Clinton cuts would hit 73,400 Texas jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) - While Texas would rank second only to California in jobs lost if defense cuts win congressional approval, the state economy wouldn't be among the hardest hit, a defense research group says.

The Defense Budget Project says that even though Texas would lose 73,400 jobs over the next five years, it would rank 20th among states and the District of Columbia in impact on the total work force.

Nationwide, about 1.2 million workers would lose jobs because of President Clinton's defense cutbacks, the non-profit research group says in a new study. Of the lost jobs, 179,300 would be in California.

The study's authors said Texas' diversified economy would help the state dodge the brunt of the dramatic reductions in military spending that both the White House and Congress agree are necessary.

"The more diversified a state's economy and the larger its non-defense economy, the lower its dependence on defense spending will be and the smaller the anticipated labor force impacts as a share of state employment," wrote Steven Kosiak and Richard A. Bitzinger.

Texas accounts for 7.4 percent of the 1992 share of U.S. defense purchases, third behind California's 18 percent and Virginia's 8.4 percent.

But only 4.2 percent of Texas' labor force, or 346,600 people, work in defense-related jobs. The biggest job loss wouldn't occur in the Defense Department's military and civilian sectors, but rather among those who work for defense contractors.

Private-sector defense employment would plunge from 179,600 jobs to 130,300, for a loss of 49,300 jobs, the study projects.

Among active-duty military personnel, the cutbacks would pare employment from 108,800 to 90,500, for a loss of 18,300. Civilian Defense Department employment in the state would drop slightly from 58,200 to 52,300.

Much of the job loss would be centered in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, where most of the state's defense industry is concentrated.

Harold Gross, associate director of the University of North Texas' Center for Economic Development and Research, said the regional economy should be able to weather the defense cutbacks.

"I don't think that for example we're going to go through anything like what Houston went through in the early to mid '80s when the refining and petrochemical industries collapsed," Gross said Tuesday.

"We're starting to think increasingly that not only will the Dallas-Fort Worth area come out of this in reasonably good shape in terms of losing a modest number of jobs, but we may actually benefit by the transfer of some functions into this area through consolidations," he said.

"Anytime there's a lot of $70B budget shorts education, services

AUSTIN (AP) - House and Senate leaders have tentatively adopted a two-year state budget of approximately $70 billion that will not require a tax increase.

But the spending plan agreed to Tuesday by the House-Senate budget conference committee falls short in funding education and human services.

"It's a frugal budget, but it's a responsible budget," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and co-chair of the House-Senate conference committee.

State Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo and Montford's House counterpart, said, "We have brought a bill in that is within available revenue. We can live and provide adequate services to the citizens of this state without having an increase in taxes."

By early next week, the 1994-95 spending plan will be formally tabulated.

The bottom line will be about $70 billion, which is 11.6 percent more than the 1992-93 budget of $62.7 billion, legislative budget staff members said.

structural change or turmoil in a big industry, there tends to be a lot of merger and acquisition activity."

One high-profile example is the recent $1.5 billion sale of General Dynamics' Fort Worth Division, which produces F-16 fighter jets, to Lockheed Corp.

Another advantage for North Texas is that defense contractors concentrate on high-tech products the military is expected to use for decades to come - advanced communications components, missiles, and quick-deployment aircraft.

"To the extent any of us can tell what's coming down the road 10, 20, 30 years from now, it's an array of products that probably will occupy a growing share of the defense budget," Gross said.

The estimated total also is more than earlier versions passed by the House and Senate, which were $67.5 billion and $69.7 billion, respectively.

Included in the new proposal is a $1 billion increase over current state spending for public schools, and a $1.1 billion increase in health and human services from the budget approved earlier by the House.

But Montford said the extra school funding will fall short of keeping up with enrollment growth. There are currently about 3.3 million public school students statewide. That number is expected to grow another 130,000 by mid-1995.

Despite increases in health and human service spending, lawmakers said some programs will be shaved because of the increasing numbers of people entitled to aid.

"Obviously, everybody would like to have more. I think health and human services have been treated fairly," Junell said.

Conference committee members unanimously endorsed the spending plan. After the panel formally "signs off" on the budget, it can go to both the full House and Senate for consideration.

Ready ... and ... action!

N.Y. crew films documentary here to air on Japanese TV

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

What do Hereford, Scottsdale, Ariz., and Cimarron, N.M., have in common with New York City and Tokyo, Japan?

Normally, not much, but on Tuesday, all these cities were tied together, as a film crew from the Big Apple came to town to film a portion of a documentary bound for Japan at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

"We are doing a documentary for NHK. NHK is the largest broadcasting corporation in Japan," said Pat Weatherford, who is producer of the spot for Rebo Studios.

Rebo, Weatherford said, is one of the few companies in the U.S. that deals in High Resolution Television, which is a Japanese invention and a staple of NHK productions.

High Resolution, she said, is a relatively new technology that her company brought to the U.S. in 1986.

"It's much clearer, sharper and much wider picture than normal television," she said, adding that the screen ratio is "the ratio of a movie screen."

The company's current production is a 30-minute documentary that deals with the American cowgirl in general and three women -- Jonnie Jonckowski, Gretchen Sammis and Ruby Gobble -- in particular.

All three are in the hall of fame, so the trip to Hereford not only served to provide general background information on cowgirls, but also gave the film crew specific clips on the three women.

Weatherford said the trip here was scheduled in between a stop in Scottsdale, where they filmed Jonckowski in a bull riding competition, and Cimarron, where they will film Sammis at her ranch. Gobble works with Sammis and will be filmed there as well.

