Rehearsing for program

Members of the Chamber Singers are preparing for their spring concert, set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Front, from left, are singers Joan Bookout and Denise Teel and accompanist Dee Ann Trotter. In background, Bera Boyd, a charter member of the group, shows Mike Carr the dress worn by women singers when the group was organized.

Community is beneficiary of Chamber Singers' commitment

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

They sing because they love to sing...and to share their love with others in their community, and, indeed, other parts of the world.

"They" are the Hereford Chamber Singers, and their next sharing time will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Paying tribute to the beginnings of the Chamber Singers, the program will emphasize the decade in which the musical aggregation was organized.

The program, "70s Review," will feature a variety of music, ranging from country to popular to sacred songs. Besides singing by the entire ensemble, solos and small groups of two, three and six vocalists will perform.

For 19 years, Chamber Singers has been an important segment of the community, not only as an artistic element but as ambassador to other lands.

Since seven men and women hatched the idea in 1974, the ensemble has performed in such diverse locales as Palo Duro Canyon and Rumania, Dawn (Texas) and Australia. Wherever they go, the singers gain new friends for Hereford.

Chamber Singers is self-supporting, in that no funding comes from any governmental or civic sources, although the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is a sponsor.

There is no admission charge for concerts and donations are not turned down.

Eight of the charter members of Chamber Singers still perform in the group, testimony to the commitment of the group. And, it's commitment that keeps the ensemble alive.

They gather every Sunday evening, after services in local churches have concluded. Under direction of Jan Walser, they rehearse the music for the next program on their agenda.

Walser assumed direction of Chamber Singers three years ago, replacing Bill Devers, who had led the group since its founding.

Both Walser and Devers were charter members, along with Bera and Bobby Boyd, Duffy McBrayer, Susan Shaw, Linda Gilbert and Trow Mims.

The singers come from all walks of life...educators, homemakers, agri-business, physicians, postal worker, law enforcement and many other career paths. Their common interest is music although several have little, if any, formal musical training.

As happens in any volunteer organization, there are times when frustration sneaks into the picture, especially if some singers are unable to rehearse regularly.

The name of the game is commitment, said Bera Boyd, who has been on the scene since day one.

There are no rules about missing rehearsal, she continued, but if a singer seems to be taking the commitment lightly, members of the group may take the singer aside and make suggestions.

Performing with Chamber Singers is not a "wannabe" situation. Auditions are required.

"We are interested in how voices blend," said Bera Boyd, adding that usually auditions are conducted in a quartet setting.

Accompanist for Chamber Singers is Dee Ann Trotter who is in her second year with that responsibility. Music chairman is Duffy McBrayer and Amy Gilliland is chairman of production. Jerry Jansa Serves as president.

A list of the group's performances since 1974 fills five pages. While the trips out of the country have been high points, the early days of Chamber Singers furnished a special kind of honor.

Not yet a year old, Chamber Singers journeyed to San Antonio in 1975 to perform before the Texas Choral Directors Association annual convention.

The Hereford group carried the U.S. Bicentennial message around the Panhandle in 1976 with "Americana," a musical program saluting the nation's birthday.

Through the auspices of a publisher, the Chamber Singers traveled to Rumania in 1977. Each singer paid personal travel expenses for the two-week trip. When the group went to Australia for World Expo '88, individuals provided personal expenses.

To do the things they've done, the singers have had to exercise commitment of financial resources as well as commitment of time.

Beneficiaries of Chamber Singers' efforts is the community. Residents will have another opportunity to enjoy the music Saturday evening.

Clinton near decision on action in Bosnia

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is nearing a decision on stronger steps to quell the violence in war-torn Bosnia, even as he voices hope that talk about possible military action has itself had an impact.

Clinton was bringing together top foreign policy advisers Saturday for a final round of consultations before dispatching Secretary of State Warren Christopher to Western Europe and Russia to rally support for whatever he decides.

The president said Friday he wanted to "get an updated report on the situation and...ask a lot of questions" in the meeting with Christopher, Defense Secretary Les Aspin, national security adviser Anthony Lake and other top aides.

"I may want to make another round of phone calls after we meet with the principals," Clinton said. "And I expect then we'll be pretty close to deciding where we are."

The main options under consideration were lifting an arms embargo against outgunned Bosnian Muslims, have approved the peace plan advanced by the United Nations and the European Community.

With pressure for stronger action mounting, a bipartisan group of 16 senators Friday sent a letter to Clinton expressing support both for multinational air strikes against Serbian artillery sites and lifting of the arms embargo.

But support for such action is far from unanimous in Congress, and U.S. allies in Europe have particular concerns about the impact of such a strategy.

Clinton has been wrestling with the Bosnian issue ever since he took office, calling it by far the most difficult foreign policy question he faces. His goals are to bring a swift end to the ethnic violence there and at the same time foster prospects for long-term peace.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher on Friday called the Serbs "clearly the main impediment to peace" and accused them of waiting until they could cause more suffering before agreeing to participate in a new round of peace talks this weekend in Athens, Greece.

The two other warring factions in Bosnia, ethnic Croats and Muslims, have approved the peace plan advanced by the United Nations and the European Community.

With pressure for stronger action mounting, a bipartisan group of 16 beneficiaries of Chamber Singers' efforts is the community. Residents will have another opportunity to enjoy the music Saturday evening.

Threats exist that could change forecasts

U.S., partners predicting brighter world economy

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and its major trading partners are predicting brighter days ahead for the world economy, while also stressing there are threats that could keep their forecasts from becoming reality.

World finance officials were wrapping up three days of discussions today at the spring meetings of the 177-nation International Monetary Fund and its sister organization, the World Bank.

The theme of the meetings was that increased policy coordination among the world's superpowers would lead to stronger growth in the future.

The IMF's policy-setting interim committee issued a statement late Friday proclaiming that intensified economic cooperation would be able to "bolster confidence and strengthen prospects for a durable, non-inflationary world expansion."

But the panel stressed that because of worse-than-expected recessions in Japan and Germany, the better growth was not likely to be evident until next year.

"With economic stagnation or decline in most of Europe, only tentative indications of an upturn in Japan and quite gradual recovery in the United States, 1993 will be the third straight year of generally poor growth for the industrial countries," the committee's communique said.

The IMF is forecasting that the world economy will grow at a modest 2.2 percent annual rate this year, up slightly from a 1.8 percent increase in 1992, but that the global economy should expand at a respectable 3.4 percent rate in 1994.

The finance officials cited several hopeful developments, from efforts by the Clinton administration to trim U.S. budget deficits to interest rate cuts in Germany and a new economic stimulus package put forward by Japan.

During their meetings, finance ministers praised each other for these actions while warning that follow-up would be needed to translate the first steps into higher economic growth.

"We can do better. We must do better," Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen urged his counterparts. "The disappointments of the past must not be repeated."

Bentsen noted that weakness in Europe and Japan had cut into American exports, sales and shaved a full percentage point off U.S. economic growth in the first three months of the year. The U.S. economy expanded at a disappointing 1.8 percent annual rate from January to March.

The administration is concerned that the severe recessions in Germany and Japan, if not halted, could cause the fledgling U.S. recovery to falter for a third time.

British Chancellor of the Exchequer Norman Lamont was among those calling for Germany to go further in cutting interest rates, "if a deep recession is to be avoided on the continent of Europe."

German Finance Minister Theo Waigel conceded that the recession had been more severe than expected and would mean that the recovery was not now expected to occur until sometime after midyear.

Japanese Finance Minister Yoshiro

Hayashi was slightly more upbeat about prospects in his country, which has also been undergoing its worst recession in decades. He said the $116 billion stimulus package his government recently put forward should help ensure an economic recovery in the second half of this year.

The IMF annual meetings also focused on completing work on a $28.4 billion aid package for Russia.

Bentsen and other finance ministers warned that Russian President Boris Yeltsin must move quickly, now that he has won a sizable referendum victory, to push economic reforms and control runaway inflation.

IMF Managing Director Michel Camdessus said negotiations would soon begin with Russia on an initial $1.5 billion IMF loan and that Russia could receive these funds as early as June.

Signs 'ominous' for increase in terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) - The State Department says it sees "ominous signs" that international terrorism is escalating despite the fact it declined last year to its lowest level in 17 years.

In its sweeping annual report on terrorism around the world, the department cited the World Trade Center bombing in New York, the killing of two CIA employees in a Washington suburb and several airplane hijackings - all occurring this year - as evidence of a possible rise.

Terrorist incidents fell 35 percent last year, to 361 from 561 a year earlier, according to the report released Friday. Fewer U.S. casualties occurred than in any year since the United States began reporting statistics in 1968.

U.S. citizens and property remained the main target of international terrorists, but only two Americans were killed and one injured in 1992.

The report does not give precise figures for each previous year, but an accompanying graph showed that 1992 incidents were the lowest since 1975, when they were below 360. They rose erratically for several years, exceeding 600 per year between 1985 and 1988.

A U.S. official who briefed reporters on the report under ground rules shielding his identity said some possible terrorist acts have not been fully identified as such and were not included in the count.

He reiterated the report's conclusion that the downward trend may not continue this year.

"While we see no reason for hysteria, there is no room for complacency either," the official said.

Six countries remain on the list of states considered sponsors of terrorism, which makes them subject to U.S. trade restrictions: Iran, Iraq, Cuba, Libya, North Korea and Syria. Officials have said Pakistan and Sudan are being watched closely for possible inclusion on the list.

The most incidents last year were in Latin America, and the worst attack of the year was the March 17 truck bomb blamed on the Islamic Jihad that destroyed the Israeli embassy in Buenos Aires, Argentina, killing 29 people and wounding 242.

The report called Iran "the deadliest state sponsor" and said it has "achieved a worldwide reach." Iraq was listed second, but other countries on the list have been blamed for little activity during the year.

However, the report said: "None of the traditional sponsors of terrorism has completely abandoned the terrorist option, especially against dissidents, nor severed ties to terrorist surrogates."

Italian POWs to return here for dedication of chapel landmark

A group of 44 Italians, including 23 ex-prisoners of war, are scheduled to attend a dedication ceremony at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 8, at the POW Chapel a few miles southwest of Castro County in northern Castro County.

All interested persons are invited to attend the ceremony next Saturday. Former Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher will be one of the speakers.

The chapel, dating from World War II, has received Texas Historic Landmark Distinction through the efforts of the Castro County Historical Commission. Several who were prisoners here and at other camps will be among the guests, along with family members.

The Italians are expected to arrive in Amarillo Friday. They will attend the ceremony at the chapel Saturday, then travel to Dimmit for a community-wide barbecue, about 5:30 or 6 p.m., at First United Methodist Church. Interested persons can attend both events, and tickets for the barbecue will be sold at the door for $5 a person. Proceeds will go to the maintenance and upkeep of the chapel. The historical commission will provide tickets for Italian and American POWs.

The visitors will attend the 9 a.m. mass at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Uvalde Sunday, followed by a reception with coffee and donuts being served. The church has murals painted by some of the prisoners.

Lunch will be served for the visitors at the Harvey Artho farm at Wildwood Sunday, then the Italians will tour the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo and meet with the Panhandle Chapter of American POWs.

Vick said the Italians plan to bring documents and artifacts for display in the POW Archive Room at the Castro County Historical Museum. The room already has some books and paintings. Vick said the museum is also preparing a display depicting what a typical POW barracks room might have looked like.

Vick said an author of one book on the POW camp, Fernando Togni, is scheduled to be here. "This has been very rewarding work for me and the commission. We must have better communications to have peace in the world."

She said most of the visiting Italians will leave for California Monday, where they have also scheduled a trip to Hawaii.

For additional information, Ms. Vick can be reached at 647-3154.

Local Roundup

Hospital board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors will hold a special meeting at 7 p.m. Monday. The session will be held in the hospital board room. The only order of business will be to canvass the hospital district board election.

TAAS test upcoming

The fourth, eighth and tenth grade students -- and eleventh and twelfth graders who have not yet passed -- are scheduled to take the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test on Tuesday for reading and Wednesday for math. The TAAS test measures reading and math skills. All Texas public school students must meet minimum standards on the exit level test before they are eligible to receive a high school diploma. Parents are asked to help their children be ready for the test by making sure they eat a good breakfast to start the day and have plenty of rest the night before the test. For information, call your child's principal or counselor.

Child board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Child Welfare Board will meet in regular session at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 200 of the county courthouse. Among items to be considered will be committee reports, accepting the resignation of a board member, discussion of foster parent recognition and a discussion by Barbara Sims of the Texas Department of Human Services on the purpose of the board and the need for foster parents.

Senior parents to meet

Senior parents of Hereford High School students will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Hereford Community Center ballroom. Plans for the Senior Prom will be finalized and parent/chaperon duties will be discussed. All senior parents are urged to attend.

H.S. blood drive set

The Hereford High School National Honor Society will sponsor a blood drive on Wednesday in the school auditorium. It will be held from 2:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. The drive will be conducted by Coffee Memorial Blood Center of Amarillo.

Immunization schedule noted

The Texas Department of Health has announced the May schedule for its immunization clinic in Hereford. Vaccines against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps and HIB (hemophilus influenzae type B) will be offered. Charges are based on family income and size and ability to pay. Funds are used to help keep the clinic open. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. -- unless otherwise noted -- in the Health Department offices, 205 W. Fourth St., Suite B. The following are the dates the shots will be given: Wednesday from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.; then Thursday, May 13, May 20 and May 27.

Commission sets meeting to discuss calendar, vote

The Hereford City Commission will meet in regular session on Monday in the Commission Chamber inside City Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m. with a canvassing of election results from Saturday's city election. The session is open to all interested citizens.

Also on the agenda are five public hearings, one for a zone change request, three to consider and approve condemnation proceedings and one to consider and approve paving assessments for Knight and Lafayette streets.

In regular hearings, commissioners will consider and approve preliminary plans for Park Pavilion; award bids for two new GVWR trucks for the Health Department; and consider an ordinance changing the city's fiscal year to Oct. 1 through Sept. 30.

The commission will have a closed session during the meeting, during which time they will consider the appointment of a city health officer and appointment to the City of Hereford Board of Electrical Examiners.

Following the closed session, commissioners will vote publicly on both actions.

Persons with disabilities who need special assistance for the meeting may contact City Secretary Terri Johnson at 364-2123 at least 24 hours in advance of the meeting.

HJH Roundup

To read. It is the most basic of basic skills. It is the key to success in a growing number of jobs. It opens the door to other times...and to other worlds.

The seventh grade science students, after studying, (and reading), about the human body, are now constructing life-size models exhibiting the body systems. Talk about giant paper dolls!

Several students attended the school board meeting on Tuesday. Candice Campbell, President of the HJH Junior Historians Chapter, reported to the board about the chapter activities and Andrew Carr reported on the History Fair projects and the upcoming fair in Austin. Jim Moudy and Tracy Forester reported on their PACE class activities. Other students that attended the meeting were Heath Henderson, Ryan Manning, Andrew DelToro, Nicole McWhorter, Holly Weishaar, Rebecca Gutierrez, Deanna Redelsperger, Leslie Poarch, Tyson Foerster, and Kris Friel.

Eighth graders will be taking another TAAS test this week. Other than chapter tests and end-of-the-year tests, this will be the last of the tests for the year...and both teachers and students rejoice in that!!!

Plans are being made for May 13 activities which will include yearbook signing day, awards assembly and an Open House. We'll have more information on this important day next week, but do go ahead and mark that date on your calendar.

Marisol Garcia's poem, "Night Sounds", was accepted for publication for the American Anthology of Student Poetry. Several students submitted work for publication last fall after completing a unit on poetry in Mrs. Buckley's eighth grade English class.

In case you missed it, two of our finest teachers have announced their plans for retirement. Pat Montgomery, eighth English and Norma Jean Gripp, our librarian, will be enjoying the world of travel, reading, or basically doing just what they wish. They will certainly be missed but we wish them the very best and the happiest of times.

At a time when 90 percent of all occupations require some reading and writing, at least 45 million adults lack the skills necessary to compete.

It's never too early to share the joy of reading with a child. And it's never too late for adults to learn to read.

Columbia's crewman try medical tests

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)

A German astronaut aboard Columbia was injected with nearly a half-gallon of saline solution in a pioneering experiment intended to fight dehydration in space.

The shuttle's astronaut-doctor, Bernard Harris Jr., injected crewmate Hans Schlegel with the solution Friday night. The three other astronauts assigned to Spacelab are to be infused with up to a half-gallon each Saturday and Sunday.

That's about the amount of body fluid each man has lost since the German-sponsored research mission began Monday.

Space travelers typically suffer from puffy faces and "chicken legs" - where the legs shrink slightly from the lowest part up - because of the upward shift of body fluids in weightlessness.

That shift leads to dehydration in orbit as the body senses extra fluid in the chest and activates hormones to reduce the amount of blood and other body fluids. When astronauts re-encounter gravity at the end of a flight, they can suffer from plummeting blood pressure and dizziness.

The saline infusions are an attempt to prevent this, or at least ease the symptoms.

