Falling food prices hold down inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices, falling at their steepest clip in seven years, held June's consumer price increase to only 0.2 percent, the government said today. For the first half of 1983, prices overall rose at an annual rate of just 2.9 percent.

decline in March 1976. Grocery store food prices tumbled 0.6 percent last month. Beef and veal prices fell 1.8 percent and pork prices were off 1.7 percent to make those meats cheaper than they were a year ago. Declines were also posted for fresh vegetables, off 3.9 percent, and fresh fruit, down 0.3 percent. Those prices had soared earlier in the year because of heavy rains and unusually cold conditions over much of the nation's prime agricultural land. Prices for restaurant meals rose 0.3 percent and alcoholic beverage prices were up 0.4 percent. Medical care costs rose 0.5 percent, well in line with the increases of the last three months. Overall, however, (See INFLATION, Page 2)

Today's announcement, capping a week of good news for the economy, said food prices were off 0.3 percent, largely the product of cheaper beef, pork and fresh vegetables.

Exxon, Red Adair crews study gas well blowout

Moderating gasoline prices — up 0.7 percent — also helped restrain last month's price gains. Those prices had risen 8.3 percent in the preceding months, the Labor Department said.

at home," Flatt said. "It has no liquids associated with it."

The new Consumer Price Index gave economists fresh evidence for their prediction that, for all of 1983, inflation could match or better last year's 3.9 percent gain.

No one was injured when the well blew out about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, but the rig, owned by Penrod Drilling Co. of Dallas, was heavily damaged and tipped on its side, said Jim Flatt, manager of Exxon's South Texas production division.

Glen Coker, manager of North Bank Terminal, an offshore drilling base in Ingleside, said the rig "was almost lying in a 45-degree angle and 75-percent submerged" when he flew over it Thursday.

A news release distributed by Exxon Thursday said there was no pollution and no fire.

Indeed, today's report said that for the last 12 months, prices overall rose a modest 2.6 percent.

Experts from Red Adair's Houston-based company that specializes in containing well fires and blowouts were summoned to study ways of taping the leaking gas.

Penrod's rig had been at the site, 15 miles offshore from Port Aransas, about a week to drill for gas under contract to Exxon, Flatt said.

"I saw no oil slick — just gas and bubbles in the water," Coker said. "The water was muddy at that particular point."

Energy prices overall last month rose only 0.3 percent after climbing 3.8 percent in May. Natural gas prices fell 0.4 percent in June after rising 2.5 percent earlier while heating oil prices were off 0.5 percent after a gain of 3.8 percent.

The crewmen, who were employees of Exxon, Penrod and other contractors, evacuated the rig "by lifeboat according to

Lt. Jim Watson, a Coast Guard spokesman, said the drillers hit a natural gas pocket that blew off the top of the 147-foot-tall derrick and one of the rig's three legs.

He estimated that water was spewing 50 feet into the air.

The food price drop was the sharpest since a 0.5 percent

MX opponents work to snap senate filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders and senators opposed to the MX missile are working to find a face-saving way to end a filibuster over the strategic nuclear weapon and pass a $200 billion defense bill next Tuesday.

Thursday night he was optimistic an accord could be reached before another effort was made to force a limitation on debate that has occupied the Senate nearly full time for 10 days.

Baker tried Thursday morning to force an end to the debate by invoking cloture, a parliamentary rule under which each senator would have only one hour to speak. But the 55-41 vote fell short of the 60 votes needed for approval.

also said that in proceeding with the MX, the administration was embarking on a new phase of the arms race that could end with missiles being based in space.

But, he warned, "there are still a lot of stones to be turned, a lot of clearances to be made" before the agreement could be sealed.

Baker was said to believe he had a good chance of ob-

The committee chairman, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, also has pointedly noted Hart's absence from the panel's drafting sessions on the bill.

The House also voted to link the MX production schedule with progress on developing a smaller, mobile missile that has attracted wide congressional support.

passed legislation to strengthen the police and tighten restrictions on workers, students and academics.

Solidarity was suspended and formally outlawed last October, although the union and its leader, Lech Walesa, remain popular.

MX supporters, confident they will prevail when the issue finally comes to a Senate vote, have largely ignored the debate.

In one sharp exchange Thursday night, Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., challenged Sen. John Warner, R-Va., to dispute an estimate that 85 percent to 95 percent of the MXs would be wiped out in their silos.

Administration lobbyists, led by President Reagan, emphasized that argument in letters and telephone calls before the House endorsed MX production in a 220-207 vote Wednesday night.

The MX provisions were attached to the House's version of the defense bill, but the overall legislation is not expected to come to a final vote until mid-September, when lawmakers return from a five-week recess.

Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Communist Party chief, told a nationwide television audience Thursday

"Anarchy will not return to Poland," said Jaruzelski, dressed in military uniform. "Any attempts at anti-state activity will be curbed no less unsparingly than during martial law."

Today's return to civilian government coincides with Poland's national day, and was accompanied by a limited amnesty freeing about 800 martial-law violators. But the amnesty does not extend to seven fugitive members of Solidarity.

Among the critics' oft-repeated contentions has been that placing the weapons in silos already believed to be targeted by the Soviet Union could require that the missiles be launched merely on warning of an impending attack.

The delay angered Republicans, who complained that Democratic leaders have used the defense bill only as a time-filler since it was first brought to the floor on May 18.

The committee will study the issue of worker's compensation for some farmworkers, an item which was submitted to the recent special session, but never came to a vote due to differences between House and Senate supporters.

He said the committee would study legislation passed by other states, address problems that may be unique to Texas, and make recommendations to the Legislature.

With some minor improvements planned by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department, part of Buffalo lake will be able to hold some water in about a month, it was reported this week by The Canyon News.

The manager, Johnny Beall, a native of South Texas, will work and live at the refuge, along with his wife and three daughters. The refuge programs had been handled on a part-time basis by Rodney Krey, refuge manager at Muleshoe.

Ferocious thunderstorms broke into the nation's two-week heat wave, knocking out power to over 100,000 customers and dousing a Diana Ross concert in New York's Central Park, where 400,000 fled as rain turned the Great Lawn into a "great lake."

Hall-packed thunderstorms brought a mixed blessing to the East and Midwest, breaking the heat but leaving tens of thousands of electric power customers in darkness Thursday.

Brucellosis-free herds doubled

AUSTIN (AP) — Most certified brucellosis-free cattle herds in Texas are in the eastern half of the state, the Texas Animal Health Commission said Thursday.

The commission reported 793 certified brucellosis-free cattle herds in Texas, almost double the 419 counted a year ago.

The report said most of the herds are in East Texas where the livestock disease is more of a problem.

"This shows us that many livestock producers in the eastern half of Texas are using the certified brucellosis-free herd program to protect their cattle against this highly contagious disease," said Dr. John Holcombe, executive director.

"A certified brucellosis-free herd is a producer's best assurance for as much free movement of cattle as possible within Texas or out of state."

The report said Hopkins County has the highest number of certified brucellosis-free herds with a total of 321. Milam County has 27, Navarro, 24, Henderson 23, Bell 22, Washington 21 and Bosque 20.

Two Houston men indicted in theft

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston officials of an Iowa-based grain marketing cooperative are among six men who have been indicted with four others on charges of conspiring to load about $500,000 of government-owned wheat onto a ship in the Houston Ship Channel.

