neff, Rusche is testifying on Capitol Hill today about the Monitored Retrieval System DOE is proposing to use for nuclear waste storage and about the difficulty the agency is having in working with the needs of local people within the confines of the law as set out in the Act.

Simons is planning a conference call with Rusche later today. He says, "I want to discuss the reasoning behind the decision and our options in greater detail." Moore adds that the WDIC will report the conclusions reached by an intensive assessment impacts caused by DOE's move into the area at the next meeting scheduled for June 18.

Ann Landers Dead pets may be kept

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for a woman who wrote about the death of her adorable 14-year-old cat, "Chow Chow." He ate some house plants that were toxic and died. Had I know where to reach the lady I would have given her a call and told her that Chow Chow could have been freeze-dried and kept forever.

Yes, Ann, it's true. Many people are doing this now. Anyone who is interested, should call (501) 731-2904 and get the details.—Your Friend in Arkansas car full of kids he agreed. Well, Dad got terribly angry and is now going to another doctor.

My sister and I have children who love their grandfather. We want them to have this dear man in their lives for as many years as possible, and we want him in our lives, too. We are all convinced that he will live much longer if the car keys are taken out of his hands for good. Please tell us what to do.—Worried Wanda in California

DEAR FRIEND: I was interested and called the number you suggested. I reached Larry R. Winston, one of the owners of the Cache River Taxidermy. Larry told me that freeze-drying involves the removing of all moisture from the tissues of the animal so the cells are not destroyed and the body doesn't collapse. (This is done by machine). The finished product is sometimes painted.

This procedure can be performed on any pet. The most common subjects are dogs and cats. A medium-sized cat is $225 (kittens, $175). They also do squirrels, beavers, minks, snakes and bullfrogs. No skunks, please.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Dad is 80 years old, a successful businessman with a great sense of humor. He is an all-around wonderful person.

The problem is his driving. He runs stop signs, stops when there are no signs, never checks his mirror when he changes lanes and goes the wrong direction on one way streets. Dad gets cantankerous when any of us insist on driving. He resents the aging process, but then who doesn't?

I called up his doctor a few weeks ago, explained the problem and asked if he would please phone Dad and tell him it wasn't in his best interest to drive anymore.

The doctor was reluctant to make the call, knowing Dad's temperament, but when I told him about a near-miss that could have killed a

DEAR WORRIED WANDA: At first blush this might sound like a dirty trick, but considering the circumstances I believe it is warranted.

Go to the police station nearest your father's home. Explain the situation as you have explained it to me, or, better still, take this column along and say, "I wrote this letter."

Ask the officer in charge if he will have someone tail Gramps. If the dear man is as lousy a driver as you say he will be stopped for a ticket in no time. When the police see that he is a menace to society, they will have his license taken away and in order to get it back he would have to pass a driver's test. That should make a passenger out of him for good.

DEAR READERS: Several weeks ago I printed a poem about a lad who was humiliated when he struck out in a Little League baseball game. I didn't know the author of that poem entitled, "He's Just a Little Boy." But Donald Boomershine of Birmingham, Ala., did. And so did dozens of other folks. It's Bob Fox.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Abundant Life

DISCOURAGEMENT COMES
By Bob Wear

Discouragement comes to all of us now and then, and can become a heavy burden for us; however, it need not be overwhelming. The two principal sources of discouragement are the knowledge of our own deficiencies, and the threats to our well-being which come from the world around us. It is helpful to know that we can learn to cope with both of these aspects of life.

We must learn to recognize our personal deficiencies for what they are, and there are two things to do. We can take a good look at our personal deficiencies, decide which can be corrected and begin to work for this improvement. If there are some that we must accept as being part of us, we can learn to accept these graciously and make the best of our life situation. With all of this, we must make sure that our personal expectations are true and reasonable. We can live with this, and do reasonably well. There is a very real sense in which we can be always improving ourselves, and, in doing this we will counteract much of the harmful influence of discouragement.

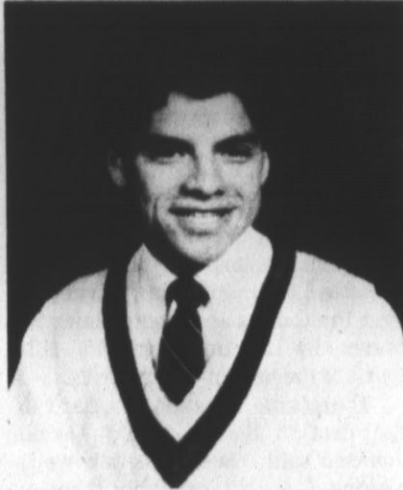

"Face your deficiencies and acknowledge them, but do not let them master you. Let them teach you patience, sweetness and insight.

