

Memories of 22-year term good

Cain's clerking career concludes

B.F. Cain...
only good memories

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
A quarter-century of public service ends today for longtime County Clerk B.F. Cain as the 66-year-old civil servant concludes a 22-year tenure as the county's chief record keeper.

Cain, who also served on the local school board from 1957-63, is relinquishing his office to political newcomer David Ruland, who defeated Cain in the Democratic Party Primary last spring and then withstood a challenge by a write-in candidate to win the election.

Cain, grandfather of three, plans to keep busy with the business of the Noon Lions Club of which he is financial secretary, and with the business of the Hi Plains Underground Water District 1, which he has worked with since 1969.

Except for a few visits downstate to his two sons and an occasional trek to Clouderoft, NM, Cain says he'll find plenty to keep his busy here in Hereford.

"What use is there in taking trips," he said after being asked if he planned to travel? "This is home!"

When the personable then-farmer was elected to his post on Nov. 8, 1960, a virtual complete turnover in the county clerk's office occurred.

Cain, selected by the Democratic Party as its candidate for the post being held by Mrs. Lurline Smith after the death of her husband the previous spring, got 1,693 votes to win his job.

Republican Oneta Rudd got 471 votes, while write-in candidate Abie Crume polled, 1,095.

Citing other interests, Mrs. Crume resigned her position in the clerk's office immediately after the election, and Mrs. Cynthia Vines was appointed chief deputy clerk.

"I was supposed to be sworn in on Jan. 1," Cain recalled. "But, with Abie and Mrs. Smith gone, the county had to have someone right away so I was sworn in the day after the election."

Now, after serving five terms in of-office, Cain recalls that it was rough going for the first few weeks after he was sworn in.

"We got some temporary help from other offices in the courthouse, and Mrs. Vines and I managed to get things rolling," he said.

The Cain-Vines combination must have been a good one since Mrs. Vines just left the office some four years ago, and Cain had faced no opposition for re-election until Ruland threw his hat in the ring last spring.

A lot of changes have occurred since Cain left the farming business to drive a desk instead of a tractor. In November, 1960, the HISD reported a "record enrollment" of 2,942 students, and Republican candidates swept the county in state and national races.

The Richard Nixon-Henry Cabot Lodge ticket defeated the Kennedy-Johnson team 1,924-1,299, and "college professor" John Tower drew the nod in the U.S. Senate race over Johnson by a 1,703-1,608 margin.

At the Star Theatre, Lana Turner, Anthony Quinn, Sandra Dee, and John Saxon were raising eyebrows in the suspense thriller "Portrait in Black," and local 4-H'ers Jim Higgins and LuAnne Higgins got headlines in The Hereford Brand as the county's Gold Star winners for that year.

Early modest recovery predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearing the year's end on a promising note, the government said today its main forecasting gauge for national economic health rose 0.8 percent in November, the seventh gain in the past eight months.

Although many economists say the recession probably was persisting last month, the November gain in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators appeared to be a new signal that there will be at least moderate recovery early in 1983.

In a separate report today, the Labor Department said

Americans' initial claims for unemployment benefits rose from 533,000 to 544,000 in the week ending Dec. 18. But the new claims were still far fewer than the weekly totals that exceeded 600,000 during most of the fall.

The leading-indicators index is a compilation of 10 separate economic statistics covering a wide variety of areas, including layoffs, inflation, stock prices and orders for factory goods.

When most of those components rise, overall business activity is supposed to rise soon thereafter.

In November, the report said, seven of the indicators rose, led by a big increase in the nation's money supply.

Also showing improvement were an increase in the average work week, a decline in initial unemployment-benefits claims and increases in orders for consumer goods, building permits for future housing construction, prices of certain raw materials and stock prices.

Indicators showing weaker performance in November included business deliveries, total liquid assets and contracts and orders for new plants and equipment.

After declining for 11 straight months, the index began a rise that has been interrupted only by a 0.5 percent decline in August. The index rose 0.8 percent in September and 0.3 percent in October.

Those three results were revised downward in the new report. They had been reported earlier as a decline

Five inches of ice was the hazard causing a New Mexico Transportation bus to slide off U.S. 60 and land on its side about 11 miles west of Hereford just after noon Wednesday. All 18

Thick ice cited in bus rollover

An Amarillo bound bus landed on its side after sliding off an iced U.S. 60 between Summerfield and Black just after noon Wednesday.

All 18 passengers and the driver were examined at Deaf Smith General Hospital for minor injuries. Only two were hospitalized overnight for observation, according to Gerry Hollinger, DSGH nursing director.

Ice was five inches thick on a two-mile stretch of U.S. 60 about 11 miles west of Hereford, according to Deaf Smith County deputy Bud McClendon.

All of Hereford's ambulance and rescue crew answered the call.

Traffic was snarled in both lanes for about a quarter of a mile while bus passengers loaded up for the hospital trip.

The bus, operated by the New Mexico Transportation Co., had come almost to a stop before it rolled to its side in the field, authorities said. The bus was about 20 yards from the roadside.

Top 10 local stories chosen

What were the top 10 local news stories of 1982?

The Brand staff will select those top news-making articles and list them in Friday's edition of the newspaper.

The Dec. 31 issue will have year-end reviews on general news articles, and Les Giles will review the year in sports.

Since New Year's Day is one of the issues when the Brand does not publish, there will be no Sunday paper. The Friday edition will be a combined Friday-Sunday issue insofar as regular news items and features are concerned.

The Brand office will be closed Saturday, and will resume its regular deadline schedule Monday.

Officials to take oaths Saturday

The oath of office will be administered to 10 Deaf Smith County elected officials Saturday morning, and the public is invited to the brief ceremony.

The ceremony is set for 8 a.m. Saturday in the county courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse. Wilma Clark, assistant county clerk, will administer the oaths.

Only one new face will be among the 10 officials elected in November, as the other nine were re-elected to office. David Ruland will take the oath as the new county clerk, replacing veteran B.F. Cain.

Soviet talks said 'earnest'

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan says U.S. officials feel the Soviets are negotiating in earnest at Geneva and he is "a little optimistic" about the prospects for an arms reduction agreement in 1983.

The president, arriving Wednesday at this desert playground for a four-day New Year's holiday, indicated American representatives at the strategic arms reduction talks think negotiations are moving along.

Meanwhile, White House sources said Reagan was likely to name former national security adviser Brent Scowcroft to head the commission that will study possible deployment modes for the 100 MX missiles Reagan wants to build.

Scowcroft served as deputy White House national security adviser under Henry Kissinger during the final two years of the Nixon administration and was national security adviser under former President Gerald Ford. He is now a partner in the consulting firm of Kissinger Associates, Inc.

The announcement of the commission's makeup could come as early as today, Reagan agreed to name the commission after Congress voiced strong objections to his plan to place the missiles in a "Dense Pack" formation in underground silos near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Expense fund set

A hospital fund has been established at Hereford State Bank to defray expenses incurred for the care of twin daughters born prematurely to Mr. and Mrs. Terry Huffaker.

