Clinton, Demos agree to find more budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton and House Democrats appear to have agreed to cut spending $63 billion more over five years than the administration initially sought.

With that extra slice from federal budget deficits, the White House and Democrats on the House Budget Committee took a giant step late Monday toward shoring up conservative support in their own party for the president's economic plan.

But conservative Democrats still want to trim a separate White House package that would quickly boost spending on public works and other programs by $16 billion to create jobs.

The House Appropriations

Committee planned to consider the $16 billion measure today in Congress' first votes on Clinton's recovery plan.

In the Monday night dickering, Democrats on the House Budget Committee added several billion dollars in cuts at the last minute to satisfy conservatives. Committee members emerged from a closed-door meeting with a $1.5 trillion budget for fiscal 1994, which begins Oct. 1.

That budget contained $63 billion more in five-year spending reductions than Clinton had proposed in his economic plan last month. Trimmed would be defense and a wide range of domestic programs.

A White House spokesman anticipated no administration problems with the deal.

With Clinton's program facing solid Republican opposition, it has become crucial for the Democratic majority to retain the support of its conservative wing. Their agreement reached, lawmakers seemed upbeat about reaching their goal of approving a budget and the separate $16 billion spending measure by April 2.

"The committee feels very strongly that the basic direction of the president ... is right for this country," said House Budget Committee Chairman Martin Olav Sabo, D-Minn.

"The blame game in Washington is over now," said Rep. Charles

Stenholm, D-Texas, a leader of his party's conservatives. "Gridlock is over as far as Democrats are concerned."

The budget committee's plan would reduce next year's budget deficit by $3.5 billion more than Clinton would have, Sabo said.

Earlier in the evening, the White House had said Clinton would accept $55 billion in spending cuts beyond those recommended, and no additional reductions in his defense plan.

But Sabo said he believed the administration would support his package, an opinion that seemed to be echoed by White House spokesman Jeff Eller.

"I don't think that was an inflexible number," Eller said of the earlier $55 billion figure. "First thing in the morning, we'll take a look at the additional $8 billion. I don't think there'll be a problem with it."

Sabo's committee plans to debate the spending plan on Wednesday.

Budget resolutions command Congress to find savings in future legislation, and make non-binding recommendations about where the cuts should be made.

Documents obtained by The Associated Press show the House budget panel's measure urged that extra savings be found, in part, by cutting defense $870 million more next year than Clinton proposed.

Other cuts beyond the president's original figures include $500 million for science and space, $400 million for education and job training and $300 million for transportation.

Social Security, Medicare, agriculture and veterans programs would be cut no more deeply than Clinton already has proposed.

Separately, the Senate Budget Committee planned to begin considering its own budget for 1994 today.

Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn., readied a blueprint that would add about $70 billion to Clinton's cuts. It would reduce next year's shortfall by about $3.4 billion more than the president.

Scene of vehicular assault

A police line keeps onlookers away from a car Sunday night that struck a Hereford youth during an altercation in the 100 block of West Eighth Street. Robert Salinas, 16, was pinned beneath the car. He is listed in stable condition today in the Deaf Smith General Hospital Intensive Care Unit from injuries suffered in the incident. The case is still under investigation.

Police investigate assault; 16-year-old hospitalized

Police are continuing their investigation today into an incident late Sunday that sent a 16-year-old youth to the hospital.

Robert Salinas of Hereford was listed in stable condition in the Deaf Smith General Hospital Intensive Care Unit today after he was run over during a fight on Sunday.

According to police, officers were called to the 100 block of Eighth Street in reference to an accident with injuries.

Upon arrival, however, they learned that there had been a fight involving several subjects - including the suspected driver of the car which struck Salinas.

Salinas was pinned beneath the car, forcing rescuers to lift the vehicle before he could be freed.

No arrests had been made this morning in the case, but police say charges will be filed in the incident.

Josserand given honor in Houston

Bob Josserand of Hereford was recently inducted into the International Stockmen's Hall of Fame during the International Livestock Congress held in Houston.

Josserand's portrait will hang in the International Room at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, along with those of 20 other international leaders who have been so honored in the past.

Josserand is president of AzTx Cattle Co., past president of Texas Cattle Feeder's Association and past president of the National Cattleman's Association.

He is the only candidate so far to file paperwork necessary to run for Hereford Mayor in the May 1 municipal election.

Commissioners to record road miles in precincts

An accurate record will be made of the number of miles of roads being maintained by commissioners of Deaf Smith County, commissioners decided Monday.

Troy Don Martin, Precinct 3 commissioner, suggested that the record be kept for reference, when needed. Commissioners agreed informally, also, that the number of miles in each precinct would be helpful.

Mileage in each precinct and the number of miles that each commissioner oversees are not identical.

Traditionally, county road maintenance has been divided so commissioners have comparable mileage.

In the short meeting, Commissioner Johnny Latham of Precinct 4 was authorized to use a $17,000 seal-coating allocation on a road in his precinct and Commissioner Lupe Chavez of Precinct 2 was authorized to purchase a new mower at a price of approximately $9,700.

Approval of a medical service policy for the Deaf Smith County jail was delayed until state attorney general rulings are researched for legality of certain parts of the policy.