The company rode into town Monday night, then spent all day Tuesday at the museum.

Cables connected the camera to a complex engineering panel in another room.

Chuck Clifton, director of photography, moved the camera from room to room throughout the hall, locating desired shots and setting up the camera angles.

Weatherford and chief engineer Barry Minnerly then set the shot up, yelling through the halls to Clifton to move the camera so the shot appeared perfect in their video monitor.

Finally, the buttons were pushed on the board and the remote-controlled camera began filming.

Weatherford said the hall will appear throughout the half-hour show, as interviews with the three women will be interspersed with video from Hereford.

In addition, assistant hall of fame director Virginia Artho was interviewed, and her comments will be added.

Shooting on the documentary will be completed on Sunday, Weatherford said.

The company then has three weeks to edit it, then the film is off to Tokyo and NHK for final work before airing at the end of June.

As to why the film was being made, Weatherford said, "The Japanese are fascinated with cowgirls."

Shin Nakagawa, a representative of Tokyo Hi Vision, which is the liaison between Rebo in New York and NHK in Tokyo.

"I think cowgirls represent American spirits," Nakagawa said Tuesday.

"Very independent and strong and (have their) own life style."

Women like Sammis and Jonckowski have chosen to live that life, Nakagawa said, even though it's a traditional man's job and very hard to do.

"We Japanese think it's very hard." The cowgirls, he said, can teach the Japanese a lot.

"We are taking it as American spirits."

Richards still firm on vow to veto concealed gun bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards isn't backing off her vow to shoot down a bill that would allow Texans to carry handguns, if approved in a statewide vote.

"She's going to veto that bill whether it's stripped down, padded out, fat or skinny," Richards spokeswoman Chuck McDonald said after the Senate approved the measure Tuesday.

"It's not just a concealed gun bill, it's a concealed death bill because that's what it leads to," he said.

The Senate gave its final approval 22-8 following a five-hour, 15-minute filibuster against the legislation on Monday by Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas.

A version of the measure already has passed the House. The legislation now returns to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

Under the bill, Texas voters would decide the issue in a November referendum.

If approved, Texans 21 or older who are registered voters, have no criminal background and are judged to be of sound mind could apply for a license to carry a handgun.

Although touted as a concealed weapons bill, the measure also allows for carrying handguns openly, for instance in a hip holster.

Lawmakers said it is doubtful the bill could be sent to Richards before midnight Wednesday. This would allow the governor to veto it after the regular legislative session ends May 31, and thus avoid an override attempt.

"I hope it's dead," West said of the proposal. "I hope that we can put it in the graveyard and put a tombstone over it and inscribe on the tombstone, 'May it rest in peace.'"

Opponents of the bill, including many law enforcement groups, said it would increase the number of shootings and have no effect on reducing crime.

But supporters said it would give citizens the ability to protect themselves.

Sen. Jerry Patterson, sponsor of the bill, criticized Richards for promising to block citizens from voting on the issue.

"She's saying that she's smarter than two-thirds of the Senate, two-thirds of the House and smarter than the people of Texas."

Even if the bill dies this session, Patterson predicted it would become an issue in the 1994 gubernatorial campaign.

City gets $73,025 in May tax rebate

Hereford's sales tax rebate check for May totals $73,025, according to a report received this week from the state comptroller's office. That's up 7.6 percent from the $67,844 received at this time last year.

The city's 1993 payments on the one percent sales tax, now totaling $288,626, are 2.2 percent ahead of last year's.

Deaf Smith County's half-cent sale tax netted a check of $34,334 for May, up 8 percent from a year ago. The county's 1993 total is $142,190, up 3 percent from last year.

One of the larger increases in the Panhandle was recorded at Pampa, where the sales tax was raised to two percent. Pampa's check of $267,849 is 92.8 percent higher than last year's check at this time. The 1993 total at Pampa has surpassed $1 million and is up 80.6 percent for the year.

Levelland, which hiked its tax to 1.5 percent, had a May check for $134,841, up 56 percent from last year.

Statewide, Comptroller John Sharp mailed out $172.6 million to 1,071 Texas cities and 108 counties. That represented a 14.4 percent increase over the payments of one year ago. The City of Houston led the way with a check for $23.3 million.

School finance bill would meet court order; Bullock undecided

AUSTIN (AP) - Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock says he can't tell whether a local-option school funding reform plan passed by a House panel is "fish or fowl."

But backers say the measure - which would give property-rich districts a choice of ways to share some of their wealth with poorer school systems - would meet a Texas Supreme Court order for finance reform.

The court has ordered lawmakers to come up with a plan by June 1 to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth.

If they fail, they face a court order halting state education aid. School districts rely on state aid and local property taxes.

Bullock said the House committee bill "has many, many moving parts."

"It bothers me to think that one of those moving parts of the many might get broken, and we'll be worrying about closing schools not just in June but in September, when a majority of our students expect to come back to school," he said.

All 11 members of the House Public Education Committee have signed on as cosponsors of the multiple-choice bill, which is backed by Speaker Pete Laney. It is expected to be considered Thursday by the full House.

"I think it's a reflection of this committee's commitment to solving this problem, and getting on with improving the quality of education and educating our kids," committee Chairwoman Libby Lineberger, D-Manchaca, said after the education panel unanimously approved the measure Tuesday.

The House committee is taking a different approach than the Senate on meeting the court order.

A bill earlier passed by the Senate would require the state to shift some business property from wealthier to poorer school districts. Ms. Lineberger said she expects a House-Senate conference committee ultimately will work out differences between the measures.

