By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.
(AP) — Challenger's "lobster ship" astronauts early today launched a unique 3-in-1 satellite for India that will improve weather forecasting on the vast subcontinent and bring telephone and television service to many isolated communities for the first time. "The deployment was on time with no anomalies, and the satellite looks good," mission specialist Guion Bluford reported as the payload spun away. He said the crew felt a "slight clunk" as the craft was released.

On the shuttle's 18th turn around the Earth, Bluford, America's first black astronaut, gave the commands that started the satellite spinning at 40rpm for stability. At 3:40 a.m. EDT, he pushed a button that sprung the payload out of the cargo bay.

Commander Richard Truly fired Challenger's engines so the ship was a safe distance, about 12 miles away, when the satellite's onboard rocket was to have fired 45 minutes later to propel it toward a stationary parking space 22,300 miles above the equator south of India.

NASA said it would take some time to determine if that firing occurred because at the time the satellite was not within range of a tracking station.

INSAT, an acronym for India National Satellite, is to reach the high outpost on Friday.

Operating on their day-night schedule, the five astronauts began Day 2 of the eighth shuttle mission at 9:32 p.m. EDT Tuesday night, as Mission Control in Houston awakened them with the music of the Georgia Tech fight song.

"That's the spirit," commented Richard Truly, Challenger's commander, who is a Tech graduate.

Asked how the crew was doing, the commander exclaimed: "Shoot, we never had so much fun in our whole lives!"

The control center told him ground instruments showed Challenger was a "very clean ship."

Lubbock businessman announces for 19th District Congressional seat

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

With the announcement last week that U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock would be seeking the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by John Tower, it became only a matter of time before those wishing to succeed Hance announced their intentions.

The first candidate for Hance's 19th Congressional District seat made a whirlwind tour of the district Tuesday to do just that. Larry Combest, 38, a Lubbock businessman, visited 13 Panhandle and South Plains cities to announce that he is tossing his hat into the ring.

The Memphis native is owner of Combest Distributing Co., a wholesale electronics distributorship founded five years ago. He is also a former teacher, farmer, and employee with the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Combest ironically is also a former legislative assistant to Tower, working with the Senator from 1971-78 on agriculture legislation and programs and with state office operations.

Combest told the Brand that his announcement of candidacy had already been planned for this time, and the recent announcement by Hance did not move his timetable up.

"We've been working hard on this for nine months," Combest said. "I have been visiting across the district listening to people...these visits have convinced me that the people of West Texas are interested in continued strong conservative leadership in Congress."

Combest, a 1963 graduate of Panhandle High School, and a 1969 graduate of West Texas State University, believes his farm and business background is a big asset.

"I believe my experience in the agricultural and business community qualify me to serve as your representative in Washington," he said. "I know the problems facing agriculture from the farming angle, the administrative angle, and the legislative angle."

"I know the problems of running a business and meeting a payroll," he continued. "I am aware of the intrusion of government in our business and personal lives. I believe we have more government than we desire and can afford, and that we need to continue the trend to lessen the involvement of government in our daily lives."

Combest, accompanied by a large staff on the tiring tour, said he was sure that several other people would seek Hance's seat, but that he wasn't worrying himself about the opposition...yet.

"I will be running a very positive campaign based on my qualifications and desires to be your congressman," he concluded. "I ask only for the opportunity to prove to the people of the 19th Congressional District that I can and will be an effective, conservative, and strong voice for you in Washington and wherever that voice is needed."

Combest's wife Sharon also accompanied the candidate on the announcement trip Tuesday. Also included on the itinerary were stops in Andrews, Lamesa, Seminole, Plains, Brownfield, Levelland, Morton, Littlefield, Muleshoe, Farwell, Dimmitt, Plainview, and Lubbock.

Index posts slim gain

Recovery seems to be stalling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main barometer of future economic strength rose 0.3 percent last month, officials reported today. It was the smallest gain in almost a year and another apparent sign that the recovery is shifting into slower gear.

Indeed, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said "this recovery's strong phase ... is largely behind us."

He said the slowdown reported today "is not a cause for concern," and that it indicates that the rebound experienced in the second quarter "will taper to a more sustainable pace."

The forecasting gauge, the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators, is a compilation of a dozen forward-pointing statistics covering manufacturing, employment, prices and other areas.

Based on past experience, the indicators forecast economic changes that will likely occur nine months in the future.

The July gain in the index was the smallest since last August, when the index fell 0.1 percent, the report said. The department also substantially revised June's index to a 1.9 percent gain from the previously reported 1 percent gain, saying additional information on consumer credit accounted for the change.

Today's increase was the only one this year that was less than a full percentage point. Strong advances of 3.1 percent in January and 2 percent in March were posted.

Economists have said increasingly in recent weeks that the economy is settling into a slower, more sustainable rate of growth following the burst of business activity that occurred at the outset of the rebound earlier this year.

Other recent reports, such as July housing sales and retail sales, have shown that after the vigorous 9.2 percent growth in the second quarter — as measured by the gross national product — various sectors of the economy began to cool.

So today's report appeared to be in line with expectations that economic activity, while still strong, will be moderated in this second half of the year.

By most accounts, such a slowdown is welcome (See RECOVERY, Page 2)

Board amends budget

By REED PARSELL
Staff Writer
Hereford Independent School District board members amended their 1982-1983 budget Tuesday evening during a short, special meeting.

The amended budget shows HISD's estimated revenue to be $10,567,687 and estimated expenditures $10,550,405 in the general operating fund. The estimated net balance as of today - the final day of the 1982-1983 budget year - was listed as $638,424, an increase of nearly $28,000 over the Sept. 1, 1982 figure.

In the special revenue fund, the balance fell from $283,977 to an estimated $229,612. HISD lost about $160,000 in migrant program funds which were not carried over as they have been in previous years, Ed McCreary told board members.

McCreary, director of federal funds, said the state did not announce the change until last spring, thereby not leaving enough time for the local district to effectively spend the migrant program money.

The estimated balance for the interest and bonded debt fund budget was $262,700. During the 1982-1983 year, the projected revenue was $263,064 while estimated expenses were $511,365. The remaining debt service requirements for HISD total $441,000.

At its August 9 regular meeting, HISD board members approved the 1983-1984 school budget, which has an estimated revenue of $10,565,440 for its general operating fund. Because of state accounting requirement alterations, the estimated expenditures figure is actually $40,000 more. Dr. Holder said the two projections are, in effect, "equal to the penny."

The school district's tax rate was left at 94 cents per $100 valuation. The area property tax rise from 88 to 89 cents was offset by a 6-to-5 cents drop in the interest rate for the bonded debt fund.

In the only other school board action Tuesday, five personnel changes recommended by Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder were approved. Glen Powell was moved to be instructor of the new alternative school. According to Dr. Holder, Powell has just completed two years of service at a Florida "detention center."

Dr. Holder indicated the alternative school could have its first student as early as Tuesday. Several prospective students are now being interviewed, he said.

The new school is to be located in the old Brand building on Fourth St. Most of the necessary interior work has already been completed, Dr. Holder said.

Also hired Tuesday were Dona Hendrickson at La Plata Junior High School, Sherri Mines at Stanton Elementary and Rita Solis, also at Stanton. Dian Day resigned from La Plata.

51 deaths seen over Labor Day

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Public Safety has estimated as many as 51 persons will be killed in traffic accidents during the Labor Day holiday. The estimate includes traffic deaths which may occur on urban street and rural highways.

Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, says Texas has about 14 percent fewer fatal accidents now than at the same time during 1982.

"We are hopeful the trend will continue downward for the remainder of the year. However holiday weekends always seem to bring higher death tolls than do other times of the year," Adams said.

The DPS reported 50 deaths during Labor Day last year. However, the inclusion of subsequent deaths due to traffic injuries received during the 78-hour period raised the final count to 57.

"During the 1982 holiday, 27 people were killed in accidents where DWI or speed was a contributing factor. This represented close to half of all the fatalities which occurred during that particular holiday," said Adams.

The DPS director called for sober driving, use of seat belts and a reduction in speed.

"We know alcohol contributes to about half of our (See DEATHS, Page 2)

Ramirez services set Thursday

Cipriano Ramirez, 82, founder of the Hereford Tortilla Factory, died Tuesday morning at his home, 829 Blevins, after a lengthy illness.

Ramirez was born Sept. 17, 1900, in Durango, Mexico, and was married to Eva Torres May 17, 1929, in Brownsville. He received U.S. citizenship in 1952, at which time he began his first tortilla factory in the Rio Grande Valley.

He came to Hereford in 1967 as a migrant farm worker, and then in 1968 he and his wife founded the tortilla factory in a small shop at the Hereford Housing Project, known as the Labor Camp.

As a result of Ramirez's efforts, the Hereford Tortilla Factory is one of the largest tortilla factories in the country. His sons now have factories in Pueblo, Colo., and Wichita, Kan., in addition to the one in Hereford.

Ramirez was a member of San Jose Catholic Church. His wife preceded him in death in 1982.

Services will be held 7:30 p.m. Thursday in San Jose Catholic Church with Father Joe Bixenman officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Survivors include four sons, Rena and Manuel, both of Hereford, Ramiro of Pueblo, Colo., and Jose of Wichita, Kan.; four daughters, Rachel Castro, Mary Ramirez, and Rose Medrano, all of Hereford, and Benita Villegas of Harlingen; one brother, Antonio of Hereford; 41 grandchildren; and 30 great-grandchildren.

Reasons behind attacks unknown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials can't explain the upsurge in attacks on U.S. Marines and other soldiers in the international peacekeeping force in Lebanon, but speculate it is motivated by a desire to embarrass the peacekeepers.

Two Marines and four French soldiers have been killed in recent attacks.

U.S. officials acknowledge the attacks are being centrally directed or coordinated.

But some military and civilian officials have expressed suspicion that one purpose of the assaults is to deter American and other military units in the peacekeeping force from moving out into the Chouf Mountains and other areas when Israeli troops withdraw.

Others have suggested that Syria-backed Moslem factions are attempting to embarrass the Reagan administration and generate pressure in the United States for a pullout of the 1,200-man U.S. Marine contingent from Lebanon. These officials say a similar thesis could explain attacks on the French con-

Drug bust erupts in gunfire; four hurt

HOUSTON (AP) — A narcotics raid at a service station erupted in gunfire which left one Harris County detective and three other men wounded, a police official said late Tuesday.

Sheriff's Detective Joe Harris was shot through the upper thigh about 6 p.m. Tuesday as he approached the station with a warrant issued to search for illegal drugs, police Sgt. Joe Seckler said.

Several of the six officers who had accompanied Harris returned fire, injuring three of the four men inside the building, Seckler said.

Harris was in satisfactory condition in Ben Taub Hospital. Two of the men inside the building — Jay Goree and Ebb Nellums — were in critical condition at the same hospital, officials said. Paul Cook was in fair condition at Ben Taub.

Houston police Sgt. T.P. Null said the search warrant was based on a number of purchases of a stimulant county officers had made at the service station in the past several days.

School studies ways to convert jetliners

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University is looking for ways in times of war to quickly convert civilian airliners so they can be used for military purposes such as evacuating wounded soldiers from foreign battle zones.

More than 200 passenger jetliners — mostly jumbo jets — and another 100 commercial cargo planes are under contract to the Air Force for such emergency use.

