Confiscated drugs

Department of Public Safety troopers stopped this car just west of Hereford on Friday after the driver was allegedly speeding. The stop resulted in the seizure of 23 two-pound packets of suspected marijuana, which were taken from under a seat of the vehicle. The driver of the vehicle was charged in connection with the incident.

Routine traffic stop here results in arrests, major drug seizure

What began as a routine traffic stop along U.S. 60 west of town on Friday turned into a drug seizure as Department of Public Safety troopers arrested two people.

Trooper Todd Settiff stopped a vehicle at 7:45 a.m. for allegedly speeding.

The stop ultimately led to the driver of the car, two women and three children being taken to the sheriff's department.

A search of the vehicle revealed

23 individually wrapped packages that contained suspected marijuana, which were located under a seat of the vehicle.

A DPS spokesman said street value for the drug was $36,000 wholesale and more than $70,000 retail.

The driver of the car, Charles Russell Routt Jr., 38, of El Paso, was charged with felony intent to distribute.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie

Turrentine set bond at $10,000.

A passenger in the car, Elaine Brown Bass, 31, also of El Paso, was booked into Deaf Smith County Jail on a bond forfeiture from El Paso, where she had been charged with possession of a controlled substance-marijuana over 2 ounces.

The second female and the three children were released.

Settiff said the substance will be sent to a DPS lab in Amarillo for testing.

Lubbock envisions big economic boost

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Imagine 4,500 new jobs - many with high salaries - hitting this city.

One thousand new homes would be needed immediately, city planners say. Almost 300 retail stores would spring up, airport traffic could quadruple, school enrollment would soar.

City planners foresee the effects rippling up the Texas Panhandle and into eastern New Mexico.

Word could come as early as Friday on whether Lubbock's economic dream is reality, or a bust, when the Department of Defense announces the location of four new accounting centers. Lubbock is among 20 cities - the only one in Texas - on the Pentagon's short list.

Mayor David Langston makes no bones about his feelings.

"We recognize this as a very large economic plum, and we want it badly," Langston said. "That message has been echoed off the walls of the Pentagon."

Rod Ellis, director of business development for Lubbock, said the accounting center would hire 4,000-4,500 high-skilled workers with average salary and benefits hitting $35,000. The gross payroll would be $140 million, Ellis said.

A sample of job openings includes 599 accountants/auditors, 425 budget analysts, 352 computer specialists and 377 safety and occupational health specialists.

Pentagon officials have told Lubbock leaders that 85 percent of the work force would be hired locally. The defense department expects to have to train workers wherever the centers are located, Langston said.

Statewide, the Texas Department of Commerce estimates the facility would boost the economy annually by about $547 million and generate an additional 3,392 spin-off jobs.

Most of those jobs, the commerce department says, would surface in West Texas.

"We view this as a unique opportunity for miraculous growth and progress for those of us on the Llano Estacado," Langston said. "It's undoubtedly the biggest economic development since Texas Tech University in 1925."

The 20 cities on the short list were chosen from 112 sites in 33 states. Other Texas cities that had expressed interest but didn't make the preliminary cut were Abilene, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Texarkana.

County spelling champions

Marivel Gamez, left, captured the Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee title on Friday, defeating runner-up Anna Witkowski, right. Both girls are eighth-graders at Hereford Junior High School. Marivel, 13, will represent the county in the Regional Bee on April 17 at West Texas State University.

Gamez captures spelling bee title

Marivel Gamez, 13, an eighth grader at Hereford Junior High, captured the Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee championship Friday after she spelled down 16 other contestants.

You could say the victory left an indelible impression on Marivel and Anna Witkowski, the runnerup. Anna missed the word "indelible," placing two "Ls" in the spelling. Marivel correctly spelled that word and clinched the title with "duarchy." The bee went 21 rounds.

Marivel is the daughter of Grace Gamez and Anna is the daughter of Gerald and Elizabeth Witkowski. Third place went to Matthew Irish, a sixth grader at West Central and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Irish.

Anna was the county champion in 1991 and the junior champion in 1990. Following Matthew in third place, the rest of the top 10, in order, were: Kris Daniel of Hereford Junior High, Jennifer Vargas of West Central, Amy Perrin of Walcott, Michael Cantu of Shirley, Jantzen Louder of Community Christian, Robert Estrada of HJJ, and Colleen Kelley, the junior bee champ from West Central.

Marivel was presented with two $50 savings bonds--one from First National Bank and one from Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative. Anna received a $25 share account from Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union and $25 in cash from The Hereford Brand. Matthew was presented a $25 bond from West Texas Rural Telephone.

As county champion, Marivel advances to the Region Bee on April 17 at West Texas State University. The region event is sponsored by the Amarillo Globe-News and WTSU. Both Marivel and junior bee champ Colleen Kelley will receive bee medallions at the regional event.

The Region Bee champion will win an expense paid trip for two to the National Bee in Washington, D.C., in late May. American Airlines is providing airfare. Other awards will be presented at the region event.

Speedy Nieman, Hereford Brand publisher, is county bee director. Bera Boyd served as pronouncer and judges were Jane Coplen and Eloise McDougal. Local businesses contributed a total of $250 in prizes for the contest.

County clerk's office now linked to state computers

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

In this day of electronic wizardry, ordinary documents can become food for the computer.

Case in point: A birth certificate for a child born in any county in Texas can be obtained from Austin in less time than it takes to locate and copy the original in county records.

Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland and his staff now, with only a few taps on a computer, can hook up with the vital statistics office of the Texas Department of Health and have a birth certificate printed out faster than the proverbial blink of an eye.

"The turn-around, from the time an application is received until we have the printed product, is less than five minutes," said Ruland.

"Sometimes, if a birth certificate happens to be filed wrong here in the office, we can spend hours hunting," he continued. "Even if we find it right away, it's about a 10-minute process."

And, the cost is the same: $9 by computer from Austin or $9 if copied from the county clerk's records.

Writing to the Austin office to obtain the birth certificate is $2 more, or $11, said Ruland.

"County offices can't charge but $9, whichever way, but the state office can charge more," said Ruland with a wry smile.

The Deaf Smith County office joined the state network when it went on-line last Monday. Only 36 of the 254 counties of Texas have signed contracts so far. The only others in the Panhandle-West Texas area are Lubbock, Terry and Yoakum counties.

Ruland looks at the project as a way to serve residents of Deaf Smith County.

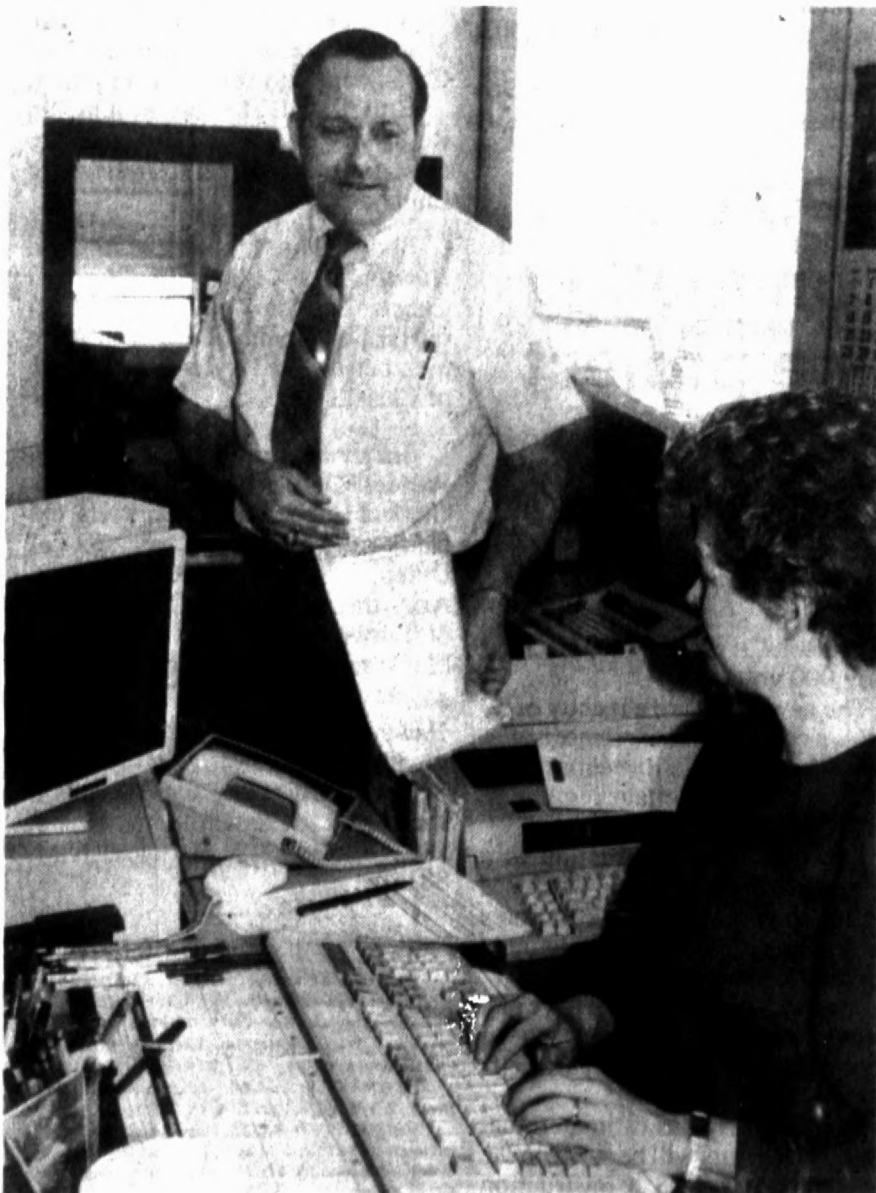

"We have a lot of people who come in here to get a birth certificate and just as many who call or come in wanting to know how to get one from another county," he explained.

