Health reform task force may change malpractice

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton's health care planners are weighing dramatic changes in medical malpractice laws, including the possibility of barring lawsuits against individual physicians.

Defendant changes plea in injury case

A jury trial of Carlos Ramirez, 21, charged with injury to a child, ended abruptly Wednesday morning when the defendant changed his plea from not guilty to guilty in 222nd District Court.

A jury was seated for the trial Tuesday afternoon and testimony was heard from witnesses, including the mother of the baby who allegedly was injured by Ramirez.

The defendant's attorney, Kent Canada, asked for a mistrial Wednesday morning, in return for a plea of guilty to a lesser charge, reckless injury to a child.

Judge David Wesley Gulley dismissed the jury and granted a new trial to allow Ramirez to plead guilty to the lesser charge.

Formal sentence of Ramirez will be pronounced Friday by Judge Gulley. Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul's recommended sentence is 10 years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice, probated 10 years; 60 days in jail and $1,500 fine.

Judge Gulley has the option to change the sentence, based on a presentence investigation required by law.

Ramirez was accused of causing a fracture of the femur in a baby when he held the infant upside down.

Hutchison, Krueger go at each other

LAMARQUE, Texas (AP) - State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison and incumbent U.S. Sen. Bob Krueger crossed swords as the two began their runoff campaign swings in Texas.

Mrs. Hutchison accused Krueger yesterday of lying about her record in his campaign advertisements during a trip to her alma mater.

Meanwhile, Krueger accused his Republican opponent of trying to avoid serious questions by running the first negative ads of the runoff race.

The two runoff candidates exchanged blame yesterday as they launched into the weeks of campaigning for the U.S. Senate seat. Mrs. Hutchison and Krueger finished first and second, respectively, in last Saturday's special election, forcing a runoff that is expected to be held June 5.

Clinton eyeing ways to jump-start presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton, frustrated by a flurry of setbacks and missteps, is calling in his top advisers to explore ways of getting his administration back on track.

As part of that effort, Clinton is talking about adding another top White House deputy, turning his emphasis to themes popular with the public and considering frequent traveling outside Washington.

"We think that there needs to be a little tighter coordination here to make sure that we've got our priorities straight and that those priorities are communicated all the way down to the staff," the president said Tuesday. "And a little better focus."

The defeat of Clinton's jobs package and the fiasco at the Branch Davidian cult compound near Waco, Texas, were followed by a week's worth of 100-day soul-searching by the White House. The White House was even forced to atone for a pair of presidential jokes at a weekend dinner.

A senior administration official described the mood at the White House as "one of serious concern but by no means panic."

Two other senior officials likened the current situation to the retooling of Clinton's campaign management team after some early missteps. "Sometimes we need to get things wrong before we get them right, it seems," one said. All spoke on condition they not be identified.

The result of the administration's mixed signals, ill-timed trial balloons, controversy over allowing homosexuals in the military and a fresh wave of sluggish economic reports is early erosion in Clinton's performance ratings in public opinion polls.

"They like him, but they don't like the job he is doing," said Republican pollster Ed Gosca.

Clinton has held a flurry of meetings in recent days with political and White House aides, bent on turning the tide.

To that end, the president is looking to hire an experienced Washington hand to help chief of staff Mack McLarty in dealings with Congress, interest groups and the young White House staff that has had difficulty making the transition from campaigning to governing.

White House spokesman George Stephanopoulos said Clinton was not disappointed in McLarty or others on his senior staff but believed the administration needed to strengthen its internal management and discipline.

Still, the search and broader strategy review follow a series of setbacks and embarrassments for the young administration, from the defeat of the jobs bill and the pessimism voiced by budget director Leon Panetta to Clinton twice being forced to apologize for misguided jokes.

These and other episodes have given Republicans fodder for criticism and created unease among Democrats just as they begin to shepherd the president's budget package through Congress, including its politically thorny tax increases, and prepare for debates over health care and campaign finance reform.

The early mistakes also have made the White House hesitant to propose a revised jobs package, even with the new data showing a still-sluggish economy. Clinton aides have drafted a scaled-down proposal to speed up highway spending and fund summer jobs and wastewater projects, but the White House is counting votes on Capitol Hill before committing itself to another fight.

GOP head blasts Richards, Demos

AUSTIN (AP) - State GOP Chairman Fred Meyer has accused Gov. Ann Richards and other Democratic leaders of abandoning their duty by asking for school funding plans from those who successfully opposed a share-the-wealth ballot proposal.

"Since Gov. Richards has suggested that I and other opponents of her school tax increase should do her job for her, perhaps she should submit her resignation at the same time we submit our quality education proposals," said Meyer.

Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald said he was "stunned" by the comment, especially since Texas faces a court-ordered cutoff of state funding to schools on June 1 if lawmakers don't come up with a plan to equalize school finance. Schools rely mainly on state aid and local taxes.

"We don't have time to play those games," McDonald said.

Meyer was among a number of leading Republicans who opposed Proposition 1 on Saturday's ballot. Voters overwhelmingly defeated the measure, which would have authorized shifting some property tax money from property-rich to poorer school districts.

The heads of the House and Senate committees that deal with public education - Democratic Rep. Libby Lineberger of Manchaca and Republican Sen. Bill Ratliff of Mount Pleasant - have invited Proposition 1 opponents to offer their solutions to the school funding problem. The two sponsored the proposal, but Meyer said he wasn't including Ratliff in his criticism.

Also Tuesday, the Association of Texas Professional Educators announced a federal lawsuit Tuesday to try to continue state funding for school districts even if lawmakers don't meet the Texas Supreme Court deadline.

"We need to prepare for the worst, and if funding is cut off, the people hurt the most will be our public school students and public school district employees, and that we will not accept," said Doug Rogers, executive director of the group.

The association filed suits in federal court in Sherman against State Comptroller John Sharp, Education Commissioner Lionel Meno and nine East Texas school districts that are among 168 projected to run out of money this summer if state aid is cut off.

School districts are named because they are the ones that contract with teachers, said Alan Bookman of the association.

He said the teachers' group likely wouldn't request a hearing until after June 1, and that it will monitor a Thursday hearing by State District Judge F. Scott McCown, who oversees the state school funding case. McCown is scheduled to consider a motion that school districts be allowed to continue paying teachers if state funding is stopped.

The federal suit asks that the comptroller be required to release sufficient funds for school districts to pay their employees, prevent anyone from being let go because of a state aid reduction, and to allow them to operate in the upcoming school year.

Although only nine school districts are named in the lawsuit, an order would be effective statewide, Bookman said.

Enterprise liability, patients harmed by a doctor or hospital would sue the health plan that paid for their medical care.

The White House health reform task force is also considering other changes in malpractice law, including caps on damages awarded for pain and suffering and encouraging patients and providers to resolve disputes without going to court.

Consumer groups and organized medicine alike have misgivings about some of the possible changes, still being debated within the White House.

"Enterprise liability is sort of a black hole," said Gene Kimmelman, legislative director for the Consumer Federation of America, who said it was unclear whether injured patients would get more redress or less under such a system.

The idea has been championed by two law professors, Paul C. Weiler of Harvard Law School and Kenneth S. Abraham of the University of Virginia School of Law, who argue that malpractice suits should be aimed at organizations, not individuals.

Ira Magaziner, the senior White House official directing the task force, said Monday that Clinton's reform plan would include "serious malpractice reform" to discourage frivolous lawsuits and encourage alternative methods of resolving disputes.

"We need to get the lawyers out of the doctor-patient relationship," Magaziner told the National Medical Association.

The administration is motivated in part by the desire to get doctors to stop ordering costly tests and procedures simply to protect themselves from being sued.

A recent study by the consulting firm of Lewin-VHI Inc. estimated Americans could save $36 billion over five years by curbing so-called defensive medicine.

Malpractice revision has been a staple of Republican proposals to rein in health costs. It could help Clinton sell his package to the GOP minority in Congress and to doctors at large.

