Industry leaders rap water board actions

At local meeting chaired by Sen. Bivins

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Concerned dairymen, cattle feeders and economic development leaders vented their frustration on members of the Texas Water Commission (TWC) here Friday during a public meeting to discuss the permitting process for dairies—a process which several industry leaders said was costing this area millions of dollars.

Local industry and economic development leaders said dairies and dairy plants are going to New Mexico because it takes too long to get a water permit in Texas.

State Sen. Teel Bivins, who chaired the meeting, said the "message comes across loud and clear...the testimony presented has been a real eye opener for me, and I hope for members of the Texas Water Commission."

The senator closed the meeting by asking the water board to report back in a week on specific action that can be taken to speed up the permitting process.

Bivins opened the meeting by having a dairyman and a Texas Cattle Feeders Association leader to make comments, then had TWC commissioner Pam Reed give an overview of the agency's work. He then opened the meeting to public comment, admonishing those in the audience to "focus on what we can do in the future, not what has happened in the past."

The senator reminded the audience that the water board "also gets hammered by people in other parts of the state who don't want permits issued quickly."

The panel of industry people included Larry Hancock of Muleshoe, president of the Dairymen's Association of Texas; Ross Wilson, Texas Cattlefeeders Association; Bob Josseland, AZTX Cattle Co.; John Hafliger, dairy; Cliff Skiles, feedyard; Bob Barrett, feedyard; Dan McWhorter, feedyard; Don Opplinger, dairy/feedyard; Dwight Brandt, engineer; Bob Sims, feedyard; Wes Fisher, chamber of commerce; Henry Reid, Realtor.

The meeting was arranged by Sen. Bivins through a request from Mike Carr, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce executive vice president. "Senator Bivins has been aware of our concerns and worked to speed up the permitting process," said Carr. But even Bivins was amazed at some of the "horror" stories related by permit applicants.

John Hafliger, Hereford dairyman, for instance, held up five pages of forms which he said was the New Mexico water permit application he recently filed, and in the other hand held up a file folder about one-inch thick which represented his Texas application. He added that preparation of the Texas form cost him about $12,000 in engineering fees; the New Mexico forms were filled out free.

"That blows my mind," responded Bivins. "If what you're saying is all factual, we've got to have the TWC make some administrative changes, or the Senate work on legislative changes."

Hafliger said the technical information required in the two states is about the same, but "it's ridiculous to fill out all this information because it rains more in Stephenville than it does in Hereford!"

TWC Commissioner Pam Reed said plans call for a consolidation so that applicants can go to one place for water and air permits.

Visiting with the Senator

Frank Barrett, State Sen. Teel Bivins and Wes Fisher are shown visiting after a public hearing was held here Friday on Hereford's problems in securing new industry because of the lengthy process in obtaining permits from the Texas Water Commission. About 50 persons attended the meeting at Hereford Community Center.

Governor criticizes DOE plan to store plutonium at Amarillo plant

AUSTIN (AP) - The federal government's plan to store plutonium from the nation's dismantled nuclear warheads in the Texas Panhandle is drawing concern from Gov. Ann Richards.

She wants federal officials tell her how long they plan to store the waste at the Pantex nuclear plant in Amarillo, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

Richards also has criticized a U.S. Department of Energy report as leaving unanswered questions about whether the plutonium could contaminate the Ogallala Aquifer, a major ground water supply crucial to farming in Texas and other states, the newspaper reported.

In a February letter to Secretary of Energy Hazel O'Leary, Richards said the state could not trust the Energy Department's preliminary environmental study, which found that the storing of waste at Pantex was safe. She said that study was "fundamentally flawed."

"We think they did not do their homework," said Roger Mulder, the governor's special projects director for environmental policy.

As part of post-Cold War military reductions, the federal government plans to dismantle 20,000 nuclear warheads at Pantex, where many of the weapons were assembled, and store the plutonium pits, or triggerheads, in "igloos" at the plant.

The governor's criticisms and those of other state agencies were sent to the Energy Department. Mulder said Richards will wait for a response and eventually meet with federal energy officials to discuss the concerns.

Ron Dusek, spokesman for the Texas attorney general's office, said his office would send its own criticisms to O'Leary and reiterate its demand for an environmental impact study.

City-county venture will produce improved road

A cooperative venture of the City of Hereford and Deaf Smith County will afford motorists a better roadway at the northwest edge of Hereford.

West 15th Street, between Centre and Hickory, is getting a layer of caliche which should make the road more easily traveled in all kinds of weather.

The city is providing the caliche from a city-owned caliche pit and county road crews are working the material on the road.

Deaf Smith County Commissioner Lupe Chavez of Precinct 2 is responsible for maintaining the road, which he says is half city and half county.

"The north side is county and the south side is city," Chavez said.

Although his precinct crews maintain the road, it actually lies in Precinct 3, served by Commissioner Troy Don Moore.

Informally, the county commissioners discussed the possibility of laying caliche on the road with city officials.

"I talked to some of the city commissioners and they thought it would be okay," said Mayor Tom LeGate.

LeGate pointed out that city residents use the road extensively. "It's heavily traveled by people in that part of town," he said.

Chavez said 87 dump truck loads of caliche were delivered for the road work. "It's just over three-tenths of a mile," he added.

Heart group plans gala

"Hearts-A-Fire," a benefit gala, is scheduled Saturday night, March 20, by the Deaf Smith County division of the American Heart Association.

The event will start at 8 p.m. at Hereford Country Club on March 20, and will include food, fun, a silent auction and entertainment and dancing to the music of "Masterpeace."

Admission will be $25 a person. Invitations were mailed to many local residents, and the deadline for reservations has been extended. Those who received invitations are asked to reply by next Thursday.

Persons interested in attending the benefit event should make reservations with Mr. or Mrs. Ron Rives, 405 Centre Street.

Protected bird species list is lengthy

Don't touch dead bird, call Stucki

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Farmers, motorists, bird watchers, anyone, for that matter, who come across injured or dead birds would do well to heed the advice of the game warden whose territory includes Deaf Smith County.

"Don't touch the bird -- call me," said Jerry Stucki, who was transferred by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer Counties from the Gulf Coast last August.

Punctuating his advice, Stucki points out that not too long ago, a $3,000 fine was levied on a person who had three hawk feathers in possession.

The protected bird species list in Texas is lengthy -- only the English sparrow and European starling are absent. Eagles, hawks and owls are among those at the top of the list.

Stucki said a single violation can cost the offender $500.

A TP&WD game warden functions in three areas -- education, prevention and apprehension. And, in Stucki's mind, education is at least as important, if not more so, than the others.

"I love to see children learning about the out-of-doors," he continued. "We need to make them more aware and we must not ruin it for our kids."

Because of his interest in hunting and fishing as a child growing up in Iowa Park, Stucki applied for admission to the TP&WD academy program. Making application was the easiest part of the process, he said.

"Applicants go through a lengthy process of interviews and testing," he explained. "Then, there is an interview in Austin for the final cut."

The academy is an intensive 28-week program which prepares the prospective warden for his future work. Stucki has been with TP&WD since July 1987.

A game warden is a state peace officer, with the responsibilities of any law enforcement officer. The game warden can go a little further, though, in some instances.

"We can go anywhere a bird flies or a fish swims," said Stucki, explaining that the TP&WD officer has a "right of inspection" that other law enforcement personnel may not have.

"What might be considered trespassing by another officer is not for us," he added. Obviously, though, the game warden must have probable cause to exercise the right of inspection.

In recent times, TP&WD wardens have worked hard to bring a halt to trafficking in any endangered or protected species and their parts.

The law addresses importation of those species or parts into Texas, also. As an example, Stucki pointed out that there are no black bears in the state any longer but there are some in adjoining states.

"You can't bring parts of those bears into Texas," he declared.

Special interest among illegal operations is the eagle, either bald or golden. "There was a big trade in feathers and talons," said Stucki.

He is striving in his job to make people aware of the penalties for killing, collecting, selling or trading bird parts.

"It's important that people know you can't pick up an eagle... pluck a feather... give it to a friend," emphasized Stucki.

He said he understands the temptation of those who see a dead or wounded bird and want to show it to others, or take care of it.

Address correction

In a Friday article on grand jury indictments, the address of Joe Martinez, 27, was inadvertently listed as 833 Blevins. The address from court records should have been 833 Irving.

City sets budget session

A single item agenda for a 5:30 p.m. meeting Monday of the Hereford City Commission is directed to a new budget for the next fiscal year, beginning May. Regular commission meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m.. Among items of business are consideration of bids to purchase a tractor for park use and a utility vehicle for the golf course, discussion and adoption of an ordinance for paving assessments on Knight and Lafayette Streets and consideration of an ordinance for the hotel/motel occupancy tax agreement between the city and the chamber of commerce.

Marketing short course set

The Deaf Smith Farm Bureau Young Farmers and Ranchers will sponsor a marketing short course on Tuesday at 6 p.m. in K-Bob's Restaurant. Cost is $15 per person or $25 per couple. Dinner will be included. The course will introduce different marketing strategies and will begin at a basic level. It is open to the public. For more information and to make reservations, call Joe Rohrbach at 267-2940.

Crimestoppers to change oil

The Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers Association will hold an oil change fundraiser on March 20 to raise money to benefit association activities. The event will be held from 8 a.m. to noon and will be by appointment only at Steven's Chevrolet on U.S. 385. Cost will be a minimum $10 donation and proceeds will be used to benefit activities of the group. To make an appointment, call the service department at Steven's Chevrolet, 364-2160.

Adoption/foster care orientation set

The Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services will hold an adoption/foster care orientation from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. March 25 in the Hereford Community Center. Anyone interested in learning more about providing foster care or adopting a child through the department is encouraged to attend. Requirements, training and types of children available for foster care and adoption will be discussed. For more information call the department at 364-1266 or 353-9962.

Scholarship pageant coming up

The Hereford Fiestas Patrias Scholarship Pageant committee will have application available April 1 for their 1993 scholarship pageant, which will be held Sept. 11. Participants will compete for $1,200 in scholarships to be awarded to three finalists. The pageant is open to anyone between the ages of 17 and 22 currently enrolled in high school or college. Applications will be available from Debbie Gonzales at Hereford State Bank, Gloria Rodriguez at the Hair Gallery or Sarah Pesina at Hereford High School. Additional information is available from Gonzales at 364-3456.

Police release activity report

Four arrests mark Saturday's Hereford Police Department activity report. Three men were arrested for DWI, a 28-year-old Hispanic male, a 22-year-old white male and a 20-year-old Hispanic male. In addition, a 37-year-old Hispanic male was arrested for displaying fictitious license plate. In other activity, criminal trespass was reported in the 500 block of Willow Lane. Assault was reported in the 200 block of Higgins. Domestic disturbance was reported in the 400 block of West Third. Tampering with mail was reported in the 500 block of Avenue H. Criminal mischief of windows broken at a residence was reported in the 200 block of Blevins. A report was made of attempted aggravated assault in the 300 block of Bradley. Assault was reported in the 600 block of Irving. Three separate thefts were reported, one where a $400 stove was taken from the 200 block of James Street; one where a purse containing $500 in cash, $150 money order and $500 in food stamps was taken from the 200 block of Hereford Calle; and one in the 200 block of Main Street where a dinosaur pin containing 12 different pins inside was taken. Two females left the store without paying for the $12 pin. A civil matter was reported in the 100 block of Avenue B. Seven citations were issued and three minor accidents occurred. There were no fire calls.

Grand champion barrow

Zachary Vasek, a member of Hereford FFA, won Grand Champion barrow honors last week at the Houston Livestock Show. He also was judged champion Crossbred breed champion. The animal sold for $77,000 in the annual livestock sale. See additional Houston Livestock Show photos, Page 8A.

Weather conditions improve

The National Weather Service is calling for the conditions to be considerably better today than they were the end of last week. The forecast is calling for mostly sunny skies, with a high in the mid-50s. Winds are expected to be from the south at 10-20 mph.

and enforcement, told the audience that the reorganization of the water commission had created a backlog of 200 to 300 applications and, for the last five or six months, the agency has used mandated-overtime in an attempt to catch up. He said the most recent application--that by Hafliger Dairy--had been completed in less than a month and will be sent to the commission very quickly.

"We are still streamlining and speeding up the process," said Kowis. He added that the board may get EPA delegation soon, so the state could handle those permits also.

Kowis said the Hereford delegation had "presented the situation on dairies very well" at the recent Panhandle Day in Austin and the agency was working to speed up the permitting process.

Jesus Garza, TWC executive director, told the group, "We're hear to listen and learn...you are our customers." He said he would study the possibility of applying different rules for different parts of the state, and also study the possibility of having a "permit by rule" which might be used to expedite action for applicants.

Dr. David Purdy, local dentist, had asked why the guidelines or rules couldn't be changed for different parts of the state. Kowis said the rules are the same over the state, "but we do a golden eagle dead in a field would want to take it home to show the family," continued Stucki, "but he better not. If he gets caught with the bird, there is a fine."

An injured bird should not be picked up, either, he said, because of the risk of causing further harm. Rehabilitation and care may put the bird back into the air. A call to Stucki gives that chance to the bird.

Differences in his assignment in the Panhandle and his work on the Gulf Coast are marked, Stucki said. "This is a whole new game here," he continued. His work encompassed many areas of law enforcement on the Gulf Coast, he said. "I might be assigned to a drug interdiction or other illegal activities."

Pheasant hunting season in December was a new experience for the TP&WD officer. "I'd never even hunted pheasant," he laughed.

Stucki found hunters during the pheasant season usually cooperative. TP&WD biologists believe the pheasant population should increase this year.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

In "A Safe Haven for Children" Keith Geiger, NEA President, says, "It will take many years to root out the underlying causes of violence in our society. But it's an effort well worth undertaking. In the interim, we can do much to reclaim our schools as a safe haven."

There are many things "going on" in the HJH haven and our hopes are that we can involve as any students as possible in these activities.

Hereford Junior High bands competed in the Annual WTSU Band and Orchestra Olympics recently. Mr. Summersgill reported that many students won awards and the team placed Second overall.

Mr. Rowe's GMR students have built an electric car and teachers were offered rides on it Friday. GMR's class motto is "GMR is service with a smile."

While eighth graders were involved in TAAS tests on Thursday the seventh graders registered for the next year and participated in group activities in the gym.