A birth certificate is needed for a variety of purposes, such as Social Security documentation, application for passport and proving age of children starting school. Often, there is an urgency in the need.

The computer allows Ruland or a deputy to access the TDH computer and locate a birth record from any county in the state.

Simple, yet so secure that passwords to enter the system are changed regularly, the new service provides the hurry-up sometimes needed by persons seeking birth

New service for county

A new service offered in Deaf Smith County allows computer access to records in Austin and provides a print-out of birth certificates requested by citizens. County Clerk David Ruland and Deputy Connie Urbanczyk look over a certificate, printed on special forgery-proof paper.

WT's name change will remain same

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Regents of the Texas A&M University System have changed the names of three South Texas component institutions over the protests of some alumni and students.

A new name for West Texas A&M University at Canyon was defeated, however.

The new names were approved for Texas A&I, Corpus Christi State University and Laredo State University.

Effective Sept. 1, the institutions will be known as Texas A&M University-Kingsville, Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi and Texas A&M International University.

The A&I name change drew the biggest opposition, but it passed 5-3. The others were approved 6-2 at a specially called regents meeting.

Friday's meeting was called in response to name changes included in the Senate-passed version of the new state budget. They were backed by Sens. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi; Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo; and Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo.

The lawmakers' move drew outcries from some Texas A&I alumni and students, who sought to keep the A&I name and to preserve its South Texas heritage.

An amendment by Bivins would have changed the name of West Texas State University to Texas A&M University-Canyon. The regents in September changed the name of the school to West Texas A&M University.

Bivins' proposal met stiff opposition from the West Texas students and school administrators who already had been spending funds to print new stationery and catalogs.

The proposal was defeated.

Local 4-H, FFA members capture honors at Houston

4-H and FFA members from Hereford were in Houston this past week for the annual Houston Livestock Show.

Several members of the delegation placed animals in their respective shows, but Zachary Vasek captured top honors overall.

Zachary, showing a 244-pound cross barrow, was named Grand Champion barrow at the show. He also won the medium cross category and was champion cross.

Hereford FFA, of which Zachary is a member, received a set of Paul Scales for Hogs for his win.

Other local barrow entrants included: Jeb Skiles, second place in light spot; and Cory Marsh, second place in heavyweight Hampshire.

In the steer competition, Kelly Christie placed first and was breed champion for the Chi breed; Dolly Christie was first place in the heavyweight ADR breed and was breed champion. Third place in the heavyweight ADR category went to Justin Scott.

In the sheep show, the highest local finish was by Nelson Beville, who placed 14th in the heavyweight Southdown division.

Man turns 60-ticket investment into $12.6 million Lotto jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) - Tem Vuth is a man of little words.

Perhaps it's the result of growing up in war-torn Cambodia, dashing from city to city to escape the reign of terror there in the late 1970s, and dreaming of a better life.

Or perhaps it's the realization that those dreams have come true - because of six little numbers.

"America is a very great country," Tem said Friday, as he claimed the first payment of his $12.6 million lotto jackpot.

Tem, a Houston automobile mechanic, matched all six numbers in Wednesday's Lotto Texas drawing. State Comptroller John Sharp on Friday presented him with a check for $638,936, the first of 19 yearly payments.

Tem, 29, said he has bought $25 to $50 worth of tickets for every lotto drawing, and that he purchased 60 tickets for Wednesday's.

He said he watched the drawing on television with his wife, who is pregnant with their first child. When the winning numbers sounded familiar, Tem fished through his 60 tickets and found the winner.

"It was kind of exciting," he said. The winning numbers were 11-13-17-31-40-44.

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) - The evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, reports that members of the Church of Scientology have filed about 35 lawsuits against a consistent critic, the Cult Awareness Network.

The suits, filed in courts across the country, mostly allege religious discrimination by the anti-cult group for not allowing Scientologists to join. The network promotes public awareness of what it calls "destructive cults."

Texas' latest lotto winner said he plans to spend his prize money on new cars for himself and his 55-year-old father. Tem said he will also buy a house, so that he and his wife can move out of their "very old apartment."

Although Tem had no comment about whether he would quit his job at Western Auto, he said his father, who works as a groundskeeper at Houston's Hobby Airport, will retire.

Tem said he and his family escaped from Cambodia when he was 16 years old and made their way to the United States. While he is currently a resident alien, Tem said he plans to become a U.S. citizen.

"My wish is to be an American," he said, holding a poster-sized check representing his first lotto payment, and his American dream.

Passengers in drug car

These women and children were passengers in a car that was stopped by Department of Public Safety troopers west of town on Friday for a routine traffic stop. During the stop, it was discovered that the car was loaded with more than 40 pounds of suspected marijuana. One of the women was later booked into Deaf Smith County Jail on a bond forfeiture from El Paso. The other woman and the children were released.

LENDERS LIKE GOOD CREDIT RATINGS

When you decide to get a loan to purchase or refinance, be sure your credit report looks good, no judgments, bad reports or late payments. Home lenders like to see a "clean" credit picture when they review a potential borrower's report. The lender will want to see reports from others who have loaned to you and have been paid back as agreed. They don't like "late payments," especially those that are the 60 to 90 day type. If your credit report shows slow payments, you may be able to overcome this by giving the lender a letter explaining "WHY" you were late. If you don't have any credit, it would be wise to open a few charge accounts and establish a credit history. If you know you have a poor credit report consider finding a co-buyer or co-signer, and if these options are not available you can look for assumptions with very little qualifying. Country store step into past in Nacogdoches

By RICHARD L. SMITH
The Daily Sentinel
NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) - Drivers headed north on U.S. 259, just south of the Rusk County line, often get the feeling they've somehow slipped back into the past.

Off to the right of the highway, next to a red barn in a pasture is what appears to be an old-time country store and filling station. But there's no apparent way to get there from the four-lane blacktop.

It's not an optical illusion, nor is it a country store. It is just a building that has slowly evolved as a country curiosity through the efforts of its owner, Nacogdoches County resident Lyle Sieffert.

"We have a lot of people who stop and come in, maybe take pictures," Sieffert said. "Some come to buy, but we are not really running a business."

Sieffert, when not at work as chief communications dispatcher with the Houston Fire Department, tends to his 25 acres in the rolling hills of northern Nacogdoches County. There he raises hay and collects memorabilia he stores in probably the best replica of a country store from bygone days one could imagine.

Looking in the front of the building, the past comes pumping forth with a collection of old gasoline pumps and metal signs.

The gas price on one of the pumps shows it's definitely from the distant past - 28 cents.

The round, mechanical pump is one of Sieffert's most prized possessions and helps define the character of this building that he did not quite intend to be a museum.

Sieffert explains that he started on the building two years ago, with the modest ambition of having an out-room for exercise and recreation. The collecting and showcasing of relics from the past just sort of happened, he said.

"For years there have been a few things I have always wanted," he said. "Like that round gas pump out there. Another thing is a windmill. I don't have one of those yet."

He said several friends from work at the Houston Fire Department are aficionados of old cars and like attending swap meets. It is at these swap meets that Sieffert said he has collected many of his adornments of a building that has never quite turned into an exercise or game room.

Among the old gasoline nozzles and ice tongs are signs of all types, both neon and metal soft drink signs. An old barber chair adorns one corner, while an old pinball machine decorates a wall.

Some of the items found inside the building are what have turned out to be donations from family and friends.

"A lot of the stuff old-timers gave to me," he said. "My friend, Alvis Barrett, who lives over in Pleasant Hill, has helped me a lot. He goes with me to meets. A lot of the stuff here is actually stuff he has bought."