Judge to determine fate of children freed from Waco cult headquarters

WACO, Texas (AP) - With the standoff between an armed religious cult and federal authorities entering its 10th day today, a judge was scheduled to decide what will happen to 21 children freed by cult leader David Koresh.

The children, ranging in age from 5 months to 12 years, have been kept together as a family at a secret location. They were released last week from the compound that has been under siege since a Feb. 28 raid by federal agents turned into a bloody gun battle.

The children, now in the custody of state child welfare officials, are said to be in good health. But some were hurting emotionally. At times, they have expressed a desire to be reunited with parents still in the compound. Koresh claims 17 remain with him in the Mount Carmel compound.

"Under the circumstances, the kids are doing fine, but it's a difficult time for them," said Bob Boyd, program director for Children's Protective Services in Waco.

Today's hearing is to determine whether the state gains temporary custody or if the children will be released to other relatives. Concerned relatives from as far away as Great Britain and Australia have traveled to Waco and were expected to seek temporary custody.

Interviewed on NBC's "Today" show, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms director Stephen Higgins said federal agents are prepared for a lengthy standoff with the cult.

"We're prepared to stay there for a long time. Indefinitely," he said today.

FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms officials, meanwhile, said Koresh is becoming irritable in negotiations.

Koresh said he has been preparing for war since 1985 and at times seems eager to provoke another gun battle to fulfill his apocalyptic prophecies, FBI spokesman Bob Ricks said.

"He has indicated that he would be most pleased if we engage in a gun battle with him," Ricks said.

"He has made such statements as, 'We are ready for war. Let's get it on. Your talk is becoming in vain. I'm going to give you the opportunity to save yourselves before you get blown away,'" Ricks said.

Koresh and his followers killed four ATF agents and wounded 16, while some cult members also died, officials have said.

Bill sponsor says measure would bring aid to underserved areas

AUSTIN (AP) - The sponsor of two health reform bills approved by the Senate says the measures would encourage young doctors to practice family medicine in medically underserved areas.

"We don't need more family practicing physicians in North Dallas," said Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco. "We need them in rural areas."

A bill sponsored by Sibley would allocate about $1 million to a pilot program that would allow clinics that train family practice physicians to increase care for the poor.

A second bill by Sibley would allow medical graduates to save about $20,000 in student loans if they agree to serve their residencies in a medically underserved area, such as one of the 125 rural counties in Texas facing doctor or nursing shortages, Sibley said.

Both bills passed the Senate 31-0 Monday and will be forwarded to the House for consideration.

Texas has led the nation in hospital closures for more than five years, and nearly 40 percent of physicians in the state are age 55 or older and are nearing retirement, according to the Texas Hospital Association.

Rural areas have been calling for more aggressive recruiting of doctors to avoid severe shortages in the future.

He said the bill to forgo repayment of student loans would encourage doctors to select family practice,

Local 4-H, FFAers garner awards at Houston show

Hereford FFA and Deaf Smith County 4-H members who represented the county at last week's Houston Livestock Show have returned home, some of them with major awards and honors.

Colby Christie, a member of Deaf Smith County 4-H, was the big winner, walking away with Reserve Grand Champion steer honors after winning the All Other Breeds and Crossbreeds category with his 1,265-pound entry.

Christie, 15, then sold his steer, Shiner, for $100,000 in Saturday's Junior Market Steer Auction. Purchasers were Jim and Linda McIngvale/Gallery Furniture. The price was just $10,000 short of the record price for a reserve grand champion steer.

Christie said he plans to use his profits from the sale toward college at Texas A&M University.

Grand champion steer was Justin Gleghorn of Dimmitt, who sold his animal for a sale record $350,000.

Gleghorn was small frame steer champion and senior steer showman in the Hereford Young Farmers Livestock Show here in January.

In the hog show, Zachary Vasek of Hereford sold his 244-pound Cross for $77,000 in the sale.

Vasek, a member of Hereford FFA, garnered Grand Champion Barrow honors during the show. He also won the grand champion Cross breed award.

Other county participants placed their animals in their respective breeds in the barrow, steer and pig shows. County results from the Houston show are:

Bombing suspect stayed in country after visa ran out

NEW YORK (AP) - When he walked into the U.S. Embassy in Amman, Jordan, six years ago, Mohammed Salameh was a highly unlikely candidate for a tourist visa - an unmarried, 19-year-old Palestinian refugee making $50 a month.

He couldn't even afford a round-trip airline ticket. Yet, for reasons that now elude the State Department, Salameh won the local equivalent of the lottery: He got a visa. He came to the United States in 1988 and stayed long after the six-month visitor's limit.

Now Salameh is charged in the bombing of the World Trade Center, raising questions about how he got into the country in the first place.

U.S. embassies and consular offices around the world are supposed to screen out visa applicants who aren't likely to return home, and consular officials can reject such applicants for any reason with no fear of appeal. In nations from Ireland to the Philippines, this translates into a prejudice against the young, the unmarried and the under- or unemployed.

So how could Salameh get a visa? A State Department consular affairs official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the department could not review Salameh's visa application because such records are never kept for more than a few years. All that's left is a stamp on Salameh's passport.

"It looks like someone made a mistake on him, but we don't know what occurred in the visa interview," the official said. "Something must have happened to make the (consular) officer think he was a legitimate tourist."