Malisa Kay, 2 lbs., 10 oz., and Kristin Michelle, 2 lbs., 8 oz., were born on Christmas Day at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Malisa was reported in stable condition today. She remains on a respirator, however has had complications with her heart and lungs. Kristin was taken off the resuscitator Wednesday. Both will be in the hospital for some time.

The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Willis Duggan and Rev. and Mrs. Bob Huffaker.

Talks compromise 'in sight'

KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — Lebanese, Israeli and American negotiators began their second round of negotiations today after residents of this Galilee town welcomed them with an Old Testament offering of bread and salt and the cheers of schoolchildren.

The negotiators met around a doughnut shaped table in Beit Edelstein, the community center, which like many other buildings in Kiryat Shmona bore the scars of Palestinian guerrilla shells.

The town's chief rabbi greeted the negotiators with the traditional offering of bread and salt, and 2,000 schoolchildren cheered and waved Israeli and Lebanese flags.

The talks are aimed at ridding Lebanon of foreign forces and establishing a lasting peace along Israel's northern border. Israeli and Lebanese negotiators remain divided over which issue should be taken up first, but sources close to the negotiations said a compromise was in sight.

The sources, who declined to be identified by name or nationality, suggested the two issues could be discussed simultaneously, either in subcommittees or in some other format to be chosen at today's talks.

The negotiations began Tuesday in the southern Beirut suburb of Khalde and will alternate between here and there for their duration.

The first round saw Israeli and Lebanese negotiators present opening proposals.

Lebanese officials said Wednesday they were counting on the United States to work out a compromise.

Turner elected to S&L board

Dwight Turner, executive vice president and branch operations manager of the Security Federal Savings & Loan Association, has been elected to that corporation's board of directors it has been announced by president J.E. Sweet.

Turner, formerly manager of the Security Federal branch office in Hereford, will assume his seat on the board immediately.

Turner was named executive vice president in 1981 and moved to his office to Security Federal's downtown branch, located at 15th and Polk in Amarillo.

Turner graduated from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales with a Bachelor degree in business education. He is also a graduate of the Graduate School of Savings & Loans at Indiana University. He joined Security Federal in 1968 and was associated with another savings association from 1971 until 1975 when he rejoined Security Federal. He was appointed Hereford branch manager when that office opened in July of 1975.

Turner is past secretary of the Texas Panhandle Home Builders, past board member of the Hereford Industrial Foundation, and past board member of District 13 of the State Bar grievance committee. He is currently a board member of the High Plains Epilepsy Foundation and board member of the Amarillo Growth Association with the Chamber.

Turner and his wife, Carol, have one son, Kevin, age 14. They attend St. Paul Methodist Church in Amarillo.

Security Federal Savings and Loan Association currently has assets over $250 million. It is the largest panhandle-based savings and loan association. There are now six Security Federal offices in Pampa, Amarillo, Hereford and Wheeler.

Soviets launch attack on Pope

*MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, in a stinging attack on Pope John Paul II, has accused him of being a rigid anti-communist who cloaks political rhetoric in prayer.

The unusual personal attack carried Wednesday by the official news agency Tass also accused the Roman Catholic Church of carrying out subversion in Poland and other East-bloc nations.

There was no explanation for the attack, which denounced the Vatican for using the "cover of religion" to engage in "anti-communist propaganda on a broad scale."

Condemnations of the church typically have been distributed by the government-run media by quoting articles written in other Eastern European publications and focusing on

New Year's Eve reservations down

By DAVID GREEN Associated Press Writer

New Year's Eve revelers who drink and drive risk a visit to jail after their night on the town, but staying at home may be in style anyway if hotel and restaurant reservations give any clue.

Several states have enacted tougher drunken driving laws and many areas will have stepped-up police patrols on Friday night. In New Jersey, the drinking age rises from 19 to 21 when the clock strikes midnight.

Imbibers who have second thoughts about hitting the road will be able to get a lift for a happy New Year in some areas, where Good Samaritans will be serving up coffee and transportation to the tipsy.

A number of holiday nightspots report their reservations aren't as heavy as hoped, but some fancier spots say business is booming.

Reservations for the New Year's Eve party at the Marriott Hotel in Omaha, Neb., at $110 a couple, are "below expectations," said Keith Cook, sales manager.

"With all the spending for Christmas, people just are not in the mood to spend more money because there's not much money to spend in the first place with the economy," Cook said.

The New Year's Eve ticket price has been cut from $10 to $5 at the Hummingbird, an Indianapolis nightclub where co-owner Steve Magers says business has fallen 40 percent.

But at New York's Waldorf-Astoria, where the party will be nationally televised on CBS, reservations are running ahead of last year, said spokeswoman Melinda Lande. The cost ranges from $200 to $225 a person.

Thousands are expected to show up for an equally famous celebration across town when a lighted "Big Apple" drops down 1 Times Square Tower at midnight. At nearby Nathan's, the famous fast-food restaurant expects to sell 3,400 to 4,000 hot dogs for $1.03 apiece.

Mother hopes autopsy will explain appetite

HOUSTON (AP) — A 550-pound man who couldn't stop eating has died and his mother says she hopes an autopsy will explain her son's appetite.

Glen Thraikill, 22, died about a month after suffering a mild heart attack, said his mother, Mary Eva Thraikill.

Thraikill, who died Sunday at Eastway General Hospital, had difficulty breathing because his excess fat interfered with the expansion of his lungs, relatives said.

His heart could not pump adequate blood through the lungs and his blood oxygen supply dropped, causing carbon dioxide to build up and affect his brain, according to relatives.

Services were scheduled today. Jesse Guillian, owner of the funeral home handling the arrangements, said a special casket was being made and more than one gravestone would be used to bury Thraikill at Forest Park Lawndale Cemetery.

Mrs. Thraikill said she had authorized an autopsy to determine if there is a medical explanation for her son's problem.

Relatives said he became so obese as a child that he could not attend public school and required tutors to help him with his studies.

At age 6, they said, he weighed 125 pounds. Tests showed no chemical abnormality and doctors said his problem was caused by overeating.

He was hospitalized and placed on a 25-calorie-a-day diet consisting of gelatin, cola and vitamins. But he became violent, tearing up sheets and toys, and had to be locked up to keep him from stealing food.

His weight had dropped to 92 pounds when he was released two months later. Doctors said most 6-year-old children weigh between 45 and 60 pounds.

Thraikill continued to have weight problems, said his mother, adding, "He had been back and forth out of the hospital so many times."

Former CIA agent's trial postponed

HOUSTON (AP) — A defense attorney has been injured in a skiing accident, forcing a federal judge to postpone the trial of a former CIA agent accused of illegally exporting 20 tons of plastic explosives to Libya.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling delayed until Jan. 24 Edwin P. Wilson's trial, set to begin Jan. 3, after learning defense attorney Marian Rosen had been hurt, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Powers said.