When we do the best we can, we never know what "miracle" is wrought in our own life or in the life of another."—Helen Keller, speaking from unusual experiences.

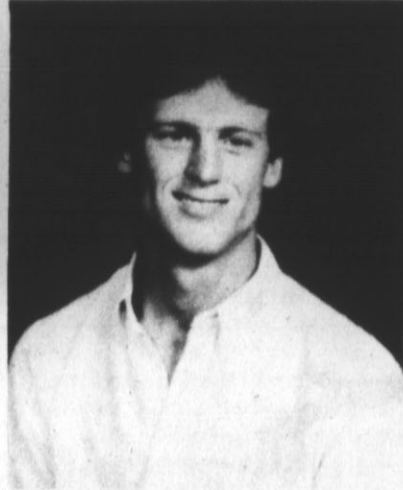

The distress we experience because of the threats to our well-being which come from the world around us have the potential to cause discouragement. It seems that we are being constantly bombarded with bad news, of one kind or another. The news coverage during any one day is enough to cause us to feel discouraged, if we permit it to dominate our thinking. We must not let this happen.

There is still much good in our world, and we must keep this in mind and be encouraged by it. The Psalmist, David made a statement that seem worthy of consideration. "I would have become discouraged, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the Land of the Living."

Snowflake
The Greek word "kryllos," or frost, is the correct word for a snowflake. A snowflake is formed when hydrogen and oxygen atoms are held together by electric charges. Size and elaborateness of a snowflake is determined by the temperature at which it is formed.

Coveted award, scholarships given recently to Newton

Jay Newton, 1987 graduate of Vega High School and son of Donita Rule of Wildorado, has been awarded the national I Dare You Leadership Award in addition to two scholarships presented to him at commencement exercises.

The I Dare You Award is made available each year by the American Youth Foundation in cooperation with high schools across the country. It is given in recognition of personal integrity, balanced living and motivation for leadership.

The award was first offered in 1941 by William H. Danforth, founder of the Ralston Purina Company in St. Louis, Mo. He dared young people to achieve their highest potential and to influence others through lives of service.

The award gets its name from the "I Dare You", written by Danforth in which he commends the balanced life of mental, physical, social, and spiritual development as the backbone of leadership.

In addition to a certificate of recognition, Newton received a copy of the book and a scholarship to attend a two-week national leadership conference sponsored by the American Youth Foundation. Over 6,000 schools and 4-H programs participate in the I Dare You Leadership Award each year.

Newton was presented the Lela Stockton Memorial Scholarship for $150 from the Palo Duro Baptist Church and the James "Pedro" Scott Memorial Scholarship for $100 each semester for the first two semesters of college.

During his senior year, Newton as named Mr. School Spirit, was involved in FHA Hero, served as co-captain of the varsity football team, and was awarded the DeKalb's Outstanding Agriculture Student Award.

To overcome 3-1 deficit

Celtics have big challenge

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics must do what's never been done if they are to keep their NBA title. And they must do it against the league's best team.

No club has overcome a 3-1 deficit in the championship series. The Los Angeles Lakers hold that advantage over the Celtics and would claim the crown by winning tonight's fifth game of the best-of-seven series.

"There's no question it's hard as the devil," Boston guard Dennis Johnson said. "Seeing as how we're playing L.A., it's probably three or four times as hard."

The Celtics must beat Los Angeles three straight times, twice on the Lakers' home floor at the Inglewood Forum, to become the first repeat champion since Boston in 1968-69.

The Lakers never lost three straight games in compiling a 65-17 record this season or two in a row at home. They are 46-4 there, including a 9-0 playoff mark, and romped over the Celtics in the first two playoff games at the Forum. Boston is 4-16 in its last 20 road games.

"Sure, it could be done," Los Angeles forward James Worthy said about Boston winning three consecutive games, "but I think we'll have a lot to do with that."

"I think it's possible," Lakers forward Mychal Thompson said, "if we get above ourselves and think we're better than we are and think we have it all wrapped up."

How can they avoid that trap? "We just have to think how sweet it's going to be" to win their second championship in three years, Thompson said.