History Fair participants traveled to Canyon Saturday to compete with area schools. Results of this venture will be reported this week.

In the Local History Fair, there were fourteen students participating. Winning First Place with an entry entitled "Marketing of a Love Affair" were Andrew Carr, Andrew DeToro and Ryan Manning. Taking Second Place were Kris Friel and Charles Hubner with "Communication with Flags and Banners." The Third Place winners were Candice Campbell, Leslie Poarch, and Randy York with "Communication Through Telephones." The Fourth Place winner was Jim Moudy with an entry entitled "Talking Hands." "The Pony Express," an entry by Deanna Redelsperger and Rebecca Gutierrez took Fifth Place and Sixth was "The Sneaky Sells" constructed by Nicole McWhorter, Briar Baker and Holly Weishaar.

Seventh grade history students will be working on essays about the Panhandle. This can be about people, places or things - past, present or future. Another opportunity for writing will be prose or essays on "Enjoying the Outdoors-Safely" which is sponsored by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Children learn to read by reading and learn to write by writing and they learn to talk by talking. Most teachers are well aware that incorporating reading, writing, speaking and listening into the curricula is vital, although more difficult to structure. This type curriculum is being used in most classes as we strive to involve students in learning to express themselves in a better way as they prepare for their future.

Watts leaves EMS to be coordinator of DSGH program

L.V. Watts, longtime director of Hereford Emergency Medical Systems, is assuming a new role with the hospital district, according to CEO Ron Rives of Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Watts has been named wellness coordinator for DSGH's innovative occupational medicine and wellness program, "WorkSmart." He officially resigned his position as EMS director and began his new duties March 1.

"WorkSmart is designed to meet the needs of business and industry in the area with a wide scope of programs," according to Mark Collier, director of the WorkSmart program. "L.V. will work with area businesses to provide wellness and safety education as part of the WorkSmart program."

Watts is an intermediate Emergency Medical Technician and a CPR trainer with many certifications in his field, Rives added. "He also has attended grant-writing schools and will provide this important service in his new position."

WorkSmart is designed to help employers and employees, with its goals being to reduce worker's compensation costs, lower health care costs, help employees maintain good health, and help employers provide a safe working environment.

Collier said the program, which works with the High Plains Baptist Hospital Occupational Medicine Center, is an innovative answer for employers who are concerned about the health and safety of their employees.

WorkSmart encourages periodic health screenings, as well as providing full service to the employer if the employee is injured on the job.

Brand to be featured on Amarillo PBS station show

The heartbeat of a town often pulses within the pages of its local newspaper, and KACV-TV's "Perspective" will profile the highs and lows of life at a small town paper Tuesday at 9 p.m.

Host Cathy Teague will question local editors such as Speedy Nieman of The Hereford Brand, Jim Reynolds of The Tulia Herald, and Betty Biggs with The Panhandle Herald. She will ask what kind of pressures are unique to those who record the good and the bad in small towns.

The small town paper is a record of the births, weddings, deaths and major moments in the lives of friends and neighbors. But, during a time when many major cities are watching their newspapers fold, what is the future of the small town papers?

"Perspective" is broadcast on channel 5 in Hereford.

spend more time on studying the groundwater impact in Erath County than we do for Deaf Smith County."

Hafliger said the rules for Texas and New Mexico may be about the same, "but there is definitely a perception among diarmen looking for locations that it is easier to get the permits in New Mexico."

Bob Josseland, feedyard operator, added that "the proof is in the pudding...the dairies are going to New Mexico. Texas has a reputation of being slow to issue permits, and the major milk processing plants go where the dairymen are locating."

George Chapman, a permit applicant from Amarillo, expressed appreciation to Bivins for holding the meeting. "This situation is not Bivins' fault, the problem is with the water board. This area has lost a cheese plant and a number of dairies--at least $300 million in economic development--to New Mexico because the water board is not taking care of our business."

Concern about the continued operation of cattle feedyards in the area was also expressed by several men in the industry. Cliff Skiles, who recently received a permit for a small feedyard, said that "big feedyards may be a thing of the past under the new rules."

"They're talking about raising the limit," he said.

The warden worries about loss of habitat for all wildlife under his protection. If hunters and fishermen, and the public in general, don't preserve the environment, he said, there won't be opportunities for the next generation.

Despite what some consider a shortage of wildlife, Stucki insists there is a rich variety in the area, ranging from small birds to mule deer and antelope.

Enforcement of hunting and fishing regulations allows a warden to travel on private property. Not long ago, Stucki caught "eight or nine guys running coyotes with dogs."

Although there is no regulation against capturing coyotes, the men did not have permission for their deeds, the game warden points out.

Jerry Stucki likes his job and his enjoyment is derived from seeing others enjoying themselves in the outdoors.

"I really enjoy seeing people, children and adults, having a good time, whether hunting, fishing or other outdoor activity," he said.

Treasurer announces list of names

The Texas Treasury has published its list of names from its Unclaimed Money Fund, which lists the names and last known towns of residence of more than 125,000 people, businesses, organizations and corporations for whom the department is holding property.

The department holds cash over $50, as well as stocks or contents of safe deposit boxes.

The following is a list of names with last known addresses in Hereford.

Obituaries

JOHNNY BATENHORST

March 11, 1993

Johnny Batenhorst, 50, of Canyon, brother of a Hereford resident, died Thursday in Canyon.

Services were held at 2 p.m. Saturday at St. Ann's Catholic Church in Canyon with the Rev. Pat Carathers officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery in Umbarger by Brooks Funeral Directors of Canyon.

Mr. Batenhorst spent his early life in Umbarger where he was graduated from high school. He moved to Canyon in 1974. He raced cars and was a member of 550 Bowlers Club and St. Mary's Sodality. An honorary member of Umbarger Fire Department, he was a third degree Knights of Columbus.

Survivors are his mother, Catherine Batenhorst of Canyon; five sisters, Theresa Artho of Hereford, Elaine Borman of Adrian, and Judith Batenhorst, Marian Batenhorst and Donna Whitten of Canyon; a brother, Charles Batenhorst of Umbarger; 12 nephews and 10 nieces.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to Canyon Hospice or the Catholic Student Center.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - President Clinton won some nods from sage heads in Texas last week when he announced, with Texas Comptroller John Sharp at this side, a top-to-bottom audit of federal government modeled after Texas'.

Sharp won praises here in '91 with his waste-finding audits of state agencies; now, fittingly, he's hit the big time.

Those '91 audits, make no mistake, are perhaps the prime reason why the Texas legislative leadership feels comfortable it can adopt a budget this session with no new taxes.

That, and the unmistakable public roar for reduced waste in government.

Sharp, standing at the president's side, is a man who is where he ought to be; if he can do for the feds what he did for Texans, he should get the U.S.A.'s highest civilian medal.

In the Senate

Senators approved and sent to the House a $70 billion state budget with an 8.3 percent spending hike, no new taxes. Big ticket items are the 22.5 percent increase in health and human services spending, and 38 percent increase for new prisons and facilities.

Of the total amount, $38.9 billion comes from state-generated funds, the remainder from mostly federal funds.

Touted as a "frugal budget," only two senators, Republicans John Leedom and Jane Nelson, voted against it.

House Appropriations Committee members, meanwhile, worked until midnight last week to draft their budget.

Both chambers are ahead of tradition in this regard; many House members attribute progress there to the smooth leadership under Speaker Pete Laney and Speaker Pro Tem Tom Uher.

Clinton Boosts Krueger

Clinton also pumped hard for interim Sen. Bob Krueger, facing a May 1 special election; that same day, reports surfaced that Krueger's '84 Senate campaign suffered an IRS lien for unpaid unemployment insurance taxes, now paid.

Meanwhile, former Atty. Gen. Jim Mattox said he might drop out of that race if he is convinced a bloody fight with fellow Democrat Krueger would hurt the party.

Sources in gay-lesbian activist groups said Mattox will back away, possibly for an as-yet undesignated post with the Clinton administration, but also because of inadequate campaign funds.

On the GOP side, Tom Luce supports State Treasurer Kay Bailey

Hutchison and won't enter the fray himself; former Gov. John Connally endorsed Congressman Jack Fields, who started TV ads with money raised by the help of Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole.

State Republicans have formed a coalition to work against passage of the Robin Hood School finance reform amendment.

They claim Gov. Richards and other Democrats are trying to blackmail voters into approving the amendment on the May 1 ballot with a threat that a Democrat state district judge will close all public schools if they don't.

State Rep. John Culberson, R-Houston, urged Houston voters to dump the amendment, saying there still will be plenty of time for the Legislature to resolve funding in a less expensive way.

Republicans are warning that if the amendment is approved before a spending plan is outlined, then voters will have less control over the eventual price tag of school reform.

Dropout Bill Passes Senate

The Senate last week passed a bill by Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, drafted to help reduce the school dropout rate. The bill would:

- Give school districts funds to help students who are at risk of dropping out because they are pregnant or are school-age parents.

- Provide money for districts to administer high school equivalency examination programs targeting students who are 16 or older and are not expected to graduate.

- Require the Texas Department of Health to notify the state education commissioner of births to school-age mothers.

Other Highlights

- Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry repaid the state for a private flight he took in his state airplane, after his hand was called by State Rep. Dan Kubiak.

Perry had billed the state for the Austin-to-Dallas trip, saying he took it in his private airplane.

- Congressman Joe Barton, a GOP Senate candidate, urged Veterans of Foreign War members to join the fight to retain the ban on gays and lesbians in the U.S. military.

- Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, has filed legislation that would wrest control of the Alamo from the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, who have cared for the Alamo since 1905. Wilson's bill would give the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department custody of the shrine.

- A proposal by Rep. Charles Fennell, D-Hollday, would make it illegal for state workers to convert to personal-use "frequent flyer" miles they accumulate while on state business.

- Gov. Richards has signed into law a bill providing $250 million in emergency spending to build and operate prisons. The measure provides for building and operating facilities to house more than 10,000 prison inmates and pay counties $72 million for the cost of holding state prisoners.

Dozen blasts rock Bombay, leaving scores dead, hurt

BOMBAY, India (AP) - A dozen car bombs rocked India's commercial nerve center on Friday, spreading panic in a city that had been recovering from Hindu-Muslim riots. Up to 200 people were killed and hundreds wounded.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the bombs, which detonated over a 75-minute span from the southern financial district to the northern suburbs. There was no evidence the blasts were related to the Hindu-Muslim violence that swept India in December and January.

In a country that has witnessed all manner of ethnic, religious and nationalist violence in 46 years of independence, the devastating car bomb assault was a new and terrifying experience.

Thunderous explosions shook skyscrapers, set fire to the nation's largest stock exchange, gutted the ground floor of India's international airline's headquarters, blew apart a passenger bus and damaged three hotels.

"There is panic in the whole of Bombay," said stockbroker Harpreet Kaur.

Chief Minister Sharad Pawar, the highest elected official of Maharashtra state, summoned reinforcements of paramilitary troops, fearing another burst of communal bloodshed.

Shortly after the blasts, scattered Hindu-Muslim violence broke out in parts of the city. Witnesses saw mobs burning cars, looting shops and throwing stones.

The riots in January also pitted Muslims against Hindus. They began after Hindu zealots demolished a Muslim shrine in the northern town of Ayodhya. The official death toll nationwide was 1,940, including 600 in Bombay.

Pawar refused to say who he suspected in the bombing wave.

But he told reporters, "There has to be perfect planning" for this kind of attack.

He advised Bombay's 12 million residents to be on alert for more bombs, to lock their cars and check the basements of tall buildings. The city, like India as a whole, is about 82 percent Hindu and 12 percent Muslim.

Teams of explosives experts from India's foreign and domestic intelligence agencies were rushed to Bombay.

In New Delhi, federal Home Minister S.B. Chavan blamed the terrorism on "an international conspiracy." He did not mention any countries by name, but he often has accused Pakistan of trying to stir up trouble in India.

Government officials said at least 12 bombs exploded, most of them in vehicles, but several were in unoccupied hotel rooms.

A devastating blast went off in the parking lot beneath the Bombay Stock Exchange building.

About 3,000 people were on the second-story trading floor. "We were all lifted above the ground by 2 feet," said one trader, Dinesh Acharya. "People fell on each other and ran out."

Some victims were crushed in the stampede to escape the building.

Outside, burned bodies lay among the litter from shattered buildings. Many of the victims were vendors and stock traders who conducted their business in the street.

Another bomb went off outside the Air India headquarters among a cluster of high-rise commercial buildings in Nariman Point.

Your Realtor Reports

DON'T GET ANNOYED

Once your home is listed with a real estate agency, it's up to them to find prospective buyers. Normally they will arrange appointments to view the home which are convenient to both parties. However, there are times when a prearranged appointment is not possible, for instance, a couple being transferred to the area are on a short house hunting visit. They are only going to be in town for a day and want to see your home. So your agent calls and tells you there is a couple at the office that would like to see your home, today! Don't get annoyed at the agent, they are doing their job. Treat these last minute appointments as an opportunity, not an inconvenience, particularly when people are being transferred. They don't have the options of long term house hunting, they want and need a home now, not next month. These prospects are likely to make an immediate offer, so if you really want to sell your home don't get annoyed at last minute appointments.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says you can get through life with bad manners, but it's a lot easier with good manners.

Sure, God created the heavens and the Earth in six days, but He didn't have to get a building permit, a water permit, and EPA approval.

Hereford's bid for a dairy plant lost one prospect this past week when Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., announced that Portales, N.M., had been chosen as the site of its milk-processing facility. Local industrial development leaders had been working with two companies on possible sites here. At last report, the other company had put the project on "the back burner" at the end of the year.

In working with the companies, local committee workers learned that the State of New Mexico apparently is more responsive to cutting red tape and getting the necessary permits approved in a timely manner. Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce has been in contact with state officials and state agencies in hopes of speeding up the action of regulatory bodies in gaining approval for agricultural industry.

No one in the public agencies seemed to pay much attention to area complaints, but those contacts resulted in a public meeting arranged here Friday afternoon by C of C manager Mike Carr and State Sen. Teel Bivins. The meeting, chaired by Bivins, included officials from the Texas Water Commission, a panel of concerned ag industry leaders and other interested citizens.