The House committee plan would consolidate the 109 richest school districts in property wealth with one or more of their poorer neighbors by the state - unless a district instead

U.S. trade deficit soars to $10.2 billion, imports rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. merchandise trade deficit soared to $10.2 billion in March, the worst showing in almost four years, as imports hit an all-time high, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said that American demand for foreign oil and automobiles contributed to a dramatic 29.1 percent widening of the trade gap, compared to a February deficit of $7.9 billion.

The March deficit was far worse than economists had been expecting and likely will cause the government to revise down its assessment for how the overall economy performed during the January-March period from an already anemic showing of 1.8 percent growth in the gross domestic product.

The new trade report will add pressure on the Clinton administration to do something to stop the slide in America's international standing. Without growth in exports, the 1990-91 recession would have been chose among the following options:

- Merging its tax base with one or more poorer school districts;
 - Sending money to the state to pay for educating other students in poorer districts;
 - Contracting to educate students in other districts;
 - Consolidating voluntarily with one or more other school districts; or
 - Moving some taxable property to another district's tax rolls.
- Local voter approval would be required for the first three options.

twice as severe, but over the past year the export boom has cooled considerably.

Economists are glumly forecasting that this year the trade imbalance will again top $100 billion as weakness in overseas economies cuts into demand for exports and faster growth in the United States draws in more imports.

So far this year, the U.S. deficit is running at an annual rate of $103 billion, compared to last year's $84.5 billion deficit.

For March, imports shot up 9.7 percent to a new record of $49.2 billion. This surge dwarfed a smaller 5.6 percent increase in exports, which rose 5.6 percent to $39.0 billion.

The big rise in imports was led by a 21.8 percent jump in crude oil and other energy products, which climbed by $795 million. Imports of foreign cars were up $400 million while iron and steel imports climbed by $250 million and chemical imports increased $150 million.

FBI recognized 'powder keg' situation

Justice Department nominee seeks full investigation

DALLAS (AP) - Throughout a 51-day standoff with David Koresh's heavily armed cult, the FBI never underestimated how potentially destructive the situation was, says one of the agency's leaders during the saga.

"I'm not sure that the media even knows to this day how much of a powder keg that was even during the slow days where nothing was happening and boredom was building up," special agent Dick Swensen told a gathering of newspaper publishers Tuesday.

"I think we knew from day one what a powder keg this was."

The Justice Department, meanwhile, will investigate its role during the ordeal, if Philip Heymann is approved as Deputy Attorney General.

Heymann told the Senate Judiciary Committee during the opening round of questions at his confirmation hearing that he'd like to see a "most thorough, detailed" investigation.

He said as many as 900 people will be interviewed, including Attorney General Janet Reno, Associate Attorney General-designate Webster Hubbell "and anyone else who was around it at the time."

Swensen said during a panel discussion at the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association's annual convention that the news media did a thorough job following the Branch Davidian tragedy.

"There's nothing that I'm aware of that's big that you don't have," Swensen said. "There's thousands of things that you don't know, but that's only because there's thousands of things that happen in your newsrooms that I don't know. There's obviously bits and pieces that no one knows."

Swensen said he could speak only for what happened after the FBI took control of the standoff several hours after the botched raid by agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms on Feb. 28 outside Waco.

Swensen disagreed with a journalist on the panel who contended the FBI used daily briefings to deliver misinformation to Koresh. He said hindsight should allow both the federal government and the news media to better prepare for future armed cult conflicts, which he said were imminent.

Swensen, in charge of the FBI's New Orleans office, was one of four special agents who addressed the media during the deadlock, which ended in fire and gunfire on April 19, killing Koresh and most of his followers, including 22 children.

The agent refused separate interviews, saying the FBI had cleared his appearance before the publishers group, but felt comments outside the panel could compromise a Congressional investigation into the tragedy.

Swensen said he didn't think the media attention affected tactical decisions or prolonged the standoff, which began when a raid by the ATF erupted into a gunbattle that left six Branch Davidians and four agents dead.

Panelist Kathy Fair, a reporter for the Houston Chronicle, said the media felt the FBI's daily news briefings were often more for show, to communicate with Koresh and his followers.

"There was a feeling that we were being used," she said. "And they were willing to provide us information as long as it was serving their purpose, but once we got of into a line of questioning that somebody didn't want to answer, there was suddenly this brick wall."

Fair also complained that the federal weapons search warrants were sealed until the day of the fire.

"That's bothersome to me that we can live in a country where federal agents can raid a place and have arrest and search warrants sealed," she said.

Swensen said the FBI, which always refused to discuss tactics with the media, sometimes used the briefings to convey its frustrations, but never to deliver falsehoods.

"We just tried to get out accurate information as best we could and let him know that ... we weren't going to listen to his silliness forever," he said.

Swensen said the media ought to review its reactions as the federal government examines its own.

"My feeling is clearly that we're going to have more of these," he said, "because we have armed cults cloaking themselves up in religious guises and we have more and more published reports of huge, major stockpiles of weapons."

"This is going to happen again, and those issues you can deal with on a contingency basis as opposed to those issues you have to deal with in the panic of the moment."

Compromise on gays in military proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A gay congressman is offering a compromise on permitting homosexuals to legally, but quietly serve in the military, conceding that the American public isn't ready for President Clinton's move to completely lift the ban on gays in uniform.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., proposed a solution Tuesday that would allow gay and lesbian service members to do as they please off base as long as they keep their sexual orientation secret while on duty.

Faced with strong sentiment against Clinton's proposal in the Senate Armed Services Committee and elsewhere in Congress, Frank said the president didn't have the votes to overturn the existing ban on gays in the military.