Boston knows the feeling, having won a league-high 16 titles. But things turned sour for the Celtics Tuesday night when they blew an eight-point lead in the final 3:20 and lost 107-106 on Magic Johnson's hook shot with two seconds left.

"If we could have won Game 4, it would have been very special because the Lakers have been the best team in the league all year and we would have been tied with Game 5 at home," Boston forward Larry Bird said.

"From past experience, when we've been up 3-1, I've always thought we had it won," he added.

One thing Boston seems to have on its side tonight is the homecourt advantage. It's 103-6 at Boston Garden since the 1985 playoffs began.

But during that span, the Lakers have done better than the Celtics there, winning four of seven meetings.

Odds to play pro sports are 837 to 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rewards of a career in sports are great — the glamour world of million-dollar contracts, glory and media attention — but the chances of achieving it are small, according to the Labor Department publication Occupational Outlook Quarterly.

The report says that 1,006,675 high school boys play football, nearly 494,000 play basketball and 391,000 are on baseball teams.

But at the major league level, baseball employs 725 players, the National Basketball Association has 276 and the National Football League has 1,280 players.

That means that an estimated 1,891,675 athletes are competing for 2,261 professional jobs. At that rate, the odds of any high schooler making a team are 837 to 1.

With grand slam home run against Padres

Ashby leads Astros to 10-1 rout

By The Associated Press
Alan Ashby said all he wanted to do was get the ball in the air, but he got enough air to get the ball over the centerfield fence for a grand slam homer.

Ashby's grand slam broke up a scoreless tie in the fourth inning and helped power the Astros to a 10-1 rout of the San Diego Padres Wednesday night. He also contributed an RBI single.

"I just wanted to get the ball in the air," Ashby said. "A ground ball in that situation could have killed the rally."

"The wind must have been blowing out," the Astros catcher joked about the grand slam in the Astrodome.

Ashby entered the game with a .306 batting average, and is playing well enough to merit consideration as an all-star, according to Astros manager Hal Lanier.

"Look at his stats and compare them with the other catchers in the league, he's having an all-star season," Lanier said.

"He's hitting over .300 and he's done most of our catching. He's been very consistent," Lanier added after Ashby raised his average to .313. It was Ashby's third grand slam homer of his 12-year career and came off Storm Davis, 1-7, who went four innings and gave up four runs on four hits.

Mike Scott, 7-3, lowered his ERA to 2.29, third in the National League, and increased his National League-leading strikeout total to 102, but wasn't too happy with his performance.

Last season's Cy Young Award winner struggled with his control, walking five in seven innings while striking out seven and allowing three hits.

"You have games like that sometimes, when your control isn't very good, and tonight was one of those nights," Scott said.

"Mike is the type of pitcher who doesn't have to be at his best to win," Lanier said. "He pitched himself out of jams and got seven strikeouts."

The Padres squandered scoring opportunities in the first inning when they had men on second and third and failed to score and in the fourth inning when they loaded the bases with no one out only to see a double play ground ball and a strikeout end that chance.

The lone Padres run came in the fifth inning on a sacrifice fly by Tony Gwynn, the league's leading hitter with a .367 batting average.

Denny Walling opened the fourth inning with a single. Glenn Davis was hit by a Storm Davis pitch. After a groundout by Kevin Bass advanced both runners, Jose Cruz walked to load the bases, setting the stage for Ashby's homer. It was his fourth homer of the season.

The Astros increased the lead to 10-1 in the fifth on a two-run homer by Walling, an RBI double by Bass, Ashby's RBI single and a two-run single by Billy Hatcher.

Walking, jogging club planned at YMCA

The YMCA Walking and Jogging Club is being organized in Hereford, with one club walk to be planned each month, plus other special events.

The club will hold its kickoff walk on Saturday, June 20, with a two-mile "fun walk." The "fun walk" will start at 9 a.m. at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

Check-in time is 8 a.m. to 8:45 a.m., and a time for stretch and flexibility is scheduled for 8:20 a.m.

YMCA program director Jerry Brock said, "Most people can safely begin a walking program, even if they've never worked out before, as long as they start slowly. It's best though, to check first with your doctor if you are over 40, are overweight, have a history of heart or circulatory troubles, or have any other health problems you're concerned about."

Brock also noted that the regularity of walking is more important than the distance or one's speed in walking. He said individuals should go slower at first, and then gradually build up their walking speed.

