FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Gov. Mark White criticized President Reagan for fueling the controversy surrounding teacher pay raises with a less than meritorious proposal for teacher merit pay.

At the same time, White predicted during an interview with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that a select committee on education will recommend dramatic pay raises for Texas teachers.

The governor, who was in Fort Worth for a speech to the Texas Bar Association, said he remains confident of getting teachers the 24 percent, two-year raise he recommended earlier to the Legislature.

White said the emphasis should be on increases for all teachers and especially beginning teachers instead of the merit pay Reagan has proposed.

"I don't think the proposal that Reagan has made is meritorious," said White, a Democrat. "It's shocking to me that the man who wants to abolish the Department of Education has now decided that it (teacher pay) is a big issue and he's going to really do something to help. But all he's done so far is help fuel the controversy."

White said if the select committee's recommendations are ready, he may call a second special legislative session as early as September. And he said he also would open the session to extending workers' compensation coverage to farm workers.

Although he opposed any tax increase during his 1982 campaign against Gov. Bill Clements, White acknowledged Wednesday that a sizable teacher pay raise would inevitably require a tax hike.

The governor said he favors increasing taxes on such items as alcohol, tobacco and video games, but hinted he might also consider a state gasoline tax increase.

"Maybe we can get some combinations to work for us and help solve education (funding problems) as well as our highway funding problem," said White. The governor said he believes the citizens will support a tax increase "as long as they know they are going to get something better in their education program. They want a better product."

To provide the better product, White said it may be necessary to "increase standards for schools of education."

White repeated his pledge to be guided by what the select committee on education recommends.

"At the same time," said White, "I am persuaded that they recognize the need to increase teacher salaries dramatically in order to let people know that we're putting the first priority on education."

TI lays off 750 employees

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A marketing failure involving the home computer industry has forced the layoff of 750 workers at Texas Instruments plants in Lubbock and Abilene, company officials said.

A company statement released Wednesday said 675 workers in Lubbock and 75 in Abilene lost their jobs in the home computer manufacturing divisions of the two plants.

Almost all of the workers were temporary employees, said TI spokesman Chuck Nielsen in Lubbock.

"Everyone affected has been notified, and at this time to my knowledge no other layoffs are planned," Nielsen said.

Make It Click

Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, right, has proclaimed Friday through Monday as "Make It Click Weekend," emphasizing the use of seatbelts during the July 4th holiday. McDonald's Restaurant and the National Safety Council are encouraging the use of safety belts and child safety belts. In support of this, Earl Yocum, left, manager of the local McDonald's, will be giving away a car seat and buckle-up stickers. Trying out the new car seat is Becky Geiger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Geiger.

'Make it click' weekend set

The July 4th weekend has been proclaimed as "Make It Click Weekend" by Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher. Safety belts and child safety seats have proved effective in reducing injuries and preventing deaths and ensuring the preservation of families.

According to the National Safety Council, motor vehicle accidents are the number one cause of death of children over age one. Fewer than 10 percent of the children in the United States ride in child restraints, says the Council, yet more than 80 percent of traffic fatalities to children could be avoided if effective child restraint systems were used.

The National Safety Council and McDonald's restaurants in Amarillo and the Texas Panhandle are sponsoring an auto safety program during the July 4th holiday period to encourage children to "make it click" by buckling-up their safety belt or riding in a child safety seat.

Each child that visits McDonald's through the July 4th holiday will receive a Ronald McDonald Make It Click sticker to place on a safety belt or child safety seat. In addition, Make It Click safety pledge cards asking children to buckle-up for the holiday period will be distributed. Children can return the signed cards to McDonald's for a Ronald McDonald safety certificate and a free hamburger.

The idea behind the campaign is that if children sign a card that says they will wear their safety belt for the holiday period, they're like to continue using them after the pledge period has ended. And, hopefully children will encourage their parents to wear them, too.

McDonald's aim during this critical holiday period will be to reach as many families as possible with the Make It Click safety message. They have enlisted the support of State Senator Bill Sarpalius as Honorary "Make It Click" chairperson for this area, and the Texas Safety Council is planning on airing 60-second radio spots to promote seat belt usage. Other state agencies, including the Texas Safety Association and the Texas Public Safety Commission, also are promoting safety belt usage during the summer months.

Study may force congressional action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study that directly links coal-burning industrial boilers to the acid rain that kills lakes and fish could prod Congress into taking action on the problem, lawmakers say.

The chairman of the Senate Environment Committee, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., said the study released Wednesday "sweeps aside the last remaining scientific reservation" on the issue. He said he hopes for congressional action later this year.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment, said the study gives "a tremendous amount of momentum" to measures to control acid rain.

But William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, said scientific understanding of acid rain doesn't necessarily mean that controls can be immediately imposed.

"Understanding the nature of the problem and deciding what to do about it are two different things," he said.

"Precisely what you do about it involves a very great mix of complicated problems and people and interests, and we have to sort through these in deciding what the public interest dictates," Ruckelshaus said. The comments followed release of a long-awaited report by the National Academy of Sciences concluding that acidic precipitation in the East varies directly with emissions of sulfur dioxide from local and upwind sources.

The study, based on 18 years of measurements at the Hubbard Brook Experimental Forest in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, said if sulfur dioxide emissions fell by 50 percent, acid rain also should decline by 50 percent.

Environmentalists have charged for years that sulfur dioxide emissions, largely from coal-burning power plants in the Midwest, were the principal source of acid rain blamed for killing lakes and fish in the northeastern United States and eastern Canada.

The sulfur dioxide is believed to change chemically in the atmosphere to a weak form of sulfuric acid, falling to earth in rain, snow or dry particles.

But the coal and electric utility industries have disputed that finding, saying no conclusive scientific evidence existed to support it. Backed by Midwestern lawmakers, they have blocked legislation to impose more stringent controls on sulfur dioxide emissions.

For educational renewal

Reagan urges 'grassroots campaign'

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, visiting a high school of mostly Mexican-American students, called today for "a grassroots campaign for educational renewal."

The president, on a cross-country campaign to draw attention to the need to make changes in the nation's education program, was visiting what he said had been "at one time a problem school."

The school, Pioneer High School, is now praised by the Department of Education and is the site for the second regional forum on the recommendations of the National Commission Excellence in Education.

"I wish I could load all the students and teachers of this school on a bus and take them around the country with me, showing the nation what can be done," Reagan said in remarks prepared for the opening of the forum.

About 2,700 students, 72 percent of them Mexican-

Americans, are enrolled at the school.

The president planned to visit a program teaching students with limited English language ability. According to a White House statement, 50 percent of the school's entering ninth grade students fail proficiency tests in reading, math or writing.

But by the time they are seniors, they can meet state requirements for high school diplomas, the White House said.

While in Whittier, the town where former President Richard M. Nixon was educated, Reagan said federal officials are responsible for "identifying the national interest in education." But he said local officials must pay the bills "and it is at the local level where progress will be made."

"Local school boards can set higher standards. They can see that outstanding teachers are rewarded for their efforts," the president said, adding:

"The time has come for a grassroots campaign for educational renewal that unites parents, teachers, students, local officials and concerned citizens," Reagan said.

This evening, the president planned to attend a $1,000-a-person fund-raising dinner for the California Republican Party at the site of the "Spruce Goose" seaplane in Long Beach. The seaplane, which only made one flight, is the largest plane ever built. Howard Hughes labored over the project for five years.

On his way to California, Reagan learned that the Supreme Court had upheld a Minnesota law permitting parents of children in private school to claim tax credits for tuition payments. Support for

PLO rebels rout Arafat's forces

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — PLO mutineers have routed Yasser Arafat's forces from most of their positions in the central Bekaa Valley, according to reports from eastern Lebanon, and the loyalists say Syria is trying to drive them farther north.

Reports from the Bekaa said Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas rebelling against Arafat exchanged heavy artillery fire with the PLO chief's loyalists Wednesday night in the towns of Taanayel and Taalabay.

There was no report of casualties in the exchange, which lasted at least two hours.

The rebels, who began their mutiny seven weeks ago, say Arafat has become too moderate in his stance toward Middle East diplomatic initiatives.

Arafat's Al Fatah supporters, from their headquarters in the north Lebanese port of Tripoli, said in a communique Wednesday that Syrian officers warned them to immediately clear out of Bar Elias, on the Beirut-Damascus highway, and Taanayel, to the north. The communique said they refused.

However, Associated Press reporter Terry A. Anderson reported that Arafat's loyalists had been ousted from Bar Elias and most of their other positions in the central Bekaa during fighting the night before.

Arafat guerrillas still held the town of Chtaura, but his supporters had lost all other positions along the highway, residents said.