The officials of Iowa-based Agri Industries, which operates a 100-acre complex on the Houston Ship Channel, are accused of conspiring to steal 133,000 bushels of wheat from a fort Worth warehouse in May. The indictments, handed down Wednesday in Des Moines, Iowa, named Michael O'Dowd, son of Agri President B.J. O'Dowd and head of the company's Texas operations in Houston, and Glen Feilner, elevator manager in Houston.

R.F. Nelson, who runs the Fort Worth warehouse from which the grain was taken, and three company officials based in Iowa also were named.

In a statement released after the federal grand jury indictments were returned Wednesday in Des Moines, Iowa, the company admitted making the shipment, but said it was due to an "error in judgment" by an unnamed Agri employee.

Alien smuggling 'dirty business'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Smuggling is "a dirty business," a border patrol agent said after the capture of 47 illegal aliens packed in the back of a rental truck near the New Mexico-Texas border.

"The inhumane conditions these smugglers subject the people to when they transport them ... is really a terrible thing. They only transport them for one reason — money," El Paso Border Patrol sector official Dale Cozart said.

Forty-seven Mexican aliens and a Chihuahua City man believed to be responsible for smuggling the group into the U.S. were apprehended Wednesday near Anthony, N.M., about 20 miles north of El Paso.

Jose Alderete Dozal, 29, was charged Thursday with aiding and abetting the smuggling of aliens. Alderete Dozal was being held Thursday at the El Paso County Jail on $20,000 bond.

The group, believed to be heading for migrant farm work in Wilson, N.C., was packed in the rear of a 7-foot-by-12-foot truck — "that's less than two square feet per person," Cozart said.

The rental truck had no rear ventilation and no sanitation facilities. The van was found disabled with engine failure beside the Anthony rest stop. About two dozen Mexicans were milling around the truck, and authorities tracked down the remaining aliens on foot.

"Some were hiding in the brush, but fortunately, they were in excellent condition," Cozart said. If the group had been transported over a long distance during the hottest part of the day, "there very well could have been some fatalities."

Authorities believe Alderete Dozal was part of a smuggling ring and said their investigation would continue. Several of the aliens are being held as witnesses, while the remaining members of the group have been deported, Cozart said.

The number of illegal aliens apprehended along the 1,940-mile U.S.-Mexico border in 1983 has broken records every month, Cozart said.

Sun Belt becomes U.S. 'divorce belt'

AUSTIN (AP) — The Sun Belt has become a "divorce belt," thanks in part to high mobility in the area, according to a University of Texas researcher.

Norval Glenn, a sociology professor, said Sun Belt residents do not develop the community roots that help support a marriage.

"People are not in stable social groups for long periods of time and consequently there are not the same controls over their behavior," Glenn said Thursday.

The study found that in the West South Central region (Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas), 27.3 percent of the males and 28.9 percent of the females have been divorced.

West German peace movement preparing for 'hot Autumn'

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany's growing peace movement is flexing its muscles for a final push this fall to try and stop deployment of new U.S.-built medium-range nuclear missiles here.

Bigger and more popular than ever, the movement hopes to make it "politically unbearable" for Chancellor Helmut Kohl to stick by the planned NATO deployment, its leaders say.

"I don't think it is possible to stop the weapons physically. But they can be stopped politically, by creating a political climate in which deployment cannot be carried out," said Jo Leinen, a member of the movement's steering committee in Bonn.

The key element of this strategy is to pour millions of people onto the streets Oct. 15-22 for what leaders claim will be "the largest protests in the history of West Germany."

The Kohl government has repeatedly assured its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization it will cooperate with the planned deployment of 572 new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles if there is no progress in arms talks with the Soviets at Geneva by late this year.

West Germany is to receive 204 of the missiles, more than any other country, including all of the Pershing 2s, which the Soviets have labeled "first-strike" weapons. But growing public support and new polls showing 72 percent of the population against the NATO plan are fueling the movement's hopes to stop, reduce or delay the deployment.

The peace movement now has 1.5 million to 3 million active members, according to Interior Ministry estimates. Support for the movement has greatly widened in the past year. What began in the late 1970s as several religious, pacifist and ecological groups is now a movement attracting support from Christians, union members and professional organizations.

Leaders of the powerful German Trade Union Federation have called on the union's 8 million members to join the anti-missile demonstrations this fall.

The nation's largest political party, the opposition Social Democrats, has also given the green light to its 940,000 members to participate in the demonstrations.

Two years ago, when one of its own, Helmut Schmidt, was chancellor, the party forbade its members to participate in an anti-missile demonstration that drew 300,000 people to Bonn.

In June, 20,000 Protestants marched through the streets of Hannover to underscore demands that their church take a stronger stand for disarmament.

The same week, some 500 lawyers and state attorneys from around the country gathered in Munich to issue a declaration urging the government to back out of its deployment plans.

Organizations of scientists, doctors, mayors and artists have made similar declarations.

Some 150 members of the Christian Democratic Union — Kohl's own party — announced they were also against deployment and would be joining the peace movement's street protests.

One of CDU missile opponents, Franz Alt, called on Kohl to reconsider deployment from a moral and Christian standpoint.

All, a devout Roman Catholic, said the "spiritual sickness of our time" is that "we believe only in the bomb."

All of this leads people like Joschka Fischer, a member of the anti-NATO Greens party, to claim that the political price of deployment is "incalculable" for Kohl.

On Thursday, the Greens released a nine-page list of peace movement activities planned between now and Nov. 1, including fasts, marches, blockades and camps outside NATO military installations.

But the conservatives in the Kohl government are not remaining passive in the face of what is being called the coming "hot autumn" of protests.

This week, Christian Democrat General Secretary Heiner Geissler announced his party would have its own street demonstrations this fall in support of the NATO deployment decision.

The CDU also will publish thousands of leaflets explaining the government's position, Geissler said.

Peace movement leaders said this move shows the CDU is getting worried. "They are afraid their own base is going away," said Eva Michels, a member of the Berlin-based religious group Aktion Sühnezeichen and a staffer at the anti-missile movement's office in Bonn.

But CDU spokesman Walter Bruckmann denied the charge. "We would not be fulfilling our responsibility if we did not inform the public of why we have taken a position," he said.

Kohl's cabinet has also proposed a new law that would crack down on violent demonstrations.

The movement has called for its demonstrations to be peaceful, although Leinen acknowledges that "there are some elements that may turn violent."

Former employee charged in slaying

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — A former employee, described as disgruntled about being fired from his warehouse job three weeks ago, was jailed today on charges he killed a supervisor with four shots before holding another employee hostage for three hours.

Frank Thurston Fields III, 23, was charged with murder after surrendering to police about 11 a.m. Thursday. He was being held today in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Police said Fields went to the Owens-Corning Fiberglas plant Thursday morning, killed James Donald McCulloch, 40, a warehouse and shipping supervisor, then held the personnel manager hostage for three hours.

Justice of the Peace Billy Moon pronounced McCulloch dead on arrival at Tenery Community Hospital. The body was sent to Dallas for an autopsy.

Norman Bell, the plant's personnel director, was held at gunpoint in his office for more than three hours, said Assistant Police Chief Charles Sullins.

Fields "was disgruntled about losing his job and he just came out there today," Sullins said at a news conference later Thursday.

"We never had any indication that he had that kind of tendencies," plant manager Mark Westman said.

Westman described McCulloch as "a classic supervisor, a very well-respected type of guy. You don't hardly believe anything like that could even ever happen."