The infusion equipment is similar to that used in ambulances, said Dr. Gunnar Blomqvist, director of the space medicine laboratory at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas.

"There may be an accident (in space) where you will need to infuse very large fluid volumes very quickly, and this will do it," he said.

Astronauts usually drink lots of salt water a day or so before landing to prevent dehydration and dizziness upon touchdown.

Here are excerpts from Saturday's Hereford Police Department activity report:

-Eight traffic citations were issued and one minor accident investigated.

-Investigated three domestic violence assaults--in the 300 block of Star, on Hereford Calle, and the 200 block of Ave. C. One 27-year-old male was arrested.

-Theft of money orders reported in the 1300 block of East 1st.

-A 62-year-old man was arrested for DWI; a 23-year-old man for evading and resisting arrest; a 28-year-old woman for evading and resisting arrest and for several warrants.

-Damage estimated at $2,000 in criminal mischief, trespass in the 300 block of Ave. K.

-A beer theft, with value of $3.89, was reported in the 500 block of Ave. H; burglary from a vehicle in the 400 block of Ave. F (loss estimated at $200).

-An assault was reported in the 300 block of N. 25 Mile Avenue. An assault by threat reported in 100 block of Ave. F.

-Disorderly conduct reported in 400 block of Ave. H.

The Chamber and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce would like to express appreciation to the candidates who took the interest and made the commitment to run for office in Saturday's elections. They are to be commended for their dedication for wanting to work for our community.

It was evident by listening to each candidate at the recent "Meet the Candidate" forum, sponsored by the Chamber and the Hereford Educators Association, that they have a sincere desire to work for the betterment of our area. The Chamber challenges all our residents to work together in an effort to help make our community the best it can be. Everyone can be ambassadors for Hereford by helping share our town with others.

Side notes: Congratulations to Greg Coplen on his impressive performance in San Angelo as he captured the regional title in the 1-4A tennis tournament. We wish him the best at state. We are also very proud of our Hereford High girls' golf team on capturing the Region 1-4A golf title. Great job in representing Hustlin' Hereford!

Welcome to Trans-Pak Corporation of Garden City, Kan., on its choice to locate its newest facility in Hereford. The company began operations this past week in the former sewing factory building at 150 Pine St. on east Hwy. 60.

The company produces corrugated spacers known as cool packs for air circulation used in the transportation of boxed beef. Trans-Pak will initially employ about 10 people. We're glad to have them as a part of our community.

Around town: The all-new Hereford Care Center on Kingwood is in full operation this week as they begin accepting residents and create more than 65 new jobs... The new Ford dealer will be opening very soon with more than 20 new jobs... The new expansions and new retail outlets at North Gate Plaza and the new Taylor & Sons grocery on N. Hwy. 385 are expecting to create more than 40 new jobs. All the activity certainly shows that things are really happening in Hereford.

Basketball is really happening all over town this weekend as 52 teams from more than 30 Texas and New Mexico cities are in town for the three-day Cuby Kitchens Classic. If you want to see some exciting basketball games, drop by the gyms at Stanton, Hereford Junior High and Hereford High School. Tourney plan will continue through Sunday. We're glad to welcome everyone to Hereford.

There's lots of activity in Hereford and it's great to see all the growth, thanks to everyone for helping make things happen.

Remember, Hereford Means Business!

Concealed handgun bill could be decided by voters next year

AUSTIN (AP) - An attempt to keep alive legislation that would allow Texans to carry concealed handguns moved ahead Friday, when a House committee endorsed putting the issue to voters next year.

The panel approved the proposal 6-0, with Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston, present but not voting. It would require approval of two-thirds of the House and Senate to go on the November 1994 ballot.

The governor does not have veto power over proposed constitutional amendments, which go directly to voters. Lawmakers also can override a veto with a two-thirds vote, but some suggested this route would be more palatable to some.

Sponsors put forward the idea of validating the concealed-handgun legislation through a popular vote after Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said the Senate wouldn't consider the bill, which already had passed the House, because of the veto threat. Richards said she would veto the measure because she believed it would increase violence on Texas streets.

The legislation would allow Texans who are at least 21 to apply for a license to carry a gun after undergoing a safety course and passing an exam.

Before the Public Safety Committee voted on the proposed constitutional amendment, Chairman Keith Oakley cited reports of an Austin cab driver being shot, and of a Miami cab driver shooting an assailant. Florida has a law allowing concealed weapons.

Oakley, D-Terrell, quoted the cab driver as saying Florida was a safer place to live because of concealed-handgun legislation, and asked Carter whether he was trying to do the same for Texas.

But Edwards interjected. "Safer for who? The guy that had the gun, not the one who got shot."

Carter said his bill would make Texas safer because it would provide for law-abiding citizens to be trained and licensed to carry concealed guns.

"All this says is that the people of Texas should have the right to vote on an issue as important as protecting themselves," he said. Edwards said, "No it doesn't. It says we're going around the governor."

Bullock has said he will wait to see how the House acts on the proposed amendment before making a decision in the Senate. As proposed, the ballot wording would be, "The constitutional amendment to give effect to House Bill 1776, which authorizes the issuance of a license to carry a handgun."

WTRT seeks lost members

Capital Credit money that is due some past and present members of West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative may ultimately go to the state if the cooperative cannot locate its rightful recipients.

WTRT personnel are currently trying to find a lengthy list of members for whom the correct addresses are unavailable.

Capital credit checks totalling more than $96,000, representing 100 percent of the capital credits allocated for 1970, were paid by WTRT in March.

Unfortunately, some of those checks ended up in a "returned" file at the cooperative, along with capital credit checks from 1966 through 1969.

If you are one of these members or think you may qualify or know someone who does -- contact the WTRT business office.

City Update

By CHESTER NOLEN
Hereford City Manager

First, let me say thanks to all who participated in the Beautification Alliance cleanup campaign. It was a success and it sure benefits the City.

There has been a lot of confusion concerning the City's landfill operations. The following is as the City is planning to operate, commencing Oct. 8, 1993:

1) The City does plan to close its Type I Landfill at the present site.

2) That Type I site will be converted to a Type IV Landfill.

3) The Type IV Landfill will receive building and construction, limbs, brush, lawn clippings and other inert material. No household waste or burn barrels will be accepted.

Bentsen setting up panel to investigate tragedy in Waco

HOUSTON (AP) - Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen is setting up an independent panel to investigate the Feb. 28 raid that led to the deadly fire at the cult compound outside Waco, two newspapers reported today.

Los Angeles Police Chief Willie L. Williams, former Watergate prosecutor Henry Ruth and University of Southern California journalism professor Edwin O. Guthman were selected to oversee the investigation, The New York Times and The Washington Post said in today's editions.

Assistant Treasury Secretary Ronald K. Noble will head the investigation.

He told the Post that senior Treasury officials initially refused to approve the raid by Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents, only to relent hours later after being told it represented the last chance to catch the cult members unprepared.

Bentsen was expected to announce the appointments Monday. The bureau comes under the Treasury Department.

Texas authorities, meanwhile, still were trying to determine the exact number of Branch Davidians inside the fortress when it burned down.

Cult leader David Koresh had said 95 people were inside, and nine survived the April 19 blaze. That would make the death toll 86, but investigators have pulled only 72 bodies from the rubble. Officials said it's possible some bodies were incinerated and will never be recovered.

In Waco, however, a county official said Koresh's tally of children apparently was correct.

"I would say that we have approximately 17 children accounted for ... That would be one time that (Koresh) told the truth because he told so many stories that have proved to be stories," said James Collier, the McLennan County justice of the peace.

Investigators have announced the names of five of the victims. Two other identities are known, but will not be released until their families are notified, said Justice of the Peace David Pareya.

Like the first three victims, the latest show evidence of being shot.

Stephen Henry, 26, of Manchester, England, died from a "near contact gunshot wound of forehead," plus smoke and carbon monoxide inhalation, and extensive charring, Pareya said.

Livingston Malcolm, 26, of Jamaica, was killed by smoke and carbon monoxide inhalation with extensive charring, Pareya said, adding that a gunshot wound was also possible.

Work at the site won't resume until early next week when investigators will try entering underground tunnels where four more bodies are, said Laureen Chernow, spokeswoman for the state Department of Public Safety, which is handling the cleanup.

Those four are believed to be victims of shootouts Feb. 28, when the federal agents raided the compound because of alleged firearms violations. Four agents died in the shooting that began the 51-day standoff.

Sri Lanka president killed by assassin

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) - President Ranasinghe Premadasa was assassinated today by a suicide bomber at a May Day parade. At least 10 other people were killed.

Premadasa, 68, was leading the parade when the assassin set off explosives strapped to his body. No details were immediately given.

The assassination occurs as the country is wracked by a Tamil separatist rebellion in the north and the east, and a week after a Sri Lankan opposition leader, Lalith Athulathmudali, was assassinated by a lone gunman.

Many people in Athulathmudali's party accused the government of killing him.

Two top police officials escorting the president and a close aide to Premadasa were among those killed. Several Cabinet ministers at the rally escaped unhurt, but at least 60 people were injured.

Authorities imposed a nationwide curfew.

The attack occurred at a parade organized by the governing United National Party in central Colombo.

The bomber's head was severed from his body and the street was splattered with blood. Thousands of people participating in the march fled after the blast and the street was littered with shoes.

Anthony Fernando, the president's spokesman, confirmed the deaths of Premadasa and 10 others.

6,000 have died in cholera epidemic

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Cholera has claimed more than 6,000 lives since it spread from Peru in 1991, but this week's outbreak in Mexico and others in the hemisphere show a Latin America still held hostage to the disease.

In the hillside slums of this metropolis of 17 million, fear ran high after at least four people died and 200 were reported stricken Thursday. Twenty other Mexicans have fallen ill in Tamaulipas, a state bordering Texas.

"The epidemic is continuing to spread ... and it doesn't really show any sign of slowing down," said Dr. Robert Tauxe of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta.

Cholera is the scourge of the '90s for many poor neighborhoods throughout Latin America. It has killed at least 6,323 people since it began spreading from Peru.

It has hit hard in Mexico City's Gustavo A. Madero borough, a jumble of cinderblock homes where burros negotiate pools of stagnant water and piles of trash on rutted streets.

"We're always boiling our water. It's just too dangerous," said a worried mother of five, Teresa Diaz Lopez, crossing a bridge over a murky green canal filled with rotting garbage.

Cholera is an acute disease that causes severe diarrhea and death from dehydration if not treated promptly. It once killed thousands every week in poor communities.

Spread through food or water contaminated by human waste, cholera now is treatable with antibiotics and by replacing lost body fluids and salts. It was nearly eradicated in the 1950s, but burst out again a few years ago.

The economic woes that lowered Latin American living standards during the 1980s is believed to have brought a resurgence through huge breakdowns in running water, sewage systems and other sanitation.

Already, 20 barrios in Mexico City have reported cases. Health department official Roberto Tapia says contamination is leaching into an aquifer feeding wells and streams.

"The cause was a break in a sewer pipe," he said.

In 1992 alone, 339,561 cases and 2,321 deaths were reported in 21 nations of the Western Hemisphere, the Atlanta center reported.

Health officials report at least two deaths in the latest outbreak in Gustavo A. Madero, but residents say more died.

"At least six," said Berta Jimenez Diaz, 31. "They aren't reporting more because the bodies were taken away quickly." One was a neighbor.

"This 10-year-old girl died right down the street, she was the first. Now my mom's in the hospital. ... Many got sick."

Residents said it was only after several deaths that officials sent mobile medical vans and doctors to the neighborhood, where medical care is a luxury.

"They started bringing us fresh water only Saturday and tanks to store it in," said Antonia Diaz, Berta's sister.

"Only yesterday the ambulances started showing up to take out the sick. It's terrible, my husband knows of a boy and a girl who died in the same family."

Dr. Sergio Ladron de Guevara, who manned a medical van, disputed charges the health teams were not doing enough. He said dozens of doctors were sent in promptly and that the epidemic was under control.

"There have been many, many cases of diarrhea reported, but most of those aren't cholera," he said. "Any suspicious cases are being sent immediately to the hospital."

Posters urging residents to boil water at least 10 minutes, particularly for infant formulas, are up on walls.

"We are also handing out leaflets warning people," said social worker Patricia Perez, as she and 30 colleagues went block by block,

"Do you want a strong and stable local economy?"

The answer to having one is not complicated. What it takes is a thing called local investment and reinvestment - your willingness to keep your savings dollars invested locally, and our willingness to reinvest your savings dollars in backing our High Plains economy. An excellent formula for economic health.

Hereford and the High Plains were built on local money, local money reinvested in our community by local financial institutions like ours, and local money provided by the savings deposits of people like you. Money that did not flow back into our community from the Wall Street stockbrokers, the eastern insurance companies, or the mutual funds!

Everyone wants a strong and stable local economy that all of us can count on now, and that our children can count on for the future.

The concept of "hometown economics" is far from new. It's the foundation we've been building on for a lot of good years, and still the answer to our community's future.

We ask you to always think about investing locally first...and count on us for local reinvestment.

We're "The Bank That Banks With You."

BUYERS BENEFIT FROM OUR SERVICES

There are many decisions to be made when purchasing a home, and we as professional Realtors are a good source of information to guide buyers and sellers through the entire process. We can recommend lenders, and also assist in the pre-approval process from the very beginning. From the information provided, the lender will pre-determine an amount the buyer can afford. One of our professional agents, along with the lender will explain to the buyer how their loan process works. At this time they will also notify the buyer approximately how much money will be required for closing costs. The information provided will also include the time frame, interest rates and requirements. After a price range has been determined, it is time to start looking! With our extensive listing services we can usually show homes that meet their exact requirements. We as Realtors are bound by a code of ethics to protect the rights of both parties!

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says money can definitely buy happiness—it's just that for most of us, it's not in our price range.

There are two kinds of fishermen: those who fish for the sport of it, and those who catch something.

We were surprised to read about a poll which concluded that church-going women are more likely to assault their mates than those who stay home from services. We can figure only one explanation—the constant reminder and reference to "man's sins" causes the little woman to become agitated and she takes it out on her spouse!

In another poll, women were asked whether they prefer to watch a man wash dishes or dance naked. Sixty-one percent chose the "washing dishes."

Asked if they'd prefer to marry a guy who looks like Danny DeVito and who does half the household chores, or one who looks like Robert Redford and does none—43 percent chose Danny and only 46 percent picked Redford.

Only 26 percent of women still claim to do all the housework, but 61 percent of the females have washed the car in the last month. The survey also found that 42 percent of women and 35 percent of men argue about household chores. It was surprising to see that 46 percent of men have cleaned a toilet in the past week and 60 percent have vacuumed and 57 percent have changed sheets.

But, 14 percent of the men say they've botched up chores to get out of doing them again. The survey reveals that not only do women expect men to clean up the kitchen, they expect them to clean up their act (fully clothed) or get a fat lip!

We've got a friend who claims he brought his wife true happiness—he knows he's not perfect and she just loves to nag!

The bill to let Texans decide whether they could carry a concealed handgun didn't make it to the Senate, because Gov. Ann Richards vowed to veto such a measure.

A lot of amendments were offered on the bill in the House. One would prohibit carrying a concealed gun into a bank, an establishment that sells alcohol, a hospital, library, post office, or religious institution.

We couldn't help but wonder why our representatives in Austin did not also include in the amendment a prohibition against carrying a weapon into a city hall, courthouse, school or appraisal district tax office. The way the school funding Robin Hood works, that seems to be a logical place to ask citizens to park their hardware before paying this year's taxes!

Mistakes and worries are a bothersome part of life and we all carry too many self-made burdens. Perhaps we could all use a few tips I read recently. They are called the Ten Suggestions, and they are:

I. Thou shalt not worry, for worry is the most unproductive of all human activities.

II. Thou shalt not be fearful, for most of the things we fear never come to pass.

IV. Thou shalt face each problem as it comes. You can handle only one at a time, anyway.

V. Thou shalt not take problems to bed with you for they make very poor bedfellows.

VI. Thou shalt not try to relieve yesterday for good or ill—it is gone. Concentrate on what is happening in your life today.

VII. Thou shalt count thy blessings, never overlooking the small ones, for a lot of small blessings add up to a big one.

VIII. (We lost number 8, but I'm not going to worry about it!)

IX. Thou shalt be a good listener, for only when you listen do you hear ideas different from your own. It's very hard to learn something new when you're talking.

X. Thou shalt not become bogged down by frustrations, for 90 percent of it is rooted in self-pity and it will only interfere with positive action.

Guest Column

Former CofC exec ends 'Hustle' column

(Editor's note: Bill Albright of Houston, former Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce manager, wrote a Hustle, Hustle, Hustle—or "H/3" column while in Hereford. He recently ended 20 years of chamber work and offers this final column on "Pleasant Reflections."

Twenty years ago this month, something very special happened to me. On April 9, 1973, I became the executive vice president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. I remember it vividly. I was beginning a brand new job in an unfamiliar location, working with a group of people whom I did not know.