But Clinton runs the risk of alienating consumer and labor groups if he tries to impose "draconian limits on what people can recover," said Kimmelman.

Weiler, in a telephone interview from Cambridge, Mass., said that institutions already bear the malpractice liability in other fields.

"If an airplane crashes due to a mistake made by a mechanic, it's the airline company that's the target of liability," said Weiler.

New millionaires revel in share of $50 million

AUSTIN (AP) - Two of Texas' newest millionaires say sharing a $50 million Lotto Texas prize with 12 other people is just fine.

"I was happy that we were going to share it because $50 million is too much money," said Gary McKee, 37, an electrician from Amarillo.

"It's scary," added Timothy Sturkie, 32, of Arlington. "I'm glad we only got part. I think I can handle this."

Each of the 14 people who correctly picked all six numbers drawn Saturday night gets $3,471,816, in 20 annual installments of $173,959.

As of midday Tuesday, 11 winners had arrived at the lottery's Austin headquarters to claim their prizes. Lottery director Nora Linares said officials still were awaiting winners from Granite Shoals, Houston and a second person from Amarillo.

The $50 million prize is the largest awarded since the Texas Lottery began the six-number lotto drawings twice a week in November. The previous record, a $21 million pot, was claimed by a woman from Schulenburg.

Asked his occupation, Sturkie said, "I was a printer - was."

When he realized he'd won, he said, "I started screaming, jumping up and down. I had to call my doctor. My heart was beating a little fast."

Now that he's a millionaire, Sturkie said he would like to meet another: his hero and Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan.

"I'd like to meet him if I could," Sturkie said, adding that he picked two of his six numbers because they were the uniform numerals worn by Ryan and Mickey Mantle.

Ryan's number 34 and Mantle's number 7 were two of the lucky six, along with 10, 11, 23 and 43.

"I'm a down-to-earth person. I hope to stay that way," Sturkie said, adding that with his winnings he's got his eye on "a new truck, maybe a new ... boat."

And some Texas Rangers tickets. "Good seats, no more outfield."

McKee said his $10 ticket purchase was a last-minute decision.

Having passed by their usual lottery store, he said, his wife decided "we might as well go ahead and buy it because there was so much money involved this time."

Mrs. McKee said the family watched Saturday night's drawing on television. "I was writing the numbers down and thought we would win $3, and then I quit looking at the ticket," she said. After realizing they had matched all six, she started screaming. "Gary thought I had seen a mouse."

Two other winners announced were Mary Esparza of San Antonio and Amber Matthews, 20, a Texas A&M student who claimed her prize late Monday - after taking a final exam that morning.

Local Roundup

Plant swap set this weekend

Local gardeners are invited to participate in a "Plant Swap" from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday in the south end of Sugarland Mall. Gardeners are asked to bring their extra seeds, bulbs, plants, shrubs and small trees to sell, trade or give away. Those participating who need display tables need to bring their own. Also, plant shoppers should bring boxes or sacks to carry their items home. For individuals unable to get into their gardens and thin their plants, "diggers" will be available on a limited basis on Friday. Call 364-7542 for more information. The swap is a beautification project of the Hereford Beautification Alliance.

Davidian children understood 'law'

Beatings with wooden paddle were not uncommon

HOUSTON (AP) - Life inside the compound for the Branch Davidian children was punitive, but one they understood, says the leader of a team counseling the children.

Beatings with a wooden paddle for mishaps as minor as a spilled drink, 11-year-olds learning they would have sex with a man they regarded as their father, gun training, no cooked food, no running water.

But for the children who lived inside its wooden walls, there was nothing chaotic about David Koresh's words. They were law, and quickly followed.

"I think some of the children feel a great deal of affection for David Koresh," said Dr. Bruce Perry, a psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine, and leader of a team counseling the 21 children released by Koresh after Feb. 28.

He added quickly: "And I also think the majority of these kids feel a great deal of fear of David Koresh."

But Perry stopped short of calling Koresh a child abuser.

"That's a tough one to call. I really can't comment," Perry said.

Despite explicit sexual discussion in front of the children and the fact they knew the girls - as young as 11 or 12 - were considered as sexual partners, Perry would not call that knowledge abuse. Only that it was "abusive."

The children associated power with sex. That much is clear, Perry said.

Perry's first report, released Tuesday, on his initial findings show a world "clinically and legally complex - filled with grays rather than black and white."

None of the 21 children released were sexually abused, Perry said. He admitted in his report that gynecology exams were performed to determine if the girls released had had sex.

Of the 21, 19 were interviewed, ages 4 to 11. The other two, an infant and a 3-year-old were too young to be questioned, Perry said. Many of the children exhibited an advanced knowledge of explicit sexual behavior.

And some of the children told unclear tales of dead babies that were stored until they could be buried or burned.

"There was an ongoing secretive quality to these occasional allusions to births, dead babies, miscarriages, storage of dead babies" and other incomplete stories volunteered by the children, Perry wrote.

More recently, a child described how she was told by adults about the beheading of a chicken and inserting it into the vagina. The story's meaning like much of what the children say now, unsolicited, is unclear, Perry wrote.

A child's day at Ranch Apocalypse would begin late for the girls who were permitted to sleep. Their mothers, many on diets of popcorn and fruit, to "remain thin," would live with the younger girls, while most of the boys lived with the men.

There was no sleeping late for the boys, who recall being up as early as 5:30 a.m. for "gym" which was comprised of marching and other drilling, possibly with firearms. Boys were given more access to play. Girls spent a great deal of time in their rooms either napping or playing with each other.

Free activities involved watching movies. Television, pork and chocolate was prohibited.

The children would play "cow-boys and Indians" or war play, an activity greatly encouraged by Koresh, the report states. "A number of the children also relate that they were encouraged to fight each other in staged fights observed by some adults or older children."

If a child did not participate with "true vigor," the report continued, "they were disciplined."

The wooden paddle known as "the helper" was used so frequently, the children released by Koresh had a difficult time adjusting to non-physical forms of discipline, Perry noted.

Perry said he's hopeful that with constant support and counseling from his team of state and private professionals, the children, who are similar to children in any other stressful environment, would be able to recover from their ordeal.

But some ingrained behavior may take a while to relearn. David Koresh's hold on the children as exhibited in a videotape made during the 51-day siege was clear.

The tape, made by authorities, showed interviews with the children. "The children repeated David's words - closely monitoring his non-verbal cues to look for the 'correct' response."

Upon their release from the compound, the children fired questions to social workers about "who was in charge" at their temporary home, a cottage run by Methodist Home agency in Waco.

They were greeted by a large police officer, who is a weightlifter and a smaller man, the director of the Methodist cottage, who is a marathon runner, Perry said.

"They could not believe that this smaller man, who was a marathon runner was the leader, when this big powerful guy was still there. The powerful guy with a gun," Perry said.

Bill bars private staff briefings

AUSTIN (AP) - Private staff briefings of governmental bodies would be prohibited under a bill passed by the Texas Senate.

The measure by Sen. Jeff Wentworth, R-San Antonio, was adopted 30-1 Tuesday and sent to the House for consideration.

Wentworth, a former county commissioner and university regent, said frequently staff briefings of public bodies turn into full discussions of issues that affect public policy and tax dollars.

Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause, "This is a major loophole that has to be closed. The public has a right to the same information that the public officials get."

Under the Texas Open Meetings Act, governmental bodies are allowed to meet behind closed doors to discuss litigation, real estate acquisition and personnel matters.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, voted against the bill. Last week, Wentworth delayed a final vote on the bill at Montford's request.

Montford then called it "do-gooder" legislation that would bog down government and could be abused by prosecutors who want to charge public officials with violating the Open Meetings Act.

On Tuesday, Montford questioned whether the bill would prohibit individual public official holders from asking staff questions in private.

Wentworth said the bill would only take effect if a quorum of the public body was present. A quorum is the minimum number of members of a body that is needed to transact business.