Sen. Bivins set the tone for the meeting when he admonished those in attendance to focus on what can be done in the future rather than what's happened in the past. What has happened is that this area has lost dairies and milk processing facilities to New Mexico primarily because of bureaucracy.

Hopefully, the meeting may result in some action that will give us an equal footing in competing with New Mexico for dairies and dairy plants. We need to be able to pick up the phone and tell a prospect that we can deliver as fast as New Mexico. This area has all the other ingredients in place for the dairy industry. Only the governmental red tape is different.

You know you're getting older when popular business "buzz words" send you to the dictionary to make sure you understand the message.

There is also an effort to soften the blow of a harsh or unpleasant word. Last year, the favorite corporate word was downsizing. What's next? Outpacing the trash, back-driving the car, upmaking the bed?

The business world has come up with a lot of words or phrases to replace the unpleasant term that a person was fired from a job. Now they are repositioned or the company is reshaping, reducing duplication, making career track adjustments, or releasing resources.

Another word that was too harsh is "queer." Those folks took a good word like "gay" and changed its meaning. No one speaks of having a gay time anymore!

Since birthdays are often harsh reminders of getting older, we need a word to soften that event. Instead of celebrating a birthday, one could say, "I'm celebrating a maturity development progression!"

CITY COUNCIL

Out of the Blue

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

When's the last time you sat down with your kids and watched television together?

I don't mean making them be quiet while you stare blankly at "Roseanne," "Rescue 911" or "Knott's Landing."

I mean, when did you flip to "Sesame Street," "Mr. Roger's Neighborhood," "Reading Rainbow," "Barney and Friends," "Shining Time Station," or one of the quality children's shows on Nickelodeon?

If you haven't recently, I'd recommend you do so.

In fact, even if you don't have children, watching some of the "educational" children's programming would be a good - and fun - idea.

Because I have a 3-year-old, these shows are never too far from my television set.

This past week, Amarillo Public Television station KACV devoted nearly two hours of its prime time fund-raising campaign to back-to-back-to-back episodes of "Barney and Friends."

My daughter does not just like Barney - she adores this furry purple and green dinosaur who jumps out of the imagination and teaches lots of things.

"Barney," for those of you who don't know, came on public television a couple of years ago to a lukewarm reception.

Just as the Public Broadcasting Service was about to cancel it, marketing of Barney merchandise caught on and children and their parents began buying stuffed dolls, posters, video tapes, song books, books and clothing like it was going out of style.

All of a sudden this almost-canceled show had a mandate from the viewers - keep it on the air or face the wrath of thousands upon thousands of pre-schoolers and their parents.

I don't know what it is about this show, but my daughter will not leave the TV while it is on - and from what I hear, the story is the same all over the country.

For me, it's one of the two best shows on television for teaching imagination (the other is the animated "Muppet Babies").

Besides, I love to hear her run around the house singing the songs Barney taught her.

On a more serious note, the killing this past week of a doctor during an anti-abortion demonstration in Florida was certainly sobering.

Not just the fact that a life was lost, but that it happened during an event dedicated to preserving human life.

One pro-life activist I heard on the radio the other day said the shooting set the right-to-life movement back 20 years, and that the liberal, pro-abortion government would do all it could to silence the Pro-Life movement because of this killing.

The saddest part of it all is that Right To Life and Operation Rescue had nothing to do with the killing. The man who pulled the trigger was acting alone, fulfilling his own vendetta.

Let us hope that calmer heads will prevail and that the entire right-to-life movement will not be condemned by the actions of one obviously disturbed individual.

On the political trail, the race for Lloyd Bentsen's vacated U.S. Senate seat seems to be heating up.

We cannot go a day without a fax coming in from one candidate or another, praising his own virtues and painting the other candidates as Evil Incarnate.

One candidate (I honestly can't remember which one, because I block these things from my consciousness as quickly as possible) sent a "news" release claiming he was in favor of reform of politics, and would introduce measures designed to "clean up government."

I seem to remember that he pledged to cut federal lawmakers' staffs in half, eliminate free mailings, order that all campaign contributions be no more than $1,000 and eliminate Political Action Committees.

While all these are perfectly laudable goals, I wonder if this man if forgetting that he only has one vote in the Senate, and that there is another entire half of the Legislative Branch that also has a say.

Yes, it would be wonderful to reduce some of the bureaucracy that clogs Washington D.C., and to reform politics to the point that the race is about candidates, not money.

But I don't think it will happen, since long-time politicians who are used to these perks are unlikely to give them up just to get one guy elected.

Anyway, have a good week and remember, let's be careful out there.

Notes on the Law

AIDS is a disease which not only devastates an individual who becomes infected, but it is also a disease that raises many complex legal, moral and everyday-life issues. AIDS is not the only disease that raises these types of issues however. Any "physical, mental or medical impairment resulting from anatomical, physiological or neurological conditions which prevents the exercise of a normal bodily function or is demonstrable by medically accepted clinical or laboratory techniques, which do not prevent the complainant from performing in a reasonable manner the activities involved in the job or occupation sought..." N.Y. EXEC. LAW at 192.21 McKinney Supp. 1989), classifies a person as having a disability.

Issues regarding employment school attendance, insurance and many other activities are raised when a person becomes "disabled" by contracting a physiological condition that is life-threatening. The ability of employers, school administrators or others to deal with these issues is governed by a variety of laws.

One specific issue that is raised is whether an employer, school administrator or other supervisory person can require a blood test to be taken as a condition of continued employment, school attendance or other participation. Blood tests involve the taking of a blood sample, an act which the Supreme Court has held constitutes a "search" within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment. See Schmerber v. California, 384, U.S. 757, 767 (1966). Accordingly, public employees may raise Fourth Amendment claims contending that the employer's interests do not outweigh the employees' privacy expectations.

As to private employers, they "may feel they have a strong interest in being able to conduct such testing to avoid hiring individuals who may have a limited life span due to the fatal disease or because of the need to maintain a safe workplace for other employees. However, the right of an employer to require an employee to submit to a blood test is limited by federal and state anti-discrimination laws, handicap statutes, and potential tort actions for wrongful discharge, invasion of privacy and slander." 1989 Prentice Hall Law & Business, The Modern Law of Employment Relationships, Chapter 18 - WRONGFUL TERMINATION AND EMPLOYEE PRIVACY, 90 Empl. Rel. 353.

The laws generally protect "otherwise qualified people" from being discriminated against based on their handicap. An "otherwise qualified" person was defined by the U.S. Supreme Court, in School Bd. v. Arline, 480 U.S. 273, 287 (1987), to be someone who is able to perform the "essential functions of the job." If the handicap prevents a person from performing the essential functions of the job, then the Americans with disabilities Act requires the employer to attempt a "reasonably accommodate" the worker so that the worker can, with the accommodations, perform the essential functions of the job.

If a person cannot perform the essential functions of the job and cannot be helped by reasonable accommodation, then the person can be terminated from employment. As to handicapped persons attending school, the courts have generally ruled that the school cannot prohibit them from attending and taking part in the regular school activities.

Letters to the Editor:

Dear Editor:

Recently there was a car vs. pedestrian accident. I would like for members of the community to be aware of the excellent response by our Fire Department.

When I arrived at the scene, the victim was pinned beneath the car with the weight of the car bearing down upon him. I was frustrated because I could not get to his injuries to treat him. Members of the Fire Department arrived and used air bags to lift the vehicle, thus freeing the patient.

In situations like this, speed is often very critical in the outcome of the patient. From the time the 911 call was received until the patient was at the back door of the hospital was 12 minutes and some seconds! Believe me, that is only accomplished through lots of training and teamwork.

I couldn't take my patient anywhere while he was pinned under the vehicle. The Fire Department team members are who we have to thank for that excellent speed! Their excellent proficiency is to be commended. As citizens of Hereford, we can "rest easy" with such a quality department. This great service cannot be taken for granted. It comes only through the dedication and hard work of our volunteers on our Fire Department.

I'm glad I don't live in a city where I have to wait 15 minutes for emergency help, or be in a small town that doesn't have the quality of services Hereford does.

Be proud of our Fire Department, Police force, Sheriff's Office, and EMS. The Hospital also has an excellent staff. There are a lot of folks giving long hours to make our lives better. I hope you never need any of their services, but take time out sometime just to thank them for being there!

Dear Editor:

I read the chamber column written by Mike Carr in Sunday's paper and I take exception to part of the article.

I feel like he was telling the public if the painters are not big businesses, or if they are not well known, or if their price is cheap, don't hire them and don't trust them.

I have been a painter for 30 years and have always had reasonable prices, but I never had my honesty questioned and have only heard one lady who I could not satisfy and I'm fairly new to Hereford.

He should have told them also that a painter has a right to ask for names of people or firms who have done business with them, so he can tell if they are impossible to please or don't pay their bills.

Sometimes people add on extras after you start the job but don't want to pay for them, thus trying to get something for nothing.

Also, sometimes the painter may have a cheaper price because he gives a discount to a senior citizen or, like me, has a lower overhead than bigger painters.

A customer should always make it clear what they expect for their money, because even professional painters like myself are not mind readers, and what pleases one customer may not please the next.

I agree a customer should get their money's worth and a painter, or any other professional, should not be expected to do more than they agreed on for the money. I hope you will print this as there are two sides to every issue and I believe Carr's article could hurt the small painter who has just as much right to make a living as do the painters with a lot of equipment, two or three crews and more overhead.

I pay my taxes just like they do and I spend my money I earn in Hereford, too.

Thank you,
Mary Black

Editorials from around the state

By the Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers: --- March 8

The Dallas Morning News on school reform:

The Texas electorate will decide in May whether to approve a sweeping education finance plan for public schools in this state. But before voters enter into this constitutional agreement with state officials, they should insist on seeing what they will receive in return for their investment.

So far the only real discussion about the public school finance bill has focused on which districts will benefit the most and which will pay the most. That needs to change.

Before the constitutional amendment on school finance is placed on the May election ballot, state legislators also should adopt a package of reform proposals that would require more accountability from the public school system.

Texas desperately needs standardized testing and reporting policies that will allow state officials to hold school systems responsible for educational results.

The Educational Economic Policy Center has recommended strong measures that would put school administrators and teachers on notice that improved performance should go hand in hand with school financing.

If adopted, the recommendations from the Educational Economic Policy Center would finally give Texans some assurance that the school finance proposition will accomplish something more than shifting the state's education revenue.

Voters should insist that their state representatives show a commitment to educational reform before they ask for support for the restructuring of school funding.

March 4

Pecos Enterprise on government cost overruns:

One of the main aggravations about government to the average person concerns reports of cost overruns on expensive projects.

There are many headlines about the cost of various projects including the space station, various defense department projects, the super collider and the list could go on and on to include almost everything done by the government.

Our question is simply, why are these cost overruns allowed? When a company bids a price to do a certain project, shouldn't their feet be held to the fire to make them complete the project for the bid price?

That's the way it's done in the real world and it's time the government gets involved in the real world.

March 4

El Paso Herald-Post on Clinton's economic plans:

Candidate Bill Clinton promised to hit millionaires with a 10 percent surcharge, which after his election was stretched to cover anyone making over $250,000 a year. Now it is less affluent citizens' turn to be misled.

Families whose gross pay totals under $30,000 a year have been told by the president that they will suffer no net tax increase under the Clinton economic plan. That's true - but only because Clinton uses an esoteric Treasury Department standard of wealth called Family Economic Income.

Here's how it works. Family Economic Income, according to Treasury technocrats, includes not just salary, wages and stock dividends - what most people think of as income when filling out their tax forms. It also takes in employer contributions to insurance premiums and pension plans and appreciation in real property.

When Clinton talks about $30,000 being the point at which taxes start to bite, families making $25,000 suppose they will escape. But many of these families have income above $30,000 by the FEI definition and will actually pay more.

So early in his administration, it's hazardous to predict how history will remember President Clinton. If his clever massaging of the tax code is any guide, he may go down as the man who put the "Eek!" in economics.

Roaming newspaper shows slice of life in the West

EDITOR'S NOTE - If you're an earthling from Earth, Texas, you'll appreciate Chuck Woodbury. He's put you on the map. In fact he's put half the Old West on the map. Far from the Interstates and the urban shopping malls, in his mobile newsroom he's turned his reporter's eye on the back roads of America.

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - From Boring, Ore., to Nothing, Ariz., by way of Puckerbrush, Nev., Chuck Woodbury has hit the high spots of the Old West.

In five years of publishing an offbeat travel newspaper that deliberately avoids major tourist attractions, Woodbury, 45, has logged nearly 120,000 miles on the back roads of 11 Western states.

Woodbury is editor, publisher, chief photographer, circulation manager, ad salesman and mobile home driver for "Out West, The Newspaper That Roams."

The slogan in his quarterly tabloid's masthead is meant literally. Out West's newsroom is a recreational vehicle equipped with a battery-operated laptop computer, a Macintosh Plus desktop publishing system that plugs into the cigarette lighter and his cameras.

His business office in the Sierra foothills, where he keeps circulation and advertising records, isn't much bigger than the RV office. The quarterly tabloid is printed by a local daily newspaper.

Woodbury abandoned conventional journalism in 1986, when he sold his suburban monthly newspaper. He made enough from the sale to equip the mobile newsroom and support himself until he sold enough subscriptions to make his new paper self-supporting.

The first edition of Out West appeared early in 1988, selling about 400 copies at $1.50 each for 28 pages of stories about out-of-the-way Western communities.

Twenty issues later, Woodbury is selling 8,500 copies of a 48-page paper at $2.50 a copy. He has also published one hardcover book and produced two videos based on his travels. He also met and married his wife, Rodica, a fellow writer and editor, during his wanderings. They now travel with an 18-month-old daughter.

"We have a really good life. We do what we want to do. We make a modest living, about the same as a reporter or editor on a medium-sized newspaper," Woodbury says.

"The routine is simple. We just pick a direction and get up and go. It truly is half vacation and half work. The difference is you get to share the stories of your vacation with a whole lot of people, not just postcards to a few friends."

Although Woodbury does all of his traveling in a recreational vehicle, he stresses that "We're not an RV magazine. It's just the way we get around. We don't dwell on it. Only about 20 percent of our readers are RV owners."

Woodbury says he's also discovered, somewhat to his surprise, that most Out West's subscribers live in the urban areas he avoids in his newspaper.