A White House official said he thought Clinton might be willing to accept the Frank compromise, especially if Sen. Sam Nunn, chairman of the armed services panel and an opponent of lifting the ban, agreed to it.

"Obviously, Frank speaks to the (gay) community better than anybody else in Congress and if Senator Nunn agreed with it, I think there's a good

Bill dies; sponsors still work

AUSTIN (AP) - A bill that would allow law officers to take away the license of a suspected drunken driver has hit a roadblock in the Texas House.

The measure was struck from House consideration Tuesday on a technicality.

The bill has died three times before in the Legislature. Supporters worried that with less than two weeks left in the legislative session, the fourth time won't be any different.

Rep. Steve Wolens, the bill's cosponsor, said it would take "gymnastic feats" to get the measure through the Legislature before the end of the session May 31.

But Wolens and Sen. Judith Zaffirini, author of the bill, say they're not giving up yet.

Ms. Zaffirini said she would try to have the House committee clean up the bill, and then push it before the full House again.

"Sooner or later we are going to pass this bill, and I am not giving up until" the end of the session, said Ms. Zaffirini, who sponsored the bill in previous years.

A person arrested for driving while intoxicated would, under the bill, face license revocation and receive a temporary license for 40 days. During that time, the person could appeal the revocation before an administrative law judge.

Drivers who lose or fail to appeal would lose their licenses for 90 days. The suspension period would increase to one year if they had a previous DWI or drug-related charge in the past five years.

The legislation, supporters say, would help curb drinking and driving and specifically target first-time offenders.

"This bill is a giant first step for deterring drunk driving in Texas," said Wolens, D-Dallas. "The DPS says it's a significant bill. If DPS says that, I believe them."

Ms. Zaffirini, D-Laredo, conceded the bill faces strong opposition.

chance the president would as well," the official said, speaking on condition he not be named.

White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said she hadn't heard about Frank's proposal, and wasn't sure if Clinton would agree with it.

"The president believes we have to go further than 'don't ask, don't tell' - that the standard ought to be conduct," she said.

"Reality says for an indefinite period lesbians and gay men are going to have to not discuss their sexuality," he said. "I regret that we can't move immediately to removal of the ban."

Frank also said the widespread resentment in the military to homosexuality may make his proposed policy change the standard for years to come. Based on "the inbred dislike of gays and lesbians it may be a very long time before we go further," he said.

Under his plan, gay and lesbian service members would have to keep their sexual orientation secret while on duty but would be allowed to engage in homosexual activity privately and on their own time.

Knicks knock out Hornets

By The Associated Press
The New York Knicks have struggled to reach the NBA Eastern Conference finals, where it doesn't get any easier.

"It's going to be tough, but we're looking forward to it," Knicks coach Pat Riley said of his team's next foe: the two-time defending champion Chicago Bulls on Sunday.

New York, tested in all five games, outlasted the Charlotte Hornets 105-101 Tuesday night, winning their best-of-7 series 4-1. Chicago wrapped up its semifinal series against Cleveland on Monday without a loss, duplicating its first-round success against Atlanta.

In other games Tuesday, Seattle defeated Houston 120-95 and Phoenix defeated San Antonio 109-97. Both winners took 3-2 leads in the Western Conference semifinals, where every game has been won by the home team.

While the Knicks were victorious, not much separated them from the Hornets.

"They know we gave them a tough series every minute of the way," said Charlotte rookie center Alonzo Mourning.

How right he was. While the Knicks won Game 1 by 16 points, the teams were tied at 80 entering the fourth quarter. New York won Game 2 in overtime, lost Game 3 in double OT and captured Game 3 when Rolando Blackman hit a jumper with five seconds remaining.

Tuesday night, Charlotte trailed by three points at halftime despite hitting just one-third of its shots. The Hornets got no closer than two in the second half, despite blanketing Patrick Ewing, who fouled out with 9 points, 21 under his average for the first four games of the series.

"The rest of the guys came through," Ewing said. "It was everybody, the whole team. They stepped up and got the job done, all of them."

Charles Oakley led New York with 21 points and 11 rebounds, assisted by a cast of role players.

Kendall Gill had 26 points and Mourning 22 for Charlotte, which was making the first playoff appearance in the franchise's five-year history.

In posting their 25th consecutive victory at Madison Square Garden, the Knicks advanced to the conference finals for the first time since 1974, the year after winning their second NBA title.

Suns 109, Spurs 97

Charles Barkley, deciding to shoot the ball, broke out of his playoff-long slump and scored 11 points in a two-minute span of the fourth quarter to rally the Suns from behind in Phoenix. Barkley scored 19 of his 36 points in the final period after San Antonio took an 85-78 lead on Sean Elliott's dunk with 11:04 remaining.

In the first half, Barkley took only two shots.

"I just decided I had to come out and make something happen," Barkley said. "They were doing a good job of taking the ball out of my hands, so I decided I'd try to get something going on the offensive boards."

Barkley grabbed six of his 12 rebounds in the fourth quarter.

David Robinson and Dale Ellis had 24 points each for the Spurs, and Elliott added 15.

The series moves to San Antonio Thursday night.

SuperSonics 120, Rockets 95

In Seattle, Ricky Pierce scored 24 points and Gary Payton added a playoff career-high 23. Payton had scored just 10 points in the two games in Houston.

"Gary has to get aggressive," Pierce said. "When he does that, he becomes a presence and makes everybody's job easier."