Court settlement gets House endorsement

AUSTIN (AP) - The House has endorsed a proposed court settlement designed to add minority judges in nine urban Texas counties.

"The core issue here is whether or not people of color will be allowed to sit on both sides of the judge's bench. This is just a matter of simple justice," said Rep. Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston.

The House voted 82-52 Tuesday to support the proposed settlement that would change the method of electing state district court judges in Bexar, Dallas, Ector, Harris, Jefferson, Lubbock, Midland, Tarrant and Travis counties.

The proposal resulted from a recent federal court panel ruling that the current countywide system of electing judges discriminates against blacks and Hispanics. According to the ruling, white bloc voting essentially prevents minority-backed candidates from winning in those counties.

For example, Harris County has a 42 percent minority population. But of 59 state district judges, fewer than 10 percent are minorities.

Texas Attorney General Dan

Morales and minority plaintiffs signed a proposed settlement that would divide the nine counties into smaller districts consisting of higher concentrations of minority voters.

Morales asked lawmakers to endorse the proposal before submitting it to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"The Legislature has recognized that the status quo can no longer be supported. It is unfair. It is wrong. And, it allows for criticism that justice is not dispensed fairly," Morales said.

The full Senate has not been able to capture enough votes to consider the measure. However, the Senate Committee of the Whole last month approved the proposal 17-13.

House GOP members who objected to the proposal said Republicans would lose a large number of judgeships.

"We're talking about a partisan issue under the guise of whether or not it is a racial question," said Rep. Dalton Smith, R-Houston. "I think we must ask ourselves what is the real question."

Under the influence of drugs?

Allergy medications may not only impair your driving ability, they may put you on the road to jail if you have an accident while they are in your bloodstream.

If you are taking allergy medication, don't drive.

It's now more likely you'll be spotted if you are driving while impaired. The U.S. Department of Transportation is training police officers to be drug recognition experts.

They can recognize if you are under the influence of drugs. And in most states allergy medicines are considered drugs.

Special recognition was given by Advisor Brenda Thomas to BSP City Council President Denise Hafliker.

LONDON (AP) - Viscount Linley, 31-year-old son of Princess Margaret, will marry Serena Alleyne Stanhope, a 23-year-old aristocrat.

Miss Stanhope's father, Viscount Petersham, announced the engagement Monday. The wedding will take place in London this fall, he said.

Linley, a nephew of Queen Elizabeth II and 12th in line to the throne, is also the son of photographer Lord Snowdon. He runs a cabinet-making business.

Miss Stanhope works in public relations for the designer Giorgio Armani.

NEW YORK (AP) - Tony Kushner's Pulitzer Prize-winning "Angels in America" received 10 Drama Desk nominations, topping the list of nominees for the best of the 1992-93 New York theater season.

"Tommy," a stage version of The Who's rock opera, got seven nominations Monday.

Unlike the Tony Awards, which recognize only Broadway productions, the Drama Desk honors Broadway and off-Broadway.

The best-play nominees were "Angels in America," "Jeffrey" by Paul Rudnick, "Joined at the Head" by Catherine Butterfield, "Oleanna" by David Mamet, "The Sisters Rosensweig" by Wendy Wasserstein and "Three Hotels" by Jon Robin Baitz.

The musicals nominated as best of the season were "Tommy," "Kiss of the Spider Woman," "Ruthless!" and "Wings."

The winners will be announced May 17.

Dear Hereford

Golden Plains Care Center, at 420 Ranger, has been a thriving part of the Hereford community for about eight years now, and regardless of the recent barrage of controversial statements surrounding our facility, we are here, and here to stay.

As many of you are aware, Golden Plains has been going through a management transition that has brought forth several positive changes and promises many more to come.

Our new owner, Nathan W. Davis, possesses the administrative knowledge, communication ability, and the financial foundation to ensure the efficiency and longevity of any long term care facility so we are proud to welcome him to the Golden Plains family.

Danny Wylie, our administrator, brings with him 13 years of administrative experience to our facility. However, Danny has also been directly involved in other areas of a long term care facility in the past, such as maintenance and housekeeping, giving him the insight and ability to better understand and help the staff, residents, and family to solve problems on a more personal basis.

Quality Care: has always been the standard at Golden Plains and even though there have been a few management changes, our thoroughly trained and motivated staff will still, as always, provide the best possible care for you and your loved ones.

Randall's 7-run 1st dooms Herd

Two wild pitchers and a crucial error let Randall score seven runs in the first inning of Hereford's home finale Tuesday at Whiteface Field. Randall eventually ran the lead up to 16-1, but a Hereford comeback made the final score 16-8.

With the win, Randall (8-2 in District 1-4A) clinches a spot in the playoffs for the second consecutive year. Hereford (4-5 and 9-15 overall) will play at Borger Thursday with a chance for third place. Borger clinched the other playoff spot on Monday.

The first play of the game set the tone for the long afternoon. Tim Cox, Randall's leadoff hitter, hit a grounder to second base which Ralph Holguin fielded cleanly, but he dropped the ball trying to take it out of his glove.

At the time, it seemed like something Hereford could overcome. Hereford starter Jake Head struck out the next hitter, and shortstop Scott Ahola made a play in the hole and threw out the runner at first for the second out.

Jason Reed singled Cox home from second, but then the real trouble started. The next six Raiders reached base without putting the ball in play.

Head walked two batters, loading the bases, then forced two runs in by hitting two straight batters. Ahola relieved Head and walked two more runs in. Another run came in on a routine grounder to second when shortstop Richard Sanderson, who had just come in from left field, didn't get to the bag in time for Holguin to throw.

Ahola walked another batter before striking out Reed to end the inning. Randall scored seven runs on two hits, five walks, two hit batsmen and an error. The error made all the runs in the inning unearned.

"All I can say is we got off to a little bit of a slow start that got us out of the game early," Hereford coach T.R. Sartor said 3 1/2 hours later when the game ended. After a long fifth-inning comeback by the Herd an five pitching changes for the two teams, the first inning seemed like the first game of a doubleheader.

"We did come back," Sartor said. "We played a little better, pitched a little better and scored a few runs. We stayed after them."

Ahola settled down a little. Randall scored a single run in the second and four in the third, including Reed's three-run homer. When Ahola hit the first batter of the fourth inning and walked the second, Ruben Ramos, the starting catcher, switched positions with Ahola. Those two runners scored on a sac fly and a grounder.

Ramos gave up two more runs in the fifth, a solo homer to Bart Upchurch, then another run on three singles. That made the score 16-1.

The Herd had been hitting all along, they just hadn't been scoring. Hereford left seven runners on base in the first three innings. The Herd finally got to Randall starter Cory McAllister in the fourth, when Russ Watts singled and scored on Kyle Hansen's triple over the center fielder's head.

In the bottom of the fifth, Randall needed to hold Hereford to five runs to end the game by the 10-run rule. Casey Weese replaced McAllister, Randall's ace, to start the fifth, and he didn't get out of the fifth.

Hereford took a lesson from Randall and waited for Weese to throw a strike. He promptly walked three batters. Most of the strikes Weese threw bounced off the left field fence, as Watts hit a two-run double, Sanderson drove Watts home with a double, and, after two errors, Jake Head's double scored Chris Vallejo. That was the sixth run of the inning, cutting Randall's lead to 16-7.

Hereford got another run in the sixth on doubles by Andrew Tijerina and Sanderson.

Stacey Sanders, the third Hereford shortstop, made a diving catch to end the top of the seventh, getting fourth-pitcher Jerry Rincon out of a bases-loaded jam, but Hereford went down in order in the bottom of the inning.

All-Sports Banquet is Tuesday

The All-Sports Banquet, honoring all Hereford High School athletes, will be held at 6:30 Tuesday at the Bull Barn.

All Herd athletes will be recognized at the annual banquet, which is sponsored by the Whiteface Booster Club. One athlete in each sport will be awarded a Media Award, given by the Hereford Brand and KPAN radio. In addition several special awards will be bestowed on deserving athletes: the Fighting Heart, the Casey Smith and the Athlete of the Year.