But, after spending 29 years in the army, I figured I could learn any and every thing that needed to be done. I must admit that no one told me, or even hinted at all, the things expected of me. That's quite understandable, because unless a person has been a chamber executive, there is no way to know or even dream of the diversity of tasks inherent in the job.

Least of all, no one even mentioned that within 90 days I would have a full face of hair! (Most of you will remember Hereford's glorious 75th Diamond Jubilee). Anyway, I liked the beard so much I kept it for two more years.

The four years we lived in Hereford were probably the most challenging, exciting and satisfying we've ever experienced. To this day, Inez has not let me forget that she strongly resisted our move to Big Spring. Guess I should have listened, but I was a young buck--just turned 50--and was out conquer the world.

I'm convinced that Inez was content to spend the rest of her life in Deaf Smith County, except for brief visits to our children in Kansas, Chicago, Virginia, Kentucky, California and Lake Jackson, TX. By the way, when we left Hereford she had only two grandsons. She is now qualified as a professional grandmother with 14 grandkids.

After we said farewell to Hereford, many friends and our brand new house on Pecan, we experienced the closing of Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring and a valiant effort to diversify their economic structure before moving on to the scary metropolis of Houston. I promised Inez we'd stay a year or so as we moved into a new house in September 1979. We haven't moved since--so much for promises.

I was executive vice president for the chamber on the Houston Ship Channel for 5 1/2 years, retiring to establish a management consulting firm. Among my clients was a group of business people who wanted to start their own chamber of commerce and figured I should be the guy to get it going. I acquiesced and agree to be their president for six months.

Four and one-half years later and after two experiences of angioplasty, the doctor suggested I change my life style if I wished to continue to be a practicing grandfather. I reluctantly gave up chamber life and went to work as general manager for an affluent 1,200-home sub-division in Houston.

I really think Inez got the job for me just to keep me out of the house during the day. Anyway, my life has changed. I used to be involved with meetings, volunteers, business people and all sorts of civic-minded folks. Now I am surrounded by garbage men, police officers and grass cutters who swear they don't speak a word of English.

I'm still a member of Hereford Lodge and I still call myself a Hustler—in the good sense, of course! Now, after 20 years of deadlines and typing at 2 a.m., I'm retiring my newspaper column. It all started with Speedy and The Hereford Brand. I have more than a thousand articles in my files. Thanks, Speedy!

Over the past few years, we've stopped in Hereford several times, attended TEXAS over in Palo Duro Canyon, and broke bread with some of our friends. Inez's greatest thrill was when she was named "Woman of the Year" by the Women's Division of the chamber in 1976. Mine was being made an honorary "Hereford Bull" in 1977.

There will always be a special place in our hearts for the fond memories we have of wonderful West Texas and all the fine folks who make their home in hospitable, hustlin' Hereford. And for the rest of my life, as has been true for the past 20 years, I will respond in the typical Hereford spirit with lots of HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE!

After we said farewell to Hereford, many friends and our brand new house on Pecan, we experienced the closing of Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring and a valiant effort to diversify their economic structure before moving on to the scary metropolis of Houston. I promised

Inez we'd stay a year or so as we moved into a new house in September

1979. We haven't moved since--so much for promises.

Well, we've finally done it -- passed the 100th day of the Presidents Clinton administration.

And while Bill Clinton promised us the moon while running for office last year, what has he REALLY accomplished?

If you're a homosexual, lesbian, feminist, pro-abortionist, minority or

Russian, he's done a terrific job.

But for the rest of us, it seems like he's done more harm than good.

The first major act he took as president was to announce that he would remove the prohibition on gays in the military.

While this is perfectly within his right as president, it now appears that

Clinton was rewarding the incredibly-vocal-but-numerically-insignificant homosexual community for their support of him during the campaign.

In coming to the decision, Clinton apparently did not confer with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Senate

Armed Services Committee or the U.S. military for their views on what such a move would do.

He also did not consider, apparently, that homosexuals are the highest at-risk category for AIDS, which would make the military the perfect place for homosexuals to go, knowing they could practice their deviation secure in the knowledge the American people would pay for their medical care once they contracted

AIDS.

The next thing Clinton did was to remove all governmental prohibitions

he could on abortion and abortion counseling, intent on making it as easy as possible for any woman to kill her unborn baby, often at governmental expense.

Once again Clinton seemed to be rewarding a vocal minority for supporting his candidacy without bothering to see what the American people think about this idea.

Clinton's appointments also have gotten some heat, from the Attorneys

General-wanna-be's who didn't pay taxes for their domestic help to political cronies he has put in high-level cabinet posts.

Then, just as Clinton finally got an

AG (third choice Janet Reno), a man in Florida killed a doctor at an abortion protest.

Clinton showed his true colors when she vowed -- despite professing to oppose the death penalty during her confirmation -- to seek the death penalty for the alleged assailant.

I guess we know where she stands on abortion protests gone awry.

It is also ironic in this event that

Clinton, Clinton and the entire administration used the shooting to try to paint the entire pro-life lobby

as dangerous, fanatical and in need of being controlled.

I guess they forgot that the U.S.

Constitution guarantees the right to speak freely and protest in public.

Finally, after entering the presidency supposedly riding a "mandate" from the people (of which fewer than 40 percent were those who voted for him!), Clinton raced to push his tax-and-spend plans through Congress.

Suddenly, in the midst of proclaiming he has licked all our economic problems, his "jobs" program stalled in the wake of Republican challenges.

Now Clinton is to blame a sluggish economy on the GOP.

Funny, isn't it, that Congress is dominated by Democrats now, as it was during the Bush administration, but that then it was Bush at fault for the economy and now it is the Republican minority that is somehow messing up the country!

I guess like Clinton is so busy trying to find someone to blame that he can't seem to find time to take that blame himself.

Move state alcohol agency to Bootleg?

By DONNIS BAGGETT
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry pitched a plucky plan to the Legislature the other day. He wanted to move Ag Department headquarters away from the "ivory towers" of Austin.

He had in mind some place like Fort Worth or San Antonio, but his proposal enjoyed a lifespan approximating that of an icicle in August. Quicker you could say filibuster, a dozen senators pronounced it D.O.A. But it made folks think, and that in itself is no small feat.

If there's merit to moving the Ag Department, one wonders, why not move a whole passel of state agencies to more appropriate Texas burgs?

With that in mind, we combed the pages of the Texas State Directory and the Texas Almanac. We humbly submit a few relocation recommendations:

Texas Legislature - Uncertain, Harrison County.

Supreme Court - Fair Play, Panola County.

Comptroller of Public Accounts - Pettis, Lamar County.

West Texas farmers shaking their heads over prolonged drought three days."

Irion County producers are proceeding with plans to apply for disaster funding, he said.

Iron, Crockett, Reagan, Schleicher and Tom Green counties were declared eligible for disaster assistance two weeks ago by Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy for losses resulting from drought conditions from June 1 through Oct. 31, 1992.

Thursday's rain was selective. A number of other parched West Texas counties weren't as fortunate as Irion County.

"If we got any rain it was certainly scattered," said Zan Mathies of Fort Stockton, extension agent for Pecos County.

"Producers have met and tried to have this county declared a disaster area, so that they can get help in buying feed supplement," Mathies said. Since late last year, Pecos County has received a half inch of rain, at most, he said.

Ranchers soon will be faced with having to reduce their stocks of cattle and sheep unless they get more rain soon, Mathies added.

Lack of ample nutrition throughout the winter months, especially without a spring green-up, has hampered conception rates among sheep and cattle in West Texas.

"Most of my ranchers are running and marking sheep at this time, and the lamb crop has been reduced by a good bit," Mathies said. "Ranchers that didn't provide supplemental feed are really hurting."

There were smiles in the San Angelo area.

John Schwartz of Wall received more than four inches of rain on his three farms. He had just finished putting out the fertilizer on his land Wednesday evening, he said.

"The rain couldn't have come at a better time," Schwartz said. "We'll need more rain before the planting date (May 17), but I'm an optimistic fellow. I'm looking forward to a good year."

"Our non-irrigated producers were really beginning to worry," said John Begnaud, extension horticulturist for Tom Green County. "They were definitely getting to the critical point where they had to make a management decision."

"This should at least get them in the field and planting cotton."

Begnaud said, however, that given two dry weeks with evaporation rates at one-quarter to one-half inch daily, it won't long for farmers in the San Angelo area to be back in the same predicament.

The dry weather has also hampered local vegetable production.

"A lot of melons should be going in the ground this weekend," Begnaud said.

Officials in Sutton, Menard, Scurry, and Midland counties reported various amounts of rain ranging from .7 an inch to 1.5 inches.

Dyslexia teacher completes training

Kris Dollar, a Hereford Independent School District teacher, will graduate today from the Scottish Rite Learning Center of West Texas in Lubbock.

The ceremony will be held at 2 p.m. in the Scottish Rite Temple, 602 Ave. Q in Lubbock.

Dollar, a dyslexia teacher based at the Stanton Educational Support Services Center, will receive certification for completing the Alphabetic Phonics Teacher Training Program at the center.

This training is a graduate level program that prepares teachers to become specialists in teaching the basic language skills of reading, reading comprehension, spelling and writing to students with dyslexia or related disorders.

She will be among 38 students receiving diplomas for completing training programs at the center.

Special speaker for the graduation will be the Rev. Jim Jackson, senior pastor of First United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

Thank You

I wish to express a sincere thank you to Dr. Perales, all the hospital staff, and all my friends who came to call during my stay in the hospital. May God bless you all.

Kitchens Classic gets underway

Pool play began on the first night of the Cuby Kitchens Classic AAU basketball tournament in Hereford, and several Hereford teams took victories.

Of the 52 teams in the tournament, seven are made up exclusively of Hereford players, and five other teams include from 1-3 Hereford players teamed with kids from other cities. A UIL rule prohibits more than three players from one high school system playing for the same team, once they approach high school age.

The tournament, which was to conclude Sunday, includes eight full divisions: boys' 10-under, 11-under, 12-under and 13-under; and girls' 12-under, 13-under, 14-under and 15-under. In addition, there is a two-team boys' 15-under division.

Following are all the scores from Friday's action, with teams with any or all Hereford players listed first. High scorers are given for Hereford teams.

Boys' 10-under

Prime Time (Hereford) 30, Olton All-Stars 19—Chayse Rives scored 12 points.

Dalhart 38, Earth All-Stars 18

Boys' 11-under

Herd (Hereford) 27, Friona 19—Cody Hodges scored eight and Slade

Hodges scored seven.

Farwell Miners 46, Prime Time (Hereford) 5—Eric Ramos and Landin Noland each scored buckets.

Boys' 12-under

Whitefaces (Hereford) 22, Nazareth, 20—Brent Berend scored 10.

Canyon Magic 26, Dimmitt Cats 21.

Dalhart 29, Dimmitt Cats 20.

Boys' 13-under

Magic (Hereford) 36, WT Dream Team 34—Bryant McNutt scored 15, Jeremy Urbanczyk and Anthony Lopez each scored seven.

Slaton Sharks 92, Olton All-Stars 13.

Girls' 12-under

PAA Dumas 35, Hot Shots (Hereford) 12—Kristin Fangman scored four.

Terminators 48, Shooting Stars 14.

Girls' 13-under

Hereford Heat 25, Dolphins 15—Julie Rampey scored 10, and Misti Davis added six.

Jazz 40, PAA Dumas 28

Girls' 14-under

Heat (part-Herford) 41, PAA Dumas 35—Herford's Danielle Cornelius scored 10, and Heather Martin and Herford's Cassie Abney each scored eight.

Lady Bulls 55, Burst to Shine 24.

Girls' 15-under

Unknowns #1 (part Hereford) 43, Sharpsters 26.

WT Quicksilver (part Hereford) 41, Technique 25.

PAA Dumas (part Hereford) 50, Groovin A.K.'s 22—Mindi Davis scored six for PAA Dumas.

Following are the rosters for full Hereford teams, as well as the names of Hereford players on mixed teams:

Prime Time (10-under boys): Cody Marsh, Chayse Rives, Tyler Keeling, Ritchie Sanders, Tyler Neilsen, Jacob Power, Eddie Ruiz and T.J. Torres. Coach: Leo Brown.

Herd (11-under boys): James Miller, Slade Hodges, Cody Hodges, Roy McCracken, Eric McNutt, Craig Campbell and Kurtis Flood. Coach: Burl Miller.

Prime Time (12-under boys): Tim Dudley, Jeremy Williams, Eric Ramos, Joseph Valdez, Landin Noland, Eddie Lacey, Justin Carroll, Greg Ewing. Coach: Jennifer Bullard.

Lakers surprise Suns

By The Associated Press

Sedale Threatt was more than a threat to the Phoenix Suns.

"It's very frustrating when a guy just torches you, and it's even more frustrating when the guy hits jumpers," Phoenix's Charles Barkley said after Threatt's 35-point performance led the Los Angeles Lakers to a surprising 107-103 playoff upset of the top-seeded Phoenix Suns Friday night.

The Lakers, the only team in the NBA playoffs with a losing record, weren't supposed to have a chance against the Suns, who had the league's best record (62-20).

But the hot-handed Threatt was the difference as he made 14 of 19 shots from the floor in his commanding performance on the Suns' court.

"I shot real well tonight, but my teammates made things happen for me," said Threatt, the point guard who took over the monumental task of replacing Magic Johnson. "It was a total team effort."

In other playoff games, it was Seattle 99, Utah 85; New York 107, Indiana 104, and Chicago 114, Atlanta 90.

Barkley had 34 points and 15 rebounds for the Suns, while Tom Chambers scored 18.

SuperSonics 99, Jazz 85

Shawn Kemp scored a playoff career best of 29 points and pulled down 17 rebounds to lead Seattle over Utah.

The 6-foot-10 Kemp made 10 of 17 shots from the floor, 9 of 9 from the free-throw line, got 11 offensive rebounds and also blocked three Utah shots. His previous playoff career best was 28 points on April 23, 1992, in a first-round victory over Golden State.

Kemp outplayed Karl Malone, Utah's six-time all-star, in a rematch of two teams that met in a Western Conference semifinal series last year that the Jazz won 4-1.

Malone tried to keep Utah in the game with 24 points and 13 rebounds, but Seattle's sagging defense held the other Jazz players effectively in check.

Knicks 107, Pacers 104
Patrick Ewing's 14-foot jumper with 10 seconds left short-circuited Indiana's second-half rally.

Reggie Miller, who scored 14 of his 32 points in the fourth quarter and tied the NBA playoff record with 17 free throws without a miss, then dribbled the ball out of bounds with 5.6 seconds remaining, hurting the Pacers' chance for a big upset. New York has won 21 straight games at Madison Square Garden.

Ewing, who finished with 25 points, hit 1 of 2 free throws with 5 seconds left for a 3-point lead, and Miller missed a desperation 3-pointer at the buzzer.

Bulls 114, Hawks 90
Michael Jordan scored 35 points and Bill Cartwright and B.J. Armstrong combined for 13 of the points in the run that put Chicago ahead 79-52. It was 95-65 after three quarters and the Hawks were finished.

Controlling the tempo, the boards and the game, the Bulls asserted themselves early as Jordan scored 18 points in the first quarter to put Chicago ahead 25-12.

With the Bulls leading 62-48 at halftime, Cartwright and Armstrong combined for 13 of the points in the run that put Chicago ahead 79-52. It was 95-65 after three quarters and the Hawks were finished.

Blea to play in Greenbelt Bowl

Hereford's Steven Blea has been selected to play in the DSA Greenbelt Bowl, an all-star football game for graduated high school seniors.

Blea played both ways on the line for the Hereford football team in 1992, and he earned first-team all-district honors on both sides of the ball. On offense, he was chosen to the second team of The Associated Press Sports Editors Class 4A All-State team.

He served as a team captain during his senior year and led the Herd to the District 1-4A championship.

"I think it'll be an experience just playing with them," Blea said. "I think it'll be fun. They wanted me to play, and it's a real honor to play in something like that."

Blea also said he hopes playing in the bowl will help him get a scholarship to a good college.

"Steven's been a great asset to this program from the time he started in seventh grade, all the way through his senior year," coach Danny Haney said. "He provided leadership, worked hard, and has never rested on his talent—he's prepared well. It'll be a great pleasure to watch him play in this all-star game. He deserves it."

The Greenbelt Bowl will be played June 5 in Childress.

Herd's baseball game postponed

Saturday morning's rain forced the postponement of the baseball game between Hereford and Randall which was scheduled for Saturday at Whiteface Field.

The game will be played at 4:30 p.m. Monday at Whiteface Field, Hereford coach T.R. Sartor said.

Newton did the color commentary for a Dallas high school game last fall.

"I was supposed to add color between plays," he said, "but I got excited and started yelling. It's not as easy as it looks. There is a lot of preparation needed before the game and concentration while it's on."

Pokes' coach sent message to players by drafting speed

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - As we will soon read in his autobiography, Jimmy Johnson knows a lot about tropical fish, psychology, and football.