"Maybe, if it was a borderline case, he was very convincing in the interview. Who knows?" Salameh must have been very convincing. Jordan, like most poor nations, has a high visa refusal rate. In fiscal 1991, for example, the Amman embassy granted 20,163 non-immigrant visas and rejected 18,603 applications.

The embassy's visa application line is one of the longest in town. There are limits on how often people can apply; otherwise, some would apply every day, hoping to luck into a sympathetic interviewer.

The interview usually lasts no more than a few minutes. "That's your time on stage, and you've got to do something with it," explained Allen Kaye, a New York immigration lawyer. "The presumption is that you're lying. The burden of proof is on you to show you'd come only to visit, not stay."

Salameh's mother said his family was shocked when he received the visa. "It was kind of a joke that he even applied," she told Newsday. "He and some friends were complaining about their low salaries ... and they said, 'Why not go to the United States?' Mohammed was astonished to be granted the visa. None of his friends got one."

Salameh, who was born on the Israeli-occupied West Bank, had worked at a cigarette stand in Jordan. His parents borrowed the money for the plane ticket, Salameh's mother said. "I'm surprised he got a visa," said Denise Sabagh, secretary of the American Immigration Lawyers Association. "His chances were really marginal."

Salameh is what is known in immigration law as "an intended immigrant" - he entered as a tourist but planned to stay. Relatives said he went to America to find work. He sent home about $5,000 he earned doing odd jobs, his mother said.

Candidate lists issues in campaign

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - U.S. Sen. Bob Krueger, campaigning for senior citizen votes, says he will push to eliminate Medicare waste and fight to keep Texas military bases open.

Krueger said Monday he wants the new National Performance Review headed by Vice President Al Gore to consider auditing the Medicare system. An estimated $1 billion per year is lost in Medicare when some private insurance companies don't pay the claims they should, he said.

Krueger, a Democrat, said waste and mismanagement within Medicare could lead to cutbacks in benefits or higher premiums.

"Medicare is far too important a program to be endangered," Krueger told about 50 elderly residents of the federally subsidized Granada Homes. "Amen," shouted one of the senior citizens in response.

Discussing news reports that Naval Station Ingleside in Corpus Christi may be targeted for closure, Krueger said if it is on a preliminary base closing list, several other steps remain before it could be closed.

The fact that it is a new installation may give it an edge over homeports in Alabama and New York in remaining open, Krueger said.

"I will make the strongest case that I can for that facility," he said. "That facility, in my judgment, from what I know, is a new, strong, efficient facility."

Krueger also said if fellow Democrat Jim Mattox, the former Texas attorney general, decides not to run in the May 1 Senate race, "that clearly makes our task a lot easier."

"I would love to see the Republicans start feeding on one another, which is what I think will happen," Krueger said. "Now the sharks ... are all after the whale."

Republican candidates include State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison and U.S. Reps. Joe Barton of Ennis and Jack Fields of Humble. Dallas millionaire Richard Fisher, a Democrat, also intends to run.

Element of surprise in raid lost by security leak, claims agent

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) - A New Mexico-based federal agent wounded in a raid at a religious sect's compound in Waco, Texas, blamed the ill-fated assault on a security leak that allowed cult members to learn of agents' plans.

"We lost the element of surprise. Without surprise you're going to lose, and that's what happened," said Jerry Petrilli, an Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent from Albuquerque. Petrilli was wounded in a 45-minute shootout that erupted Feb. 28 after agents tried to arrest Branch Davidson sect leader David Koresh on weapons charges.

If cult members hadn't learned of the raid, Petrilli said, he believes federal agents could have entered the compound without firing a shot.

As it was, four agents were killed and 16 were injured. Sources have said as many as 10 cult members may have died.

"It was the most dangerous mission I've been on," said Petrilli, a 17-year ATF veteran.

Koresh, who has said he is Jesus Christ, told negotiators he is "ready for war" and challenged agents to storm the compound where he and his followers are holed up.

Koresh has released 21 children and two elderly women and says 90 adults and 17 children remain in the compound.

Petrilli said the entire situation could have been avoided. "They could have just come out peacefully," he said. "And they still can."

Petrilli and two other Albuquerque agents sent to Waco belong to a 20-member special response team from that works out of Dallas on dangerous bureau cases.

Petrilli was one of the first agents to enter the compound to attempt to serve search and arrest warrants on Koresh. He said he was running toward the front door when bullets began to fly.

New guidelines announced

All adults with diabetes should be screened for blood fat levels - triglycerides, total cholesterol and HDL ("good" cholesterol) in order to help them manage their risk for heart disease, according to a recent American Diabetes Association consensus panel report. The panel recommended more aggressive treatment than outlined in previous guidelines, to control lipid disorders in people with diabetes.

"Cardiovascular disease in the 14 million Americans with diabetes is estimated to be four to five times greater than in people without diabetes," said F. Xavier Pi-Sunyer, MD, president, The American Diabetes Association. "People with non-insulin dependent diabetes mellitus (NIDDM) frequently have higher levels of triglyceride and lower HDL cholesterol levels than the general population."

The consensus panel made a variety of recommendations regarding total cholesterol levels for people with diabetes:

• Triglyceride levels below 200 mg/dl are "acceptable" in those patients who have no evidence of microvascular disease, but individuals with microvascular disease should maintain their triglyceride levels below 150 mg/dl.