Al Fatah's permanent representative in Saudi Arabia, Rafik al-Natsheh, said he asked King Fahd to arrange a meeting between Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad, who kicked the PLO chief out of Syria last week. Arafat had accused Syria of escalating the mutiny.

Observers have speculated that Assad wants to control all the Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon so they cannot drag him into another war with Israel.

In Beirut on Wednesday, U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib met Lebanese leaders to try to find a way to convince Syria to accept the Lebanese-Israeli withdrawal agreement. Israel insists it won't withdraw its 28,000 soldiers from Lebanon unless Syria removes its 50,000 forces and the Palestinian guerrillas, estimated at 10,000 to 15,000, pull out at the same time.

Habib also met with U.S. ambassador to Syria, Robert Paganelli.

Lions install '83-'84 officers

Ed Line was inducted as the new "Boss Lion" of the Hereford Noon Lions Club Wednesday in ceremonies conducted by Past District 2T-1 Governor Raymond White, and L.W. "Lem" Carlyle, the club's sole surviving charter member, was recognized for 55 years of service in Lionism.

Line assumed leadership of the club from Charles Watson. The new Boss Lion has just returned from Hawaii, where he attended the International Convention, along with new club secretary Chris White, and their wives.

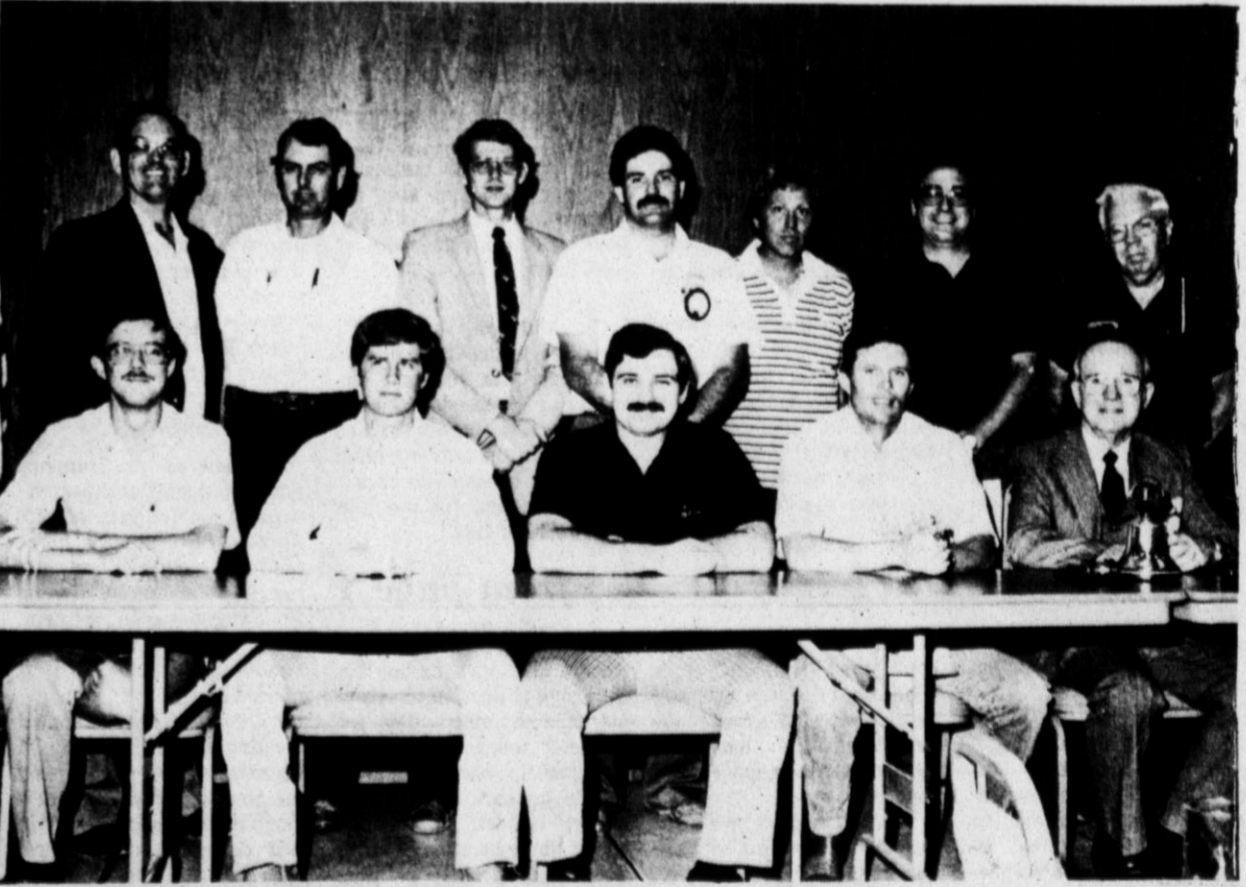

Carlyle was unable to attend the meeting, and was reported to have broken a hip Wednesday morning. According to King's Manor chaplain Wallace Kirby, Carlyle was transferred to an Amarillo hospital after the accident.

Five other Lions were recognized for at least a quarter-century of membership in Lions International Wednesday. They included Jimmie Allred and John Aikin, 35 years; Ernest Langley, 30 years; and Charlie Bell and Arthur Robinson, 25 years. Service chevrons were also presented to other Lions who have been in the organization for at least 10 years. Those honored, and their length of service, included Andy Anderson, Stay Fry, Phillip Shook, Virgil Walker, and James Hull, 20 years; John Thames, J.D. Bryant, and Gayle Cotten, 15 years; and Charles Kuntz, Bill Kester, Sid Shaw, Art Gonzales, Julius Bodner and Mark Andrews, 10 years.

Outgoing Boss Lion Watson also named the Lion of the Year, presenting that award to Kuntz. Kuntz was recognized for his leadership in getting bingo, the club's newest fundraising project, going. The Lions have netted $2,235.24 during the month of June with their new project.

Other incoming officers for the club in addition to Line and White include Troy Sublett, Bob Nigh, and Rex Lee, vice presidents; Benny Womble, treasurer; Temple Abney and Jay Eubanks, Lion Tamers; Jackie White and Jerry Smith, Tail Twisters; and K. Don Spurgin and Jerry Morgan, directors. Also on the club's board will be holdover directors Kuntz and Wayne Jones.

Belo must sell

three television stations

DALLAS (AP) — A.H. Belo Corp. has announced it plans to sell three television stations in Texas, Tennessee and Indiana to meet the Federal Communications Commission's multiple ownership limits.

Belo entered into a definitive contract June 20 to purchase the six television stations in Dun & Bradstreet's Corinthian Broadcasting Group for $606 million. The acquisitions would bring Belo's VHF television stations to eight, most than allowed under FCC requirements.

All the station transfers require prior FCC approval.

Belo executive vice president Robert W. Decherd identified the stations they tentatively plan to sell as WTVC-TV in Chattanooga, Tenn. and KFDL-TV in Beaumont, Texas, both owned by Belo, and WISH-TV in Indianapolis, which Belo has contracted to buy from Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

Belo is the parent company of The Dallas Morning News and WFAA-TV in Dallas. The company also publishes seven community newspapers in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, radio stations in Dallas and a cable television system in Clarksville, Tenn.

113 illegal aliens

arrested in Beaumont

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Police said complaints that illegal aliens were taking jobs away from U.S. citizens prompted the arrest Wednesday of 113 people, but an official at one of the businesses where the aliens worked said the arrests won't decrease the area's high unemployment rate.

Border Patrolman C.J. Kothman said that because of the arrests, "There'll be a lot more jobs in Beaumont tomorrow."

An employee at Beaumont's Mallard & Mallard Oil Field Construction Co. disagreed.

"They will be back in a couple of days and if it is not them, it will be another bunch," said Leon Collins.

"If the police would go out and do their job catching criminals, we would all be better off," Collins said. "These men (the aliens) were just trying to make a living. They have families in Mexico who need to eat. Anyway, we can't find white guys or locals who want to do this kind of work ... for $4 an hour."

Patrol and Beaumont police department swept through four construction and oilfield service companies at about dawn Wednesday.

Most of the illegal aliens were put on a bus or in a van and transported back to the U.S.-Mexico border, Kothman said.

Kothman said the illegal aliens were making from $3.50 to $5.50 an hour working at the four companies. Legal workers usually are paid $7 to $8 an hour to do the same jobs.

The area, largely dependent on oil-related industries, has been plagued by double-digit unemployment for more than a year.

Kothman said the investigation will continue and more arrests are expected.

Drunk driver steers into skateboard pit

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — An Arizona man drove his car Wednesday to a spot 10 feet deep and about 85 miles short of his intended destination.

