said in a news release, the average property tax burden has doubled.

The figures were provided by the league, an Austin-based public policy research group, and do not include tax changes in 1992-93 because statewide data are not yet available.

Property taxes in Texas averaged 2.109 percent of market value (selling price) in 1991-2, but varied widely throughout the state ranging from a high of 3.07 percent in Robstown to a low of 1.5 percent in Eagle Pass.

Local property taxes were 2.1532 percent of value.

That rate consisted of 0.4076 percent levied by the City of Hereford, 1.0763 percent by the Hereford Independent School District and 0.4558 percent imposed by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

For a single-family house that would sell for $80,000, the highest tax bill was $2,413 in Pecos and the lowest tax was $1,168 in Columbus. Local governments in Texas relied upon the property tax to finance 37 percent of their budgets in 1991, the league reported.

State aid accounted for 25.4 percent and federal aid 2.7 percent. Charges for services provided 15.6 percent of the revenue; miscellaneous items such as interest received, 11 made up 8.4 percent of general revenue.

Gary Wood, president of the Texas Research League, cautioned that figures are for last year. A hearing Thursday in 222nd permanent custody. District Court was continued to May 13 after lawyers agreed a different form should be used in an effort to identify the unknown parents of the six-week-old baby, found on March 18 in an incinerator just north of the Hereford city limits.

The infant has been in foster care in another county since she was discharged from Northwest Texas Hospital. She was taken to the Amarillo hospital after she was discovered in the pit.

On a directive from Judge David Wesley Gulley, the baby was brought to court Thursday. Her foster parents reported that she weighed five pounds when placed in their care. She now weighs six pounds-12 ounces.

Discussion during the hearing Thursday centered on legal requirements for attempting to locate the parents of the baby.

Attorneys, appointed by Judge Gulley, representing interests of the infant, the unknown father and the unknown mother and an assistant district attorney, representing the state, agreed that a new citation by publication should be issued. The citation must be published

The Senate had two filibusters in one day, and both targeting bills by Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria. Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, spoke in support of an amendment to allow the Texas Animal Health Commission to consider charging fees to cattle raisers for the brucellosis eradication program. After a two-hour filibuster, it was discovered the commission already can consider fees, although it never has. Then Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, put on his tennis shoes to try to talk down another Armbrister bill, which Barrientos said would weaken environmental regulations in Austin.

To be sure, the association ended 1992 in the red, but the $29,748 deficit recorded as of Dec. 31, 1992, was far less than the $75,976 shortfall noted the year before.

In addition, reported manager Bernie Huseman, sales were up at coop fuel pumps and the building has undergone considerable upgrading.

"We've been down the road pretty hard the last couple of years," Huseman told the crowd of more than 300 people who gathered at the Bull Barn for barbecue and the meeting.

Astronaut wears cuff Here are excerpts from Friday's ereford Police Department daily for study

> SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - One of Columbia's astronauts fitted a rubber cuff similar to a whiplash collar around his neck today for a study of the wooziness space can

The astronauts also tried to pinpoint a slight air leak that NASA said posed no threat to the crew.

Astronaut Charles Precourt wore the cuff, which uses pulses of pressure and suction to imitate natural blood pressure, to see how its forces altered his heart rate.

The experiment looks into a theory that the dizziness and lowered blood pressure astronauts experience after they return to Earth may be caused by the adaptation to weightlessness of the body's reflex system that regulates blood pressure.

The astronauts opened and closed valves in an effort to find the leak detected Thursday night in the cabin.

"It's likely to be a long process, since the leak is so small," NASA spokesman James Hartsfield said.

NASA officials had said the leak could jeopardize an extra day the space agency hopes to add to the flight - if enough power can be conserved - to perform more science experiments. However, Hartsfield said later that the leak would not continued for the rest of the flight.

The nine-day U.S.-German research mission is scheduled to end on Wednesday.

"That alone is going to be a tremendous task. They have to write a report about everything they've been involved in this week.

He said work likely will resume investigating underground tunnels; searching several barns on the land and then conducting a walk-through of the 77-acre prairie.

Four bodies, all victims of the Feb. 28 raid by federal officials that began the 51-day standoff are expected to be found in the tunnels. A fifth victim from the initial firefight also is buried on the grounds, Cox said.

On Thursday, the final seven victims of the April 19 fire that leveled the wooden buildings were removed from the concrete room.