Sieffert said he had no particular model for the country-store gas station replica that he has built. "I've always just liked old buildings and old stores," he said. "As for as any particular place in mind, just after going to a couple of shows and swap meets, I just kind of liked it all. I didn't pattern this after any particular building."

Not only does his collection include examples of the nation's cultural and commercial past, but his personal past as well.

Sieffert, who grew up in the area where he currently lives, said he has personal memories about some of the effects used to decorate.

"Like this baseball glove. I remember the day dad and mother bought it for me. The first deer I ever got is mounted," he said. "It's just all part of things that have meant something to me."

While Sieffert still has a few years left until retirement, he hopes to eventually get caught up enough to work on some of the items he has collected.

"I'm really in the collection stage right now," he said, pointing to a candy machine he had purchased. "So far, I've been collecting and haven't been fixing."

Sieffert seems content to continue collecting and playing show-and-tell with the occasional visitor.

"It makes you feel good," he said. "like maybe it's wasn't such a bad idea after all."

The Chamber and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

There are lots of folks out there trying to make an extra dollar. The Chamber would like to urge everyone to always take time to check on a person's references or past work before you purchase something from them or hire them to do a job.

This does take a little effort but, in the long run, it could save you a lot of money. Regardless of the service to be performed or the product to be purchased, don't be afraid to ask for references or locations of a previous job.

As an example, it is a major investment to have your home painted, either inside or out. This task is one none of us usually look forward to, so it is only prudent to do a little homework before you hire someone to do this. A good painter will be glad to offer references and his previous work will speak for itself. They should be more than happy for you to check their references.

Another point we want to advise you--don't let the quoted price be your only reason for the decision. Painters can be very competitive, so a low price might not always be the best for your money. Regardless of the price, your satisfaction is what counts, so know who you are doing business with. Remember, it's your money, so you deserve to get your money's worth. If the Chamber can ever assist in anyway, please let us know.

The Chamber would like to once again salute former Hereford resident Robb Kendrick for another major photographic project published in the March issue of National Geographic. This newest work is entitled "Reclaiming A Lost Antarctic Base," which includes 12 of Robb's pictures. Kendrick, a graduate of Hereford High School, was featured the first time in the December issue of the magazine. We are very proud of Robb and his success and also are happy that one our own has done so well. Congratulations!

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will be represented on a special KACV-TV (Channel 5 here)

"Legislative Forum" Sunday at 5:30 p.m. The forum includes a question-and-answer session with area legislators John Smith, David Swinford and Warren Chisum. Wes Fisher, C of C vice president, was invited to be a representative of our area on the forum.

Tickets for the annual Chamber Banquet are now on sale at the Chamber office. The banquet is set for April 1. Reserve your tickets today. If your firm would like a block of tickets, call the office.

The Chamber Raffle is also underway and tickets are on sale at the Chamber office for $50 each. The prize will be a 1993 car or pickup from Stevens Chevrolet or Hereford Auto Center. Only 700 tickets will be sold, so stop by and buy your ticket and help support your Chamber of Commerce.

Next week, the Hereford Hustlers will cut the ribbon for the Grand Opening of the new location of new Chamber member Janie's Hair Salon. It is located at 609 E. Park. The Retail Merchants Committee will meet at noon Tuesday at the Chamber to work on promotional ideas for 1993; the Super Sports Weekend track meet kicks off Saturday, March 13, with 13 teams participating.

There's lots of activity beginning to take place in Hustlin' Hereford, with the new Ford dealer, the new Hereford Nursing Center, the new Anthony's, the remodeling of Conway Exxon on 25 Mile Avenue, and other new additions to our town.

So let's all get down to business and remember... "You Have No Reason to Be Anywhere Else!" Have a good week!

Herd whips Dunbar for split

Hereford split a pair of games Friday in the Levelland baseball tournament, and is finished for the tournament.

Hereford lost to Randall, 12-10, in eight innings in a second-round game, then beat Dunbar 9-3 late Friday in a guarantee game.

Hereford is now 2-4 for the season.

The Randall game was a back-and-forth affair, Herd coach T.R. Sartor said.

"We came back two times against them--we tied at 7-7 in the sixth (inning) and at 10-10 in the seventh," Sartor said. "They got two more runs in the eighth, and we couldn't come back again."

Richard Sanderson's home run was one of the offensive highlights of the game, but more details were not available because Sartor didn't have the scorebook with him when reached by the Brand. Sammy Casarez pitched the entire game for the Herd.

Hereford bounced back against Dunbar.

"Ray Hastings pitched, and he threw real well," Sartor said, adding that Hastings struck out seven in five innings, giving up six hits and only one walk.

"We kept making contact and found some holes," Sartor said of the offense. "Everybody did well. We ran the bases well."

The tournament was to continue Saturday, but not with Hereford. In Thursday's opening game, Hereford dropped an 8-4 decision to Lubbock High, wasting a home run by Russ Watts.

Eight teams were left in the championship bracket after Friday's games: Dumas, Brownfield, Canyon, Dalhart, Denver City, Levelland, Lubbock High and Palo Duro.

Rockets ruin Jackson's debut

By The Associated Press

Jim Jackson's long-awaited debut as a Dallas Maverick lasted only 26 minutes, but it was enough to impress his teammates, coach and opponents.

"He's a little rusty, but he can be a great player," said Vernon Maxwell, who covered Jackson in the first quarter of Houston's 105-86 victory Friday night.

Jackson, the No. 4 pick in last summer's draft who ended his holdout Thursday, scored six points on 3 of 8 shooting, dished out four assists and had five turnovers.

Not a bad night for a guy who hadn't played a meaningful game since last year's NCAA tournament when he starred for Ohio State.

"I think it was fair," Jackson said of his performance, that included several no-look passes, a few finger-roll layups and a couple nicely executed gives-and-gos. "I felt more comfortable as I kept going."

Jackson, whose six-year deal is worth about $20 million, played the first four minutes of the game, then the last 11 minutes of the first half. He started each of the final two quarters.

"You could see by watching him tonight, he has a very good feel for the game," said Mavericks interim coach Gar Heard. "You can see that he's going to make this team a lot better."

The Mavericks (4-51) need all the help they can get. They have lost 13 straight and are on pace to break the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers' league futility mark of 9-73.

Houston, meanwhile, won its ninth straight, improving to 36-21 and remaining a half-game behind the San Antonio Spurs for the Midwest Division lead. The Spurs beat the Chicago Bulls, without Michael Jordan, 107-102 in overtime.

In other NBA games Friday night, it was Charlotte 94, Portland 92; Boston 105, Detroit 101; Miami 109, the Los Angeles Clippers 105; Milwaukee 109, Orlando 91; Phoenix 130, Sacramento 122; and the Los Angeles Lakers 101, Philadelphia 97 in overtime.

Hakeem Olajuwon paced eight Rockets in double figures with 24 points and 11 rebounds, and his second-half spark helped Houston pull away after leading only 44-41 at the half.

Donald Hodge and Terry Davis led Dallas with 13 points each. Doug Smith had 12 and Sean Rooks added 11.

The above-average crowd of 14,450 greeted Jackson mostly positively, with only a smattering of boos. They apparently got it out of their system by halftime as he was warmly cheered in the second half.

But Jackson, the highest-paid rookie guard in NBA history, also showed glimpses of his layoff.

Once, he began running before he caught a pass, leading to an uncontested layup for the Rockets. Another time he missed a cutting teammate and threw a pass into the backcourt.

Both teams played sloppy in the first half and with a quick basket to open the third quarter, the Mavericks trailed just 44-43. But that's when Olajuwon and Kenny Smith began to heat up.

Smith, who had two points at halftime, finished with 14 points. Winston Garland and Maxwell each had 12. Robert Horry added 11, including consecutive thunderous dunks as Houston began its rally.

The final period turned physical, with Maxwell and Doug Smith getting technical fouls after going jaw-to-jaw. Derek Harper was ejected a few minutes later for a flagrant foul on Garland. Rooks also body-slammed Carl Herrera to break up an attempted layup.

Spurs 107, Bulls 102, OT

Blowing a 21 point lead, the two-time NBA champion Bulls lost again without Michael Jordan, falling in overtime to the Spurs at Chicago Stadium.

The loss came despite 39 points, 13 rebounds and 10 assists from Scottie Pippen.

That left Chicago at 1-6 over the last 6 1/2 years without Jordan, who is hospitalized with an infected corn on his foot. The one win came Wednesday night against Dallas, which has won just four games this season.

San Antonio got 29 points from Dale Ellis, including seven in overtime, and 28 from David Robinson.

Hornets 94, Trail Blazers 92

At Portland, David Wingate's 15-foot shot off a rebound with 5.2 seconds left gave Charlotte its first win ever over the Trail Blazers.

Charlotte is the first of the four recent expansion teams to beat all the other NBA teams.