Registration fees for the club are $10 for Hereford and Vicinity YMCA members, and $20 for non-members of the YMCA. For more information on the YMCA Walking and Jogging Club, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

Porter's home run rallies Rangers

By The Associated Press
Darrell Porter was expecting an intentional walk when he stepped to the plate to pinch hit in the eighth inning of a game against the Seattle Mariners, but then the Mariners decided to pitch, and they paid a price.

The 35-year-old catcher hit a three-run homer into the right field upper deck to cap a five-run inning as the Texas Rangers came from behind to win 9-5 Wednesday night.

Pinch-hit homers are nothing new to Porter, who set a Ranger record with his third of the year, but he entered the game hitting just .178 on the year in 45 at bats.

Mariners Manager "Dick Williams

probably looked at my stats," Porter said of the decision to pitch to him. "In that situation I thought they were going to put me on because I have some power."

Mariners reliever Steve Shields, who entered the game in place of Bill Wilkenson, 0-2, threw the first pitch outside to Porter.

It was only the second upper-deck homer of the year in the Kingdom.

Porter, who has played with the World Series teams while with the Kansas City Royals and St. Louis Cardinals, has had to adjust to a limited role since joining the Rangers last season.

"It's tough to get your stroke zeroed in when you don't play too much," he said. "But I came into the season trying to improve on my pinch hitting."

The Rangers trailed 5-2 entering the eighth inning as the Mariners took advantage of Texas starter Charlie Hough's wildness.

Hough walked five batters, hit two and balked three times in six innings, while catcher Mike Stanley allowed two passed balls.

The Mariners scored twice in the second, once in the third and twice in the fourth.

The Rangers tagged Mariner starter Lee Guetterman for nine hits in 6 1/3 innings, but managed just two runs, one on Larry Parrish's 14th home run in the fourth inning.

But with one out in the eighth, the Rangers put together three consecutive singles to load the bases.

Wilkenson got ahead of Oddibe McDowell, 0-2, but the Rangers centerfielder hit Wilkenson's next pitch to the gap in right-center field to bring the Rangers within one run at 5-4.

"It opened up the doors for Darrell," said McDowell, who hit safely in his eighth straight game. "Darrell just hit the ball out of sight."

"Oddibe's hit was just as big as Porter's," Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said.

The Rangers added two insurance runs in the ninth, one on Pete Incaviglia's 13th home run of the year.

Mitch Williams picked up his fourth win of the year against three losses, pitching one scoreless inning in relief of Hough, while Dale Mahoric picked up his sixth save of the year going the final two innings.

NFL to start screening cities for expansion

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle says the National Football League will begin screening cities for expansion next year and eventually would like to award two new franchises for the 1990 season.

Rozelle told a group of journalists attending The Associated Press Sports Editors Convention Wednesday that the league will appoint an expansion committee in March 1988. The target date for selecting cities will be some time in early 1989.

"I think the whole country wants it," Rozelle said, adding that the climate for adding teams has improved since the NFL emerged from lengthy and complicated litigation with the defunct United States Football League, the Los Angeles Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum.

"It's not a political move," he said, listing a number of cities, including Phoenix, Jacksonville, Baltimore and Oakland, as potential candidates. "Anywhere we go, we're going to insult some politicians," seeking a franchise for their area.

Rozelle said the criteria used to evaluate cities for expansion would include stadium, population, football interest, weather and the availability of a domed stadium, plus geography if the NFL decides to realign its divisions.

Attracting retirees could boost communities

The oldest "baby boomer" turned 40 in 1986, which means that the median age of the nation's population will increase rapidly during the next few decades. That could directly impact many local communities.

"With the retiree age group now the fastest growing segment of the population, communities might want to look at ways of attracting these 'senior citizens', suggests Dr. Don Stebbins with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Projects suggest the number of people in the 65 and older age group will be about 38 percent of the nation's total population by 2030. That's a dramatic increase from 1970 when this group represented only about 17 percent of the total population, notes Stebbins, a community development specialist.

"Retirees in the future will be more mobile, better educated; and healthier; have higher incomes and more accumulated wealth; and be more active consumers than past generations of retirees," Stebbins points out. "Thus, attracting retirees to relocate may be an excellent economic development strategy for many Texas communities."

Retirees don't want jobs and they bring experience, purchasing power and potential investable funds to a community, notes the specialist.