Twenty-five other victims and about 1 million rounds of ammunition also were in that room, said David Pareya, a McLennan County justice . of the peace. Nine bodies also were on top of the structure, he said.

72 could be one person more or fewer because the final seven bodies of five children and two adults were severely meshed together.

The pending final tally leaves officials 13 short of the number cult leader David Koresh said were with him. He told the FBI there were 95 Davidians inside, including himself. Nine escaped from the burning buildings.

Lottery ticket sellers get rush

AUSTIN (AP) - The estimated $50 million jackpot for Saturday night's Lotto Texas drawing is keeping lottery retailers busy.

Andy Welch, a spokesman for the state comptroller's office, said the old single-day ticket sales record for a Thursday, $521,000, was smashed before noon. 'We always knew it was going to happen, that we'd get Texas-sized jackpot. But we didn't know when. It's here. And Texans are showing their interest," Welch said. Welch said officials expect participation in the $50 million game to surpass that for the special U.S. Senate election also being held Saturday.

"It is unfortunate, but it'll probably attract more interest than the Senate race," he said.

No one correctly picked the six winning numbers in Wednesday night's $25 million drawing 1-8-10-28-34-49. That allowed the pot to roll over again.

Welch said the lottery sold about $20 million worth of tickets on Wednesday alone - both a single-day record and more sales in one day than the best week's total for previous Lotto Texas games.

Clinton moving toward decision by Saturday on action in Bosnia

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Monday, with efforts then aimed at Clinton is driving toward a final decision by Saturday for tougher action to end the war in Bosnia, unswayed by the sudden willingness of Serbs to participate in international peace talks.

Administration officials said Clinton was considering a two-track approach combining air strikes against Bosnian Serbs and lifting an arms embargo on outgunned Bosnian Muslims.

Clinton intends to up his mind by Saturday, Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Thursday. All of the president's national security and foreign policy advisers have been summoned to a meeting that day.

It's not clear when Clinton will publicly announce his decision. Christopher is expected to first Pareya warned that the figure of outline the decision to European leaders next week to put the allies in sync. hope of averting military strikes. 'If they mean it now, so much the a final decision before Christopher better," the president said. "Let's see. We will know them by their decision-making process is on track; it'll go forward as it was intended to go forward. I think what we need from the Serbs - both the Bosnian Serbs and the Serbs from Serbia - is deeds, not words.'

To demonstrate U.S. resolve for pressing ahead, the White House choreographed back-to-back appearances by the military Joint Chiefs of Staff and then by Christopher before reporters and cameras in the White House driveway.

Gen. Colin Powell, the Joint Chiefs chairman, said Clinton spent two hours with the military leaders in "a full discussion of a wide range of military options as well as consideration of the current diplomatic situation." We haven't ruled anything off the table," other than the use of American ground forces, Powell said.

He said the chiefs talked with Clinton about "the proper linking of military actions to political objectives and policy objectives to make sure there is that linkage."

Powell did not offer much of an endorsement for air strikes, which the president is known to be considering.

"Air strikes, depending on the nature of the strike and the target and a lot of other considerations, can have an effect," he said. "Whether they have the effect that some of the more strident advocates hope they would have is a question to be answered.

"There is always a risk associated with it," he said.

A third model hams for the camera while others shrink in exhaustion or pain. The picture portraits - dozens, all of people with cancer - pinch the viewer's eye.

"These are people confronting their mortality," said Dr. Phillip Periman, who has photographed more than 150 of his patients for an exhibit called "None of Us Asked for This."

"This is their way of saying, 'This is who I am, my mark on the world."

The exhibit has been shown at Odessa College and the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo, where Periman works as a staff doctor.

"I think it's pretty neat," said

A haunting close-up caught Ms. Huthes in the midst of chemotherapy and radiation treatments for lung cancer. Her eyelashes had fallen out; a yellow turban hid the back of her smooth head.

But the Amarillo woman's big, peering eyes seem to convey a reassuring message to the viewer.

"People who see it get upset worse than me," said Ms. Huthes, who is in remission. "They can't believe what progress I have made."

Periman said he hopes to show the dignity, courage and other naked emotion of the human spirit. He builds a friendship with his patients before asking whether he can take their picture.

Some people have a hard time dealing with what they see in the exhibit.

"It's a comment on the world and life. (Cancer is) just the way it is ... an accident of life that can happen to anyone. That's why these are about us," he said.