And the Air Force has asked the Texas A&M Center for Strategic Technology to conduct the first extensive study of how the planes would be converted, center director Richard Thomas said in a release Tuesday.

Many of the jets would need to be easily refitted to haul light cargo flying into the battle zones and then converted to remove walking wounded and litter cases for return to the United States, said project coordinator Dr. Dan Bragg, assistant director of the center.

C-141 and giant C-5 military cargo planes would continue to supply the bulk of tanks, trucks, artillery, ammunition and troops needed in a combat zone, said Bragg.

In the past military cargo planes performed much of the medical evacuation. But Bragg said today jetliners are more logical choices because they have seats, oxygen, a galley and even temperature control.

Several design modifications such as strengthening floors and installing standard electrical outlets could be done now when jetliners and cargo planes are taken out of service for routine maintenance, said Bragg.

A final report will be filed in late September with the Air Force, which awarded the Center for Strategic Technology a $46,751 contract to develop workable designs.

Houston employees notified of layoffs

HOUSTON (AP) — The city of Houston has notified 121 employees, almost half of them from the Parks and Recreation Department, that their jobs are being eliminated Sept. 23.

Mayor Kathy Whitmire said Tuesday she believes most of those who lose their jobs can be placed in other city departments which have openings.

Mrs. Whitmire originally predicted her proposed 1984 budget would require 400 layoffs, but revised the figure to 200 last week. She credited a high attrition rate since her budget proposal was announced with cutting the number of layoffs needed.

Murder charge against teacher dropped

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A murder charge has been dismissed for lack of evidence against a Memphis State University teacher who was accused of the stabbing death of a woman killed on the Padre Island National Seashore.

U.S. District Judge Hayden W. Head granted a defense motion to dismiss the charge against Timothy John Albers, 26, of Memphis, Tenn.

Albers was indicted in February for the murder of Gundi Martha Rassin, a German native, who was stabbed to death Aug. 10, 1982, while vacationing with Albers on Padre Island. Both Albers and Miss Rassin were language teachers at Memphis State.

Albers, who was released on $100,000 bond, continued to teach at the university.

Head signed the dismissal order on Aug. 25.

Aquino taken to martyr's grave

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A flatbed truck draped in black today carried the body of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino past grieving crowds to his grave after speakers at a funeral Mass praised his fight against "tyranny and oppression."

The funeral procession, which inched past through packed up to eight feet deep along the streets, climaxed 10 days of national mourning joined by well over a million Filipinos since Aquino, the chief political rival of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, was assassinated at Manila International Airport on Aug. 21.

In a Mass at the Santo

Domingo church in suburban Quezon City, Cardinal Jaime L. Sin eulogized Aquino as one who "personified the Filipino courage in the face of oppression."

Sin, the Roman Catholic primate of the Philippines, called on the "national leadership" to "resolutely seek to liberate us from the tyranny and oppression that could fan the flames of violence and division."

Among the 3,000 mourners jammed into the church were members of the diplomatic corps, including U.S. Ambassador Michael A. Armacost, and numerous Aquino political allies — some of whom have charged that the government had a hand in the murder.

Neither the president nor First Lady Imelda Marcos were present and it was not clear if anyone represented Malacanang Palace, the Philippine White House. Spokesmen reached by telephone said they could not answer the question.

Marcos has denied any government complicity in the Aquino slaying, and said in a television appearance Tuesday that it would be "idiotic" for a Filipino politician to engineer such an act. He said Aquino's death could benefit only communist subversive elements in the Philippines.

Authorities have identified the man they say gunned down Aquino as Rolando Galman y Dawang, 33, a sometime "gun-for-hire" with a long criminal record. Galman was killed instantly by police bullets after shooting Aquino and his identity was disclosed officially only after Manila newspapers revealed it.

Police were on "red alert" for the day, and extra security forces were posted around the palace and also at Manila-area power installations to guard against any outbreaks of violence or sabotage.

Security police were in evidence in the streets but were not visibly armed except with nightsticks.

Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos was quoted in a TV report as saying the Aquino family had asked that police remain "inconspicuous" during the funeral and burial.

The family earlier joined church and government leaders in urging non-violence during the mourning period and there have been no serious disruptions or clashes with police.

The 10-wheel truck bearing Aquino's body in a casket covered by the Philippine flag left the church under overcast skies for the 19-mile route to a martyr's burial at Paranaque, on the city's southern outskirts.

Hundreds of thousands of Filipinos, including many who had come to the city for the event, filled the streets to watch the cortege move slowly through Manila's old barrios, clusters of tin-roofed houses, with barefoot children in the streets. Cars and vans carrying Aquino's family and supporters followed the casket.

The crowds were the largest since Pope John Paul II visited this country, which is 85 percent Roman Catholic, in 1981.

"It seems the whole Philippines is here. The Pope passed here but the crowd wasn't like this," said Lidagaya Cruz, 53, a street vendor in Quiapo, where the procession crossed the river.

Along the way, people shouted Aquino's nickname, "Ninoy, Ninoy," and some raised clenched fists in salute. Placards carried slogans like "Ninoy, you are not alone," a theme repeated throughout the 10 days of public emotion.

At one point, a bus carrying policemen was booed by a crowd as it passed.

Reasons

tingent. However, there are many U.S. officials who believe that the rash of attacks with mortars and small-arms fire may just be another phase in the long-running violence among feuding Christian and Moslem militias.

In short, these officials say these attacks are another indication of the chaos prevailing in Lebanon.

Although it is U.S. policy to prepare the Lebanese army as quickly as possible to assume security responsibility, few who describe themselves as realists believe that the Lebanese army will be equal to that task anytime soon.

The attacks that killed two U.S. Marines and wounded 14 others already have brought some demands from members of Congress for withdrawal of the Marines from Lebanon.

The mission of the Marines has always been a rather vague one, described generally as a presence to demonstrate support for the shaky government of President Amin Gemayel. But the extent of such support has never been clearly defined — although administration officials have said repeatedly they have no intention of allowing the Marines to form an armed buffer between the Lebanese army and rebellious militias.

U.S. military leaders and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger never have been comfortable with the commitment of the Marines as peacekeepers, fearing that American blood would be shed. Weinberger alluded to this concern on Monday when he said "the fighting that we've all worried about is starting to break out and we want to quell it as quickly as possible."

Despite their misgivings, however, military and civilian officials in the Defense Department have, in effect, saluted and carried out President Reagan's orders, which placed the Marines in harm's way.

Reagan has decided to keep the U.S. contingent at its present size and to limit its mission to its present dimensions.

views of South Pacific islands and two active volcanoes he thought were near New Guinea. Dr. William Thornton, the house physician, busied himself with medical experiments.

Bluford and mission specialist Dale Gardner spent several hours remotely checking out INSAT for the launching, which was the primary goal of the mission.

The Indian government is paying the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $8.36 million for the launch. The satellite combines telephone, television transmissions and weather observations in one package. It can handle more than 8,000 circuits, providing long-distance telephone to remote areas of the million-square-mile nation.

A direct broadcast feature will enable it to beam television to receivers in 100,000 rural communities. Social and agricultural education programs are among those planned for broadcast.

INSAT is equipped to transmit weather photos every half hour, and these are expected to benefit many segments of India's economy, including agriculture and aviation. Flood control, irrigation planning and disaster warnings are important spinoffs anticipated.

The requirement to deploy INSAT in a precise spot over the equator dictated the first night launch in the shuttle program and the unusual hours that have the astronauts working days starting in late evening. On Earth, that's known as the "lobster shift."

The complex celestial geometry involved also sets up the shuttle's first night landing, early next Monday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Recovery

because too much growth too fast could drive up interest rates and inflation, possibly bringing the recovery to an abrupt halt.

Seven of the 11 available indicators rose in July, with the biggest contribution coming from an increase in outstanding credit. Consumer willingness to take on more debt is often interpreted as a sign of confidence in the economy.

Also boosting the index were increases for the average workweek, manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods and materials, building permits, stock prices and the money supply and a decline in initial weekly claims for state unemployment benefits.

One was unchanged, the speed at which vendors were delivering goods.

Index components showing worsened performance in July were formation of new businesses, contracts and orders for plant and equipment and sensitive materials prices.

The overall index rose in July to 197.7 percent of the 1967 base.

The accompanying Index of Coincident Indicators, designed to measure current conditions rather than forecast those of the future, rose 1.1 percent to 141 percent of its base during July.

Round-up chairmen picked

Area chairmen have been appointed for the Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children, according to Jim Alexander, general chairman. The Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children benefits the West Texas Rehabilitation Center with campuses in Abilene and San Angelo.

Bud Thurber has been appointed chairman for Hereford.

"Livestock donated by ranchmen are collected at a designated point in each community and transported free to the auction site," Alexander explained. "The area chairman's role is to make a personal pledge, then ask friends and neighbors to join them in the annual CRCC drive." Sales of livestock are converted to dollars and the amount provides care for about 11,000 handicapped persons throughout the Southwest at Rehab campuses.

Scheduled sales include the Cattle Sale at Abilene Auction, Sept. 26; Abilene Horse Sale, Oct. 1; Junction Sheep and Goat sale, Oct. 3; Coleman sale, Oct. 5; and Brownwood Sale, Nov. 2.

Audrey Stokes of San Angelo is CRCC co-chairman for the Southwest region. Midwest Feedyards in San Angelo serves as the regional collection point. CRCC is now 23 years old. He came to Smith with the suggestion that 28 top steers be cut from his herd and sold to help defray operational expenses of WTRC.

Interest rate rise makes housing fall

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes two to see-saw, and some in the housing industry are fed up with their partner on the plank. Once again it is being proved all over again: when interest rates rise, housing falls, often with a bump.

Not just one aspect of the industry either, but usually the whole works — permits, starts, resales and sometimes prices. And not just for single-family homes; multifamily projects are hurt as much or more.

Many housing executives are convinced it is an unfair game, claiming the nation's elected officials are giving interest rates a push, intentionally or not, because they've done so little to cut the federal budget deficit.

"It's imperative that Congress and the Reagan administration act immediately to resolve the federal deficit crisis so that interest rates can decline again," says Jack Carlson of the National Association of Realtors.

Carlson, the Realtors' chief economist and executive vice president, and one of the most consistently outspoken critics of the deficit, wants it known that in his opinion it is the elected officials against the people.

White man sues TSU over admission bias

HOUSTON (AP) — A 38-year-old white man is going to court against predominantly black Texas Southern University, alleging its law school because of his race, sex and age.

"It's very disheartening," said Joseph W. Bailey Jr. after his lawsuit was filed Tuesday in state district court.

The suit, scheduled for hearing in late September, many criteria in deciding admissions as long as no numerical quota is set for minorities.

The suit asks that TSU be ordered to admit Bailey and pay damages totaling at least $75,700.

Bailey, a public relations specialist and former sales manager for radio stations, said he researched previous lawsuits, including what has become known as the Bakke case before he pursued his own case.

Allan Bakke, 48, won admission to a University of California medical school in 1978 by court order after the U.S. Supreme Court agreed the medical school's racial quota system violated Bakke's constitutional rights. The court ruled, however, race could be used as one of many criteria in deciding admissions as long as no numerical quota is set for minorities.

James Douglas, dean of TSU's Thurgood Marshall School of Law, said Bailey had tried unsuccessfully to gain admission to other law schools. He declined further comment.

Bailey, who graduated in December with a C-plus average from the University of Houston, has 21 hours of law courses at schools approved by the American Bar Association. He says in his lawsuit he is qualified for admission to TSU this fall.