VFW Scramble set for weekend

The VFW Two-Man Scramble Golf Tournament is scheduled at Pitman Municipal Golf Course this weekend, and there is a waiting list for entries.

The tourney, which will benefit the Crown of Texas Hospice this year, will have 40 teams. Four teams could be added for those who want to walk, according to the VFW golf committee. Entry is $75 per golfer and includes cart and a Saturday night dinner.

The tourney will have shotgun starts both days—at 1 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday.

A horse named Belmont, who lived in the mid-19th century never got a chance to race in the Belmont Stakes.

Dead meat

Hereford third baseman Tab Hathaway prepared to field a throw from center fielder Chris Brummett (the ball's shadow is visible next to Hathaway's right shoulder). Randall's Brakken Barela arrives too late to beat the throw. Randall won 16-8 Tuesday at Whiteface Field.

Injury threatens Davis' career

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Mavericks forward Terry Davis may learn today whether the severe elbow injury he suffered in a weekend car accident will finish his career and limit the use of his left arm.

Davis, 25, drove his car off a road in South Boston, Virginia last Sunday, killing a passenger in the vehicle.

Marlin C. Moody, 28, was found dead at the scene. Two other passengers, Rodney C. Scott, 27, and John Daniels, 25, were treated at a local hospital and released. All were from Virginia.

Mavericks spokesman Tony Fay said that doctors were scheduled to meet today to further determine Davis' prognosis.

"This is a really serious injury," said team physician T.O. Souryal. "It is way past career-threatening. Our main concern is a functional limb with a secondary concern being his basketball career. There is no way to tell how long he'll be in the hospital."

Davis once said being left-handed was an advantage on the court because "most guys want to play you to the right, so being left-handed helps. I hate to guard someone who is left-handed."

He averaged 12.7 points and 9.3 rebounds for Dallas this season.

Souryal is assembling a team of four orthopedic surgeons to work on Davis' case. The biggest concern at this point is infection setting in, Souryal said.

"At the time of the injury, the bone broke through the skin, which means it was exposed to all kinds of contaminants such as road dirt, gravel and other kinds of debris," Souryal told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "There's a 10-percent chance that the elbow won't ever heal no matter what we do."

Suns stay alive in series by beating Lakers

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

A dozen people in Los Angeles, all of them associated with the Phoenix Suns, and the faithful back in Phoenix are the only true believers. That's just fine with the Suns. "Tonight we played with enthusiasm and emotion, like we did all year," Charles Barkley said. "Now we have to take it game by game, because only our fans in Phoenix and the 12 guys in this locker room believe we can win it all." The Suns stayed alive Tuesday night with a 107-102 victory over the Lakers. It wasn't pretty, but it was a victory, just like coach Paul Westphal had predicted. "It wasn't easy," Westphal said. "It wasn't easy at all."

The Suns had the best record in the NBA during the regular season. The Lakers were the only team to reach the postseason with a below-.500 record. Guess who won the first two games? After the Suns fell behind 0-2 in the best-of-5 series, Westphal flatly declared his team would win three in a row. They took the first step at the Forum. Game 4 will be held Thursday at Inglewood, Calif., with a fifth, if necessary, in Phoenix on Sunday.

In other first-round games Tuesday, the Chicago Bulls, seeking their third consecutive NBA title, defeated Atlanta 98-88 to sweep the Hawks; Indiana defeated New York, which holds a 2-1 lead, 116-93; and Utah took a 2-1 lead by stopping Seattle 90-80.

Tonight, Boston is at Charlotte, Portland at San Antonio, Cleveland at New Jersey and Houston at the Los Angeles Clippers.

Barkley had 27 points and 11 rebounds to lead the Suns, who squandered most of an 80-66 lead they held with two minutes to go in the third period. The Lakers, who outscored the Suns 18-1 in the closing moments of their two upset victories in Phoenix, pulled to 101-100 with 1:25 to play, but scored just two points after that.

Oliver Miller, Richard Dumas and Kevin Johnson each hit a pair of free throws in the final 46 seconds to finally put away the Lakers.

Vlade Divac scored a playoff career-high 30 points to pace the Lakers, but threw up an air ball on a 3-point attempt that would have tied the game with eight seconds remaining. Johnson then closed out the scoring with his free throws.

"I felt I was in a groove, and maybe that made me a little too confident," said Divac, who left the game briefly after a third-quarter collision to have five stitches in his right eyelid. "I should have never shot that last shot. It stunk; I take all the blame. I lost track of the time and rushed it."

Bulls 98, Hawks 88

The Bulls were stunned when Michael Jordan crumpled to the floor in the third period and had to be carried off the court in Atlanta. But the league's scoring leader shook off a sprained right ankle and finished with 39 points in leading the two-time defending champions into the second round of the playoffs.

Jordan scored 14 of his points after his injury as the Bulls swept the Hawks and now await the winner of the New Jersey-Cleveland series.

Dominique Wilkins scored 29 to lead Atlanta.

Pacers 116, Knicks 93

In Indianapolis, New York's John Starks was ejected from the game when he head-butted Indiana's Reggie Miller with 8:42 left in the third quarter.

The two free throws by Miller tied the game at 59 and ignited a spurt of 10 consecutive points and a 19-4 run by the Pacers that blew the game open. After the ejection, the Pacers outscored the Knicks 59-34.

The Knicks lead the series 2-1, with Game 4 in Indianapolis on Thursday night.

Detlef Schrempf had 29 for Indiana and Rik Smits scored 25. Patrick Ewing led New York with 19 points and 13 rebounds.

Jazz 90, Sonics 80

John Stockton, who received minor injuries in a car accident the day before, ignited a fourth-quarter rally as Utah took a 2-1 lead over Seattle.

The Jazz, trailing until early in the final period, outscored the Sonics 18-6 to begin the period and hung on the rest of the way. Utah can close out the series at home Thursday night.

Karl Malone led Utah with 23 points, while Stockton finished with 11 points, 10 assists and four steals.

Sam Perkins and Eddie Johnson had 20 points apiece to pace the SuperSonics.

Fielder, Mattingly find long-lost homer stroke

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Cecil Fielder had gone 20 games without a home run, his longest drought with the Detroit Tigers. Don Mattingly had gone 174 at-bats without a home run, the second-longest slump of his career.

On Tuesday night, they both got back into the swing.

Fielder hit a 459-foot shot at Tiger Stadium, leading Detroit past Kansas City 5-3.

"I just haven't been on," Fielder said. "But I have to fight my way through it in my own way. It doesn't do any good to make a big fuss over it. You have to be a man about stuff like that."

Mattingly homered for the first time since last Sept. 15, sending New York past Oakland 4-2. He went 312 at-bats without connecting in 1991, and stopped this skid with a drive at Yankee Stadium.

Fielder's home run was his first since April 9. It was the third of the year for the slugger who has hit 130 in the past three seasons.

"If 'Dad' gets started, he can carry us for a month," Tony Phillips said. "When he gets rolling, the Tigs get rolling."

The Tigers have been doing just fine without him hitting home runs. Rob Deer and Chad Kreuter also homered as Detroit held first place in the AL East.

"Look around this room," said Kreuter, who got three hits and raised his average to .452. "There is a lot of support. We never feel like we're out of a ballgame."

Even though Fielder's home run got the most attention, it was his RBI single in the seventh inning off Tom Gordon (1-1) that put Detroit ahead for good.

Gordon relieved after a rain delay of 1 hour, 54 minutes. The start of the game was held up for 26 minutes because of rain.

Dave Johnson (1-0), promoted from Triple-A Toledo before the game, pitched 1 1/3 innings for his first major league victory since Aug. 20, 1991, with Baltimore. Mike Henneman got his sixth save.

Yankees 4, Athletics 2

Kevin Maas hit a three-run homer, carrying Bob Wickman and New York over Oakland.

Wickman (3-0) struck out Troy Neel with the bases loaded to end the sixth inning. Neel hit a solo home run in the ninth off Steve Farr, who got his sixth save.