McCulloch, whose wife also works as a secretary at the plant, was shot in the shipping dock area, police said. He had worked for the plant since October 1964.

Company records show Fields was fired three weeks ago, said Stan Collins, spokesman for Owens-Corning headquarters in Toledo, Ohio.

The records did not say why he was fired, but Calvin Square, who works in the production division, said Fields was dismissed after he fell asleep on a forklift.

Square said he met Fields, who is single, three or four years ago and "he didn't seem crazy to me. He was a pretty open guy; never did anything bad. This really surprises me."

Relatives said Fields is the son of the police chief of Jewett City, Conn.

The shooting occurred just after the 7 a.m. shift change, when about 150 employees were reporting to work, authorities said. The plant was evacuated before authorities began to negotiate with the gunman.

The area was cordoned off, and Ellis County sheriff's officers, Waxahachie police officers and state troopers surrounded the plant.

The gunman asked for Sheriff Barney Boyd and sheriff's detective Ronnie Roark — who talked to him by telephone through a door, Sullins said.

"We handled the subject before for minor stuff," said Boyd, who would not elaborate further.

Roark said Fields "did indicate he would harm the hostage."

The plant, on the north edge of this town about 30 miles south of Dallas, employs 450 hourly employees and 65 salaried employees and primarily produces building insulation.

"Organizers of counter-revolution should harbor no illusions whatsoever," Jaruzelski said. "The lifting of martial law is not tantamount to the cessation of struggling with evil and crime. Law enforcement organs should hit hard at this dangerous fringe."

Jaruzelski's warning came less than a month before the third anniversary of Solidarity, formed during Gdansk shipyard strikes. Walesa and underground Solidarity leaders have hinted there will be anniversary protests.

Walesa said by telephone from his Gdansk home that the end of martial law presented a "new situation, so it will be necessary to talk it over, take a closer look at it and adjust and finally find methods of implementing the August accords." Those accords briefly allowed Solidarity to function independently of the government.

Lifting the military decree will have little noticeable effect on the daily lives of Poles. Indifference appeared to be the general reaction among Polish citizens at first.

"It doesn't mean anything," said one gray-haired woman in Warsaw. The government's decision to lift martial law appeared aimed partly at convincing the United States and other Western nations "to ease economic sanctions imposed in response to the military crackdown."

President Reagan said in Washington that he wants to study Poland's return to civilian government and judge whether it is genuine or cosmetic before deciding if the sanctions should be lifted.

At the height of the civil disturbances, the Communist Party was badly shaken and Western governments feared the Soviet Union might intervene.

Instead, Jaruzelski, who had been premier for 10 months, declared a technical state of war.

NEW YORK (AP) — Math and science scores of minority students have lagged behind national averages, but specially designed programs to boost those skills are now achieving results.

"On the California Achievement Test, 11th graders went from grade 9 in math to a level of 11.1 — a two-year jump this year in math," says Moses Clark, acting director of the Math and Science Alabama Regional Plan at Tuskegee Institute.

"For the first time in the Tuskegee public elementary school, we had youngsters in the 3rd and 6th grades going to the public mathematics tournament this year," he said.

Tuskegee was one of 17 institutions to receive grants totaling $1.7 million from the Ford Foundation in 1981 to help raise the math and science skills of black, Hispanic and other minority students. It received $341,000.

According to a report this year from the National Assessment of Educational Progress, at the age of 9, black youngsters averaged 45.2 percent or 11 points below the national average of 56.4 percent.

The report from the federally financed testing agency which surveys the educational skills of students aged 9, 13 and 17, further said that black 13-year-olds averaged 48.2 percent, or 12 points below the national average; and black 17-year-olds averaged 45 or 15 points below the national average.

Tuskegee has 109 students from rural Macon County studying 3rd and 6th grade math and computer science. Pre-calculus is also given for high school youngsters.

In addition to the summer session, special classes are held on weekends and after school during the school year.

"We want them to decide and find early careers in math and science," said Clark, an associate math professor at Tuskegee. "The hope is that they'll like math and do a better job and choose math as an area."

The Mathematics and Science for Minority Students program at Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass., is designed to have minority students go into scientific fields.

Thirty 10th graders enter the intensive summer program each year and complete it after three summers. After the third session, they receive college counseling.

"We have to work very hard here to get a 'B' or a 'C,'" said Paula Saenz, 17, who goes to Science High School in Newark, N.J. "In school, it's easy to get an 'A.'"

Miss Saenz, who plans to major in medicine in college, is in the third year of the summer program at Phillips. "The good thing about the program," she said, "is that I learned a lot in terms of school work and also about myself and other people ..."

Eric Bibb, 15, of Louisville, Ky., started his first year in the program this summer. "I just want to better myself. It's hard," he said. "It makes you work, but you get used to it."

According to Patricia Edmonds, director of foundation and corporate support at Phillips, the 200-year-old preparatory school started the program to help increase the number of minorities in engineering and science and "to have some impact on math and science teaching in inner city schools."

Ms. Edmonds said the students in the summer program tend to have an influence on how math is taught once they return to their home schools. One Chicago high school, she said, had to revamp its math curriculum to accommodate the increased math skills of returning students.

The program was started in 1977 and received a grant from Ford for $318,400. About $1 million has been raised from other foundations and corporations, Ms. Edmonds said, including International Business Machines Inc., The New York Times and Standard Oil Co. (Ohio).

Lincoln University, a predominantly black institution outside of Philadelphia, Pa., received $50,000 from Ford.

"Essentially, we're trying to encourage youngsters to take four years of college math and take advantage of the new technology that's out there," said Dr. Earle Winderman, vice president for development.

The school recently received an additional grant from the National Institutes of Health for $500,000 to encourage students to go into doctoral programs in the biomedical sciences.

Some programs are designed to assist the teachers of math and science rather than directly work on student skills.

"If we can get teachers in a mode where they can perform at maximum proficiency, a lot of these other problems will go away," said George Baker, project director of the math improvement program at Xavier University, a predominantly black Catholic institution in New Orleans.

Xavier received a grant of $29,780 to assess the teaching of mathematics in junior and senior high schools in Louisiana.

The Atlanta University Center — a consortium of six black private institutions — started its first math clinic this summer for 64 public school students in grades 4-8.

Staying healthy calls for cooperative effort

Staying healthy is best accomplished through a cooperative effort between the patient and the doctor.

That message comes from a pamphlet titled "You and Your Doctor: Partners in Health Care," produced by the Texas Medical Association. The brochure lists five suggestions for making this relationship work:

—Be a well-informed patient. This means understanding what your health problem is and what might have caused it. Your doctor can discuss these points with you. Know what medications you are taking and what they are supposed to do. Another way to keep informed is to use home health books, which can give warning signs of various disorders.

—Talk to your doctor. This includes telling the physician about past medical problems, allergic reactions to any drugs, and diseases in your family. The doctor must know this information to serve you best. You also may want to discuss a particular treatment or a complaint. If fees are a concern, let your doctor know.

—Follow your doctor's instructions. Most important is taking a prescription until you have finished it all, even if you are feeling better. You may also need to avoid certain foods.

—Live a healthy lifestyle. Many ailments can be avoided by adopting some basic habits: Get enough sleep, eat a nutritious diet, don't smoke, limit alcohol intake, use seatbelts, learn to manage stress, and keep immunizations current.

—Keep accurate and up-to-date medical records. This helps a doctor on a first visit or in an emergency.