J. Charles Whitfield, Bailey's attorney, said he is "not interested in Balkanizing this country" with the Bailey lawsuit. He said his client is being denied admission in favor, in some cases, of foreign students.

Shower given Saturday

The Allen Canaler home at 102 N. Texas was the setting for a baby shower honoring Mrs. Jerry Morgan on Saturday.

The morning tea table was dressed with sterling and crystal appointments over an ecru lace tablecloth. The centerpiece wreath was of baby's breath accented with pink, blue, and yellow gingham bows encircled a crystal hurricane lamp.

Some 60 guests enjoyed miniature cinnamon rolls, seasonal fruits, and sausage balls with coffee and punch.

Among the hostesses were Mmes. Tom Burdett, Dan Dudley, Mickey Wilson, N.D. Kelso, Jim Haile, Dwayne Frye, Canaler, Harley Daniel, Mike Veazey, Ray Leasure, Gerald Parker, Wayne Thomas, Terry Beavers, Fred Fox, and Jim Ward.

A pessimist mourns that he's over the hill. The optimist looks forward to being able to coast the rest of the way.

Honored With Shower

Eieise McDowell, center, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C.E. Leasure Jr. She is the bride-elect of Wayne Boren. Pictured with Miss McDowell are the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Fred Boren, at left; and the honoree's mother, Mrs. W.C. Russell.

Miss McDowell is feted with shower

Eieise McDowell, bride-elect of Wayne Boren, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C.E. Leasure Jr., 222 Northwest Dr.

Miss McDowell and Boren plan to be married Sept. 24 in the First Presbyterian Church.

Receiving guests with the honoree were her mother, Mrs. W.C. Russell; the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Fred Boren of Amarillo; and Mrs. Leasure.

Linda Yosten secured the signatures of the guests in the bride's book. The registry table was highlighted with a vase of blue silk flowers.

The serving table was covered with a white organza overlay with white embroidered applique. It was centered with an arrangement of white pom poms accented with royal blue. Ivory candles in silver holders were paired by the centerpiece.

Kyla McDowell of Ft. Worth, sister-in-law of the honoree, and Donna Meives served cookies, fresh fruit, finger sandwiches, and punch from silver appointments. The table appointments and accents carried out the bride's chosen colors of royal blue and silver.

Special guests were the honoree's grandmothers, Mrs. Ray Godwin of Amarillo and Mrs. Ansel McDowell.

Hostesses assisting Mrs. Leasure included Kathy Allison, Elaine Clarke, Sue

New Arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Bill McCoy of Hereford are the parents of a son, Clinton Lee, born Aug. 27 at Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon. He weighed 8 pounds, 2 ounces.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Newland of San Antonio and Mr. and Mrs. Don McCoy of Stephenville.

The first British settlement in Australia, in 1788, was a penal colony at Port Jackson, now Sydney.

Tour reservations due on Friday

Those who wish to go on the Hereford Senior Citizens Golden Aspens bus tour are reminded that the deadline for turning in reservations and money is Friday.

The tour bus will depart from Amarillo on Tuesday, Oct. 4, and travel to Taos, N.M., via Clayton, Raton, Cimarron Canyon and Eagle Nest. On Oct. 5, after a morning of shopping and browsing in Taos, the bus will leave for Chama via the Rio Grande Gorge bridge.

On Oct. 6, the group will board the Narrow Gauge Scenic Railroad for a day-long ride through the mountains, returning to Chama for the night.

The tour will cross Wolf Creek pass to Santa Fe on Oct. 7, and after a morning of shopping and sightseeing in Santa Fe, the bus will depart for Hereford on Saturday, Oct. 8.

To turn in reservations or for more information, contact Margie Daniels at the Senior Citizens Center, 364-5681, or at home 364-0428.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF HEREFORD

Louie Kelcher waived

NFL clubs rosters down to 49

By The Associated Press
The waiver wire got a good reading as National Football League teams began preparations for the season openers.

The Minnesota Vikings placed five players on the injured reserve list, cut seven others and acquired two more to bring the team's regular-season roster to the required 49-player limit.

The injured players were defensive tackle Ray Yakavonis, rookie linebacker Mark Stewart, tight end Joe Senser, kicker Rick Danmeier and wide receiver Sam McCullum. The Vikings claimed rookie tight end Mike Mularkey on waivers from the San Francisco 49ers and signed kicker Benny Ricardo, cut by the Raiders last week, to replace rookie Steve Schonert, who was among the final cuts.

The Chicago Bears placed wide receiver Rickey Watts, running back Calvin Thomas and linebacker Al Chesley on injured reserve. The team waited until Tuesday to announce its nine cuts to the team and the public, but notified the league by the Monday night deadline.

Robin Earl, one of seven veterans cut, was upset at Head Coach Mike Ditka's method of announcing them. "I told Mike this morning that there's a lot of grumbling," said Earl, who was cut along with offensive tackle Dennis Lick, safety Lenny Walterscheid, tight end Brooks Williams, running back Willie McClendon, guard Perry Hartnett, tackle Andy Frederick, linebacker Dan Kimble, quarterback Tim Clifford and defensive end Henry Waechter.

"Maybe I trusted Mike too much," Earl said. "He gave me his word that he would release me two or three weeks before the last cut so I could try and catch on elsewhere. But I think now he kept me around for competition at the position."

By releasing all these veterans, we're taking the club in a different direction," Ditka said. "We might have made some mistakes... but I feel these are the people who are going to play for me."

Terry Bradshaw is not going to play for Coach Chuck Noll for at least four weeks. The Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback, who has an injured elbow, was formally placed on injured reserve, along with offensive tackle Tunch Ilkin.

Pittsburgh also waived eight players, including punter John Goodson; tight end Craig Dunaway, its eighth-round draft choice this year; and tackle Ken Dallafior.

The New York Jets, whose outstanding defensive line hasn't been completely healthy since 1981, placed tackle Abdul Salaam on the injured reserve list with an injured shoulder.

The Jets, who will be missing Johnny "Lam" Jones in their opener Sunday at San Diego, picked up wide receiver Preston Brown on waivers from the Baltimore Colts.

The Chargers received a boost Tuesday when Head Coach Don Coryell announced that Dan Fouts, who had missed the last two exhibition games with an injured foot, would start at quarterback against the Jets.

San Diego late Tuesday also recalled three-time All-Pro defensive tackle Louie Kelcher — just one day after waiving him — and placed Doug Wilkerson on the injured reserve list with a broken arm.

Kelcher, one of the team's most popular players since he came to San Diego in 1975, was waived Monday along with 11 players. The 315-pounder will be on the active squad and he is expected to be at practice today.

Washington claimed defensive back Brian Carpenter, cut Monday by the New York Giants, and placed lineman Donald Laster on injured reserve, while San Francisco placed safety Carlton Williamson on injured reserve.

Dallas, which cut rookie tight end Cleo Simmons on Monday, recalled him Tuesday. The Cowboys also placed veteran running back James Jones on injured reserve. Two other Cowboys cut were claimed by other teams — fullback George Peoples by New England and defensive back Monty Hunter by St. Louis. The Cardinals also waived safety Don Bessillieu.

The Denver Broncos announced the waiving of defensive backs J.T. Thomas and Wade Manning and wide receiver Orlando McDaniel and the placing on injured reserve of guard Tom Glassic, linebacker Weedy Harris and running back Gerald Willhite.

Detroit said it signed reserve running back Rick Kane to a multi-year contract Tuesday, leaving punter Tom Skladany as the club's only holdout. Mike Black, a rookie, will be the Lions' punter in the season opener at Tampa Bay.

Kansas City traded tight end Al Dixon, a seven-year pro, to Philadelphia for an undisclosed draft choice. Dixon, the Chiefs' starting end the past two seasons, missed almost the entire training camp because of a holdout.

The Los Angeles Rams, who picked up quarterback Mark Reed from the Giants on waivers Monday, traded him Tuesday to Baltimore and obtained linebacker Mark Jerue from the Colts. Jerue had been a fifth-round draft choice of the Jets in 1982. To make room for him, the Rams waived linebacker Eric Williams.

Cincinnati put running back Archie Griffin on the injured reserve list Tuesday and picked up defensive end Bill Acker on waivers from Kansas City. Griffin pulled a groin muscle during the Bengals' exhibition game Saturday night against Detroit.

Clerc upset, Austin withdraws

McEnroe displays bad temper

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-seeded John McEnroe moved perilously close to a possible suspension on the opening day of the United States Open Tennis Championships, while two other top players bowed out of the tournament, one on the court and the other before lifting a racket.

McEnroe had to struggle through five tough sets Tuesday and survive a penalty point and a dispute with a heckling spectator before beating Trey Waltke 6-3, 5-7, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Afterwards, he was fined $1,850 for his behavior, leaving him just $200 away from the $7,500 limit for the last 12 months. If he hits that figure, he would draw a three-week post-open suspension from Volvo Grand Prix and Davis Cup, although he could appeal.

Defending champion Jimmy Connors, seeded No. 3, had a quieter time at night, subduing Ramesh Krishnan of India 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Eighth-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc was the tournament's first upset victim, beaten in straight sets by Tim Wilkison, 6-2, 6-3, 7-6.

No. 4 Tracy Austin, who won the Open two years ago, withdrew from the tournament because of nagging injuries which she said have allowed her to play at only 60-70 percent of her capacity. She had been scheduled to play Yvonne Vermaak today.

The only other seeded loser on the first day of the tournament was No. 15 Virginia Ruzici, who bowed to Catherine Tanvier 6-3, 6-3. Vitas Gerulaitis, seeded No. 15, was nearly a casualty. He dropped the first two sets to Marcos Hocevar, but recovered and survived the first round 3-6, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.

McEnroe was in a similar fix against Waltke. After winning the first set 6-3, Super-Mac saw a 4-1 second set lead melt away. He lost that set 5-7 and the next one 4-6 before coming back for the victory.

"I was playing my type of match, keeping him off guard," McEnroe said. "But I couldn't move him around. I just missed a lot of unforced shots and you can't win tournaments that way."

Before long, Waltke had the lead and McEnroe was jawing with a troublesome fan, finally tossing some sawdust at him.

"The guy was egging me on and I don't like people when they egg me on," said McEnroe, whose temper has often surfaced in other tournaments. "They clap when I double fault and miss shots. It's the same old story. I just get to a point where I snapped. It really bothered me. I totally lost my concentration."

Waltke, who had beaten McEnroe in two of their previous three meetings, lost steam in the fourth set. "I thought it was two out of three," he joked. "I felt everything caving in, physically, and John got a little psyched up."

Part of the psych may have been caused by a point penalty assessed by umpire Stu Saphire when McEnroe exchanged words with him. The penalty came as Mac was winning 12 of the last 13 games in the final two sets to clinch the match.

"I'd rather have had an easier match," McEnroe said. "I'd rather have played better. I wouldn't win the tournament if I played like that."

While McEnroe was having trouble with the fans, Connors, seeking a fifth Open crown, was enjoying them.

"The people here come out and really get involved in the matches," he said. "They want to see two guys killing each other. They're used to the hockey and football and baseball and bigtime tennis. I enjoy giving it to them."

Austin said she would not play any more tournaments until November, giving her body time to recover from a cracked rib and an assortment of other aches and pains.