The 56-year-old Phoenix service station attendant, arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated, steered his 1975 Buick LaSabre off the roadway, through an open gate and down into a 10-foot-deep run at the Surf City Skateboard Park.

Police said the driver then emerged from the slightly scratched car and asked if anyone could give him directions to Brownwood, about 85 miles northeast of here.

Mike McAlpine, co-owner of Wild Bill's Car Ranch located next to the skateboard park, said the car may have been in the culvert for 10 minutes or more before being noticed.

"I was out front showing a car to this fellow and he asked me how much I wanted for that one down here," McAlpine said, pointing to the car in the skateboard park. "I didn't even know he was down here until then," he laughed.

He said he and some co-workers went over to the park and the driver was trying to drive his car up the 10-foot tall concrete walls.

"We were waving our hands, trying to get him to stop but he just kept going back and forth trying to get that thing out of there," McAlpine said.

It took a tow truck operator about 15 minutes to pull the car out of the run.

Army to build plant for explosive compounds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will begin construction early next year at the Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant in Marshall, Texas, of a $3.5 million pilot project for the production of a new explosive compound known as HMX, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has announced.

Tower said in a statement Wednesday that the pilot will be the first phase in a five-year $500 million expansion of the Longhorn facility proposed by the Army.

He said the Army needs to produce large quantities of HMX and another compound known as RDX, used as explosives and propellants in major missiles and weapons programs.

Both compounds will be manufactured at Longhorn, which Tower said was "ideally suited for a major project of this nature." He said the program could bring hundreds of new jobs and substantial capital investment to the area.

Tower said the first phase pilot project would be used to verify production processes and train personnel.

Higher education out of touch

Three recent studies have indicated public school education from kindergarten to high school graduation.

The wide brush strokes of these juries cruelly besmirched the reputations of some excellent teachers, some excellent schools. Any sweeping generalization is unfair to some.

Similarly, criticism aimed at faculties and deans in higher education inevitably will reflect alike on the deserving and the undeserving.

But here goes: Americans of all ages are demonstrating a new hunger for traditional values.

Greater than ever enrollment in vocational education. Increasing acceptance of formal marriage.

In religion — it is the conservative churches which prosper in numbers and in resources.

Criminal court justice after a generation of experimentation is back to administering punishment to fit the crime.

Professional pulse-takers report a resurgence of patriotism in our nation and politics reflects that.

Economic fundamentalism had supplanted Keynesian economics everywhere — except in the college classroom.

Professor — you are behind!

At your 1981 American Political Science Association conference the Roper organization invited you to categorize yourselves. Approximately 74 percent of you said "liberal," 12 percent said "centrist." Only 15 percent of you identify yourselves as "conservative."

Those numbers nowhere near reflect contemporary America. If you are that out-of-step on key issues, is it any wonder that religion-related schools which reinforce traditional values are thriving — while two-thirds of all colleges and universities are suffering declining enrollment?

College is indeed a right and proper forum for debate, criticism and introspection. But, face it, most of you are openly hostile, sometimes aggressively hostile, to the values shared by most of us.

Higher education cannot provide higher education if it is helplessly out of touch with reality, if its economics is 30 years out-of-date.

Tenure is part of the problem. That is as much as I will say of that.

But the public revolt against primary and secondary public education is already enforcing faculty competency.

The handwriting on the wall for colleges and universities says your antiquated orientation is undermining your own future.

Mission ending for controllers

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. (AP) — A two-year mission ends today for the last of the military air traffic controllers who replaced striking civilians, but some decided to stay for more pay instead of returning to the Air Force.

"They performed wonderfully," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dick Stafford.

About two dozen Air Force controllers are the last of 800 assigned to 65 FAA control centers Aug. 3, 1981, when 11,500 civilian members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization walked off the job and were fired by President Reagan.

Stafford said the military controllers, borrowed from about 80 installations, helped keep the system working while the FAA trained new civilian controllers. The civilian ranks are now at about 93 percent of capacity, he said, and there is no further need for the military controllers.

The illegal strike did create a problem, however, for the Air Force Communications Command at Scott Air Force Base.

"From a simple arithmetic point of view, we knew there was a potential that our boys might leave when their hitch was up," said Col. Derrel L. Dempsey, deputy chief of staff for air traffic services.

"We took a survey at the beginning of the strike and found as many as 90 percent of the military controllers who had dates of separation between August 1981 and August 1982 would leave if the FAA offered them a job," he said.

One reason is the FAA pays its controllers roughly twice as much for doing the same work, Dempsey said. And the military controllers were expected to work the same six-day week as the civilian controllers — for no extra pay.

Sgt. John Pruitt, returning to duty at Scott Air Force Base in suburban St. Louis, said he will have to talk with his wife about whether to stay with the military or apply for an FAA position when his hitch is up next year.

"Most of the civilian controllers got their start in the military," he said. "I like my job. But I haven't decided whether I want to do it in the military or with the FAA."

Four of Pruitt's fellow officers assigned to Pittsburgh chose to leave the military for the FAA during his stay there, and two others signed up for a new hitch with the Air Force.

To keep its highly trained controllers, the Air Force increased the re-enlistment bonus from $12,000 to $16,000.

FAA declines comment on jet crash

HOUSTON (AP) — The pilot of a twin-engine jet that crashed into a smaller plane may have turned off his left engine to simulate engine failure as part of a routine procedure for training pilots and checking equipment, investigators said.

Killed instantly in the crash Wednesday at Hobby Airport were the pilot of the smaller plane, Kenneth Robinson, 31, and Marshall Stauffer, 34, a student pilot. Both men lived in Houston.

The accident took place about 3 p.m. when the jet, a 12-seat Falcon, apparently lost control at takeoff and crashed broadside into a single-engine Grumman Cheetah taxiing on a nearby runway.

The occupants of the business jet, identified as Don F. Daula, 29, of Houston and Lawrence J. Webster, 51, of Orinda Calif., escaped injury, although their plane exploded in flames.

Federal Aviation Administration investigators declined comment on the cause of the accident.

CBS in financial bind report says

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When any major corporation tightens its belt, bodies inside feel the squeeze. It's a common occurrence in business, and not usually newsworthy.

But the budgetary in-fighting at one multibillion dollar company has become public because the pinched party is CBS News.

And what galvanized attention to the problems of CBS News was that when Pope John Paul II landed in Poland for the historic return to his homeland June 16, ABC and NBC broadcast it live, while CBS was showing "The Price Is Right."

According to published reports, CBS spent about $1 million less than ABC and NBC to cover the pope's trip. "Internally, that was a symbol that we had serious problems," says a source at CBS News, who didn't want to be identified.

Yet, it wasn't until Gene Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, saw the coverage from Poland and, about the same time, understood the furor within CBS News caused by suggested budget and personnel cuts, that he moved to bolster the hopes and morale of the troops at CBS News.

Various sources at CBS, who refused to be identified, provided information for this account of last week's Battle of the Budget.

Last Thursday, Jankowski met with Van Gordon Sauter, president of CBS News, and Ed Joyce, the news division's executive vice president. The following day, he addressed two-dozen of CBS News' production and on-camera elite, including Dan Rather and Bill Moyers. He assured the group that he would not insist on any specific financial and personnel cutbacks, allowing Sauter to trim where he could.

Jankowski also promised that CBS News would have enough money to remain "competitive" with ABC and NBC during the 1984 election year, and that the news division would have 20 hours of prime-time programming in the upcoming season, five pertaining to the elections.

In attempting to overcome severe financial troubles at CBS, the Broadcast Group, which includes entertainment, sports, news, radio and TV stations, was looking for across-the-board budget cuts. The suggestion made to CBS News was for $12 million in reductions, which would amount to more than 60 lost jobs.

"The company has serious problems and began to set goals (for CBS News) which were fundamentally unreachable," said a source at CBS News who requested anonymity. "Every year there's haggling about the budget, but it tends to get resolved internally. This time, the scope and consequence was larger to CBS News and the company. To his credit, when Mr. Jankowski understood this, he went about solving the problem."

Sauter, reached on vacation Tuesday afternoon, said, "We will continue to seek ways to diminish costs and eliminate (job) redundancies that will not diminish our journalism and our competitive position. No doubt we will have success in those areas."

Attorneys trade barbs

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former state attorney general and the partner of a noted Texas defense lawyer traded barbs in a heated debate at the State Bar of Texas convention on whether lawyers should donate their services to the poor.

John Hill, a former attorney general and candidate for the Texas Supreme Court, told the attorneys in a thundering voice that they should share their time with the less fortunate.