Benefits of this cooperative effort between patient and doctor include the ability to take better care of yourself, the satisfaction of taking an active role in maintaining your health, and a rewarding doctor-patient relationship that results in conserving your health.

A copy of the pamphlet can be obtained by writing the Texas Medical Association at 1801 N. Lamar Blvd., Austin 78701. The phone number is 512-477-6704.

The seventh annual Jubilee of Arts will be held at the Amarillo Art Center on the Amarillo College Campus Aug. 12, 13 and 14.

Jubilee is a juried art show and sale sponsored by the Amarillo Art Alliance. The proceeds from Jubilee benefit the Art Center.

Over 80 artists and craftsmen are expected to participate in the sale. Featured guest artist will be Amado Pena of Austin. Pena has designed a limited edition print especially for Jubilee that will be available for sale at $25 each. He will also be signing the print at Jubilee.

The original work by Pena will be auctioned at the Preview Party on Friday evening, Aug. 12. The artist's booths will be open at 7 p.m. that night. The "Cajun Holiday" evening will feature

District president visits VFW Auxiliary

Florene Leinen of Dimmitt, District 13 president, made her official visit to the ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post No. 4818 Monday night. She reported on the state convention in Corpus Christi held in June and presented the local auxiliary with the awards won at that time.

Rose Goheen presided as a new member, Judy Craig, was initiated and a former member, Lillie Muller, was reinstated.

Members voted to donate $10 to the Bob Hope USO fund for the second year. Plans were made for the parade float and the booth for the Town and Country Jubilee.

President Goheen named some of her chairmen for the year as follows: buddy poppy, Betty Boggs; Americanism and Loyalty Day, Doris Wilson; safety and VOD, Marie Goheen; money making, Erma Murphy; decorating, Ms. Craig and Rhonda Coffin; and coffee for senior citizens, Marta Williams.

Other members present were Leona Buckley, Doris Coffin, Maisie Heath, Essie Martin, Edith Richardson, and Wynema Simpson.

The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Aug. 3, preceded by a covered dish supper.

Director from Amarillo to give report

Dr. Steven Schroeder, director of Northwest Texas Clergy and Laity Concerned in Amarillo, will report on his recent trip to the Federal Republic of Germany, Finland, the Soviet Union, and the German Democratic Republic during a public meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Amarillo Public Library, 413 E. 4th.

The program will consist of slides and discussion.

The trip was sponsored by the Lutheran Peace Fellowship with support from Lutheran World Ministries, the American Lutheran Church, the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, and the Lutheran Church in America.

It included Lutherans from Canada, Finland, France, Sweden, and the United States and coincided with the 500th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther.

Extensive contacts with Lutherans in both Germanies, Finland, and Estonia, as well as contact with representatives from the Baptist and Russian Orthodox Churches in the Soviet Union were included, as well as contact with both "official" and "unofficial" peace movements, both in and out of the church.

At Wittenberg, in the German Democratic Republic, the group posted theses for peace on the door of the Castle Church where Luther posted his 95 theses in October of 1517.

Those theses have been made available to the Lutheran Church in the GDR and should provide a basis for further discussion with Lutherans and others in both East and West.

For more information, contact Schroeder at 373-8668.

Oilers' Bill Walsh

Coach forming own opinions

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — When Bill Walsh took over as Houston Oilers offensive line coach in February, he didn't bother to take a tour of the most seriously blighted area of the team — the offensive line.

Walsh's only interest was reclamation.

He didn't want to hear that the Oilers were last in the NFL in total offense, that the offensive line had allowed 39 quarterback sacks in nine games last season and its runners had averaged only 3.6 yards per carry.

"I didn't want to know what went on last year," Walsh said. "I didn't look at any film and nobody told me anything. I wanted to form my own opinions and I'm doing that now."

Some areas along the offensive line were not safe for Oiler running backs.

Earl Campbell, the three time National Football League rushing champion, netted only 3.4 yards per carry last season.

Walsh's plan is to redefine the Oiler offensive skyline with "sparkling" new skyscrapers such as No. 1 draft choice Bruce Matthews, second round pick Harvey Salem, and 1982 first round pick Mike Munchak, who already has established a firm foundation at left guard.

Some of the old structures will be retained only if they still fit into the neighborhood architectural scheme.

Matthews and Salem are expected to challenge for starting tackle positions.

Mo Towns and John Schuhmacher, starting tackles from last year, and starting guard Ed Fisher, will have to scramble to meet the competition.

Schuhmacher has been moved to guard to compete with Fisher.

David Carter appears safe as the starting center.

Walsh, whose previous rebuilding project was with the Atlanta offensive line, said he's impressed with what he's seen in less than one week of training camp.

"The line I took over at Atlanta in 1975 was not as good as this one and I don't mean to put that line down," Walsh said. "But we had a 1,000-yard rusher in Dave Hampson with some guys who were just a bunch of fighters. They weren't the greatest athletes in the world at they hung together and just fought like crazy.

Walsh's Falcon line helped its runners average 4.3 yards per carry en route to the 1980 National Football Conference Western Division title.

Walsh is doing it his way with the Oilers and he thinks he'll get good cooperation.

"A lot of these guys have been to the playoffs just a couple of years ago," Walsh said. "We just have to get things going right again, that's all."

"I'm starting to form my impressions now. What the players have to do is get along with my thinking too as far as the way I want things done."

Anything that will bring back a winning season is fine with 10-year veteran Fisher, who has been with the Oilers through bad times, good times and back to bad.

"We're off to a good start," Fisher said. "The most important thing is that we all have a good attitude and the coaches know what they are talking about. We were embarrassed last year. I think we have a chance this year to show the Oiler fans that we are still a playoff team."

Munchak is the prototype of what Walsh would like to see in an offensive lineman.

"He's just all out all the time and that's what it takes in everyone that plays this game," Walsh said. "I think they are all that way here."

Walsh isn't holding an automatic starting position open for Matthews, who was still unsigned late last week.

"We'd love to have him here, we drafted him No. 1 to help our club," Walsh said. "But life goes on. What he is going to find when he signs, and I hope he does, is it will be a cram course and he's going to be behind which will hurt him. You wish he was here, but he's not, so you just go on."

Walsh's scouting reports on Matthews sound like earlier reports on Munchak.

"He's a hulk, a big person with a lot of talent," Walsh said. "He's got a lot to learn, but I'm sure he's a real good drive blocker. His foot movement that I saw looks very good."

He's just the kind of building block Walsh could use for his reconstruction project.

Fined $1,000 per day

Cowboy officially holding out

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — All-pro cornerback Everson Walls was an official holdout today and faced a $1,000 fine for each day he misses of Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

Walls, who's asking for a three-year, $900,000 contract, carried out his retirement threat late Thursday and missed the deadline for veteran players to report.

Dallas is offering a five-year pact for $1.25, including $175,000 for this season.

Walls still has two years remaining on an old contract, but Cowboys' management was renegotiating because of his two sensational seasons as the National Football League's leading interceptor.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who admitted "I didn't expect it to come to this," began looking at Ron Fellows and Rod Hill at Walls' position.

Tight end Doug Cosbie said he thought Walls was making a mistake not coming to camp.

"Walls would have been better off coming to camp and practicing right up to the first game then saying he was not going to play," Cosbie said. "You want to put as much pressure on management as you can."

Walls wasn't the only camp no-show.