Michael von Blum, an associate of Ms. Rosen, said he had little information about the accident.

Von Blum said Wednesday that he did not know when or how the accident happened or the extent of Ms. Rosen's injuries.

Wilson, 54, was indicted by a federal grand jury here on charges he smuggled the explosives from Texas to Tripoli in October 1977. Defense attorneys argued Wilson worked for the CIA when he dealt with Libya.

Wilson was convicted last month in Alexandria, Va., of seven conspiracy, firearms and export violations. All were connected to smuggling four pistols and an M-16 rifle to Libya, a nation the United States says has been a leading supporter of international terrorism.

He was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $200,000.

Wilson also faces two trials in Washington on various charges of supplying munitions for a Libyan terrorist training camp and conspiring unsuccessfully to kill a Libyan dissident in Egypt.

The investigation into his activities has continued, and prosecutors said more charges may be lodged against the former agent later.

Lunar eclipse draws crowds at observatory

By The Associated Press
Thousands of skywatchers were up early this morning to watch the earth's shadow pass across the moon.

"We're having a good turnout," said Kathleen Hedges, a spokeswoman for the Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles where the 600-seat auditorium was filled to capacity.

She said "a couple thousand" people were expected to turn out to view the lunar eclipse. "It's an extremely clear night," she said late Wednesday. "We have 200 to 300 other people just wandering the halls."

The observatory's 12-inch telescope was open to the public, she said, and several staff members and a local astronomy club were bringing their own smaller telescopes to set up on the lawn.

The eclipse, visible across the nation under largely clear skies, began at about 4:50 a.m. EST. The moon was totally obscured by 5:58 a.m. and started to reappear at 6:29 a.m.

The next total lunar eclipse visible across most of the United States is due on August 16, 1989. A lunar eclipse will be visible in California on April 24, 1986.

The last total lunar eclipse took place was in July.

Former worker pleads innocent to charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Amoco Oil Co. pipefitter has been ordered to stand trial Feb. 15 on charges he wrote a series of letters threatening to damage the company's Texas City refinery.

Alton S. Edwards, 40, pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of racketeering, five counts of using the mail for extortion and attempting to extort "employment and compensation."

Edwards faces up to 35 years in prison and $22,500 in fines if convicted on all seven counts. He has been jailed since Nov. 27.

U.S. Magistrate Ray McQuary refused Edwards' request to lower his $10,000 bond, which previously was dropped from $100,000. McQuary said $10,000 was a "very, very low bond based on the charges."

Pope

the church's role in Poland's chronic unrest.

The Polish-born pope was cited by name in an article Tass said appears in this month's edition of the journal Political Self-Education, published by the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee.

Tass said the journal takes note that Vatican policy is influenced by "the growth of aggressive designs of imperialism and the stepped-up activity of the opponents of detente," catchwords for the United States.

"Unlike his predecessors, the present head of the Catholic church ... has taken a much more conservative and rigid position vis-a-vis the socialist world," Tass said, quoting from the journal.

"It goes without saying that the present 'executor of St. Peter' prefers ... to speak the language of Christian prayer," Tass said. But it said the pope's statements are of a political nature and "the real thrust of his statements is clear."

It said the crisis in martial-law Poland was "born not in the wave of disorders that swept the country in 1980, but in the Catholic church."

Poland's martial-law government decreed martial law Dec. 13, 1981, after 16 months of strikes and challenges to the ruling Communist Party by the independent Solidarity union, which was formally outlawed in October.

Polish military rule will be relaxed at the end of this month, but many of the emergency decrees over the year have been entrenched in law.

Solidarity's leader, Lech Walesa, who was interned for 11 months after imposition of martial law, is a devout Roman Catholic. The Polish government took Walesa into custody earlier this month to prevent him from making his first public speech since his November release.

Tass said the political-journal article also maintains the Vatican trains and sends "specialists" in Roman Catholic propaganda to Eastern European countries.

Recovery

of 0.2 percent and gains of 1.1 percent and 0.6 percent, respectively. The new November figure is also subject to later revision when more complete surveys are available.

In the past, the national economy has at least begun significant recovery within a few months after the index began to rise. But recovery has been much slower in coming for the 1981-82 recession.

"It's long overdue," said Allen Sinai, senior vice president of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass. Commenting before the new report was released, he said the new gain is "yet another sign the recovery is just about here. The recovery is imminent."

Most other private analysts agree, as do Reagan administration officials. But no one is predicting robust recovery soon.

In fact, officials indicated on Wednesday that the administration's official projection for economic growth next year will be scaled back from previous estimates.

An administration review last July forecast growth in inflation-adjusted gross national product at a rate of 4.4 percent from the fourth quarter of 1982 to the fourth quarter of 1983.

The new projection, scheduled for release in January, will be only a bit over 3 percent, according to the officials, who asked not to be named.

One reason for the scaling back, they said, was the fact that the nation's foreign trade has deteriorated badly.

Most economists say that problem is at least partly due to severe recessions in many foreign nations and the relatively high value of the U.S. dollar in comparison with foreign currencies — two factors that tend to discourage foreigners from buying U.S. goods.

Curtailment of foreign markets hurts U.S. producers in turn, thus holding back U.S. economic recovery. And there are indications the problem is getting worse.

The latest evidence was a Commerce Department report on Wednesday saying the merchandise trade deficit for November was $4.1 billion, pushing the yearly total to $39.1 billion.

Commerce economists indicated the final yearly total would almost certainly pass the $42.4 billion record set in 1978. And department Undersecretary Robert Dederick said the trend indicates there will be yet another new record in 1983.

Cain's wife Morgan, a former secretary of First Christian Church for 19 years, has been with Property Enterprises for about four years.

talks. The 1979 SALT II agreement has not been ratified, but the United States said it will abide by its terms.

Earlier Tuesday, Reagan's spokesman sounded a less optimistic note. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Rowny's statement "reflects his judgment of what could be accomplished if the Soviets demonstrate equally good intentions" as those of the United States.

But the president, asked about Rowny's statement on a television interview, said:

"Well, I haven't heard that," Reagan said. "But I know that from our talking with them (the U.S. negotiators), they feel that the Soviets are really negotiating in good earnest, so we're a little optimistic."

Store, T-bone steak was 95 cents a pound, while lettuce was going at two heads for 19 cents, and coffee was 65 cents for a pound-can.

In the other local election that year Lanell Miller won the Tax Assessor-Collector's post with 2,709 votes to Republican opponent Verna M. Lyons' 642.

Cain says that in addition to having worked with a "lot of nice people" over the last 22 years, he gets satisfaction from his office's reputation for accurate record keeping.

"We have been told quite frequently that we have a fine set of records by those outside the county who come in and have to do some research," he said with pride. "That makes you feel good."

Methods of keeping track of the county's business such as marriage licenses, deeds, birth and death certificates, and other records, have changed greatly, Cain said.

"Deaf Smith County has been more advanced than many of the counties in the state," Cain said, explaining that many more up-to-date methods were implemented by his office before they were accepted in other courthouses.

