

Time runs out today on Abscam defendants

By RICHARD T. PIENIAK
Associated Press Writer

After long trials, appeals all the way to the Supreme Court and fancy maneuvers by famed defense lawyers, time ran out today for four former congressmen convicted of Abscam crimes.

The former House members, along with a former New Jersey mayor, a former Philadelphia City Council member and a Philadelphia lawyer were ordered to report to federal prisons today in Danbury, Conn.; Lexington, Ky.; and Allenwood, Pa.

They must serve terms of up to six years for their participation in the government's undercover bribery-conspiracy investigation.

Ordered to turn themselves in at Allenwood were former Rep. Michael "Ozzie" Myers, D-Pa., former Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., and Louis Johanson, a former member of the Philadelphia City Council.

Lederer, Myers and Johanson were all sentenced to three-year prison terms and fined $20,000 each.

Former Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., and Angelo Errichetti, former mayor of Camden, N.J., and a former state senator, were scheduled to report to the federal facility at Danbury.

Murphy was sentenced to three years and fined $10,000 while Errichetti was sentenced to six years and fined $40,000.

Former Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., who served in Congress for 26 years and chaired the House Administration Committee, arrived late Wednesday at the federal penitentiary in Lexington, Ky., said a prison supervisor, Robert Parrish.

The surrenders marked the first incarceration of major political figures convicted in Operation Abscam, an extensive FBI undercover sting operation that featured secretly-made videotapes recording bribe payouts.

During Abscam, FBI agents and government operatives posed as Arab sheiks and their bagmen, paying bribes in return for special immigration legislaand fined $40,000.

Earlier this week, U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt who conducted the bribery-conspiracy trials in Brooklyn rejected without comment a motion by Murphy to delay the start of his sentence until Aug. 22.

The probe resulted in convictions of 19 men, including former Sen. Harrison Williams Jr., D-N.J., and two other former House members.

A former Immigration and Naturalization Service employee and a meat salesman were the first Abscam defendants to go to prison. The remaining defendants are to begin serving sentences later this year or are awaiting outcome of appeals.

Exemption ruling may cost Texas taxing entities as much as $80 million this year

DALLAS (AP) — A high court ruling exempting certain bank holdings from local taxes may cost Texas cities, counties and school districts $80 million this year and as much as $110 million next year.

Local taxing entities that collected bank stock taxes now must refund millions of dollars and find other sources of revenue to make up for the loss of bank property tax.

The state's property tax board estimated Wednesday that local governments will have a loss of $70 to $80 million in 1983 because of the Supreme Court ruling that removes about 80 percent of bank stock available for taxation.

The high court voted 6-2 Tuesday to prevent local taxing authorities from including securities such as Treasury bills and federal bonds in figuring property taxes owed by banks.

That ruling could mean a loss to local governments in 1984 of as much as $110 million, the board said.

While all cities, counties and tax districts that collected taxes paid in protest expect to feel a pinch from the decision, some will feel the financial squeeze more than others.

Texas' largest cities will be hardest hit. Houston officials estimate their city may owe $12.5 million collected from banks in 1982 and 1983. Dallas could be forced to refund $23.8 million collected prior to 1983, according to David Black, the city's director of revenue and taxation.

The loss of bank property taxes could remove $1.2 billion from Dallas' $35.3 billion tax base, city officials predicted.

The ruling, resulting from a suit filed by 52 Dallas-area banks in 1980, means that approximately $44 million in combined refunds could be owed by the City of Dallas, Dallas County and the Dallas Independent School District, said Brian Lidji, an attorney whose firm handled the case.

After the suit was filed, some cities like Corpus Christi established escrow accounts for taxes collected on government securities. Nueces County, Corpus Christi and the Corpus Christi (See COST, Page 2)

Killer gets reprieve from gas chamber

PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP) — Convicted child killer Jimmy Lee Gray clung to a new legal lifeline today, spared death in Mississippi's gas chamber by a federal appeals court that wanted more time to look at his seven-year-old case.

State attorneys pressed a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Wednesday for clearance to execute Gray in the state prison's steel, six-sided death chamber Wednesday.

The execution had been scheduled for 12:01 a.m. Wednesday but could have been carried out as late as 11:59 p.m. if the stay had been lifted.

In issuing an original stay Saturday, the appeals court said it wanted to wait for a new U.S. Supreme Court ruling that affected Gray's case. That ruling came Wednesday morning, but the appeals judges said they needed more time to study its implications.