"People recognize themselves in the photos. We don't want to think we Always, the topic strays back to photography

'Art is like bread: You can't live without it," Periman said. "Great art has heart, personality, risk involved."

That risk started for Periman when he attended a photography seminar several years ago. At the time, Periman said, he was a typical tourist

Some are photographed with family members, others alone in hospital gowns. One woman was photographed with and without her wig; one man wore his ball cap but exposed the tattoo on his bare chest.

'It's not phony, it's direct,"

Periman said. "You look at an image like that and you have direct contact with another person, empathy."

Practicing medicine makes him a more sensitive photographer, Periman said. Likewise, taking photographs makes him a more astute doctor, he Lamesa's 8-year-old center and its Victory Temple, a former lounge in the heart of this community's poorest neighborhood, have their own miracle stories.

Freddy Rodriguez, an eighth-grade-educated Lamesa man with a former heroin habit, now helps to repair the worn walls and floors of the non-denominational Victory Temple where he worships regularly.

The Victory Home - a crowded and unusually constructed habitat for Reyes and his family, Rangel and his family, and four other men - has a 90 percent success rate of treating "the men nobody wanted," Reyes said.

"Clinics only treat the physical," he said. "We work with the total man his drug dependency, his psyche and his spirituality. We get them involved in church. We don't abandon them. They need someone who cares about them."

Oscar Hernandez, a 40-year-old San Antonio man with seemingly tender, brown eyes that belie his dark past, is one of the men who has not been abandoned nor forgotten.

"It's not a job. It's a way of life," Reyes said, shrugging.

The repair work at the church is proceeding slowly, largely because Reyes and Rangel cannot afford to purchase the sheetrock, insulation and tile to make the building more fit for worshipers.

But the difficulty the group faces doesn't seem to bother anyone.

Olajuwon scored 12 points in the first quarter, when Houston took the lead for good. The Rockets extended the margin to 59-47 at halftime before a 30-12 spurt made it 91-69 after three periods.

"He's one of the best in the game," the Clippers' Mark Jackson said of Olajuwon. "He's a phenomenal player and he had a phenomenal night. I don't know if we have any answer for him."

Jackson scored 26 points and Danny Manning 17 for Los Angeles. Celtics 112, Hornets 101

Boston, with 16 NBA titles, taught Charlotte a lesson in team basketball in the Hornets' playoff debut.

Xavier McDaniel led six Celtics with between 12 and 21 points and their reserves outscored visiting Charlotte's backups 53-14. Kendall Gill and Alonzo Mourning scored 30 points each and Larry Johnson had 16, but no one else on the Hornets managed more than six.

"Everyone contributed," Boston coach Chris Ford said. "That's what we've been saying we needed since the season started.'

Sherman Douglas had seven points, seven assists and four rebounds in the third period as the Celtics, tied 53-53 at halftime, outscored Charlotte 30-18 for an 83-71 lead.

An 11-0 run cut the Hornets' 20-point lead to 102-93 with 2:45 left before McDaniel restored the double-digit lead Boston maintained

The only down note for the Celtics was Reggie Lewis, who scored 17 points but was limited to 13 minutes because of what doctors believe was hyperventilation or lack of glucose. Lewis collapsed on the court in the first half.

Cavaliers 114, Nets 98

Cleveland won for the 12th time in 13 games and handed shorthanded New Jersey its 11th loss in 12 outings.

The Cavs, 18-1 in their last 19 home games against the Nets, had no impressive offensive totals, but placed nine players in double figures.

Craig Ehlo led Cleveland with 16 points. Brad Daugherty was next with 14 points and 14 rebounds, followed by Gerald Wilkins and Terrell Brandon with 13 points each. Derrick Coleman had 31 points and 10 rebounds for New

The Nets, with Kenny Anderson out with a broken wrist and center Chris Dudley sidelined with a broken foot, made their situation impossible by getting into early foul trouble. Anderson's replacement, Rumeal Robinson, picked up three fouls in the first three minutes, and center Sam Bowie left with two fouls with five minutes left in the first quarter.

Cleveland took the lead for good with a 10-0 run for a 24-18 lead. The Cavs led 68-47 at halftime, matching a team playoff record for points in a

Herd to play home finale

Hereford will play its last home baseball game of the year Saturday when the Randall Raiders come to Whiteface Field for a 1 p.m. game.