"Retirees' consumer needs, especially in leisure time activities, services, housing and medical care, are frequently different from other age groups, but this doesn't have to be a problem," says Stebbins. "Astute business men and women will react to these differences and turn them into economic opportunities." Texas already is an attractive destination for retirees, the specialist points out. A recent U.S. Department of Agriculture study identifies the majority of nonmetropolitan Texas counties east of a line from Del Rio through Fort Worth as retirement counties. "These counties had 15 percent or more net immigration of people aged 60 and over from 1970 to 1980," notes Stebbins. "It's not just a case of people retiring where they have lived and worked; instead, a lot of people have deliberately chosen to move to these counties."

On the other hand, some Texas communities cannot become desirable destinations for retirees, and others prefer not to encourage immigration for a variety of reasons. "However, the evidence is clear that parts of Texas already attract retirees. I believe more counties could benefit from this growing sector of our economy with aggressive marketing," says Stebbins. "As local leaders consider the economic direction of their communities, I recommend that they give some serious thought to retirees."

The word "plastic" comes from the Greek plastikos, which means "able to be molded."

Elderly America:

Myth-vs-Fact

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column is the last of five to be presented addressing the economics of old age. Information is provided by the Villers Foundation's "On the Other Side of Easy Street" furnished by Hereford Senior Citizen's Center executive director, Margie Daniels. The column is being produced in conjunction with May being designated as Older Texan Month and will end with the local Jump on the Wagon Jubilee set for June 13 at the Senior Citizen Center.

Many people believe that Social Security and Medicare provide some help to the elderly poor, but these programs mainly subsidize the wealthy.

The facts show another picture, however. The two federal programs provide benefits solely on the basis of age or disability, without any proof needed of poverty. Thus, while it is true that these programs may supplement some wealthy elderly people's income, both Social Security and Medicare have been and continue to be crucial sources of support for the elderly poor and economically vulnerable. Cutbacks in these programs, even if well-intended could significantly harm millions of elderly Americans with low incomes.

It is a fact that Social Security is a crucial weapon against poverty among the elderly. Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan has observed,

"Social Security has removed much of the fear of growing old, which is an extraordinary accomplishment for our society."

The fear of growing old, in an economic context, grows from the fact that "fixed income" means that there is little an elderly person can do to improve a dismal economic situation. Before the creation of Social Security, millions of elderly people feared being dependent on others and scared.

Yet Social Security benefits currently lift 9.4 million of the elderly out of poverty. Without this federal program, the poverty rate among elderly America would nearly quadruple, jumping from 12.4 percent to 47.6 percent in 1984. Without such a program, millions of the elderly would be entirely dependent upon private charities, public assistance programs, or their children.

In more than half of all the poor families headed by an elderly person, Social Security accounts for at least 80 percent of total family income. Considered a powerful anti-poverty program, Social Security has reduced the poverty rate for older Americans from 35.2 percent in 1959 to 12.6 percent in 1985.

Social Security's weighted benefit formula provides greater wage replacement for people who had lower earnings throughout their working lifetimes. Such an equity consideration recognizes the fundamental fact that low-income people are unlikely to have been covered by private pension plans during their working years, nor are they likely to have been able to accumulate substantial savings. Thus they are heavily dependent on Social Security in their retirement years.

Cutbacks in the Social Security program would have a harsh impact on the low-income elderly. In 1985, the Congressional Budget Office analyzed a pending proposal to free the Social Security cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) and discovered that it would have dropped between 420,000 to 470,000 people into poverty (assuming approximately a four-percent inflation rate.) Elderly women would be affected disproportionately, because women account for the overwhelming majority of beneficiaries who are already poor.

Medicare is the only defense against the crippling cost of health care from millions of the elderly. The program consists of two parts: Part A (Hospital Insurance) and Part B (Supplemental Medical Insurance.)

Ninety-eight percent of elderly Americans were covered under Part A while 97 percent were covered under Part B in 1984.

Through Medicare, health care was made more readily available to groups traditionally underserved, such as low-income people living alone, non-whites, people living in the South, and those in rural areas generally.

As a result of the program, short-term hospital admissions for the elderly increased 29 percent from 1966 to 1977 while some surgical procedures, such as cataract operations, became relatively commonplace.

Perhaps the most significant impact that Medicare has had can be seen in the death rates. In the years since the Medicare program became fully effective, mortality rates for older men and women have fallen dramatically; the elderly are living longer than would have been predicted on the basis of pre-Medicare historical trends.