The panel set a July 14 hearing for Gray, 34, convicted in 1976 and again in 1978 for the murder of Deressa Jean Scales, a 3-year-old Pascagoula girl. Trial transcripts show that he raped and sodomized her, suffocated her by holding her head in a muddy ditch and then threw her body from a bridge.

The appeals court ordered attorneys to submit written arguments by July 11 in preparation for the July 14 hearing on whether the stay should be lifted or not.

While the New Orleans-

based judges considered his case in a telephone conference call at mid-afternoon Wednesday, Gray met with ministers in his cell not far from the gas chamber where 31 inmates have died from cyanide gas since 1965, but none since 1964.

The Rev. Ronald Padgett, chaplain at the penitentiary, said he talked to Gray about a half hour after he was told of the panel's decision.

"He said he was relieved and pleased with the decision," Padgett said, adding that others on death row also were relieved.

Padgett said Gray showed no other signs of emotion.

The chaplain said Gray, a born-again Christian, kept up his spirits during the battle to stay the hand of the state executioner.

No estimate available on county's tax loss

No estimate was available here this morning on how much revenue might be lost by local taxing entities as a result of the ruling on exemption of certain bank holdings.

Fred Fox, chief appraiser for the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District, started going over bank renditions on the tax rolls yesterday.

"We're not sure how much falls under the exemptions," said Fox.

The tax appraisal district, as well as bank officials, were waiting to see a copy of the Supreme Court opinion. No one is sure whether all the taxes will have to be refunded or what technicalities may be involved.

house, the state radio said. It later said Wazzan had just entered the government house compound when the car exploded.

There were no casualties in the blast, which blew the roof, doors and floor out of the compact car and shattered windshields on other vehicles parked nearby.

Associated Press correspondent Terry A. Anderson reported from the scene that the car contained eight French-made and four Czechoslovakian-made land mines that did not explode.

Police said one charge of about 11 pounds of TNT, apparently intended to detonate the mines, exploded but the blast failed to set off the other explosives.

Fox was out of town this morning, but he said Wednesday afternoon that he believed the ruling would only affect the 1983 tax base in this county.

Banks which had filed suits argued the tax was illegal because it taxed federal securities and because it was discriminatory. Banks are the only corporations subject to the capital stock tax.

According to a wire service report, some bankers feel the state will create some other kind of business tax to take the place of the lost revenue.

There is even talk of another special session of the Texas Legislature. If no new business taxes are created, local governments will be faced with cutting expenses or looking to other taxpayers to make up the difference.