"Many, many things are hurting and I feel that playing one match would put me in jeopardy of a major injury again," she said. "I've got to give it time, take time off and get strong. I want to do it right. I want my career to be fulfilling."

Junior high grid seasons to start

The Hereford Whiteface Junior Varsity will kick off the 1983 grid campaign at home Thursday in matches against Pampa and Amarillo High.

The White JV will have the honor of playing the season's first game, hosting the AHS sophomores in a 4 p.m. contest at Whiteface Field.

The Maroon JV will close out the evening hosting the Pampa JV in a game set for 7 p.m. Hereford head coach Jerry Taylor said that the coaching staff is using two junior varsity teams this season in order to allow some junior class players to play more than they might otherwise have an opportunity to do so if Hereford had a sophomore and junior varsity setup.

Taylor said that several other schools in the district will be using the same format. Rosters for the two JV teams have yet to be compiled, Taylor said, adding that that process should be completed Wednesday afternoon.

Dryland or irrigation. Drought or disease stress. Hawk has proven its yield superiority to varieties like Newton, TAM 106, Vona, TAM W101, Larned, Triumph, Baca and Arkan.

Hawk defends its big yields, too, with a unique combination of disease protection against soil borne mosaic virus, wheat streak and the prevalent races of stem rust. Excellent standability. Good seedfall under stress. Good winter-hardiness, too. It all helps make Hawk an ideal variety to plant all across the Great Plains.

This top-yielding, semi-dwarf variety has poured out top yields in university tests all across Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska. It has consistently outyielded popular varieties such as Newton, Vona, TAM W101, Sage, Larned and Arkan.

Wings is an early maturing variety with strong straw strength and exceptional lodging resistance. Good resistance to stem rust, as well as tolerance to Hessian Fly and wheat streak mosaic. A top variety for irrigation and most dryland conditions.

Outstanding yield potential and exceptional winterhardiness combined with excellent protection from soil borne mosaic virus. That's Rocky. It has consistently outyielded Centurk all across the Great Plains.

Rocky has been one of the highest yielding wheats in Kansas and Nebraska trials for four years running. And in Oklahoma and Texas, Rocky's yields have out-ranked TAM 101 and Triumph 64 by good margins. An excellent variety that's well adapted to a wide range of growing conditions.

Certified Hawk, Wings and Rocky are available in bags or bulk, exclusively from your nearest Agripro seedsman. Or write: Agripro Wheat, P.O. Box 2956, Mission, KS 66201.

Rookie continues to frustrate Cincinnati batters

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer

Rookie right-hander Jose DeLeon of the Pittsburgh Pirates may someday pitch a no-hitter. And at this rate, it might be against the Cincinnati Reds.

DeLeon again ripped through the Reds, holding them hitless for 5 1-3 innings, as Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 5-3 Tuesday night.

On Aug. 20, in his first appearance against the Reds, DeLeon went 6 2-3 hitless innings and finished with a two-hitter while striking out 13.

This time, he allowed two hits in his six innings, fanning seven while walking one.

"That's the second game I've faced him, but I still couldn't hit him," said Cincinnati's Gary Redus. "He's got good stuff."

Before Tuesday's game, DeLeon had made eight major-league starts and on three occasions had taken a no-hitter into the seventh inning.

"If it's going to come, it's going to come," DeLeon, 6-2, said of a possible no-hitter. "I'm just going to try to throw my stuff, get ahead of the hitters, and go six or seven innings. That's all I want right now."

In other National League games, New York split a twin-night doubleheader with Los Angeles by winning the opener 3-2 before losing 2-1, Philadelphia and San Diego split a twin-nighter with Philadelphia winning 6-0 and then falling 7-6, San Francisco trounced Montreal 13-2, Chicago beat Atlanta 9-6 and Houston downed St. Louis 3-1.

DeLeon went six innings before leaving in favor of a pinch hitter.

"The humidity was too much for me," he said. "I think they did the right thing by taking me out. The humidity was getting to me quick, and our bullpen has been doing a good job lately."

Relievers Ceciliano Guante, Rod Scurry and Kent Tekulve

scattered four hits over the last three innings. Tekulve got the final two outs for his 17th save.

Dave Parker belted a solo home run and added three singles to provide the Pittsburgh offense.

In the fourth, Parker singled off rookie Jeff Russell, 2-1, and Jason Thompson and Doug Fobel followed with RBI doubles. Parker's ninth homer made it 3-0 in the fifth. Tony Pena singled home another Pittsburgh run in the eighth and Parker delivered an RBI single in the ninth.

Parker's four hits raised his average to .275; he's batting .314 since the All-Star break.

Mets 3-1, Dodgers 2-2

Pedro Guerrero doubled home one run and Greg Brock added an RBI single as Los Angeles made two first-inning runs stand up in the nightcap.

Pat Zachry, 5-0, making his first start of the season, got the win against his former team with six innings of six-hit pitching.

In the opener, Ron Hodges delivered a run-scoring single with two outs in the eighth inning to lead host New York.

Jesse Orosco, 12-5, pitched two scoreless innings to nail down the victory. In his last 17 appearances, covering 31 2-3 innings, Orosco has allowed only one run while going 8-0 with six saves.

His victory set a Mets record for wins by a relief pitcher, previously held by Tug McGraw.

Phillies 6-5, Padres 8-7
Rookie Kevin Gross tossed his first major-league shutout and first complete game to pace Philadelphia in the first game.

Gross yielded six hits as the Padres' Bobby Brown went 0-for-3, breaking his 21-game hitting streak.

Visiting San Diego rallied in the nightcap to spoil the 39th birthday of McGraw, 3-1, who started for the Phillies after 184 consecutive relief outings, dating back to 1979. Sixto Lezcano belted a two-run homer for San Diego in the second game.

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt homered twice in the losing effort and now leads the NL with 32 home runs.

Giants 13, Expos 2

Dave Bergman belted two home runs, doubling his season's output, and drove in five runs to end Montreal's four-game winning streak.

Jack Clark added a two-run homer for the Giants and Tom O'Malley drove in three more runs.

Mark Davis, 3-3, held host Montreal to three hits over six innings.

Ray Burris, 4-6, got tagged with the loss.

Cubs 9, Braves 6
In Atlanta, Carmelo Martinez, Ron Cey and Mel Hall drilled home runs to highlight Chicago's 14-hit attack.

Martinez cracked a three-run homer in the second inning and drove in another run with a groundout to pin the loss on Craig McMurtry, 12-9.

Cey knocked in three runs, two with his 19th home run of the season.

Chuck Rainey, 14-10, got the win and Lee Smith, the fourth Chicago pitcher, got the final four outs for his 22nd save.

Astros 3, Cardinals 1

Vern Ruhle retired the first 13 St. Louis batters and gave up just three hits in his 8 1-3 innings.

Ruhle, 8-3, won his seventh straight game and helped himself by driving in a run with a suicide squeeze bunt.

He took a one-hitter into the ninth, but left after allowing a one-out homer to George Hendrick, his 15th.

Bill Dawley got the final two outs for his 14th save.

Hitting .625 against them

Lowenstein burning up Royals

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

John Lowenstein has been a Royal pain to the Kansas City ballclub this season.

While batting a modest .279 against the American League as a whole, the Baltimore outfielder has burned the Royals with 15 hits in 24 at-bats for a red-hot .625 average.

Four of those hits came Tuesday night, when he helped the surging Orioles crush Kansas City 12-4.

"I just try to hit the ball out every time," said the free-swinging Lowenstein, who finished with a triple, two doubles, a single and a walk, driving in a run and scoring twice.

"I think Earl (Weaver, former Baltimore manager) probably impressed that on me more than anybody," he said. "It probably made me a better hitter in his eyes."

The victory was the seventh straight and 14th in 17 games for the American League East leaders.

In other AL games, Boston beat Toronto 5-4, Detroit edged Minnesota 4-3, Chicago blanked Texas 5-0, Milwaukee nipped Seattle 3-2, California outscored Cleveland 10-6 and New York tripped Oakland 8-5.

Lowenstein had a chance for the cycle his last time up in the ninth, but had to settle for a line-drive double.

"That's when I was trying (to hit a homer) for sure," said Lowenstein. "But the kid (reliever Mike Armstrong) moves the ball around well, and I knew it was going to be difficult to get the ball in the air."

Ken Singleton knocked in four runs and Cal Ripken Jr. added three of Baltimore's 15 hits. The Orioles, who had downed Kansas City 9-2 Monday night, banged out 30 hits in two games against the Royals and are hitting .365 in their last five contests.

"It didn't make any difference what we did, they wore us out," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "They swung the bats good. I can't explain what happened, it just happened."

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 4

In Toronto, Jim Rice's one-out single in the 12th inning scored Jerry Remy from second base and lifted Boston over the Blue Jays. Remy stroked a one-out single and Wade Boggs followed with a base hit before Rice grounded his hit through the left side of the infield to make a winner of John Henry Johnson, 3-2.

Damaso Garcia led off the Toronto 12th with a triple, but Lloyd Moseby popped out and Mark Clear relieved Johnson to get Jesse Barfield and Cliff Johnson on groundouts to end the game and earn his fourth save.

Roy Lee Jackson was tagged with his third loss against eight victories.

Tigers 4, Twins 3
In Detroit, doubles by Tom Brookens and Lou Whitaker keyed a two-run third inning, triggering the Tigers past Minnesota. The doubles tied the game 2-2, then Alan Trammell singled Whitaker home to put the Tigers ahead for good at 3-2.

21st homer in the sixth inning off Minnesota starter Ken Schrom, 12-4, for the Tigers' eventual winning run.

Petry, who was in and out of trouble all night, allowed eight hits while striking out three and walking three.

White Sox 5, Rangers 0

In Chicago, Carlton Fisk hit the first inside-the-park home run of his career and Harold Baines added a two-run shot to power the White Sox over Texas.

Britt Burns, 8-8, allowed four hits through six innings. Dick Tidrow pitched the final three innings to earn his seventh save and increase the White Sox's AL Western Division lead to 9 1/2 games.

Dave Stewart, 1-1, took the loss as the slumping Rangers were beaten for the eighth time in their last nine games.

Brewers 3, Mariners 2

In Seattle, Rick Manning's RBI triple in the seventh broke a 1-1 tie and rookie Tom Candiotti won his third straight game as Milwaukee defeated the Mariners.

Candiotti, 3-0, allowed just five hits in 7 2-3 innings, before giving way to Pete Ladd, who earned his 16th save. Since being recalled from Vancouver on August 6, Candiotti has appeared in relief twice, started three times and now has an ERA of 0.62.

Jim Beattie, 8-12, was the losing pitcher.

Angels 16, Indians 6

In Anaheim, Doug DeCinces' three-run double led a 15-hit assault as California downed Cleveland. DeCinces' third-inning double snapped a scoreless tie and came a little before Cleveland starter Rick Sutcliffe was ejected for throwing close to California's batters.

Mike Jeffcoat, 8-3, took over for Sutcliffe, and was immediately touched for three runs in the fourth, two of them scoring on singles by Brian Downing and Rod Carew.

Yankees 8, A's 5

In Oakland, Oscar Gamble's two-run triple keyed a three-run inning that lifted Ron Guidry and New York over Oakland.

Dave Winfield's one-out single started the Yankee rally in the ninth against reliever Dave Beard, 5-4. Graig Nettles then walked before Gamble lined his game-winning hit into the right field corner.