Safety Dexter Clinkscale, locked in an argument over whether he has a valid contract for this season, missed his plane.

Federal arbitrator Sam Kagel is to rule on the case Aug. 1.

Landry said of Clinkscale's absence, "It's kind of unusual for someone who hasn't done anything yet not to come to camp. I'd show up if I wanted a job."

Monty "Big Game" Hunter was the leading candidate at Clinkscale's safety position.

On another matter, defensive end Harvey Martin, whose name has surfaced in recent cocaine investigations, issued a prepared statement, saying he has never been involved with the drug.

Martin said in part "about a year ago, I was contacted here at Thousand Oaks and I cooperated fully with law enforcement officials in their investigation of others. I was not arrested nor charged with or accused of any criminal offense whatsoever."

"In recent months I have been subjected to well publicized business setbacks (bankruptcy) and more recently I have been subjected to totally untrue and unfounded rumors and innuendos.

May have found punter

Dallas cuts eight more

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys released eight more free agents Thursday, reducing the rookie roster to 60.

Cut were linebacker Larry Allelyne of Northern Illinois, quarterback Steve Duddy of Cal-Northridge, fullback Billy Hite of Virginia Tech, linebacker Yogi Jones of Pittsburgh, linebacker Art Lowery of Pittsburgh, punter David Meyer of San Diego State, safety Cecil Newton of Savannah State and runningback Don Robert of San Diego State.

Meanwhile, Dallas Coach Tom Landry indicated rookie free agent John Warren of Tennessee may make the Cowboys roster as a punter, releasing Danny White to devote fulltime duty to quarterback.

"If Warren can keep this up under the pressure of NFL football, he'll make the team," Landry said Thursday, referring to punts of 54 and 53 yards by Warren in a rookie scrimmage Wednesday against Los Angeles Rams rookies.

Warren, 6-0, 205, was used last year at Tennessee only in situations from the 50-yard line in, with the assignment of aiming for the corner.

"I punted only 11 times last year and put the ball inside the 5 five times. My average was 38 yards, which is deceptive because I never kicked outside the 50," Warren said.

Warren wasn't picked in this year's NFL draft.

Of telecasts to NCAA

Justice orders restoration

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Universities who hoped to negotiate lucrative television packages for their football teams have had their plans squelched by a U.S. Supreme Court justice who once was an All-American halfback.

Justice Byron R. "Whizzer" White, a star at Colorado in the 1930s, ordered Thursday that control of college football television must be restored to the NCAA. White's order postponed the effect of a federal appeals court ruling that the NCAA violated antitrust laws when it negotiated contracts with ABC, CBS and the Turner Broadcasting System.

"We're absolutely delighted," said NCAA President John Toner.

The College Football Association, a group of the top collegiate powerhouses, had hoped to put together its own television package. Individual schools also wanted to make deals with national networks.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has $281 million worth of contracts with the networks over four years, but lower courts had held that schools must be free to cash in on their own.

The universities of Oklahoma and Georgia had led the fight for schools to independently control their telecast rights. Thursday's decision, said Oklahoma attorney Andy Coats, will cost the two schools "millions of dollars."

Oklahoma and Georgia are guaranteed only one football appearance each in the NCAA package this fall.

White's stay will remain in effect at least until the full Supreme Court can consider the case. October would be the earliest time that would happen.

"In the meantime, college football will continue on television in 1983 as in the past and we hope it will be both exciting and successful," CFA executive director Chuck Neinas said. "Eventually, we trust the final Supreme Court decision will enable a more innovative approach to college football television in 1984."

"The stay works to the benefit of virtually all the football-playing members of the NCAA who clearly want the continuation of national controls," said Toner, who also is athletic director at the University of Connecticut.

But some of the large football schools might argue with that assessment.

"Our reaction is one of disappointment," said Mike Treps, sports information director for Oklahoma. "We had hoped to free-market our product. Our hands are tied until the courts reach a final decision."

Marvin Francis, assistant commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, said if the ruling had not been in favor of the NCAA, the ACC would have proceeded with its plan to regionally televise games in North Carolina, similar to the way ACC basketball is handled.

But Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, saw White's ruling differently.

"The total interests of college football and all but a few selfish institutions are best served by Justice White's decision, which hopefully will permit the orderly presentation of college football on television this season," he said.

Many reacted not to the merits of the case, but expressed relief that a mad scramble for individual television contracts was averted.

The networks were predictably pleased.

"We're looking forward to the season now that the uncertainties have been resolved," said Jay Rosenstein of CBS.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last month that the NCAA had violated the Sherman Act, an antitrust law, by controlling the televising of college football.

The appeals court upheld a similar ruling by a federal trial judge in Oklahoma City in a lawsuit filed against the NCAA by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association.

The contracts are worth some $74 million for the 1983 season alone.

Hereford's team of 13-year-olds enjoys advantage

Hereford's 13 year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars completed a roller coaster game with host Dumas Thursday night in a 23-11 semifinal win which put the local stars in the driver's seat at the State Jr. Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament.

Hereford looked like it was going to make a short game of it, taking an 8-2 lead after three innings, but Dumas fought back to go ahead 11-8 after six frames.

The Hereford stars scored three runs in the top of the 7th inning to knot the game at 11-11, and then exploded for 12 tallies in the 9th to gain the win. James Hernandez collected the mound win for Hereford, relieving starter Tim Long in the sixth with Hereford down by three runs.

Marcus Brown's two inside-the-park homeruns and a 4-for-5 overall performance led Hereford's offense in the contest. Joe Cera, Derrell page, and Rodney McCracken all went 3-for-5 as well.

Hereford will rest tonight and await the outcome of a loser's bracket game pitting Dumas against either Granbury or Pampa. The Hereford stars must lose twice Saturday to be ousted from the tournament.

The winner of the tournament advances to the Southwest Regional Tournament, to be held in Durant, OK beginning next Friday, July 29.

Pitcher walks everyone but Walker

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

On a night when Mike Torrez couldn't find the plate, the New York Mets' pitcher was appropriately hurt by a player named Walker.

"I've been through a few of those games in (Class) A ball," said Cincinnati's rookie catcher Dann Bilardello after Torrez walked 10 batters in 3 1-3 innings Thursday night in the Reds' 6-1 victory over the Mets. "That's the most I've seen here (in the major leagues). Usually pitchers here are pretty consistent."

Torrez's total broke a single-game club record established by Nolan Ryan and Harry Parker, both of whom once walked nine batters in a game. Two of Torrez's walks, coupled with a double by Cesar Cedeño, loaded the bases for Duane Walker in the third inning, and the Cincinnati outfielder slugged a two-run double to key a three-run rally that sewed up the game for the Reds.

"It looked like those walks were not going to hurt him," Bilardello said. "He was pitching out of the jams. But if you keep walking that number of people, eventually somebody is going to hurt you."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Pittsburgh 5, Los Angeles 4; Chicago 3, San Francisco 2; Montreal 9, Houston 4; Philadelphia 10, Atlanta 6 and San Diego 4, St. Louis 2.

Torrez, 5-12, and Cincinnati starter Charlie Puelo, 4-5, a former Met, combined for 15 walks in the first four innings. There were 19 walks in the game, seven shy of the National League record for nine innings.

Puelo scattered four hits and six walks over 6 1-3 innings. Ben Hayes, the third Cincinnati pitcher, came on in the eighth to pick up his fourth save.