• Patients with total cholesterol levels between 200-239 mg/dl, LDL cholesterol between 130-159 mg/dl and triglycerides between 200-399 mg/dl are considered at "borderline" risk.

• Those individuals with total cholesterol levels higher than 240 mg/dl and with HDL levels below 35 mg/dl are considered to be at "high" risk.

Treatment of lipid disorders in people with diabetes should focus on three areas - aggressive approach to weight loss, increased physical activity and glucose control. If these lifestyle changes are not effective, the use of drug therapy should be considered.

In a recent intervention study conducted by Eastern Virginia Medical School's Diabetes Institutes, one lipid-regulating agent, gemfibrozil, proved effective in treating the triad of elevated triglycerides, high LDL cholesterol and low HDL cholesterol which signals an increased risk of heart disease. HMG CoA Reductase Inhibitors are also effective in reducing LDL ("Bad" cholesterol) in people with diabetes.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) - Five-year-old Jenna Berger helped raise $30,150 - including $15,000 from Jay Leno - to get slides and swings installed at Johnny Carson Park. Now if only it would open while she's still young enough to play there.

Five months was spent raising money, then city officials took another six months designing the playground and awarding the contract for the equipment.

"It's taught her patience and more about politics than I had expected," said her mother, Claire Berger.

Black serves as hostess

Members of Toujour Amis Study Club met recently in the home of Cindy Black.

A Valentine's Day theme was carried out with a presentation by secret pals on "a gift for him." Following the presentation, members purchased gifts for their husbands.

Black and co-hostess, Lisa Formby, served refreshments of red velvet cake, chocolate hearts and sweet tarts in the shape of hearts to those present. They included Judy Barrett, Kim Bigham, Melinda Bridge, Janet Brigance, Patti Brown, Kim Buckley, Tami Charest, Shannon Hagar, Tonja Horrell, Brenda Koenig, Leisa Lewis, Kyla McDowell, Elaine McNutt, Donna West, Lauri Paetzold, Becky Reinart, Jill Savoini and Cindy Simons.

Plainview champs

Sanderson makes all-district team

Hereford senior guard Richard Sanderson was named to the District 1-4A All-District team. Sanderson was a first-team selection along with four others, plus district MVP Dwight Nickelberry of Pampa.

The all-district team was released after Pampa's 75-55 loss to Plainview in the Region 1-4A Finals on Saturday.

The rest of the first team was made up of Caprock seniors Franco Islas and Javier Fierro; Borger senior Ali Fe Gillum; and Pampa sophomore Duane Nickelberry.

Caprock put two on the second team, too: seniors Armando Carrasco and Tony Palmer. Rounding out the second team were seniors Chris Trevino of Randall and Ryan McNellis of Borger, and Seivern Wallace, a junior from Pampa. McNellis dropped from last year's first team to this year's second team. Fierro, Carrasco and Dwight Nickelberry all were second-team selections last year.

Caprock's Chester Dunavin received coach of the year honors after leading the Longhorns to second place in the district. Caprock handed Pampa its first district loss in several years.

Sanderson led the Herd in scoring with 12.9 points a game and in assists with 3.7 per game. He also grabbed 3.7 rebounds a game.

"I thought he was probably the best pure guard in the district," Herd coach Joe Main said. "There might be some that were better scorers or some that were better ballhandlers, but he was the best overall."

Sanderson, a three-year starter at point guard, was named the district's top sophomore two years ago.

Girls' track team ties for 4th

The Hereford girls' track team finished the Concho Belle Relays tied for fourth with San Angelo Lakeview.

Their 66 points trailed only Frenship's 173, Fort Stockton's 104 and Big Spring's 79. Trailing Hereford and Lakeview were Plainview with 48, Estacado with 31 and Monahans with 21.

The meet was held Friday and Saturday in San Angelo.

Hereford's highest finish in an individual event was third.

Jeannie Barrientez finished third in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 16.43 seconds, and in the 300 hurdles with a time of 49.45.

Ricka Williams was third in both the 1,600 run (6:18.35) and in the 3,200 run (13:59.2). Cady Auckerman finished fourth in the 3,200 with a time of 14:04.2.

Brandy Dunn was third in the long jump with a leap of 15 feet, 9 3/4 inches.

Jenny Parker was fourth in the discus with a throw of 93-5, followed closely by the fifth-place toss of teammate Beth Haile (90-5).

Two of Hereford's relays finished fourth: the 800 relay in 1:52.3 and the 1,600 in 4:30.4. The 800 team consisted of Dunn, Angie Jowell, Deanna McCracken and Krista West. The 1,600 team was Jowell, Barrientez, West and Amy Andrews.

Jowell took fifth place in the 300 hurdles with a time of 53.3. Dunn was sixth in the triple jump (31-6 1/2), and Crystal Kelly was sixth in the 100-meter dash (13.9).

The 400-meter relay team of Jowell, McCracken, Dunn and West was sixth in 53.86.

"The girls competed well, and we have improvement in some events," coach Martha Emerson said. "We will probably move some girls around and try them in some other events. This will be the first week we will have with varsity and junior varsity divisions, and that will give us a chance to get more girls involved."

The Hereford Invitational will be run Saturday. More details will be available later this week.