Ann Landers Caught in the act

DEAR ANN LANDERS: During the last several weeks the phone rings just once and the caller hangs up. Within minutes my husband thinks of something he needs from the store and leaves.

Last week I followed him. Sure enough, he met up with a short, fat, sloppy woman. I listened behind the canned goods while they discussed a time and place for their next meeting. When I turned into the aisle to confront them, my husband ran out the door and the tramp ran after him. They both work for the local school district. He is in maintenance and she is in the lunchroom.

When he got home, all hell broke loose and we have been fighting about this ever since. He cannot give me a decent reason for fooling around. I am seriously considering calling her husband and also the principal of the school. I figure if the wife knows, her husband and boss should know, too. What do you think?—Mad As A Hornet In Suffolk with you because you cost him his job? Do you want the alob's husband to throw her out, which may result in your husband leaving you to go live with her?

My advice is to cool it. Enlist the help of a neutral third person to mediate this war — your clergyman or a professional counselor. I suspect there was trouble between you two long before the frump entered the picture.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When people pay their bills, why do they round it off to the dollar? I own a small business and am bugged by this. When I send a bill for $85.80 I get a check for $85. Or, if the amount is $103.50, I get $100. I have approximately 800 customers and a large percentage do this. Very few send more than they owe.

The payments are computed to include the tax. I have to pay the tax on the amount charged, which means I suffer a loss. Please comment.—Short In N.Y.

DEAR HORNET: Exactly what do you want to accomplish? Do you want an unemployed husband hanging around the house, furious

DEAR SHORT: I can understand a customer negotiating a purchase price, but "rounding off" a bill at pay-up time seems very strange.

Apparently the word has gotten around that you tolerate this nonsense. My advice is send a second bill for the balance — and refuse to settle for less.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please set my mother-in-law straight. Her husband has been dead for nearly 25 years and she still uses his name. I have told her several times this is not proper, but she pays no attention.

Maybe if you tell her in the paper she will listen. Thank you. — Annoyed By Stubborn People (Salem, Ore.)

DEAR ANNOYED: Maybe when you see your letter in the paper you will apologize to your mother-in-law. She is right. When a woman is DIVORCED, she uses her own first name: Mrs. Alice Doe. When her husband dies, she continues to use his name: Mrs. Joe Doe.

Salvation Army aids less fortunate in the community

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of articles about various United Way agencies operating locally and their impact on the community.

What makes the Salvation Army Service Unit committee in Deaf Smith County unique is that none of the committee members and offices on the committees are salaried people.

The Salvation Army Service Unit committees are among the army of Americans who share the concern of the United Way for the less fortunate in their community. All are volunteers who give unstintingly of their time and compassion to provide the services of the Salvation Army.

Committee members of the local Salvation Army are Jack Nunley, chairman; Earlene Cook, secretary; Lola Faye Veazey, treasurer;

Travis McPherson and Eva McKnight.

Help is given immediately when it is needed. There is no red tape. When problems arise and people are in desperate situations, or in need of temporary assistance, they know they can count on the Salvation Army. Helping them instantly, especially in some situations, has a tremendous impact on their lives.

The Salvation Army will work cooperatively with other agencies to meet the human needs of the community.

Services include emergency aid for stranded travelers, aid to prisoners and their families, disaster relief, camping program for underprivileged boys, alcoholic rehabilitation programs, assistance for the needy at Christmas and help for the elderly.

For the past year two of the local Salvation Army committee members, Ms. Cook and Nunley, were responsible for the leadership in distributing the emergency cheese and butter in Deaf Smith County.

Most of the members of the Salvation Army have been serving with this United Way Agency for several years.

Hartley initiated into Past Matrons on Monday

The Past Matrons of the Order of the Eastern Star met for a regular meeting Monday evening in the home of Juanita Hershey, with Lucile Naylor assisting as hostess. Thirteen members were present.

The program consisted of initiating a new member into the organization. Bonnie Hartley, who had completed her year as Worthy Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, was now eligible to become a member of the Past Matrons. Dottie Darden arranged the service used for this occasion.

Virginia Patton was reported ill. The next meeting will be Oct. 31 at 7 p.m. in the home of Dorothy Noland, with Marie Cline assisting.

Watching the neighbors on summer evenings is coming back in style, now that more and more of us have surveillance TV cameras.

"Where Cleanliness is Next To Godliness"

Corn varieties may produce more profits

LUBBOCK - Two corn varieties combined in a specialized farm management technique could bring more profits.

Texas Tech University farm operations director, Dr. Rex P. Kennedy, working with plant breeder, Dr. Dick Crill from Halo Seed Company in Plainview, Texas, planted a white Mexican corn variety to test its growth in Texas.

The corn is used primarily for human consumption - the popular tortilla and other products - in Mexico. It has been grown for the past three years near Mexico City where Mexican farmers hired the Texas plant breeder to develop hybrids, Kennedy said.

"The breeder hoped to produce a corn variety which would do well in Mexico and then decided to try it in our latitude and environment as well. In its natural environment, at 1200 feet above sea level near Mexico City, the variety produces corn stalks about 6 feet tall," Kennedy said.

"We have had the same variety grow about 14 feet tall in Texas with most stalks reaching 12 feet," said Kennedy, who supervises more than 18,000 acres of farm production for Texas Tech.

Kennedy said the growth is caused by both improved seed variety and longer growing days in Texas.

Last summer, on a 20-acre experimental plot of the Mexican corn, the yield was 39 tons of silage per acre in contrast with 20 tons per acre of some yellow hybrid corn grown under similar conditions.

Stalk height and thickness, which increase tonnage, Kennedy said, decrease the quality of the silage, so an alternative planting technique was used this summer to maximize tonnage and maintain quality.

"A balance between the non-digestible stalk, mostly lignin, and the nutritionally rich grain must be found. The white corn used alone had too high a lignin content," Kennedy said.

This summer, on 100 acres of Texas Tech farmland in Lubbock, two varieties were planted side by side in a test of profit and quality control.

"We alternated 24 rows of yellow dent corn with eight rows of the hybrid Mexican white corn," Kennedy said. "The yield was 23 tons per acre, and we feel we have sustained the silage quality."

The stalk provides roughage with limited nutrition, and the grain provides concentrated carbohydrates for energy. For use in finishing feedlot cattle, for example, the silage must have a high grain percentage, Kennedy said.

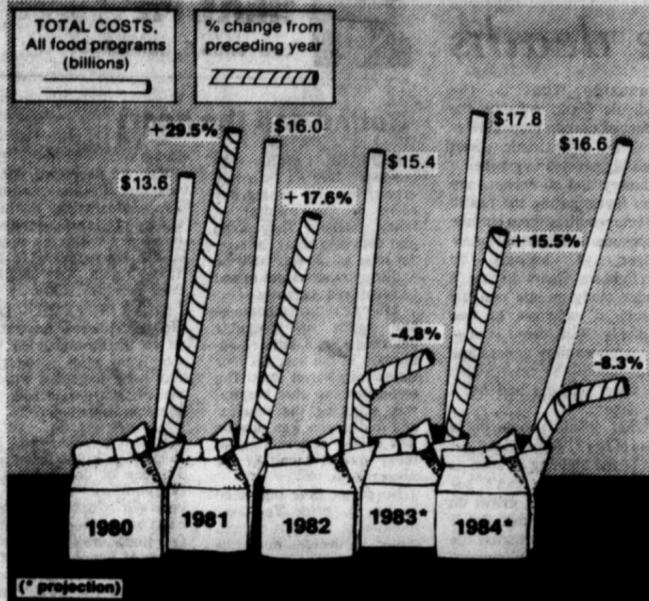

"Corn has traditionally been one of the best grains for finishing cattle," Kennedy said.

The mix of the two varieties should provide excellent tonnage to increase yield per acre and quality for feedlot and dairy silage Kennedy said.

Both varieties have equivalent water needs and Kennedy used furrow irrigation on both types.

FEDERAL FOOD AID FOR THE NEEDY

Next year's cutback brings spending to near-'81 level

(Source: U.S. Department of Agriculture/General Accounting Office)

NEA/Marilyn Post

In 1982, the federal government cut its spending on food stamps and other food-assistance programs - the first such cut since 1969. The food-aid budget will rise again this year, but spending for 1984 will drop almost to the 1981 level.

Conkwright cows on special list

Kansas City, Mo. - A list of 1,689 cows has been afforded special recognition by the American Hereford Association. Cows in this elite group have combined the single most important economic trait of fertility, with the second most important trait of growth of offspring.

Two cows owned by Conkwright & Son, Hereford, are among the outstanding Hereford cows on a special listing of cows within the Hereford breed that have combined the two most important economic traits of fertility and growth of her offspring during her lifetime.

To be a member of this elite group, a cow must meet very high criteria in that she must be four years of age or older, must have had her first calf at 25 months of age or younger, have a calving interval of 370 days or less, and her calves must have weaned at least five percent above the average of her herd.

Only someone-half of one percent of the nation's registered Hereford breeding cows can meet the rigid standards to attain listing. "Because of different management programs, many cows do not have the opportunity to be listed, however those making the listing are efficient, productive cows and are deserving of the special recognition," stated H.H. Dickenson, executive vice-president of the AHA.

Some 1,689 cows from 362 breeders in 31 states made the list.

Killer bees continue trek

WASHINGTON (AP) - "Killer bees" continue their northward trek from South America toward the United States and the Agriculture Department isn't sure what will happen when the worrisome insects cross the border.

Barring the unexpected, the bees will arrive in the southern United States in several more years, according to a new report released Tuesday.

The "bees have now reached Costa Rica, and some scientists predict they will arrive in this country by the end of the decade - possibly sooner," the report said.

"Killer bees" are descendants of 26 swarms led by fierce queens from Africa that escaped from scientists in Brazil in 1957. Since then, the Africanized bees have been edging north at a rate of up to 300 miles a year.

The biggest worry is the potential threat to humans. David Roubik of the Smithsonian Institution's Tropical Research Institute in Panama says the ferocity of the Africanized bee means that "a victim usually can't get far enough away, fast enough, and may be stung by thousands in a matter of minutes."

But Roubik and some other scientists say the "killer bee" nickname is misleading.

"These bees are not wanton killers," Roubik said. The bees' aggressiveness usually is confined to areas near their hives, and individual bees on foraging trips are no more likely to sting than ordinary honey bees.

In the past 20 years, several hundred people and an unknown number of livestock and pets were killed in Brazil in mass attacks by the bees, the report said.

The insects are as much as 30 times faster in reacting to an intruder and up to 10 times more likely to sting than the ordinary domestic honey bee.

One major concern is the effect the Africanized bees would have on the U.S. beekeeping industry.

Dimmitt farm tour Sept. 7

The Soil and Water Conservation District, the County Extension Office, and the Dimmitt Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring a farm tour for area residents on Wednesday, Sept. 7.

The tour bus will be leaving the courthouse at 9:30 AM from the east side of the Courthouse. Participants of the tour will see surge irrigation in use, and drop nozzles on sprinkler systems. They also will see test plots of corn, soybeans and cotton varieties and visit pest management sites.

Lunch will be served at the Bethel Community by people of the community. The lunch is being sponsored by local fertilizer and seed dealers.

The tour will resume for after lunch.

Sponsors of the event want to invite everyone to join the farm tour.

Fighting weeds topic of tour

LUBBOCK - No matter what crop High Plains farmers and ranchers produce, a common and costly enemy is weeds. The latest scientific findings on weapons to fight weeds, including chemicals and equipment, will again be one of the featured stops at the 74th annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) on Tuesday, Sept. 13.