Shawn Kemp had 19 points and 12 rebounds for the Sonics.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 26 points and 14 rebounds for Houston, but had no blocked shots after getting 22 blocks in the first four games of the series. Vernon Maxwell, averaging 17.5 points, was limited to six on 2-for-13 shooting.

Game 6 will be Thursday at Houston.

partners don't have a right to match."

Fertitta and Moores want to match Alexander's bid to keep the team under local ownership. Alexander has said he'll move to Houston to become closer to the team.

Alexander, who has been trying to buy an NBA franchise for more than a year, already has plans to borrow $47 million from a Dallas firm.

Rival groups who still want to try to buy the team likely would have to go to sue Thomas to have another chance at matching Alexander's offer.

"We're going to pursue all the options," Fertitta said. "You can't change the rules in the middle of the game, and that's what is being attempted here."

Three Super Rings

NEW YORK (AP) - Matt Millen, a sturdy linebacker for several NFL teams and now a sportscaster, has a unique record.

Millen is the only player ever to play for three different Super Bowl winners and to wear three different team title rings.

Matt was on a winning Washington Redskins team in 1992, the Oakland Raiders in 1981 and the San Francisco 49ers in 1990.

Rockets' sale sealed

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Rockets owner Charlie Thomas says a new $85 million offer from Florida businessman Les Alexander has sealed the offer and eliminated a chance by minority owners to purchase the team.

But minority owner Tilman Fertitta, who has joined Sugar Land businessman John Moores in an attempt to match Alexander's offer, says he hasn't given up hope.

"I don't believe this is over yet," Fertitta said. "And something will happen in the next few days."

The Rockets released a statement late Tuesday night saying Alexander's new offer "removes all obstacles to the sale of the club."

"It's a done deal," said Thomas, who bought the team for $10 million in 1982. "I've sold the club to Les Alexander. As soon as the playoffs are over, he will take over operations. It will be no later than June 30."

Thomas broke the news to the minority owners Tuesday, telling them they can't match Alexander's higher deal.

"Charlie came to us and said, 'I only have one team to sell, and it's sold to Les Alexander,'" Fertitta said.

"Charlie said that original deal is no longer on the table. And at $85 million, he says the Class A limited

Hereford to host Friona-Canyon bi-district game

Top-ranked Canyon will face Friona in a bi-district baseball game at 4:30 p.m. Friday at Hereford's Whiteface Field.

Canyon, 27-0 and ranked No. 1 in Class 3A, are the champions of District 1-3A. Canyon is coached by Gary Hix.

Friona, 11-13, earned the second playoff spot out of District 2-3A by whipping Littlefield 14-3 Tuesday. Friona and Littlefield finished with 7-3 district records--Tulia won the district--and split the season series, forcing the one-game playoff.

Friona is coached by Curtis

Cotten, a Hereford High School graduate and former HHS assistant coach, in his first year as a head coach. Canyon is coached by Gary Hix.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - If you do a "Silky Sullivan" around a race track, you are unleashing a furious rally through the stretch.

Davis' grand slam starts Dodgers' attack on Reds

By The Associated Press

For one game, anyway, it looked like the old Eric Davis.

Davis hit a grand slam Tuesday night against his former team to lead the Los Angeles past the Cincinnati Reds 9-1 at Dodger Stadium.

"I got the big hit to help win the ball game, but I've still got a long way to go," Davis said. "I've got to swing like I did then and keep working."

It was the Reds' second straight loss after winning seven in a row.

Davis, who had just one homer in 116 at-bats this year and only two hits in his previous 29 at-bats, drove a 1-2 pitch from John Smiley (1-6) over the left-field wall in the fifth inning.

The RBIs were the first for Davis since April 30, and the homer only his fourth extra-base hit of the season. It also was his only hit of the game as he went 1 for 4 with a bases-loaded walk.

"It's not only important to me that I start hitting well, it's important to the team," the 30-year-old Davis said.

The Dodgers acquired Davis from the Reds on Nov. 27, 1991, but he's been hampered by injuries since being reunited with LA boyhood buddy Darryl Strawberry. Last season, Davis hit only five homers with 32 RBIs.

Kevin Gross (3-3) pitched a six-hitter with two walks and seven strikeouts.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Philadelphia 6, Florida 0; Pittsburgh 10, New York 8; Montreal 1, Atlanta

0; Chicago 4, St. Louis 1; San Francisco 7, Houston 2; and Colorado 2, San Diego 1 in 11 innings.

Phillies 6, Marlins 0

Tommy Greene (5-0) pitched a six-hitter for his second straight complete game and Darren Daulton hit a two-run homer to help Philadelphia beat Florida at Joe Robbie Stadium. Greene struck out 10 and lowered his league-leading ERA to 1.98.

Giants 7, Astros 2

John Burkett scattered seven hits to become the NL's first seven-game winner as San Francisco beat Houston at Candlestick Park to take a three-game lead over the second-place Astros in the West. The Giants have won seven of their last eight games.

Burkett struck out six en route to the Giants' first complete game of the season.

Expos 1, Braves 0

Gil Heredia, called up from the minors before the game, pitched six strong innings and John Vander Wal drove in the game's only run with a single off Pete Smith (2-3) as Montreal won at Atlanta. The win was the Expos' fifth in six games, while the Braves lost for only the fourth time in 15 games.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 1

Derrick May and Ryne Sandberg combined for four hits and three RBIs as Chicago defeated St. Louis at Busch Stadium. May had a two-run single in the first and doubled and scored on Steve Buechele's sacrifice fly in the fifth. He's 7 for 13 in the last three games with three doubles, a home run and nine RBIs.