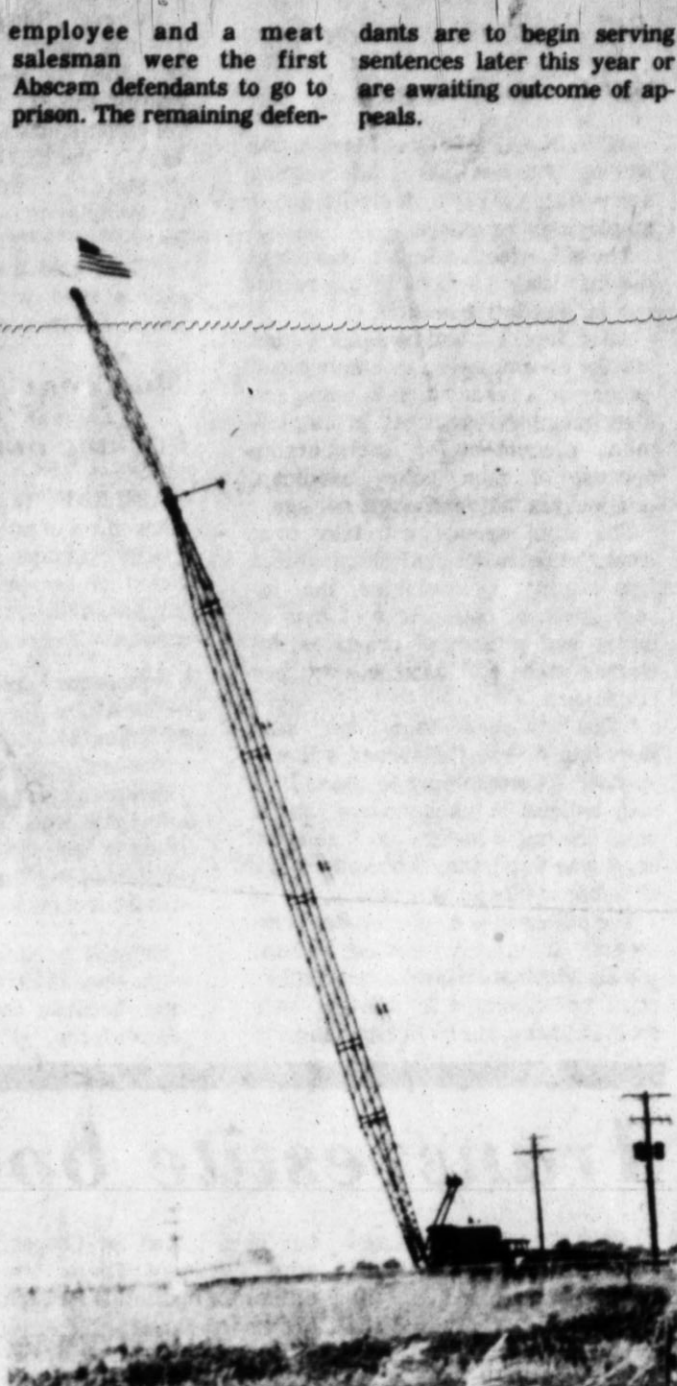

According to an article in The Amarillo Daily News yesterday, the refund to banks there could be $3.5 million from the taxing entities. Banks there had filed suit and money was put in escrow by all the entities except the hospital district. It was reported that the hospital district could owe some $450,000. Amarillo School District had put about $1.7 million in escrow and the City of Amarillo had about $1 million set aside.

Blast narrowly misses Lebanese leader

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car loaded with land mines exploded today only a moment after Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan drove past the site on his way to work, state and private radios said.

Welfare board welcomes worker

At its monthly meeting Wednesday in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse, the Child Welfare Board welcomed its new case worker, Kirk Merker.

Merker is the replacement for Beth Igal and will work with Cindy Burnam, the other area case worker.

Also, it was announced Rev. Charles Threewit will attend a session on sexual abuse offered by the Council of Child Welfare Boards in Arlington. The course will reportedly be conducted by a trained professor in the field. Threewit, chairman of the local board, may be joined by other board members.

According to County Judge W. Glen Nelson, the Lions Club is donating about $100 per week to charitable organizations. The board decided to try to have the child welfare program to receive a cut.

Avis White and Beverly Jayroe reported on the Regional Council meeting they attended June 16 in Tulsa.

Board members agreed they might sometime attend home visits by case workers to observe firsthand what is being done in their program.

Lavon Nieman, secretary of the board, said emergency facility and emergency foster parents are greatly needed in Hereford. Anyone interested in working as a paid, licensed parent may call 364-6041 for more information. Regular foster parents are also needed, she said.

The board's next scheduled meeting is on August 3 at 1:30 p.m. in the county commissioners courtroom.

Florida jetliner hijacked to Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — An Air Florida jet carrying 42 passengers and a crew of five was hijacked to Cuba today, officials said. It was the sixth U.S. airline hijacking since May 1 and came one day after the federal government issued new warnings against air piracy.

"The hijacker appears to be a lone male, allegedly with a bomb," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker.

Flight 8, from Fort Lauderdale to Tampa, was taken over about 15 minutes after it took off from Fort Lauderdale International Airport at 7:55 a.m., Barker said from the FAA's Atlanta office.

The plane was due at Havana's Jose Marti Airport this morning, Barker said.

"It's somewhat surprising given the announcements that were made yesterday," added Barker, who told a

Chili cookoff highlights many

While the aroma of enticing pots of chili will dominate the action, several other activities will add to the festivities when the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame holds its Second Annual Hall of Fame Jubilee Chili Cookoff Saturday.

Cooking teams aiming at trophies will set up on the HOF grounds Saturday morning and begin tossing their sometimes "secret" ingredients into the pots. Judging for the cooks' fare begins at 2:30 p.m.

While the cooks and chili tasters keep busy, the day also offers a variety of distractions for everyone else included are a "Simon Says" game, a stickhorse race, bubble gum blowing, and a cow chip throwing contest. The HOF will also be selling chili cookoff t-shirts, buttons, caps and balloons.

The first 50 entrants in the cookoff will receive "goodie bags." The entry fee is $15 per cook, and gives the entrant a chance at 10 chili and three showmanship trophies. There will also be a "humanitarian award" presented to the cook raising the most money for the Hall through tasters' donations.