Herd netters take P'view title

Hereford tennis players made the finals in all four brackets of the Plainview tennis tournament, helping the team to win the tournament overall. Additionally, the girls won as a group, and the boys came in second.

Bri Reinauer won the girls' singles bracket, beating Pampa's Meredith Horton 6-3, 6-4.

Hereford players lost in the other three finals: Greg Coplen in boys' singles, Donny Perales and Chris Lyles in boys' doubles and Emily Fuston and Sherry Fuston in girls' doubles.

"We had an excellent tennis weekend," Herd coach Natalie Sims said of the Friday and Saturday tournament. "We brought home seven trophies and two plaques."

"I was most impressed with Perales' and Lyles' play. They were hot both days. They executed well and played some very smart tennis."

"The Fustons, Greg and Bri all made it to the finals with no problem," Sims said. "The competition was found during those matches, which was a nice awakening for some. The Fustons only gave up one game out of three whole matches, and that makes it harder to prepare for a tough finals match."

Jamie Kapka in boys' singles, Michelle Berend in girls' singles, and the girls' doubles team of Kara Sandoval and Brooke Weishaar each won three matches and lost only one, but in all three cases the loss was in the second round to an eventual finalist. All three ended up in fifth place.

Finally, Hereford boys' doubles team of Richard Drager and Tom Jarecki finished sixth--out of 16 places.

There were eight teams in the Plainview tournament: Hereford, Plainview, Pampa, Palo Duro, Estacado, Frenship, Randall and Plainview's junior varsity.

Here are the complete results of matches involving Hereford players.

Bri Reinauer: def. Errin Ethridge, F, 6-1, 6-0; def. Carissa Rothwell, Pl, 6-1, 6-0; def. Maria Dinh, PD, (no score given); and def. Meredith Horton, Pa, 6-3, 6-4.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Boys' track team 4th in Lubbock

The Hereford boys' track team finished fourth in the Class 4A division of Saturday's Lubbock Invitational.

Hereford totalled 56 points, trailing San Angelo Lakeview with 195, Big Spring with 95 and Dunbar with 83. Hereford was ahead of Frenship (48), Estacado (36) and Caprock (24).

The Herd was led by the throwers, as Steven Blea won the shot put event with a toss of 51 feet, 2 3/4 inches. James Hamer was second in the discus, and Craig Hiltbrunner came in third in the shot.

On the track, Hereford earned fourth, fifth or sixth place points in nearly every event, but didn't get any higher than that.

"Overall, we did not run as well as we did last week," coach Ron Young said. "We did have some bright spots: Hamer's 141-0 in the discus; Hiltbrunner's 48-4 1/2 in the shot; (Petey) Colvin improved his times in the 100-meter dash and in the 200. We were impressed by some of our 800 times."

Young cited specifically Pedro Dominguez and Jason Eades in the 800-meter run. Dominguez was fifth in the 800 with a time of 2:09.66, and Eades was second in the junior varsity race with a 2:12.79, a time that was nearly enough to place in the varsity race.

Hereford got fourth-place finishes from Colvin in the 100 and 200. He ran the 100 in 10.87 and ran the 200 in 22.16.

Michael Ramirez was fourth in the 400-meter dash with a time of 52.78.

Ramirez teamed with three others on two fourth-place relay teams. The 400 relay--with Colvin, Shawn Fogo and Quincy Curtis--had a time of 43.94. The 1,600 relay--with Fogo, Hayden Andrews and Nathan Betzen--ran in 3:39.

Hereford got fifth place finishes from Andrews (43.7) in the 300 hurdles and from Betzen (16.96) in the 110 hurdles. Betzen was sixth (43.89) in the 300 hurdles, and Mark Kuper was sixth (17.0) in the 110 hurdles.

Dominguez was sixth in the 1,600-meter run with a time of 5:05.5.

With the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Relays set for Saturday, Young is aiming for improvement.

"It is real apparent that we are far from being where we need to be," Young said. "If we can get some good weather this week, we'll try to get a step or two better."

"We are running in the Hereford track meet this Saturday. We have an excellent opportunity to win our track meet. We will work toward that goal this week."

Hereford's junior varsity team finished second in the JV division at Lubbock. Michael Brown won the triple jump with a leap of 39-7.

In addition to Eades in the 800, Hereford got second place finishes from Marquise Brown in the 100 dash, T.J. Robbins in the 110 hurdles, Ben Celaya in the discus, and the 1,600 relay team of Jacob Moreno, Jason Eades, Todd Radford and Michael Brown.

Yer out!

A Plainview runner dives for the play, but it was too late. Hereford catcher Justin Wright shows umpire Bill Watts the ball after a collision at home plate. Hereford split a doubleheader with Plainview Saturday at Whiteface Field.

JV baseball team splits with 'Dogs

Hereford's junior varsity baseball team split a doubleheader with Plainview Saturday at Whiteface Field. After falling 7-4 in the first game, Hereford came back for a 12-2 win in the second game. Hereford scored five runs in the first inning, then finished the game early--by the 10-run rule--by scoring six in the fifth inning.

Josh Tice's RBI triple led a parade of hits in the first inning. Ronald Torres, Joe DeLaCruz, Marc Haney and Wade McPherson all scored in the inning.

Hereford got a single run in the second on Torres' triple and Tice's groundout.