Portland has now lost 10 of its last 15, and has dropped five straight to the NBA's most recent expansion team.

Suns 130, Kings 122

Charles Barkley had 32 points in 31 minutes in the home victory by the Suns, who broke things open in the third quarter. He hit 3 of 5 three-pointers and had 11 points in the period as the Suns moved from 59-54 lead to 101-88.

Cedric Ceballos had 14 of his 23 in the quarter as Phoenix improved to 42-13, best in the NBA.

Heat 109, Clippers 105

At Miami, Rony Seikaly had 21 points and 22 rebounds for the Heat, who set a team record with a five-game winning streak. Seikaly also hit two free throws with 45 seconds left to give Miami the lead for good.

Seikaly had an NBA season-high and career-high .34 rebounds Wednesday night against Washington.

Fruit, vegetable exports set record

WASHINGTON (AP) - Exports of U.S. horticultural products reached a record $6.9 billion last year, led by fresh fruits and vegetables, juices and prepared vegetables. It was the continuation of an upward trend that began in 1986.

The category with the biggest increase, called fresh fruits and preparations in a recent Agriculture Department report, scored a 9 percent increase over 1991.

"Much of this increase was from larger exports of fresh apples and oranges," said the report by Foreign Agricultural Service.

All horticultural product categories, with the exception of cut flowers, registered export increases during 1992, it said.

Looking at individual products, the report said the 1992-93 apple marketing year "will be one of the most competitive years U.S. exporters have witnessed for the past few years."

After two excellent years, due in part to an extremely limited European apple crop, "bumper European apple crops along with a strong U.S. dollar and a European recession are severely hampering U.S. apple exports to Europe," the report said.

Although Asian and Central and South American markets are making up for some of the shortfall, U.S. apple exports currently are trailing last season's, it said.

The report saw "potentially significant" future sales of U.S. wines in China, despite high prices there for imported wine, lack of consumer awareness and French efforts to push cognac sales.

The potential stems from economic and trade reforms combined with rapid economic development and rising consumer purchasing power in China, it said.

For December alone, the report said, U.S. exports of horticultural products totaled $554 million, 5 percent above the same month in 1991.

"Most of this growth can be attributed to export increases of dried fruits, fresh vegetables (mainly tomatoes to Canada and Mexico), and items in the fruit and vegetable miscellaneous category such as nuts, chips, edible preparations and beer," it said.

Federal Land Bank lowers farm-related loan interest

AUSTIN - For the fourth time in the last 12 months, the variable interest rate for Federal Land Bank Association agriculture, rural housing and farm-related business loans has declined.

The new rate is 8.2 percent and benefits nearly 30,000 farmers, ranchers and rural homeowners throughout Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas who do business with FLBAs.

"Like other businessmen, farmers are concerned about keeping their business costs as low as possible," said Michael R. Davis, president of the Farm Credit Bank of Texas. "We hope this latest rate reduction will help create a more favorable financial environment for our stockholders."

In addition to reducing the variable interest rate, the bank has received regulatory approval to originate and sell loans through the Federal National Mortgage Corp (Fannie Mae).

There is no FLBA office in Hereford, but offices are located in Amarillo, Plainview, Lubbock, Littlefield, Muleshoe and Dimmitt.

Peanut price blamed on supports

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some members of Congress have long argued that consumers pay artificially inflated prices for peanuts because of a federal program that guarantees producers a fixed minimum.

They now have some new ammunition to back their claim.

The General Accounting Office, in a report released today, said shoppers pay up to $513 million more a year for peanuts because of the peanut price support program.

Texas accounts for 14 percent of the nation's $1.4 billion annual peanut crop, second only to Georgia. Much of Texas' peanut production is centered around Stephenville, and south and west of San Antonio.

"Congress needs to take a closer look at the peanut program and determine how it can become more responsive to market forces," the General Accounting Office said in a report for release Friday.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture price support program controls the supply of domestic peanuts and guarantees producers a minimum price for their crop. That minimum price guarantee is too high, GAO said. In the 1980s, the world market price averaged $494 per ton, while the U.S. quota support price averaged $714 per ton.

The yearly quota price in the last decade has been set so high above production costs that producers on average receive a 51 percent net return on their crop after costs.

Investigators recommended that Congress restructure the peanut program by gradually reducing the annual quota support price to bring it more in line with the world market price; reexamine how quotas are assigned; and permit government agencies to buy peanuts at the world price.

USDA didn't dispute the study's recommendations, but quibbled with many of the conclusions and said the report lacked objectivity.

"In general, the Department of Agriculture concurs with the recommendations of the GAO for certain changes in the peanut program as it is currently structured," then-Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan wrote GAO.

The Texas Farm Bureau contends the peanut program is one of USDA's success stories and costs the American taxpayer very little.

"I would argue that the peanut program is one of the more successful farm programs in existence and while it could be argued that it costs consumers, I think the farmers' amount of money involved in a jar of peanut butter is minuscule compared to what marketing and advertising takes up of that dollar," said Farm Bureau spokesman Steve Pringle.

Import restrictions, not taxpayer dollars, pay for the peanut program, Pringle said.

While taxpayers don't pay out any money to peanut producers for price supports, USDA spends millions of dollars a year administering the program, GAO said.

The agency said the price support program, implemented in 1934, hasn't responded to the changes which have occurred in peanut production.

"The numbers of peanut farms and producers have decreased and the sizes of the remaining farms have increased," investigators said.

By 1991, fewer than one-quarter of all peanut producers held over four-fifths of the available quota pounds. "Most of the benefits derived from the peanut program today are being concentrated in the hands of a small number of producers," investigators said.

The GAO also found that owners of more than half of the quota pounds don't grow peanuts themselves but benefit from the program by selling or renting their quota to others.

Perry 'disappointed' at proposal outcome

AUSTIN - Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said last week he respects the opinions of the 12 senators who signed a letter indicating they would block proposed constitutional amendment and statutory changes that would allow the Texas Department of Agriculture to relocate outside Austin.

"I am disappointed because the Texas voters did not have an opportunity to debate and to help redefine government at this time," Perry said. "When I raised the question, 'is Austin the best place for the Texas Department of Agriculture to serve the people?' I knew the final answer rested with the Texas Legislature and ultimately the people of our state."

"I knew the idea of possibly relocating TDA could be a foundation-shaking debate. Initial readings from the government seismograph shows the debate was building enough strength to shake the pink granite facades off some of the ivory towers."

"Although I am disappointed the debate was foreclosed before it focused on the broader question of 'reassessing the role of government,' I accept the opinion of the 12 senators that now is not the time for examining this issue. But just as I respect them, I believe they will respect my determination to continue my efforts to make TDA the most effective, efficient agency in state government.

"I will continue to explore every option from the obvious to the thought-provoking to provide better service to Texas agriculture - and those options include everything from relocating the agency to eradicating boll weevils to making Texas natural fibers synonymous with high fashion to getting Texas produce in Texas school cafeterias.

Computer program offers plant requirement data

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new computer program at the Agriculture Department is designed to make it easier for U.S. exporters to find out about other countries' plant health requirements.

The system, called EXCERPT, is a centralized database that stores summaries of requirements in 42 countries for U.S. commodity imports. Eventually the database will list requirements for nearly every country that receives U.S. agricultural imports.

"Certifying officials have had a hard time keeping track of the ever-changing import requirements," explained B. Glenn Lee, deputy administrator of the inspection service.

"The database will make it easier for us to advise would-be exporters accurately and quickly, and to certify their agricultural commodities for export," said Lee.

Using the system, U.S. certifying officials can find out if a commodity

U.S. sending wheat, rice to Armenia

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States is giving more than 75,000 metric tons of wheat and rice to Armenia with an $18 million donation under the Food for Progress program.

The donation will include about 50,000 metric tons of wheat valued at $7.7 million and 27,000 tons of rice valued at $6.5 million. The remainder of the donation will pay for ocean transportation costs.

Under the Food for Progress program, USDA provides commodities to needy countries to encourage agricultural reform.

Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy said both donor and recipient countries benefit from such donations.

"Armenia benefits by getting much needed wheat and rice," he said. "U.S. farmers benefit because donations help take commodity supplies off the U.S. market at times when those supplies are excessive. As a result, this can enhance producer prices at a time when this is needed," he said.

"In addition, these donations may help reduce budget outlays because they may reduce government expenditures under the target price provisions of the domestic farm program," Espy added.

On July 23, 1914, Austria-Hungary issued an ultimatum to Serbia following the killing of Archduke Francis Ferdinand by a Serbian terrorist. The dispute led to World War I.

is eligible for export or identify ports under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. These ports are authorized to certify endangered plants for export.

For instance, the inspection service said, any plant in the cactus family is considered endangered. But cactus can be certified for export in San Francisco because it is a CITES port.