With everyone having two games to go on the District 1-4A schedule, nothing has been cleared up in the playoff race. After Saturday, the situation may be clearer: Randall and Borger, both 6-2 in district, can clinch playoff berths with wins.

Hereford, Dumas and Pampa all are tied for third at 4-4. Dumas will try to stay alive against Borger, while Pampa gets winless Caprock (0-8) Saturday.

Hereford needs to win both of its remaining games--they also play Thursday at Borger--to have a chance at the playoffs. In addition, either Randall or Borger has to lose both its games.

The National League won a record 11 straight All-Star Games from 1972 to 1982.

The Baltimore Orioles won the first three American League championship series in 1969-71.

Prairie Bayou favored in Kentucky Derby

Bayou is the Kentucky Derby favorite, and trainer Tom Bohannan can rest easy now, even if his horse can't.

"I've got peace of mind just knowing we're in the main gate, but I'm sure Prairie Bayou doesn't know the difference," Bohannan said.

Prairie Bayou, the Blue Grass winner and only horse in the field coming into the Derby off consecutive victories, was one of 19 entered Thursday and drew the No. 5 post position. Churchill Downs oddsmaker Mike Battaglia set the early line on Prairie Bayou at 5-2.

The second favorite was Santa Anita Derby winner Personal Hope at 7-2 and breaking from the No. 7 hole, and Wood Memorial winner Storm Tower was made the 9-2 third choice, despite drawing the rail.

The main gate holds the first 14 horses in the field, while the rest break from an auxiliary gate..

Battaglia said he makes the line before the post positions are drawn, then adjusts, if necessary. Because Storm Tower is a frontrunner, however, he said he did not change the line.

Asked the real importance of post position in the Derby, Bohannan said: "I don't know. You have to ask the people who don't run well after the race."

Byington gave Ags something to remember

By CHAREAN WILLIAMS Bryan-College Station Eagle

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - By now, four years later, 70,000 people were there to witness it. Forget the fact that Olsen Field's seating capacity is 5,053. It was one of the greatest moments in Texas A&M sports history and every Aggie was there, in spirit if not in body. Billy Pickard has been at A&M forever. If it happened, the assistant athletic director in charge of training, equipment and facilities really was

He rates a back-to-back perfor-

A&M lore.

'After running for 240 yards in a scrimmage Friday night, he got in his car and went to the Texas Relays where he won the 100, beating the fastest guy in college track," Pickard said. "Now the number of yards could be exaggerated. I imagine as time goes on, I've added to it. But just the pounding he took on Friday to be able to do what he did Saturday was amazing."

After further review, Pickard did pad Dickey's yardage a little. Dickey went 65 yards on the first play from mance by Bryan-native Curtis Dickey scrimmage and ended with 161 on 12 in 1978 as the most phenomenal in carries (13.4 average). The next day, Dickey ran a 10.22 to beat Olympic gold medal winner Johnny Jones and TCU great Bill Collins in winning the invitational 100-meter dash at the Texas Relays.

> In Pickard's "Believe It or Not," Big John Byington's feat against the Texas Longhorns closely follows Dickey, and Pickard is the authority of all authorities.

While few remember Dickey's achievement, no Aggie can forget Byington's deed against the hated Horns.

Byington homered in the bottom of the ninth twice to lift the nation's

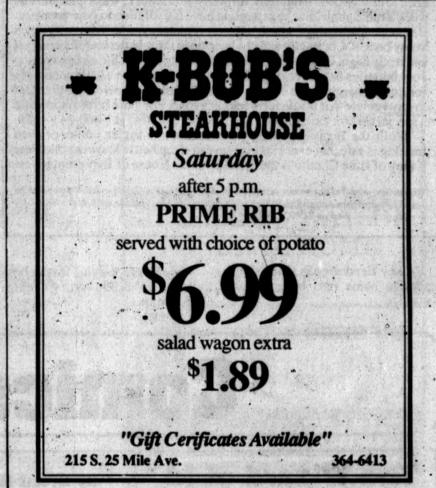

No. 1 team to a sweep of Texas in a doubleheader in College Station. I know, it sounds too good to be true. But it happened just like that. Really, it did. "It was just such an unbelievable scenario," A&M coach Mark Johnson said earlier this week. "It will probably never be repeated."