"We were one of the first counties in the state to put records on microfilm," he said. "That was in the early 1960's, and in the late 1960's we went to copy flow, a method of getting records on microfilm and paper at the same time."

The current means of record-keeping, microfiche, was implemented in 1981. "With that you can come in to read something on film, and the machine will also make you a copy of the document just by you pushing a button," Cain explained.

"Some other area counties are just going to the copy flow method, which is just about obsolete."

The outgoing clerk says the most trying time for him during his tenure was the added burden of voter registration duties for his office.

"We had some headaches, especially with the re-districting ordered by the Justice Department," he said. "That was really rough, since we had to have it re-done, and it's all been worked out and going smoothly now."

Another big change is in salaries. Cain began his job in county government with a $5,700 per-year salary. His position now draws $18,913 annually.

"I've enjoyed every bit of the past 22 years," Cain said. "I'm sure I could have found some jobs that paid a lot more, but not more satisfying."

I hope David does well in the job, and hope he enjoys it as much as I did."

Cain can well be proud of his service, not only to the county and school district, but to the community in his work with the United Way, Salvation Army, Whiteface Booster Club, and local baseball leagues.

His tradition of service is carried out in his sons Frank and Phillip, too. Frank is a partner in a law firm in Ft. Worth, while Phillip is on the staff of Scott & White Hospital in Temple.

Cain's wife Morgan, a former secretary of First Christian Church for 19 years, has been with Property Enterprises for about four years.

Our precarious perch

This next is so you won't run out of things to worry about.

Tylenol suspect James Lewis is also accused of writing a threatening letter to the White House in which he detailed a plan to use radio-controlled model airplanes to jeopardize the security of our President.

It is not funny. It is not even impractical. During my son's growing-up years many of our happiest hours were spent buying and flying radio-controlled model airplanes.

I don't know if you know — but the electronic controls have become so sophisticated that these model planes can be maneuvered altogether as skillfully as real airplanes.

Aerobatics with precision. Formation flying. Dogfights. Altitudes which rival man-carrying aircraft.

With alcohol fuel in tiny pistons fired by glow plugs, RC-model planes have flown more than 100 miles an hour. Some big ones.

I have built one with a nine-foot wingspan.

These flying model aircraft — controlled by a pilot on the ground with controls corresponding to those in real aircraft, ailerons, elevator, rudder, throttle — have been used to string cables across canyons, have been used for spy missions over enemy lines, have been adapted with sensors to scout air pollution over the Houston ship channel.

And, yes, they have been used for ship-to-shore drug trafficking on our Gulf Coast.

All of us experienced in RC flying have recognized the potential for sabotage. To talk publicly about it could only plant seeds in sick brains — but among ourselves we worried about it.

Now — as a direct result of this letter threat to the White House — a longtime leader of the Academy of Model Aeronautics, John Clemens, has asked the Radio Control Frequency Committee of that organization to study and recommend an appropriate response.

The FBI, responsible for out internal security, is familiar with radio-detonation of bombs and incendiary devices, and is not unmindful of the greater threat of "flying bombs."

A specific area — the White House for example — conceivably could be defended from the intrusion of radio-controlled aircraft with jamming devices on vulnerable frequencies.

However, the extent to which this might snafu other essential electronic communication and devices could be a deterrent.

I have asked around among Chicago area modelers and equipment suppliers. Nobody remembers James Lewis.

His inexperience is further indicated by the overkill suggestion in his letters that RC model aircraft might be used to scramble the communications of the President's Secret Service protectors.

The greatest threat which is now receiving serious study is the potential use of such devices to airdrop bug-bombs, gas-bombs or explosives. Security agencies may be in debt to James Lewis for encouraging accelerated development of countermeasures.

Second day of racial violence continues in Miami's Overtown

MIAMI (AP) — Uneasy calm returned today to a sealed-off black slum after a second day of racial violence that left 21 people injured when black youth gangs attacked motorists, set fires and hurled rocks and bottles, authorities said.

The death Wednesday evening of 21-year-old Nevell Johnson Jr., whose shooting Tuesday by a Hispanic officer triggered a riot, apparently failed to cause any further outbreaks.

The Justice Department said the FBI would investigate the shooting. City officials late Wednesday declared the Overtown district "secure and calm," with no injuries and only one arrest between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. On Tuesday, an alleged looter, 17-year-old Alonzo R. Singleton, was shot and killed by a policeman.

Riot-equipped police officers still ringed a 192-square-block area early today, and about 30 other officers gathered in a park five miles to the north in Liberty City, where racial violence claimed 18 lives two years ago.

Sporadic throwing of rocks and bottles was reported and at least one business was looted in Liberty City, police said.

"Nothing is really happening right now," a Miami police spokeswoman who identified herself only as S. Dalton said after midnight.

City Manager Howard V. Gary ordered police to stop using tear gas because of fears that it had incited new violence Wednesday. He said it had not been necessary to impose a curfew Wednesday night.

Police used gas during the day to disperse gangs of black youths roaming the run-down neighborhood, tossing rocks and bottles, overturning and torching cars.

At least 21 people were injured in the two days of violence, Ms. Dalton said. A total of 36 have been arrested. Among the victims were an elderly woman who was badly shaken when a gang attacked her car Wednesday and snatched her purse. A policeman received minor injuries when a rock was hurled through his windshield and a motorist was hit in the face with a chunk of concrete, authorities said.

In Tallahassee, a spokeswoman for Gov. Bob Graham said the National Guard had been alerted in case conditions worsened. Other cities in the Dade County area had their forces on standby.

The disturbances came during Orange Bowl week celebrations and the beginning of the winter tourist season. All Orange Bowl events remained scheduled, but subject to cancellation depending on the severity of the disturbances, said Ed Goss, publicity chairman for the Orange Bowl Committee.

The huge Orange Bowl parade is scheduled Friday night and the parade route would take it within three blocks of Overtown.

The district was reopened to traffic Wednesday, but then sealed off again, with police called back in, after residents and business owners called to demand protection. Liquor stores and gas stations were ordered closed.

Gary urged motorists to avoid Interstate 95 and the Dolphin Expressway through Overtown after black youths hurled rocks and bottles at suburb-bound cars Wednesday afternoon. Downtown state and county offices, and some private businesses, closed early so workers could get home safely. Engineers used a computerized traffic-light control system to speed the outbound flow.

The violence began after Johnson was shot by one of two Hispanic officers as he played a video game at an arcade.

Police Chief Kenneth Harms said Johnson was carrying a gun in his waistband and told to freeze, but made a sudden movement and was shot by officer Luis Alvarez, 32, who had two years experience on the Miami force. But some witnesses said Johnson did not have a gun and called the shooting unprovoked. Johnson died at Jackson Memorial Hospital at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Police spokesman Angelo Bitis said Johnson was charged before his death with carrying a concealed weapon, a .22-caliber handgun.