For many of the elderly poor, Medicare is not just the first but the only line of defense against crippling health care costs. Only 36 percent of elderly poor households not in institutions have Medicaid protection, and only 29 percent carry private so-called "medigap" insurance supplementing Medicare benefits.

The widespread view that Social Security benefits are paid out without regard to need is incorrect, since Social Security benefits are weighted to favor beneficiaries at the lower end of the economic scale.

The SS payment formula is structured so that recipients who had low earnings during their working years will receive retirement benefits constituting a considerably higher percentage of past earnings (known as the "replacement rate") than retirees who had higher earnings.

Because of this formula, SS benefits constitute a much larger part of a typical low-income retiree's financial picture than is the case with higher-income retirees. For individuals and couples with annual incomes below $5,000 in 1982, Social Security accounted for 80 percent of their income, on average. By contrast, Social Security represented an average 19 percent of the incomes of retirees with incomes above $20,000.

Three out of every seven elderly Americans are either poor or economically vulnerable, showing that the U.S. has a long way to go before victory can be declared against the ancient economic foes of the elderly: poverty, economic vulnerability, fear, and uncertainty. Perhaps a better understanding of the facts—instead of the myths—will enable Americans to take some of the fear out of the economics of aging.

Many 'dairy' products are just imitations

June is dairy month, and while dairy products are in the spot light, consumers may want to take the time to find out what "real" dairy products are.

"There are many products displayed in supermarket dairy cases, but not all of them are actual dairy products," says Mary Kinney Sweeten, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "Consumers should also be aware that all dairy products aren't kept in the dairy case."

According to Sweeten, "A dairy food is made from milk, not vegetable fat or protein. This includes a wide variety of products ranging from ice cream to cheese to evaporated milk."

"Some dairy products may take consumers by surprise," the specialist says. "For example, pasteurized process cheese is cheese that has been ground, melted and pasteurized. Emulsifiers are added to keep the milkfat from separating, and vinegar, salt and other spices may be added to enhance the flavor and texture, but it's still "real" cheese."

Weigh pros, cons of bulk meat buying

Before purchasing a large quantity of meat, such as a side of beef, weigh the advantages and disadvantages. That low cost per pound of meat may not be as inexpensive as it appears.

Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service says, "Bulk meat can be a good deal if you realize what you're getting. If you don't enjoy stews, soups, and hamburger, it might not be the best buy for you."

According to Hunt there is about a 15 to 20 percent difference between the advertised carcass weight and the actual packaged weight. This is due to the removal of fat and some bone.

"The amount of each type of cut on a steer also may be deceiving. For example, of a 1,000 pound steer, approximately 590 pounds will be carcass. Approximately 425 pounds of that are retail cuts. Of those retail cuts, about 131 pounds will be steaks, 126 pounds will be roasts, 90 pounds will be hamburger, and 42 pounds will be stew and other miscellaneous meats," says the specialist.

"Don't forget about the cutting and wrapping fees when figuring out if bulk is a good buy. Fees vary from place to place, and depend partly upon the size of the package required. Some varieties of milk may also be misleading. Nonfat dry milk, and evaporated and condensed milk are simply milk with different amounts of water removed. Condensed milk also has an added sweetener, she explains.

The Food and Drug Administration has set up standards of identity for all milk and real dairy foods to guarantee their uniformity, value and wholesomeness. These standards regulate such things as milkfat and moisture content of cheese, and weight per gallon of ice cream.

Sweeten says, "Identifying "real" dairy products may be a little tricky because imitation products are often packaged like the "real" thing. The easiest way to identify a dairy product is to look for the "real" seal on the container. If it's not there, read the list of ingredients. In "real" dairy products, milk or cream constitutes 100 percent of the essential ingredients."

Join the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. in celebrating dairy month by learning about "real dairy products, and making the "real" seal part of smart shopping habits.

quested. Smaller cuts for small families cost more to wrap because of the added amount of materials needed. Larger cuts are a little less expensive, but may not be practical for everyone," she says.

Another expense to consider is adequate freezer space. Additional space can usually be rented, if required, but that is costly and inconvenient. Rented freezer space means running to the rented freezer whenever it's time to stock up at home. This uses time and money.

"Bulk beef is an investment that should be well thought out," she says. "Don't let the misleading advertising and the lure of 'cheap' meat per pound get in the way of deciding if buying bulk is the best answer."