Rockies 2, Padres 1

Charlie Hayes hit a sacrifice fly to left in the 11th inning off reliever Rich Rodriguez (1-2) to help visiting Colorado snap a seven-game losing streak. The Rockies had also lost 12 of their previous 13 games.

Vinny Castilla led off with a double, took third on Dante Bichette's single and scored on Hayes' sac fly.

Pirates 10, Mets 8

Pittsburgh reached loser Pete Schourek (2-4) for six runs in a 16-pitch span of the fourth inning, and held on to beat New York. For the Mets, it was another long night in their skid to the bottom. They've lost five straight games, eight of nine and 18 of 22.

District track meet champions

Fernando gets 1st win in 3 years

By The Associated Press

All that came between wins for Fernando Valenzuela was the near loss of his career.

Showing the screwball and style that made him one of baseball's biggest winners in 1980s, Valenzuela earned his first victory since 1990, pitching a two-hitter in leading the Baltimore Orioles over Cleveland 7-0 Tuesday night.

"It's a good feeling for me to have a win, but I think we really needed the win more," he said. "The win is great, but I'm not that excited. It's a big win for the team and the fans in Baltimore."

The game was called because of rain after the Indians batted in the top of the eighth.

Valenzuela's last shutout came in his most memorable game in the majors, a no-hitter on June 29, 1990, for the Los Angeles Dodgers against St. Louis. His last win was on Sept. 14, 1990.

Since then, not much had gone right. He was cut by the Dodgers in spring training in 1991, and hit hard in two starts for California later that season.

Valenzuela spent last year in the Mexican League, hoping for a comeback. This spring, the Orioles gave the 32-year-old Valenzuela another chance.

Lately, Valenzuela had pitched well. Still, even with a 2.70 ERA in his last three starts, he had no wins to show for it.

Valenzuela (1-3) struck out six and walked three. He has allowed only four runs in his last 30 2-3 innings, lowering his ERA to 3.72.

White Sox 7, Angels 4

Wilson Alvarez won his fifth straight start and Chicago took advantage of four errors to beat visiting California.

George Bell homered for the second straight game and drove in three runs. His sacrifice fly in the sixth inning put the White Sox ahead for good.

Yankees 5, Twins 3

Steve Farr struck out Dave Winfield with the bases loaded to end the game at the Metrodome, and New York held on to beat Minnesota.

Jim Abbott (3-5) was the winner. Farr took over to start the ninth, then pitched in and out of trouble for his ninth save.

Rangers 3, Mariners 2

Doug Strange hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning, rallying Texas past Seattle.

Strange connected against Rich DeLucia (1-3) for his second home run of the season. He earlier hit an RBI single.

Tigers 5, Brewers 1

Mickey Tettleton hit a bases-loaded triple in the first inning, and Detroit went on to win in Milwaukee.

An error by third baseman B.J. Surhoff set up Tettleton's big hit. Tettleton had three hits, as did teammate Lou Whitaker.

Mark Leiter (2-1) stopped the Brewers on six hits in 8 1-3 innings. Cal Eldred (4-5) pitched into the ninth and allowed 10 hits.

Royals 6, Athletics 1

Mark Gardner and Bill Sampen teamed on a four-hitter, and Kansas City beat visiting Oakland. The Royals have won five of seven.

Gardner (3-2) gave up all four hits, including Troy Neel's home run, in 7 2-3 innings.

Senior winners were Kinann Campbell, casual; Cady Auckerman, dressy; Lee Harder, formal; Karon Harder, active specialty; and Jami Parker, construction.

Special awards were presented to Bryan Vasek with the Rookie Award; Jaime Steiert, Most Creative Award; Craig Campbell, Cotton Award; Jami Parker, Wool Award; Erin Auckerman, Theme Award; and Lee Harder, Erin Auckerman and Ashley Bridge, Best Record Award.

This year the clothing project committee included Chairman Charla Schlabs, Brenda Campbell, Dollie Parker and Karla Vasek. The teen fashion leaders were Cady Auckerman, Kinann Campbell, Lee Harder and Karon Harder.

Judges included Jo Lee, Jo Bidwell, and Lori and Loretta Urbanczyk.

Awards for the fashion show were provided by Charla Schlabs, Westway and Ford Extension Homemakers Clubs and the 4-H Parent Leaders Association.

NEW YORK (AP) - And the awards just keep on coming for Tony Kushner, author of the play "Angels in America: Millennium Approaches."

The first half of his epic drama about AIDS won the Drama Desk's best play of the 1992-93 theater season Monday. It won the Pulitzer Prize earlier this year.

"Kiss of the Spider Woman" was chosen best musical.

Ron Leibman, who portrays lawyer Roy Cohn in "Angels in America," was named best actor in a play. Jane Alexander, who plays the eldest sibling in Wendy Wasserstein's "The Sisters Rosensweig," was chosen as best actress.

Chita Rivera, who plays the exotic title character in "Kiss of the Spider Woman," was named best actress in a musical. Co-star Brent Carver won for best actor in a musical.

"The Who's Tommy" picked up six awards, the most of any show. It took prizes for best director of a musical, Des McAnuff, and also won for choreography, orchestration, set design, lighting and sound.

Unlike the Tony Awards, which recognizes only Broadway productions, the Drama Desk honors Broadway and off-Broadway plays and musicals. The group is made up

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you can help me. My 26-year-old daughter is plagued by demonic delusions. She has been hospitalized five times in the past year, and I am very concerned about her.

Although "Sarah" has many good days when she functions well, there are other times when she feels tortured by demons. During these episodes, which are very real to her, she is like a totally different person, and I cannot reach her.