"He struggled from pitch one," said Mets Manager Frank Howard. "It was a rough night for him. But Michael is the type of guy who has to punish his arm. The more he throws, the better command of his stuff he has."

Pirates 5, Dodgers 4
In Pittsburgh, Jim Morrison hit a two-run, two-out single in the ninth inning as the surging Pirates rallied to defeat Los Angeles and win their 11th game in the last 12.

Lee Mazzilli reached on an error by shortstop Bill Russell to open the inning, but Steve Howe, 3-5, got Lee Lacy to pop out and struck out pinch-hitter Gene Tenace. Bill Madlock then singled and Howe walked Jason Thompson on a 3-2 pitch before Morrison lined his single, his third hit of the game.

Kent Tekulve, the fourth Pirate pitcher, worked 1 2-3 innings for his fifth victory in seven decisions.

"I wanted a fastball down the middle and the Lord delivered one," Morrison said of his winning hit off Howe.

Cubs 3, Giants 2
In Chicago, Tom Verzyer and Jody Davis hit home runs and Dick Ruthven and Lee

Smith combined on a five-hitter, leading the Cubs over San Francisco.

Ruthven, 7-7, tired in the 93-degree heat and gave way in the eighth to Smith, who notched his 13th save. Atlee Hammaker, 10-5, was the loser, although he gave up only five hits.

Expos 9, Astros 4
In Montreal, Al Oliver's two-run single ignited a six-run fifth and Bill Gullickson scattered seven hits to lead the Expos over Houston. Montreal trailed 4-1 before sending 10 men up against Nolan Ryan, 9-3, in the fifth, scoring all six runs after two were out.

Oliver's single with the bases loaded cut Houston's lead to 4-3. Gary Carter tied the game with a double and Warren Cromartie drove in the tie-breaking run with a single. When the ball got past left fielder Jose Cruz for an error, Carter also scored to make it 6-4.

Another run scored when third baseman Phil Garner made an error on Tim Wallach's bouncer and two more scored on Andre Dawson's single.

Ryan struck out two batters in five innings, raising his career total to 3,585, two fewer than the all-time leader Steve Carlton.

Phillies 10, Braves 6
In Atlanta, Bobby Dernier had five singles and drove in three runs and Pete Rose knocked in three runs with three singles as Philadelphia unleashed an 18-hit attack to beat the Braves.

Mike Schmidt put the Phillies ahead to stay at 4-3 in the fifth when he hit his 19th homer off Rick Camp, 7-8. Rose's three singles lifted his career total to 3,953 hits.

John Denny, 9-5, continued his mastery of the Braves, lifting his lifetime record against Atlanta to 7-0.

Padres 4, Cardinals 2
In St. Louis, Terry Kennedy drove in three runs and rookie Mark Thurmond and Luis DeLeon combined on a four-hitter to lead the Padres over the Cardinals.

San Diego grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first on Kennedy's sacrifice fly off Joaquin Andujar, 4-13. After the Cardinals tied it in the fourth, Kennedy made it 3-1 in the fifth with a two-run double to provide the Cardinals with their actual winning runs.

San Antonio's USFL franchise

Lawyer wants part of squad

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A San Antonio attorney has filed suit against South Texas rancher Clinton Manges asking for either $20 million or a substantial interest in this city's United States Football League expansion team.

Pat Maloney Sr. contends

Manges tried to cheat him out of a 25 percent share in the USFL team, which he says was promised in exchange for his services as an attorney.

"The 25 percent was for the hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of hours of time and toil Pat put in to bring professional football to San Antonio," said Maloney's attorney, Ronald Krist of Houston.

Maloney has served as Manges' attorney for several years, and chaired some political action committees that gave large amounts of the rancher's money to state candidates.

Thursday's suit, filed in state district court here, names as defendants Manges and South Texas Sports Inc., the investment group that landed the USFL franchise last month. Manges has refused comment since issuing a Tuesday night statement that he was "the sole owner" of the team, which has not yet been given a name.

Maloney was advised by his attorney not to comment Thursday, but earlier called Manges a "liar and a fraud," "a billionaire sociopath" and a "small, insidious man."

Krist said Maloney was not supposed to put "even a cent" into the franchise, but was promised the 25 percent share as restitution for his services as an attorney.

Countless media accounts of San Antonio's attempts to land a pro football franchise mentioned Maloney as owning a piece of the team, which Manges never disputed until Tuesday, Krist said.

Mariners morose

Bosox escape with 14-13 win

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

The Seattle Mariners couldn't find much to smile about after what Boston did to them — but at least the Red Sox left the Kingdome intact.

The Red Sox were in the process of squandering a nine-run lead Thursday night when John Henry Johnson came out of the bullpen to preserve — for the time being, at least — Boston's lead.

He let the lead get away from him in the bottom of the ninth. But when left fielder Steve Henderson misplayed Tony Armas' 10th-inning liner and Marty Barrett scored from second on the play, the Red Sox had a 14-13 victory and Johnson had a victory instead of a save.

"They had the momentum going," said Johnson. "If we hadn't won this one, I think we'd have torn up the clubhouse."

"It was a terrible ballgame," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk.

The Mariners, en route to their fifth consecutive loss, trailed 13-4 after 5½ innings. But they scored three runs in the sixth and five in the seventh, then tied it in the ninth when Rick Sweet walked and came around on singles by Domingo Ramos and Tony Bernazard.

But in the 10th, Barrett singled and took second on a grounder. Then Armas ripped a liner to left-center field. Henderson chased it down, but the ball popped loose. Henderson was slapped with an error and Barrett scored the go-ahead run.

Dave Stapleton hit a three-run homer in Boston's seventh sixth inning and Armas hit a two-run homer in the first inning. For the Mariners, Richie Zisk had a two-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the sixth and rookie Jamie Nelson of the Mariners, in his second-big-league at-bat, hit a two-run homer.

Rangers 3, Blue Jays 2
Frank Tanana went the distance for the first time since 1982 — but all he really cared about was that the Rangers won. After pitching a five-hitter against the visiting Blue Jays, he said, "The complete game is icing on the cake."

Larry Parrish went 4-for-4 and drove in Texas' tie-breaking run with his third single as Toronto absorbed its third loss in a row.

Brewers 7, White Sox 6

The Brewers countered Chicago's three-run eighth inning with one of their own to drop the White Sox into a virtual first-place tie with Texas in the West.

Paul Molitor's tie-breaking double capped Milwaukee's comeback after the Brewers had tied it 6-6 on singles by Ted Simmons, Ben Oglivie, and Rick Manning, a sacrifice and a wild pitch by Juan Agosto. Pete Ladd got the victory despite giving up Chicago's eighth-inning runs.

A's 9, Orioles 7
Oakland's Ricky Peters drove in three runs, including the game-winner with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the eighth inning, as the A's beat Baltimore and left the Orioles tied with Toronto atop the East.

Rickey Henderson tripled before Peters lofted his decisive fly ball — and Davey Lopes added insurance with his 13th home run of the year.

Tigers 5-2, Angels 1-3
Reggie Jackson doubled and scored a run in the second inning, then singled home the decisive run in the fifth as the Angels earned a split with the visiting Tigers. Alan Trammell's two-run homer was the big hit for the Tigers in the opener.

Elks sponsoring softball tourney

For the fourth straight year, the Elks are putting on a men's softball tournament to benefit victims of muscular dystrophy.

The event is slated to be held July 29-31 at the Kids, Inc. complex. It requires an $80 entry fee and three Blue Dot softballs from each team. Squads have until July 27 to register.