"The paper is an escape for readers. They fantasize about doing the same thing we're doing, escaping to the country and the back roads," he said. "They live in urban areas, and they want out."

His niche among travel publications is going to the places nobody else goes and writing about the people nobody else writes about.

His restaurant reviews rate the amount of grease in the hamburgers. His travel journals talk about interesting road signs, advertisements and business names, like the "Pat Yer Beli Deli" or the sanitation company that advertises "We're No. 1 in the No. 2 Business."

He's written about the controversy among residents of Earth, Texas, over whether to call themselves "earthlings." He's visited Pie Town, N.M., where there's no place in town to buy a pie, and Nothing, Ariz., "which almost lives up to its name."

One story was about Buck and Maud, who run a rural radio station from a bedroom of their Arizona home. Another story was about the competition among Idaho towns to host the State Potato Museum, and another was about the Earthquake Pub in Hollister, Calif., which serves Seismic Ale and gives customers a round of free drinks during a quake on the nearby San Andreas Fault.

He avoids big cities and known tourist attractions, focusing instead on two-lane back roads lined with mailboxes and dotted with roadside stands. One of his favorites is old Route 66, which he says is still about 80 percent intact through the Southwest.

"It still has the Wigwam Motel, where you can still spend a night in a wigwam-shaped room," he says.

Although Woodbury does feature stories about local history, people he meets and places he visits, reader letters indicate the newspaper's most popular feature is his travel journal, a random mix of travel information and personal feelings that reads like a long letter to a friend and fills up to a quarter of the paper.

He muses about how new shopping malls and big discount stores threaten and change, but haven't destroyed, the traditional main streets that give character to the rural West.

He is saddened by the franchised sameness of fast-food outlets and hotel and motel chains, but delights at a one-of-a-kind motel or restaurant, especially if it's been operating a long time. "I reflect on what I see. Readers tell me they like that, but I try to keep a focus on giving travel information," he says.

Woodbury says exploring the West's back roads has as much appeal today as when he started Out West five years ago, and he's not worried about running out of places or people to write about.

"There's always more to see, and places change. And you haven't traveled a road until you've traveled it both ways, and in all four seasons."

The first woman to perform the most difficult trapeze stunt, the triple somersault, was Antoinette Concello.

Income tax forms: Eighth in a series

Virtually everyone has to file return

WASHINGTON (AP) - When the federal income tax was created, only about one of every 271 Americans had to pay it.

Now, 80 years later, almost two of every three citizens file returns - and worry about such things as deductions, credits, exemptions, rates, marginal rates and effective rates.

So, here is a basic primer about the system:

- Total income is everything you made last year, whether from your work or your money, whether or not taxable. Gross income is anything that is subject to tax unless specifically exempted.

- Adjusted gross income - AGI - is what is left after you subtract certain adjustments, such as alimony you paid; Individual Retirement Account contributions, and any penalty paid for premature withdrawals from savings.

Subtract your deductions - standard or itemized - and personal exemptions from AGI and you are left with taxable income. That is the figure actually subject to tax. A deduction reduces the amount of income subject to tax; a credit is a dollar-for-dollar reduction in taxes.

- And what about "marginal tax rate?" That is the rate that applies to the last dollar you earned. This used to be more important when there were 15 or 16 brackets. Now there are three: 15 percent, which is the only rate most of us pay; 28 percent and 31 percent.

For example, if you are single and your taxable income - after subtracting deductions and your personal exemption - is $21,450 or less, you pay a tax rate of 15 percent. Once you pass $21,450, you step up into a new bracket. With $33,000 in taxable income, you pay 15 percent on the first $21,450 plus 28 percent on the remaining $11,550. Your total tax bill is $6,451.50 and your marginal rate is 28 percent.

If you did a really great job for your company last year and your boss rewarded you with a $25,000 bonus, that would push you into the 31 percent bracket. Again, the first $21,450 is taxed at 15 percent ($3,217.50), the next $30,450 at 28 percent ($8,526), and the remaining $6,100 at 31 percent ($1,891). That gives you a total tax of $13,634.50.

(By the way, you don't make these calculations if your taxable income is under $100,000. Instead, you look at the tables in your tax instructions, which show you the bottom-line figure. Because the tables are rounded off, they can result in a slightly different tax compared with the schedules).

- "Effective tax rate" is a term to show how much of a person's income is taken by taxes. It can be calculated on the basis of adjusted gross income or taxable income, by dividing total taxes by income.

In the example above, the single person with $33,000 taxable income paid $6,451.50 in tax, which, when divided by taxable income, results in an effective tax rate of 19.6 percent. After getting the $25,000 bonus, the person's effective rate jumped to 23.5 percent.

The system works the same way for a couple filing a joint return, although the income subject to each of the three rates is different.

On a joint return, taxable income can be as high as $35,800 and the rate is still 15 percent. The next $50,700 is taxed at 28 percent; anything over $86,500 is taxed at 31 percent.

Here is an example for a couple filing a joint return, with two dependent children, gross income of $78,000 and itemized deductions of $13,200:

From gross income, subtract $6,000 in alimony payments and $2,000 deductible contributions to an Individual Retirement Account, resulting in adjusted gross income of $70,000.

Subtract the itemized deductions, leaving $56,800.

Subtract four exemptions of $2,300 each, totaling $9,200, leaving $47,600 taxable income.

Look for the $47,600 box in the tax tables, read down the "married filing jointly" column to the "47,600 47,650" line and find a tax liability of $8,681.

This family is in the 28 percent tax bracket and pays an effective tax rate of 11.1 percent of gross income, 12.4 percent of AGI, or 18.2 percent of taxable income.

SMU, Rice bow out of wild SWC tournament

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — As Texas A&M coach Tony Barone had predicted, some strange things happened at the Southwest Conference basketball tournament.

But it was No. 7 seed Texas and No. 8 seed Texas Christian providing the fireworks Friday rather than Barone's Aggies, who fell to third-seeded Houston.

The Longhorns defeated second-seeded Rice 81-76 while TCU shocked No. 1 seed Southern Methodist 72-71 in a wacky first round.

Texas was to meet Houston in tonight's semifinals and TCU was to take on Texas Tech, which bounced Baylor 83-74.

"I'm as proud of these kids as I was of the team that won 23 games last season," TCU coach Moe Iba said after the Frogs' sixth victory of the year. "They played great."

"This loss happened to us at a critical time," said SMU coach John Shumate. "I just hope it doesn't hurt us for the NCAA tournament. We had 20 victories. We controlled our own destiny. Now we'll have to see what happens."

Texas may have ended the Owls' NCAA tournament hopes.

"I think we have a chance to win the tournament if we can play two more days like we did tonight," said Texas coach Tom Penders, who had lost to Rice twice this season. "We've been pointing toward the tournament since January. We have a lot of respect for Houston. They have great athletes."

Houston coach Pat Foster said the Cougars' 84-68 victory over A&M might have put them in the NCAA tournament regardless tonight's outcome.

"We had a lot of pressure. We needed to win this game for the NCAA tournament," Foster said. "I thought we responded well. It got us to 20 wins, not that that's any magical figure. But we stack up well nationally. We're capable of beating most teams."

TCU 72, SMU 71

Eric Dailey scored 26 points and Allen Tolley added 19 points, including five 3-pointers Friday night, as the eighth-seeded Horned Frogs (6-21) knocked off the regular-season champion Mustangs.

SMU (20-7) couldn't shake a tenacious man-for-man Horned Frog defense that bottled up Mike Wilson, who averages 22 points, to 14.

After a 36-36 tie at halftime, the Horned Frogs began to pull ahead behind Dailey, Tolley and Byron Waits, who had 10 points. James Williams was the other TCU player in double figures with 11.

The Mustangs led 48-47 after two free throws by Gerald Lewis with 10:36 to play, but a bucket by Dailey put TCU ahead to stay.

Lewis scored 17 points for the stunned Mustangs, while Keith Chambers added 10.

Dailey, a junior from Ocala, Fla., hit 10 of 21 field goals and 9 of 15 free throws while outplaying SMU postman Greg Kinzer, who had 8 points.

Texas Tech 83, Baylor 74

The Red Raiders led 44-37 at halftime before Lance Hughes started the second half with consecutive 3-pointers as Texas Tech (16-11) took a 13-point lead. Baylor (16-11) pulled within 66-64 on a basket by Aubrey Branch, but the Raiders pulled away as Hughes hit six consecutive free throws.

Hughes finished with 23 points, and Will Fiemons added 12 points and 19 rebounds.

Branch ended with 23 points and Alex Holcombe added 19 points to pace the Bears.

Jason Sasser scored 16 points for the Red Raiders, but only had one point in the second half. Koy Smith added 14 points for Tech.

Texas 81, Rice 76

Lamont Hill, the brother of Duke's Thomas Hill, hit three free throws in the last 31 seconds, stretching the Longhorns' lead to 80-76 after the Owls charged back from a 19-point deficit.

Rice had shaved the huge Texas lead to 77-76 with 38 seconds to play before Hill, a sophomore walk-on, made his big free throws.

Michael Richardson led Texas (11-16) with 22 points, Tony Watson added 20, and Terrence Rencher scored 19 points for Texas.

The Owls (17-9) were led by Brent Scott with 24 points. Marvin Moore scored 17 points and Scott Andrews added 14.

The Longhorns, who put a four-guard lineup on the court, raced to a 49-32 halftime lead as the Owls shot only 25 percent from the field to 54.8 percent for the Longhorns.

Richardson scored 15 points and Watson hit 13, including three 3-pointers, for the Owls, who had beaten Texas twice during the regular season.

The Longhorns' delay game in the second half nearly cost them as the Owls forced them into costly turnovers.

Houston 84, Texas A&M 68

David Diaz scored 23 points and Charles "Bo" Outlaw intimidated with seven blocks to lead Houston in a game marred by ejections and technical fouls.

Houston (20-7) led 39-32 at halftime and was helped along by technical fouls against the A&M bench and coach Tony Barone, which Diaz cashed into three free throws. Houston led 39-32 when the parade of technicals began. Diaz scored Houston's last eight points.

Diaz was joined in double figures by Derrick Smith with 18 and Anthony Goldwire with 13. Lloyd Wiles, Outlaw and Jesse Drain each scored 10 points. Houston had 11 three-point field goals, including three by Diaz.

The Aggies were led by Tony McGinnis with 14 points, Chuck Henderson with 13, and Damon Johnson with 12.

The frustrated Aggies were hit with three technical fouls, and four players fouled out. Texas A&M was whistled for 24 fouls and Houston 10.

Barone said the officiating didn't cost A&M the game.

"I've got nothing to say about them (the officials), let's not dwell on that," Barone said. "I don't want to have anything to do with tainting Houston's victory."

"The officials have little bearing on what goes on in the game. I congratulate Houston. We played well in the first half but I was impressed with the poise of the Houston players particularly Outlaw, Goldwire and Smith."

Barone said the Aggies got one technical because his assistant coach jumped off the bench "so I questioned why they gave him one and they gave me one, too."

Houston's Goldwire was ejected late in the game for a flagrant technical in a scuffle under the basket.

Texas A&M radio broadcaster Dave South was ejected by referee Brian Stout for making a "choke" sign by jerking his right hand to his throat.

Stout immediately turned and asked SWC assistant commissioner Tim Fitzpatrick whether he had the authority to eject someone from press row. When Fitzpatrick said yes, Stout recruited two security guards, crossed the floor and ejected South from the second row.

Members of the Texas A&M sports information staff finished the broadcast for South, the school's assistant athletic director for marketing.

Fitzpatrick said the conference would review the incident.

Stout, Fitzpatrick said, "will not be assigned to any further tournament games," pending completion of that review.

But in a statement distributed by the conference, Fitzpatrick pointed out that the rules state "it is the official's prerogative to remove anyone from the arena."

"He (Stout) looked at me, and I went..." South said, duplicating the gesture he made for Stout. "And he kicked me out of the game. Does he know I'm looking at him? What does this tell you about the kind of game he was having?"

Reporters monitoring the radio broadcast said South had told his listeners that "the Aggies are playing two teams today - the Cougars and the Southwest Conference officials."

Texas A&M athletic director John David Crow told South to follow the security guard's instructions, but promised to raise the issue during a meeting Saturday of league athletic directors.

"(Stout) can't hear what (South) is saying," Crow continued. "I don't agree with it. I don't think anybody has ever seen anything like this."

Georgia Tech shocks Duke

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Duke's road to a sixth straight Final Four berth might be tougher than anyone - especially the Blue Devils - could have imagined.

The two-time defending NCAA champions couldn't even get past the first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament Friday night. Georgia Tech (17-10) took care of them 69-66 in one of three upsets in the quarterfinals.

"Everyone's trying to kick our butt every time we go out there," star guard Bobby Hurley said. "We don't have that same fire and intensity..."

The eighth-ranked Blue Devils (23-7) couldn't handle James Forrest, who finished with 27 points on 13-of-15 shooting. His jumper with 1:09 remaining provided the winning points.

"Who's to say that something like this isn't going to happen again," Hurley said of his team's fate in the NCAA's. "We haven't been mature enough as a team to really put some wins together and play hungry every game."

Also falling in the ACC were No. 10 Florida State, 87-75 to Clemson, and No. 12 Wake Forest, 61-57 to Virginia. Only top-ranked North Carolina was not upset, routing Maryland 102-66 at Charlotte, N.C.

Other ranked teams losing were No. 15 Utah, No. 21 Oklahoma State, No. 23 Tulane and No. 25 Brigham Young. Utah lost 90-85 in overtime to Texas-El Paso in the Western Athletic semifinals. Oklahoma State was beaten 81-62 by Missouri in the Big Eight. Tulane fell to Virginia Tech 64-55 in the Metro. BYU was knocked off by New Mexico 68-59 in the WAC.

No. 9 Seton Hall beat Georgetown

83-69 in the quarterfinals of the Big East tournament, leaving the Hoyas (16-10) little chance of an at-large bid to the field, which it has made for 14 consecutive years.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 4 Kentucky crushed

Tennessee 101-40, No. 5 Vanderbilt took Alabama 76-59; No. 7 Kansas beat Colorado 82-65; No. 11 Cincinnati defeated DePaul 78-69; No. 14 Arkansas downed Georgia 65-60; 19th-ranked UNLV ran over Utah State 104-86; and 22nd-ranked Xavier beat Duquesne 67-41.