Maas hit his second home run of the season in the fourth inning against Shawn Hillegas (1-3).

Rangers 3, Blue Jays 2

Ivan Rodriguez and Juan Gonzalez hit RBI singles in the eighth inning off nemesis Duane Ward, and host Texas rallied past Toronto.

Brian Bohanon (1-0) got one out and was the winner.

Charlie Leibrandt started for Texas and gave up six hits in seven innings.

Mariners 7, Red Sox 6

Boston rallied for five runs in the ninth inning, but fell short at Fenway Park.

The Mariners used four pitchers in the ninth inning. Norm Charlton gave up a two-run single to pinch hitter Andre Dawson, but retired the last two batters with runners on first and second for his fifth save.

Seattle got three runs in the opening inning against Joe Hesketh (2-2). Tim Leary (1-1) held the lead until leaving after a leadoff walk in the ninth.

Indians 5, Angels 3

Carlos Martinez put Cleveland ahead for good with a two-run homer in the sixth inning, and the Indians won their fourth straight game. California has lost five in a row, the last four on the road.

Martinez flung his bat after connecting off Scott Lewis (0-1) and blew a kiss to his sister in the stands when he reached home plate. Lewis wasn't happy with the show and Martinez, a friend, said he would apologize.

Dennis Cook (1-0) pitched 2 2/3 scoreless innings and Derek Lilliquist got his fourth save.

Twins 4, Orioles 3

Scott Erickson won his first game of the season and pitched Minnesota to its first three-game winning streak this year.

Erickson (1-3) gave up three hits in seven innings. Mike Trombley allowed Chris Hoiles' two-run homer before Rick Aguilera closed for his eighth save.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1

Mike Boddicker earned his first victory as a starting pitcher since 1991, helping Milwaukee beat visiting Chicago.

Boddicker (1-1) gave up five hits in six-plus innings. Kevin Reimer hit a home run off Kirk McCaskill (2-4) and also doubled and drove in three runs.

Rockies win wacky Wrigley game

By The Associated Press

Joe Girardi took his new buddies back to the old neighborhood just to show them all the stories they'd heard were true.

Girardi, a former catcher for the Chicago Cubs, led the first-year Colorado Rockies into fabled Wrigley Field on Tuesday night, and craziness ensued. Eleven innings and 27 runs later, Colorado had a 14-13 victory to show for its first outing in the Windy City.

"I feel like a survivor, not a winner, after this exhibition of baseball," Colorado manager Don Baylor said.

"What did it go, 11 innings? It was so wild that I don't know how many innings it went," Cubs manager Jim Lefebvre said.

Two of the longest balls were struck by Sammy Sosa, who hit a three-run homer with two down in the ninth to tie it 10-10 and a two-run shot as the Cubs scored three times in the 11th to fall just short.

In other National League games Tuesday night, it was Philadelphia 4,

San Francisco 3 in 12 innings; Los Angeles 8, New York 4; St. Louis 6, Houston 1; Florida 9, Cincinnati 6; Montreal 6, San Diego 1; and Atlanta 3, Pittsburgh 2.

Jim Tatum hit the first grand slam in Colorado history during a six-run eighth inning that gave the Rockies a 10-5 lead. Girardi, Jerald Clark and Charlie Hayes also homered for the Rockies in a game that was scoreless until the fifth.

In the 11th, Clark hit a two-run double and an error by shortstop Jose Vizcaino allowed two more Colorado runs to score.

Sosa also had a double as the Cubs finished with 21 hits. Colorado had 17.

Willie Blair (1-0) was the winner and Chuck McElroy (1-1) took the loss.

Phillies 4, Giants 3

At San Francisco, Dave Hollins hit a two-run, opposite-field homer in the 12th inning off reliever Dave Righetti (1-1). John Kruk singled leading off the inning and Hollins followed with a drive that cleared the fence in right.

Larry Andersen (2-0) pitched two shutout innings in relief of starter Curt Schilling. Mitch Williams got his NL-leading 11th save.

Dodgers 8, Mets 4

At Los Angeles, rookie Mike Piazza drove in three runs and Cory Snyder two.

Snyder's ground-rule double, only his fourth hit in 36 career at-bats against Tanana (2-1), capped a three-run first inning and followed two-out RBI singles by Piazza and Eric Karros. Piazza added a two-run double off reliever Mike Draper in the sixth.

Pedro Astacio (2-2) escaped a bases-loaded jam in the fifth inning and earned the victory with help from Pedro Martinez and Jim Gott.

Cardinals 6, Astros 1

At St. Louis, Bob Tewksbury (2-3) threw a six-hitter and, for the second game in a row, had a two-run single.

Tewksbury's two-out, two-run single was the Cardinals' third hit of the second inning. Ray Lankford and Mark Whiten had run-scoring singles and Todd Zeile had an RBI double in the four-run fifth to chase Pete Harnisch (2-1).

Marlins 9, Reds 6

At Miami, local favorite Orestes Destrade hit his second homer and drove in five runs. He hit a three-run homer in Florida's four-run first inning against Tim Lincecum (2-2).

Chris Hammond (1-3) won despite allowing a grand slam by Chris Sabo in the fourth and a two-run homer by Joe Oliver in the seventh.

Expos 6, Padres 1

At Montreal, Dennis Martinez pitched a five-hitter as Montreal's three-game losing streak ended. Larry Walker and Moises Alou each had two-run singles in support of Martinez (2-4), who struck out four and walked two for his first complete game of the season.

Greg Harris (1-5) allowed seven hits and three walks while striking out three in four-plus innings.

Braves 3, Pirates 2

At Pittsburgh, Mark Lemke hit a one-hopper off the right shoulder of Tim Wakefield in the sixth inning, the ball caroming into left field and allowing Ron Gant and Sid Bream to score. That gave Atlanta a 3-1 lead, just enough to hold off Pittsburgh. Lloyd McClendon's grounder drove in a run in the ninth, but Mike Stanton held on for his 10th save. Tom Glavine (4-0) looked sharp in eight innings of work, striking out seven.

Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals won six consecutive National League batting championships, 1920-25.

Dixie Walker won the 1944 National League batting championship and his brother Harry won it in 1947.

Nied becomes first star of Colorado Rockies

By TONY DeMARCO
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
DENVER (AP) - The spiked, blond hair and smooth, boyish face speak to the fact that it hasn't been long since David Nied was at Duncanville High, the school that sits a long home run away from the house in which he still lives.

It has been six years, to be exact. A half-dozen fly-by-years since Nied dominated hitters on high-school diamonds and handed off to future all-pro Barry Foster on Friday nights in the fall.

But Nied has come so far so fast, there is no going back now. Only forward. Fast forward, really, propelled by a loaded right arm and a golden opportunity fate has thrown him.

At the precocious age of 24, Nied already has a list of accomplishments any veteran would hold precious.

First, there is that fat National League championship ring from the Atlanta Braves. The one with the "back-to-back" inscription on the side and red stone in the middle. Nied did his part with three September victories, then went along for the post-season ride.

Then there is a whirlwind series of firsts with the Colorado Rockies: First player selected in the expansion draft, a flip of the coin coming up on the right side for Colorado.

Starting pitcher in the Rockies' first exhibition game, a victory for him and his new team.

Starting pitcher in the first regular-season game, one for the record book.

"The last six or eight months have been very special," Nied said. "There's no time to enjoy it now, because so much is going on. But it's something I'll look back on and realize just how special it is."

It all came about because the Atlanta Braves, a team overflowing with talent, decided to leave Nied unprotected in the expansion draft. Certain to lose at least one quality player, the Braves chose to hang on to outfielders Deion Sanders, Otis Nixon and Brian Hunter and cut their losses at one pitcher.

Left exposed were Kent Mercker, Pete Smith and Nied, and there was some surprise in the Braves organization that it wasn't Mercker, a left-hander with major-league experience, who was grabbed rather than Nied.