Trophies, donated by the two local banks, are to be given to the top three teams, individuals of the top two squads and for sportsmanship. K-Bobs is now exhibiting the trophies, which are as tall as six feet.

All proceeds from the tournament are to be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Additional information may be obtained by phoning 364-7140 or 364-4771.

4-H'ers to model fashion creations in district show

Six 4-H champions from Deaf Smith County will model apparel they have created in the annual Panhandle District Fashion Show, Tuesday, Aug. 9, at the West Texas State University Activity Center in Canyon.

Members from 4-H Clubs in 20 counties will compete for honors and the right to represent their district in state competition next September in San Antonio, Susan Raney, county extension agent, said.

The theme of this year's show will be "Reflections of You." Contestants in the district event already have won in county competition. They are judged on sewing and construction skills, as well as overall appearance.

Representing Deaf Smith County will be, Juniors: Triaha Teel, active sports wear; Annette Thorell, non-tailored daywear; Jennifer Hicks, evening and specialty; Intermediates: Cindy Meiwees, evening and specialty; Lori Derr, non-tailored daywear, and Seniors: Polly West, tailored daywear.

Each contestant will compete in one of four categories of clothing: tailored daywear, non-tailored daywear, active sportswear, or evening and specialty wear. There are three age divisions: senior, ages 14-19; intermediate, ages 12-13; and junior, ages 9-11. Only the senior winners advance to the state competition.

Special awards will be presented the senior displaying the best wool garment or outfit, and the senior modeling the best cotton fashion. The best model in each age group will also be recognized.

The 4-H'ers will model their creations in public revue at 7 p.m. in the WTSU Activity Center. Judging will begin at noon. Contestants, families, and guests will have a dutch treat supper in the WTSU cafeteria.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Rules to make life easier

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago you printed some "golden rules" guaranteed to make life easier. I kept that column under my dresser glass for ages. It disappeared after a party last week. Can you imagine? Some guest liked it so much he or she took it! Please print that column again. My teenagers are getting out of hand. The first line was, "If you open it, close it."—Tonstant Weeder in Kansas

(10) If it belongs to someone else and you want to use it, get permission.

(11) If you don't know how to operate it, leave it alone.

(12) If it's none of your business, don't ask questions.

I just thought of a couple more:

(13) If it ain't broke, don't fix it.

(14) If it will brighten someone's day—SAY IT!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last weekend I went camping with friends. I asked my mom if I could go and she said yes. I decided not to tell her there would be boys along on the trip because I was afraid she wouldn't let me go. (I am 13 years old.)

It was the best camping trip ever. There were four girls and four boys, but nobody got out of line—if you know what I mean. We hiked, swam in the lake, roasted hot dogs and marshmallows, sang songs and like that.

When I got home, Mom was boiling. She found out there were guys on the trip. The person who spilled the beans heard about it from the mother of one of the guys. She opened her yap because she thought I was too young to be going overnight in a mixed crowd. The other kids were 14 and 15.

I am grounded for one whole month. Do you think this is fair? Please be on my side. I need your help. —Monica In Michigan

DEAR MON: Sorry, I can't plead the case of a girl who knowingly withheld information and got caught telling only half a story. Nor am I in favor of 13, 14 and 15-year-olds camping out with no adult supervision.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is often called to speak at public functions. He is very good at it but always talks too long. What can I say to help him?—Embarrassed Wife In White Plains

DEAR WIFE: Tell him that a gift of gab is of little value unless you know how to wrap it.

DEAR TONSTANT: Here it is. And this time, glue it to the dresser.

(1) If you open it, close it.

(2) If you turn it on, turn it off.

(3) If you unlock it, lock it up.

(4) If you break it, admit it.

(5) If you can't fix it, call in someone who can.

(6) If you borrow it, return it.

(7) If you value it, take care of it.

(8) If you make a mess, clean it up.

(9) If you move it, put it back.

Garcia nominated for award by fraternity

Maria Garcia of Hereford, who received a bachelor of arts degree in education from West Texas State University, was among the nominees for Outstanding Elementary Prospective Teacher chosen by members of the Amarillo chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, international honorary education fraternity.

Garcia was nominated for the honor for her work in bilingual education in first grade and kindergarten at Aikman School in Hereford. Selected as Outstanding Elementary Prospective Teacher was Linda Ireland, who received a bachelor of science in education at WTSU in May. She was chosen for her work with first grade students at Olsen Park School in Amarillo.

Named as Outstanding Secondary Prospective Teacher was Yvonne Branigan, a graduate student in counseling from Canyon. She had worked during the 1982-83 academic year in the science classroom at Canyon Junior High School.

Charles D. Ritchie, a graduate student in administration from Amarillo, is the Outstanding Administrative Intern for his work at Amarillo Travis Junior High School. Also nominated for the outstanding elementary teacher award were Denise Daniel Hill, recipient of a bachelor of science degree in education, third grade at Western Plateau Elementary School, Amarillo; and Karen Diane Wells, bachelor of arts degree recipient in elementary education, third and fourth grade language arts at Oakdale Elementary School, Amarillo.

Other nominees for the award for outstanding prospective teacher on the secondary level were Samie S. Garrison of Canyon, bachelor of science in education degree recipient, art at Palo Duro High School and Lamar School, Amarillo; Jill McKee of Amarillo, bachelor of music degree, instrumental music at Windsor Elementary and Amarillo High School; and Karla McCarter, physical education major from Lockney, for her work in physical education at Horace Mann Junior High School at Amarillo.

Selected as outstanding member, or Kappan of the Year, was Finis Brown, a science teacher at Canyon High School.

Officers for the 1983-84 academic year for the Amarillo chapter of Phi Delta Kappa are president, Dr.

Ronnie Waide, WTSU professor of education; vice-president, John Poindexter; secretary, June Legacy, assistant superintendent, secondary instruction, Amarillo Independent School District;

Also, treasurer, Dr. Robert Splawn, WTSU professor of education and head of the Department of School Services; historian, Dr. Bob Posey; and newsletter editor, Mary Barbara Yokum, special education counselor and diagnostician, Amarillo Independent School District.

Cardiac neurosis

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 30-year-old male and have heart palpitations. I have had them for eight years. It feels like the heart is skipping beats. My doctor recorded them. I have seen cardiologists and have had a heart catheterization, a Holter monitor, stress tests, an echogram and about everything you could do to study the heart. All have told me there is nothing the matter with me and not to worry. But it is hard not to worry. Last month I have been very tired and there have been many palpitations a day, like a string of beads when it happens. When I drink alcohol it is worse the next day, or if I get excited from being scared or having sex.

I exercise a lot, lifting weights and playing 160 games of softball a summer. When I do exercise it rarely seems to palpitate.

DEAR READER - Judging from the complete competent evaluation you have had and your continued response I must conclude you have a cardiac neurosis. Getting over it is another matter. You'll stop worrying about it when you are certain you have no heart disease. You may have some psychological reasons for anxiety that is the real cause for your worry. Go one step further and get some professional counseling for your anxiety.

In the rest of your letter you said you smoke. That definitely increases such skipped beats. So does coffee and tea as well as alcohol.

I saw a lot of young men in the U.S. Air Force flying population who had extra beats. Most of them didn't have any symptoms. When they occur in young, healthy people they are not important from a medical point of view even though they bother you.