Some people hit a bucket of balls to unwind. Johnson eats Tex-Mex dinners, watches sports on television, and studies his fish.

Johnson, a psychology major at the University of Arkansas, got deep into the minds of his players during Super Bowl week. He told a story about how easy it was to walk across a two-by-four board on the floor of a room but how difficult it would be to try to walk a board between two tall buildings. His point was how the mind could play tricks and how fear of failure could paralyze a competitor.

Johnson took psychology book to his Santa Monica beach hotel to study so he could steer his team through the uncharted waters of its first Super Bowl. The Buffalo Bills will attest that whatever Johnson did seemed to work.

This is a rather lengthy preamble to get into the message Johnson delivered on draft day, 1993, his fifth as coach of the Dallas Cowboys: he plans on upgrading his championship team to another level. Any slackers will be left behind.

Johnson is very unhappy with his special teams, particularly poor punting by Mike Saxon that included a blocked punt in the Super Bowl. Johnson said on draft day that he felt the Cowboys special teams had been just average the last two years. For the first time, there will be free agent punters in Austin this summer battling Saxon.

Speed and hard-hitters can turn kick teams around quickly. That was a major priority for Johnson.

Wide receiver and kick returner Kevin Williams has 4.3 speed in the 40 and he has excellent hands fielding punts. He doesn't let the ball hit the ground. Such happenings cost the

The Belmont is the oldest of the Triple Crown races, having been run for the first time in 1867.

Secretariat's 31-length victory in the 1973 Belmont Stakes was the greatest winning margin in the race.

Cowboys a lot of yards last year. Williams also gives the Cowboys a deep receiver the team sorely needs to stretch the defense.

How fast is Williams? Well, he got to Valley Ranch so swiftly after he was drafted that started owner Jerry Jones fell over backwards in his chair when he saw him.

The other second-round choice, linebacker Darrin Smith, like Williams a Miami product, can fly. Johnson called him the fastest linebacker he has ever seen around.

Cornerback Mike Middleton, the third-round pick from Indiana, can run and is a big hitter.

Then comes linebacker Barry Minter of Tulsa, a hard hitter who is nicknamed "the deer" because of his tremendous acceleration in the open; strong safety Brock Marion of Nevada, who hits with authority and runs a 4.6 in the 40; and linebacker Reggie Givens of Penn State, who was timed in 4.6 and is tough and durable.

There was another message, part two.

Johnson would like to get more speed at safety where Ray Horton is getting older and slower. Middleton will be moved to safety.

Johnson would also like to get more production from his linebackers. A veteran like Vinson Smith could be in big trouble.

Johnson hedged his bets if Emmitt Smith has a long contract holdout by drafting Alabama's Derrick Lassic, a tough runner who proved his worth in the Sugar Bowl for the national champion Crimson Tide.

The Cowboys coach helped his special teams and sent a not-so-subtle message to his veterans with the recent draft that he's not standing pat with a Super Bowl team. He won't tolerate we-got-it-made attitudes.

It's like Johnson said to running back Derrick Gainer on his Florida answering machine the other day.

Johnson was miffed Gainer had missed two off-season workouts and the message went something like: "I hope you're engaged in a lucrative off-season because you'll need that job if you keep missing workouts."

Bengals' selection of Simmons brings pride to SMU's program

By KEVIN SHERRINGTON

The Dallas Morning News
UNIVERSITY PARK, Texas (AP)

Mom went back to Houston when word hadn't come by Round 2. So did a brother, sister, aunt and uncle. The party was dying. Marcello Simmons' family members hadn't expected him to be drafted high, but neither had they expected it to rival the Academy Awards marathon. The workday would come early Monday morning, good news or bad.

By the time his mother drove home, Simmons was introducing the few who remained at his apartment to a venerable but bubbly guest: Don Perignon.

Few had expected any champagne for Simmons, who turned out to be the first SMU football player to be drafted by the NFL in six years. The Cincinnati Bengals made him the sixth pick of the fourth round, the 90th overall, the 18th defensive back.

The selection was surprising because draft experts, using NFL sources, predicted Simmons would last until the second day of the draft, and probably longer. The prospects of being drafted seemed terribly unlikely for Simmons four years ago, when the only Division I-A schools to offer him a scholarship were SMU and Wyoming and he was, in athletic director Forrest Gregg's words, "a skinny kid with some athletic ability." The chances might have been even more remote a year ago, when he had operations on both shoulders.

And SMU is not shopped much by the NFL any more, not after what it has been through the past six years.

"It's a nice chapter, a chapter closing," said Simmons. "The SMU chapter is finished.... And now, a new chapter is starting."

Simmons' work at the NFL scouting combine in Indianapolis was impressive. At 6-1, 180 pounds, he had a 41-inch vertical leap and ran a 4.56-second 40-yard dash.

He had a good resume. He started three seasons at SMU and six games of his freshman year when he missed two games because of an ankle injury and a broken arm. The injuries would foreshadow a painful, if productive, four years.

He led the Mustangs in interceptions with four both as a sophomore and a junior, a remarkable feat considering the shape of his shoulders. His shoulders would sublux, or dislocate slightly, during games.

"Because of our depth problems," SMU coach Tom Rossley said, "Marcello would come to the sideline, get his shoulder fixed and go right back in the game."

Simmons decided he'd had enough after his junior season. He had reconstructive surgery on his right shoulder in December 1991, then on the left the next month. He had no problems with his shoulders his senior season. He had no interceptions. But he broke up 11 passes. He also blocked a field goal attempt and returned a blocked extra point attempt 88 yards for two points against Tulane.

Ed Wisneski, SMU's sports information director, believes his return against Tulane may have intrigued NFL scouts. Several, though, conceded he was a good athlete but agreed with Larry Lacewell, the Cowboys' director of college scouting, who said Simmons had only an outside shot to be drafted because of injuries.

Rossley said the scouts may have been bluffing.

"I think a lot of people weren't excited about him until they worked him out," said Rossley, the Atlanta Falcons' quarterback coach before becoming SMU's head coach in 1991. "I think everyone was trying to get him as a steal."

SMU stole him out of Tomball, Texas, where he had been an all-state safety and wide receiver and a district champion in the 110-meter hurdles.

But, if SMU hadn't offered, he likely would have gone to Sam Houston State. He had liked SMU since the early 1980s, when the Mustangs ran their Pony Express of Eric Dickerson and Craig James. Simmons even wore a raggedy blue SMU t-shirt as a boy.

He was dismayed when the NCAA pronounced the "death penalty" on the SMU program, which led to the program's abolition in 1987 and 1988.

When the Mustangs came back, they didn't have much of a football program for three seasons, winning just four games. They won five last season, though it was hardly ideal for him. He was one of several players suspended for a game after failing to return books to the bookstore for university credit.

His coaches and teammates rave about his character, though. He is SMU's most active athlete in community affairs, Wisneski said.

Teammate Kevin Love said the NFL opportunity "couldn't have happened to a better guy."

Gregg called Simmons' drafting "a major step" for SMU, a school competing under "the perception that we were recruiting players who weren't good enough to go anywhere else."

Simmons dispelled the theory, he said.

He did more than that for his teammates, said James Bowie, Simmons' best friend and teammate.

"We had a pretty good season. We showed we had a player, at least."

If you tried wearing contact lenses years ago when they were big and hard and difficult to manage, you owe it to yourself to try again -- especially if you still would rather not wear glasses. The new generation of lenses, especially the soft ones, are extra-comfortable for most people and able to correct most common visual conditions, too.

The major advantage of soft lenses is, no surprise, their softness. That enables them to fit smoothly right over the cornea. The absorb natural tear fluid and bend to fit the natural curve of the eye. They are made in a variety of shapes so that your optometrist can choose one just right for your eyes.

The new lenses offer many more options than the old ones. They can be adapted for bifocal vision or change the color of your eyes. Discuss with your eye professional whether easy-to-care-for-extended-wear lenses or throwaways are right for you.

Catoosa, Okla., storm kills seven, leaves path of wreckage

Editors Note: On April 24, about 6:40 p.m., a storm destroyed a church in east Tulsa, then spawned two tornadoes that bore over a hill into Catoosa, killing seven people and destroying hundreds of homes and businesses. Associated Press writers Ted Bridis, Doug Ferguson and Ellen Knickmeyer provide the following account based on observations and dozens of interviews.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Lights flickered across Tulsa as a mass of dark clouds bore down and randomly picked its targets, first an empty church, then a highway of unsuspecting travelers.

As Ken Acuna drove down Interstate 44 with his two children, his 7-year-old son gave a haunting harbinger of the deadly tornado.

"Look up at that cloud."

The tornado killed seven people, injured nearly 100 and damaged hundreds of homes and businesses, starting with a sanctuary.

Loved by adults for its two-story stained glass windows and by children for the elbow races they ran under the pews, the sanctuary of the Memorial United Methodist Church was reduced to bricks and mortar by straight-line winds.

The congregation met Sunday morning in folding chairs in the fellowship hall. The Rev. George Warren made sure to have borrowed offertory plates on hand for the service.

"God didn't do this. God didn't point his finger at the church and say, 'You,'" Warren told his congregation.

Westbound on Interstate 44 five miles east of the church, four tourists in a rented Buick heard the wail of a tornado siren near Bruce's Tulsa Truck Plaza. Drivers along the highway abandoned their cars and pickups to run for roadside ditches.

"There was no place to hide," said Helen Leeper of Urichsville, Ohio.

The Haynes family, a couple in their 30s traveling from Chicago with their two daughters, pulled their van off the road but stayed inside. Only their 13-year-old daughter would survive.

Brothers Andres and Genaro Rodriguez of Chicago raced to a small drainage culvert, where seven others already were crammed inside. Andres tried to brace himself beneath two steel bars.

"Here it comes! Here it comes!" screamed Elmer Leeper, also crouching inside the culvert.

Winds up to 175-200 mph lifted vehicles off the interstate shoulder. The Haynes' van rolled several times, its doors flung open. Andres Rodriguez lost his grip and was sucked skyward.

"The next moment, he wasn't there," Mrs. Leeper said.

Police Chief Benny Dirck stepped from the shower and saw the tornado crest a ridge that separates Catoosa from Tulsa. It hit the truck stop three blocks below his house.

"The whole funnel was lit up," he said.

A woman in the truck stop restaurant ran downstairs screaming "Tornado!" to anyone who would listen. With only a minute to spare, Jeremy Bennett turned off pilot lights to the stove and pulled a microwave oven over the lids of grease vats to prevent an explosion.

Afterward, a flatbed trailer lay upside down on another tractor-trailer, 100 feet from where it had been parked. More than a dozen others had been blown around like leaves.

"It looks like some giant took them in his hand and squeezed them together," said Don Devore of the National Weather Service.

On one of the tables inside, a half-eaten bowl of corn sat undisturbed.

Lisa Allison, 3 months pregnant, returned from picking up her brother for a chicken barbecue at their two-story home overlooking Spunky Creek Country Club in Catoosa. Her husband, Bruce, ran outside as she pulled in the driveway.

"Get in the house! There's a tornado!" he screamed.

She looked over her shoulder and saw the rotating mass of clouds roaring across the golf course. They ran to an upstairs bedroom closet. She put pillows over her stomach and crouched.

As the house vibrated and the tornado siphoned air from the room, she cried out, "I can't breathe!"

The home was destroyed. A sofa in another upstairs bedroom was found two days later in a field 400 yards away.

Normally the kings of a trailer park, the double-wides at Colonial Port Trailer Park suffered worst when the tornadoes hit, offering a bigger target than the more modest trailers.

Trailer park owner Louise Hood looked around after she pulled herself out of her own upside-down pickup truck and imagined entire families dead inside some of the homes.

"I saw one girl crawl out and thought, 'Well, at least she made it,'" Ms. Hood said. "Then someone else crawled out after her, and someone else. That was the good thing in all of this."

More than 60 of the 85 mobile homes were destroyed. The body of a bedridden elderly woman was cut out of one of the double-wides.

Across Old Route 66, a waitress at the Angler Steakhouse glanced out a window and yelled to take cover. Owner Mike Evans rushed from the kitchen into his office to hide under a desk and filing cabinet.

"The hail sounded like grapefruit, then you could feel the pressure. It felt like it was going to suck us out," Evans said. "All I was doing was praying."

In the parking lot, winds threw a pickup 30 yards into a nearby pond and blasted the paint off a car. Another car was pitched into the building. The walls collapsed, girders twisting.

Buildings at Catoosa High School were laid open, some reduced to piles of wood and mangled metal beams. School was canceled for the week, and likely will be called off for the rest of the year.

The tornadoes, wider than the length of two football fields, picked up buildings and 18-wheelers like dirt in a whirlwind. Flesh and bone were even more vulnerable.

Robert Haynes and his wife, Anita Coleman, were found dead in their crushed van. The body of their 8-year-old daughter, Paige, was found on a grassy knoll.

Andres Rodriguez, 35, didn't survive his ride in the tornado.

The body of produce trucker Robert Edward Ballou, 33, of Springfield, Mo., was found on the shoulder of I-44. His truck had been crushed. His widow identified him the next day.

Ralph William Moore, 70, of Tulsa was in a repair shop at the truck stop when debris demolished it. Afterward, he lifted up to say: "I'm all right." He died that day of internal injuries.

Trailer park resident Leatrice Gardner, 77, became the seventh and final victim when the tornado picked up her double-wide in the trailer park and smashed her to death inside.

The calm of a sunrise against clear blue skies was broken Sunday morning by the churning rotors of helicopters surveying the damage in Catoosa.

"I didn't know we had so many power lines until they were scattered all over the ground," said Roger Berry, a maintenance worker in Catoosa.

Access was limited to only a few main roads. The rest, those leading to neighborhoods, were littered with downed lines and shards of glass and metal scraps.

National Guardsmen were posted around town to direct traffic and deter looters. Two men toting golf clubs from the Spunky Creek pro shop were caught riding away on bicycles.

"I just feel helpless and hopeless," Mayor Ron Berry said. "It's a lot of hard work, but we're resilient and eventually we'll come back."

British poet/soldier from WWI turns 100

EDITOR'S NOTE - He's 100 years old now, the only survivor among Britain's poets spawned in the trenches of World War I. He remembers vividly his former comrades facing death and he remembers the rumble of guns echoing across the English Channel. The war to end war never did.

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
BIRCHINGTON-ON-SEA, England (AP) - Geoffrey Dearmer is Britain's last surviving poet of World War I, a veteran of Gallipoli and the Somme.

That war, so terrible in loss of life, led to a brilliant flowering of English poetry in works by Wilfred Owen, Siegfried Sassoon, Rupert Brooke, Robert Graves, Isaac Rosenberg and others.

"I didn't know I was the last survivor until I was told," Dearmer said in his retirement apartment on the north Kent coast as his 100th birthday approached.

"I suppose I became the last when Graves died in 1985. There was often a poem or two of mine in anthologies so my name was known, but I think everyone was sure I was dead."

"I met Graves once. I went to see him. We talked about the war. I knew none of the others."

In mid-March, the Imperial War Museum in London held a reception in Dearmer's honor. His poems were read to an audience among the old tanks, guns and biplanes of 1914-1918, "the war that will end war" as H.G. Wells said.

On March 21, Dearmer's 100th birthday, a selection of his poems called "A Pilgrim's Song" was published. A photograph of him on the dust jacket shows him as he was in that war long ago, sturdy and confident in his lieutenant's uniform of the Royal Fusiliers.

Dearmer, a widower, still looks strong, although he has arthritis and moves with a walker. He is alert, likes to meet people, reads The Times every day and has piles of books of all kinds in front of him at Birchington-on-Sea, 70 miles east of London.

All through World War I, the guns in Flanders fields were heard on this coast, "a constant rumble" when the wind was in the right direction across the Straits of Dover, Dearmer said.

The new book is dedicated to his brother, Christopher, killed at Suvla Bay in Gallipoli in 1915:

Unlike Geoffrey, Christopher didn't get a commission immediately. When they visited their parents the brothers had to walk on opposite sides of the road as an officer was not to be seen walking with a private.

"Brooke was the best known of us," Dearmer recalls. "He was bitten by an insect on the way to Gallipoli and died. We got five miles inland at Suvla Bay, thanks to the Australians."

"I saw one Turkish soldier, alive. He was moving about like a maniac. I saw one man dead, not in uniform, the most handsome face I ever saw. He made me think of Christ as the Roman soldier saw him at Calvary: 'Truly this was the Son of God.' I wrote 'The Dead Turk' about him."

And what of the Western Front? "The trenches on the Somme were much the same but much wider and longer. I was near Amiens. The whole country was devastated. We all got used to the shelling. It was very dull, sitting there all day, armies staring at each other."

He reached into his memory for a quotation, its source forgotten: "... taut, listening armies staring through the dark."

Dearmer's first book, "Poems" in 1918, was reprinted. His second, "The Day's Delight" in 1923, sold only 300 copies.