Hereford got six hits in the fifth inning. Tanner Murphey started the rally with a double, and Torres, McPherson, Armando Zambrano, Jacob Lopez and Gabriel Guerrero all followed with singles. Justin Wright's smash to shortstop was booted, allowing the winning run in.

Gregg Kalka pitched all five innings for Hereford. He gave up a triple to lead off the game (the runner scored), but he gave up very little else.

In the first game, Torres led Hereford's offense with two hits and a run scored.

Hereford's varsity team, now 2-4 after winning one out of three in the Levelland Tournament, goes to Amarillo today for a 4 p.m. game at Amarillo High.

W. Kentucky invited to Dance

By The Associated Press
Western Kentucky just wanted to make sure.

The Hilltoppers earned an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament rather than wait to find out if they had enough for an at-large berth. They did what no Sun Belt Conference team did all season - beat No. 13 New Orleans, 72-63 Monday night in the league's championship game.

"We showed that we deserve to be in, win or lose. This team has answered every challenge," Western Kentucky coach Ralph Willard said.

New Orleans (26-3) went 18-0 in the conference regular season, was on a 13-game winning streak and had virtually already assured itself of an NCAA bid with the outstanding record and No. 24 power rating according to one of the services used by the selection committee.

Western Kentucky (24-5) was second to the Privateers in the conference and its only two losses in the last 16 games were to New Orleans.

The bid is the first for Western Kentucky since 1987, and it was one of five schools to clinch a spot in the tournament Monday night, bringing the total number of qualifiers to 13 with 17 conference titles still at stake.

In other games involving ranked teams on Monday, it was No. 15 Iowa 56, Northwestern 50 and No. 20 Massachusetts 76, Rhode Island 50.

Schrempf sparks Pacers to win

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer
Meet the NBA's new iron man - Detlef Schrempf.

In the last two nights, the Indiana Pacers' center has played all 96 minutes. That may be comforting to coach Bob Hill, but it didn't do much for the Seattle SuperSonics.

"He won't be complaining about his minutes now," Hill said after Schrempf had 29 points and a season-high 19 rebounds as the Pacers ended Seattle's 10-game winning streak, 105-99 Monday night.

On Sunday night, Schrempf scored 25 points in a 114-99 loss to Miami.

If fatigue is setting in, Seattle coach George Karl certainly didn't notice.

"They killed us," Karl said after Seattle's longest winning streak in 10 years came to an end, with Schrempf leading Indiana's assault of the backboards. "In the first half, they outboarded us on our own boards (12-11)."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Atlanta 121, the Los Angeles Clippers 113; Cleveland 122, Denver 107; New York 109, Orlando 107 in overtime; and Philadelphia 92, Minnesota 83.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Elderly topic of recent program

Ann Landers

Check grandchild's immunization records

"A Time Of Need, A Time Of Care" was the program presented by Carol Odom when members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Beverly Brooke.

Odom said, "Texas has the largest population of elderly people over 65." She then told of a recent experience of driving alone out of town and the caution she took while traveling.

Brooke gave the opening exercise titled "Who We Are" and President Jo Lee called the meeting to order. Argen Draper led the T.E.H.A. prayer and the pledges to the United States and Texas flags.

The 13 members present answered roll call to "what I do to help the elderly."

During the business meeting, Carol Odom reported on the council meeting held after the recent Annual Appreciation Luncheon. She read the recommendations made at council to be brought to the clubs to be voted on: recreation, finance, education and yearbook guidelines.

The next meeting will be held March 18 in the home of Marcie Ginn.

Brooke and co-hostess, Argen Draper, served refreshments to Louise Axe, Vada Batterman, Virgie Duncan, Camelia Jones, Jo Lee, Carol Odom, Coreen Odom, Pet Ott, Mary Stubblefield, Barbara Sterne and Clara Trowbridge.

During construction of China's Grand Canal at the turn of the sixth century, 5.5 million laborers are said to have completed 2,500 miles of canal in six years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 29-year-old male who doesn't want to have children.

I've been called selfish, lazy, hedonistic and a closet gay. I've been told, "You are obligated to have kids because your parents had you." A close friend said, "You don't know what you're missing." I told her, "I DO know what I'm missing, and that's why I'm missing it."

I believe many people have kids in order to look "normal." Others are afraid of being lonely when they get on in years. Still others need something to brag about.

Parenthood is an enormous responsibility. Being a parent means headaches and heartaches. Furthermore, there are no guarantees that children will bring you happiness.

Some people do not make suitable parents because they are unwilling to make the sacrifices, which involve loss of personal freedom and sleepless nights, to say nothing of the money it takes to raise kids.

I admit I don't want children for all the reasons I've mentioned. I'm afraid people consider me a freak. Am I a freak and just reluctant to admit it?—A Man in Chicago

DEAR MAN: A freak? Not at all. You sound like a person who is willing to admit the truth. I just hope you meet a woman who shares your views.

It's a fact that children can be expensive, time- and energy-consuming, and as you said, a headache and a heartache, but they also can bring you enormous pleasure and be the best part of your life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This morning, while my 2-year-old son and I were playing in the park, two boys about 6 years old appeared with toy guns.