Statistics for 1981 show that weeds were responsible for a loss in Texas of 406,000 bales of cotton alone, said Dr. John Abenathy, TAES associate professor and weed scientist. If cotton was 60 cents a pound, weeds cost Texas cotton farmers more than $1.2 million that season, he noted.

The weed research is one of four featured stops for the field day, which will be held this year at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here. The center is north of Lubbock International Airport on Farm Road 1294, just east of I-27 at the Shallowater exit.

Motorized tours of the center and its research plots will begin at 1 p.m. and conclude at 4 p.m., Dr. Don Rummel, research entomologist at the station and field day chairman, said. A recently completed addition to the center will be dedicated in ceremonies beginning at 10 a.m.

"We will cover specific weed problems of this area, getting very specific on the herbicides, rates of application and the timing of application that look best in our research tests," Abenathy said.

One of the weeds which Abenathy said would receive particular attention during the field day demonstrations will be lakeweed. Recommendations also will be given for pigweed, nutsedge, Texas blueweed, cocklebur, devilsclaw, whiteweed, rough blackfoot, morningglory, flower of the hour, spurred anoda, lanceleaf sage, and prairie sunflower.

Also to be discussed are use of several new herbicides which offer new options for some weeds and certain crops, he noted.

The weed scientist said he also will discuss the economics of weed control. Proper and timely use of herbicides and cultural practices can reduce the number of trips across the field and reduce costs of hand labor, chemicals and fuel, as well as improve the yield potential.

In addition to the weed research, other featured stops on the tour will highlight development of new cotton varieties to improve fiber quality; the latest research on grapes, an increasingly important High Plains crop; and development of drought tolerant cotton to better utilize declining water supplies and reduce irrigation requirements.

Visitors also will be able to tour the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory and the Texas Forest Service greenhouse and facility at the station, as well as view a display of computers and agricultural programs for computers.

The field day is a cooperative presentation of TAES, the High Plains Research Foundation, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Agricultural Research Service, and the Texas Forest Service. It alternates annually between the facilities at Lubbock and at Halfway.

Toxicologist investigates explanation for fire deaths

DALLAS — Most people who succumb to structural fires die without traces of the cause of death.

Many experts believe burning plastics, which release toxic gases, are the culprit. But it doesn't matter what's burning according to one Dallas toxicologist.

Toxicity leading to death from smoke inhalation is due instead to the rate of burning and the heat intensity, says Dr. William Lowry, associate professor of Pathology at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

Slow-burning, smoldering fires of whatever material are often the most dangerous, says Lowry, because the first step in combustion seems to be the most deadly.

Lowry explains it this way: For materials to burn, they must be converted to a gaseous state. The first breakdown of burning material into gas involves the release of tiny organic molecules. Floating free into the surrounding atmosphere, these molecules search for something with which to bind.

Called "free radicals," the high energy molecules may cause suffocation by reacting with the substance covering the inside of the lungs. Or they may react by binding with molecules of oxygen in the lung. The reaction of free radicals with "surfactant" covering the lungs or with the oxygen itself would reduce oxygen uptake into the bloodstream and cause asphyxiation.

"We know that people die in minor fires. On autopsy their lungs are clear and their blood usually shows sub-lethal levels of toxic substances. It's known that people die quickly in these fires. Sometimes victims are found dead with their hands on the doorknob. A couple of seconds could have made the difference."

As materials burn, they produce first the free radicals, then carbon monoxide and, finally, carbon dioxide when combustion is complete. In intense fires where there is much poisonous carbon monoxide, there is searing of the trachea and lungs in victims.

In a series of 100 fires studied by Lowry, a member of the Dallas County medical examiner's team, 90 percent of the fires produced toxic gas amounts that were insufficient to kill. Deadly levels of carbon monoxide were present in 10 percent of the fires, the only exception.

Instruments worn by firefighters to measure poisonous gases produced during the fires showed the gases and their concentrations were approximately the same in burning chemical companies and wood residences alike, providing the intensity of the fire was the same, says Lowry.

As he explains, there is a controversy about the toxicity of burning plastics. There have been no studies to prove that plastics are responsible for more deaths than natural organics.

"Burning urethane foam produces cyanide, and people know that cyanide kills. But just because it's produced doesn't mean it's produced in quantities that can kill," says Lowry. "Everybody talks about how plastics produce toxic gases in structural fires, yet nobody has shown it to be true."

Plastics may be hazardous, but so is everything else that burns, says Lowry. While burning plastics may give off hydrogen chloride, natural materials such as wood and cotton give off such dangerous substances as carbon monoxide, cyanide and aldehydes. When wool carpet or upholstery catches fire, deadly cyanide gas can be produced. No material is hazard-free.

Yet Lowry's investigation is showing that toxic gases are usually not elevated to lethal levels.

Smoke inhalation seems identical to chlorine gas exposure, says Lowry. Chlorine, in the presence of light, breaks down from a molecule consisting of two chlorine atoms to two chlorine radicals. With chlorine poisoning, a radical reacts with oxygen and surfactant on the lining of the lungs, reducing the amount of available oxygen as well as reducing the rates of oxygen uptake into the bloodstream.

The result of inhalation of free radicals in a fire may be synergistic with carbon monoxide. That is, the radicals would enhance the effect of carbon monoxide as well as other toxic gases possibly present in smoke.

Lowry and co-workers are also investigating the health effects resulting from chronic exposure to sub-lethal quantities of smoke by firefighters. Heart disease is under study as one possible result of exposure to free radicals. With these studies researchers may understand more about the relationship between smoking and heart disease.

What should people do in case of fire? "Regardless, get out of the building as soon as possible. If you can't see because of smoke, crawl on the ground to get out. But if you can see, crawling on the ground can impair movement and waste precious time. Carbon monoxide, lighter than air, can be avoided by crawling, but free radicals, which are not lighter than air, cannot be avoided by crawling.

A moist cloth can be very beneficial by capturing the free radicals, stabilizing them, making them much less harmful, thus allowing oxygen to enter the bloodstream."

Coffee and the heart

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband had a cardiac arrest, in the emergency room of the hospital — thank goodness. They saved him with no mental damage. As soon as he was able he had four bypasses put in and he recovered normally.

After he returned home he had spells of irregular heartbeats, bad ones, landing him in the hospital four times with lots of tests. The technician at the hospital was watching the monitor and told us she was sure he was dying. He wore one of those special monitors for several days.

No doctor ever suggested he give up coffee. You don't mention it in your column either. He decided to do this on his own.

He stopped coffee and hasn't had even one spell since. That was five years ago. Do suggest that people do without coffee at least on a trial basis for a few months. It could save some lives. I think it saved one here.

DEAR READER — If you read my column regularly, you would know that I have frequently said that one way to help control or prevent heart irregularities was to stop coffee, tea, colas and all other sources of caffeine. I have also recommended stopping both smoking and drinking alcohol.

You can't really say that quitting coffee is what stopped your husband's heart irregularities. He could have gotten better anyway. But we do know that caffeine stimulates adrenaline production. By stimulating adrenaline production and perhaps through increasing the heart's sensitivity to adrenaline, caffeine can cause heart irregularities. Nicotine has a similar action.

May I point out the adrenaline problem is why caffeine makes anxiety or nervousness worse. Many people who are tense and anxious would be wise to avoid caffeine, also nicotine.

There is no good reason why heart patients cannot drink decaffeinated coffee or decaffeinated tea. But people with digestive complaints may not tolerate these either. To help give you a better appreciation of what beverages can do I am sending you The Health Letter 14-4. Controversial

Joggers, runners invited to register for Congress

The Amarillo Branch of the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness (TSPB) has announced the first of its fall fund raising projects. In conjunction with the Amarillo YMCA Running Club, the TSPB invites all interested joggers and runners to register for the Prevent Blindness Running Congress, set Saturday.

A 1-mile fun run will be held for kids under 12, with a $1 entry fee, and ribbons presented to all finishers. In addition, sanctioned runs of 2 miles and 10-K will be conducted, divided into appropriate groups by age and sex. The fee for the 2-mile run is $4, and for the 10-K run, $5. Every participant in the sanctioned runs will receive a free T-shirt, and fun-runners can purchase a preordered T-shirt for $2.50. All T-shirt wearers will be admitted free through the gate of the Tri-State Fair on opening day, Sept. 3.

Local firms and individuals that have underwritten the Running Congress to make the event possible include: Downtown Lions Club, L.A. Fuller & Sons Construction Inc., Wiley Hicks, Jr., Inc., Jack B. Kelley Co., Inc., Levi Strauss CIT, North State Bank, Plains Bolt, Professional Beauty Products, Inc., and J.V. Vinyard.

Each runner who wants to participate must fill out an official entry form. Entry forms are available from the Prevent Blindness office, 4131 W. 45th., Suite 204, or the YMCA office. Runners should plan to check in at Thompson Park (Highway 287 and N.E. 24th) from 7 to 8 a.m. on Saturday.

All races will start and finish at the park.

TSPB is a non-profit agency made up of local people who volunteer their time to promote sight-saving programs and a generous community that donates funds to prevent the tragedy of unnecessary blindness. TSPB accomplishes this prevention by providing free services to children, seniors and any needy individual.

Such services include: school and preschool vision screenings, glaucoma screenings for early detection, safety campaigns for home, school and industry, public and professional education, and research for new techniques to prevent blindness.

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness is an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, now celebrating its 75th anniversary.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—U. S. Senator John Tower created room at the top last week by announcing he would not seek re-election . . . and the political ruckus he started is not expected to calm down for several weeks.

Politicians with some muscle are checking their chances of taking over as king of the hill. Less strong politicians seeking publicity have taken this opportunity to announce they are not candidates, a publicity gimmick in itself.

As for Tower, the old GOP master is not a bit worried. He held a press conference in the State Capitol last week to announce his decision not to run again, saying he had "peaked." The news immediately set Republicans to wonder what he would do with the $1.5 million he raised recently to use on his campaign. The answer is: under federal law he can not spend the money for personal gain (unlike state election laws).

Though he does have options. Party sources believe he is leaning on contacting contributors and asking if they would like their money returned. He could also distribute it among political action committees and/or individual candidates.

Tower still has given no specific answer to why he is stepping down. Some say he is bored, others say he is tired, and Democrats say he simply read the handwriting on the wall which told him re-election was impossible.

Whatever his reasons, Tower is now viewed by some in his own party as a "take the money and run" suspect. Never one to buckle under pressure, Tower will reply in his own sweet time.

Aftermath Muscles

In the aftermath, two congressmen announced their candidacies and three others are seriously weighing their odds. The two U.S. House members, Republican Ron Paul of Lake Jackson and Democrat Kent Hance of Lubbock, showed no hesitation announcing for the race the same day Tower abdicated.

Paul, a physician, lacks name identification among Texas voters, but is known among party brethren as a member of the GOP conservative faction.

Hance, a Boll Weevil, is also among his party's right wing and lacks wide name identification. Popular in the Panhandle and some parts of West Texas, his chances may depend on whether Republicans cross over or stick to their own primary . . . and whether former Gov. Dolph Briscoe enters the race. Neither Paul nor Hance has a statewide organization.