About 40 Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service and state offices will receive training on using the system by March 31. After that, about 25 sites per month will receive training and begin operations.

The database is located at the Center for Environmental and Regulatory Information Systems at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind. It was developed by Purdue under a cooperative agreement with the inspection service.

Income tax returns: Seventh in a series

IRA one thing to do to cut last year's earnings

WASHINGTON (AP) - Investing in a tax-deductible Individual Retirement Account is one of the few things a typical worker can do now to cut taxes on last year's earnings.

IRA contributions of up to $2,000 may be made until midnight April 15, the deadline for filing a return. For the 80 percent of workers who qualify for deductible IRAs, the writeoff may be claimed against 1992 income. Even those who are not allowed a deduction gain a long-run tax advantage by making a nondeductible contribution.

Although Congress voted last year to make even more workers eligible for deductible IRAs, President Bush balked and, because of unrelated provisions, vetoed a tax bill that included the IRA proposal.

That left the law as it has been since 1986: Workers who are covered by a company pension and whose incomes exceed $35,000 a year ($50,000 for couples filing joint returns) are barred from making a tax-deductible IRA contribution.

If you qualify, you avoid tax on the IRA contribution and the interest it earns until you withdraw it. In most cases, you are penalized if you withdraw it before your reach the age of 59½. You must stop contributions and start withdrawals after you reach 70½.

Here are the basic rules:
- A worker who qualifies for a full deduction may put into an IRA up to 100 percent of 1992 wages or $2,000, whichever is smaller. A limited account known as a spousal IRA is available for a non-earning spouse.

- You qualify for a full deduction if neither you nor your spouse are covered by a company pension. Or, if you or your spouse are covered by a company plan and your adjusted gross income before figuring the IRA is no more than $25,000 (single) or $40,000 (couple).

Even if only one spouse is covered by a company pension, that limits the deductible contributions of both.

- A partial deduction is allowed if you or your spouse are covered by a plan at work and income is between $25,000 and $35,000 (single) or $40,000 and $50,000 (couple filing jointly).

In this case, the allowable deduction is 20 percent of the difference between your income and the higher figure for your filing

BOSTON (AP) - After a 70-year career, comedian Red Skelton said he doesn't worry too much about preparing for a show.

"I just walk out onstage and start talking," he said at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts before a Saturday night performance. "I figure, why take life seriously? You're not gonna get out of it alive."

At a news conference, the 80-year-old performer joked about President Clinton's administration and his own prospects for a political career.

"I could be as good as Clinton," he said. "Once my mind is made up, I'm full of indecisions."

status. For example, a couple with $47,000 income would subtract that from $50,000 and multiply the $3,000 difference by .20, yielding a deduction of $600.

When calculating a partial deduction, you may round up to the next $10; thus, $217 would become $220. If the figure is at least $1, you automatically get $200.

- You get no IRA deduction if you (or your spouse if you file jointly) are covered by a company pension and your income is $35,000 or more for a single person, $50,000 or more for a couple filing a joint return or $10,000 or more for a married person filing separately.

If you don't qualify for a deductible contribution, you still may put up to $2,000 a year into an IRA and pay no tax on the interest earned until withdrawals begin at retirement.

For any year in which you make a nondeductible contribution, you must file with your tax return a Form 8606, on which you also list the year-end value of all your IRAs.

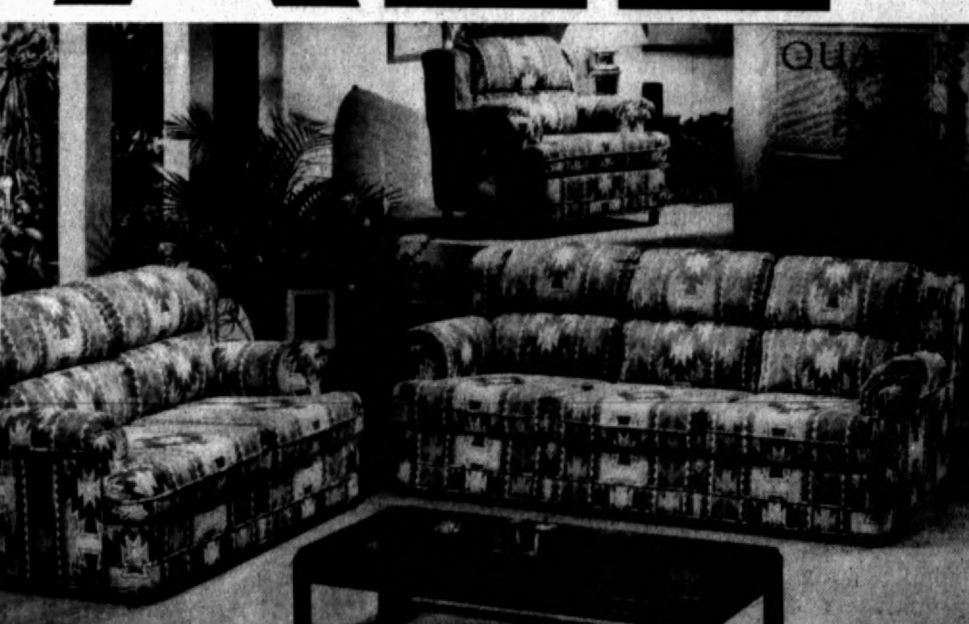

Save copies of all Forms 8606 and other records relating to IRAs. Else you could find yourself having to pay tax on all the money, even the nondeductible deposits that already have been taxed.

Health related topics to be discussed

The public is invited to hear Dr. Carole Durrett speak from 7-8 p.m. Tuesday, March 9, in the Lamar Room of King's Manor Methodist Home.

Dr. Durrett, a native of Amarillo, will speak on a variety of subjects including:

- An overview of the mind/body connection;
- Successful living with chronic illness;
- To treat or not to treat: balancing the options;
- The inward assault: a personal account with MS;
- Harnessing the healing power within;
- The path of suffering: the road to spiritual enlightenment;
- Learning to love;
- Patterns of illness;
- Perception: the whole story;
- The missing chapter in medical textbooks;
- Accepting health responsibility.

The speaker was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in the fall of 1982 during her sophomore year at Texas A&M University when she began drifting in and out of consciousness after an acute episode with fever. Once the fever broke, her ability to walk and talk was severely impaired. She slipped into an apathetic existence for several months.

Dr. Durrett recovered almost 100 percent from the initial attack of MS and went on to graduate Cum Laude from West Texas State University with a degree in general studies in 1985. The following fall, she entered Texas Tech School of Medicine. Her health was stable and good at that time.

By graduation in 1989, Dr. Durrett's illness had progressed to the point she was having to use a walker. That summer, in lieu of beginning a residency, she underwent a course of chemotherapy after which she was able to walk without assistance. In January 1990, she began a residency program in Family Medicine at Texas Tech. She found the family medicine residency physically difficult and chose to change to psychiatry. She completed a year in the program at Texas Tech in Lubbock before returning to Amarillo in June of 1991.

Most of Dr. Durrett's former mentors chose to practice medicine ignoring a truth that Dr. Durrett had begun to live by: mind and body are necessarily intertwined and that drugs can only mask certain symptoms of that disease, not heal the disease itself. She realized that healing encompassed more than physical remedies.

In September of 1992, Dr. Durrett opened her own health counseling service where she works in conjunction with other doctors in the community to treat both the mind and the body. She is a licensed general practitioner who realizes in her own life the power effect that mind and body have on one another.

MDA helps produce emergency checklist

For millions of Americans with limited mobility, disasters and emergencies present great problems and require planning ahead.

To help guide people with disabilities in such situations, the Muscular Dystrophy Association recently joined forces with the Federal Emergency Management Agency and other health agencies to produce "Preparing for Emergencies--A Checklist for People With Mobility Problems."

The emergency checklist offers important tips on fire safety, preparing disaster kits, evacuating a residence and eliminating home hazards.

"All of us at MDA strongly advise people with disabilities to prepare themselves in advance for emergencies," Karen Lane, district director of MDA's Panhandle Chapter said. "Being prepared is the best way to ensure safety."

To receive the checklist, call MDA's National Headquarters at 1-800-572-1717, or write to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, Office of Emergency Management, Washington, D.C. 20472.

MDA is a national voluntary health agency working to defeat 40 neuromuscular diseases through its worldwide research, comprehensive patient and community services, and far-reaching professional and public health education programs. The Association's programs are funded almost entirely by individual private contributors.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-H.E.

What you eat is one of the many factors that affect your chances of developing cancer. Certain dietary patterns or way of eating have been linked with a reduced risk of cancer, while others have been linked with an increased risk.

The dietary recommendations to reduce cancer risk have been made primarily because of research linking foods with a lower risk for cancer--not supplements. But researchers don't have all the answers. The protective factors in whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables may be due to something other than the fiber, B-carotene (beta-carotene) and vitamin C they contain.