One boy had a toy rifle and a holster with a western-style handgun, and the other had a holster with a very realistic-looking pistol. These boys began to run through the park "shooting" at each other while their father looked on. Another youngster went over and asked if he could join their game and was told to get permission from his mother. She must have agreed because the third boy ended up with a very realistic-looking pistol which he brandished with glee.

Ann, this sent chills down my spine. I could just envision the park police mistaking one of the pistols for a real gun and shooting a boy "in self-defense." When I spoke to the children's father about my anxiety, he said, "This is a public park, and the kids can play with anything they like." He also mumbled something about guns being part of our American heritage.

I hope you will suggest to your readers that guns of any kind do not belong in the hands of children and that they especially have no place on a public playground—particularly in a city that has such overwhelming statistics of children being killed by gunfire.—Linda in Los Angeles

DEAR LINDA IN L.A.: Anyone who reads this column knows how I feel about guns. I've had a running battle with the National Rifle Association since Day One. But Americans love their guns, and this love affair which goes back to the frontier days has been reinforced by movies and TV.

Too often, toy guns have been mistaken for the real thing, and the results have been tragic. I hope all parents who feel that they must buy toy guns for their children will get plastic ones, red, green or blue, so that no one would ever mistake them for the real thing.

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Henry Miller was a pioneer of erotic literature, not a smut peddler, says fellow author Erica Jong.

Jong, whose newest book, "The Devil at Large," is a tribute to Miller, says he's been "terribly misunderstood" by the public.

"Nobody sees him as the heir to Thoreau and Whitman," she said during a recent bookstore appearance. "He's seen as the king of smut. He's seen as the man who put dirty words in books and as the man who opened the door to an avalanche of pornography."

Jong said she became friends with Miller, who died in 1980, after the 1974 publication of her sexually frank novel "Fear of Flying."

You can do your grandchildren a grand service by checking their immunization records. That's one of the messages from the national Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, a partner in this year's National Immunization Campaign.

Today's low immunization rate among pre-schoolers raises the spectre of epidemics of potentially deadly diseases, warns National Committee President Martha A. McSteen. "Many retirees can recall the days when outbreaks of measles, diphtheria and polio were widespread and the effects devastating. Now all of these can be easily avoided with proper vaccinations."

I believe grandparents, in many households, will be the catalyst for youngsters getting the immunizations they need," she said, "particularly when they realize that it's dangerous to delay vaccinations until children start school."

Vaccinations need to be started long before the start of school, medical experts say. Children need to be immunized starting at birth and should complete most of their vaccinations by the time they're two years of age. When your grandchild is vaccinated, he or she is protected from nine diseases.

-MMR to protect against measles, mumps and rubella.

-Polio vaccine (OPV) to protect against polio.

-DTP to protect against diphtheria, tetanus, (lockjaw) and pertussis (whooping cough).

-Hib vaccine to protect against Hemophilus influenza type b (meningitis and other serious infections).

Hepatitis B to protect against liver infection.

Remember, you can get your grandchild vaccinated even if you don't have the money to pay for it. At community health centers and public health clinics, you can get your child vaccinated for free or at a very low cost. Ask your doctor or clinic to give you the vaccination schedule recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics. Make sure your grandchildren and their friends get the vaccinations they need, when they need them.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have always been constipated. In the past, I have taken laxatives, but now I take Metamucil. It doesn't help that much. I move my bowels about every three days, but my stools are hard. I have some hemorrhoids as well. I started taking stool softeners, one every night. It helps me so much, but what I want to know is if it is all right to take one every night.

DEAR READER: Laxative habits can cause a lot of bowel problems. The worst are those that are stimulants and stimulate bowel contractions. They often lead to premature emptying of the colon. Then when there is a delay in the subsequent bowel movement, a person takes still another laxative. The process continues. That can contribute to having the irritable bowel syndrome because of constant stimulation.

Normal colon function does require a reasonable amount of bulk in the diet. When that can be supplied by fresh fruits, vegetables and whole-grain cereal, that is the natural and the best way. If for some reason this is not achieved, one of the bulk formers such as Metamucil is often recommended. Citrucel, Fiberall, Konsyl and Perdiem Plain are among other bulk-forming products that can be used.

Taking bulk formers is not always that helpful. If a person is taking diuretics, the bulk is apt to be simply dried out, resulting in dry, hard stools. That is also why drinking lots of water, in addition to taking bulk formers, is important.

In other circumstances, too much water is extracted from the small intestine, resulting in hard, dry stools. Stool softeners are helpful in such cases. They may prevent the absorption of too much water. The other concept is that the softeners affect the surface of the stool, allowing moisture to penetrate it.

I have discussed stool softeners in Special Report 113, Are Laxatives and Enemas Dangerous? I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/113, P.O. Box 5537, River-ton, NJ 08077.

The daily use of stool softener should not cause any problems. And using one along with a bulk former is fine. Some of the stool softeners are Colace, Mondane Soft Capsules and Surfak.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I had an operation for aneurysms. My doctor clipped two serious ones in my brain. One was a berry aneurysm. I have a few more left in my head. I was told I was born with them. Is everyone who has them born with them? What else causes them?