The odds of it happening once were somewhere between slim and

The results of the April Big Bass Tournament on Lake Baylor read like a re-run of the April Lake Greenbelt Fun Tournament. That's right, Pampa's Gary Carter repeated his winning ways and took home the prize money totaling $850 for catching a nice 7.44-pound largemouth bass. Gary's magic bait was a half-ounce black jig made by Dick's Pro Style lures and a black/blue pork frog trailer by Uncle Josh.

Second place, again, went to Canyon's Jim Simpson, who won $533. He became the first angler to win the hourly big bass award three times during one tournament. His biggest bass tipped the scales at 6.97 pounds and was fooled by an All-Terrain jig with an Uncle Josh pork frog trailer. He fished the brush on the windiest points.

Third place honors went to SPS's Eddie Bills, who resides at Lake Tanglewood near Palo Duro Canyon. Other hourly winners included Amarillo's Jacky Ivy, Jack Richardson and Memphis' Danny Murdock.

Tournaments open to the public in May include: May 8--Lake Baylor Big Bass

May 15--Saturday Fun Tournament at Lake Greenbelt

May 20--Thursday evening Fun Tournament at Lake Meredith.

Question of the week--Can any other anglers step up and break the one-two tradition that Gary Carter and Jim Simpson have established?
These anglers are good guys, and both are experts with a wide variety of lures. Best of all, at the weigh-ins, they share secrets of their success with the other tournament anglers.

Ready to go fishing, only to discover that the batteries on your boat need to be charged? Brad Carr, formerly of Lubbock, was a guest on last week's radio show, and he just might have the solution to your problem. He recommends using a Marek's Battery Maintainer, which can be installed in any boat, RV, or tractor and can keep up to three batteries fully charged and ready to go. Other uses include prolonging battery life and protecting your batteries from freezing. Not designed to replace a battery charger for quick charging, the Marek Battery Maintainer solves the problem in any vehicle that is idle for weeks at a time. For more information and a special deal for the readers of this column, call Brad at 1-800-643-4659.

Brewers AAA team. "It's just something that is too dramatic. The whole scenario, UT, bottom of the ninth I know the Lord worked those details out."

It has been said that Lord works in mysterious ways. One thing is for sure, He got to see one heckuva performance on April 16, 1989.

In the first game of a doubleheader that lasted five hours, Texas brought on ace Kirk Dressendorfer to face Byington in a classic bases-loaded confrontation. Dressendorfer, who threw 122 pitches in a four-hit victory over the Aggies the night before, lasted just one pitch. Byington sent the fastball on the inside corner over the left-field fence. It capped an incredible nine-run ninth inning that shocked the Longhorns 18-14.

If that was "The Natural," Byington's second game feat was
"The Supernatural."

Locked in a 5-5 tie with one out and two runners on in the bottom of the ninth, the Longhorns considered intentionally walking Byington. But who thought Byington could do it twice?

Texas pitcher Chris Gaskill tried to pitch around Byington instead. Gaskill's first pitch, however, got a little too much in the strike zone and Byington slapped it out to give A&M an 8-5 win and its first series victory

"I was just hooked up," Byington said. "Sometimes you get in those times in the season when you're just locked in and nothing can distract you. Everything is quiet when you're batting. There are 10,000 people yelling, but all you hear and see is the baseball."

The year after it happened, Byington watched his performance over and over, probably trying to convince himself it really happened. But he hasn't seen the shots heard 'round A&M in two ars now. Nobody, however, has forgotten.

Where's Edgewood spending tax money?

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Edgewood School District's deputy superintendent and top money-cruncher recalls with amazement a telephone attended class in portable buildings. conversation he had with a Dallas woman not long ago.

A second the lattended class in portable buildings. Next fall, the youngsters will have a new gymnasium for physical

What is Edgewood doing with all the new state money it's getting? the woman asked Earle Bolton.

'She had heard that all the top administrators got a car ... She said she had gotten this information from a legislator," Bolton said. "If you repeat a lie long enough, it appears Edgewood officials realize Texans are talking, and not always positively, about the San Antonio district that led the state's property-poor schools in court battles to equalize education funding. But Edgewood contends the state's recent reforms are nécessary and long overdue.

Conditions have improved the past two years in Edgewood. All its government codes. schools are air-conditioned now. Older schools are being renovated. Teachers have received slight salary boosts. And the district is paying a bigger share of its employees' insurance premiums.

Edgewood's overall budget has increased from approximately $60 million in 1989-90 to about $81 million this school year.

The increase comes mostly from additional money the state has pumped into education and somewhat from the new county education districts, or CEDs, created by the state to redistribute property tax money.