But in 1989, when he privately issued a selection of his poems, Dearmer wrote delightedly that "The Song of the Whale," which is part of his poem, "Blue Whale," had been "sung all over the world by Hoagy Carmichael."

"I realized I'd got a gift for poetry and learned the business," he said.

"Over the years my poetry improved, but there was no money in it. Brooke and Graves sold well and one or two others."

Dearmer was paid as much as $15 for poems published in newspapers and magazines, and once $50.

Now he charges $1.43 a line for reprinted poems in anthologies. "It's very little."

Asked about his favorite among the war poets, he said it was Owen, who was killed just before the armistice and whose birth centennial is being remembered this year.

Why did the first war produce so much fine poetry and the second so little?

"There was a gaiety about the first war and a certain exhilaration," Dearmer said.

The second war brought a feeling of deja vu. Everyone had the determination to destroy Hitler, but there was little romance in the feeling.

Dearmer was also an examiner of plays for the Lord Chamberlain, a strange task of censorship, now abolished. "And a good thing, too. It should never have been started," he said.

He only banned one play, one in which Jesus Christ returns as a Communist. "You weren't supposed to put biblical characters on the stage and the play wasn't any good, anyway," he says.

Dearmer's regular job was for the British Broadcasting Corp., editing radio programs for children.

During the interview a friend telephoned Dearmer to report the burglary of his home near the Lambeth Palace, the London residence of the archbishop of Canterbury.

Dearmer related: "He said the burglar entered through a window, pinched 20 pounds ($30) in cash and found the key to let himself out of the front door. Then he put the key through the letter box. You see, people can't be so bad. There's always a reason."

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman and country star Lorrie Morgan are an item, but Aikman's friends aren't saying exactly how much of an item.

Folks close to Aikman have described the couple as "friends," "semi-dating" and "undefinable," according to The Dallas Morning News.

Whatever they are, they are likely to be together at the Academy of Country Music Awards on May 11. Morgan has been nominated in several categories, and Aikman is a presenter.

This May Be Your Last Chance To Stop Southwestern Bell From Exploiting You.

For years, the regional Bell telephone companies have forced residential and business telephone users to pay inflated telephone bills.

According to the Consumer Federation of America, the Bell monopolies not only have overcharged telephone users by $30 billion since 1984, they're now trying to force ratepayers to pick up the tab up to $400 billion of extravagant changes to the telephone network.

Today, Southwestern Bell and other Texas telephone companies are trying to get the Texas legislature to deregulate them even more, so that they can set their own rates and policies. They claim that they aren't making enough money from ratepayers in Texas to invest in changes in the telephone infrastructure.

The fact is, they had record profits last year. And with those profits they invested across the border in Mexico's telephone system, bought an overseas cable company, and became one of the new owners of the San Antonio Spurs basketball team.

Fortunately, you can do something about this exploitation. How? By joining thousands of telephone users, and consumer and business groups who are rising up to support a legislative study that will help ensure that the telephone companies treat Texans more fairly.

Urge your legislative representative to vote in favor of the two-year, fact-revealing study that will protect Texans from the monopolistic whims of Texas telephone companies. This could be your last chance to stop the exploitation. Support the two-year study and protect your pocketbook.

Tell your legislator that you don't want to be exploited by powerful Texas telephone company monopolies.

Unique artwork displayed at school

The West Central Building Leadership Team (BLT) recently commissioned Michael Gavina of Gavina's Sign Design to help them design artwork for the school's motto, "Hornet Pride." The motto and mascot were painted in the gym of the intermediate school to give the students a sense of pride and ownership. Sara Gallagher, assistant principal, and Karen Langford, counselor, designed the artwork with the help of the students. Gavina created the paintings. The school's logo is "All Hornets Educated Against Drugs" (AHEAD).

By SONNY BOHANAN
Amarillo Globe-News

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Frankie McWhorter was sitting in a Channing cafe in 1950, listening to Bob Wills' "Faded Love" playing over and over on the jukebox, when he decided playing the fiddle had to be better than chasing cattle.

McWhorter's decision didn't mean the end of his cowboy days, but it did mark the beginning of a musical career that eventually landed him in Wills' band as one of the still-famous Texas Playboys.

"I told some of them cowboys right then that I was gonna quit," said McWhorter, who was a 19-year-old working for the J.O. Ranch in Clarendon at the time. "So I quit and went home. On the way, I passed the hock shop and saw a fiddle. I gave $27 for it, went home and went to scrapin' on it."

Forty-three years later, McWhorter is still scrapin' on an instrument whose bittersweet strains have taken the Memphis, Texas, boy on quite a ride.

Wills, who left his barber's chair in Turkey to pursue a musical career, went on to popularize his unique blend of jazz, rhythm and blues that came to be known as Western swing. He died in 1975 at the age of 70.

"Faded Love" got me started," McWhorter, 61, said from his home in Lipscomb County, where he works as manager of the Camp Creek Ranch.

Between cowboying in Lipscomb County and making various appearances with the Texas Playboys, McWhorter keeps himself busy. But his schedule is relaxed now compared to the furious touring pace that eventually led him to give up playing with Bob Wills and finally to abandon his own dance band, Frankie McWhorter and the Over the Hill Gang, which he fronted from 1963 until last year.

As a 19-year-old West Texas cowboy, however, McWhorter was pulled by the romantic lure of perfumed women and life on the road. He kept his fiddle at his side, determined to learn its intricacies by playing along with the radio or with the chuck wagon boss at the J.A. Ranch.

"The wagon boss could play the harmonica," McWhorter said. "He'd whistle those breakdowns, and I'd learn 'em."

Five years later, while playing along with the daily Bob Wills radio program, McWhorter's boss convinced him it was time to break into show biz.

"I was breaking horses in Memphis for Boyd Rogers, and I'd hear that program every day," McWhorter said. "Boyd told me, 'You and Bob have the same feel on that song. You ought to go ask him for a job.' So I did."

Wills and the Playboys were playing at the Clover Club on Northeast Eighth Avenue in Amarillo at the time, and McWhorter marched in and made an offer that Wills refused. "He'd never heard of me," McWhorter said. "I'd met him before, but he didn't remember me. He said he already had another fellow hired."

So McWhorter went back to his scrapin' and wound up with the Miller Brothers band out of Wichita Falls. During a gig at the Golden Nugget in Las Vegas in 1960, McWhorter decided to quit the Miller Brothers and head to Clovis, N.M., to break horses.

"Bob had the same booking agent (as Miller Brothers)," McWhorter said. "He had some horns, and he wanted to replace them with a fiddle. Bob came in and hired me, so I went to work with him. It was quite an experience for me."

McWhorter played his first gig

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Country singer Pam Tillis will try acting on an episode of "L.A. Law," teaming up with Ronny Cox, an actor who recently put out a country music album.

The episode will air May 13, said Ronna Rubin, a spokeswoman for Tillis.

Tillis and Cox will play a husband-and-wife country duo seeking a divorce.

Tillis, daughter of entertainer Mel Tillis, has scored three No. 1 country singles. Cox has appeared in such movies as "Deliverance," "Robocop" and "Beverly Hills Cop."

with Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys at San Antonio in 1960. He toured with them for 2½ years before putting together his own band in 1963.

It was a whirlwind 2½ years, McWhorter said.

"The only place we played two nights in a row was that damn (Golden) Nugget in Vegas, which I hated," McWhorter said. "That ain't my thing, all that concrete. There's very little grass, and no cattle."

But there was plenty of music, and that's the way Wills liked it, McWhorter said.

"We'd kick off a tune about every minute to keep 'em dancin'," McWhorter said. "Bob was on the bus one night, and I fronted the band when he wasn't there. Some people were up there visiting with me between songs, and (after the show) Bob said, 'Son, don't stand up there like a little motherless calf. If you can't think of a tune to play, just slow down the other one.'

"If you kept 'em daacin', they wouldn't fight. We played many a night and never took an intermission. He was afraid they'd go to fightin'."

McWhorter said his favorite story about Wills goes like this: "This woman danced by (the stage) and told Bob the music made her teeth hurt. Bob said, 'I'll lay 'em here on the piano till the dance is over and you can come back and get 'em.' He was a sharp-minded guy."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former "Miami Vice" lawman Edward James Olmos has been denied permission to carry a concealed gun.

The actor said in applying for the permit that he and his family had received death threats.

But the city Police Commission on Tuesday maintained its 19-year-old policy of denying such permits. The lone exception was a permit issued to Police Chief Willie Williams.

Perry announces six appointments

Six persons have been appointed to the Boll Weevil Advisory Committee by Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry. The committee was established as part of the boll weevil eradication law that becomes effective on June 1.

"We fought hard to get this bill passed and the eradication program in place," said Perry. "We are dedicated to seeing it get off the ground as quickly and smoothly as possible. I am convinced that the knowledge and dedication these six people bring to the advisory committee will help make that happen."

The committee members are:

-- Jim Ed Miller, a cotton grower from Fort Hancock in the El Paso Valley and board member of the Texas Pest Management Association.

-- Dan Pustejovsky, a cotton grower from Hillsboro who's been fighting the boll weevil for 45 years.

-- Craig Shook, a cotton farmer from Corpus Christi and a member of the Texas Cotton Producers Association.

-- Mandie England, a private crop consultant with bachelor's and master's degrees in entomology from Texas A&M University, who lives at Winters.

-- Dr. Ray Frisbie, integrated pest management coordinator at TAMU.

-- Dr. James Brazzel, center director for USDA-APHIS in Mission growers may petition the commissioner to be the group chosen to implement the eradication foundation in their area and establish eradication zones. Growers from each proposed zone then will vote on whether to participate in the program.

The advisory committee's role is to advise on the rulemaking process designed to protect individuals, livestock and wildlife and the criteria for the boll weevil eradication foundation to follow in developing rules and methods of treatment.

Texas Department of Agriculture named three cotton producers and three entomologists to the 12-member board. Yet to be named are two members appointed by the Texas Water Commission and the office of the governor and one by the Texas Department of Health. The water commission will choose another member on behalf of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission.

When the law goes into effect June 1, organizations representing cotton and a technical advisor for the USDA boll weevil eradication committee.

The eradication legislation allows farmers to vote on creating a Texas cotton foundation that will administer eradication efforts by zones. Cotton producers in each zone will select board members and vote on the eradication plan.

Weed reports requested

All landowners or farm or ranch operators in Deaf Smith County who have noticed uncontrolled field bindweed or musk thistle in the county should request control from the proper authorities, it was announced this week by Dale Kleuskens, Noxious Weed District secretary.

Kleuskens said a written request should go to a Deaf Smith County Commissioner: Tony Castillo, Precinct 1; Lope Chavez, Prec. 2; Troy D. Moore, Prec. 3, or Johnny Latham, Prec. 4.

Five men nominated for USDA positions

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary Mike Espy soon may no longer be the only Clinton administration appointee at the Agriculture Department.

The Senate Agriculture Committee on Wednesday held its first confirmation hearings for nominees to fill key sub-Cabinet positions in the department. All five nominees appear headed for confirmation.

They are:

-Richard E. Rominger of California, to be deputy secretary of agriculture. Rominger is a Sacramento Valley farmers and was director of the state Agriculture Department from 1977-1982.

-Eugene Branstool, a farmer, former state lawmaker and current chairman of the Ohio Democratic Party, to be assistant secretary for marketing and inspection services.

-James R. Lyons, originally from New Jersey and a member of the House Agriculture Committee staff, to be assistant secretary for natural resources and environment.

-Bob J. Nash of Arkansas, to be undersecretary for small community and rural development. Before joining the presidential transition team and the White House personnel office, Nash was president of the Arkansas Development Finance Authority.

-Wardell Townsend Jr. of North Carolina, a former congressional aide to Espy, to be assistant secretary for administration.

Judging team going to state 4-H Roundup

A senior livestock judging team from Deaf Smith County will compete in state 4-H Roundup in June after finishing second in district contests recently. And, a horse contest participant, James Payne, also will go to Roundup in that event.

Michael Carlson was third high individual overall to lead the livestock judging team to a second place district place. He was second in sheep, fifth in cattle and third in reasons. Don Metcalf was second high in hogs and 10th high overall.

Lori Urbanczyk and Trey Skiles took part on the livestock judging team, also. The team compiled a record of first in reasons, second in cattle, fourth in sheep and first in swine.

In the horse contest senior division, James Payne and Courtney Crawford tied for four place in the halter division while Payne claimed high individual honors in performance classes. Overall, Payne was second high individual and Carlson, fifth high individual.

Junior team in horse judging placed second overall in the district show. The team of Ty Boggeman, Jantzen Louder, Miriam Wilks and Joe Mac Boggeman also placed fourth in halter. In individual competition, Amber Brumley was third high in halter, fifth high in performance and four high overall. Ty Boggeman was fifth overall.

Deaf Smith County entered three junior teams in the livestock judging contest. Deaf Smith #1 stood sixth overall and placed second in sheep. Team participants were Cory Marsh, Josh Howley, Brent Carlson and Justin Betzen. Rusty Dutton was high individual in sheep.

Junior teams and individual do not compete at the state level.

Peanut stock drops off

WASHINGTON (AP) - Peanut stocks at the end of March dropped 2 percent from the previous year, the Agriculture Department says.

The department reported Wednesday that stocks in commercial storage totaled 2.74 billion pounds of equivalent farmer stock, compared with 2.79 billion pounds last year. The total includes 1.39 billion pounds of actual farmer stock.

Shelled peanuts on hand totaled 1.26 billion pounds of equivalent farmer stock. Roasting stock totaled 90.6 million pounds. There were 184 million pounds of Commodity Credit Corp. uncommitted stocks on hand as of March 31.

Of the shelled peanut stocks, 917 million pounds were edible grades and 29.2 million were oil stocks.

March millings totaled 489 million pounds.

Commercial processors used 129 million pounds of shelled edible grade peanuts in March. Utilization for all peanut butter products was 72.9 million pounds; for peanut candy, 30 million pounds; and for snack peanuts, 25.1 million pounds. Crushing for oil, cake and meal totaled 52.2 million pounds.

Clinton's National Service Program draws interest

EDITOR'S NOTE - There's nothing new about working your way through college; what's different is doing it in advance. That's sort of what the president's national service program envisions. You could hardly argue with the success of the two measures he liked it to: the Land Grant College Act and the GI Bill.

By JULES LOH

AP Special Correspondent

President Clinton's suggested national service program to help pay college tuitions has the potential, he says, to do for this generation what the Land Grant College Act and the GI Bill did for former generations. A tall order.

His program seems a simple enough attempt to remedy a national problem: the soaring costs that can put higher education out of reach. The plan would allow college-bound students to invest a year or so of labor in the public interest as sort of working collateral against a college loan.

Back when they were passed, those other two measures seemed simple enough as well.

At the time, few would have predicted that, looking back years later, they could be ranked as true landmarks of American legislation. By now both have become molded into the education structure, so commonplace that their inclusion is more or less assumed, like the PTA.

The first, the Land Grant College Act, not only put higher learning within reach of the masses, but irreversibly recognized the federal government as a partner in education with the states. The second, the GI Bill, landed squarely on that precedent and shook up higher education more than even its signers could have dreamed. The author and historian James A. Michener, in a recent magazine article, called it one of the two or three finest acts Congress has ever passed.

What the two programs had in common was that they were both optimistic, both costly, and both signed during times of high anxiety over the country's future - in fact, while the country was at war.

President Abraham Lincoln signed the bill establishing land grant colleges in 1862. It had become evident in the second year of the Civil War that more people were needed who knew how to build bridges, run factories and make the land productive. The aim of the act was to pry higher education from the ivied realm of the privileged and spread it "to those much needed higher instruction for the world's business, for the industrial pursuits and professions of life."

So it did. Land grant colleges - "peoples colleges" as they came to be called - provided the labs that produced the likes of hybrid corn in one era of national need and the digital computer in another.

Four generations later, on June 22, 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the GI Bill. That was barely two weeks after the invasion of Europe and more than a year before the end of World War II.

Its formal name was Public Law 346, the Servicemen's Readjustment Act. It was conceived as a remedy against expected unrest among returning veterans who couldn't find jobs. It provided $500 a year for education plus $50 a month for subsistence ($75 for married couples), as well as low-interest home loans. A few lesser provisions, such as a review of dishonorable discharges, also aimed to stifle potential trouble.

It did not pass without noisy debate.

Opponents saw it as an economically disastrous scheme, "an all-time gravy train" that would suck postwar America into prewar depression. Old allies fell out over its provisions. The American Legion, which practically wrote the bill (and gave it its nickname), lobbied in its favor; other service groups, who thought disabled vets would get short shrift, opposed it.

Many educators, for their part, worried with the president of the University of Chicago, Robert Hutchins, that "colleges and universities will find themselves converted into educational hobo jungles." It was an argument other educators had sounded years before, that land grant colleges would degrade higher education.

But hobo jungles, the campgrounds of Depression drifters, were all too vivid in the memory of many in Congress. So was the bitter bloodshed of the 1932 Bonus Army of jobless World War I veterans. And this time there would be twice as many veterans returning, 15.3 million, after twice as long an absence.