Mavs' future coach follows family's footsteps

By BARRY HORN

The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS (AP) — At long last, the son of the teachers, baby brother of the teachers, grandson of the teacher, is taking up the family calling.

At 38, William Quinn Buckner, a former NBA player who retired into a life of business and broadcasting, will be doing something he never considered — teaching.

As coach of the Mavericks starting next season, Buckner will use the basketball court as his classroom.

He is named William after his late father, a physical education teacher who advanced to school district athletic director. It is Quinn in honor of Paul Quinn, the 19th-century bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church whose name graces a Dallas college.

It was Quinn Buckner's grandfather, Dean Mohr, who served as president of the college from 1928-32. It was Dean Mohr's daughter, Jessica Buckner, Quinn's eighth-grade teacher and now a superintendent of elementary education, who insisted on the name.

"By the time I was in my third year in the NBA, I was the only one in the family out of school who was not a teacher," said Buckner, whose older sisters Maryjane and Kamala are educators in the same suburban Chicago school district where the Buckner children attended high school. Younger brother Lorin, like his brother an Indiana University graduate, is a district sales manager.

"Teaching is something I never seriously thought about doing," Quinn Buckner said. "But I guess you can't outrun your roots all of your life."

If Buckner, who has never coached at any level, is anything, he is supremely confident in his own abilities.

"I've succeeded in enough other things — playing basketball, business, broadcasting," Buckner said. "Not only do I think I can be a basketball coach, I think I can help young men grow. This is as much a chance to win games as it is to affect lives."

There is little doubt that Buckner has been affecting lives since he was a high school football and basketball star at Thornridge High School, just beyond Chicago's southeast border.

"The thing that always sticks out about Quinn is his leadership abilities," said Ron Ferguson, then Thornridge's basketball coach and now the athletic director at Bradley University.

Buckner's high school years from 1968 to 1972 were among the first that Thornridge was integrated.

Most of the basketball team, like Buckner, was bused into the school. Many of the players had no way to get to games at night.

Buckner solved that. He organized car pools, assigning his parents and sisters to drive players to games. Before games, he also made sure that his teammates all ate hearty meals. After games, he would loan out sports coats so that those who didn't own one wouldn't feel out of place at team functions.

"Look, we were better off than some of the guys," Buckner said. "One of the guy's father was dead, and his mother was sick. Another had no father. I had everything. My parents were teachers. We had cars. I never wanted for anything. I shared."

It was only right."

On the basketball court, Buckner shared, as well. Always, he was willing to put the success of the team ahead of personal triumph.

"We had a couple of players who were extremely selfish," said Ferguson. "If they didn't score early, they'd stop playing. Quinn would pass up shots to make his teammates happy."

Thornridge's Falcons lost only one game and won the Illinois state championship in Buckner's junior season. In his senior season, Buckner, a 6-3 guard, led the Falcons to a 33-0 record and another state title in Illinois' biggest classification. The Falcons won their games by an average of 32.5 points.

"My dad told me, 'Son, it's about getting other people to play better. You've got to get others involved,'" Buckner said.

"Dad was usually right," Quinn Buckner finally said, his eyes drifting upward. "I love you, Dad."

America first took notice of Quinn Buckner after he moved from Thornridge to Indiana University, where he would play for Bob Knight.

Much has been made of the cozy relationship between America's most famous and mercurial college basketball coach and the player who would captain three of his Hoosier teams, including the undefeated 1976 NCAA champions.

But there would have been no Knight-Buckner relationship had it not been for William Buckner.

Quinn Buckner wanted to go to UCLA or possibly Michigan. William Buckner, who played football at Indiana, would not hear of it.

"On decision day, Dad walked into my room with the letter and said, 'Sign it.' I signed it."

"Quinn was always obedient," Jessica Buckner said. "I know that is not a term you hear a lot nowadays. But he was."

That is not to say that father and son did not have their disagreements and father did not allow son to win some.

When Quinn decided after his sophomore season that he did not want to play football because he could "no longer dedicate everything to the team," father knew to back off.

And when William Buckner tried to get his son to leave Indiana during his sophomore season after a blowup between Quinn and Bob Knight, son wouldn't hear of it.

"I said, 'I'm not going to let him run me off.' I was going to prove that I could be as stubborn as Coach Knight," Quinn Buckner recalls.

Scott May, Buckner's teammate for four years at Indiana and his roommate in their senior season, said it was obvious to everyone that Buckner and Knight had "a pretty special relationship."

"As a player, you don't have to understand what Coach Knight is all about," said May, who is in the real estate business back near Indiana's campus in Bloomington, Ind., after a seven-year NBA career. "It's only 10 years later that you discover the guy knows what life is all about."

"But not Buckner," May said. "He seemed to understand from the beginning."

No moment on the basketball court gave Buckner as much pleasure as when he returned home on Mother's Day, 1976 and handed his mother the diploma he earned in four years.

"Quinn had his goals," Jessica Buckner said. "His father and I felt four years ought to do it. He was committed to getting his degree. When Quinn prepares himself to do something, it gets done."

Just before reporting to the Milwaukee Bucks, captain Buckner led the 1976 U.S. Olympic basketball team to a gold medal.

Nothing could prepare Quinn Buckner for life in the NBA. In his first season, his Bucks lost 51 games. Never before had he been on a team that lost more than seven times in a season.

"When you win only 31 games in a season, it is easy to go into a depression," said Buckner, who will be taking over a team that seems destined to establish a new low for victories over an 82-game season.

"But the team was making an effort to go in the right direction," said Buckner, who was appointed the Bucks' captain before his rookie season was over and held the title through his six seasons in Milwaukee. "There was a light at the end of the tunnel. That's what the Mavericks are looking at."

In 10 NBA seasons, Buckner earned a reputation as a tough defender who knew the limitations of his offensive game. He prided himself as a player who could fit into any system and play against any.

In 1983-84, he earned an NBA championship ring as a member of the Boston Celtics. He retired in January 1986 after he was cut by the Indiana Pacers.

William Buckner died the same month. His son took it as an omen that it was time to move out of basketball.

"Everybody goes down, but my parents taught me that you are only out when you quit. It's like I tell my kids: You don't quit. You find a way. There is always a way."

Buckner remains protective of his family's privacy. He refuses to talk about his wife, Ronie, sons Jason, 13, and Cory, 10, or daughters Laureen, 9, and Alexandra, 4.

"I understand some people will think that I am trying to hide something," he said. "But that's not the case. My private life is my sanctuary. It is where I get away from the madness. I want to keep it that way."

Buckner, who sold a computer data processing company in 1991 when he joined NBC as its NBA studio analyst, said he plans to sell his share in The Buckner Group, his Milwaukee-based sports marketing company.

"I learned a long time ago from two of the best teachers in the world that when you make a commitment to do something, you do what you have to do to get the job done," Quinn Buckner said. "It's something I hope to teach others."

Playa lake issues to be explored

Across West Texas, thousands of playa lakes dot the landscape. Facts and myths about what landowners can and can't do with these shallow, rainfed surface water reservoirs will be explained during two Playa Wetland Symposia March 24 in Lubbock and March 25 in Amarillo.

Several federal and state agencies and private wildlife groups are joining forces with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) to conduct the identical programs. These are the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS), USDA Farmers Home Administration, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USF&WS), Lubbock and Texas Panhandle chapters of Ducks Unlimited, Texas chapter of the Wildlife Society, and the Playa Lakes Joint Venture.

In Lubbock, the symposium will be at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, FM 1294 just east of I-27 at the Shallowwater exit. The Amarillo meeting will be at the Texas A&M center there, 6500 Amarillo Blvd.

West. Each program will begin at 8 a.m. and end about 3 p.m.

Purposes of the conference will be outlined by Gene Miller, TPWD technical guidance biologist, Amarillo. The importance of playa lakes to wildlife will be discussed by James Ray, waterfowl biologist with TPWD, Amarillo. Private lands opportunities with the Soil Conservation Service will be covered by Gary Valentine, SCS state biologist, Waco.

Farmers Home Administration conservation easements and how they can benefit the landowner and wildlife will be explained by Patrick Sulten-fuss, chief of that agency's appraisal and underwriting section at Temple. Private lands opportunities with the ASCS will be discussed by Darrel Davis. He is chief of the conservation division at the state ASCS office in College Station.

Opportunities with USF&WS will be covered by David Haukos, technical assistance biologist with that agency, Lubbock. Ray will cover opportunities offered private landowners by TPWD.

A panel of landowners will relate their experiences in implementing projects on private lands. Panelists will be William Armstrong and Robert Baker, Lubbock; Charles Wall, Dalhart; Hulon Carthel, Floydada, and B.J. Pierce, Texico, N.M.

Registration forms are available at county offices of the Extension Service. Advance registration by March 17 is $8. Registration at the door is $10. Registration includes lunch.

Governor signs boll weevil law

AUSTIN -- Surrounded by cotton producers and growers, Governor Ann Richards signed into law today the boll weevil eradication bill.

Richards hailed the bill, sponsored by State Senator Bill Sims (D-San Angelo) and Representative Pete Patterson (D-Brookston), as landmark agricultural legislation.

"The cotton industry, environmental and consumer groups worked with my office to come up with a bill that is the best boll weevil eradication bill in the country," Richards said. "This kind of cooperation does not happen enough, but when it does, Texas is the big winner."

Joining Richards at the bill-signing ceremony was Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry.

"This bill proves that Ann Richards listens to the agriculture community of Texas," Perry said. "Governor, we are grateful for your help."

The cotton-munching boll weevil causes as much as $20 million a year in losses to the state's cotton industry. Texas produces more than 5 billion bales of cotton per year. The bill will make Texas cotton farmers eligible for almost $45 million in U.S. Department of Agriculture funds to help the state eradicate boll weevils over the next five to seven years.

The Texas boll weevil eradication legislation calls for an eradication plan that will be carried out with the best available integrated pest management techniques.

Rudd, Edwards wed in evening ceremony

Wedding vows were exchanged by Vaavia June Rudd and Brian Keith Edwards, both of Lubbock, during an early evening ceremony Friday in the chapel of First United Methodist Church of Hereford. Officiating was the Rev. Joe Wood of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Homer and June Rudd of Route 5, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Susan Edwards of 244 Elm and Mr. and Mrs. Byron Lee Edwards of Wildorado.

The church was decorated with English ivy and fern arranged on votive candle towers and the altar was adorned with an arrangement of lilies, astromerius and English ivy. Ivy and votive candles were placed in the window embrasures and white bows marked the family pews.

Jeri Ruckman served as maid of honor and the groom's brother, Jaritt Edwards, was best man.

Guests were escorted by the groomsmen, Rob Wells and Truman Elkins.

The bride's niece, Jessica Moynihan, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Steve Moynihan, was flower girl. Serving as ring bearer was the groom's nephew, Dax McCracken, son of Roger and Shelly McCracken.

Jane Gulley, accompanied by Brenda Funderburk of Amarillo, sang "The Lord's Prayer". Eric Gilley played Trumpet Voluntaire and Elizabeth Moynihan played a violin solo. "Traumerei", accompanied by Rebecca Dockery, who played the piano.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an elegant white satin designer's gown fashioned with a modified scalloped sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, basque waistline and Bishop sleeves which extended fitted to her wrists. Lace appliques, beads, seed pearls and sequins further adorned the gown and the sleeves were accented with white bows and hanging beads. The full skirt, which featured an apron of satin, was fashioned with a sheer illusion overlay decorated with lace appliques, seed pearls, beads and sequins and marked at the back with a white bow. The hemline, which was edged with scalloped lace, extended into a chapel-length train.

The chapel-length bridal illusion veil formed a large ruffled bow at the back crown of a pearl tiara.

She carried a cascading arrangement of gardenias, lilies, astromerius and English ivy accented with white satin ribbon streamers.

To complete her wedding ensemble, the bride wore her mother's pearl necklace and matching earrings.

Bridal attendants wore black faille long sheath gowns, which were fashioned with white cape collars, and evening length gloves. Their jewelry included pearl broaches and pearl necklaces. Each carried a single long stemmed red rose adorned with baby's breath and greenery.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Wesley Rudd, invited guests to register at the reception in the church fellowship hall.

Serving the bride's cake were her sisters, Rebecca Dockery and Elizabeth Moynihan. Presiding at the groom's table was his cousin, Leslie Stapp. Punch and coffee were poured by the bride's sister, Colleen Robison, and the bride's cousin, Patricia Quillin.

Others assisting included Rosemary Thomas, Violet Barton, Amanda Tiemann and the Young Women's Mutual Organization of the Church of Jesus Christ Of Latter-Day Saints.

The bride's table was decorated with the bride's bouquet and the bride's all white three-tiered columnade cake which was accented with fresh ruby red carnations.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock following a wedding trip to points of interest in New Mexico.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School and plans to graduate from Texas Tech University in May. She then plans to enter the Texas Tech School of Law in the fall with a regents scholarship.

The groom, a 1985 HHS graduate, is seeking a degree in architecture from Texas Tech University. He is currently employed at Lubbock Feedyard.

Wedding guests represented Houston, Denver, Colo., Amarillo, Borger, Dallas, Clovis, N.M., and Gross Pointe, Mich.

Former residents' daughters honored by association

Becky and Barbie Brisendine, daughters of former Hereford residents, Lynn and Linda Brisendine of Brownfield, were recently honored by the Texas Girls' Coaching Association. The young women, members of the Lady Cub Spikers, were named to the Volleyball Academic Honor Roll All-State Team.

In order to be selected, the players must maintain a grade point average of 94 or higher; must be nominated by their coach and school principal; must have played on the varsity team for two years; and must have finished as one of the top two teams in their district.

Becky and Barbie accomplished each requirement and each one will graduate in the top 10 percent of her class.

Witkowski presents program to HRSEA

Louise Witkowski spoke to members of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association about discovering new worlds after retirement when the group met recently at the Hereford Senior Citizens Association.

Witkowski mentioned that February had been designated as Black History Month and March is Women's History Month which gives retirees opportunities to explore their history and become more informed in these areas. She gave brief facts concerning outstanding Blacks and women of the past and urged members to investigate further.