Advice from different organizations varies somewhat, but the chart below outlines the most prominent dietary factors that may reduce cancer risk:

-Maintain your weight and avoid obesity--eat moderately and exercise regularly to maintain an acceptable weight. Never go to extremes in either dieting or exercise, and see a physician before you begin any strenuous activity.

-Select a variety of foods -- The best way to be sure you are getting a range of protective substances and not getting too much of any one type of substance.

-Select at least three servings of vegetables and two servings of fruits daily--Choose dark green and orange vegetables and fruits -- carrots, winter squash, sweet potatoes, spinach, broccoli and apricots--because they are high in provitamin A, or B-carotene (beta-carotene), and other plant constituents that may inhibit cancer development. Choose foods high in vitamin C such as oranges, grapefruits, cantaloupes, strawberries, fresh sweet peppers, tomatoes and cabbage family vegetables.

-Eat foods high in fiber -- Again, eat more fruits and vegetables, especially fresh ones, and use whole grains and legumes.

-Avoid fat -- Bake, broil, stir-fry, or steam. Don't fry foods or add a lot of fatty extras.

-If you drink alcohol, cut back--Drinking more than two alcoholic drinks per day places you at a greater risk of developing certain types of cancer, especially if you drink and smoke.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

The tallest trees--California's redwoods--grow higher than 30-story buildings.

Museum director presents program

Donna Brockman, executive director of Deaf Smith County Museum, presented a program Tuesday evening for members of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 192 when the group met at the Post Home.

Brockman said that during the past year, completed June 1992, there were approximately 6,000 visitors and 1,200 students who toured the museum. There were also 26 weddings performed in the museum's chapel.

The director noted that there are several new displays at the museum. Among them are WWI Veteran Ira Ott's exhibit, a special military display from Desert Storm and a fashion exhibit of the 1930s. Brockman also explained that the American Indian Trunk Show is taken into local schools.

Brockman said that the museum recently celebrated its 25th anniversary, and in conjunction with the observance, a postcard of the museum and the E.B. Black House was created. The museum is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

During the business meeting with President Betty Jo Carlson presiding, Chaplain Dorothy Shannon gave the opening and closing prayers. Girls' State Chairman Virginia Adams reported that 10 girls will apply for the two delegate positions. The selections will be made at the April meeting.

Scholarship Chairman Beverly Jesko received a letter from Hereford High School regarding the auxiliary's $250 scholarship to be presented to a HHS senior girl. Scholarship applications will be taken in the near future.

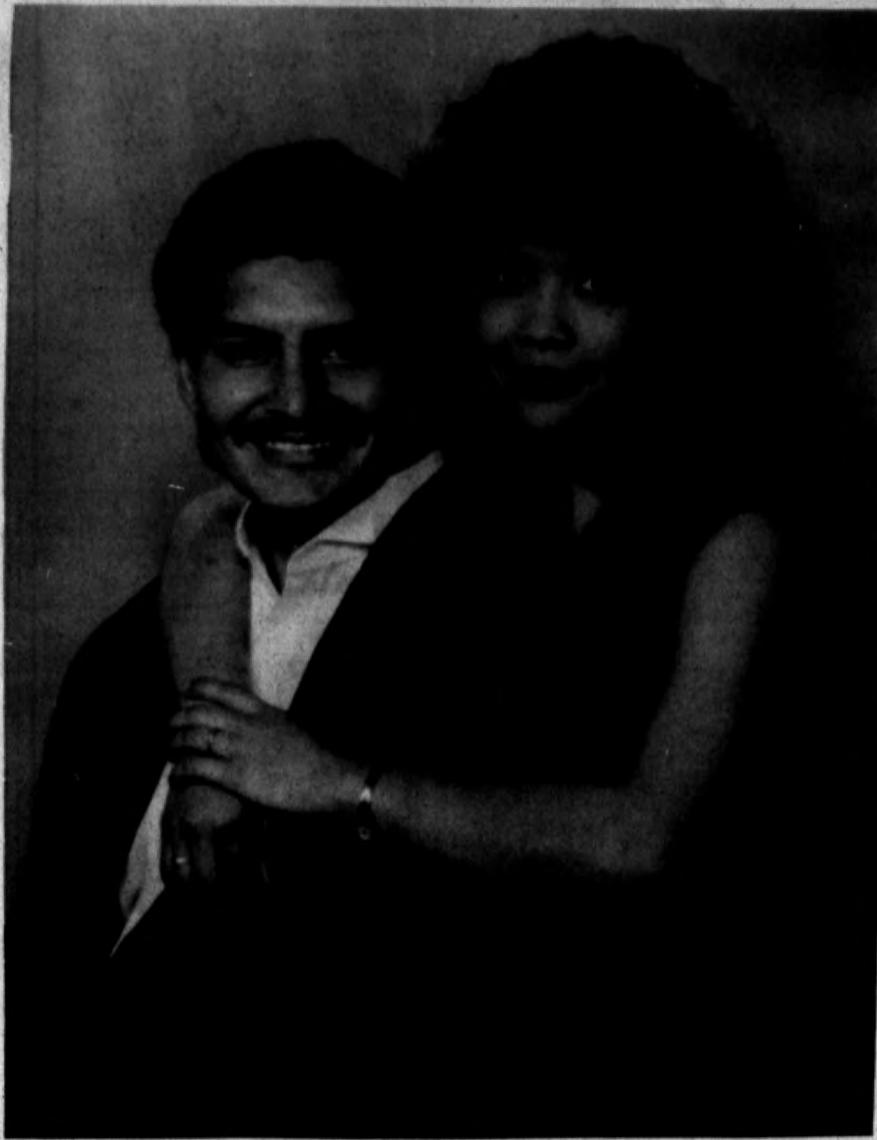

Annual reports were completed and will be mailed in for the District convention scheduled in April.

It was announced that Ruth King will be in charge of the auxiliary's monthly collections for the Homeless Veterans. This volunteer project will continue through July. The money will then be sent to the ALA national headquarters.

President Carlson closed the meeting with a patriotic reading, "Flag."

The next zone meeting is planned March 16 in Friona and the next regularly scheduled auxiliary meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. April 6.

Hostesses, Irene Berger and Troyce Hanna, served refreshments to the Legion and Auxiliary members.

Miss Vargas is a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School and is currently employed at the law offices of Gamboa and Ham.

Soria is a 1990 HHS graduate and is employed at Rainbo Co. in Amarillo.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Steven Seagal can't seem to get his directing career off the ground.

In November, the "Under Siege" star was set to make his directing debut on a mobster film, "Man of Honor," but the project was canceled just days before filming after the studios withdrew backing.

Now Seagal's next directing project has been thwarted because Warner Bros. says there's not enough snow in Alaska. "Rainbow Warrior" was to begin filming this month near Nome and Valdez.

Hormone shots could reduce cancer risk

BOSTON (AP) - Stone Age women began menstruating later, had children earlier and more often, nursed more and had earlier menopause - all of which made them 100 times less likely to get breast cancer than today's Western women, a researcher says.

The findings suggest ways of sharply reducing breast cancer, said Dr. S. Boyd Eaton of Emory University in Atlanta, an expert in the new field of evolutionary medicine.

The field's central tenet is that human society has changed drastically since the Stone Age but human biology hasn't. As a result, humans are out of sync with their environment in ways that lead to disease.

Eaton was one author of the study presented Monday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The reproductive traits of the Stone Age woman lower breast cancer risk by reducing the rate at which certain cells divide in the mammary ducts inside the breasts, Eaton said. Faster cell division is associated with a higher risk of the out-of-control cell reproduction of cancer tumors, he said.

Eaton said he would not recommend that American women begin having children at age 13, as Stone Age women did.

But hormone injections could be used to mimic Stone Age conditions, possibly producing dramatic declines in breast cancer rates, he said. Such treatment could also lower the risk of endometrial cancer and ovarian cancer, he said.

"We by no means advocate doing this willy-nilly for all women now," he said, recommending further studies.

American women face a 1-in-8 or 1-in-9 lifetime risk of developing breast cancer, according to the National Cancer Institute in Washington. The risk in Stone Age women was about one in 800 or one in 900, Eaton said.

Determinations of Stone Age lifestyles come partly from fossil evidence, but mostly from studies of present-day tribes of nomadic hunter-gatherers, Eaton said.

Other researchers are using the evolutionary perspective to try to understand why some babies cry excessively and whether childbearing practices can be improved.

Dr. Randolph M. Nesse, a psychiatrist at the University of Michigan, is trying to see how evolution sheds light on mental illness.

The guest speaker will be Florence Littauer, a noted author, leader and counselor. She is a popular seminar and retreat leader, banquet speaker and talk show guest who has traveled internationally for the past decade as a Christian speaker.