But Robert Wallis of Houston, standing in for absent partner Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said he often has represented the poor but would fight any attempt to tell him which cases or how many he must take.

Lawyers are no more obligated than any other professionals to provide free service for the poor, Wallis said.

"Food is more important to the poor than legal service, and no one's suggesting that the farmers give away the food they grow," added Wallis.

Hill noted there have been major funding cuts for the federal Legal Service Corporation, which serves the poor free of charge, and he said attorneys in private practice should be prepared to fill the gap.

Wallis pleaded with his colleagues to use "common sense."

If every indigent becomes eligible for free legal help, the courts will be swamped with frivolous litigation, he said.

"What have your proposed recipients (of legal service) done to deserve this?" Wallis asked. "They don't like us a lot, and they're not going to do us any favors."

"We can't stand by and allow our system to be crippled out of the over-zealous sense of duty we have acquired probably because of guilt."

Hill said that if every lawyer would donate a few hours a week to representing the indigent in routine matters, divorces, child custody and housing disputes, people with legitimate claims would have a chance at justice, and the legal profession's tarnished image would improve.

Layoff

Nielsen said his layoff "knowledge is limited to the Lubbock and Abilene plants" and refused to say how long the company had planned the layoffs.

The fired employees "were mostly hired in the fourth quarter of 1982. That's typical when we hire temporary people, during that season," Nielsen said.

Possible recalls would, depend upon market conditions, he said.

TI does not disclose exact employee totals and the percentage of the workers affected by the layoffs could not be determined.

In addition to the 675 workers losing their jobs in Lubbock, the company announced Wednesday that all but a few highly skilled workers at the Lubbock plant would be required to take a mass vacation for the first two weeks of July.

At the company's annual meeting April 12 in Dallas, TI President Fred Bucey said the company could expect a "significantly better year" in 1983 despite a dismal first quarter that saw profits plunge 74 percent following a one-month interruption in the sale of the TI 99-4A home computer.

TI stock, which sank to 107 1/2 on June 14, closed Wednesday at 119 3/4, up 3 1/2 from Tuesday's close on the New York Stock Exchange.

tuition tax credits is part of Reagan's overall education program.

"I'm happy about it," the president told reporters.

Education Secretary Terrell H. Bell, who accompanied the president to education speeches in Louisville, Ky., and Shawnee, Kan., on the westbound trip, said Reagan had not changed his mind about trying to get rid of the Education Department.

But, said Bell to reporters aboard Air Force One Wednesday afternoon, "We have to face political reality, and the reality is that we can't get a bill passed."

Bell said that one proposal he made to shift some of the department's functions could only muster the support of 19 senators.

"I don't expect we'll be pushing for anything between now and January, 1985," Bell said.

commission delivered its report last April calling for improved academic standards and merit pay for "master teachers," Reagan has focused on the topic in public appearances. His interest reflects his aides' belief that education can prove to be a positive political issue if he seeks re-election next year.

The merit pay idea has put Reagan at odds with the National Education Association, the largest teachers' union, which argues that all teachers' salaries should be raised.

Now You're Cookin'

A backyard gazebo is just the thing to have this time of year...for a Fourth of July barbecue, ice cream social, or just to make a family supper seem like something special.

According to Mary Beth White, her family is really enjoying their recently completed gazebo. Her husband, Butch, and a friend, Bobby Owen, built the large outdoor covered patio. "Butch is enjoying cooking out there," she comments.

Butch and Mary Beth moved to Hereford with their family nine years ago from Denver City. Butch owns Boots and Saddle Western Wear on North 25 Mile Ave.

The Whites have two daughters, 11-year-old Stacy, who will be in the sixth grade at West Central in the fall; and Markay, 14, who will be a freshman at La Plata Junior High.

Both natives of Wellington, Butch and Mary Beth attended West Texas State University, and Butch also attended North Texas State University, where he studied business.

Mary Beth was kept busy at home most of the time when the children were small. She currently does substitute teaching during the school year and helps at the store when Butch is short-handed.

"I really enjoy substitute teaching," says Mary Beth. "It keeps me on my toes." She says that she prefers the junior high level and that she substitutes a lot at La Plata.

Mary Beth is the immediate past president of La Madre Mia Study Club and she is on the decorations committee of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division. She has served on the Beauty Spot of the Month and Christmas lighting committees of the Women's Division in past years.

The Whites attend First Baptist Church. Also as a family, they like to travel, snow ski, and play tennis.

"We are all avid tennis fans. Butch and the kids all play and I've designated myself as manager," laughs Mary Beth.

The family tries to go skiing in Breckenridge, Colo., every year and they enjoy taking family vacations. Mary Beth says that one of the most memorable was when they rode the AmTrac train from Albuquerque, N.M. to California. She and Butch also especially enjoyed a trip to the nation's capital.

Mary Beth belongs to a jazzercise class and she loves to read. She has helped with fund drives for organizations like United Way and the Heart Association.

Butch was on the United Way Board last year and helped with the yearly fund drive. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and has served on the Chamber Board.

"The girls are involved in sports, and keeping up with them keeps us pretty busy," notes Mary Beth. Both take tennis lessons.

Medals of honor on exhibit at museum

CANYON - The week of July 4-8 the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum will set up a mini-exhibit honoring the late Marine PFC Charles H. Roan, Congressional Medal of Honor winner who was killed in action in the Pacific during World War II. A native Texan, Roan hailed from Claude.

Roan's medal, in addition to his personal papers and materials relating to his military service, were recently donated to the Museum's Research Center by Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Roan Jr. of Claude, according to Byron Price, museum director.

In September of 1944 he took part in the invasion of Peleliu, in the Palau Islands. On the 18th his squad, attacking entrenched Japanese positions, was cut off during heavy fighting. From a cave to the rear of the squad came a barrage of hand grenades. Roan, wounded, sought cover with four other Marines. When another grenade landed in their midst, Roan threw himself on top of it, losing his own life but saving the lives of his companions.

On July 21, 1945, PFC Roan was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, and later received the Purple Heart and the Pacific Campaign Medal.

In 1946 a destroyer was named in his honor. Many young navy men from Claude volunteered to serve on the U.S.S. Charles H. Roan, according to Roan's brother Henry, who still resides in Claude.

The Roan exhibit case, which will be set up in the Museum's Hall of Texas History, contains photographs, the Congressional Medal of Honor and original citation, photographs, the Purple Heart, a part of the champagne bottle used to christen the destroyer, and other memorabilia.

The Hall of Texas History also displays other Congressional Medals of Honor awarded to Panhandle heroes. Billy Dixon, a legendary pioneer, received the CMH in 1874 for his part in the "Buffalo Wallow Fight" against Comanche and Kiowa warriors. His medal and citation are located in the Indian Wars exhibit case.

Colonel John C. "Red" Morgan, a B-17 pilot during World War II, received the CMH for gallantry in the air over Germany. Morgan's bomber was severely damaged during a bombing raid in July of 1943, and several crew members were seriously injured.

Despite this he flew the plane over the target, dropped its cargo, completed his mission, and flew the plane back to England, landing safely just as the fuel ran out. Morgan's uniform and CMH ribbon are on display in the Twentieth Century exhibit case in the Hall of Texas History.

The Museum will be open on the Fourth of July for this special exhibit.

Newest Brewer makes most of numbers, keys latest win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Rick Manning has had trouble putting decent numbers together since he was traded to Milwaukee earlier this month, but he has put three big victories in the win column for the struggling Brewers.

Manning's batting average has hovered in the vicinity of .200 since the Brewers acquired him from Cleveland on June 6 in exchange for Gorman Thomas, the popular slugging center fielder. But he won a game with an 11th-inning homer against Baltimore on June 16 and saved two runs with a brilliant catch in a 4-3 victory over Cleveland last Sunday.

Manning was at it again Wednesday night with a two-out, two-run triple in the bottom of the ninth inning that gave the Brewers a 4-3 victory over Detroit and knocked the Tigers out of a share of first place in the American League East.

"I had been trying too hard," Manning said. "I finally decided to be myself, to go the other way with the pitch. I was telling myself 100 times a day to relax, but saying it and doing it between the lines are two different things."

Elsewhere in AL action, the Toronto Blue Jays downed the Minnesota Twins 4-2, the New York Yankees whipped the Baltimore Orioles 7-0, the California Angels ripped the Texas Rangers 2-1, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Seattle Mariners 5-3, the Boston Red Sox outslugged the Cleveland Indians 11-10 in 11 innings after dropping the opener of the doubleheader 5-3 and the Oakland A's pounded the Kansas City Royals 11-6.