In the end, and in the interest of a nation united in support of its veterans, the vote to pass the GI Bill in both houses of the 78th Congress was unanimous.

The veterans returned to civilian life at the rate of a million a month.

They flocked to schools large and small. Quonset huts and prefab buildings were trucked from closed military bases to 2,600 campuses from coast to coast. They became serviceable classrooms, offices, housing for married students.

In 1947, the peak year, veterans accounted for 49 percent of college enrollment. (At land grant colleges their enrollment was generally higher than the average; 59 percent, for example, at the University of Minnesota.) In 1950 American colleges conferred 496,874 degrees, 162 percent more than in 1939 and a record until the first of the baby boomers began arriving in 1962.

The act's sponsor, Sen. Justin Morrill of Vermont, envisioned more nation's misgivings about the practical use of all the Latin and moral philosophy - studies the editor Horace Greeley called "intellectual luxuries" - being taught in America's prestigious colleges, most of them modeled on a European pattern, all of them expensive.

"utile" courses as he called them, studies dealing with animal husbandry, practical chemistry, drainage engineering and "such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts..." (in brief, A&M) "...without excluding other scientific and classical studies and including military tactics... (in brief, ROTC)."

Well, agriculture remains a trillion-dollar industry, America's largest, thanks mainly to research and extension programs at land grant colleges. The "other scientific" research that has come out of the like of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cornell, Purdue, Rutgers and all the other "peoples colleges" would seem to represent ample return for 30,000 acres per state.

Incidentally, the 20 millionth GI Bill beneficiary, Steven Scott, used his $583 monthly benefits at Ohio State to complete his work toward a degree in the "utile" course of business administration.

Call it poetic fulfillment, true to the original aims of both those monumental milestones of education.

Girls State delegates elected by auxiliary

Kinann Campbell and Jill Walser have been elected as Girls State delegates by members of the American Legion Auxiliary. Named as alternate was Kelly Kelso.

Kinann and Jill, who were recommended to the auxiliary by teachers and counsellors, made presentations of their resumes recently for members of the American Legion Auxiliary, who then elected them as delegates.

The local delegates will be attending the Girls State Convention June 15-24 at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, announced Troyce Hanna, who serves as auxiliary vice president and is membership chairman. Hanna has worked with Girls State as chairman and co-chairman.

Kinann, who is a junior at Hereford High School, is the daughter of Jim and Brenda Campbell. Following graduation, she plans to enroll at Texas Tech University in the fall of 1994. This year, Kinann is vying for the Gold Star in 4-H; is a twirler, and plays the French horn in the high school band. She also shows steers in FFA and is a Concerteer for the Hereford Community Concert Association.

Jill is the 17-year-old daughter of Ken and Jan Walser and is ranked eighth in her junior class. She plans to attend Texas Tech University or Baylor University when she graduates. She holds membership in Keywanettes and the National Honor Society and plays on the varsity basketball team. Jill plans to run for president of her senior class.

Kelly is the 16-year-old daughter of N.D. and Leota Kelso.

Congratulations extended

Troyce Hanna, representing the American Legion Auxiliary, congratulates three Hereford High School students, from left, Kinann Campbell, Jill Walser and Kelly Kelso. Kinann and Jill were elected by the auxiliary as Girls State delegates and Kelly was named as alternate. The Girls State Convention is scheduled June 15-24 at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin.

Nurses Week to be observed here

Deaf Smith General Hospital will be joining hospitals across the nation May 3-10 in observing National Nurses Week.

Comforting a patient, administering medication to a diabetic, scheduling nurses for a shift, documenting care given, assisting in surgery, writing quality assurance plans, teaching a colostomy patient how to care for himself...the tasks of a nurse are as varied as the people in the nursing profession itself.

Men and women of all ages, races and cultural backgrounds compose the 1.8 million registered nurses and more than 2 million licensed vocational nurses in the United States.

The field of nursing is still short on the number of people needed to fill the demand, according to Renee Hammock, director of nursing at DSGH. "Our recruiting efforts are an ongoing job," she said. "We're comfortable with the number of nurses that we have now, but we continue to plan for the future."

Hammock said that the general nursing shortage in the U.S. came about because the number of jobs for nurses has grown so rapidly. "There was a time when most nurses either worked in a hospital or in a doctor's office. Now they work in industry, the schools, hospices, home health and a variety of other areas."

Ms. Hammock explains that there are three levels of nursing: the registered nurse(RN), the licensed vocational nurse(LVN), and the nurse aide. Both the RN and the LVN must pass state examinations to be licensed. An RN may have completed an associate degree of nursing program(ADN), which takes two years, or may have completed a BSN degree(bachelor of science in nursing.)

The LVN training usually takes about 18 months and consists of both classroom work and clinical training in a hospital. After completion of training, the student must pass a state licensing exam. The nurse aide usually receives on-the-job training or takes a special training class.

In a rural hospital, a nurse has the advantage of being cross-trained.

The nurse may be assigned to the obstetrics unit, but he or she may also be trained to work on the medical/surgical unit. "This enhances the quality of care available," Hammock said.

DSGH has 25 RNs, 18 LVNs and 10 nurse aides. Nursing supervisors include RNs Renee Hammock, Donna Kemp, Minnie Roddy, Ross Marquez, and Ellaine Taylor.

May Fellowship Day to be observed

May Fellowship Day, a worship service of Church Women United held annually on the first Friday of May, will be observed in this community at 10:30 a.m. Friday, May 7. The Hereford Unit of Church Women United is sponsoring the celebration entitled, "Human Touch, Divine Healing", at St. Thomas Episcopal Church located at 601 W. Park Ave.

May Fellowship Day, although celebrated nationally, focuses on unity and issues within the local community. It began in 1933 as two separate functions: a luncheon sponsored by the women's council for Home Missions, which was concerned with "child health" and children of migrant families, and a Dedication Day sponsored by the National Council of Federated Church Women to encourage community interest in the social concerns of local councils of church women. In 1939, the two were merged under the National Council of Church Women. In 1945, it was officially named May Fellowship Day.

Eloise McDougal, past president of Texas and current chairperson of the local unit of CWU, has reported that Kathryn Acton, Crown of Texas Hospice Nurse from Hereford and other local women, will be participating in the service.

A secret may be sometimes best kept by keeping the secret of its being a secret.

May Fellowship Day Celebration is an opportunity for all men and women of the community and surrounding area to come together as one for prayer and recognition of God's grace and healing in our lives.

MR. AND MRS. ANDREW JOSEPH STENGEL

Miller, Stengel wed

Whitney Ann Miller and Andrew Joseph Stengel were united in marriage Feb. 27 in the First Baptist Church of Dalhart. Officiating at the afternoon ceremony was Pastor Gene Amerson and Travis LaDuke.

The bride is the daughter of Terri Miller of Dalhart and the late Harry Miller of Littlefield. The bridegroom's parents are Beth Stengel of Amarillo and J.W. Stengel of Hereford.

The bride was escorted by her grandfather.

Serving as matron of honor was Annette Herman of Hays, Kan. Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Shana Miller and Darcy Miller of Dalhart, and the groom's sister, Babette Spinhirne, also of Dalhart. Junior bridesmaid was Tara Sherrod of Canyon, the bride's cousin.

Flower girl was Micah Stengel of Hereford, the groom's niece. Serving as ring bearer was Daniel Lazar of Dallas, the groom's nephew.

Candles were lit by the groom's nephew, Robby Stengel of Hereford.

The groom's brother, Mickey Stengel of Dallas, was best man. Groomsmen were Richard Stengel of Hereford, the groom's brother; David Spinhirne of Dalhart, the groom's brother-in-law; and Roy Salazar of Austin.

Guests were escorted by Joseph Albracht and Warren Cornelius, both of Amarillo; Kelly Cassels, Hobbs, N.M.; and Brian Urbanczyk of Hereford.

The bride's aunt, Carolyn Sherrod of Canyon, was floral designer.

Wedding guests were registered by Brenda Wilkinson of Littlefield. Jeni D. Brunson, also of Littlefield, was the wedding coordinator.

Darla Stengel and Melanie Dzierba, both of Hereford, were the featured vocalists accompanied by Sharon Wood, organist. Reader was the bride's cousin, Lisa Baker of Amarillo.

The reception was held at the bridal couple's country home. The dinner and dance were hosted by David and Babette Spinhirne. Decorations included life-size sketches of the bridal couple drawn by Darla Stengel of Hereford.

The bride was honored with a luncheon on the day of the wedding hosted by Helen Childers and Carolyn Sherrod. It was held at the Dalhart Country Club.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for the woman who wrote to say she would love it if her daughter-in-law called her "Mom" but didn't know if she should keep bring it up.

Lady, back off. She'll do it when she feels like it and not one day sooner. My mother passed away a few years before I married. I barely knew my mother-in-law because she lived in another city. She let me know when I became engaged to her son that she wanted me to call her "Mom". I kept trying to force myself, but I couldn't get the word out of my mouth. I knew she was hurt, but I just couldn't do it. I respected her, and we had a good relationship, but call her Mom? Never!

I vowed never to do that to my daughter-in-law. It will be enough if she likes me. The best part of all this is that my husband knew how I felt and never tried to push it. Just sign me--Lucky in Lehigh Valley, Pa.

DEAR LUCKY: I was surprised at the depth of emotions that letter stirred up. The next letter is from a woman who had the opposite problem!

DEAR ANN: I was 20 years old when I married "Harvey." His family was not thrilled with me, because they were socially prominent, and my family was working class.

I didn't know what to call his mother, so I asked Harvey. He said, "Why don't you ask her what she would prefer?" Well, I did. Her answer was, "Call me 'Mrs. Smith' since that is my name."

Ann, for 35 years, I call her "Mrs. Smith" but I had the delicious satisfaction of having three daughters-in-law who called me "Mom" in her presence. That evened the score in ways too wonderful to describe. Houston

FROM TOKYO: I realize that most of your readers are Americans and Canadians, and your replies must be designed for the majority. In Japan, however, where we read your column in the Asahi Evening News, we were quite surprised that you advised the mother-in-law to suggest to her son's wife that she call her "Mom."

If the young woman is not comfortable with such intimacy, it would pose a real problem. My sister and I feel that no suggestions to that effect should be made. It is up to the daughter-in-law to decide what she wants to call her mother-in-law and when. --Faithful Readers

OMAHA: My son, Gerald, married a woman seven years younger than me. It was his second marriage and her fourth. For the first year, she called me "Gladys" or "Elizabeth" (my first name is Martha) and on occasion, "Marie." These were the names of her previous mothers-in-law. When I accidentally called her "Janet," the name of Gerald's first wife, she corrected me gently and said, "OK. Now we're even." We had a good laugh and have been much closer ever since.

LOUISVILLE: I grew up with the idea that feelings were more important than titles. I hope my future son-in-law and daughter-in-law will call me "Mom." If they aren't comfortable with that, I will suggest they use my first name. "Mrs." has a formality that carries the unspoken message, "Keep your distance."

PHOENIX: Everyone in my wife's family has a crazy sense of humor. When I married into that clan, I asked my mother-in-law what I should call her. She said, "I don't care what you call me, just don't call me collect." You guessed it, Ann. We've been calling her "Collect" ever since.

GEM OF THE DAY: There is so much nudity in films these days that next year's Oscar for costume design will undoubtedly go to a dermatologist.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a practicing dentist who is deeply disturbed by the dishonesty I see all around me. Almost every week, I'm asked to commit insurance fraud. Of course, I refuse, but I wonder how many others submit to the temptation.

One patient asked me to use his brother's insurance card number. Another asked me to write a prescription in his name since he was insured, but it was to be used by an uninsured friend. I've been asked to overbill and increase the dollar amount so the patient's account would be credited for more than the actual cost. In this way, the patient would not have to pay the insurance deductible.

Patients always suggest these things in complete privacy, and it's never a woman. It seems only men have the nerve to make such requests.

I have spoken to several colleagues about this, and they say it happens regularly to them as well. With all this chiseling going on, is it any wonder that health care is in such a mess?--Somewhere in Wisconsin

DEAR WISCONSIN: There is nothing new under the sun. Every gimmick and rip-off stunt has been tried before. Health care professionals who fiddle around with the paperwork could be setting themselves up for professional suicide. Investigators know exactly what to look for.

I hope your letter and my response will serve as a warning to those who are considering insurance fraud. It's not worth it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I disagree with your advice to "Liquid Assets in Michigan" the woman whose fiance was a wild spender. You told her they could have a successful marriage if her fiance had no charge cards or checking accounts and if she handled the money and put him on an allowance. Wrong advice, Ann.

When "Dick" courted me, I had a fine career, excellent credit and money in the bank. After we married, he became a reckless spender and overdrew our account so drastically that we were often left with very little money for rent, food and utilities.

When things got out of hand, Dick's boss contacted us about full payment of his employee charge account--$6,400. Although the account had a $5,000 limit, Dick had charmed the young female clerk into allowing him "extra privileges."

Dick was soon $20,000 in debt. One year after our marriage, we declared bankruptcy. Eighteen months later, I discovered he had forged my name on a check. That's when I walked out.

After our divorce, I had trouble getting an apartment because of my lousy credit. Now, my new husband and I can't qualify for a loan. I've insisted that he not place me on any checking or savings accounts so that my rotten credit record doesn't tarnish his.

Tell "Michigan" to hold onto her wallet and run. I wish I had--Sadder But Wiser in Sacramento

DEAR SAC: Thanks for the testimonial. As my dear father used to say, "If you go to bed with dogs, don't be surprised if you get up with fleas."

And by the way, according to my mail, being a co-signer has been the source of more soured relationships than sex. Unless the collateral is rock solid, it can be a very bad idea.

GEM OF THE DAY: If at first you don't succeed, you're about average.

The Brand welcomes news of friends, relatives, grandkids. Send to The Brand, Box 673, or call us. We're interested in local news!

Reception held for local youth

A reception honoring the 1993 DAR Good Citizens and the American History Essay winners was held recently at the Hereford Community Center. Hosting the event were members of the Los Ciboleros Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Brandy Dunn and Amy Beck, students at Hereford High School and Dimmitt High School, respectively, are the 1993 DAR Good Citizens. They were given special recognition as were the American History Essay winners and their families who were present: Colleen Michele Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Kelley; Robert Nelson Beville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beville; Audra Renea Witkowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Witkowski; Claire Cook, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald Cook; Nicholas Paschel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Paschel; James Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Miller.

Also, Amy Dawn Ruland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ruland; Diana I. Detten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Detten; Aja Nicole Albiar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Albiar; and Kristen Renee Fangman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Fangman.

There are a lot of things going on this month in Hereford. The Girls golf team will be playing in the State Golf meet the 13th & 14th, the Family Film on the 20th, Senior Prom on the 22nd, Graduation on the 28th, Memorial Day Holiday on the 31st (the library will be closed that day) & LaJuan Fowler will be taking a trip to Alaska, so get your orders in for mementos you wish her to get for you. LaJuan says she will require a donation to accompany each memento request. We wish her a safe and happy journey.

With all of the things going on this month you won't have enough time to do anything but read during the few spare moments you might have between major events. The new books this week include several fast reading, attention holding titles. Nelson Demille's The General's Daughter begins with the murder of Captain Ann Campbell the daughter of General "Fighting Joe" Campbell. Ann, a West Point graduate is bright, beautiful, and the pride of Fort Hadley. Ann's rape and murdered body is found staked on the firing range bound by tent rope, but there is no sign of a struggle. Paul Brenner, a member of the Army's elite undercover investigative unit, finds the case fascinating, reckless, and dangerous. Brenner has the authority to arrest any military person anywhere in the world and now he will find out just how much power really has. Cynthia Sunhill, an old girl friend, is assigned to the case with Brenner. Her expertise in case of rape help discover the truth hidden beneath the neatly pressed uniforms of the military code of honor, pride, and rank.

John Sanford is back with another spell-binding story. Winter Prey is set in the remote, dark Wisconsin woods. Detective Lucas Davenport has a cabin up there and is there for a much needed rest when the Sheriff asks for his help. There has been a bizarre murder that has left a man, woman and child lying dead in the snow. The machete like knife had gone through the man's head. As Davenport sifts through the ashes of the house, other crimes begin to merge. The evidence shows an evil that even Davenport is unfamiliar with. Will Davenport's skills be enough to solve the case, capture the killer and insure his own survival?

Alex Haley's Queen is the "sweeping generational epic" of his father's family. The story begins in Ireland with the birth of James Jackson, Sr. As James emigrates to America and to Nashville you meet other personalities such as Andrew Jackson the future President of the United States. James makes his fortune and builds a grand plantation in Alabama called the "Forks of Cypress." Son, Jass Jackson inherits the plantation just as the "gentle" ways of life begin to crumble. As an adolescent Jass is attracted to the beautiful, strong willed slave named Ester. Their union resulted in the birth of Queen, the heroine of the tale is Alex Haley's grandmother.