A cream pie auction will be another highlight of the cookoff, and several local persons will be on hand to take a pie in the face from the buyers.

The Hereford Lions Club will be selling hamburgers to those with an aversion to hot chili, and Alpha Iota Mu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will be barking soft drinks.

A hot air balloon will add an even more festive air to the occasion, and cooks will provide entertainment through skits, music, and dancing.

Admission to the chili cookoff is $2 for adults, with children under 12 admitted free of charge.

Cooks wishing to register may contact the HOF at 364-5252.

Now that her children are older and busy with school and other activities, Cindy Burns has ventured out with an interior decorating business of her own. She calls it "L.K. Burns Design" and she operates the business independently from her home.

Decorating as a hobby has always interested Cindy and she has redone several homes for her own family when they moved from one house to another.

"I started decorating friends' homes just for fun and eventually I decided to form a business and stock my own fabrics, wall coverings, etc.," notes Cindy. She goes to market in Dallas, orders many of her supplies, and makes some purchases in this area.

Cindy got the business off the ground about eight months ago and she finds new customers mainly by word of mouth. "I do one home, others see it and ask who did it," she explains.

"I really enjoy decorating," adds Cindy. "It's a very good creative outlet for me right now. I enjoy working in all mediums, from country to contemporary. Each is different and that's what makes it challenging. It would be dull if I did the same thing all the time."

"I try to work on the principal that someone's home is a reflection of themselves. I take what they enjoy and use their tastes as a guide. In most cases, I do more rounding out of what they like than starting from scratch. I try to mold what they want into something special."

Cindy and her husband, David, and their family have lived in Hereford eight years.

David owns Winn's Pharmacy (previously Gibson's Pharmacy).

He earned his degree in pharmacy at the University of Houston after attending a junior college in Borger, where both he and Cindy are from originally. After he graduated the couple moved to Pampa, and then to Lubbock before coming here. He was employed at pharmacies in both cities.

Cindy has worked in several different types of jobs, mainly with secretarial duties. She was employed by the University of Houston and she worked at the Farm Bureau for almost two years after coming to Hereford.

She currently helps out at the pharmacy one or two days a week, where she is learning to operate the new computer, in addition to her interior design business.

The Burns have two sons, Aaron, 11, and Chad, 9. Aaron will be in the sixth grade and Chad will be in the fourth grade at West Central in the fall. Both boys are active in sports and they take piano and art lessons.

David plays the piano and is a member of Hereford Chamber Singers. The family attends First Christian Church. Cindy did the costuming for the Easter cantata at church this year and David sang in the program.

As a family, the Burns enjoy skiing and going to the mountains. David and the boys like to ride dirt bikes when the weather is nice.

Cindy comments that most of her hobbies are an extension of what she does in her decorating business. She enjoys doing creative things with her hands such as flower arranging, needlepoint, and crocheting. She has done oil painting in the past and would like to get back into that.

She enjoys collecting art of all shapes, sizes, and forms. Cindy was involved in Beta Sigma Phi for a couple of years when she first moved here, and she currently participates in a Bible Study. Cindy enjoys trying new things when she cooks and three of her favorite recipes are printed below. She says that she normally triples the barbecue sauce recipe and adds that it may be refrigerated indefinitely. She usually serves the Arizona Masa with brisket or charcoal meats.

LEMON BARBECUE SAUCE

1 clove garlic, mashed
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 tsp. dried thyme
1/4 cup salad oil
1/2 cup lemon juice
2 Tbsp. grated onion
Combine all ingredients and let set 24 hours if possible. Makes 3/4 cup. Bake oven broiled or charcoal chicken. Very good as a salad dressing.

ARIZONA MASA

5 c. cooked grits
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
3 eggs, beaten
4 c. sour cream
3 cans (3 1/2 oz.) chopped green chiles

1 lb. monterey jack cheese, cut in strips cheddar cheese
Add salt and pepper to grits and mix. Add 1 or 2 cups hot grits to beaten eggs and whip so that they won't cook when added to rest of ingredients.
Mix sour cream and drained green chiles. In a 3-quart casserole layer grits, sour cream mixture, and cheese strips. Repeat and top with grits.

Bake at 350 degrees 35-45 minutes or until solid and bubbly throughout. Just before serving, sprinkle top with grated cheddar cheese and broil 4-6 minutes. Serves best after setting 15-20 minutes. Great the next day.