Detroit relief ace Aurelio Lopez came on to start the Brewers' ninth and issued a leadoff walk to Robin Yount. With two out, Ben Oglivie singled Yount to third and Manning lined an 0-1 pitch to the gap in right-center, scoring both runners.

"He got ahead of me with a breaking ball," Manning said. "Then I stopped thinking. I was just trying to hit the ball and keep the game going. They were shading me to the left side, and I think it was a breaking pitch that I pulled to the gap."

The Tigers led 3-0 and Juan Berenguer, a last-minute replacement for Dave Rozema, who couldn't get loose while warming up, retired the first 11 Milwaukee batters until Cecil Cooper singled with two out in the fourth.

Padres rack Valenzuela

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Fernando Valenzuela's pitching, you can be sure you're going to see a pretty good left-hander on the mound.

But Wednesday night, it wasn't Fernando Valenzuela.

While the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace southpaw left early in the midst of a 13-2 shelling by San Diego, Padres rookie left-hander Mark

Rogers among pitchers

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos and southpaw Dave Dravecky of the San Diego Padres, sharing the major-league lead with 11 victories apiece, head the pitching staff named today to the National League All-Star team.

Joining them on the NL's 10-man staff named for the July 6 game at Comiskey Park in Chicago are starter Altee Hammaker and reliever Gary Lavelle of the San Francisco Giants, starters Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Mario Soto of the Cincinnati Reds and Pascual Perez of the Atlanta Braves and relievers Jesse Orosco of the New York Mets, Bill Dawley of the Houston Astros and Lee Smith of the Chicago Cubs.

The hurlers were selected by Manager Whitey Herzog and NL President Chub Feeney.

The eight American League pitchers, announced Wednesday by Manager Harvey Kuenn, are 10-game winners Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, Rick Honeycutt of the Texas Rangers and Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays, plus starters Rick Sutcliffe of Cleveland and Matt Young of Seattle and relievers Dan Quisenberry of Kansas City, Bob Stanley of Boston and Aurelio Lopez of Detroit.

Rogers is the veteran of the NL staff, having been Thurmond was the one who was in total command of the situation.

"That was asking quite a bit of a young fellow to go out there and face that team," said Padre Manager Dick Williams after watching his young left-hander stifle the Dodgers on seven hits. "We didn't know what to expect — although he'd been pitching well in Las Vegas."

Thurmond was called up

Tuesday from San Diego's Las Vegas farm club and immediately inserted into the starting rotation in place of Andy Hawkins, who was sent down. Thurmond pitched two innings in three relief appearances earlier in the season in a brief trial with the Padres.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 5-0, Atlanta routed Houston 11-1, Montreal stopped Philadelphia 5-2 in the opener of a doubleheader before the Phillies came back to win the nightcap 3-2, Cincinnati edged San Francisco 7-6 and St. Louis tripped New York 4-3.

Steve Garvey, Kurt Bevacqua and Luis Salazar hit home runs as the Padres battered Valenzuela, 8-5, for 10 runs, chasing him in the fifth inning when they scored seven times. It was the most runs the Dodger left-hander has given up in the major leagues. Five were unearned due to a pair of Dodger errors.

Thurmond, meanwhile, walked only one and struck out four.

Chiefs' Delaney another victim

Second child dies from tragedy

MONROE, La. (AP) — A Monroe boy died in a local hospital today, only hours after he was pulled from a water hole where Joe Delaney, the Kansas City Chiefs' running back, drowned trying to save three boys in the water.

One of the boys drowned in Wednesday's accident.

Lancer Perkins, 11, died early this morning, a spokesman for St. Francis Medical Center said.

Delaney, 24, jumped into the hold in an attempt to rescue the three boys who were floundering, according to police and eyewitnesses.

One of the boys, a 6-year-old, got out of the water safely.

traced by a big free admission promotion for a privately operated waterslide.

Delaney, who lived about 100 miles away at Haughton, is survived by his wife, Carolyn, and daughters 7 years, 5 years and 4 months old.

Within hours after his death, Delaney was lauded in the Louisiana Senate at Baton Rouge, by Chiefs' officials and teammates, and by officials at Northwestern State University in Natchitoches, La., where he was an All-America tailback in football and sprinter in track.

"How many kids would do that?" asked A.L. Williams, the Louisiana Tech head coach who coached Delaney at Northwestern. "But that's Joe — always trying to help someone else. It cost him his life, but he'd do it a hundred times. He was so unselfish."

Smith said the accident happened when the three youths were swimming in a water hole left by construction workers who used the dirt to build the slide's hill.

Witnesses said Delaney, who was sitting alone nearby, hollered at the boys to be careful and not to wade too far into the water. Moments later, they said, the boys stepped off into deep water, went under and Delaney, fully clothed, plunged into the pond after them and himself went under.

One of the boys got back to the bank but the others did not make it.

Delaney was the second professional football player from Louisiana to die within the past week.

On Saturday, Larry Gordon, 28, of the Miami Dolphins, who was born in Monroe, died of a heart attack.

Spitz knocks Sports Festival

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — With the 1983 National Sports Festival heading toward its final, climactic weekend of action, former Olympic swimmer Mark Spitz has blasted the competition that is sanctioned by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Spitz, winner of seven gold medals in the 1972 Summer Games at Munich, was quoted in a Knight News Service report as saying that the Sports Festival was "a joke" and "an exercise in futility."

"None of the top-notch athletes are here. All the good ones bypass this," said Spitz, who had been here last weekend as a commentator for ABC on the Festival's swimming and diving events. "It's just a lot of money wasted that could be doing some good somewhere else."

"They're not producing any Olympians here. It's just a big get-together. That's all."

Spitz' remarks triggered a flood of telephone calls and telegrams from United States Olympians to USOC headquarters here, according to spokesman Mike Moran.

Late Wednesday, after a phone call from USOC Executive Director F. Don Miller, Spitz said he had been misquoted and issued an apology.

"Under no circumstances would I ever be involved in demeaning an organization (the USOC) which enabled me to be who I am and represent myself, my country, and my sport of swimming," Spitz said in the statement, released here by the USOC. "My statements, unrelated to swimming, were not intended to denigrate the National Sports Festival or its participants," he added.

The writer, Mike Downey, was not immediately available for comment.

Spitz' comments came as some of the Festival's big sports were beginning to unwind.

Hockey, in which the United States dramatically won the Olympic gold medal in 1980, began Wednesday with the West defeating the East 5-3 in the opening game, as Gary Haight, Steve Griffith and Gary Sampson scored three goals in a 2:18 span of the second period, and the North beating the South 8-4 as Gary Fusco, the collegiate player of the year, had a goal and an assist, and sparkled on defense.

Basketball, in which the United States has won every Olympic gold medal but one, decided its teams for the Festival finals Friday night.

In the men's competition, it will be the South against the East, and among the women, the South will face the West. The South men's team gained its berth in the gold medal game Wednesday night, beating the North 119-112 as Steve Mitchell scored 24 points, while the East downed the West 119-106, behind Walter Berry's 27 points.

Teresa Edwards scored 18 points, leading the South women's team to a 101-89 victory over the North, while the West gained the final despite a 92-90 loss to the East, thanks to the round-robin tiebreaker formula.

Gymnastics, another premier Olympic sport, begins tonight, and track and field, the blue ribbon event of the quadrennial Summer Games, starts Friday.

Several gold medalists were decided Wednesday, foremost among them Dan Johnson of Garrett Park, Md.

Johnson, a kayaker, won the men's 1,000-meter pairs for his sixth medal — tops in this year's festival. He teamed with Geoff Smith of Skaneateles, N.Y. to take the title — his second gold, to go along with two silver and two bronze.

John, Ivan set for showdown

Lendl gaining grass confidence

John, Ivan set for showdown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — When John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl take Center Court at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships on Friday, it will be more than a match — it will be a confrontation, rackets at court length.

"I think if I play my best tennis I will be able to beat John McEnroe," said the Czechoslovakian, who is seeded third here at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club.

Never one to back down from a challenge, McEnroe, the tournament's No. 2 seed, said: "I am looking forward to the match."

The last time the two met was in the championship match of the WCT Finals in Dallas on May 1. McEnroe won that encounter in five sets, winning the fifth-set tiebreaker 7-0.

The next week, at the Mercedes Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills in New York, Lendl verbally challenged McEnroe, saying he would try to hit the world's No. 1 player with his shots if McEnroe questioned line calls.

The gauntlet was thrown, but Lendl, seeded to meet McEnroe in the T of C final, was upset in an early round, while McEnroe went on to win the clay court tournament.

This, then, will be their first on-court encounter since Dallas. And neither is expected to give an inch in their battle for a berth in Sunday's final.