Judith McNaught's new book Perfect introduces us to Julia Mathison, a spirited, proud beauty who passionately lives her ideals. Judith had grown up in the foster homes of Chicago until she was adopted by the Mathison family. Within a family that shared love, and emotional support for Julia. Putting her past behind her Julia graduated from college and is now a third grade teacher in a small Texas town. Determined to share the love and kindness she had received Julia devotes herself to her younger charges. Julia meets Zack Benedict near a roadside cafe just outside Amarillo when he came to help her fix a tire. Unknown to Julia Zachary Benedict has just escaped from the Amarillo prison and is desperate to reach Colorado. Julia soon finds herself forced to drive north with a man who was convicted of murdering his wife. Zack must reach Colorado and find the real murderer who had cheated Zack out of his happiness, his future and his fortune. Julia at the beginning comes to believe Zack is innocent but still fears the unknown events that are sure to come.

Other titles of interest are: Angel by Barbara Taylor of Bradford.

"I" is for Judgment by Sue Grafton.

Where There's Smoke by Sandra Brown.

Club makes donation

La Madre Mia Study Club President Nicky Walser, at left, recently made a donation on behalf of the club to the Friends of the Library. The money will be used to help purchase a video projector for Deaf Smith County Library. Accepting the contribution is Librarian Rebecca Walls.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-H.E.
FOOD SAFE-PART I

Summer time brings a different type of food preparation for many families. "Food Safe" is a concerted effort to provide accurate information to audiences in order to help them learn or renew food safety practices. The next two months of Extension News will feature "Food Safe" information.

Each year between 6.5 and 81 million Americans suffer from foodborne illness. In most cases, the illness can be prevented by proper handling of food.

Why the concern about foodborne illness? The unpleasant symptoms of a simple case of foodborne illness may necessitate absence from school or work, a visit to the doctor, perhaps with some economic inconveniences, and, in severe cases, intensive medical care. Health consequences may include nausea, diarrhea, vomiting, headache and fever. In some severe cases, resulting dehydration or complications from other existing health conditions may require hospitalization. Costs of foodborne illness include medical care, lost wages, public health investigation, lost food service business and, increasingly, public action. The total costs of foodborne illness in the United States is estimated to be $17 billion a year.

What causes foodborne illness? The most commonly reported foodborne illnesses are caused by bacteria. Ironically, these are also the easiest foodborne illnesses to prevent. Bacteria are unicellular microscopic organisms present in almost all environments. The bacteria that cause foodborne illness are called pathogens. It's also important to note that some bacteria are beneficial.

Foodborne illness outbreaks are most often associated with moist, high protein foods such as meat, poultry, dairy products, seafood and eggs. This is because these pathogens grow at or near mammalian body temperatures. Most bacteria that cause foodborne illness grow best at temperatures between 40 degrees F and 140 degrees F.

Some bacteria cause foodborne illness characterized as an infection, others as intoxications. Infections occur when "enough" live bacterial cells produce an infection or when these cells reproduce in the intestine. Intoxications occur when certain bacteria grow to a point where toxins are produced. The food is consumed and the toxins cause illness. The amount of toxin produced is dependent upon the number of bacteria present, bacteria need not be present to cause illness after the toxin is formed.

What do bacteria need to grow? For growth, bacteria need:

- Nutrients, which are obtained from the food source
- Moisture, which is obtained from the water in the food

- An adequate temperature for growth (ideal is at or near human body temperature)
- Adequate time for growth to occur (usually 20 minutes if all other conditions are optimum)

Atmospheric conditions, which vary for different types of bacteria. Certain bacteria can grow with oxygen only, referred to as aerobic; only in the absence of oxygen, referred to as anaerobic; or in either condition, referred to as facultative aerobic and anaerobic.

Growth occurs in a geometric fashion. That means one bacterial cell can reproduce to several million in a period of 8 hours.

The goal of safe food handling practices is to prevent or slow the growth of these pathogenic bacteria.

There is a difference between organisms that cause foodborne illness and those that cause food to spoil. Bad taste, appearance and smell basically make it obvious when food has spoiled. Often the bacteria that cause foodborne illness cannot be detected.

What foods are most susceptible? Moist, protein-containing foods (meats, poultry, seafood, eggs, and dairy products) have traditionally been identified as providing the most desirable food source for bacteria and, therefore, are the most susceptible. As scientific knowledge has progressed, it is now known that almost any type of food can support harmful bacterial growth (Clostridium botulinum in potatoes, sauteed onions; Salmonella in cantaloupes.) This is because the environment (the soil, the air, people, etc.) harbors bacteria.

Also, any "safe" food can become cross contaminated. This is because bacteria hitchhike. Under the right conditions, almost any food can be a vehicle. A study of outbreaks between 1977 and 1984 showed that the foods most often identified in outbreaks were:

- Seafood (raw clams)
 - Meats (roast beef, ham)
 - Poultry (turkey, chicken)
 - Salads (potato, chicken)
 - Chinese food (fried rice)
 - Mexican style food (beans, meat)
- Any foods that require extensive handling, such as egg or meat salads, ground meat dishes, etc., run an extra risk of contamination from handling and human error.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Shannon Jensen feted with bridal shower

Shannon Jensen, bride-elect of Malcolm Riggins, was honored with a bridal shower recently in the home of Sheri Kerr.

Rowland named best speaker

Jigger Rowland was chosen as the best speaker by members of the Hereford Toastmasters Club when the group met Thursday morning at the Ranch House.

Bob Lohr was the best evaluator and Wayne Winget was the best topic speaker.

Clint Savoini led the pledge and the invocation was given by Dee Hamilton. Vice president Rick Jackson presided over the business meeting.

Serving as toastmaster was Chris Leonard; timer, Winget; "ah" counter, Dr. M.C. Adams; grammarian, Clark Andrews; wordmaster, Margaret Del Toro; and the chosen word, "medieval."

Clint Savoini was topicmaster and topic speakers included Rowland, Margaret Del Toro, Winget, Leonard, Hamilton and Adams.

Rick Jackson spoke on "A Better Way", evaluated by Lohr, and Rowland spoke on "A Lump in the Oatmeal" evaluated by Sharon Kramer.

Margaret Del Toro gave the reading and the joke was told by Savoini. Dave Kimmel was general evaluator.

Ralph Barndt was welcomed as a guest.

Table decorations and refreshments depicted the shower's theme, "Mexican Fiesta." Punch, guso, chips, cheese pinwheels and an avocado layered dip sat atop a multi-colored serape.

Miss Jensen broke a piñata which contained a variety of kitchen gadgets and recipes given to her by the hostesses.

Serving as hostesses were Sheri Kerr, Jane Gulley, Kathy Kerr, Lynn Kriegshauser, Martha DeBord, DeAnn Mathews, Rosemary Shook, Bea Sciumbato, Shirley Wilson, Carolyn Waters, Johnnie Turrentine and Mary Carter.

Hobbies, skills provide new means of income

Job worries and the economy are causing more people to look for ways to make money.

Starting with a small budget of $10 to $1,000, people are discovering that they can convert a hobby, skill, or work experience into a simple money-making opportunity. Some people are earning a few dollars an hour, others over $50,000 a year, says small business expert Will Davis.

He describes an older couple who love to travel. They often make over $1,000 a weekend selling inexpensive jewelry at malls and flea markets in several states. In addition, they can take tax deductions for many of their expenses.

A woman in Utah started with a few inexpensive materials to teach small girls and boys how much fun sewing can be. Now she also sells the project for others to teach.

Davis uses the word Mini-biz to describe this simple way to make money. "The average person can earn money this way because age and education are often not important. A Mini-biz can usually be operated from home. It can be full or part-time, so you don't have to quit your job. Together, these advantages can lead to a money-making opportunity with very little risk for almost anyone willing to try."

An ardent golfer in Georgia organizes golf tournaments for companies. He gets to play golf as part of his "business." A college student in Washington started with almost no cash, and paid for his college education by just cleaning - not repairing - personal computers.

Experienced businessmen and women are using the Mini-biz approach to offer their expertise to both businesses and individuals.

Because the risk is small, more people should try, Davis advises. He cites case after case where ordinary people have started with almost nothing, just using what they know.

They are earning good money doing such simple things as selling, repairing, teaching, consulting, helping, creating, baking, writing, growing, promoting, cleaning, painting, hauling, making things...and on and on.

Davis's 264-page guidebook, Mind Your Own Mini-Business, provides complete and easy-to-follow advice on how to get started and be successful. If you need ideas for what you might do, the guidebook describes hundreds of opportunities and gives the names and addresses of over 200 companies with inexpensive programs that are ready for you to try.

Mind Your Own Mini-Business is available from The Success Team, Box 98205-K, Raleigh, NC 27624, for $16.95 plus $2 shipping and handling, with a full 30-day guarantee. Orders by VISA, MasterCard, or American Express call toll-free 1-800-989-3311, Ext. 41.

Actors excel in ABC's grim 'Murder in the Heartland'

Monday and Tuesday on ABC, Tim Roth plays Charlie Starkweather in Murder in the Heartland, a miniseries that chronicles the infamous killer's 44-hour spree that held the citizens of rural Nebraska prisoners in their own homes. Faluza Balk co-stars as Carl Ann Fugate, Starkweather's 14-year-old girlfriend.

Slow pacing mars otherwise well-executed effort

By Steven Alan McGaw

They declared me unfit to live! Said into that great void my soul'd be hurled! They wanted to know why I did what I did! Well sir, I guess there's just a meanness in this world.

So sings Bruce Springsteen in "Nebraska," the haunting title track of his acclaimed 1982 acoustic album. The "speaker" in this song is killer Charlie Starkweather, the rebellious 19-year-old who murdered a teenage gas station attendant in December 1957, and went on a 44-hour rampage a month later, killing 10 people, including his 14-year-old girlfriend's mother, stepfather and 2-year-old baby sister.

Over 1,000 policeman and a back-up unit from the National Guard were mobilized to apprehend Starkweather and his girlfriend, Carl Ann Fugate. They were caught fleeing west into Wyoming. Quickly tried and convicted, Starkweather went to the electric chair the following June, still boastful of what he'd done. As for Fugate, jurors were forced to decide whether to believe the killer's testimony that she was a willing accomplice, or the teenager's fervent assertions that she had, in effect, been Starkweather's hostage.

Terence Malick's gripping 1973 film Badlands, starring Martin Sheen and Sissy Spacek, is a fictionalized account of the Starkweather case. But the disturbing particulars of his killing spree, and the subsequent drama played out in the Nebraska courts, have never been brought to the screen.

Until now. On Monday and Tuesday, May 3 and 4, ABC presents Murder in the Heartland, a four-hour miniseries that brings to chilling life the bloody rampage that held rural Nebraskans virtual prisoners in their homes while lawmen combed the highways for the elusive killer. Working from court trans-scripts, newspaper accounts and personal interviews (including a rare conversation with Fugate), executive producer Michael O'Hara has written a script that documents both the chronological events of Starkweather's spree and the nightmarish emotional toll it exacted from his victims, other involved parties and the citizens of Nebraska.

British actor Tim Roth (Bodies, Rest and Motion) plays Starkweather and admits his job was not easy. "My aim," Roth explains, "was to get to a point where I could justify, in whatever warped way, what Charlie did. But it was disturbing to go places within yourself you don't normally go. Sometimes, I felt, I just don't want to be this person today."

Roth is appropriately chilling as Starkweather, though the killer's emotional workings remain maddeningly opaque. Still, it's an effective performance and a fine follow-up to Roth's powerful turn in last year's brutal Reservoir Dogs.

Randy Quaid embodies dogged determination in his portrayal of prosecutor

MURDER

Elmer Scheele, and Brian Dennehy does a creditable job as John McArthur, Fugate's devoted attorney.

But it is the fascinating, energetic performance of Fairuz Balk as Caril Ann Fugate that gives the miniseries its much-needed drive. She is, at once, innocent and seductive, sweet and savage, and the complexity of her portrayal enables the movie to preserve the ambiguity of just what Fugate's role was.

Murder in the Heartland is a laudable effort and well worth watching. Sadly, director Robert Markowitz paces his project like an ailing snail, but the crisp dialogue, the actors' energy and the story itself make it a compelling document of one of the darkest and most inexplicable events in American history.

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The bar has a classic look, all warm, burnished wood and mellow brass. Sports mementos constitute decor. For 11 years, this has been the home, and the heart, of another classic - NBC's "Cheers."

When the series' final episode airs on May 20, the tavern set may be headed for the Smithsonian. "Cheers" itself goes into the books as a stylish, witty sitcom that never let down its characters, or audience.

The longest-running comedy now on TV ends with a 90-minute show cloaked in sentiment as well as laughs. It's a fitting conclusion for a series that drew humor from human foibles, not star turns or cheap one-liners.

There were, of course, GREAT one-liners, such as the oft-quoted lament uttered by barfly Norm: "It's a dog-eat-dog world - and I'm wearing Milk Bone underwear."

But creators-producers James Burrows and Glen and Les Charles knew the best comedy was spun from character.

"That's the kind of comedy that drew us into the business, that we admired watching," said Les Charles.

"I don't know that a lot of our jokes would be that funny if you saw them out of context."

In the early years, "Cheers" viewers reveled in the unlikely passion of Diane Chambers (Shelley Long), with her overwrought intellect, and womanizing Sam Malone (Ted Danson), he of the underdeveloped sensitivity.

Then there was Diane and Dr. Frasier Crane (Kelsey Grammer). Diane and Sam. Sam and politician Janet Eldridge (Kate Mulgrew). And Sam and Diane. But Diane walked out of his life when Miss Long left "Cheers" in 1987.

Fireworks between Malone and snobbish, skittish Rebecca Howe (Kirstie Alley) followed, as did the yuppie love of psychiatrists Frasier and Lilith Sternin Crane (Bebe Neuwirth).

Through it all, Rhea Perlman as Carla, the rowdy barmaid, and George Wendt and John Ratzenberger as loyal customers Norm and Cliff were firmly planted as the eccentric, wisecracking bleacher bums.

The sweetness at the center came first from Nicholas Colasanto as lovable bartender Coach, and then fresh-faced Woody Harrelson after Colasanto's heart attack death in

Les Charles is quick to credit them all with a hefty share of the show's success.

"For a television series, especially a comedy, to work, there has to be some kind of magic or chemistry that takes place between actors and their roles," he says.

"You always cast for talent, acting skills, the right look. But then something has to take over, a kind of growth process. In our case, it happened with just not one or two characters, but eight or nine."

The series about a Boston tavern run by Sam Malone, a former Red Sox pitcher who has overcome alcoholism but not vanity, premiered Sept. 30, 1982, on NBC. "Cheers" wasn't an immediate hit with viewers.

It was hindered by NBC's status as the No. 3 network. (Talk about full circle, "Cheers" leaves a network once again in the cellar.) The show also lacked big-name stars and found viewer resistance to a barroom comedy.

But then-NBC president Grant Tinker brought his clout to bear and gave "Cheers" the time it needed to draw fans. In its third year, 1984-85, it finally broke into the ranks of the top 25 shows for the season.

After that, "Cheers" never finished out of the top 10. The easy banter, the increasingly popular cast, the well-crafted series with the fine look of film, not tape, became a Thursday night appointment for many.

It went on to garner a record 111 Emmy nominations. It won 26 Emmy Awards, tying "Hill Street Blues" and second only to the 29 awards of

"The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

While the customers kept on coming back, the barkeep decided it was final call for him.

Danson had made noises about quitting the series for the past few years. He finally decided 11 seasons were enough, despite his reported earnings of $450,000 a week.

"It was time for me to move on," the actor said recently. "I'm not leaving it to go off and do something better. I'm not stupid."

And, he added, "It seems a little sad being 'Sammy' at 45."

The producers quickly discarded the idea of going on without Danson. For struggling NBC, which last year lost another venerable comedy in "Cosby," the end of "Cheers" was a hard blow.

"We just said, 'No. We can't break up this family,'" Les Charles recounted.

"And, in our minds, the show was about Ted and the bar. The romantic entanglements, the smooth ensemble work were all important, but, 'You'd lose the center of gravity if Ted weren't there.'

When a series goes out beloved, there's an obligation to make the farewell a smash. Miss Long's much-touted return as Diane Chambers contributes a fair share of the laughs as well as tenderness.

"We've been so worried about the last episode," says Les Charles.

"It was a totally different problem we faced in writing it. It had to be emotionally satisfying for the cast and audience. But we didn't want to over-exploit the emotion."

"I don't think we'll know until it airs."

Woodward plays reality role

By SCOTT WILLIAMS
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Joanne Woodward puts on a character like a second skin and walks around inside her.

In "Blind Spot," Sunday night's Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation on CBS, she plays U.S. Rep. Nell Harrington, a member of Congress who aspires to the U.S. Senate, and whose family is shattered by drug addiction.

Nell Harrington is an intriguing character, but is she walking around inside Joanne Woodward? "It's been my perception through the years that the people I know who are the most together and in charge are usually, somewhere, missing a stitch," she said.