Improved physical fitness does help diminish them and, while they may increase at the onset of exercise, they usually disappear as exercise progresses to higher levels.

Perhaps you will understand your problem better when you read The Health Letter 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I notice you often discuss medicines and operations in your columns. I would like to know if you believe in massage therapy. Massage therapy has been around for 2,000 years and currently there is great progress in therapeutic massage to treat sprains, strains, lumbago, arthritis, headaches and many other problems. I'm sure many would be interested in hearing your ideas.

DEAR READER - I believe treatment should be individualized to fit the individual problem. For instance, as you probably know, if a person is overweight and has high blood pressure I recommend weight reduction. So treatment can be nutritional, improved fitness or medicines as indicated, or, in other cases, lifesaving surgery. Each patient is an individual.

Massage makes many people relax and is useful for people who need to relieve tension. It does make many people feel better and is part of improving flexibility when used with proper stretching procedures. It may, in those circumstances, relieve muscle spasms which may accompany osteoarthritis and many problems. It won't cure appendicitis, cancer, tuberculosis, leukemia, heart disease and so on.

Mercy killing defendant arrested in marijuana case

HOUSTON (AP) - Billy Ray Clore, given probation this week for shooting his comatose father in an attempted "mercy killing," was arrested after police received a complaint of a man driving his pickup on a sidewalk and harassing prostitutes, authorities said.

Officers said they found 3 grams - less than half an ounce - of marijuana in the Clore's truck when they arrested the 26-year-old man at 4 a.m. Thursday, police spokeswoman Phymeeon Jackson said.

Clore was charged with possession of marijuana and jailed under $1,500 bond, Miss Jackson said.

Dick Bax, who assisted in Clore's prosecution for attempted murder, said the new charge will not affect his three-year probation sentence. Bax said that Clore has not started serving his probation, so it cannot be revoked.

"The marijuana case will be handled on its own with its own merits," Bax said.

Slate District Judge Ted Poe, who presided over Clore's 2 1/2-week trial, revoked Clore's personal recognizance bond in the attempted murder conviction. New bond in that case was set at $7,500.

Conviction on a charge of possessing less than 2 ounces of marijuana ranges from one day of probation to a six-month jail term and a $1,000 fine.

Clore's attorney, Jack Zimmermann, reached in Washington where he was giving a speech, said he was "surprised, but I don't know if it happened."

"I don't want to sound trite but we operate on the presumption of innocence," he said. He said he would be returning to Houston by the weekend and will investigate the case Monday.

Zimmermann's assistant, Michael Essmyer, said he was aware of the arrest but not familiar with the details.

"The only thing I can say is that the jury's verdict was still right," Essmyer said.

A jury on Monday decided on the probation. Clore could have received 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The same jury last Friday found Clore guilty of a reduced charge of attempted murder for the death of his 62-year-old father, Robert.

The elder Clore, who lapsed into a coma in November following a heart attack, was shot in the head March 21 at a nursing home. He died two weeks later.

Clore, who said wanted to end his father's suffering, originally was charged with murder. The charge was reduced to attempted murder after doctors disagreed over whether the gunshot had killed the elder Clore.

Meanwhile, the Harris

County assistant medical examiner who prepared the autopsy report on Robert Clore, Dr. Martha Mattioli, submitted her resignation on Wednesday, citing personal reasons.

Ms. Mattioli was supposed to testify as a prosecution witness but was ill. Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk, testifying in her place, concluded from her report that Clore's death was due to the shooting.

But a neurosurgeon, Dr. Floyd Haar, contacted prosecutors, saying he believed the bullet wound did not cause Clore's death. His opinions, as well as those of a doctor who treated the elder Clore, provided the basis for reduction of the charge against Billy Ray Clore.

POLLY'S POINTERS Polly Fisher

Why garlic spoils

DEAR POLLY - We grow our own garlic, but when we try to store it, the garlic becomes soft and spoils. Do you or any of your readers know how to keep garlic? - MRS. C.V.P.

DEAR MRS. C.V.P. - There are several factors that could be affecting the keep-ability of your garlic. First, was it properly mature before picking? Like onions, garlic must be allowed to fully mature in the ground before being picked. This means that the tops must be allowed to die down naturally. If most of the tops have died (they turn brown and fall over), the few remaining ones may be broken over with a rake or by hand and left to dry out for a few days before harvesting all the garlic.

The harvested garlic should be conditioned or allowed to fully dry before storing it. Spread the garlic out on sheets of newspaper outdoors in a dry, sunny location for several days. Take the bulbs in at night so they don't absorb moisture from the dew. After this conditioning process, you may remove the dried tops leaving at least an inch of tops at the neck of the garlic bulb.

Once your garlic has been properly harvested and conditioned, it must be properly stored. Never wrap the garlic; don't store it in plastic bags. Allow good air circulation by spreading the garlic loosely in ventilated boxes or cartons, or leave the tops on and braid the garlic together for hanging in the open air.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, garlic is ideally stored at 32 degrees with a relative humidity of 75 percent. (Most other vegetables require humidity levels of 90 percent or greater.) However, it can be kept at warmer temperatures - a cool, dry basement, for example. Excessive moisture will cause the garlic to soften and spoil. Overly dry conditions will eventually cause the garlic to dry out. However, in my experience, it keeps far longer in a dry environment than a damp one.

DEAR POLLY - Adding apple juice or cider to apples when making applesauce gives sweetness and extra flavor without added sugar. The extra flavor is especially needed when using apples that have been stored for a long time. A little cinnamon also gives extra zest with no added calories. - DOROTHY

DEAR POLLY - For convenience and to prevent spills, I store my toothpicks in a small empty spice jar. I use the shaker top to dispense one toothpick at a time, and the outer cap seals them all tight for storage. - J.O.

DEAR POLLY - I buy large cans of baby powder. I empty the powder into a pretty bath powder box. I then moisten two cotton balls with my favorite perfume, bury them in the bath powder and close the lid. You wouldn't believe the many compliments I get from my house guests on this powder. They often claim they wish they could afford such lovely, "expensive" powder. - S.J.L.

Recovery from recession producing real progress By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) - With 11 million Americans out of work, it's hard to see how anyone could be very sanguine about the employment outlook. But some observers say the recovery from the recession is beginning to produce real progress on that central economic issue. The Labor Department reported Thursday that the number of people collecting state unemployment insurance has fallen to its lowest level in more than a year and a half. On the surface, other recent numbers look less impressive. The civilian unemployment rate stood at 10 percent in June, having inched down a tenth of a percentage point in each of the last two months. When members of the armed forces stationed in this country are included in the computations, the June rate was 9.8 percent, down from 10 percent in May. That's still a long, long way from what economists speak of as "full employment" - a jobless rate of about 6 percent. To get there, notes Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York, the number of people without jobs would have to shrink to about 6.75 million. "In short," the bank's economists said, "more than 4 million new jobs need to be created - in addition, of course, to job creation to take care of normal growth in the labor force. Obviously, such a major task cannot be accomplished quickly." Yet some economists maintain that the raw statistics don't fully reflect some positive developments. In a

Our blessings that have come to pass,
We tend to disregard;
Because we see the greenest grass
In someone else's yard.
The magic thing we call success
Eludes us, come what may;
And thus it seems that happiness
Will never come our way.
However, through the Church we find
That there's no need to roam,
For happiness and peace of mind
Are always close to home.
So, don't go searching all around,
And some day you'll agree:
The greenest grass of all is found
Wherever you may be!