The other men's semi-final pairing Friday pits hard-serving Kevin Curren of South Africa against New Zealand's Chris Lewis, a grass courts specialist.

Today, the women's semi-finals will send top-seeded Martina Navratilova against South Africa's Yvonne Vermaak, while Andrea Jaeger, the No. 3 seed, will face No. 10 Billie Jean King, who is seeking her seventh Wimbledon singles title and her 21st overall crown here.

McEnroe advanced to the semi-finals with a 6-3, 7-5, 6-0 victory over Sandy Mayer on Wednesday, while Curren stopped Tim Mayotte 4-6, 7-6, 6-2, 7-6. On Tuesday, Lendl stopped Roscoe Tanner 7-5, 7-6, 6-3 and Lewis eliminated Mel Purcell 6-7, 6-0, 6-4, 7-6 in the other quarter-finals.

"Whoever wins will be the favorite in the final, but that doesn't guarantee victory,"

McEnroe said of his clash with Lendl. "You cannot take anything for granted."

Said a determined Lendl: "I think I have proven myself as a grass court player now because I am playing well and winning match."

"As far as Wimbledon is concerned, it is one of the Big Three tournaments and I will always play here as long as I am physically and mentally fit."

"Winning one of the Grand Slam titles is more important to me than being No. 1 on the computer."

Texas senators at odds over defense budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $2.1 billion defense budget windfall produced at the last minute by the Reagan administration has become a bone of contention between Texas' two senators.

At separate news conferences on Wednesday, Republican Sen. John Tower and Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen also differed on whether budgetary considerations should be a factor in deciding how much to spend on defense, with Tower arguing they shouldn't and Bentsen that they should.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, defended his committee's use of the $2.1 billion windfall to beef up defense purchases, saying, "we take advantage of whatever savings we can take advantage of as a result of changed (budgetary) assumptions."

But Bentsen questioned the administration's last-minute change in defense figures, saying, "This idea that you change numbers at the last minute to win a point before a vote I think is wrong."

The $2.1 billion windfall was produced when White House and Pentagon officials this week came up with figures showing they had over-estimated inflation in the proposed defense budget by that amount.

On Tuesday, the Armed Services Committee used up much of the extra money to provide $888 million for several years' production of the controversial B-1B bomber and to restore other items tentatively cut from the defense budget for next fiscal year.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a committee member, charged that the changed inflation figures amounted to "budgetary trickery."

"I don't think it's budgetary trickery at all," Tower responded, saying

"there's no reason why we shouldn't take advantage of changed assumptions" on inflation.

Tower said the committee would have produced the $888 million for the B-1B anyhow, by cutting back on other items.

However, Bentsen was skeptical of the $2.1 billion savings calculated by Budget Director David A. Stockman.

"I would suspect that he was fitting the numbers to accomplish the objective," Bentsen said.

Tower said the $200 billion authorized by the committee for military programs next fiscal year amounted to about a 5 percent increase over the current year, not counting inflation.

That was the amount targeted in a budget resolution recently approved by the Congress despite administration requests for first a 10 percent and then a 7.5 percent defense increase.

Tower, a strong supporter of the administration request, said that if the 5 percent increase "is adequate, it is barely adequate in my view. I believe that defense funding should be driven by requirements. The requirement is 'in turn driven by the threat.'"

Tower said he would have preferred a 7 percent to a 7.5 percent increase and that "I'm sorry that the majority of the Congress tend to think that defense spending should be driven by budgetary considerations over national security interests."

Oil and gas companies use solar power on rigs

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — After tapping energy in the ground, some oil and gas companies have lifted their sights skyward for some of their energy needs.

Conoco, for example, uses energy from solar panels, which absorb sunlight and convert it into electricity, on seven offshore rigs to power fog horns, lights, and even computers that keep an electronically controlled eye on the operation.

Conoco's 36-F platform near Cameron, La., has a unique solar-powered monitoring system that is so accurate the gas platform is left unmanned for weeks at a time.

The Systronics Remote Terminal Unit on 36-F was installed in May, and keeps the platform in constant communication with Conoco's Lake Charles, La.-based computer control center.

"Solar power is cheaper in a remote area like this ... and the long-term advantage, of course, is the lower maintenance cost," said Sid Roberts, assistant production supervisor for Conoco's Lake Charles operation.

"There are practically no maintenance costs with the solar system like there are with the diesel system," Roberts said.

Conoco saved $60,000 on initial investment by going solar rather than diesel, he said.

In addition to being less expensive, solar-powered platforms are safer than diesel systems because there is no internal combustion engine.

The use of solar power on oil rigs does have natural limitations, however, said R.J. Stutes, senior systems technician for Conoco.

Solar panels take up a lot of space — a valuable commodity on off-shore rigs — and don't produce much energy relative to oil or gas, Stutes said.

Roberts said, "There is one thing you have to realize ... Solar power is very limited in its application. For the area it takes for the solar system, you don't get a lot of power.

"My personal opinion is that (solar technology) is a long way from being the solution to all our problems," Roberts said.

Receiving publicity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have two comments: First, if God received as much publicity in your column as sex does, this would be a much better world.

Second, since you have so many millions of readers, why don't you get together with a good gynecologist and explain the rhythm method of birth control? It would be a tremendous service.—Dorothy E. In Topeka, Kan.

DEAR DOROTHY: First, I do mention God frequently in my column, but let me assure you He does not need the "publicity." The Bible is still the No. 1 best-seller and has been for many years.

Second, I am not about to recommend the rhythm method. It works only for those women whose periods are predictably regular, and even then it sometimes fails. Many other forms of birth control are more dependable. So if you don't mind, I'll leave this to the gynecologists.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you ran a letter that made my blood run cold. It could have been written by me. Every word that woman wrote described my own life.

For 30 years I was married to a man who wouldn't let me read a magazine or book about love stories. If a tenderly affectionate scene appeared on the TV screen, he turned it off. The man was insanely jealous of any male who said a word to me — including a friendly "good morning" by a neighbor. Immediately he would accuse me of seeing the man behind his back.

One day I found lipstick on his collar. Two weeks later there was another shade of lipstick on his handkerchief. The following week I discovered a hairpin stuck in the sleeve of his tweed jacket. It all came together. This animal who had been accusing me all those years was guilty of cheating.

Your advice to the woman who wrote, "If you stick around, be prepared for a life of hell," was perfect. I did NOT stick around. I divorced the bum and these last four years have been my best. Keep dishing out your huge dollops of common sense and wisdom. The world needs it.—A Forever Fan In California

DEAR FOREVER: What a day-brightener! You have illuminated my week.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print my letter so parents will take pity on the middle child. It is absolutely the worst spot in any family.

If the baby wakes up early, it's my fault. I open the fridge too much. I slam doors. I am always standing in the wrong place and never straight enough. I wear the wrong pants. My shoes never look right.

The oldest kid is perfect. Mom and Dad brag about her and carry her picture in their wallets with one of the baby, who of course is adorable and very smart. In fact, he may be a genius. Next to him, I am an idiot.

Please print my letter for the sake of every middle child in the world. We need your help.—Utah Mistit

DEAR UTAH: Agreed. It's the roughest spot, but make it work FOR you instead of against you. Sibling rivalry can be a terrific motivator! Shape up and show 'em what you can do!

Fort Worth police 'listen' to Lucas for 2 hours

MONTAGUE, Texas (AP) — Investigators from Fort Worth say a two-hour visit with mass murder suspect Henry Lucas about several unsolved murders in their city was not very productive.

"As far as specifics that would help, there wasn't any," B. Ray Armand, major case lieutenant for the Fort Worth Police Department, said Wednesday after he and two other officers talked with Lucas in the Montague County Jail.

"He told us a few things that we are going to check into. We're not going to take the information and forget it," Armand said. "We have some information that we are going to have to prove or disprove."

Lucas, 46, claims to have killed about 100 women in 17 states over the past eight years. Montague County officials say they have been flooded with calls from officers across the nation wondering if he is implicated in unsolved crimes still on their books.

Despite protests from his lawyer, Lucas has talked freely with law enforcement officers about crimes he claims to have committed.

As a result of his discussions with officers throughout Texas, Lucas has been charged with the murders of five Texas women, including his common law wife, a teen-age runaway believed to be from Florida. He said most of his victims were hitchhikers or women he met in bars.

Dallas police announced a trip to this small North Texas town today, not to talk with Lucas but to get his fingerprints. They want to compare his fingerprints with a bloody set found on an ice chest near the body of Carol Blanchard, 22, whose torso was discovered last Sept. 7, floating in the Trinity River four miles south of the Dallas suburb of Seagoville.