DEAR READER: Berry aneurysms are small rounded sacular dilata-tions of the wall of arteries in the brain. Their resemblance to a berry is the reason for the term. They occur from a combination of congenital defects and acquired factors. There is an inherited defect in the muscle and elastic components of the artery. In time, pressure in the artery causes the area to balloon into the berry aneurysm. Very small ones (micro-aneurysmal dilatation) occur in 15 to 20 percent of the population and are not a problem. Larger ones can rupture, causing hemorrhage around the brain.

The smaller ones can be left alone, and the larger ones are candidates for clipping to prevent a rupture. Many patients who have had one such rupture live long and useful lives without further problems, usually depending on the number and size of other such aneurysms.

Flower arranging discussed by garden club members

"Flower Arranging Is For Everyone" was the video shown by Patricia Robinson to members of Garden Beautiful Club when the group met recently in the home of Louise Axe with Marguerite Cole serving as co-hostess.

With President Jerry Jackson presiding at the business meeting, minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report given. Jackson also named a nominating committee for the new club year. Serving on the committee will be Helen Spinks, chairman, Jeane Dowell and Dorothy Noland.

Leona Andrews was welcomed as a new member.

Protect environment

In just three years, plastic bag recycling has captured the environmental consciousness of shoppers nationwide.

At nearly half of the country's supermarkets, plastic bag recycling bins are one of the first stops customers make as they enter the supermarket. In fact, over 40 percent of consumers surveyed by the Wirthlin Group, a leading research firm, said that they recycle their plastic bags on a regular basis.

"More and more consumers are extending the functional and environmental advantages of plastic bags by reusing them over and over, and then recycling them," according to Len Levy, president of the Plastic Bag Association.

Making Every Bag Count
"We want to help consumers make every recycled plastic bag count. That's why we're asking everyone to turn their bags inside out before recycling," Levy says.

According to Levy, such items as paper receipts, food scraps, packaging and other material can interfere with the recycling process, decreasing its efficiency and increasing its cost. "We've even found loose change, dollar bills and jewelry in plastic bags, so consumers also have a personal interest in checking their bags carefully," he adds.

Levy offers these tips to make every bag count:

-Before you recycle them, reuse your plastic bags for return trips to the supermarket or to carry lunches, athletic wear, shoes, etc.

-Conserve space at home by laying plastic bags flat instead of crumpling them into a ball. This also helps you

Del Toro, Cummings win recent competition

Members of Hereford Toastmasters Club met Thursday at the Ranch House for the Local Tall Tales and International Speech Contest.

Margaret Del Toro won the Tall Tales competition and will represent the club at the Area III contest. She spoke on "Do You Know They Are There?" which was evaluated by Jigger Rowland. Also, entered in the competition was Sharon Cramer who spoke on "Why the Sea Is Salt" evaluated by Dave Kimmel.

Entered in the International Speech Contest were Del Toro who made a presentation titled "Let That Light Bulb Shine" evaluated by Wayne Winget. Joe Don Cummings spoke on "Slay the Fox" evaluated by Bob Lohr. Cummings won the event and will represent Hereford at the Area III contest.

President Gayla Sanders presided over the business meeting when Area Governor Jigger Rowland informed members of the area and division contests to be held in a few weeks.

Clark Andrews led the pledge to the flag and Cummings gave the invocation.

Joe Weaver served as Toastmasters; Andrews, timer; Dave Kimmel, "ah" counter; Dr. Milton Adams, grammarian; Margaret Del Toro, wordmaster; and "tenacious", the chosen word for the meeting. Sanders served as general evaluator and Winget was the chief judge for the competition.

Others attending were Rick Jackson and Adolfo Del Toro.

Audine Dettman reported on the beautification project and encouraged all members to help with various proposed projects.

Correspondence was read from King's Manor Auxiliary explaining the need for a security system and also from Boys Ranch and Girls Town.

The club will meet April 2 in the home of Bessie Story with Donna Brockman presenting the program.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess to Vada Axe, Ruby Carmichael, Dottie Darden, Audine Dettman, Jeane Dowell, Jerry Jackson, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks, Bessie Story and Leona Andrews.

Hull named to statewide commission

Michael S. Hull of Austin, former Hereford resident, has been appointed by Gov. Ann Richards to the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse for a term extending to June 8, 1997.

Hull is a Hereford High School graduate and former Whiteface basketball letterman. He attended Wayland Baptist University and earned his law degree from Texas Tech University School of Law. He is the son of Mary Sue and the late James Hull of Hereford.

Hull, 34, will fill the unexpired term of Cynthia Capra of Laredo, who resigned. The appointment is subject to Senate confirmation. Hull is a partner in the law firm of Maroney, Crowley & Bankston.

Hints from Heloise

TAPE DISPENSER

Dear Heloise: I was constantly fighting with rolls of tape. The end of the tape would always disappear into the roll, especially on the clear packing-tape roll.

To keep this from happening, I now stick a penny on the end of the tape so it doesn't stick to the roll and can be found easily. —K. Miller, Las Vegas, Nev.

You can save your pennies; a washer will work just as well. —Heloise

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: I've been married nearly 41 years and have cooked up a storm for most of them.

I have oodles of cookbooks but have one problem! Very few recipes or cookbooks state on which oven shelf to put any of the items to be baked.

I only recently found that to bake a pizza one should place it on the lowest rack. No wonder mine never baked well before. —June Carlson, Omaha, Neb.

A very good point and one that I hope others will take note of when writing recipes. —Heloise