Sue Inmon introduced L.V. Watts of Deaf Smith County Hospital who explained the new personal wellness program which is being sponsored by the hospital. As retired school employees, HRSEA can participate in this extensive testing to determine present levels of wellness and learn what can be done to improve health. Watts stressed that this is an opportunity to obtain a broad range of procedures at minimal cost and in addition, a personal profile is provided for each person participating.

Watts will be at the next meeting April 12 to give out applications to those members wishing to participate in the personal wellness program.

During the business session conducted by President Margaret Bell, the final plans for the silent auction April 12 were finalized. Chairman Reuben McGilvary asked members to donate items of crafts, jelly, baked goods, white elephant items, etc. He suggested that members put a minimum acceptable bid on those items of some value contributed for the auction. The money collected will be designated for the TRTA building fund and will be presented at the April convention.

Leona Schilling announced plans for the spring social to be held at 6 p.m. May 3 at the Community Center. The committee is planning a Mexican stack supper and Bunko games.

Retirement Chairman Louise Witkowski announced the pre-retirement seminar for the teachers in Hereford, Friona and Vega districts scheduled at 4:30 p.m. April 22 at the Community Center. A resource person from TRTA will be present to explain the many facets of retirement planning, both for the educators near retirement as well as those just now entering the profession. As hosts, HRSEA members will provide publicity and serve refreshments.

The group voted to donate $50 to the Friends of the Library to help purchase a video projector for Deaf Smith County Library.

Audrey Powell reminded the group that a volunteer income tax service is available at the Senior Citizens Center. VITA members will be at the center on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to assist anyone needing help.

The next regular meeting will be April 12 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. All retired Hereford school employees are urged to attend.

DR. AND MRS. AARON HUTTO

Marriage announced

Dr. Aaron Hutto and Della Hutchins were united in marriage Friday evening, March 5, in the prayer chapel of First United Methodist Church.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Joe Wood.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Just because Madonna and Sean Penn are divorced doesn't mean they can't attend the same fund-raisers.

The two were among 300 people attending a performance of "Twelve Angry Men" Saturday night. The show was sponsored by a group of actors and investors trying to raise money to launch a new theater in a vacant building near Rodeo Drive.

Penn and Madonna sat separately and did not arrive together. Other actors in the high-powered audience were Helen Hunt and Raul Julia.

Palestinian woman topic of program

Sylvia Khuri presented a program on "The Rural Christian Palestinian Woman" when members of Toujour Amis Study Club met recently in the home of Shelley Moss.

Khuri explained about her life while growing up in what she still calls Palestine and how that life differs from her American lifestyle. She also explained of the difference since the occupation of 1968 and how the media does an injustice to the Palestinian people by their portrayal of them.

During the business meeting, the group decided to join the Beautification Alliance with Kyla McDowell serving as the club's representative.

Club members also discussed organizing a group to look into the feasibility of constructing a "Kidsville" in Hereford. This project would include building a large wooden playground surrounded by a walking track. The club invites the community to assist with the project.

Hostesses, Shelly Moss, Lisa Klett and Becky Reinart, served baklava, which was made by Khuri and Ylota Malouf, praline pie, tea and coffee.

Also, present were Judy Barrett, Kim Bigham, Melinda Bridge, Patti Brown, Kim Buckley, Tami Charest, Diana Griffin, Shannon Hagar, Donna Kemp, Lisa Formby, Kyla McDowell, Donna West, Lauri Paetzold, Kim Porter, Cindy Simons and Marsha Winget.

"Clean Dozen" tips to trim off the fat

You've heard of the "Dirty Dozen." Now get to know the "Clean Dozen"-that is, 12 American Heart Association suggestions to trim fat from your diet.

You can raise your blood cholesterol level by eating too much food rich in saturated fatty acids such as animal fat and palm, palm kernel and coconut oils. High cholesterol can cause a fatty build-up in the inner lining of blood vessels and eventually block the blood flow. The block can lead to a heart attack.

Thus, the American Heart Association suggests you limit total fat intake to less than 30 percent of your daily calories and saturated fatty acids to less than 10 percent.

These 12 tips will help.

1. Switch from whole milk to milk that's 1 percent fat or less.
2. Read labels on food, noting the grams and kinds of fat.
3. Switch from butter to margarine with no more than two grams of saturated fat per tablespoon, and use butter-flavored granules.
4. Switch to low-fat salad dressing and low-fat mayonnaise.
5. Avoid fried foods.
6. Eat five or more fruits or fruit juices and vegetables a day.
7. Switch to low-fat or fat-free cheeses.
8. Eat only lean cuts of red meat, remove the skin from poultry before it's cooked and eat fish often.
9. Eat more bread, cereal, rice, and pasta.
10. Eat low-fat breakfast items such as cereal, English muffins, bagels and whole grain bread rolls.
11. Eat low-fat ice milk, sherbet and other low-fat desserts.
12. Switch to polyunsaturated and monounsaturated oils such as canola, corn, safflower, sesame, soybean, sunflower and olive oil, and use non-stick vegetable cooking spray.

AHA volunteers will set up activity centers in participating supermarkets during the Food Festival. Pledge forms and 20 questions to help you check your "Fat-O-Stat" to discover hidden sources of fat and cholesterol in your diet will be available.

Trying all 12 tips at once is not the best way for everybody. The AHA suggests taking a step at a time so that the new habits can more easily become permanent.

Call the American Heart Association at 1-800-AHA-USA1 for these and dozens of other tips - to help make your heart healthier.

Thank You

The family of George Frerich wishes to thank all their friends, for their prayers, cards, flowers, food, love, and friendship shown during our recent loss. With special thanks to the staff at Westgate, Nadine, Dr. McBrayer, Lanny Wheeler and Monsignor Blum. May God bless and keep you.

Miss Hereford Pageant scheduled June 12

Extension
News

Members of the Women's Division are seeking entrants for the 21st Annual Miss Hereford Pageant set for 7 p.m. June 12 in the Hereford High School auditorium. This year's pageant theme is "The Entertainer."

The pageant is open to local women, ages 16-21. Contestants will be vying for scholarship money and prizes. Each contestant will participate in an interview by judges, talent competition and evening gown competition.

Pageant entry forms may be picked up at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at 701 N. Main St. and must be returned to the office by 5 p.m. April 9.

Rita Bell and Julia Laing are serving as pageant co-chairmen and other Miss Hereford steering committee members are Kim Buckley, Linda Daniel, Betty Drake, Lacy Mueggenborg and Kim Porter. Assistants include Gayla Sanders, Sheri Walterscheid, Donna West, Marsha Winget and Colleen Meyers.

For additional pageant information, call Bell at 364-6485 or Laing at 364-6856.

Legumes--complex carbohydrates--fit in the dietary guidelines recommended by many health organizations which advise consumers to increase the complex carbohydrates. Legumes can provide a low-fat, low-cholesterol source of protein that's packed with fiber because they are from vegetable sources. If you add ham or bacon to season, then you also add extra fat and cholesterol. The fastest method to soak beans is to wash, soak in water and boil two minutes. Then remove from heat, cover, and let them soak for an hour. Then simmer until done. If you add an acid such as tomatoes to beans, cooking time will need to be longer.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) - After 12 years in the spotlight as New York's junior senator, Alfonse D'Amato probably has some good stories to tell.

But don't expect tabloid-style tidbits about the misdeeds of Washington's elite in D'Amato's new book.

In an interview broadcast Sunday on WKIP radio, the Republican senator said his forthcoming book will include stories about his political campaigns, some childhood memories, insights into former presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush and thoughts about the news media.

Pageant co-chairmen named

Serving as the co-chairmen of this year's Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant are, from left, Julia Laing and Rita Bell. The annual event, which is sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, is scheduled at 7 p.m. June 12 in the Hereford High School auditorium. All young women, ages 16-21, are invited to compete. Entry forms may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. during the week. Deadline to enter is 5 p.m. April 9.

Learning wood working skills

Members of the 4 Leaf Clover 4-H Club met recently at the Hereford Community Center. As part of the group's wood working project, they made a wooden stool. The Deaf Smith County 4-H clubs welcome new members. Those interested in joining a club may contact the Deaf Smith County Extension Office.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: One day as I happened to look outside, I saw my dog hanging from the fence by his chain collar. It seems the link from the collar got caught on the slat and as he pulled it only got tighter. I was able to lift him up and release him.

I heard of another story where a dog was not so lucky. He was chained on a porch and lost his footing, fell off the side and was hung.

This can also happen if a dog gets caught on a bush. Chain collars can kill. — Helen Alfano, Monroe, N.Y.

Thank heavens your dog is all right! I've received quite a few letters on the danger of chain collars. They are for training sessions only and should not be left on the dog. — Heloise

RENAE DOSS, GREGG BRORMAN

DIANTHE WOMBLE, STEVEN LAFUENTE

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Womble of Dalhart announce the engagement of their daughter, Dianthe Dawn Womble, to Steven Ryan Lafuente of Amarillo. He is the son of Arnold and Ercilia Lafuente of Amarillo, former Hereford residents.

The couple plans to exchange wedding vows April 3 at the First Christian Church in Dalhart.

Miss Womble is currently a student at West Texas State University and is employed by First National Bank of Amarillo. She is a 1991 graduate of Dalhart High School.

Lafuente plans to graduate with a degree in marketing in 1994 from WTSU. He is also employed by First National Bank of Amarillo and manages Amarillo's Premier Tejano Band, Sumthing Simpel. He is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1988 graduate of the Armed Forces School of Music in Norfolk, Va. He is currently a member of Delta Tau Chi Fraternity.

Couple to wed

Renae Doss of Wolfforth and Gregg Brorman of Adrian plan to wed May 29 in First Baptist Church of Wolfforth.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Scott and Kristy Doss of Wolfforth. The prospective bridegroom is the son of John and Elaine Brorman of Adrian and is the grandson of Margaret Brorman of Hereford and Catherine Batenhorst of Canyon.

Miss Doss is a graduate of Frenship High School and will graduate in May 1993 from Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in agriculture communications.

Brorman, a graduate of Adrian High School, received a B.S. degree in agriculture economics from Texas Tech University. He is engaged in farming near Adrian.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The man whom I am going with and who has proposed marriage talks constantly about his former wives.

His first wife died 31 years ago, and he is still puddling up and dabbing his eyes when he speaks of her. He has told me, with incredible venom, how his second wife cheated on him, publicly ridiculed him and ran off and married another man one month before they were legally divorced. He also let me know that she was a terrible cook, a sloppy housekeeper and the world's worst driver. I have heard ad nauseam about this same woman's incompatible beauty, her dancing ability and her size 34DD bras.

I find it difficult to compete with a canonized ghost and a "gorgeous creature" (his words). I've told him repeatedly that his comments make me uncomfortable, but he invariably returns to the subject of these two women. Should I bail out now or keep waiting for him to start appreciating ME? -- Only a 36C in Minneapolis.

Dear 36C: A man who insists on this line of patter during courtship will not change his tune after marriage. Unless you are prepared to hear about these two women for the rest of your natural life, my advice is to bail out now.

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a letter about airport metal detectors. The writer complained that some people, just to be difficult, take off one metal item at a time, which requires them to go through the detectors over and over, holding up other passengers.

It is amazing what will trigger these detectors---rivets in blue jeans, hair pins, braces, surgical pins, metal shoe tips, underwire bras, etc. It is not reasonable after one's pockets have been emptied to ask people to disrobe or undo their hairstyles.

I am an executive who travels frequently, often overseas. All security stations have hand scanners. Too often, while traveling in the states, I have encountered security guards who are too lazy to use the scanner so they keep sending people back through the detectors again and again. Nowhere else in the world does this happen, the hand scanners are used routinely overseas, even in high security airports. Hand scanners solve the problem nicely. That's why they were invented. Please deal with this in your column. -- fortune 500 Executive in Rochester, N.Y.

Dear Fortune 500: Your letter is sure to catch the eye of airline executives who are struggling in a highly competitive field. After price, the major factors that influence passengers to choose one airline over another are food and service. You can be sure the employees who are lazy to us the scanners will hear about this, thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print the following. America needs to wake up to the importance of buying American-made products. -- Joe in Springfield.

Dear Joe: I printed something similar a few years ago, but once more won't hurt. Here it is:

"A man drove his German-made car to his home where he hung up his Scottish wool suit, removed his Italian shoes and Egyptian cotton shirt, donned his robe made in Hong Kong and his slippers from Taiwan. Then he poured a cup of Brazilian coffee into an English coffee mug, lighted his Turkish pipe, picked up a Japanese ballpoint pen with which he wrote his congressman demanding to know why the United States had an unfavorable balance of trade."

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. While America's defense budget will decline by over $80 billion from today's funding level over the next 10 years, Defense Department spending for electronic defense systems will remain constant-about $409 billion over the next decade-and will help keep America strong, a new study reveals.

—YOUR EYES—

PROTECTING AGAINST CATARACTS

Sooner or later, if they live long enough, everyone will get cataracts, the clouding of the natural lens over the eyes. In most cases, cataracts are part of the normal aging process and slowly the lens is less able to focus light to help us see.

To some extent, it is possible to protect against cataracts, or at least to delay their appearance. Basic: wear sunglasses outdoors to protect against ultraviolet light. Stop smoking; smokers are more susceptible to cataracts than non-smokers. Recent studies indicate that good nutrition and adequate levels of vitamin C and E also can help to prevent cataracts.

If your vision has gotten worse over a period of time, if colors do not seem as bright as they used to be, or if you notice glare from lights at night, these may be symptoms of a developing cataract. But there may be no symptoms at all, so regular eye examinations are recommended.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

HIRING HINTS

If you track the success of small companies, you will find a common factor in most growing firms. The founder of the company will be quick to admit that the company's early success depended on finding a few key people to share the workload of the firm.

Finding a good employee is, in some respects, similar to searching for the perfect spouse. You identify the desired characteristics, try to find the perfect match and afterwards hope you made the right choice.

Unfortunately, just like in marriages today, not all employment matches are perfect. Many small business owners I've talked with, feel that the odds of finding Mr. or Ms. Right are at best about 50-50.

There are ways to enhance your chances of finding the best available employee. It will take extra effort and careful planning, but you can do it. Remember, finding the right associate may lead to a lasting, mutually beneficial relationship that will help your business grow and prosper.

Outline the job

A good beginning point is to outline the job with a written analysis and description. The job analysis should clearly define the major duties and responsibilities that are related to the position.