Alvarez and his partner, Louis Cruz, 22, were transferred to desk duty pending an investigation. A third officer, Curtis Reeves, 33, who shot and killed the alleged looter Tuesday night, was also transferred to desk duty.

In Palm Springs, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing and was asked about the Miami disturbances, he replied, "I just don't think there's any room for that, for violence in the streets."

Police apprehend juveniles
Two juveniles who tried to walk out of a western store sporting unpaid-for boots were apprehended after a foot chase by the store manager, policemen, a juvenile officer and deputies.

The 12- and 15-year-old boys were turned over to juvenile authorities for their attempted theft from The Range, 233 N. Main.

Other thefts included a $100 stereo from 146 Ranger and a power booster from 310 W. Fifth.

Sheriff offices moved

The move of the Department of Public Safety, the driver's license and weights and licensing offices has allowed moves for the sheriff's office.

Since those three offices moved to a new courthouse annex at Third and Schley, Sheriff Travis McPherson has moved himself and civil deputy Harry Hardesty to Room 102, the former driver's license office.

McPherson's old office space will probably be used for jail remodeling.

Ann Landers Sister is a troublemaker

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister says technically I am a prostitute. She claims since I give my husband all the sex he wants in exchange for a place to sleep, food, a few gifts and a $30-a-week allowance, I am the same as a call girl.

She also says I should withhold sex until I receive more money. According to her, if he had to buy it on the outside it would cost at least $100 a week.

I disagree with both her prostitution and sex-strike concepts. I feel that since I put in full time every day doing my husband's laundry, cooking, cleaning and marketing, he owes ME as much sex as I want. I figure the financial compensation I receive in the form of an allowance is a fringe benefit for a job well done. What do you say?—St. Louis Woman

DEAR WOMAN: I say your sister has alfalfa where her brains belong. Not only is her reasoning ridiculous, but she has a mean mouth and could be a serious troublemaker if taken seriously. Tell her to bug off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Steamed in California" started off by saying, "Alert your readers to the fact that something terrible is happening to our teenagers. They are growing up without a sense of right or wrong because their parents lie to protect them when they get into trouble."

It's unfair to put all teenagers in one category. I am 17. I have a sense of right and wrong, and my parents don't lie to protect me. I am just like a lot of other normal kids. I attend high school, have a job, good friends and enjoy life. I plan to go to college and amount to something someday.

We are living in awfully tough times. I realize I am luckier than most, but nothing terrible is happening to us teenagers. We are going to make it. Have faith in us! Support us! Stick up for us! We are your future! Please care.—Teenager

DEAR TEENAGER: I will! I do! I care! And so do millions of others. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must comment on your ridiculous answer to the professor's wife who tried to tell you that her husband works as hard as the "Fortune 500" but for a fraction of the salary.

My husband was a full professor with tenure at a prestigious technical university for five years during the '70s. He is a highly respected authority in his field.

We spent all our savings just to live. When we were faced with the problem of sending our own sons to college...he quit the university and took a job in government that paid almost twice as much.

People can't eat prestige. If society values professors, they ought to pay them better. The year we left good old "Teach U" 55 other faculty members also left—some for as little as $5,000 a year more.

Professors of the 1980s live in a dollars-and-cents world like everyone else. And they are grossly underpaid. Goodbye Mr. Chips.

DEAR MRS. CHIPS: Thanks for the update. You really put the picture in perspective.

Home economics cited as a good investment

COLLEGE STATION—Among the human service professions competing for government and business dollars, home economics offers financial supporters the most for their money, contends a leading home economist.

By working to prevent family problems, rather than having to treat them, home economists provide more cost effective services than professionals involved in crisis intervention, said Dr. Kinsey Green, executive director of the American Home Economics Association.

"Home economics focuses on the family as the basic social and economic unit," said Green. "It is the only profession and the body of knowledge which approaches the family through a preventive, educational, developmental mode—as opposed to crisis intervention, therapy or clean-up remediation."

Green specifically noted the effectiveness of home economics combined with the nation's extension education system. In a recent address during a Texas Agricultural Extension Service conference, she said, "Extension is without a doubt the single most cost effective manner of educating families to be self sufficient... it has been replicated the world over.

"Extension serves populations throughout the life span so the concept of life-long learning is best evidenced in the extension program," observed Green. "Extension is the only system we have which intentionally relates the research base to the people and the needs of the people back to researchers."

Yet within the extension education system and other economic fields, Green said home economics need more resources to get their job done.

"Never have home economists had enough dollars to fund an adequate research base or to carry out a program in the public schools' enough manpower and operating funds for extension, community development and human service programs; nor enough positions in the corporate sector to adequately form a bridge between the corporate entity and the consumer," Green told the Texas home economists.

Green encouraged home economists to lobby for the funds and support the need to "carry out the programs we have the unique capability to carry out."

"It is significant that we're more than a century old. We're not a Johnny-come-lately," said Green. She concluded that home economics is a universally necessary knowledge and that there are hundreds of fields where its influence ought to be felt.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, Dec. 30, the 364th day of 1982. There is one day left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 30, 1911, the Revolutionary Provisional Assembly in China elected Dr. Sun Yat Sen as that nation's first president.

On this date: In 1853, the United States made the Gadsden Purchase from Mexico, obtaining territory that would later become southern parts of Arizona and New Mexico.

In 1903, more than 500 people were killed in the Iroquois Theater fire in Chicago.

In 1944, Greece's King George proclaimed a regency to rule that nation and virtually renounced his throne.

In 1949, Vietnam won sovereignty from France. Ten years ago: Israeli jets raided an army base in Syria in retaliation for the Syrian shelling of the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights.

Five years ago: South Korea agreed to let businessman Tongsun Park return to the United States to testify about alleged bribing of political figures.

One year ago: Pope John Paul II expressed "anxiety" and "trepidation" over the fate of those arrested and interned by the martial law regime in his native Poland. Today's birthdays: Entertainer Bert Parks is 68. Singer Bo Diddley is 54.

Thought for today: "All religions must be tolerated, for every man must get to Frederick in his own way."—Frederick the Great of Prussia (1712-1786).

Laser facelifts may prove ineffective

Faces with sags, bags, and wrinkles have become more of a concern in our appearance-conscious society. So have the treatments that try to turn back the efforts of time on the human skin.

Some methods work but others don't, warns the Texas Medical Association.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons say one ineffective method is the "non-surgical facelift" involving the laser.

The FDA says some chiropractors, beauty shop operators and a few physicians are using a device that aims both electric current and the low-powered laser at the skin. The plastic surgeons' society charges that the machine only temporarily irons out wrinkles by making the skin swell. The wrinkles return when the swelling subsides in three to four hours.

Medical authorities say the laser, similar to that used at store checkout counters, apparently is not strong enough to cause harmful health effects unless it is aimed into the eyes for a few seconds.

Besides potential harm to consumers' health, the FDA has been concerned about harm to consumers' pocketbooks for something the agency says does not work. The complete laserlift series of 10 to 16 treatments can cost from $500 to $1,000. The fee does not include recommended monthly "booster" sessions.