Littauer is the author of such books as Pursuit of Happiness, her life story; Blow Away the Black Clouds, a woman's answer to depression; After Every Wedding Comes a Marriage, which includes powerful ideas and valuable suggestions for a lasting and happy marriage; and her latest book, Looking For God In All The Right Places.

Littauer's speaking topics include "The Pursuit of Happiness", "How Good People Get Into Trouble", "Silver Boxes With Bows on Top", "Make the Tough Times Count" and "Personality Plus."

The cost of the retreat ranges from $35-$70 depending on your choice of lodging. If you do not wish to spend the night, but want to come to the activities and meals, the cost is $35.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I got quite a jolt from your final sentence regarding a couple's sexual activity when one partner is no longer interested.

Your answer was sensible enough until you said, "All that is required of a woman is that she be there." Surely you weren't serious. That may be true in the early years, but as time marches on, a lot more is required of the woman.

Quite possibly you have never been involved in sexual congress with a man who is nearly over the hill. Most women would like to get a little pleasure out of the activity. But if your correspondent happens to love the old guy and wants to help him to get up that hill one more time, she certainly is going to have to put forth a lot more effort than she did 25 years ago.—A Cooperative Participant in Jesup, Ga.

DEAR JESUP: It's been a long time since I have made a statement that was so broadly misunderstood. When I said, "All that is required of a woman is that she be there," I was referring to the basic mechanics of intercourse. A man must be in a state of arousal in order to perform sexually, but a woman need only be there. Now do you get it, folks?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please warn your readers that shopping carts can be dangerous to children.

In 1991, hospital emergency rooms reported 21,030 injuries to youngsters caused by falling out of shopping carts. Last summer, a 3-year-old boy died as a result of such a fall. The child was standing in the basket. When the cart came to a sudden stop, he lost his balance, tumbled backward and fell out, hitting his head. He died from a brain injury.

It may be easier to take the temperature of a child under seven by putting the thermometer under his or her armpit. Add one degree for the oral equivalent.

Never, under any circumstances, should children be placed in the basket of a shopping cart. They should ride only in the child's seat, strapped in with a safety belt. If your supermarket has not equipped its carts with safety belts, please ask the store manager to do so at once.

If, because of your warning, Ann, even one child's life is saved, I say, God bless you.—New York

DEAR SUPERMARKET MANAGERS: If, by the time this letter appears in print, you have not equipped your carts with belts for children, you'd better get moving. Hell hath no fury like that of a mother who wants protection for her child.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm taking this opportunity to say something about tests and X-rays taken at clinics and hospitals. People shouldn't assume that everything is OK just because they haven't received a report. There's a chance that the report may have been filed without the patient being notified.

Last year, my husband was told by a resident physician at a highly respected teaching hospital that he would be called if anything "out of the ordinary" showed up. He heard nothing and assumed that everything was OK. Last week, he had his annual checkup, and his doctor asked, "Why didn't you call to find out about the changes in your cells?" The answer was, of course, "I didn't know about it."

Please tell your readers to hound clinics and doctors until they get the results of their tests. THIS IS VITAL.—Angry in Grand Rapids

DEAR ANGRY: You are absolutely right. Thanks for reminding my readers that they must always call to get the results whenever tests have been taken.

Do you have questions about sex, but no one to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER
Let's set things straight, to begin with. Last week's column was written by Rebecca Walls. Credit where credit is due.

A new month brings a new

Hospice program presented

Kathryn Acton talked about the hospice program when members of La Aflatus Estadio Club met Tuesday in the home of Pet Ott.

The next meeting was planned March 16 in the home of Lydia Hopson with Louise Stream giving the program.

Refreshments were served to Mary Williamson, Emily Suggs, Virginia Beasley, Lydia Hopson, Aileen Montgomery, Alberta Higgins, Louise Stream, Della Stagner, Pet Ott, Francis Crume, Margaret Brorman and Kathryn Acton.

displayer. The Girl Scouts are celebrating 81 years of service to American girlhood, and last Monday a number of the sweet young things from troop 281 were in the library to set up a display and have their picture made. The display features costumes of yesterday, today and tomorrow, and is the product of all the troops in Hereford. (That involves girls from K5 through 6th grade.) We're glad to give them a chance to show their stuff...even if they didn't bring us any cookies!

Tax time is closing in and the library has everything we're going to get form the IRS. That includes some forms we were out of and some we hadn't received until last week. Our set of master forms is now complete also, so if you're looking for something we haven't had, you might try us again.

As I write this, Sam Houston is 200 years old. Well, at least he would be if he were alive. He was born in Virginia in 1793 and led one of the most creative and controversial lives this country has produced. Sword of Sam Jacinto: A Life of Sam Houston is a fitting tribute to "Ol' Sam" written by Marshall de Bruhl. Houston has his detractors as well as supporters, but it appears de Bruhl has compiled a factual and entertaining biography.

If we haven't seen the end of winter, at least the end is in sight. The library is all ready for spring with lots of books on outdoor stuff: gardening, construction projects, travel, etc. Or, if you just want to take one more armchair escape until the time to work comes, we're geared up for that, too.

I wanted to close the column with a quote, but the only one that came to mind was the one about the Alamo having no messenger of defeat, and I couldn't spell the name of that place in Greece (or wherever it was). If you have to know, we'll look it up for you.

School of instruction discussed

District Deputy President Ruby Green of Muleshoe gave a school of instruction to members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening as the final presentation during her term of office. Norene Pearson was her traveling companion.

Noble Grand Anna Conklin presided at the regular business meeting. Mary Lou Weatherford was elected to assume the duties of financial secretary for the remainder of this term.

Reports on the sick included 35 visits, 62 cheer cards, 19 dishes of food and three flowers.

Rosalie Northcutt served as hostess.

Others present were Dorothy Collier, Jo Irlbeck, Tony Irlbeck, Ben Conklin, Faye Brownlow, Leona Sowell, Ocie Bolton, Susie Curtsinger, Irene Merritt, Mary Lou Weatherford, Ursalee Jacobsen, Genevieve Lynn and Sadie Shaw.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Annual Junior Music Festival slated Monday

The Annual Junior Music Festival, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs, is planned from 8:15 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Monday in First Baptist Church.

There are approximately 90 entrants in the festival representing students from Hereford, Friona, Walcott, Dimmitt, Lazbuddie and Vega. The students will be judged in piano solo, hymn playing, piano duets and vocal solos.

Piano and voice teachers participating locally are Susan Shaw, Evelyn Hacker, Cheryl Betzen, Barbara Manning, all of Hereford, and Johnnie Walters of Friona.

Serving as this year's judges are Jim Rauscher, Celia McKay, Patricia Harris, Mary Lou Stockdale and Betty Hood, all of Amarillo.

Following the festival, judges and music club members will be served a luncheon at the church.

The following resumes were submitted by the festival judges for publication.

Mary Lou Stockdale has been a private piano teacher in Amarillo since 1958. She graduated from the Friends University in Wichita, Kan., and is past president of the Amarillo Music Teachers Association. She was elected Music Teacher of the Year in 1987 by the A.M.T.A. and is currently serving as president of MacDowell Music Club in Amarillo. She is also serving as historian of District I of T.F.M.C. She has served as church organist for many years.

Celia Rosenwald McKay was born in Amarillo and attended Tascosa High School and Amarillo College. She was inducted into the Tascosa Hall of Fame in 1985. She graduated from Trinity College of Music in London, England, and also graduated from the Royal Opera School in London and from the International Opera Center in Geneva, Switzerland.

Make smart choices of food

A healthier lifestyle isn't just a matter of dieting, but rather making smarter, or better, choices in the foods and beverages we consume.

These tips for making smarter choices when it comes to what you eat and drink should be easy to digest:

-Look for "lite" dairy foods. Almost every dairy product is now available in a low fat form, including cottage cheese, yogurt, cream cheese, ricotta and mozzarella.

-Ask your butcher to trim the fat from the meats you order, and look for the new, leaner cuts.

-Add more grains and beans to your diet. Brown, wild and arborio rice, couscous, barley, split peas and chick peas. They're good for digestion and affordable to boot.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a very uncomfortable, 86-year-old woman with diverticulosis. I have heard eating roughage helps this condition, but roughage causes so much gas and cramps that it is real bad. I have to go on Cream of Wheat.

The doctors tell me there is nothing they can do except an operation. I said no to that at my age. Is there anything I can do that will help this problem without having an operation?

DEAR READER: I hope so. Diverticula are small pockets of the colon formed by a rupture of the muscular wall of the colon that allows the pocket to develop. They are often silent and cause no problems. But they can become inflamed and even cause findings similar to appendicitis. Since these are commonly on the left side, this is often referred to as "left-sided appendicitis." The appendix is on the right.