Two of the deaths Lucas is charged with occurred in August and September of last year, and another involved a woman whose head had been cut off.

"Near where the body was found, we found a Styrofoam ice chest covered in human blood," Bill Mays, a detective with the Dallas County sheriff's department, told the Dallas Morning News.

"Some of the victims have been decapitated. In the case here, both arms were cut off, and the body was severed just below the navel area. We identified her through chest x-rays and blood type," Mays said.

Officials in Hale County have charged Lucas with the murder of a woman whose torso was found near Plainview and whose head was found near Scottsdale, Ariz. They say Lucas admitted picking up a woman in Abilene in December of 1981 and killing her later. He said he raped the woman both before and after decapitating her, officials said.

Harris County officials say they want to question Lucas about six unsolved murders over the past eight years in the Houston area, including the 1978 slaying of a woman whose body was dumped beside Interstate 10.

It probably will be mid-July before Harris County officers get to Montague, said Ronnie Phillips, a sheriff's deputy.

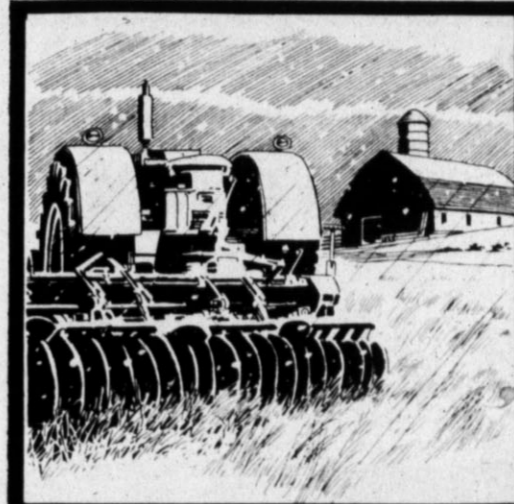

Fort Worth officials had hoped to transport Lucas to Fort Worth Wednesday, but 97th State District Judge Frank Douthitt issued an order late Tuesday prohibiting his transfer without Douthitt's approval.

Armand, detective George T. Hudson and Texas Ranger Jack Morton went to Montague in the hope that an interview with Lucas might yield some clues about four women murder victims there. However, Lucas had not claimed killing any women in Fort Worth and had not mentioned being in the area, they said.

Waiting for MIA husband ends after 11 years

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Eleven years after his plane was shot down over Hanoi, Air Force Lt. Col. Farrell Sullivan has been confirmed dead and his body on its way back to Texas. For Sue Sullivan, his wife, the long years of waiting are over.

The Pentagon announced on Tuesday that Sullivan's body was among the remains of nine Americans — previously listed as Missing In Action — who were turned over to the United States on June 3 by Vietnam.

"It's a relief, in a way, to finally know, but I also have a feeling of outrage at the way both our government and Vietnam play games over the return of our men without caring about the feelings of the families involved," Mrs. Sullivan told the Austin American-Statesman Wednesday.

Sullivan, a seasoned combat pilot and fighter-squadron commander, was flying an F-4 Phantom on his 257th combat mission when he was shot down by a surface-to-air missile. No Americans saw his jet crash and no body was reported recovered, but the Air Force changed his status from missing to presumed dead after one year.

His wife says she refused for most of those 11 years to believe that her husband was dead, noting that the Air Force changed his status without having his remains or physical evidence to show that he was dead.

Her relief at learning the truth is tinged with bitterness at the way information from Vietnam is handled.

"It seems Vietnam releases remains when it suits their purposes. They dole them out a few at a time," she said. "Our government should designate a high level person to negotiate, to let Hanoi know we're serious and we're not going to tolerate this any longer."

Farrell and Sue Sullivan were childhood sweethearts in Caddo Mills in Northeast Texas. He joined the Air Force in 1955 at the age of 20, she said, "and he loved the military. He was doing exactly what he wanted to do."

In June, 1973, when the Air Force changed Sullivan's designation to killed in action, his military honors and decorations, including the Silver Star, two Distinguished Flying Crosses, six Air Medals, an Air Force Commendation Medal, and an Air Force Outstanding Unit medal, were presented to the family in a ceremony here at Bergstrom Air Force Base.

Mrs. Sullivan has been a persistent critic of the U.S. government because of what she calls its low priority on determining the fate of missing American servicemen.

She questioned why the Pentagon waited until Tuesday to make the announcement concerning the identities of the men whose remains are being returned. "They brought them back to Hawaii June 3 — they knew then who they were," she said. "My personal feeling is they held the announcement until Tuesday so Secretary of State (George) Shultz could make a grandstand play with it while he's over there."

Mrs. Sullivan received a call Monday from a San Antonio mortician saying her husband's remains would be among those returned this week. "But I had known since March that my husband's folder, with his dental charts and other identification, had been asked for and he might be one of them," she said.

"But if they had the meeting with Vietnam in March, why has it taken so long to let us know?" she asked. "And they still haven't told us when the remains will arrive or what to expect."

She and her children, Mike, Tom, and Kim Sullivan, will plan a memorial service at Woodlawn Baptist Church for "Sully," as he was known to the men in his command.

Sullivan was stationed at Bergstrom Air Force Base at Austin from August 1968 to January 1970.

His family was in the Philippines when he was shot down. They returned to Austin "because this really is where we have felt at home, where our church is and so many friends," Sue Sullivan said.

New treatment for heart attacks

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A new treatment to stop heart attacks and reduce the damage they cause is being developed at the University of Rochester Medical Center and a few other centers.

Dr. Robert L. Rothbard and his colleagues at the center and other Rochester-area hospitals are administering streptokinase, a naturally oc-curing enzyme that accelerates the breaking up of clots through a catheter to the coronary arteries if there is evidence of a clot.

"This is a radically different kind of therapy," says Rothbard.

"It's the first non-surgical method that's been developed to intervene during a heart attack to re-establish the blood supply to the heart."

The Newspaper BIBLE

THAT'S A GOOD QUESTION!

Here are some of the story-illustrations Jesus used in His sermons: "What good is it for one blind man to lead another? He will fall into a ditch and pull the other down with him."

"How can a student know more than his teacher? But if he works hard, he may learn as much."

"And why quibble about the speck in someone else's eye--his little fault--when a board is in your own?"

"How can you think of saying to him, 'Brother, let me help you get rid of that speck in your eye,' when you can't see past the board in yours? Hypocrite! First get rid of the board, and then perhaps you can see well enough to deal with his speck!"

"A tree from good stock doesn't produce scrub fruit nor do trees from poor stock produce choice fruit. A tree is identified by the kind of fruit it produces. Figs never grow on thorns, or grapes on bramble bushes!"

"A good man produces good deeds from a good heart. And an evil man produces evil deeds from his hidden wickedness. Whatever is in the heart overflows into speech."

"So why do you call Me 'Lord' when you won't obey Me?"

"But all those who come and listen and obey Me are like a man who builds a house on a strong foundation laid upon the underlying rock. When the floodwaters rise and break against the house, it stands firm, for it is strongly built."

"But those who listen and don't obey are like a man who builds a house without a foundation. When the floods sweep down against that house, it crumbles into a heap of ruins."

Luke 6:39-49

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, June 30, the 181st day of 1983. There are 184 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On June 30, 1950, President Harry Truman announced he had ordered U.S. troops stationed in Japan to help the Republic of Korea repel North Korean invaders.

On this date:

In 1777, British forces in the Revolutionary War evacuated New Jersey, retreating to Staten Island, N.Y.

In 1859, 5,000 people watched as French acrobat Emile Blondin crossed Niagara Falls on a tightrope.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler began a purge in Germany, getting rid of hundreds of political and military leaders.

In 1936, Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie pledged before the League of Nations in Geneva for help against Italian invaders.

Ten years ago: The moon's shadow crossed the entire width of Africa in one of the longest eclipses of modern times.

Five years ago: The U.N. General Assembly agreed to replace the 16-year-old Geneva Disarmament Conference with a larger negotiating body.

One year ago: At a televised news conference, President Ronald Reagan said the United States had not given Israel a "green light" to attack Palestinian forces in West Beirut.

Today's birthday: Singer Lena Horne is 66.

Thought for today: "I believe in the discipline of silence and can talk about it for hours." — George Bernard Shaw, Irish-born writer (1856-1950).

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Types of hypoglycemia

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 35-year-old female and have just been diagnosed as being hypoglycemic. Doctors all said I looked too healthy to have hypoglycemia. I wasn't aware that hypoglycemia made you look sick.

My main complaint was that I was extremely tired and have been for the last five years, getting worse the last few months. For this reason I am concerned about any brain damage.