So instead of possibly being part of another pennant winner or two, and maybe even a world championship, Nied is making history of a different sort.

"I definitely thought I would be protected," Nied said. "I was very surprised when I wasn't. I knew they liked me an awful lot. But they have turned out so much talent, it was a tough decision."

"In another organization, I probably would have been protected. But they're in a special situation. They don't have time to wait in case I struggled. They're in this thing to win. It will be a big disappointment if they don't get back to the World Series."

"There is a great opportunity for me here. I get a chance to pitch, and to start a whole new tradition. Who knows? I may have struggled there and not even been in their bullpen, much less the fifth starter."

Rockies general manager Bob Gebhard won't second-guess the Braves' front office for not protecting Nied. But that sentiment is being heard around the game. Who couldn't use a poised and polished right-hander with a fastball that hits 90 mph and command of everything he throws?

"We knew they had a lot of quality players, so we did a lot of concentrating on them," Gebhard said. "We didn't know who would be available, whether it would be Deion Sanders or Pete Smith or David. But we knew whoever it was, we would be interested in him. Once we got the protected lists, David was an easy No. 1 choice."

Potential has turned into reality quicker than Nied's slider cuts across the plate. Everything that has been thrown at Nied - the dizzying series of firsts, the adulation of a frenzied fan base, the matchups with the National League's best pitchers - he has handled with uncommon poise and maturity.

Opening Day at Shea Stadium drew an overflow of media, not to mention 50,000-plus fans. Nied was matched against Dwight Gooden. With every reason to succumb to the pressure of the day, Nied pitched a respectable five innings, allowing two runs in a 3-0 loss.

The first time Nied took the mound at Mile High Stadium, it was in the midst of a three-game series in which 56 runs were scored. But he held Montreal to four runs in seven innings for his first victory.

A return match with Gooden came next, and this time Nied got a complete-game victory, ending it with six nasty sliders in a row to strike out Ryan Thompson and Jeff Kent.

"I shouldn't have been throwing them that good at that point, but the crowd got behind me and pumped me up," Nied said.

At St. Louis two weeks ago, Nied didn't have his good stuff. But he got through eight innings in an 11-2 victory that ran his record to 3-1.

"That's a good sign, when he can pitch without his best stuff and still win," Gebhard said. "We know there are going to be some bumps, but we're extremely pleased with the early signs." The Cubs beat Nied, 6-3, last week, but that didn't stop Cubs third baseman Steve Buechele from being impressed. After striking out twice in a 1-for-4 night, Buechele wondered: "What were (the Braves) thinking? He's got a couple of real good pitches."

Said Rockies manager Don Baylor: "David has taken some large responsibility that other young players haven't had put upon them. He's handled it all well."

So well that the temptation is to expect too much.

"I am a rookie, believe it or not," Nied said. "People seem to forget. I know it's going to be a long year. There are going to be some tough times. I can't expect to go out and win 20 games, or probably even 15. All I want to do is take the ball every fifth day, and hopefully good things will happen. I have confidence in my ability."

Watching from a distance, Bob Rombach isn't surprised by Nied's early season success. Rombach, the constant in Duncanville High's long-running success story that has peaked with the nation's No. 1 ranking this spring, saw something special long ago in his former ace.

"He always was a pretty cool customer," Rombach said. "He played football, basketball and baseball here. That's one of the reasons he competes so well now. He's been competing all his life. He's just an All-American-type kid. He deserves all of this."

The fan mail mounts now. The 10 to 15 letters a week he received last year have multiplied into several boxes full. He tries to keep up the best he can, typical of his refreshing approach to celebrity as a blessing, not a burden. And there are card shows where fans line up at 6 a.m. and wait four hours for a chance at his autograph.

Recognizing this special opportunity to bond with a community so crazed for baseball, Nied will move to the Denver area this winter, soon after his impending marriage to Melissa Murray. Baylor says Nied and Colorado are a match made in mile-high heaven.

"He's already a favorite here," Baylor said. "He's going to be an attraction. People are going to say, 'Hey, Nied's pitching tonight. Let's go.'"

Just like it used to be in Duncanville.

Hull, Murray bow out of 'TEXAS'

After more than 30 years combined experience on the stage of the musical drama "TEXAS" Lois Hull and Gene Murray are turning their interests and energies in new directions.

Both cited a desire to spend more time with families as a key reason for their decision.

"Besides," Hull laughed, "it would just be too hard for me to train a new husband after all these years."

Hull charmed audiences for 17 years as 'Aunt Anna.' Murray entertained crowds as retired colonel and cattlemen 'Uncle Henry.' He was the fifth individual to hold the role as Hull's husband and has played opposite her for the past 11 years.

"It has been a real thrill just to go out there and to try to improve my performance every night to keep 'Uncle Henry' fresh and exciting to the audience. It has been enjoyable and exciting, but now it's time for me to move on to other endeavors," Murray said in announcing his decision.

Murray also cited problems with his legs that makes it more and more difficult to stand for long periods of time and a desire to spend time with his wife as important factors.

"My wife teaches school and she's off in the summer while I've been working. We haven't had a chance to vacation together for the past 15 years. I have a four-year-old granddaughter in New Orleans, and I've only seen her five times," he said.

Murray became involved in the show in its early days. He spent four years as a dancer, a singer and an actor.

"Back then it was a much smaller cast and everyone had to do everything," he explained. "I took a twelve year hiatus before I began playing the role of 'Uncle Henry.' When I came back after that absence, things had changed significantly and the duties were more divided. That was important as the show grew, but the downside is that the performers don't get to know each other as well. Now everyone—actors, singers and dancers—rehearse separately and then we put the whole show together."

Hull also intends to spend time with family.

"I have 10 grandchildren, from three to fifteen years old, and they are at an age where we might be able to do more things together," she said.

"Age is also one of the considerations. I'm to a point where I don't think I can physically sustain the demands of being out there every night. It's been a lot of fun and I've thoroughly enjoyed my time at "TEXAS," but maybe it is time now to bow out," she added.

The two actors were complimentary of each other and the entire "TEXAS" family.

"I've thoroughly enjoyed working with Gene," Hull said. "It has been a pleasure sharing time on stage with him. You get to know someone pretty well when you spend an entire summer with them."

Murray and Hull also expressed an appreciation for the talent of the young people in the show each summer.

"I think it is important to have returning cast members," Murray said. "The veterans help the newcomers and pass their experience on to them. And, as older individuals, we provide some leveling. The guys would come and ask me questions about life. And, as older adults, Lois, Jerry Williams and I acted as role models and helped set a standard of professionalism and excellence that might not be there if everyone was young."

Hull agreed, "It has been rewarding because I've gotten to know so many young people and that has kept me up to date with the younger generation. As the only mature woman on the stage I've also provided the younger performers with someone to talk to. It's not a matter of giving advice, but just listening. For some of the cast members, this is an entirely new experience and they need some guidance in discovering and dealing with the difficulties of maintaining a high level of performance and professionalism from opening night through the closing performance."

Neither performer will lack for new activities to keep them busy in the coming months.

Hull, currently a member of the Palo Duro Hospital District, is running again for the hospital board. In addition spending time with her grandchildren, she also wants to travel.

"There are some courses the University of Texas offers in England during the summer and I'd like to take one of those. I'd also like to take the train trip to Mexico through the big canyons and maybe even spend some time at Ghost Ranch," she said.

Murray's endeavors will continue to involve the stage to some degree. He made 18 of the costumes used in the Nutcracker last year and also made several of the costumes in the Amarillo Opera Company's recent production of the "Marriage of Figaro."

"I enjoy costuming and it's just as much of a creative outlet for me as my watercolors. In some way it's more rewarding since you get to see it moving around the stage instead of just hanging on a wall. A costume has added life," he explained.

Bride-elect honored

Irma Ann Arsola, June 5 bride-elect of Tim Gutierrez, was honored with a bridal shower April 25 in the Friendship Room of Hereford State Bank. Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Gloria Arsola; her sister, Monica A. Martinez; her grandmother, Jesusa Ozuna; the prospective bridegroom's mother, Rose Gutierrez; and his grandmother, Alcavia Quintana.