Sarah was associated for a short time with members of a Satanic cult, although she was not aware of it. On one occasion, they took her to a house of Satanic worship where she was approached by a minister wearing a cross upside-down. She told me about this weird experience and said it upset her and she left.

Psychiatrists who have talked to her refuse to believe any of this. They say it is all in her mind and no such events took place. I want my daughter to be mentally healthy, Ann. Is there a deprogrammer who can help her? Please try to make sense of this letter. I feel helpless.--A Mom in New York

DEAR MOM IN N.Y.: A great deal of research by my office into Satanic worship yielded very little of value. Some psychiatrists say this is a real problem. Others insist there is nothing to it and dismiss it out of hand.

This whole issue is extremely murky. My advice, Mother, is to take your daughter to a therapist (not necessarily a psychiatrist), and perhaps he or she can get to the bottom of the problem. The young woman needs a lot more help than I can give her in this column.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My fiance had a steamy affair with my friend and co-worker who is a married woman. "Howard" confessed only after I confronted him with the information that I had hired a private investigator.

He now says he will go to counseling and do anything to keep me. He swears that the woman chased him and caught him in a weak moment. Her husband knows of her infidelities and appears not to care. Howard is desperate for a reconciliation, but I don't know if I can trust him. He now seems non-communicative, withdrawn and secretive.

All the characters involved in this scenario are middle-aged. I thought such antics were over after a certain point in life, but I was wrong. Everyone tells me I could do a lot better than Howard, but I don't see any eligible males out there. There seem to be plenty of married men who want to fool around, but I don't want that kind of relationship.

Can you give me some guidance, please? I will be watching your column for an answer.--A Dilemma in Des Moines

DEAR DES MOINES: I don't know what your threshold of tolerance is, but I'd give Howard the heave-ho so fast his head would swim.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you referred to Canada as the "second largest country in the world." I thought

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I have a window garden extending from my dining room. Evidently one of the double-paned fixed windows has developed a tiny leak and allowed enough moisture to seep between the double pane to stain the whole glass area.

What can be done to remove the stain between the panes? Thanks a bunch! — Billy H. Martin, San Antonio, Texas

If what you are talking about is two panes of insulated glass, then unfortunately they can't be separated. If the seal is broken, then the insulating quality of the glass is gone.

After speaking with several manufacturers, the only suggestion they offer is replacement.

A reader suggestion to disguise the stain is to put some of the frosted-look adhesive-backed film over the window. — Heloise

GLASS WOOD-STOVE DOOR

Dear Heloise: We have a woodburning stove with a glass door, which we clean every week with a baking soda and water paste.

Visitors often inquire how we manage to keep the glass so clear. — Fronie Squibb, Mount Pearl, Newfoundland, Canada

SHOWER CLEANING

Dear Heloise: To save on time spent cleaning my shower, I rinse the inside of the curtain and shower walls with my hand-held shower head every night as I finish my shower.

If you have a problem with dampness, you could wipe down the walls with your towel after you've dried off. Then close the curtain and, folding both sides, give it a shake or two to get most of the water off and hang it outside of the tub to dry.

Old Plainview Hilton Hotel may be used as home for the elderly

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) - Chandeliers sparkled and the marble staircase gleamed when the downtown Hilton Hotel opened grandly in 1929.

Yes, the eight-story structure - now tattered and dilapidated, with its windows broken and boarded up - has seen better days.

But better days could return, thanks to people pushing to convert the abandoned landmark into homes for the elderly and needy.

"We want it occupied, period," said City Manager Jim Jeffers. "The need has never been an issue. The financing is the issue."

The Hilton, vacant since 1983, has suffered through a chain of owners who hoped to restore the building for use as office space, a computer center, even a private club. Plan after plan failed.

"Something always at the last minute derails it," Jeffers said.

The latest owners this spring handed the lien-free Hilton to Guadalupe Economic Services Corp., a Lubbock-based organization that gives food, shelter, clothes and medical care to the needy.

Guadalupe Executive Director Richard Lopez is consulting city officials about what to do with the gift.

"I'd hate to start dictating. There are a lot of needs," Lopez said.

Jeffers said he expects Guadalupe to make more headway than previous owners.

"The advantage Guadalupe has is that they are non-profit," he said. "We anticipate that they will be able to open some doors that the private sector couldn't."

The housing need in Plainview is unmistakable.

At least 97 percent of rental housing is occupied. A surge in new jobs at Azteca Milling Co., Excel meat packing plant and the Wal-Mart distribution center has workers commuting from as far as Amarillo, Jeffers said.

A recent survey by a Fort Worth market analyst showed 51.5 percent of Plainview residents over age 64 have incomes less than $15,000. Thirty-seven percent of Plainview's elderly residents pay at least 35 percent of their income on rent, the survey said.

The Hilton needs an estimated $2 million overhaul to replace wiring, pipes, buckling floorboards and elevators.

Plainview Housing Authority Chairman David Wilder is among skeptics who wonder whether federal grants and donations might be better spent on new structures.

"You probably could take those same dollars and go out and build single-story units, cheaper," he said. "I'd always predicted we'd have to dynamite the thing down."

Sentiment for the Hilton runs deep, though.

Banker J.B. Wheeler remembers dancing in his first tuxedo beside the murals and mirrors in the hotel's seafoam green ballroom.

Various clubs met there throughout the years - and U.S. Senate candidate Lyndon B. Johnson campaigned from the balcony.

The Hilton once was "the classiest place in entire trade area," Wheeler said.

"It's basically very sound. It just needs someone to love it and put it back together."