The job description should provide detailed information including the job title, salary range, chain of command and entry level requirements. The job description should define the duties you wish performed and detail the skills required to perform them.

Once you have the job outlined, it is time to get the message out. There are several ways to solicit candidates. You may put an ad in the help wanted section of your newspaper or you may select a private employment agency. Most states have state operated employment commissions, and these may be a good option for you. Private agencies usually charge an employer fee, while state organizations are normally tax supported.

My favorite method is to network with people I know to find potential candidates. I would prefer to analyze a few good prospects who come highly recommended by people I trust, than wade through piles of resumes looking for a pearl.

Narrowing the field

Once the word is out and the resumes have come rolling in, it is time to narrow the field. Your task now becomes finding the top candidates to interview.

Top human resource managers say not to rush this part of the process. Take your time and review each application carefully. Pay attention to both the resume and the cover letter. Typos, grammatical errors and misspellings signal a lack of attention to detail.

It is also wise not to rush the interview process. Allow adequate time for each interview. The interviewer should try to put all candidates at ease. Create a friendly atmosphere and paint a realistic picture of the job offer.

You should develop an interview plan. Put together a series of questions designed to get the candidates talking about themselves. Experts say that candidates should do at least 75 percent of the talking. Your role as the interviewer is to guide the conversation to topics of interest to your company.

After you are satisfied with the information gathering process, let the candidates know about the next step. Tell them what you plan to do and when.

Now you've got to make a choice. There are 3 main categories to assess. First, examine the applicant's knowledge level. This is the "how to" element. Next, look at the ability factor of the "able to" element. Finally, examine their motivational level. This is the "want to" factor.

Once you select and hire the best candidate, remember that this is only the beginning of the relationship. Like a marriage, after the honeymoon is over, it takes effort on everyone's part to make the on-going process mutually rewarding.

Formal and informal space is included for this plan. A large formal dining room, private entrance foyer, and an isolated living room are shown at the front of the plan and the open family room, kitchen and breakfast room are to the rear.

Deck access is from either the breakfast room, family room or the master bedroom suite.

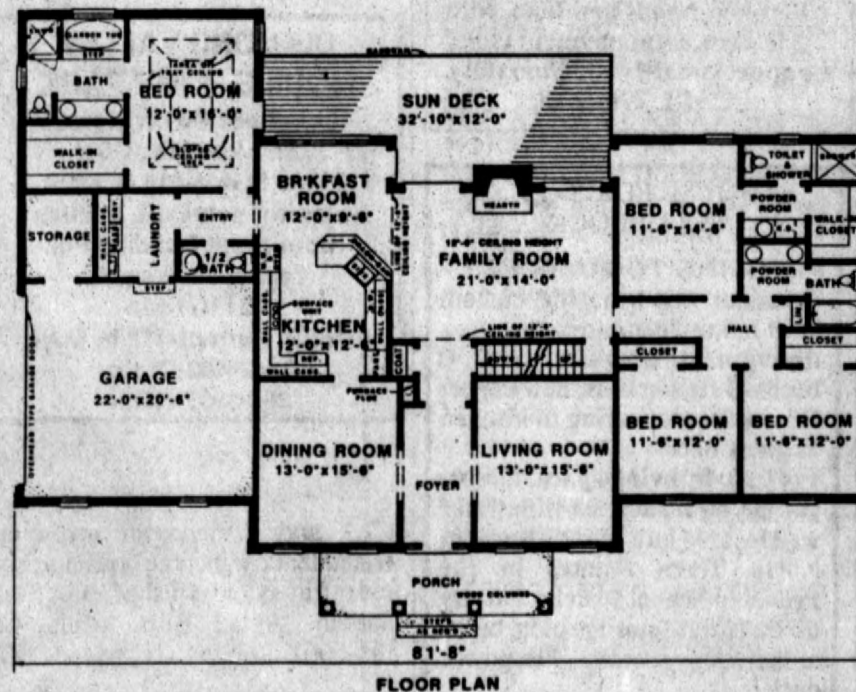

Ceiling heights are modified in the family room and in the bedroom. The family room is shown with a twelve foot ceiling and the master bedroom includes a tray ceiling.

The master bedroom suite is also provided with excellent access to the laundry, powder room or private luxury bath. The closet is an enormous walk in and the bath includes a compartment tub, shower and a luxury garden tub.

Three more bedrooms are shown at the opposite end of the plan, one of which includes a private compartment bath and deck access. A central bath and powder room service the remaining two bedrooms.

The colonial exterior is enhanced by a steep gable roof design and a gable porch with four round columns. Windows are shuttered and multiple lite. Corner quoins and dentils finish the picture.

The plan is Number 2658. It includes 2,672 square feet of heated space and is drawn for a basement and permanent stair to the attic. It is a computer generated plan. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

'Woman on the Ledge' brings daytime stars to prime time

NBC movie focuses on lives of three friends
By Candace Havens

The NBC movie Woman on the Ledge, airing Monday, March 15, begins with - surprise - a woman on the ledge of a building ready to leap to her death. Learning the jumper's identity and motive requires a two-hour investment in this telefilm.

The movie is a tense drama that focuses on the lives of three friends. Deldre Hall's (Marlena, Days of Our Lives) character is a free-spirited business-woman with endometriosis (a condition that affects the reproductive system). She must have a child immediately or risk never having one. The role of an unhappy homemaker who thinks her husband is having an affair is played by Leslie Charleson (Monica Quartermaine, General Hospital). The third friend, a musician, portrayed by Colleen Zenk Pinter (Barbara, As The World Turns), is seeing an unscrupulous therapist who molests her.

These are women struggling with major crises, and the men in their lives give them little comfort. They depend heavily on each other to get through the hard times.

The entire cast is made up of veteran soap opera actresses and actors. With Peter Bergman (Jack, The Young and the Restless), Michael Zaslow (Roger, The Guiding Light), Josh Taylor (Days and The Hogan Family), Kale Browne (Michael, Another World) and Ken Kercheval (Dallas), it seems like old home week with the soaps.

"We were amazed by the amount of years we had all been working on the soaps," says Hall. "The six principles of the show have a combined total of more than 100 years on soap operas. I've had 17 years of experience, Leslie has had 17 and it goes on."

The toughest job was scheduling the actors and actresses so that they could take time away from their popular daytime roles.

"The great news," says Hall, "is that we got all these people together at the same time, it worked and we had a great time doing the show."

Hall's role was especially poignant for her because it so closely parallels her own life. Just like her character, Hall was diagnosed with endometriosis.

"I identified so strongly with this role," says Hall.

"If I had not known that my son was going to be born soon, I would not have been able to accept the part," says Hall.

She and husband Steven Sohmer, a best-selling author and former Columbia Studios chief, adopted their newborn son, David Atticus, soon after her role in the movie was completed. Hall said the timing was perfect.

Colleen Zenk Pinter, Leslie Charleson and Deldre Hall (left to right) are just three of the many daytime soap stars who head the cast of NBC's Woman on the Ledge on Monday. The movie follows three lifelong friends as each struggles to overcome a personal major life crisis. Soap veterans Peter Bergman, Josh Taylor and Ken Kercheval also star.

WOMEN

"I had told the producers that there was no way I would be working or out of town the day my son was born," says Hall. "It is the most thrilling time of my life, and my son has changed the way I view the world and most every situation."

It has been a busy year for Hall. She returned to daytime after a several-year hiatus, got married, gained a son, and made a TV movie. Hall is used to the busy pace and has a history of doing more in a week than most people accomplish in a month. In 1986, she became the first actress to star simultaneously in both a daytime show (Days) and a prime-time series when she was cast as Jessie Witherspoon on NBC's Our House, a family drama co-starring Wilford Brimley.

So does Hall's character in Woman on the Ledge have a baby? And who is the woman standing on the ledge of the 15th floor? Tune into NBC on Monday night to find out.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "A Few Good Men" and Kevin Costner, Whoopi Goldberg and Garth Brooks were all double winners at the People's Choice Awards.

"Home Alone 2: Lost in New York" and "Sister Act" were both honored as the year's best movie comedies Tuesday night.

Winners were determined by a Gallup Poll of more than 5,000 people nationwide who were asked to list their favorite music, TV shows, movies and stars.

Brooks was voted best male country music and best male musical performer. Costner was named best movie actor and best dramatic movie actor. Goldberg won honors as best movie actress and best comedy movie actress.

'Law' to be restored on television

LOS ANGELES (AP) - For television's lawyers, popularity has become elusive these days. We are far from the heyday of the old "Perry Mason" series or even "L.A. Law," the NBC drama now doing a drag turn as a soap opera.

It's true that lawyers fare poorly in opinion polls on job respectability, sharing the same bottom-feeder status as congressmen (OK, OK, and journalists). But that's nothing new.

In the late '80s, such public disdain didn't keep "L.A. Law" from an easy hold on a top 10 ratings spot. The drama was the choice of more than 16 million households in one typical showing in 1989.

But last month, the series slunk in at an ignominious 61st in one weekly ranking, which translates into just about 9 million households.

To be judiciously fair, it was competing with CBS's monster miniseries "Queen." During the "Queen"-less week of Feb. 8, however, "L.A. Law" managed only a 39th-place showing.

Far, far behind was TV's other series set in a law firm, ABC's "Civil Wars," which has a firm grasp on 70th place or so.

And cop-cum-courtroom shows - "Reasonable Doubts," "Law & Order" - aren't ratings-grabbers either.

In the case of "Civil Wars," which wrapped up its current run Tuesday, viewers have failed to warm to the divorce angst. ABC will announce in May whether the series will be renewed.

After seven seasons of "L.A. Law," audiences seem equally disenchanted with the courtroom, boardroom and bedroom antics of the firm of McKenzie, Brackman, Chaney and Kuzak.

The series that once made viewers think, that pushed hot buttons on issues ranging from animal rights to the right to die, has pulled up lame. Mad stalkers and endangered pregnancies now dominate plot lines.

(True, the old "L.A. Law" also gave us Harry Hamlin wooing Susan Dey in a gorilla suit but, hey, the lawyers-in-love stuff worked. It was fun. It leavened the pathos).

So is it time to give the show, and perhaps the genre, a rest, in TV's grand cyclical programming tradition?

Not necessarily, say optimistic producers and networks. Not as long as a spark of life remains.

"I'm not sure if 'L.A. Law's' cycle has run," said Bill Finkelstein, who as supervising producer during the series' first four seasons helped win a quartet of outstanding drama Emmys.

"I tend to think that good drama's good drama," he said. "If a show works, and audiences are attracted to the characters, it makes little difference if they're lawyers, or doctors or cops."

Finkelstein, who produces "Civil Wars," has jumped back to "L.A. Law" as co-executive producer to try to restore its gloss in this year's final eight episodes.

In a mildly desperate announcement at the end of last week's show, viewers were promised that a month-long series hiatus would result in the April 1 return of "the 'L.A. Law' you remember."

The goal, said Finkelstein, is to put the law back in.

"I think some of the extracurricular activities the characters have been engaged in have worked to varying degrees," he said, diplomatically. "My intention is to restore the office to the real arena of conflict" - the law.

SUNDAY

Judith Light stars as a woman who verbally and physically abuses her husband (Peter Strauss) in the premiere of CBS' Men Don't Tell on Sunday.

Ford an automatic favorite; don't panic, it's 'Sudden Fear'

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I am a longtime fan of actor Glenn Ford. I have almost all of his Westerns on tape. Could you please tell me his birthdate, his birthplace, approximately how many movies he has made and an address where I can write to him? --Gary Hansen, Portland, Ore.

A: Glenn Ford was born Gwyllyn Samuel Newton Ford in the far reaches of Quebec, Canada, on May 1, 1916. Ford began to experiment in theater groups after his family moved to California and was signed to a picture deal with Columbia in 1939. World War II interrupted his growing film career. But after serving his country, Ford returned to even greater acclaim in the movies. Including films made for television, Ford's film credits number a bit more than 100. You might check out some of his non-Western movies, including The Blackboard Jungle, The Gazebo and The Teahouse of the August Moon. You can write to him in care of his business manager at 500 Sepulveda Blvd., Suite 500, Los Angeles, Calif., 90049.

Q: I am a big fan of the series The Waltons. I understand there is a museum related to the show somewhere in Virginia or West Virginia. Could you tell me where it is or where I could write to find out about it? --Lucy Miller, Olathe, Colo.

A: A very helpful gentleman at the Walton's Mountain Museum extends his hearty welcome to anyone interested in learning more about it. The museum is located near Schuyler, Va., the boyhood home of author Earl Hamner Jr., whose stories were the basis of the popular series. The address is P.O. Box 124, Schuyler, Va., 22969, or you can call directly at (804) 831-2000.

Q: I believe I have quite a challenge for you. One of my favorite childhood shows doesn't seem to be remembered by anyone but me. The introduction of the show had a young boy sneaking backstage at a magic show and placing a magic hat on the floor. The hat grew, the boy climbed on top of it, fell in, and entered a world of hat people. Do you know the name of this show? --L.R.S., Portland, Ore.

A: The name of the Saturday-morning series, which aired from 1971 to 1973, was Lidsville. You might also remember the boy was played by a post-Munsters Butch Patrick, the evil magician Horatio J. Hoo Doo by Charles Nelson Reilly, and good Weenie the Genie by Billie Hayes. Hayes and Reilly, incidentally, had previously teamed on another Sid and Marty Krofft production, H.R. Pufnstuf.

Q: Please tell me a little about Chad Allen, who plays Matthew on the CBS series Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman. What other work has he done and where can I write to him? --Julie C., Farmington Hills, Mich.

Susan Dey stars as a woman fighting for custody of her baby in Lies and Lullabies on ABC Sunday.

A: You might remember Allen in the other recent series My Two Dads, as Zach, and Our House, as David Witherspoon. He has also appeared on The Wonder Years, Hunter and Highway to Heaven. He turned in an effective performance as a high-school teen who kills his teacher's husband to be with her in 1991's telefilm Murder in New Hampshire: The Pamela Smart Story. Allen's time away from acting is said to largely consist of volunteer work. You can write to him in care of CBS, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90036.

Q: I would like to know the name of a movie I saw years ago with Joan Crawford and Jack Palance. The two were married, and he and his mistress were plotting to kill Joan. --Caroline Horvat, Jeannette, Pa.