Many people with diverticulosis do have an underlying irritable bowel syndrome. That, rather than the diverticula, may be the cause of symptoms. Some think the irritable bowel with gaseous distention is a factor in causing the little pockets to form.

A diet that contains lots of fiber is good for such symptoms. Forming gas is not. Your doctor may need to check to see if you have any other medical reasons for gas formation. But you may also be able to gradually — the emphasis is on gradually — increase your fiber intake if you eliminate the items that are the worst offenders and, when you eat, use a new product called Beano that will help to digest the foods that commonly cause gas. You can buy it yourself as an over-the-counter preparation.

For more information on how to manage symptoms from diverticulosis, read Special Report 94, About Diverticulosis: Pockets of the Colon, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/94, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Improving bowel habits is an important part of managing diverticula if you have symptoms. When the pockets are found on a colon X-ray and there are no symptoms, the condition can be ignored, but I do feel that an adequate amount of bulk in the diet is helpful even in those cases. In other people, bulk may help to prevent diverticulosis in the future.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My breathing capacity has been reduced to 40 percent due to scar tissue in my lungs. Doctors have said it may be caused by histoplasmosis. I am a 30-year-old male and have been employed by a chicken confinement operation for about eight years. I became ill about two years ago. When I catch a cold, it is necessary for me to get medication or be hospitalized for a short period of time. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER: The unanswered question is what kind of lung disease you actually have. Pulmonary fibrosis may cause this picture and is unrelated to any infectious disease. Histoplasmosis occurs in as many as 80 percent of the population in some areas and is common where you live. It usually does not cause serious disease, although it can. A previous histoplasmosis infection does not establish it as the cause of your disease. If it were active, your doctors would probably have prescribed antifungal medications. Corticosteroids are often used in the treatment of pulmonary fibrosis.

The fungus that causes histoplasmosis is particularly apt to be around chicken manure, but it is also widely disseminated in the soil in many areas of the United States.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

— YOUR EYES —

GETTING USED TO YOUR GLASSES

One youngster we know was delighted with her first pair of glasses. Taken to an ice show that day, she kept looking at the stage, first with her glasses, then without. The people on stage had faces! She became accustomed to her glasses right away.

Most people have little difficulty getting used to new glasses, especially if eyes are examined regularly, with prescription changes as needed. But if it's been awhile and this prescription change is a large one, it will take somewhat longer for the eyes — and the brain — to get used to the new way of seeing.

Reading glasses or bifocals may take a while to get used to. Your optometrist will help you to learn how to use them effectively, seeing out of different areas of the lens. Even a new frame will require a period of adjustment if it is different from your old one, a little bigger, perhaps, or a different color. If there is any discomfort, of course, see your optometrist right away.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Milestones, Mail and Memories

This is column No. 157. That probably doesn't mean a thing to most of you, but it has special meaning to me. I write one column for publication each week. That totals 52 columns per year or 156 in three years.

Therefore, No. 157 is a milestone. This column is the first of my fourth year of writing Minding Your Own Business. To all of you who have become faithful readers, I want to express my thanks. With out you, there would be no reason to write.

I wish I could meet each of you personally. I'd like to know about your businesses, jobs, families, opinions and dreams. I cherish your letters and notes and I'd like to share some behind the scenes information with you today.

I am not a trained journalist. That is probably obvious to most of you by now. My education and experience are in marketing and small business management. I spent more than 20 years in the business world, before attending college.

Usually, the column is a joy to research, write and edit. However, the process has not yet become easy. The average column requires more than eight hours to get from the idea stage to finished product.

I handwrite the first draft, but after that, all revisions are done via the computer. We usually have about four revisions between my handwritten notes and the printed copies we send to the newspapers. I love your letters

The most rewarding part of writing this column is the mail I receive. I enjoy reading every letter. It has grown to a point that I no longer can answer each letter individually.

Two of my favorite letters, hang on the walls in my office. One of those is from the late Sam Walton, founder of Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. For the record, "Mr. Sam" had favorable comments about the series of columns I wrote titled "Coexisting with Wal-Mart." He died a few months later and I regret not being able to accept his invitation to visit with him before his death.

The second esteemed epistle came from Stew Leonard of the world famous "Stew Leonard's Dairy Stores." "The Guinness Book of Records" lists Leonard's Norwalk, CT, store as the retail store with the highest sales per square foot of floor space - a whopping $3,636 per square foot.

Leonard called Minding Your Own Business "a needed breath of fresh air." He also reprinted the column I wrote about his store in his company's newsletter.

Saving Memories

I still have every letter written to me, except three. Those three were anonymous pieces of hate mail. I read them once, determined that they had no validity and cut them into little pieces.

I have strong feelings about unsigned letters. While I respect everyone's right to disagree with anything I write, I do not respect those who feel the need to hide behind a cloak of anonymity.

My name goes on everything I write, good or bad. I will accept any criticism offered when the letter is signed. Some of you have held my feet to the fire and the column is better because of your constructive comments.

My fondest memories are of new friends the column has allowed me to make. There are a good number of "delightful characters" in the newspaper business. Thanks to all of our editors and publishers who carry the column and make this space available each week.

You readers are wonderful. Your letters and comments inspire me when my spirits need a lift. To you, I make this pledge: If you will keep reading this column, I'll keep writing it. May God richly bless each of you as we journey together through year four.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Business" PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

Rowlands, Gish shine in NBC's Flawed 'Silent Cries'

Chloe Webb (left) and Annabeth Gish (center) join Emmy winner Gena Rowlands in NBC's Silent Cries, airing Monday. Based on Janice Young Brooks' best seller, Guests of the Emperor, the film details the experiences of women held captive in a Japanese prison camp after the fall of Singapore in 1941.

Shallow script undermines story's historical worth

By Steven Alan McGaw

Gena Rowlands is one of those actresses whose talent and integrity elevate whatever project she's in.

In well-crafted projects like Gloria, Love Streams, A Woman Under the Influence (for which she won a 1974 Oscar nomination) and last year's A Night on Earth, Rowlands has consistently proven herself an artist of rare ability. On television, her work has included An Early Frost and an Emmy-winning portrayal in 1987's The Betty Ford Story.

But the true measure of Rowland's gifts may best be taken in her ability to overcome the limitations of lesser scripts and stories, such as otherwise mediocre TV fare (Thursday's Child) or feature films the likes of 1987's ill-advised Light of Day. Whatever the subject, however weak the dialogue, Gena Rowlands seems to make it better.

She does it again on Monday, March 8, in NBC's Silent Cries. Rowlands stars as Margaret Sutherland, an American political writer who finds herself imprisoned by the Japanese after the fall of Singapore in December 1941. Held under brutal conditions in an all-women's camp, Sutherland uses her leadership abilities to organize nearly 200 women of different backgrounds into a cohesive whole. Together, they negotiate with their captors for better conditions and wait for the war's end.

Rowland's fine performance is supported with powerful portrayals from Annabeth Gish (Mystic Pizza), Chloe Webb, Judy Parfitt and Sab Shimono as the camp's sympathetic Commandant Natsume.

Silent Cries is based on Janice

Gena Rowlands plays Margaret Sutherland, an American writer imprisoned by the Japanese.

Young Brooks' best-selling novel, Guests of the Emperor. Despite the title change ("I have no idea how they arrived at that," she says), Brooks is pleased with NBC's version of her book. She credits teleplay authors Vicki Patik and Walter Halsey Davis with preserving "the integrity" of her book and capturing "its essence."

More specifically, Brooks says most of the dialogue is hers. "The story is compressed enormously, of course, and some characters were combined," Brooks notes, "but almost every word said in it is mine."

That may be part of the problem. The dialogue is one of the film's chief flaws: It ranges from merely bland to irritatingly hokey to outright ludicrous. Few viewers, for instance, may be able to keep a straight face watching the evil camp officer Saigo (Clyde Kusatsu, struggling mightily) screaming at a rebellious captive, "No write secret code! No write secret code!"

Mary Travers hugs a young fan in the family-oriented Peter, Paul and Mommy, Too, Wednesday on PBS.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Jane Seymour says fans of "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" are really taking her frontier doctor role seriously. Not only do they watch, but they're also walking up to her seeking medical advice.

"People come up to me with their ailments," Seymour said in an interview last week. "They will say, 'I have a pain in my shoulder' or 'My arm hurts.' Can you do something?"

"In the beginning I didn't know what was happening. They think they know me because I live in their living room every Saturday night."

The CBS-TV series has become a surprise hit, hitting in the Top 20 of the weekly Nielsen ratings every week.

"I was told that a Western period piece and a one-hour series propelled by a woman would be the death knell. It would never happen. But it tested higher than any other series for CBS, and I did, too," she said.