Muslims, Croats flout Bosnia peace plan

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - Muslims and Croats battled fiercely in central Bosnia today, flouting commitments by their leaders to enforce truces.

The fighting in Vitez began before dawn today. Mortar shells, apparently fired from Muslim positions, landed in a Croat section of the embattled city, Western reporters there said.

"There's very little we can do. The two sides here have decided to come as close as they can and poke each other's eyes out," said British Maj. James Myles of the U.N. force.

In a bid to defuse the 9-day-old battle for the city of Mostar, about 60 miles south of Vitez, Muslim and Croat leaders agreed Tuesday to try to impose a U.N.-backed peace plan in disputed areas.

Both sides said they would try today to enforce earlier truces that call for troops to withdraw to their barracks and civilians to be freed.

Croats are reported to have detained hundreds of Muslims - including women and children - around Mostar.

Croats have been trying to push Muslims from Mostar to secure uncontested control of a province that they would get under the peace plan.

The clashes between Croats and Muslims, once allies, have greatly complicated international efforts to end the carnage in Bosnia.

In Vitez, several houses were burning as Muslims and Croats fought each other with mortars, anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, recoilless rifles and machine guns, British peacekeepers said.

Muslim government forces were reported firing from a ridge overlooking the British base onto Croat positions in the town and the Croats were returning the fire over the British peacekeepers.

JAN BURCH

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have just recently been told I have hypothyroidism. Can you send me some information on this? Once you start taking synthetic thyroid hormone, does this suppress your thyroid from ever manufacturing thyroid on its own again? A nutritionist argues that if you take a natural thyroid hormone, your thyroid can and often does start functioning well again.

I live in Florida and my doctor just recently moved here from Michigan. He remarked he seldom saw cases of hypothyroidism there, but has diagnosed one a week since being in Florida. He was surprised, thinking it would be just the opposite with the consumption of seafood here. How do you explain that? I am a middle-aged female and in excellent health except for this problem.

DEAR READER: You are probably better off taking the purified or synthetic hormone than you are thyroid produced from animal thyroid glands. It is pure and not likely to cause side effects from other substances. Both have the same action on thyroid function, but there is no difference in how either will affect your thyroid in the future.

Regardless of which you take, if you have a normal thyroid that produces 3 grains of hormone a day, and you take the equivalent of 1 grain, the thyroid gland will decrease its output to 2 grains. If you take three grains, a normal thyroid will stop producing hormone while you are taking it. If you have a deficiency, the thyroid hormone will be added to the amount your gland produces to result in a normal level of hormone.

You will probably have to take thyroid hormone for the rest of your life. The amount will have to be determined by your response to thyroid hormone replacement. For more information I am sending you Special Issue 32-04, Your Thyroid Gland. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-04, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Seafood is not the only source of iodine these days. A lot of milk contains iodine as a result of iodine in the cattle feed. And salt is iodized. So I would not think any difference in iodine consumption between Michigan and Florida would be significant. But there are many more older people in Florida than in Michigan. There is frequently a decrease in thyroid function as people get older. That may also cause elevated cholesterol levels. Unfortunately, it often goes unrecognized.

DEAR DR. LAMB: About a month ago, following a prostate operation, I noticed my right foot, ankle and calf were swollen. My doctor diagnosed the condition as phlebitis and prescribed Coumadin.

After a month, the swelling has not been reduced. I am experiencing no pain except for an occasional twinge. Is there any cure for phlebitis?

DEAR READER: What should be done depends on whether it is inflammation of the superficial veins or a clot within the deep veins of the leg. An anti-clotting medicine such as Coumadin is important in deep vein clots. The amount needs to be determined by your blood-clotting reaction. Elevation and heat with bed rest of the involved leg may be needed initially. There is a danger in these acute cases of deep vein thrombosis of a clot breaking loose and passing to the lungs.

Persistent swelling suggests that venous drainage of the legs has been compromised. In such cases, suitable pressurized stockings to wear during the day are helpful and should be used.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Ten years ago I developed rheumatoid arthritis. Within six months it spread through every major joint from my feet to my jaws. I was put on Feldene and Chloroquine. For two years, I was almost as good as new. The medication seemed to lose its effectiveness and the arthritis settled in my feet, ankles, wrists, shoulders and neck. I have been on every anti-inflammatory drug: Motrin, Naprosyn, Clinoril, Voltaren and Orudis, all along with Chloroquine. None have controlled the pain or the progression. My doctor just adds pain killers.

Would gold or methotrexate or some of the new drugs stop the progression before I can't walk? I want to keep as mobile as I can for as long as I can, and in the last year I have been losing it fast.

DEAR READER: The old pyramid theory of treating rheumatoid arthritis was to give as little of the anti-inflammatory or pain-relieving medicines as possible to control the pain but the disease progressed. Many rheumatologists today believe that in severe cases, and perhaps even in early cases, aggressive treatment with methotrexate may halt the progression of the disease. I would certainly recommend your finding an arthritis clinic. Check in the Yellow Pages in the physicians section for a rheumatologist for a specialist in such problems.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

BOSTON (AP) - Using sign language, Marlee Matlin urged graduates at Emerson College to do the same kind of listening she does.

"Listen to your heart," the deaf actress said. She received an honorary doctorate at Monday's ceremony.

The 27-year-old Oscar winner and star of television's "Reasonable Doubts" said although she never completed college, she was "given a chance to do one very important thing - to dream."

At the end of her address, she led the more than 700 graduates in a demonstration of sign language. Using sign language, they said: "I have had the good fortune to see my dreams come true."