A: 1952's Sudden Fear is a good suspense film with an abundance of believable plot twists. Co-starring with Crawford and Palance are Gloria Grahame and Mike Connors.

Send questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009. Please send no return envelopes; questions will only be answered within this column.

Monday on ABC, Richard Dreyfuss plays a police officer who falls in love with the beautiful woman (Madeleine Stowe) who is the subject of his Stakeout. Emilio Estevez also stars.

On PBS' Charlie Rose, the Emmy-winning journalist sits down each weeknight for a chat with interesting and varied guests from the worlds of politics, entertainment, science and medicine.

'Charlie Rose' blossoms on PBS

Veteran interviewer seeks new stories, faces

By Steven Alan McGaw

On Sept. 30, 1991, New York City public television station WNET offered the premiere of Charlie Rose, a live, Monday-through-Friday interview program anchored by the Emmy-winning journalist and broadcaster best known for his six-year stint on CBS' Nightwatch. The WNET show was austere by network standards -- a round table with two or more chairs placed in a small pool of light. In this setting, Rose engaged in candid, often surprising conversation with the likes of Henry Kissinger, Alec Baldwin, rapper Sister Souljah and then-Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton. Five nights a week, in three segments per show, Charlie Rose demonstrated the personality, intelligence and ability that has made him one of America's foremost interviewers.

Since January, the show has been seen across the nation on PBS, thanks to funding from private foundations as well as the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Airing at 11:00 p.m. (EST) each weeknight, the show's expanded visibility has brought a new kind of forum to late-night television viewers and allowed Rose and his staff to "cast a wider net" for guests.

That's not to say that Rose considers himself in competition with Jay Leno, Arsenio Hall, etc. "What I bring to the talk-show format," says Rose, "is my background as a journalist, rather than one in comedy or acting. That doesn't make me better, just different, and that difference is intrinsic to the show."

The native North Carolinian (he holds two degrees from Duke University) says on his show "the emphasis is on the most interesting people we can find, the conflict we can find, the people we think have something to say." Rose acknowledges that his guests have included talk-show staples such as Tom and Roseanne Arnold but says "the ideal guest for me is someone who has a hell of a story to tell and who has not been heard before."

Rose has long been praised for his thorough preparation, an element he says is crucial.

"The more you know," Rose explains, "the more spontaneous you can be."

BITS AND PIECES

Series for Grammer, Garr; Betty Boop returns to big screen

Kelsey Grammer will continue his Cheers character of psychiatrist Frasier Crane in a new NBC sitcom debuting as early as next fall. Another NBC comedy series in the works will star Teri Garr (Toolsie) as a divorcee who finds herself in competition for a plum IRS job with an ambitious, younger man, with whom she must share a company apartment.

The resourceful MacGyver has devised a way to escape his series' cancellation: TV movies. Richard Dean Anderson reprises his popular role in the two-hour MacGyver: Trail to Doomsday, scheduled to air on ABC next season. In the production, which recently began in London, MacGyver opposes terrorists and the underground sale of nuclear weapons.

Keep Amy Fisher in your home, on video that is. ABC Television is entering the home-video market with the initial release on the ABC Video label, The Amy Fisher Story. ABC's TV adaptation of the real-life "fatal attraction" story, starring Drew Barrymore in the title role, was widely considered less biased than NBC's and CBS' competing docudramas. The video version is said to contain additional footage shot exclusively for home video, which probably means more of the sexual situations that made the news story so sensational.

Teri Garr

Betty Boop returns! Richard D. Zanuck will produce an animated feature for MGM starring the world-famous character. Zanuck will collaborate with Richard Fleischer, son of Betty Boop's creator, Max Fleischer.

Reel life imitates real life. Raquel Welch teams with Jack Scalia in Judith Krantz's Torch Song, an ABC movie which recently completed production. The story follows the life of a boozing movie queen who finds love with a firefighter-guzzling fireman when they meet at a rehabilitation center. Sounding suspiciously like the romance of Elizabeth Taylor and construction worker Larry Fortensky, the film is scheduled to air later this season.

Harley riders take to road on 'Hogs'

By Michael Scogin

"It's a freedom thing," says one Harley enthusiast in the entertaining TBS special, Harley-Davidson: The American Motorcycle, premiering Monday, March 15.

Hoyt Axton narrates the program, which profiles the company, the motorcycle and the riders whose mystique has made Harley-Davidson an international symbol of freedom and one of the last truly American icons.

The special features appearances by celebrity riders including Lou Reed, James Caan, Dwight Yoakam, Larry Hagman and Peter Fonda, whose custom "Captain America" Harley was made famous in 1969's Easy Rider.

For Harley riders, the road becomes "The Road" as they hit the highway, wind rushing and V-Twin engine rumbling, on their "Hog."

"You get totally focused," says musician David Crosby, one of the show's celebrity hosts. "Nothing else matters at that moment."

The Harley-Davidson story began in 1903, when William Harley and the three Davidson brothers, Walter, William and Arthur, built their first three-horsepower motorcycle in a ramshackle Milwaukee garage.

Since that time, Harley-Davidson has seen its fortunes rise and fall, from lean years to a dramatic recent recovery. America's lone motorcycle producer now sells every bike it makes, so if you want one, prepare to stand in line.

SOAP TALK

Reader laments soap star's exit

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: What is a fan to do when a favorite soap star is forced to leave his or her job? That is what happened to Andrea Evans, (ex-Tina Roberts, One Life to Live). After 12 years of playing the tigress Tina, she had to give up the role because she was being stalked. She was so afraid that she went into total seclusion. It wasn't fair to her or the viewers who appreciated her performances that she had to do this.

What bothers me most is that they really goofed when they recast the part. Karen Witter, who plays Tina now, overacts. The character is supposed to be seductive, manipulative, pretentious and spirited, not a comedian. Tina used to be daytime's answer to Dynasty's Alexis Carrington.

Look at the history: Tina was abducted in Argentina, went over a waterfall, faced two murder charges, made love to a bartender in a meat freezer and fell out of a lighthouse and survived. It was all crazy and extremely fun to watch. Since Witter took over the role, Tina's story lines are contrived and stupid and I don't enjoy it at all.

James Depaiva has returned as Max, Robin Strasser is back in the role of Dorian and I want Andrea Evans to come back to the role of Tina. --Rebecca Gaz, Chicago Heights, Ill.

Dear Reader: You are right about the unfairness of Evans being forced to leave her popular role. But under the circumstances, I think the producers did very well in choosing Witter as a replacement. She is a talented actress. She is as seductive as anyone who has played the role and I believe you will see proof of her talent in the upcoming Cord/Tina/Cain love-triangle story line.

You cannot blame the actress for the story lines. If you want to place blame, give it to the writers and producers of the show. They are the ones responsible for the changes in the characters and for the ridiculous story lines (though I don't think anything tops Tina falling over a waterfall and having a baby she forgot about, which happened when Evans portrayed the role). Witter has done well with what she has been given.

FAMILY FARE

'In the Mix' an entertaining blend

By Chris Carpenter

"There are three things that can happen when you pass the football," fabled University of Texas coach Darrell Royal once explained when asked why his offense was so conservative, "and two of those are bad."

But on the city streets of America, urban teens repeatedly play the game of life wide open, ignoring the danger until they eventually drop the ball and get intercepted by the court system.

In the Mix, an hour of entertainment airing Saturdays on most PBS affiliates, offers varied essays on what alternatives to crime and mischief are available to kids who would rather go looking for opportunity than for trouble. To the driving beat of new artists and current video favorites, the show's kinetic hosts explore their sprawling playground, the Big Apple, from stem to core.

Making prudent career decisions is a prevailing topic on In the Mix, and rightfully so. College seems to be high on everyone's wish list, but hardly anyone who speaks on the subject is totally sure how they are going to get there. The process of mulling over possible solutions to this and other problems gives the show high credibility with its young audience and solid jumping-off points for the vibrant musical numbers.

On In the Mix, there's much to be said for staying on the straight and narrow, mostly by pointing out the alternatives.

Word of Honor  A small-town journalist refuses to compromise his principles. Carl Malden, Rue McClanahan 2:00. (1981) March 18 9:00am.

Young Warriors * An angry student forms a vigilante group to avenge his sister's death. Richard Roundtree, Ernest Borgnine R Profanity, Nudity, Violence. 2:00. (1983) March 18 12:05am.

Zorba the Greek  A British writer and a Greek peasant taste life to the fullest. Anthony Quinn, Alan Bates 2:22. (1964) March 17 12:00am.

NEW YORK (AP) - Marlee Matlin is engaged to a police officer.

The Oscar-winning star of "Children of a Lesser God" and her fiancé, 28-year-old Kevin Grandalski, share more than love: Both wanted to be police officers and studied criminal justice in college. But Matlin switched to acting after finding out her deafness would have limited her to a desk job.

Grandalski, who learned sign language in college, moved in with Matlin in October.

They met a year earlier on a Los Angeles street corner where he was directing traffic and she was filming her NBC series "Reasonable Doubts," in which she plays a prosecutor.

A fall wedding is planned. Matlin said in the latest issue of People magazine that she wants "as many children as my uterus can handle."

The United States has more than 4,000 college and university libraries, which together own more than 514 million books and other items.

FRIDAY

Patrick Duffy plays an executive who must learn to be both mother and father to his children when his wife leaves him after 20 years of marriage in Danielle Steel's 'Daddy' on NBC Friday.

DID YOU KNOW?

WHEN EUROPEAN SAILORS DISCOVERED NEW ZEALAND, ITS INHABITANTS WERE CALLED MAORIS, A PEOPLE WHOSE DESCENDANTS HAD SETTLED THERE ABOUT A THOUSAND YEARS AGO. THEY HAD MADE THE VOYAGE FROM SAMOA (WHICH WAS ALMOST 2,000 MILES TO THE NORTH) IN CANOES.

IT IS BELIEVED THAT BIRDS HAVE DESCENDED FROM REPTILES AND THAT, THEY ARE, IN FACT, THE CROCODILE'S NEAREST LIVING RELATIVE.

ALTHOUGH SOCCER IS A MAJOR SPORT IN EUROPE AND SOUTH AMERICA, IT ALSO IS THE MOST POPULAR SPECTATOR SPORT IN THE COUNTRIES OF THE MIDDLE EAST!

TRIVIA, ETC.

Test your Irish luck with these

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. What Irish band had a 1983 hit with "Come On, Eileen"?
2. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and Frank McHugh starred in this 1935 comedy about cops and prizefighters.
3. Name the charming 1991 film, directed by Alan Parker, about a group of young Dubliners who form a band dedicated to American soul music.
4. John Ford won the Best Director Oscar for this 1952 film about an American boxer who retires to Ireland. Name the movie and the cast.
5. This Irish singer/songwriter has taught listeners to "Moondance" and taken them "Into the Mystic." What's his name?
6. Name the Irish rocker whose energy and compassion fueled and inspired 1985's Live-Aid.
7. In 1985, U2 had a hit with the song "Pride (In the Name of Love)." What historical inaccuracy is contained in the song's lyrics?

Answers:

1. Dexy's Midnight Runners.
2. The Irish in Us.
3. The Commitments.
4. The Quiet Man starring John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara.
5. Van Morrison.
6. Bob Geldof.
7. The song alludes to the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., who was slain in the evening, not "early morning" of April 4, 1968.

STAR NOTES

Steen loves her 'Homefront' character

By Steven Alan McGaw

"I hadn't heard of it until about a week before it was supposed to start, this project called 1945," says Jessica Steen, "so I took an overnight flight on Thursday, with pieces of the script for the audition. By that afternoon, I had the job and was getting my hair cut and my eyebrows plucked. It was very quick." And so Jessica Steen landed the unusual role of shrewd, independent Linda Melcalf on ABC's post-World War II drama Homefront. The actress recalls that "for the pilot, there was next to no time to prepare. But after that, we had a bunch of time to research things. So I read old magazines and looked at photos from the '40s and talked to a relative who I consider similar to Linda. It helped a lot."

In creating the character, Steen says she tried to emulate "the cadence and speaking mannerisms of 1940s movies. It's just a very different style."

The Toronto-born Steen says she likes playing one of prime time's few romantically uninvolved characters and gets letters encouraging her to stay that way.

"Just the other day," Steen says, "a lady wrote to say she's a writer and single and loves her life, and she thinks Linda is one of the most responsible single women characters on television."

Steen says she's hopeful Homefront will return for another season, but if not, "life goes on." Comparing her career to a journey, Steen says she's determined to "always enjoy the scenery."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Michael Jackson is forming an independent film company dedicated to making uplifting movies.

Michael Jackson Productions Inc. will give a share of its profits to Jackson's Heal The World Foundation, said Steve Chabre, a Jackson executive.

"I believe passionately in the power of mass entertainment and have seen how, with positive messages, it can help alleviate the problems we face, including the suffering of the world's children," Jackson said in a statement Monday.

"MJP will enjoy a rare degree of independent integrity allowing us to produce the kind of commercial films we believe can achieve some good in this troubled world."

MJP will release full-length films, starting this year with a musical written by and starring Jackson, Chabre said. It will address inequality and prejudice, Chabre said.

SATURDAY

Saturday on HBO, Jonathan Pryce (left) and James Garner star in Barbarians at the Gate, the movie based on the true story of the R.J.R. Nabisco corporate takeover.

takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examines the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.

DID YOU KNOW?

THE FIRST MAN TO BECOME AIRBORNE WAS JEAN-FRANÇOIS PILATRE DE ROZIER. THE FRENCH PHYSICIST WENT UP IN A BALLOON ON OCTOBER 15, 1783 BUT, IN 1785, HE WAS KILLED WHILE TRYING TO FLY ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

THE HARKNALL, A TYPE OF WHALE, HAS A LONG, IVORY SPIRAL SPEAR. IT IS SAID TO STICK THE SPEAR IN FLAT FISH ON THE SEABED. AND THEN, AS IT SWIMS ON, THE FLAT FISH TURNS AROUND ON THE SPEAR UNTIL IT IS EATEN BY THE HARKNALL.

STORMS AT SEA CAN CREATE VERY BIG WAVES. IN 1970, ALMOST ONE MILLION PEOPLE WERE KILLED IN PAKISTAN BECAUSE OF AN ENORMOUS WAVE.