Briscoe, Briscoe

Briscoe, they say, could finance much of a statewide race out of his own pocket, and while he lacks a visible organization, the man has ties to every nook and cranny in the state. Some sources have said they can't figure out how, but Tower's departure smells like Briscoe tinkered around the scene. Interesting, if true.

For all his influence and ability to be kingmaker, Briscoe has some negatives: Democratic Party faithful have not forgotten that his wife campaigned for Bill Clements, and his recent role in the brucellosis fray has some of his ranching constituency still mad at him. The brucellosis issue can be resolved.

Krueger, Doggett

Hance's entry into the arena is taken as a signal that Briscoe won't run, and that leaves former Ambassador to Mexico Bob Krueger considered the front-runner over liberal challenger State Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin.

Doggett has raised some money, though not as much as his handlers are saying, but he has installed a significant statewide organization.

Krueger's organization has been in place for some six years since his narrow loss to

Tower in '78

Almost as important are the back-up organizations: Doggett is regarded as receiving quiet help from Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's minions, while Krueger can draw on the formidable machine of Land Commissioner Garry Mauro. In fact, many observers in Austin believe that the outcome of the Krueger-Doggett matchup may also decide the winner of the "inevitable" Mauro-Hightower confrontation in a future election year.

Temple, Gramm

Two spoilers who might emerge in the coming weeks are Congressman Phil Gramm and Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple.

Gramm, a Democrat-recently-turned-Republican, for some months has indicated he wanted Tower's job. Gramm is a proven fundraiser, and while he has no statewide group, he is well known across the state.

Temple, a wealthy East Texas figure, could draw from what is regarded now as Krueger's support in that part of the state. His family money could build up the moderate organization he enjoys in Texas.

Hurricane Damage

Last week Gov. Mark White announced reports of damage in six counties from Hurricane Alicia were estimated at $1.2 billion. More than a week later, almost 100,000 households were without electricity and 40,000 without telephone service.

Observers reported Galveston Island resembled a war zone in many areas.

Sesame Street to deal with death

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sesame Street," where the sun always shines, will discuss death for the first time when it explains the loss of the program's venerable grocer, Mr. Hooper, in a broadcast this Thanksgiving Day.

Will Lee, the actor who played the popular Mr. Hooper, died of a heart attack last December, forcing the show's producers to decide how to explain the subject of death to an audience of preschoolers.

Other options were considered, such as saying Mr. Hooper had moved to Florida, "but we felt we ought to deal with it head-on," says Dulcy Singer, the program's executive producer. "If we left it unsaid, kids would notice. Our instincts told us to be honest and straightforward."

After getting input from child psychologists, head writer Norman Stiles prepared a sensitive script

City to hire more crews to clear out debris

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials have decided to award more contracts for clearing Hurricane Alicia's debris because four firms already hired are working at a pace that would require more than three years to finish the job.

Mayor Kathy Whitmire said Tuesday the contracts would be awarded later this week, but did not say how many the city would issue.

Four contractors hired to clean up the estimated 2 million cubic yards of debris which Hurricane Alicia left Aug. 18 had cleared only 7,000 cubic yards after three days of work, officials said.

At that rate, crews could work for more than 1,000 days without completing the task, said Charles Ware, director of the Solid Waste Management Division.

"Obviously, we're going to need more contracts," he said.

Ware, who met with the contractors for four hours Tuesday, said the firms are meeting the terms to which they agreed.

"We can hope they will do more, but we can't make them," he said.

Mrs. Whitmire said one of the seven contracts awarded to James Scott, a laid-off construction worker who had no employees and little equipment of his own, would be revoked because he cleared no trash from the southeast Houston area until 1 p.m. Tuesday.

But she said Scott performed satisfactorily on his six other contracts.

Ware and Mrs. Whitmire said they had never expected the first 10 contracts to be sufficient to clean up all the debris from Alicia. The mayor said city officials are also relying on private efforts and that she is pleased with citizens' response.

Houston Lighting & Power Co. brought to 4,000 the number of customers left without service Tuesday, spokesman Steve Gonzalez said. He said about 2,500 of those live on the west end of Galveston Island, which is not protected by a sea wall and was pounded heavily by the storm.

Spokesman Ken Brasel said Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. crews — bolstered by the return of workers who had been on strike — restored service to 7,000 homes Monday — the latest day for which he had figures — leaving 38,000 customers without service.

He said the company was receiving several thousand new reports each day from customers without service.

Big Bird, who according to Ms. Singer "represents the resident 5-year-old" on the show and "asks the questions a child would ask," is the character who is told that Mr. Hooper is dead.

"We were advised to take the direct approach," says Valeria Lovelace, the show's researcher. "Children don't understand words like 'passing away.'"

Big Bird thinks that Mr. Hooper will return later, but is told about the irreversibility of death. Big Bird's concern then switches to his own needs.

David, played by actor Northern J. Calloway, reassures Big Bird. "I'll make you birdseed milkshakes and we'll all tell you stories . . . and make sure you're OK."

"It won't be the same," says Big Bird.

The Consumer Alert

by Jim Mattox
Attorney General

AUSTIN—Older citizens, many of whom are on fixed incomes, often face special consumer problems. It is critically important that every dollar spent by this group is protected.

Retired persons have a right to get full value for their money and fair treatment in the marketplace. But retired persons can find themselves in a double bind. Their income may not be enough to maintain the same standard of living which they enjoyed while working full time, yet it may be enough to tempt unscrupulous persons into using various means to obtain what they can from that income.

A study by the staff of the Senate Committee on Aging indicated that the elderly are the most frequent victims of consumer fraud in the U.S., but the study also said, "Those who are over 50 tend to complain less than any other group of consumers."

To try to change the situation, the Federal Trade Commission and the American Association of Retired Persons have put together a guide to help older citizens learn their rights in the marketplace. It is entitled "How to Right a Wrong. Complain Effectively and Get Results."

Copies are available free from the American Association of Retired Persons, Box 2400, Long Beach, California 90801.

Older citizens and retired persons are more susceptible to certain fraud situations because they are home during the day. Their mobility may be limited for health, economic or transportation reasons. These same problems create a necessity for older citizens to be able to shop at home through mail order houses, telephone sales or door-to-door sales. It can be a great convenience, but at the same time it poses a risk of being talked into buying something the consumer does not want, cannot afford, or can buy for considerably less by shopping around.

Some tips to avoid being "taken" in these vulnerable situations are:

—Remember that in door-to-door sales for goods or services over $25 or real estate over $100 you have three days to change your mind and cancel the sale without losing any money.

—Remember in telephone sales to ask about all conditions for receiving a supposedly "free" gift. Ask if they are selling goods or services along with giving you this gift.

—Always ask for the name, address and phone number of the seller, be it door-to-door or telephone sales, in order to check with Better Business Bureaus or other agencies before you make a substantial purchase.

—Remember with mail order houses to deal only with a reputable company which has a written refund policy.

—Shop around for medicine and prescription drugs because there are no price controls on pharmacies. Check with your doctor about generic drugs. You may save by buying a generic brand and by checking several pharmacies before you buy. Remember, it is illegal for a pharmacy to substitute a generic brand and charge you the name brand price.

Judge gives opinion in candy man appeal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A dissenting judge says an appeals court should order a review of the death sentence given to a man convicted of killing his 8-year-old son with poisoned Halloween candy.

U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer of Dallas, the dissenting judge on a three-judge 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel, said two potential jurors may have been improperly disqualified in the murder trial of Ronald Clark O'Bryan.

O'Bryan was convicted in the 1974 poisoning of his son, Timothy, who died after eating Halloween candy that had been laced with cyanide.

But Buchmeyer said in his dissent filed Tuesday, four days after the appeals court denied O'Bryan a new trial, said the 5th circuit should consider one of two possible courses.

He said the court should order U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling of Houston to hold a hearing on whether the potential jurors should have been excluded, or it should order a new trial to consider only O'Bryan's punishment.

U.S. district judges Carolyn Randall of Houston and Patrick Higgenbotham of Dallas, in their majority ruling, had said the potential jurors were properly dismissed.

The defense said the potential jurors opposed the death penalty, but that did not make them ineligible. The majority ruling agreed that each had made it unmistakably clear he would not vote the death penalty, no matter what the crime.

Buchmeyer argued that two of them — identified only as Wells and Pfeffer — never absolutely, unequivocally, positively said they would never vote the death penalty.

A hearing would clear up the matter, he said, and if it developed that they were not absolutely opposed to the death penalty, then a new trial on punishment would have to be held.

Under the "Witherspoon" rule, only potential jurors who would never vote the death penalty may be excluded from capital punishment trials.

The Mississippi River system comprises main channels and all tributaries of the Mississippi, Illinois, Missouri and Ohio rivers.

Marvin Loyce Davis, 48, of Hereford was trapped in his pickup for more than an hour last Friday after his truck collided with a tractor-trailer rig about 10 miles northwest of Shallowater. Davis, listed in serious condition at a Lubbock hospital, was freed after rescuers used two "Jaws Of Life," a crane, a forklift, and a front-end loader to remove the wreckage. Fire departments from Shallowater, Anton, and Littlefield helped free Davis. (Lamb County Leader-News Photo).

Doggett schedules news conference for Friday

AUSTIN — With his vow to "give Panhandle residents the kind of responsible and responsive government they need," Senator Lloyd Doggett (D-Austin) will bring his campaign for the United States Senate seat currently held by John Tower to the Panhandle Sept. 2-4.

Doggett will hold a news conference Friday, Sept. 2 at 3:30 p.m. in the Amarillo International Airport's Krister Room. Local supporters will host a breakfast in Doggett's honor on Saturday, Sept. 3 from 7-9 a.m. at Van Dyke's. Senator Doggett is then scheduled to appear with his wife of 15 years, Libby, in the Tri-State Parade. After the parade the Senator will stop by a Labor Day picnic and then appear at the Tri-State Fair.

Doggett, who since John Tower decided against seeking re-election is the candidate with the most money and the most experience as an elected official, is optimistic about his candidacy. He told a statewide press conference recently that "Senator Tower's decision not to run can only advance my campaign. He brought the advantages of incumbency and seniority to this election. I understand the value of seniority, and what it means to be a senator, from my own ten years in the Texas Senate."

"Texas is ready for a new, energetic voice in Washington to fight for our state as I have fought for its people in the Texas Senate," said Doggett. He said he feels Tower's decision to withdraw will have a beneficial effect on the state's two-party system. "Tower's action," said Doggett, "should increase the opportunity for Texans of both political parties to participate in contested primaries to select the nominees for their particular party."

The Doggett campaign organization, which was recently described by a San Antonio daily newspaper as "several laps ahead of other Democratic contenders," is expected to benefit from a contested Republican primary. As a Democratic loyalist," said Doggett, "I never expected to benefit from the crossover of Republican voters into the Democratic primary."

Doggett says he plans to continue campaigning full time through the May primary and up until Election Day in November. "I am pleased," he said, "with the success our campaign has generated in fundraising, in grassroots organizing, and among the constituencies that will constitute a majority in the Democratic primary and afterwards in the general election. As I travel across the state, I find that I am rallying people who have never before been involved in the political process; people with fresh ideas and innovative approaches, and who are eager to join me in a vigorous and viable campaign."

Elected to the Texas Senate in 1973 in his first bid for public office, Senator Doggett now ranks eighth in seniority in the body. Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs, Doggett is famous for his stands on behalf of consumers, education, senior citizens, equal rights, and family farms. Doggett was recently cited for his commitment to family farms by the Texas Farmers Union.