THREE-SIXES ICE CREAM

Juice of 3 oranges
Juice of 3 lemons
3-4 bananas, mashed
1 1/2 c. sugar or to taste
1 pint whipping cream
Mix ingredients well, pour into ice cream freezer, and fill container to full level with milk. Freeze. Goes great with most desserts.

Ann Landers Old enough to make it

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Clean this up any way you see fit. I just finished reading about the kids coming home jobless to Mom and Dad. Both are griping.

I was faced with the same problem and told to leave. My parents said I was old enough to make my own way. It was once true that anyone who wanted a job badly enough could find one.

Mom and Dad, I am making it on my own. Aren't you proud of me? Last week I made $300 selling cocaine. It's not much but it sure helps. When there are no drugs to sell I can always turn to prostitution. One week I made $400 performing a variety of sex acts with anyone who would pay. I now have a large clientele. Aside from an occasional bout with VD, it's a pretty easy way to rake in the bread. Of course, there is always mugging when things get tough. All I want to say is I don't worry about me, I'm doing just fine. - Child Of The Times In Sunny California.

DEAR SUNNY: What an adorable child you are! Your attempt to blackmail your parents must have made them awfully proud. I hope they don't fall for it and cave in.

There are a lot of kids out there who are making it without selling drugs, or turning to prostitution or mugging. Be my guest.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have discussed with your readers the importance of arranging transportation for people who have had too much to drink. I'd like to thank you, Ann Landers, because last week I was the benefactor of your advice.

I set up a management luncheon at a local restaurant for my staff. It lasted three hours. I was in no condition to drive myself home but proceeded to the parking lot anyway. To my surprise a normally shy female member of my staff insisted on driving me home. I told her I was perfectly all right, but she ignored my protestations, took the keys out of my hand, dropped them down into her boot and marched me to her car.

After a few minutes I fell asleep. I had no idea how bombed I was. When she got me home, she practically had to carry me to the door.

I shudder when I think I could have fallen asleep at the wheel and killed myself or, worse yet, someone else. Honestly, Ann, I feel as if I owe you my life. - San Jose Reader.

DEAR SAN JOSE: Thanks for letting me know. Your letter set me up for the day. I hope you sent that gutsy little woman a bouquet of posies.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My Christmas gift was a diamond engagement ring. "Hal" broke our engagement by dating someone else. I stopped wearing the ring.

After 2 1/2 years of not going out together, Hal demanded that I return his ring. I'm angry about the way he treated me. The humiliation was painful and degrading.

What should I do? - Jilted DEAR J.: According to law, if the man breaks the engagement, the woman is entitled to keep the ring.

Exemption?

During a gasoline shortage in the 1970s, this letter appeared on the editorial page of the Washington Star: "In your listing of rules and regulations on the odd-even gas plan, you said that van pools are eligible for an exemption certificate. Does that include me?" It was signed "Gerald M. Van Poll, Kensington, Md."

Lynn blasts slam

AL easily downs NL

CHICAGO (AP) — There was nothing to it, really. You start with a couple of timely hits here and a couple of helpful errors there. Mix in a generous supply of long ball, courtesy of Jim Rice and Fred Lynn, and you have the recipe for the first American League All-Star victory in a dozen years.

It wasn't just a victory. It was a 13-3 laughter for the downtrodden Americans. They did it so easily, you had to wonder why it took them so long to figure out the formula.

The AL was beginning to develop a giant-sized inferiority complex about these midseason conventions of baseball's best players. They had, after all, lost 11 in a row and 19 of 20. They were trailing 34-18-1 in a series they once led 12-4.

So when they suddenly found themselves leading the Nationals by a comfy 9-1 score after three innings Wednesday night, they dared to begin thinking about actually winning an All-Star game.

They had scored a record seven runs in the third inning, the first on a line-drive homer by Rice, the last four on the first grand slam in All-Star history by Lynn. And in the AL dugout, a sombre place for so many years, they actually started celebrating.

"A whole lot of yelling and that stuff was going on," said winning pitcher Dave Stieb, who threw three hitless innings at the Nationals.

Lynn, who had been on the losing side in this game eight times, had to agree. As he rounded first base, he allowed himself an uncharacteristic display of emotion, an arm thrust in the air.