The FDA has sent letters to those using the laserlift method, cautioning them not to advertise the procedure as "safe and effective." The letter notes that continued use of the laser around the eyes can damage retinas.

Further FDA action has been stalled by the lack of people filing complaints. The plastic surgeons' group says this may be because people are reluctant to admit they got a facelift that did not work.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

It's the end of another year.

During this final week, newspapers will be filled with what happened in 1982. Who died. Who was born. Who was the best and the worst. Who made the front page. Who made history.

Humor columns are rarely remembered. They're like a Chinese dinner. Two hours after reading them, you want to laugh again. They appear from time to time to guide readers down the yellow brick road so that in seeing your life through an unstable person's eyes, you might find some humor and perspective in it.

A couple of weeks ago, I gave a writer's seminar and the question that kept coming up was, "It's easy for you to write humor. Things are going well. But what about people who are depressed? How do they overcome it?"

I'm just lucky, I guess. Looking back, there were so many fun things in 1982 I missed.

A son moved home from a foreign country with guitar, stereo, motorcycle helmet (motorcycle was in L.A.) and memories of a 1975 economy. He struck fear in our hearts when he announced, "I'm not working for less than $6.50 an hour."

Mother was pushing her cart through a supermarket and slipped on a bottle of gin and broke her arm. Her first words after surgery were, "If I had drunk it, I wouldn't be here."

My father went into the hospital for surgery and lightning hit new house being built. No letter in four months from daughter who moved to coast. L.A. son had car stolen and wrote his brother to send helmet for motorcycle.

New house was vandalized. Favorite uncle died back east, and vacation was cancelled when husband developed back problems. Mom and Dad and my entire wardrobe went on the vacation instead. Son announced, "I refuse to work for less than $3.25 an hour."

Husband went in hospital for back surgery and I went to bed with flu. Dog started to lose fur on right foot. Battery went dead on car we were just ready to sell. Planned another vacation with friends. He lost his job.

New house was finally finished. Old one is not sold. Son leaves for Peace Corps for an hourly rate which he refuses to talk about.

This is the 151st and last column of 1982. Frankly, I'll be glad to see 1983. If I have to laugh at this one one more time I'm going to be sick.

Redskins place five

7 Cowboys to Pro Bowl

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Danny White and running back Tony Dorsett are among a conference-leading seven Dallas Cowboy players selected to the National Football Conference for this season's Pro Bowl game.

White, making his Pro Bowl debut, is the NFC's highest rated passer with 142 completions in 215 attempts for 1,888 yards and 16 touchdowns. Dorsett paces the NFC in rushing with 592 yards and is seeking his first rushing title.

Other Cowboy players named today to the team by the NFC's 14 head coaches and the National Football League Players Association members include, defensive tackle Randy White, a six-time Pro Bowl participant, tackle Pat Donovan, defensive end Ed Jones, cornerback Everson Walls and middle linebacker Bob Breunig.

The Washington Redskins placed five players on the NFC team for the Feb. 6 game in Honolulu — quarterback Joe Theismann, wide receiver Charlie Brown, safety Tony Peters, kick return specialist Mike Nelms, making his third straight appearance, and kicker Mark Moseley.

Theismann will be the NFC's starting quarterback. Joining him in the starting backfield will be Dorsett and Mike Andrews of Atlanta, who has rushed for 516 yards.

Other offensive starters for the NFC are wide receivers James Lofton of Green Bay (28 catches for 568 yards) and Dwight Clark of San Francisco (an NFL-high 56 catches for 859); tackles Donovan and Mike Kenn of Atlanta, guards B.C. Thielmann of Atlanta and Randy Cross of San Francisco, center Jeff Van Note of Atlanta, and tight end Jamie Giles of Tampa Bay.

The defensive starters are, ends Jones and Lee Roy Selmon of Tampa Bay; tackle Randy White and Doug English of Detroit, cornerbacks Walls and Mark Haynes of the New York Giants, outside linebackers Lawrence Taylor of the Giants and Hugh Green of Tampa Bay, middle linebacker Harry Carson of the Giants and safeties Nolan Cromwell of the Los Angeles Rams and Peters.

Among the other offensive players selected on the 40-man squad are, wide receivers Charlie Brown of Washington and John Jefferson of Green Bay, tackle Keith Dorney of Detroit, guard Kent Hill of the Los Angeles Rams, center Larry McCarren of Green Bay, tight end Paul Coffman of Green Bay and running backs George Rogers of New Orleans and Billy Sims of Detroit.

Other defensive players are, end Dennis Harrison of Philadelphia, tackle Dan Hampton of Chicago, outside linebacker Matt Blair of Minnesota, cornerback Ronnie Lott of San Francisco and safety Dwight Hicks of San Francisco.

Dave Jennings of the New York Giants is the punter.

The NFC holds a 7-5 edge in Pro Bowl victories over the AFC, including six of the last eight.

Six Chargers named

Allen heads AFC list

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland's Marcus Allen, the first-year sensation with the Los Angeles Raiders, will be the only rookie starting for the American Football Conference in this year's Pro Bowl game.

Allen, the 1981 Heisman Trophy winner from Southern Cal, has rushed for 571 yards on 140 carries and leads the league with 12 touchdowns. He also has caught 35 passes for 361 yards, eighth among AFC receivers.

Allen was named along with the other AFC starters Wednesday in balloting among the 14 head coaches and the National Football League Players Association members on each team.

Joining Allen in the backfield are quarterback Dan Fouts of the San Diego Chargers, the NFL's top-ranked passer and Freeman McNeil of the New York Jets.

Fouts is one of six Chargers selected to start for the AFC team. The others are wide receiver Wes Chandler, tight end Kellen Winslow, guard Doug Wilkerson, defensive tackle Gary Johnson and place kicker Rolf Benirschke.

Cincinnati's Kris Collinsworth will start at the other wide receiver spot. Besides Wilkerson, the offensive line has New England's John Hannah, a six-time choice, at the other guard, with Anthony Muñoz of Cincinnati and Marvin Powell of the New York Jets at the tackles and Pittsburgh's Mike Webster at center.

The four-man defensive line has Johnson and Buffalo's Fred Smerlas at the tackles with Art Still of Kansas City and Mark Gastineau of the Jets at the ends. Pittsburgh's Jack Lambert, selected for his eighth Pro Bowl, will start at middle linebacker, flanked by Robert Brazile of Houston and Ted Hendricks of the Los Angeles Raiders. It will be Hendricks' seventh Pro Bowl.

In the secondary are cornerbacks Mike Haynes of New England and Lester Hayes of the Los Angeles Raiders with Gary Bararo of Kansas City and Donnie Shell of Pittsburgh at the safeties. Denver's Luke Prestridge is the punter with Benirschke the place kicker and Denver's Rick Upchurch the kick returner.

The game pitting the American Conference all-stars against the National Conference will be played Feb. 6 in Honolulu.