Irma Ann Arsola feted with bridal shower

A bridal shower was held for Irma Ann Arsola April 25 in the Friendship Room of Hereford State Bank. The honoree and Tim Gutierrez plan to wed June 5.

Guests were welcomed by the honoree; her mother, Gloria Arsola; her sister, Monica A. Martinez; her grandmother, Jesusa Ozuna; the prospective bridegroom's mother, Rose Gutierrez; and his grandmother, Alcavia Quintana.

The bride-elect's sister, Victoria Arsola, invited guests to register.

Debbie Gonzalez and Nancy Griego served refreshments of punch, cake, chips and dips, and sandwiches. The table was appointed with swan decorations.

A vacuum was presented to Miss Arsola by the hostesses: Monica Martinez, Gloria Arsola, Debbie Gonzalez, Rosemary Rodriguez, Cookie Taylor, Rebecca Carrasco, Lorina Estrada, Marsela Soliz, Dora Longoria, Nancy Griego and Silvia Martinez.

Eat variety of fruit

Most Americans don't eat enough fruit every day, states the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to former Secretary of Health Louis Sullivan, "Five servings of fruits and vegetables a day is a minimum. If you can eat up to nine servings a day, all the better."

Fruits and fruit juices provide vitamin A, vitamin C, potassium and fiber. They contain no fat, so go ahead and indulge in the sweet, refreshing taste.

Choose from fresh seasonal or year around canned fruit, fruit juice, dried fruit or frozen fruit. Many canned fruits are packed in juice, light syrup or heavy syrup. They add the perfect refreshing twist to any meal.

There are many delicious and convenient ways you can use canned fruit to fulfill the fruit requirements of a healthy diet. Try these quick and easy round-the-clock serving ideas:

-For a breakfast fruit medley to make ahead and have on hand, simmer canned pineapple slices with the reserved pineapple juice, orange juice, prunes and a cinnamon stick; serve warm or cold.

-For breakfast on the go, make a smoothie by blending a can of peaches with yogurt, wheat germ and vanilla extract.

-Combine canned tropical fruit salad with diced ham or chicken and serve on a bed of lettuce with a sesame-ginger dressing.

-Create a rainbow of color with kebabs: alternate canned pineapple chunks, cooked shrimp and snow peas on mini-skewers or cocktail picks.

-Add color and flavor to stir-fry chicken and vegetables with canned sliced peaches or apricot halves; add during the last few minutes of cooking.

-Make a pineapple salsa with canned crushed pineapple, minced onion, jalapeno chiles, lime juice and cilantro; serve with grilled chicken, pork or shrimp.

-For a refreshing sorbet, try pureeing a can of undrained pears and minced fresh gingerroot and freeze overnight.

-Simple state of the art dessert: top canned pears or peach halves with raspberry sauce and a sprig of fresh mint.

CINCINNATI (AP) - Richard Dreyfuss says he doesn't much like to watch his own movies.

Dreyfuss and actresses Mercedes Ruehl and Irene Worth were in the city for a premiere Sunday of "Neil Simon's Lost in Yonkers," which was filmed near here last summer.

Dreyfuss talked to reporters but didn't watch the movie.

"Let's put it this way," Dreyfuss said. "In Hollywood, there are two subjects of conversation: Movies and movies. Neither of those subjects interests me. Does that make me a bad person? OK, I'm a bad person."

He expects to see "Yonkers" late this month. Like his other movies, he said, he will see it only once.

The movie version of Simon's Pulitzer Prize-winning play opens around the country May 14.

Asked how many films he sees in a year, he replied: "Including the films I take my children to see? Five."

Recycling institute offers tell-free recycling hotline

The Steel Can Recycling Institute (SCRI) has developed a 1-800 recycling information telephone number, allowing callers to access a database that contains the names and addresses of more than 8,000 recycling locations in the United States that are currently accepting steel (tin) cans as part of routine materials collection.

By calling the number, 1-800-YES-1-CAN, consumers can talk to an operator to find the steel can recycling location nearest them or receive printed information about steel can recycling.

The database system, which is organized by zip code, contains detailed information about curbside collections programs, drop-off sites, buy back centers and resource recovery facilities that collect steel cans for recycling throughout the United States. The database is updated on an ongoing basis with the assistance of SCRI's seven regional offices and other sources of information.

Armed with an excellent grassroots knowledge of local recycling locations and options, each of the regional recycling managers are responsible for adding new sites to the database as well as communicating with existing ones.

Since its inception in early September, the program has enjoyed measurable success: helping consumers find the closest places to recycle steel cans; providing consumers with an easy-to-access source for printed information about steel can recycling and enabling SCRI to accurately track and maintain steel can recycling locations.

As the database is still relatively new, the accuracy rate of this program has not yet reached 100 percent. However, SCRI does expect the program to become increasingly accurate.

NEW YORK (AP) - Susan Sarandon urged people to send greeting cards to Washington officials on Mother's Day calling for increased funds for AIDS.

"On a day in which we traditionally honor our own mothers for their love and compassion, it seems crucial that we voice our concerns about the health and well-being of all our families as we face the second decade of the AIDS epidemic," the actress said at a news conference.

Some 500,000 cards were provided free to various organizations by Mother's Voices, an AIDS awareness organization founded last year.

Co-founder Dorry Bless asked that people mail the cards to their elected officials, the president, his wife and Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala.

I do not think that anything serious should be done after dinner, as nothing should be done before breakfast.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Country singer Hal Ketchum says hearing his first hit song on the radio made it worth the risk of changing careers in his mid-30s even though it cost him his wife.

"There were people around me that really liked Hal Ketchum, the cabinet maker, and would really much rather had me remain Hal Ketchum, the cabinet maker," he said in an interview published Saturday. "I had to make some tough choices."

He arrived in Nashville in 1990 following his divorce and leaving his job as a cabinet maker in San Marcos, Texas. His first album "Past the Point of Rescue" went gold in 1991 with four hit singles, and he has had hits with "Sure Love" and "Hearts Are Gonna Roll" off his second album.

Ketchum said he knew he was right when he heard his first song "Small Town Saturday Night" on the radio. He opened the doors and turned up the volume.

"I remembered when I'd heard Van Morrison on the radio singing 'Brown Eyed Girl' and knew I wanted to be that person," Ketchum said. "And that first time I heard 'Small Town Saturday Night' I was that guy."

"It's good medicine."

Maroon, white and 'screaming red' new colors for bluebonnets

By KATY HALL
Bryan-College Station Eagle COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP)

The search for red and white bluebonnets to accompany the traditional blue flower in a sequen-tennial flag at the Capitol in 1986 just recently ended with the "screaming red" blossoms of about five plants in a field in San Antonio, officials said.

Along the way, researchers discovered hues from lavender to maroon.

The latter, which first appeared about four years ago, had Aggies "flipping," said Jerry Parsons, a horticulture specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service in San Antonio who lead the search for the new colors.

Dubbed the "Aggie bluebonnet," the maroon flower is still in the developmental stages. It may or may not be put on the market, depending on how the research goes.

"What we're trying to do is stabilize that maroon so it will last longer," he said, noting that some colors are easily altered with weather and age.

Don Wilkerson, floriculturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M, said he is anxiously awaiting the new shade.

"We have selfish reasons for wanting a maroon bluebonnet... What could be more Brazos Valley or Texas than an Aggie bluebonnet?"

However, not all wildflower enthusiasts share the Aggie's sentiment.

Parsons said that while the maroon and other "unusual" shades exist naturally in the genetic structure of the bluebonnet, some people still think they are manmade.

The prospect of a pink or white or lavender bluebonnet makes some people "mad as hell," he said.

"God created these (colors). If you want to fuss with somebody, fuss with him."

John Thomas, owner of Wildseed Farm Inc. in Eagle Lake says his company markets more than 70 varieties of wildflowers across the nation and Europe - the traditional bluebonnet being one of its major sellers.