On the bench, even Harvey Kuenn, the low-key Milwaukee Brewer manager who was in charge of the AL stars, allowed himself a bit of a smile.

The game had not started very promisingly for the AL. Steve Sax, leading off for the Nationals, tapped back to Stieb, who fielded the ball and threw it about 10 feet over Rod Carew's head at first base.

Sax stole second and then Tim Lincecum bounced to Stieb. This time, the pitcher's throw was on-target, but Carew, fighting the glare of the setting sun, never saw it. The ball glanced off his glove for another error, Sax scoring and Raines steaming into third.

"I thought," noted Lynn, "here we go again."

But Stieb was having none of that. Dealing with the heart of the NL batting order, he merely struck out Andre Dawson and, after walking Al Oliver, also fanned Dale Murphy and Mike Schmidt.

Carew opened the AL first with a single and, with one out, Lynn walked. Rice banged a grounder to third and when Schmidt booted it for the game's third error, the bases were loaded. George Brett's sacrifice fly tied the score.

In the second, Dave Winfield opened with a double, the first of his three hits. Sax, elected to start at second base for the NL despite 24 errors this season, threw away Manny Trillo's grounder, putting runners at first and third with none out. Stieb sacrificed and, after Carew was walked intentionally, Robin Yount's sacrifice fly put the AL in front 2-1.

In the third, Atlee Hammaker relieved for the NL and the Americans responded as if he were throwing batting practice. Rice ripped a leadoff homer.

Brett, the only player to go the full nine innings, tripled and, after Ted Simmons popped up, Winfield drilled an RBI single, making it 4-1. Trillo singled and one out later Carew singled for another run. Trillo took third and Carew second on the throw home and when Yount was walked intentionally, it loaded the bases for Lynn.

Hammaker got in front on the count and came tantalizingly close to a called third strike that would have ended the inning.

What was Lynn's opinion? "Waaaa outside," he said. "In that situation, I swing at a ball if I think it's a strike."

Lynn thought the next pitch was a strike. He swung at it and sent it into the right field stands, sending the AL into the 9-1 lead.

The AL added two runs in both the seventh and eighth, pushing its total to 13, the most any team has scored in an All-Star Game.

Giant keeps pride

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

CHICAGO (AP) — In sports, as in life, there are winners and losers, the cheered and the jeered, heroes and goats. But don't start fashioning any horns for young Atlee Hammaker, the pitcher the roof tumbled down upon in baseball's Golden Anniversary All-Star game.

The kid can take the gaff. "I'm disappointed — I wanted to do better with all those people looking at me," said the 25-year-old lefthander of the San Francisco Giants, bombed for seven runs in two-thirds of an inning in the American League's 13-3 rout of the Nationals Wednesday night at Comiskey Park.

"I'm sorry I let the other guys down. I know they wanted to win. But I'm not going to brood over it. I'm thinking only of my next time out."

It was Hammaker's first All-Star Game. The score was 2-1, in favor the Americans, when Manager Whitey Herzog of the Nationals sent him to the mound in the third inning to replace Mario Soto of the Cincinnati Reds.

The kid was conscious of the crowd of 43,801 in the stands and some 60 million watching on TV.

Jim Rice of the Red Sox greeted him with a home run to left field, starting a carnage that didn't end until California's Fred Lynn had sent a grand slam shot into the seats in right.

By the time Hammaker's head cleared, the American Leaguers had scored seven runs on six hits and had given

Argentine wanting to avoid huge fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Guillermo Vilas has followed through on his pledge to fight the one-year suspension and $20,000 fine levied against him by the International Professional Tennis Council.

Lawyers for the Argentine tennis star filed a notice of appeal Wednesday in which they asked that the penalties be rescinded and characterized the Council's action as "without basis in fact" and a "patently illegal and offensive determination."

Vilas, the Council has charged, had violated its code of conduct by accepting a guarantee to appear at a Grand Prix tournament in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, last March. Vilas denied the allegation, saying that he did not get a fair hearing before the penalties were announced.

Martin London, who is representing Vilas, said, "The shabby treatment of Mr. Vilas in this matter has been grossly unfair, unworthy of those who participated in it, and an affront to professional tennis."

Early last month, when the Council imposed the suspension and fine on the world's fifth-ranked player, virtually all the players on the men's tour came to Vilas' defense and signed a petition asking that the suspension and fine be rescinded.

One dissenter, Harold Solomon, president of the Association of Tennis Professionals, has defended the fine as "a very positive step in the right direction for tennis."