Borger Tournament

Rider nips Herd, 64-61

BORGER — Close, but no cigar. Hereford, a team accustomed to losing the close ones this season, saw it happen again Wednesday night in the opening round of the Borger Holiday Basketball Tournament here, dropping a 64-61 decision to Wichita Falls Rider.

As a result, the Herd, now 3-10 on the season, will meet the loser of tonight's Borger-Perryton game at 10:30 a.m. Friday. Borger slaughtered Tulsa, 89-27, in Wednesday's other opening round game, and will meet Perryton tonight at 8:30. Rider will meet Dumas at 6:50 p.m. "Again, it was a game we could have won," Hereford coach Bobby Decker said.

"We trailed all the way. However, we did get it down to one point with about four minutes to play, but couldn't get over the hump.

"Basically, we played pretty well. We shot nearly 44 percent from the field (28 of 64), but some crucial turnovers down the stretch did us in.

"It seems when we get close, toward the end, we wind up turning the ball over, then fall back. It's frustrating, especially on the kids, because they have played so hard."

Rider jumped out to a 20-11 first period lead, and led by nine (41-32) at the half. Hereford cut the difference to seven (54-47) as the final quarter began, and at one point in the final stanza trailed by only one.

Gary Long tossed in 18 points to lead Hereford. Steve Welch scored 11 and Brian Taylor added 10 plus nine rebounds. Jeff Streun and Terry Shelton each chipped in with eight points, while Shawn Patrick had four and Kevin Redus two to round out the scoring. Shelton pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds.

Of Hereford's 10 losses, six have been by six points, or less. And, those 10 setbacks have been by an average of 7.4 point.

Following this weekend's tourney, Hereford will return to District 3-5A play next Tuesday, traveling to Amarillo to take on Tascosa in boys and girls games.

Alabama still unbeaten

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forward Terry Williams scored a career-high 28 points to lead 6th-ranked Alabama to an easy 94-73 victory over 10th-ranked Georgetown in the championship game of the Winston Tire Holiday Classic basketball tournament Wednesday night.

Southern Cal defeated Wisconsin 86-76 in the consolation game. Williams

MAKING THE MOVE

SOURCE: Census Bureau. NEA/Moffitt Cecil

Americans are a mobile people, but somewhat less so in recent years. A Census Bureau report notes that 14 million households changed homes between October 1979 and October 1980, 18 percent of the national total. But that was down a full percentage point from the previous year, which also had registered a drop. The West was the movingest region with almost a quarter of all households acquiring new addresses. The Northeast posted the lowest rate.

A businessman fights recession

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of five articles on the impact of the recession.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Marty Kostere, founder and owner of United Block Co., supplier of building blocks and transit-mix concrete to builders and subcontractors, was upset.

"I can't believe we have so many brilliant people in this country, and yet we've been headed for disaster," he said.

Whoever is doing the thinking, he had said earlier, "is way off base, killing the economy. We have to get interest rates down to 9 percent or 10 percent. People are out of work, not paying taxes, not paying Social Security."

Kostere — trim, disciplined, straight-talking, and hardly looking his 70 years — is upset about many things.

Though he supports President Reagan, he is very concerned about the economy. "And about 'spilled' youth and labor," spendthrift cities and states, the size of the defense budget, taxes, unions.

Upset as well because he's had to lay off workers. Before the recession he had 35 employees. Now he has 20 workers, and as he spoke many of his 30 trucks seemed to be idle in the yard.

Kostere has been able to deal with recession by cutting expenses to the nub. Though his work force is half what it was, he claims volume and profit are off only 30 percent.

"Now we get a day's work out of them." Before, he claims, some workers "thought all they needed to do is show up and they'd get paid."

In that sense, and despite his earlier criticisms of economic policy, he feels Reagan has steered the economy onto the recovery road. "He made unions realize they can't go on getting everything they want."

Some presidents, snapped Kostere, who reminds people of Humphrey Bogart, "should have been impeached."

When business is good, Kostere says he can take in $3 million a year, and in very good years keep 10 percent of that, an amount he suggests isn't large when you consider all he put into the business.

In 1944, fearing he might become "a gray-haired grandfather playing for the kids" at high school proms, Kostere left music. He had played all over the country, taught, and sold instruments. He knew little about construction.

Driving around, he spotted the brick company, then "only a little lean-to." He and a friend bought it for $1,000 down and $30,000 to be paid over five years. Times were good. The business expanded.

United Block now is operated from a single-story, red brick building with green and white awnings and a lawn running 40 feet to the sidewalk. Behind it rises the mix plant, surrounded by a repair garage, a block factory, trucks and a five-acre yard and many piles of gray building blocks.

It costs a lot to keep it all going. "I have a mechanic who earned $34,000 plus $12,000 in fringe benefits," he said. "A new transit mixer costs $80,000. A train (a 37-foot-long hauler) runs $120,000."

Kostere has expenses on the tip of his tongue. Fleet insurance, $17,000 a year. License plates, $15,000. We pay a federal tax of $10 a year for each axle, and the train has 11 axles, so we pay $110 a that alone.

The list continued with the union pension plan. "We contribute to that, $5 a week (each) for all union people, the Teamsters. And $45.50 for health and welfare per person every week."

There is also unemployment compensation. Back in the office, Kostere calls his secretary. "How much do we pay for unemployment compensation?" he asks. "Eight and a half percent," she replies. "Of the entire payroll," said Kostere. The figure is high, he agrees, because of all his layoffs.

He handles dismissals himself. "Letting guys go is the very last step I take, and then only because the guy sandbagged, sat around or the job. It's not as if they're the productive people."

His feelings seemed ambivalent. "The poor working guy," he said later. "These guys working for you will work as hard as you do if you set a good example. None of these guys takes an hour off."

Networks to double-up on parade

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're seeing double New Year's Day, it might be the results of the night before or it might be Saturday's double coverage of the Tournament of Roses Parade, which will be broadcast live on both CBS and NBC.

If that doesn't send you back to the double martinis, maybe this will: Nabisco, makers of Oreo and Chips Ahoy! cookies and other foodstuff, has bought every commercial — 76 of them — on the two networks during the parade.

And every one will have Nabisco's new three-note musical signature, eight months in the making and guaranteed to bounce in your head even when your head stops bouncing. That jingle and its expanded song were written by former Motown record producer Billy Davis, who wrote "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing" for Coca-Cola.

It's not unprecedented for the networks to double-team an event. The first Super Bowl was on CBS and NBC, and major news events are carried by all three networks. The Tournament of Roses Parade has been on both CBS and NBC for years, receiving ratings almost as high as the afternoon bowl games.

Last January, the parade broadcasts on CBS and NBC each received a 16.8 rating and a 34 share, which translates into 45 percent of all TV households, 40 million homes and 70 million viewers. Similar numbers are expected Saturday.

What is believed to be a television first, however, is one company having 4 1/2 hours of exclusive sponsorship on two different networks.