In 1978, the actress lost her stepson, Scott Newman, to an accidental overdose of alcohol and the tranquilizer diazepam. She and her husband, Paul Newman, established the Scott Newman Center for drug education and recovery.

About five years ago, the center began to explore the long-range problems of drug-affected babies. She encountered the children and determined to do something to get the issue before the public.

Woodward, a co-producer, said "Blind Spot" started out as a very different kind of story, but emerged after three years' work.

"I wanted it to be something that people could not reject out of hand by saying, 'Oh, that's a minority problem,'" she said. "That's why we purposely put it in the upper middle class."

When a death in Nell Harrington's family is linked to cocaine abuse, the congresswoman must confront the press in her grief, just as Woodward and Newman had to endure the public eye after Scott's death.

Nell, she said, is the ultimate control freak who can cope with anything, even a personal tragedy. Only when she's forced to confront untidy home truths does her character begin to show its darker side.

"I've had that happen in interviews, years ago, when I was very young," Woodward said. "I had this perceived notion of what I was ... brought up by a nice Southern mother and had good manners. ...

"It always came as such a shock if someone would ask me something that I considered untoward. I either was so stunned that I was totally unable to cope with it, or I would revert and become this" - she pauses for the right word and smiles - "virago."

There's no quarrelsome, shrewish woman here. There's an Academy and Emmy award-winning actress who's at the top of her form, doing the work that she loves so well.

"If it works, if the script works in my terms, that work gets done in some kind of subconscious fashion," she said.

"It comes from a childhood, I think, of playing make-believe," she said. "This fortunately allowed me to go into doing what I like doing and what I did best - 'cause I didn't know how to do anything else."

Soviet 'Monster,' British scandals

By Dan Rice

The genocidal Soviet leader Josef Stalin is the subject of the four-part biography series Monster: A Portrait of Stalin in Blood, beginning Tuesday, May 4, on The Discovery Channel. The Russian-made documentary contains footage from the official Soviet archives never before seen in the West.

Neo-Nazis in America are the focus of Skinheads USA: Soldiers of the Race War, the latest edition of HBO's America Undercover debuting Tuesday. The filmmakers were granted rare access to various Skinhead factions, including visits to White Power rallies and one group's rural headquarters outside Birmingham, Ala., where ATF agents launch a raid for the organization's federal weapons violations.

It's more peaceful in the cooler climes. The Grammy winning Nitty Gritty Dirt Band helps commemorate the 50th anniversary of the building of the Alaska Highway in Northern Circle: The Dirt Band Plays Alaska, airing Monday, May 3, on TNN. The musical road trip includes a visit with the Chilkat Indian Dancers.

Anglophiles will find the start of A&E's "Monarchy Month" a trifle mucky with an Investigative Reports look at The Troubled House of Windsor, airing Sunday, May 2. But the outlook improves on Tuesday, when Biography profiles Queen Elizabeth II, who this year is celebrating the 40th anniversary of her ascension to the throne.

LET'S TALKFoster caught on film many times before 'Accused'

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My friend and I have a bet, and we need your help. My friend says that when Jodie Foster starred in the movie The Accused, it was only her second or third major role. I say that she has had numerous roles in movies. Which of us is right? -Timothy Andrew Cannon, Sacramento, Calif.

A: You are. Born in 1962, Foster made her screen debut at the age of 10 with a starring role in Disney's Napoleon and Samantha. (She had been doing TV commercials and print ads since she was 3, including posing as the Coppertone child.) Foster played Becky Thatcher in 1973's Tom Sawyer, and as a teen had leading roles in Taxi Driver (1976), Bugsy Malone (1976), Freaky Friday (1977), Candleshoe (1977) and Foxes (1980). After taking time out for a Yale education, Foster returned to film work in adult roles.

Q: I saw a great picture years ago but can't remember its name. Leslie Caron played the daughter of Charles Boyer, who owned a bar. Caron fell in love with Horst Buchholz, who left to go to sea, and she found out she was pregnant when he was gone and married Maurice Chevalier. Can you tell me what the title is? -Ernestine Murphy, Sedona, Ariz.

A: The name of that film is Fanny, a 1961 feature which delighted audience members with lush photography and fine performances that were worthy of several Oscar nominations. Incidentally, the home video version of this film includes an animated short and previews of "coming attractions" Splendor in the Grass and The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone to simulate a night at the movies during that period.

Q: In regard to Lorenzo Lamas, now playing in the Renegade series, who is his real mother and is she still alive? -Ms. Daniel Bonillas, Soulsbyville, Calif.

A: Lamas is the fortunate son of actress Arlene Dahl (Jamaica Run, Kisses for My President), who is 64 years old, and actor Fernando Lamas, who has passed away. Lamas was once rumored to have told his mom, "Mother, I want to be a star ... I mean an actor," to which she replied, "I heard you the first time." Needless to say, Lamas' entertainment inroads opened quite a few doors, the most notable of which was one leading to his starring role on Falcon Crest.

TRIVIA, ETC.Time for a Liz quiz

By Steven Alan McGaw

Thursday, May 6, on ABC, Elizabeth Taylor will receive the Lifetime Achievement Award from the American Film Institute. It's a good time, then, for a quiz on her film career.

Questions:

1. Elizabeth Taylor made her screen debut in what film?
2. Name her first film for MGM.
3. Butterfield 8 brought Taylor her first Oscar; identify the film for which she won her second Academy Award.
4. Taylor offered her salary as insurance for the troubled friend she hoped would be her co-star in 1967's Reflections in a Golden Eye. Sadly, the actor died before filming could begin. Name the star and his replacement.
5. In how many films did Taylor work with Richard Burton?
6. In a 1972 comedy, one of Taylor's co-stars also directed the film. Who?
7. Peter Ustinov directed Hannibal.
8. His Divorce stars, Bonnie and Clyde.
9. Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?
10. National Velvet.

Answers:

1952's A Place in the Sun is one of the treasured films spotlighted in The American Film Institute Salute to Elizabeth Taylor, Thursday on ABC. Pictured are Taylor and Montgomery Clift.

SOAP TALKTeamwork makes for brighter 'Days'

By Candace Havens

If you're a fan of Days, you've noticed that the "hooks" (cliffhangers) at the end of each show have become more dramatic to entice you to watch the next day. There is more romance and intrigue now, and there's more of the normal side of each character's life, too. Characters do more with their friends and don't spend the entire show either drooling over or fighting with their supposed "soul mate."

Cancellations harsh for television

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The TV networks, on the verge of announcing fall programming schedules, are getting their ducks in a row. Unfortunately, they may be preparing to use the best for target practice.

A rare number of outstanding series are on the air and on the line this year, including "Homefront," "Brooklyn Bridge" and "The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles." Fans are braced.

"I think this could be the biggest massacre ever," said a glum Dorothy Swanson, founder of the 9-year-old, 2,500-member Viewers for Quality Television.

The group is calling on each network to keep at least one outstanding but low-rated show when the 1993-1994 schedules are announced next month.

Support is being rallied elsewhere: Newspapers and magazines are drawing readers into rescue campaigns. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People expressed its dismay to NBC that "Homicide: Life on The Street" may be canceled.

The networks deserve credit for giving some pretty terrific programs a tryout. But when ratings sink, so do the hearts and good intentions (yes, they claim to have both) of TV executives.

For a moment, let's admire some sterling, endangered members in the 1992-93 flock:

"Homefront," on ABC, is an evocative take on post-World War II America that boasts a uniformly excellent cast.

CBS' "Brooklyn Bridge" is another nostalgic look back, examining the life of a Jewish family circa 1950.

ABC's "Young Indiana Jones" has filmmaker George Lucas' guiding hand behind it as it plays ingeniously with history and heroism.

More riches on the small screen: NBC's "Homicide," from another acclaimed movie director, Barry Levinson, offers a fresh, gritty look at the cop drama.

CBS' "Picket Fences," a well-spun tale from writer-producer David E. Kelley, gives us imaginative stories and the chance to savor the acting of Kathy Baker and Tom Skerritt each week.

And perhaps the most lamented, NBC's "I'll Fly Away."

"To think, in our society, out of the hundreds of hours of television, there's not room for an hour or two a week for something that beautiful," says "Brooklyn Bridge" co-producer Sam Weisman, a "Fly Away" fan.

Cancellations will carry a harsh message, Ms. Swanson contends.

"It means a segment of the viewing audience is being dismissed along with these shows," she said. "It is the same viewers who are watching all these shows, intelligent viewers who don't go into a vegetative state in front of the TV."

The networks, trying desperately to keep their footing amid growing competition, insist they can't back shows that lack mass viewership. Forget the idea of a loss leader, as some hopeful boosters suggest.

The argument that a No. 1 network like CBS can reserve a tiny niche for quality just doesn't wash, the industry insists. Business is business - and television is first and foremost a business.

If a show doesn't carry its own weight, and quickly, it isn't getting a break.

In the early 1980s, because of the enthusiastic support of then-NBC President Grant Tinker, "Cheers" survived two low-rated seasons before it went on to become a hit.

If you want to find loyalty and steadfastness like that now in TV, flip on "Lassie" reruns.

Reynolds far from burning out

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Burt Reynolds arrived late for an interview with the excuse that he had been laboring over a congratulatory letter to his old buddy, Clint Eastwood, double Oscar winner for "Unforgiven."

Reynolds reported that he signed the letter, "Phoenix, rising from the ashes - you give me hope."

The ebullient star received more hope the preceding weekend when his first feature movie in two years, "Cop and a Half," topped the box-office winners. In addition, his CBS television series, "Evening Shade," scores regularly in the top 20 of the audience ratings.

Far from burning out like the mythical bird, Burt Reynolds is better cast as a survivor, a canny strategist who has used his self-deprecating swagger to overcome setbacks that would have defeated less resolute actors.

Reynolds, wife Loni Anderson and their 4-year-old son, Quintin, live a bicoastal life. He has retained his Florida roots, maintaining a home in Jupiter. While here for "Evening Shade" and other business affairs, he and his family reside in Encino. Before leaving to star in and direct a TV movie in Florida, Reynolds took some time to hustle "Cop and a Half."

Why the gap between movies?

"That's because nobody asked," he replied with customary candor. "It wasn't out of choice. There've been some films offered, but they were nothing I hadn't already done. No surprises. And I wanted to do a picture for my son; that's No. 1. I also wanted to do something that showed me at my age (57)."

"I think the most enviable career is Sean Connery's. I look at him and say, 'Yeah, let's just take the hair and sail it out the window and go win an Academy Award,'" Reynolds said, laughing loudly.

"I remember once (critic) Pauline Kael, who we all know and love and trust, said to me: 'You will never, never win an Academy Award until you take your hair off.'" So he took off his hair piece, he said, and no one gave a hoot.

The movie was the 1972 "Deliverance," probably his best dramatic performance.

"I combed my hair with a washrag," he remarked. "Does anybody seriously think in a picture like 'Deliverance' you could wear a hairpiece? My clothes were torn off me every day. Hair? One a day you would have lost, besides your underwear. The picture came out, and nobody cared."

So he returned to the rug, the butt of many a comic's joke but equally ridiculed by Reynolds himself. He figured "some pretty good actors like John Wayne, Fred Astaire and Jack Benny did all right" wearing toupees.

Reynolds was wearing his curly black model in his Studio City office, where every bit of wall space seems occupied with autographed photos of every entertainment star he has met.

Awards are everywhere, from an Emmy to citations from his years as a box-office king. The sports memorabilia are a reminder of the importance of the sporting life to the ex-jock, whose deliberate movements bespeak the rough and tumble of his gridiron days.

"Burt has definitely mellowed because of his son," says Brent Briscoe, his personal assistant at Burt Reynolds Productions. "He doesn't care about things that irritated him before."

Reynolds applauded Hollywood's renewed interest in family films and had this to say about sex and violence on the big screen: "I've choreographed movie fights for 30-odd years. I always say the anticipation of a fight is twice as exciting as the fight itself; it's that circling of each other and the knife going back and forth and all that."

"And there's nothing more boring than watching two people nude lying on top of each other. In fact, it's kind of funny in a way. It's the anticipation that's sexy."

STAR NOTES

Eden believes in living life to the fullest

By Dan Rice

The star of the NBC movie Visions of Murder is one actress who found success at the bottom of a bottle — a genie's bottle, that is. Barbara Eden, who earned her place in TV history as the fantasy object of I Dream of Jeannie, portrays a psychotherapist experiencing frightening premonitions in the NBC thriller airing Friday, May 7.

Since completing Visions of Murder, Eden has joined the road company of Neil Simon's Last of the Red Hot Lovers, starring opposite Don Knotts. Stage work is not only fulfilling, but essential in her eyes.

"I think that actors are healthier if they do different types of media," Eden says. "If you do all film work or all stage work you become stale. [Variety] keeps you quick on your feet."

An accomplished singer, Eden has also starred in musicals including Woman of the Year and South Pacific, and has performed for more intimate audiences in her nightclub act.

Eden is especially fond of her charity work and speaks enthusiastically about the Wellness Community, a group of centers that offers people with life-threatening illnesses counseling and outings as well as medical treatment.

"It's improving the quality of your life, living it more fully even if you only have one more day," Eden remarks about the center. "It's being involved with life that keeps people awake and alert."

Emmy winner Barbara Eden and James Brolin star in NBC's Visions of Murder on Friday.

FAMILY FAIR

'Ready or Not,' 'Chris Cross' target preteens

By Scott White

Since airing the first fixed block of kids' programming on a premium channel in 1984, options for family viewing on Showtime have continued to grow.

The newest addition is a pair of shows airing Saturdays and Wednesdays aimed at 'twens,' kids age 8 to 14 who are stuck in television limbo between Ninja Turtles and 90210.

Ready or Not is a buddy series for girls based on the exploits of two 11-year-olds: Busy (Lani Billard), a drum-playing tomboy who comes across a bit like Lucy Van Pelt of the Peanuts cartoons, and her reserved best friend, Amanda (Laura Bertram).

The girls' acting is competent, but awkward and unnatural writing makes a mediocre, forgettable show out of a good idea. Do 11-year-olds often use the word "validation" in their everyday vocabulary?

Chris Cross, however, a slick show about two hip youths trying to grow up at a stuffy 200-year-old boarding school, goes the distance. Admirable acting from Simon Fenton (Matinee), as hotshot jock Chris Hilton, and Eugene Byrd (Ghostwriter), as school DJ Oliver Cross, gives their characters a wry edge without the insolent tone of many kids' shows.

Sharp dialogue, dynamic editing, and savvy musical punctuation make Chris Cross feel like a perfect mix of Parker Lewis and The Wonder Years.

Raggedy Man ★★★ A lonely divorcee tries to forge a life for herself and her family. Sissy Spacek, Eric Roberts PG Nudity, Violence, Adult Situation. 2:00. (1981) ☎ May 5 2:00am.

Red Dust ★★★ A rubber-plantation overseer falls in love with another man's wife. Clark Gable, Jean Harlow 1:55. (1932) ☎ May 3 11:00am.

Red Heat ★ A Russian detective and a Chicago cop try to capture a drug dealer. Arnold Schwarzenegger, James Belushi R Profanity, Nudity, Violence. 1:45. (1988) ☎ May 3 10:30pm; 8 7:00pm.

The Reflecting Skin ★★ A boy suspects a woman is involved in a series of murders. Jeremy Cooper, Lindsay Duncan R Profanity, Violence, Adult Situation. 1:35. (1990) ☎ May 7 2:55am.

The Return of Ironside Ironside investigates the murder of Denver's chief of police. 2:00. (1993) ☎ May 4 7:00pm. ☐

HUDSON WATER VALVE

A valve specifically designed to control the flow of water in tanks and troughs automatically. Anytime. Anywhere. This high volume, full flowing valve is protected by its own multi-functional bell shaped body of glass reinforced nylon resin. It eliminates malfunctions and costly time and expense in repairs and maintenance. It not only ends flooding, breakdown and water loss, it also does away with breakage of floats, balls and lever arms by livestock. The positive shut-off feature functions in a 5 psi to 150 psi water pressure range. The valve is rustproof, anti siphon and installs in seconds.

ADAMS HARD-FACING CO.

ADAMS Wheatland Sweeps are manufactured from 1080 high carbon steel, heat-treated and oil quenched for extra wear and durability. All ADAMS Wheatland Sweeps have flanged shanks with the flange extending into the body to the sweep for additional strength to the sweep. Most Wheatland sweeps are offered in either "medium" or "low" crown, with the low crown sweep usually being requested where minimal soil movement is desired.

Tires for BandsFARM CHEM GLOVE

Heavy duty. Protects against anhydrous ammonia, oils, acids, dry herbicides, dry pesticides and many other farm and work chemicals.

- Vinyl base coating delivers optimum flexibility in a heavy duty glove
- Vinyl/nitrile blend surface coating provides good chemical resistance
- Textured overrip provides superior grip on wet or dry materials
- Knit jersey body insulates against moderate heat or cold, reinforced coating's snag and puncture resistance
- Fleeched jersey lining with no interior seams reduces hand irritation