Proposition One on Saturday's state election ballot - dubbed the 'Robin Hood" plan by some - seeks to make those county taxing districts constitutional.

Total per-pupil spending in Edgewood, which has 14,100 students, has fluctuated the past three years between $4,660 and $5,202. It is $4,746 this school year, including operating and instructional expenses.

The state per-pupil average is around $4,000, according to the Texas Education Agency.

Edgewood officials say despite the new spending, they haven't seen a significant improvement in students' state test scores. They insist that kind of turnaround could take years.

At issue in the legal battles Edgewood waged was property taxation. Poor districts contended because property values in their districts are low they must tax at higher rates to generate the same amount of money as rich districts.

Currently, Edgewood taxpayers are assessed 1.57 per $100 property valuation. That includes taxation for the county education district, which encompasses 13 school districts.

Edgewood's total taxable property is $456 million. The predominantly Hispanic of other federal money from employees through the summer. programs such as Chapter I, migrant education, bilingual education and the $13 million.

One result of new state money is the nearly completed $3.5 million expansion at Lyndon B. Johnson Elementary School, where more than half the school's 513 pupils have education and fine arts classes and 20 new, permanent classrooms. They won't have to leave their classroom buildings to use a restroom or water fountain, something that Principal Dorothy Lee Collins said will be especially helpful during rainy weather...

"It hasn't really been a problem, except for the flooding (along walkways) every now and then," Ms. Collins said.

Edgewood also is about to use a $27.75 million local bond issue to convert junior high schools into middle schools and to renovate buildings to meet local and federal

Most junior highs currently have gyms that are not full-sized, Bolton said. And the district has one football stadium with no field houses.

"Our athletics department is quite amusing," Bolton said.

Demetrio Rodriguez, who launched the school finance battle in 1968 when his children attended Edgewood, is now 67 and has grandchildren in an Edgewood elementary school he says needs renovation.

"We have seen a few changes at school," said Rodriguez, explaining that teachers have more supplies and computers have kept pace with the times. But Rodriguez would like to see better school buildings and higher teacher and administrator salaries.

"They (critics) always say money is not the problem," Rodriguez said. "If money is not the problem, why are they fighting us so much?"

Though new buildings are nice, Principal Collins said, academics and student attitude count the most. Like Rodriguez, she would like Edgewood to be able to pay better salaries and keep good educators.

"We always say we're the training ground for the teachers looking for higher salaries," she said. "We're tired of losing good teachers."

Edgewood's starting teacher salary is $20,000, up from $19,000 two years go. That compares with $20,840 across town in the more wealthy Alamo Heights School District and $22,250 in the city's North East School District. In all the districts, the pay increases from that starting base as a teacher earns steps on the now-famous "career ladder.

Edgewood has used its new state money mainly for one-time capital improvements rather than permanent costs like salaries in case the state money is withdrawn, Bolton said.

"Frankly, when we first got the money we hardly could believe it," Bolton said. "We were just cautious, I guess, having been stung as many drywall joint and patching compounds was an enjoyable experience.

Hints for drywall sanding

Most do-it-yourselfers know the process is a rather tedious and oftentimes messy chore. But there are a couple of ways to make the job a little easier.

One method is to try "wet" sanding, To wet sand, use a damp sponge instead of sandpaper to smooth the finish. A high density, small-celled polyurethane sponge moistened with lukewarm water works best. For touchups a smooth soft cloth will do.

Unlike dry sanding, wet sanding creates no dust. You won't need to wear a mask, use a dust collector and you won't have to clean up fine powder off the floor and nearby

Nobody ever claimed that sanding furnishings after the job is completed. Additionally, wet sanding will not scuff or otherwise damage wallboard face paper.

Unfortunately, wet sanding is usually a bit more time-consuming than conventional sanding and is usually only practical for small repairs. For larger repairs and for new wallboard installations, try using one of the new lightweight ready-mixed

- LANDFILL
- WATER • SEWER
- TAXES
- · POOL
- ETC, ETC.

We all gripe about these problems and their solutions but, why would anyone want to get mixed up in this mess?

I decided I wanted to find out what is really going on in our city, and what better way than just to jump right in the middle of it.

Can I find any better answers? I don't know. But I can apply my experience and vote my opinions on how to run our city as efficiently as possible.

With your support, I will do my best to see that Hereford is headed in the right direction.