Since it merged with Standard Brands in 1981, Nabisco, with annual sales of $7 billion, has tried to make the public aware that Planters Peanuts, Moosehead Beer and Butcher Bone Dog Snacks, among others, are in the Nabisco family.

The food conglomerate has such a variety of products that most commercials will be seen only once. According to Lee Abbott, Nabisco's vice president for marketing ser-VICES, 26 brands will be pitched on each network.

Nabisco, with an international advertising budget of $250 million, is paying the networks $4.5 million for the time.

Saturday's parade is a flowery flotilla for families. It's available to both networks simultaneously because the streets of Pasadena are public property, and parade organizers cannot extract rights fees, nor offer broadcast exclusivity.

In fact, independent station

KTLA in Los Angeles is also covering the parade and syndicating it nationally. If you prefer Hydrox cookies over Oreos, this telecast may be for you — Nabisco isn't on it.

"The two greatest stimulants in the world are youth and debt." Benjamin Disraeli

The underground economy is growing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Colette, a Redondo Beach hair stylist, gets $25 a cut in the salon where she works. But she'll do your hair at home for $15 — cash only, please.

Steve, a Topanga construction worker, makes a little extra by growing plants — some legal, some not.

O.J., a Venice laborer, says he's never filed a tax return and doesn't plan to start.

They are part of the underground economy — a thriving sector where billions of dollars change hands annually without formality and without tax forms.

Mother reunited with critically ill infant son at hospital

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — A 30-year-old woman's journey to see her critically ill son, hospitalized here after he was refused admittance to several Houston-area institutions, may speed the infant's recovery, a hospital official says.

On Wednesday, Christopher Lemley saw his mother for the first time since he was flown 170 miles to Scott & White Memorial Hospital here.

We are thrilled because this is what is important in a crisis situation," said Scott & White spokesman Charlene Davis. "I can't say for sure that it will help, but support among the family members and bonding is important in recovery."

The tiny infant, who suffers from hyaline membrane disease, was born two months premature on Christmas Day at Gulf Coast Hospital in Baytown. His lungs will not expand properly and he must be kept on a respirator.

Jana Lemley recovered from a Caesarian section at Gulf Coast, and then was flown here Wednesday by Life Flight from Houston.

She is just delighted to be with her baby," said Mrs. Lemley's father, Ron Bradhurst, of Crosby.

The whole thing has been a trauma for her since Christmas morning," he said. "It is much better now that she is with the baby and with her husband."

Doctors have speculated it could be three to four months before the baby is released from the hospital, but Mrs. Lemley will remain in Temple as long as necessary until the baby is able to leave," Bradhurst said.

HEALTH Adjust your lifestyle

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any other type of medicine besides Atromid-S to reduce cholesterol? I am 63 years old and weigh 180 pounds. I've been taking Atromid-S for the last four years.

I read a booklet the druggist included with my last prescription. It listed a number of things that can be caused by Atromid-S, such as gallstones. I would like to take something else if it were available and if it caused fewer problems. Of course I can give up the Atromid-S but my cholesterol count runs around 276 and I understand the normal is from 200 to 230.

I have been trying to reduce and watch what I eat but my count is still high.

DEAR READER — Some long-term worldwide studies have shown that Atromid-S may decrease the incidence of heart attacks but it does not decrease the death rate. Many questions have been raised about it. That often happens the longer a medicine is used as more is learned about it.

Look at aspirin. It has been used for years and now its use in children is questioned because of a possible relationship to Reye's disease.

Yes, there are other medicially without formality and without tax forms.

Along with the housewife who peddles her handsewn quilts at swap meets, the sidewalk drug dealer and the businessman who pays his workers "under the table," they are co-conspirators in a growing movement. And they are breaking the law by evading taxes.

No one knows just how much money California's underground entrepreneurs are generating, and federal officials make no attempt to rank the states with respect to their underground economies. But most observers agree that while the legitimate economy may be ailing, the subterranean sector is doing just fine.

"We know it's happening, but it's almost impossible to get a handle on it because of the legal aspect," said Dr. Ed Crosby, an economist with First Interstate Bank. "I've heard figures that it might be as high as 10 percent of the reported economy."

If the 10 percent figure is correct, California's underground economy amounts to more than $30 billion annually.

Officials at the state's Franchise Tax Board say they are being short-changed to the tune of $1.5 billion to $2 billion a year because of the underground economy. This "tax gap," they say, would eliminate California's budget deficit if it could be collected.

The federal "tax gap" was more than $87 billion last year, Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Roscoe J.

Egger told a congressional panel in March, with at least another $8 billion lost on unreported income.

"The tax gap has been a problem for years, but recently the dollars involved have reached alarming levels," Egger said, noting many small companies pay employees in cash, meaning there is no "paper trail" to follow to detect tax evaders.

Tax officials, while noting that most people pay what they owe, acknowledge that the number of cheaters is growing. A major reason, they say, is a widespread perception that the tax laws aren't fair.

"People feel the rich are getting away with murder, so they develop their own little form of tax shelter which is, 'You don't report your tip income, you don't report your interest income or you don't report your second job,'" said Robert Giannangeli, an IRS spokesman. "What I've heard is that people are tired of the level of taxation, that they feel the tax laws are inequitable."

Many people participate in both the surface and underground economies.

Vicki, 31, works in a Los Angeles health food store that withholds taxes from her 24 hours a day," she said. "Of course, they can't hold a premature baby, but they can hold the fingers, and the baby wrapped its little hand around one finger" of the mother.

A trust fund and savings account have been set up to defray the $1,000-a-day hospital bills facing the family, Ms. Davis said.

Lemley, 29, was unemployed at the time of the infant's birth but since has been hired by an auto-parts store.

"We all want the children's parents to go into the nursery room, who has been with the baby since its transfer to Scott & White, was private, said Bradhurst.

It is very traumatic for the mother, since she had never seen or heard the baby," said Mrs. Davis. "When the mother was talking from the Baytown hospital, she was telling her husband to touch her and hold her for me."

"We all want the children's parents to go into the nursery room, who has been with the baby since its transfer to Scott & White, was private, said Bradhurst.

It is very traumatic for the mother, since she had never seen or heard the baby," said Mrs. Davis. "When the mother was talking from the Baytown hospital, she was telling her husband to touch her and hold her for me."

LET FAITH CONSOLIDATE YOUR NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

As the season of fun and festivity draws to a close, let us give some serious thought to a worthwhile task which most of us have undertaken rather half-heartedly at this time every year, despite our good intentions. Driven by a natural impulse to turn over a new leaf in our lives as well as on the calendar, we compile our annual list of personal reforms and even try to follow it for a few days before consigning it to limbo along with its predecessors. This year for a change, try simplifying it into one all-encompassing resolution: to attend the Church of your choice regularly throughout the coming year. If you will do so and try to live by the lessons you learn there, this will be the only New Year's resolution you'll ever need.

"Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."
— Romans 12:2

I'll turn over a new leaf. — Miguel de Cervantes