GMO no big draw

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Open doesn't hold fond memories for most of golf's big names.

That's because they often ignore it, choosing instead to prepare for the British Open, scheduled the following week.

An exception is Jay Haas, who won here in 1981 and who since has become one of the top draws and steadier players on the tour.

Haas is one of the favorites in this year's $250,000 GMO, scheduled Thursday through Sunday at Tuckaway Country Club.

Haas was struggling when he came here in 1981. He hadn't won since the San Diego Open in 1978, and was starting to question his future.

But after his three-stroke victory here, he won the 1981 B.C. Open, the 1982 Hall of Fame Classic and the 1982 Texas Open. He was 13th on last year's earnings list with $229,746.

Haas did more than pick up a nice paycheck here in 1981. He also learned what it takes to win on the Tour.

"I would get fairly close in tournaments, and rather than do the things to get over the top, I would just hold my ground," he said.

"The great golfers get birdies on the last few holes," he said. "I would just par the last three holes, or get a couple of pars and a bogey. After winning this tournament, I learned to go for it and become more aggressive."

Tennis results outlined

Winners in the Hereford Country Club's July 4 Junior Tennis Tournament were as follows.

Nine years old and younger: Matthew Snyder, first; Jake Head, second; and Sean Smith, consolation.

Boys 10-12: T.J. Head, first; Stuart Mitts, second; Matt Coplen, consolation.

Girls 10-12: Stacy White, first; Libby Kosub, second.

Boys 13-15: Keith Anderson, first; Kevin Hansen, second; Chris Johnson, consolation.

Girls 13-15: Markay White, first; Lana Kosub, second; Misty Stokes, consolation.

Hayes took the first U.S. gold medal in the men's 200-meter freestyle Saturday.

Carter, whose personal best is 69-8/16, had to compete in the rain at Commonwealth Stadium Wednesday night. He complained the elements bothered him.

"I felt slow in the ring and my technique fell apart," he said.

But Carter's victory, whatever the mark, came in the nick of time because Soviet athletes, such as gymnasts and swimmers, have dominated the competition.

The massive Carter was the defending games' shot put gold medalist. He won the title at Bucharest, Romania, in 1981.

He said after Wednesday night's victory that he didn't plan to change his mind about playing football next fall.

Louganis, 23, reigning world platform and springboard champion, simply overwhelmed his rivals, posting 19 scores of 9.0 or better to only one for the other 11 finalists.

The Cal-Irvine diver piled up 671.43 points. Niko Drozhzhin of the Soviet Union was runner-up.

Like Carter, Louganis was less than excited about his performance. He didn't approach his world record of 750.3 points in the 3-meter competition.

"I didn't feel as strong as I could have been," he said. "I wasn't real consistent."

The U.S. men's and women's basketball teams, both expected to take gold medals, remained unbeaten Wednesday although both had to come from behind to win.

Missouri Coach Norm Stewart's American men trailed Cuba by five points four minutes into the second half but then rallied to win 99-84. The U.S. women topped West Germany 96-71.

The victory put the American men in the semifinals Friday night. The U.S. women will face Romania tonight for the right to get into the semifinals.

HEREFORD CABLEVISION

FCC
Washington, D.C.

Dear Commissioners:

I am writing on behalf of Hereford Cablevision with regard to the pending petition for waiver filed by the Lee Optical and Associated Companies Retirement Pension Fund Trust.

In its petition, the Trust seeks commission authorization to utilize its existing microwave system on a common carrier basis to deliver the programming of non-commercial educational television station KTXT-TV Lubbock, Texas, to cable systems in West Texas.

The citizens of our community desire to view the programming of KTXT-TV, in order to avail themselves of the PBS programming and other educational and instructional programming produced by the station Licensee, Texas Tech University. Station KTXT-TV is of special interest to the people of our community because it is the only non-commercial educational television station in West Texas, and is operated by a state institution.

Our cable system currently does not carry the signal of any non-commercial educational T.V. station, so grant of the Trust's petition for waiver would insure that the citizens of our community would have available to them on their cable system national PBS programming and locally originated programming from the nearest state university. Included in such programming is instructional programming designed specifically for curricula in Texas schools.

Therefore, we fully support the Trust's petition for waiver and ask that it be granted soon so that our cable system can begin carrying station KTXT-TV.

Yours truly,

Pick up your letter at Cablevision's office!