"The perception of the public is that we're changing the color," he said.

The general public doesn't realize these colors occur naturally in the bluebonnet, he said. Researchers simply cut out the undesired colors each season until the specific color they are cultivating dominates the field.

"I would be selling pinks ... if the public perception was that it was a selection process instead of a genetic manipulation," Thomas said.

And while many wildflower enthusiasts shun the newcomers, the availability of high-yielding bluebonnet seeds is closely linked to the color search.

Wilkerson said the bluebonnet has unique seeds which are "fairly difficult" to germinate. Researchers discovered that a scarified seed - one in which the hard, thick seed coat has been weakened - is more likely to produce a plant.

"It (scarification) makes the difference whether you're going to have bluebonnets or a bluebonnet," Wilkerson said.

Scarification improved the yield from a package of seeds from 10-20 percent to 80-90 percent, he added.

Both forms are now available at most commercial garden centers. However, Wilkerson emphasized that fall was the ideal time to sow bluebonnet seeds.

Despite the criticism, the research has grown into a million-dollar industry.

In addition to its standard role as the widely recognized symbol of the state, the bluebonnet has become a profitable agricultural commodity, Wilkerson said.

"We see the bluebonnet as having tremendous potential," he said.

May Fellowship Day planned here Friday

May Fellowship Day, a worship service of Church Women United held annually on the first Friday of May, will be observed in this community at 10:30 a.m. Friday. The Hereford Unit of Church Women United is sponsoring the celebration entitled, "Human Touch, Divine Healing", at St. Thomas Episcopal Church located at 601 W. Park Ave.

May Fellowship Day, although celebrated nationally, focuses on unity and issues within the local community. It began in 1933 as two separate functions: a luncheon sponsored by the women's council for Home Missions, which was concerned with "child health" and children of migrant families, and a Dedication Day sponsored by the National Council of Federated Church Women to encourage community interest in the social concerns of local councils of church women. In 1939, the two were merged under the National Council of Church Women. In 1945, it was officially named May Fellowship Day.

Eloise McDougal, past president of Texas and current chairperson of the local unit of CWU, has reported that Kathryn Acton, Crown of Texas Hospice Nurse from Hereford and other local women, will be participating in the service.

May Fellowship Day this year continues with the theme of healing that is carried through CWU's three 1993 celebrations. This service reflects on personal healing of mind and body—both giving and receiving—through Biblical and modern references and sharing of individual thoughts and experiences. Participants are encouraged to bring a symbol of healing to the service.

May Fellowship Day Celebration is an opportunity for all men and women of the community and surrounding area to come together as one for prayer and recognition of God's grace and healing in our lives.

One step at a time

Instead of running to get rich, a growing number of investors are discovering they can get further by walking.

These people invest as little as $10 to $25 a month in a list of about 100 companies. The companies pay the commission so all of their money is invested. In time, they will own 100 or more shares. The plan, developed by the National Association of Investors Corporation (NAIC), is aptly called the Low Cost Investment Plan. For a free brochure about the plan, write: NAIC, 1515 E. Eleven Mile Road, Royal Oak, Mi 48067.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - H. Norman Schwarzkopf dedicated an elementary school named for him.

"On behalf of those 541,000 young American men and women, I thank you," the former Gulf War commander told parents, teachers and pupils Sunday.

The 800-student school is near Schwarzkopf's home. Its mascot - like the retired Army general's nickname - is the bear.

"I have been lucky enough to receive honors from kings, queens and presidents all over the world," Schwarzkopf said. "There is no greater honor that I have received than having this school named after me."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the past, you have printed the signs of alcoholism. I have found them very helpful since a member of my family is an alcoholic. I joined Al-Anon, which is for relative and friends of alcoholics, and it continues to be a source of strength for me. Will you please print the following information from an Al-Anon brochure? It may help others decide if they need help, too.—Chicago, Reader

DEAR CHICAGO: I will, indeed. Thank you for asking. Here it is: Millions of people are affected by the excessive drinking of someone close.

The following 20 questions are designed to help you decide whether or not you need Al-Anon.

1. Do you worry about how much someone else drinks?
2. Do you have money problems because of someone else's drinking?
3. Do you tell lies to cover up for someone else's drinking?
4. Do you feel that if the drinker loved you, he or she would stop drinking to please you?
5. Do you tell yourself the drinker's behavior is caused by his or her companions?
6. Are routines frequently upset or meals delayed because of the drinker?
7. Do you make threats such as, "If you don't stop drinking, I'll leave you?"
8. When you kiss the drinker hello, do you secretly try to smell his or her breath for traces of alcohol?
9. Are you afraid to upset the drinker for fear it will set off a drinking bout?

10. Have you been hurt or embarrassed by a drinker's behavior?

11. Does it seem as if every holiday is spoiled because of someone's drinking?

12. Have you considered calling the police for help when someone close to you becomes abusive after drinking?

13. Do you find yourself searching for hidden alcohol?

14. Do you continue to ride in a car with a driver who has been drinking, even though you know it is dangerous?

15. Have you refused social invitations because you fear the drinker might embarrass you?

16. Do you sometimes feel like a failure when you think of the lengths to which you have gone to control the drinker?

17. Do you think that if the drinker stopped drinking, your other problems would be solved?

18. Do you ever threaten to hurt yourself to scare the drinker?

19. Do you feel angry, confused and depressed most of the time?

20. Do you feel there is no one who understands your problems?

If you have answered "yes" to three or more of these questions, Al-Anon or Alateen may be of help. You can contact Al-Anon or Alateen by looking in your local telephone directory or by writing to: Al-Anon Family Group

Headquarters, Inc., P.O. Box 862, Midtown Station, New York, N.Y. 10018-0862, or by calling 1-800-356-9996.

My Laugh for the Day: A speaker at a self-improvement seminar asked those in attendance if anyone present could say he is perfect. A man in the back row stood up. "Do you mean to tell me you are perfect?" asked the speaker.

"No," the man replied. "I am standing as a proxy for my wife's first husband."

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. a60611-0562.

Tips on insulation

By installing the right amount of insulation in your house, you'll be more comfortable; you'll also be getting the most value from your heating and cooling dollar.

On average, 60% of your home's monthly energy bill goes for heating and cooling. The right amount of insulation - in the right places - can cut these costs in half. Your electric utility can offer free advice on how much insulation your house needs.

Where in your house should you insulate? The attic and basement (over and unheated crawl space) are two essential areas for insulation. If you are building a new house, or adding siding, the exterior walls should be considered also.

Heating and air-conditioning ducts, if located in the attic or an unheated crawl space, can also be insulated for energy savings. And don't forget an insulating blanket for the water heater. After home heating and cooling, water heating is your largest energy expense.

Family fun at home

No matter how much money you have spent for the latest and greatest in video hardware, you're still not likely to have the most entertaining system until you get one of the new home theatre liquid crystal display (LCD) projection systems.

A home theater LCD projector lets you project a large picture on any white wall or screen in your house, instantly turning any room into a cinema-style entertainment center.

The family fun usages are endless: children can compete in video game competitions with an audience; teenagers can plan themed movie parties; families can gather to watch home movies or favorite sporting events; newlyweds can relive their wedding day, etc.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) - Former president or not, George Bush doesn't get a break when it comes to highway tolls, the Maine Turnpike Authority says.

Bush returned Sunday to his Maine vacation home on his first visit since leaving the White House. He flew into Boston, then drove to Walker's Point, the oceanfront estate that has been in the family since the turn of the century.

But a tollbooth attendant who took payment from the lead car of Bush's three-car motorcade mistakenly charged only 90 cents - the rate for two cars. She called police, thinking she had been cheated, said John Whitmore of the Wells Police Department.

The Secret Service said an agent was sent the 10 miles from Kennebunkport to Wells to pay the 45-cent difference.

"The Maine Turnpike Authority called the Walker's Point compound and apologized," Whitmore said.