Because I am so "healthy," my doctor assumes my condition is functional rather than any tumor problem. Is it wise to stop there?

I'm also getting conflicting information about diets. One book said hypoglycemics should carry sugar with them - as a diabetic - in case of an attack. But my fasting sugar was 87 and the next sample after sugar was 62. Sugar would make me worse.

DEAR READER - If you were correctly diagnosed, you should have had symptoms of hypoglycemia at the time your doctor demonstrated a significantly low blood glucose level.

Your doctor thinks you have reactive hypoglycemia. He is not just saying this because you look so healthy. Your normal fasting blood sugar rules out many causes for hypoglycemia and puts you in the group of people who have reactive hypoglycemia. That means you don't have a tumor causing your problem.

Fatigue is caused by many things, but it can be caused by a low blood glucose level. That doesn't mean levels that cause fatigue are low enough to cause brain damage.

Sugar or sweets will induce a quick rise in the blood glucose level. Most people who have reactive hypoglycemia never have levels so low that taking sugar is required. You would be better off to follow a sensible balanced diet that eliminates sweets, sugars and starches. Frequent small meals would help smooth out your blood glucose swings that can cause symptoms. You need to read The Health Letter 18-8, Hypoglycemia: The Low Blood Sugar Problem, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - What is the difference between a fever blister and herpes on the mouth? I'm confused by all the information about herpes I and II. I'm 28, female and have had sores on my mouth as long as I can remember, usually about four or five times a year.

If the weather is extremely cold, my mouth will dry out and chapped and usually a sore will appear. It can itch and burn. Several people have asked me if I had herpes. I have two children, a husband and I don't jump from bed to bed. How could I possibly have contracted herpes?

DEAR READER - You probably did and you were most likely a little child when it happened. You probably got it when one of your family or a friend of the family kissed you. That is herpes I. And it is caused by herpes simplex, a virus. As much as 80 or 90 percent of the general population have antibodies that show they have been so infected. It has nothing to do with sex.

But the same lesion can be transmitted to the sex organs. Herpes I usually occurs on the lips outside the mouth and not inside the mouth.

Michael Lea of the University of Rochester's Institute of Optics has found a way to turn an array of tiny liquid lenses, each as small as a pinhole, into a set of tiny optical modulators, or light switches.

Lea believes his device can be developed into an inexpensive image-projector; in fact, a big enough set of lenses could be used in future large-screen television sets.

Latin American Convention focuses on political clout

DETROIT (AP) - Jobs, education and civil rights top the agenda for the League of United Latin American Citizens, but underlying those items is the key issue of political clout, the group's president says.

"As an organization, we will not endorse any candidate," said Tony Bonilla, president of the nation's oldest and largest Hispanic group. "But the fact that all the major (Democratic) presidential candidates are attending is indicative of the emerging importance of the Hispanic community in this country."

The league, representing more than 100,000 members, is slated to hear from five of the six announced Democratic presidential candidates during its week-long convention which opens today. Prominent figures representing both political parties and civil rights organizations also are scheduled to address the group.

"There has been a perception that candidates were reluctant to speak out on minority issues because they did not want to alienate their conservative supporters," the Corpus Christi, Texas, lawyer said Wednesday night. "But the minority agenda is not inconsistent with that of the conservatives."

"We want jobs, we want lower taxes, we want justice, we want peace and we want to be able to own our homes and pay our debts. No conservative should be opposed to those programs."

Some 5,000 delegates "intend to deal with those issues during the convention and we would like to see the presidential candidates who appear address those issues, as well," Bonilla said.

U.S. Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado was to speak to the convention tonight, while Sens. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, Alan Cranston of California and John Glenn of Ohio are scheduled for Friday. Former Vice President Walter Mondale is Saturday's speaker.

Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, the sixth announced candidate, scrapped his planned appearance. President Reagan's special ambassador to Central America, Richard Stone, and U.S. Sen. Peter Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee also are scheduled speakers.

The president was invited to appear but declined, Bonilla said. "We need to send a message from this convention to the White House that we do not consider the Reagan administration and their policies as being friendly to Hispanics, the poor, the elderly, and other minorities."

Another speaker is the Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation PUSH in Chicago - often mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential candidate.

"We have been talking with Mrs. Corretta King, Jesse Jackson and other black leaders about a black-Hispanic coalition," Bonilla said. "We've not shut the door on that possibility because of the tremendous potential that type of alliance would offer."

"By working together, we could indeed change the course of history in this nation. But I'm not prepared to say right now that any coalition will lead to the support of any candidate."

Bonilla ends a two-year term when the convention concludes Sunday with election of officers.

His potential successors include Mario Obledo of Sacramento, Calif., the state's former secretary of health and education; Linda Alvarado, a Denver construction company owner; Raul Vasquez, an attorney from Austin, Texas; Ellis Barrera, a Houston attorney; and Jose Betello, a Dallas businessman.

Henry 'Elliott' Thomas bored with box-office hit

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — There are two Henry Thomases.

One is so normal you can't tell him from millions of other youngsters.

The other is a serious, almost glum movie star who spends hours signing autographs for fans who recognize him as Elliott, E.T.'s best friend.

Balancing the two characters are Henry and Carolyn Thomas, the proud parents of Henry Jr., an 11-year-old San Antonio boy who was thrust into the national spotlight last year with the release of "E.T., the Extra-Terrestrial."

Now, it's a daily fight to keep Henry's life as normal as possible. It's a fight against pressures that would destroy many families.

But Henry doesn't even like to discuss acting. He'd rather spend hours immersed in role-playing games like "Dungeons and Dragons." Or riding his bike or the family horses, playing with his dog, Dirty Gertie, swimming, running or jumping.

The family lives in a modest wood-frame house on a small tract of land south of San Antonio.

But Henry's home-away-from-home is a prominent treehouse, just a few steps from a brand new swimming pool partly financed by a bonus from Steven Spielberg, the producer-director of "E.T."

Besides these materialistic changes, not much is different for the family. Henry's father is the same hydraulics specialist he was before the movie.

And the family has salted Henry's salaries into investments and protected financial instruments that await his coming of age.

"As of his last movie, his college education was assured," his mother said.

Henry belittles his fame, preferring to follow the pursuits of any other 11-year-old while adults talk business.

But he took time from working on his "Dungeons and Dragons" characters to reluctantly discuss the phenomenon of "E.T."

"E.T.' is getting pretty old," he stressed. "We made it two years ago and it was released a year ago. It's not of my interest right now. I'm not so crazy about 'E.T.'"

That seems rather startling coming from the star of the highest-grossing film in motion picture history.

But Henry was stressing a point generally overlooked. He's only 11 years old and just entering the sixth grade. When the film was made, he was 9.

Two years represents nearly one-fifth of his lifetime, enough to make him weary of the subject.

"Probably the 'Return of the Jedi' will end the E.T. thing," Henry said, turning his attention to acting in general.

"You're not really playing someone else," he says. "It's more like pretending, just pretending. It seems like you would notice them, but the lights aren't there; it's just you and other actors. If you're really acting, you're not seeing all that junk."

He says he was disappointed when "E.T." lost the best movie Oscar to "Gandhi."

"I wasn't upset about it, but I expected it," he says. "Gandhi" was different. People called 'E.T.' science fiction, and it was, sort of, in a way. What it was was an entertainment film."

Both Henry and his mother have been bemused by the spiritual connotations attached to the film, especially comparisons made between E.T. and Jesus Christ.

"One guy asked me how I viewed the spiritual aspects of the film," Henry says, a bit bewildered.

"Henry's a Christian and religious, but 'E.T.' was not religious," Mrs. Thomas adds. "It was a story more about friendship."

That working "friendship" thrilled Henry on the set.

"When I was acting, he was real," Henry said. "Otherwise, sometimes, it disappointed you."

"After you finished a scene, it was just stiff. After a scene, he's just another piece of equipment on the set ... He kept breaking down and there was always 'just a little problem,'" Henry says.

Henry's room is a collage of interests reflecting a multifaceted individual.

Laminated billboards from "E.T." and his first movie, "Raggedy Man," share space with coveted autographed pictures of Darth Vader, Joe Greene of the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders.

Numerous awards decorate a fireplace mantle and three cherished swords hang crisscrossed on one wall.

A stereo and television, bunk beds and couch complete the furnishings. Above the bed are a couple of dozen ribbons from art competitions.

"Star Wars" sheets adorn the bed, reflecting Henry's enthusiasm for the movie.

"People think that you come into our house and all you'll see is E.T. wallpaper, sheets and everything," he says.

He's not sure if there will be a sequel to the famous movie.

"People think we know everything because we made the movie, but we don't," he says. "I think Steven wants to do one."