Doggett has twice been named by "Texas Monthly" magazine as one of the "Ten Best Legislators." An Austin native, he lives there with his wife Libby, a specialist in education, and their two daughters, Lisa and Cathy, who attend Austin public schools. The Doggetts attend the First United Methodist Church in Austin.

DPS investigates 24 wrecks here

There were 24 motor vehicle accidents investigated by the Texas Department of Public Safety in June and July, the law enforcement agency recently reported.

No fatalities occurred as a result of the collisions. In the 31 counties of the Texas Panhandle during those two months, there were 449 accidents resulting in 46 deaths.

In June, TDPS investigated 11 collisions, in which a total of three people were injured. Nine of the driving mishaps caused property damage of one sort or another.

July had 13 accidents investigated, five of which caused injury to eight people. Damage to property happened in eight of the wrecks.

The Texas Panhandle saw 208 accidents in June, with 29 people dying, 151 being injured and property being damaged on 111 occasions. July had 241 collisions with 17 people killed, 145 injured and 135 incidents of property damage.

A TDPS press release claimed the department "will use all available personnel to reduce the death toll during the Labor Day Holiday." Last year, 50 people died in Texas motor vehicle accidents during the three-day weekend.

"Our troopers will be aggressive in combating the speeding and DWI problem because these violations continue to be the leading factors in fatal accidents," the press release said. The TDPS "urges all Texas drivers to slow down to the legal speed limit, avoid the use of alcohol if they plan to drive and to use their seat belt for safety."

From Ford, Vance Haig

Commission calls for opinions

By GEORGE GEDDA Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Commission on Central America summoned former President Gerald Ford and former secretaries of state Cyrus R. Vance and Alexander M. Haig today to hear their recommendations on future American policy toward that troubled region.

Based on their past statements, Vance and Haig were expected to give conflicting interpretations on the nature of the turmoil in Central America. Ford's views on the subject are not widely known.

Vance has tended to minimize the importance of outside intervention in El Salvador as a cause for the civil war there, emphasizing instead the long history of repression, injustice and poverty. Until these problems are resolved, he has suggested, there will be little prospect of a peaceful evolution.

as secretary, Haig repeatedly cited Cuban and Nicaraguan intervention in El Salvador as a major source of the conflict there and urged that military action be considered to curb outside arms flows to Salvadoran rebels. His period in office also coincided with a marked deterioration in U.S. relations with Nicaragua.

Whereas Vance cultivated the Sandinista government, Haig changed course on becoming secretary of state, suspending U.S. aid to Nicaragua and criticizing its leadership on a variety of fronts. Haig deplored the leftist regime's "drift toward totalitarianism," its heavy reliance on Cuban support and the substantial buildup of the Nicaraguan armed forces.

Also scheduled to appear today was Thomas Mann, an assistant secretary of state for Latin America under former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

On Thursday, the commission will hear the recommendations of former President Jimmy Carter, former secretaries of state Dean Rusk and William P. Rogers and Panama Canal treaties negotiator Sol Linowitz.

The 12-member commission, headed by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, is to issue a report by next February offering long-range recommendations on American policy toward the region. To ensure a diversity of views, it is composed of liberals and conservatives.

Commission spokesman Herbert Hetu said Tuesday the commission "plans two trips to the Central American area in the coming months but no dates have been set.

One trip will be to the Central American countries themselves, the other to the four non-Central American countries — Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama — which have been attempting to negotiate solutions to the various conflicts in the region, Hetu said.

The commission has invited all former presidents and secretaries of state still living to offer their views. Former President Richard Nixon and former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie will appear at a later date.

Tearful rape victim joins protest against jury verdict

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A tearful rape victim who says her attacker is free after promising to undergo chemical castration told a protest rally that she hopes other victims come forward so new charges can be filed against him.

Joseph Frank Smith, 29, was fined $10,000 and sentenced to 10 years probation by a jury last week after pleading guilty to three counts of burglary with intent to commit rape and promising to undergo drug treatments to kill his sex drive.

Smith admitted that he twice raped the 26-year-old woman. He was caught by her neighbors wearing only a ski mask and socks after trying to break into her apartment a third time, investigators said. About 150 people attended the courthouse rally Tuesday to protest the sentence.

"We've got to get someone else to come forward now. It's the only way that we can win," said the 26-year-old woman.

"It's going to be harder for other victims because of what they have seen here," the sobbing woman said. "All I can do is hope they've got the courage to come forward because he (Smith) will be back out."

Smith also was accused of raping two 14-year-old girls, who also attended the rally. Those cases were dropped due to lack of evidence.

"If they (the jury) had known there were children involved, maybe they might not have made the decision they made," said one of the girls.

"I wanted to get up so bad and say, 'You're guilty — and you know it,'" said the other girl, who had testified during the punishment phase of Smith's trial.

District Attorney Sam Millsap, who had expressed dismay at the sentence, also attended the rally and told the crowd that he would prosecute Smith again if others file charges against him.

"It would be very difficult, but we could prosecute if we could make another case," Millsap said. "But there's nothing I can do until another victim comes forward — we can't make a case out of hope broth."

Little hope for wounded in Chad's civil war

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — To be wounded in Chad's civil war can mean almost certain death.

Only the most primitive medical facilities are available in this desolate, sun-baked country where Libyan-backed rebels are trying to topple the government of President Hisene Habre. Many of the injured die before receiving any kind of treatment.

Chadian soldiers seriously hurt in the battle for the northern outpost of Faya-Largeau were flown to the N'Djamena hospital, a near-derelict group of buildings in the heart of the war-shattered city.

"They lay in the 122-degree heat for up to five days without any kind of first aid before being evacuated," said Lt. Cmdr. Rene Jancovici, a French navy doctor who is the only trained surgeon practicing in the Chad capital. "I received 223 seriously hurt soldiers with all kinds of head, chest and limb injuries.

"But there was not a single abdominal injury among them, because anyone unfortunate enough to be struck in the abdomen in that heat and filth and without medical attention was dead within hours," he said.

The hospital itself is not a model of hygiene. All the toilets are smashed and unusable. Flies and malaria-bearing mosquitos hover over garbage and excrement in the yard.

There are not enough beds for the hundreds of patients and many people, including those headed for the maternity ward, sleep on straw mats in the corridors or in the open.

Many of the military casualties from Faya-Largeau had injuries caused by pellet, fragmentation and phosphorus bombs dropped in the bombing attacks by the Libyan air force, Jancovici said.

"The phosphorus bombs are particularly vicious," he said. "They continue to burn long after the fire is put out, searing into the skin as long as it remains in contact with oxygen."

Mohamed Alifa, 20, was blinded and crippled by such a bomb. Three weeks after being burned, he lies in agony from the effects of the phosphorus.

"We think he will survive," Jancovici said. "Most of these people never had any kind of medical treatment before in their lives, so their systems are not immunized to antibiotics by years of abuse at the hands of modern medicine. Antibiotics work wonders here."

El Salvador: where killing an ant is worse than killing a man

EDITOR'S NOTE — The daily carnage of El Salvador has become almost routine, a rising line on a mortality chart. The following article offers a look behind the statistics, at the lives of two people consumed in the Salvadoran fire.

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Killing an ant is a greater crime than killing a man, Salvadoran dictator Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez said a half-century ago, "because a man who dies is reincarnated."

Today in El Salvador, a lovely land steeped in the blood of its own sons and daughters, this spirit of casual murder lives on.

Each day, on average, probably 20 and possibly many more Salvadorans are murdered for political reasons, real or imagined.

Some are victims of political assassination by the guerrilla left. But human rights advocates say the vast majority are killed by soldiers or police, who often band together in off-duty, plainclothes "death squads" dedicated to ridding their country of what they see as a communist threat.

It happens in the quiet of night or in bustling daytime streets, at bus stops, in homes, in farm fields, on university campuses. The "suspect" is seized by unidentified men; thrown into an automobile or truck, and later found dead — usually having first been tortured, the body mutilated, defiled, beheaded.

The victim's links to "subversive" organizations frequently are tenuous. He may have been secretly denounced by a personal enemy, or named in a "confession" tortured out of an associate or relative, or found on an outdated list of labor or political activists.

And his death usually passes unnoticed by the general public — just another in the anonymous assembly line of everyday atrocity, a life whose dreams and hopes have been shoveled over in the rush of war.

To put flesh on these ciphers, The Associated Press investigated several recent cases. Here is a reconstruction, from the accounts of friends and relatives, of the lives of two ordinary Salvadorans swallowed up in their country's spiral of violence. At the request of the informants, who fear further reprisals, the victims' full names are not used.

ALBERTO R.

As a child in the coffee-growing town of San Pedro Nonualco, Alberto was an ideal student, a model for his three younger half-brothers. His stepfather, a tailor, sent him at age 15 to San Salvador to study to become a teacher.

He returned with a degree and a wife, Matilde, and taught in the San Pedro school, helping support the family. Later the couple moved back to the capital, where he taught morning and evening classes in a government secondary school, and afternoon classes in a private school.

By his late 30s, the ambitious, energetic educator was earning the equivalent of about $320 a month and was studying in his spare time for a psychology degree. He and Matilde had two teen-age daughters and a small son, and a wide circle of friends.

At the same time, he became active in the Salvadoran teachers' union, marching in anti-government protests in 1979 and 1980.

"I told him, 'Don't get involved in those things,'" his mother recalls. "He said, 'Don't worry.'"

A street incident earlier this year may have sealed Alberto's fate. Attending a party at a half-brother's house, Alberto became involved when a drunken neighbor demanded that the mariachi band stop playing. The neighbor fired off a pistol, missing Alberto but wounding his brother.

Alberto sought unsuccessfully to have the neighbor prosecuted. Family members believe the vengeful assailant, who had been seen in the company of soldiers, later informed on the teacher as a labor "subversive."

Late one Wednesday night, as Alberto left his school with three acquaintances, eight armed men jumped off a parked pickup truck, grabbed him, threw him face-down onto the truck bed, and sped off, warning his friends to keep quiet. As in most "disappearances" here, the family has given up hope of finding him alive.

OSCAR C.

From an impoverished cane-cutter's family of 16 sons and daughters, Oscar was the most successful offspring. He rose from messenger boy to chartered accountant here in the capital, with a salary of $190 a month, and a $20 commission for each audit.

He and his wife, Rosa, a cosmetics saleswoman, resided in the tough working-class district of Mejicanos with their 9-year-old daughter and 4-year-old son. He had plans to study for another business degree.

His relatives insist Oscar, 31, had no political connections — he was a man devoted to his work and family, and was simply caught up in a chain reaction of murder that began with an older brother.

That brother, a coffee plantation worker, disappeared in 1979. Family members speculate he was seized by soldiers at a roadblock near the plantation. They say they do not know the reason, although repression was mounting then against rural labor activists.

Oscar, with his brothers and sisters, went to the courts and other authorities to try to learn the missing man's whereabouts. The only responses, they say, were warnings from police to "keep quiet or have your mouths shut."

The brother's body eventually was found in a mass grave with 31 others. Then, one by one, other family members were seized and murdered. The latest victim was Oscar.

In four years of political bloodshed in El Salvador, at least 42,000 people have been killed. Human rights activists say the true toll may be considerably higher, since reports from the countryside are sketchy.

"If all the killings were reported," said one Salvadoran human rights lawyer, "there wouldn't be room in the newspapers for anything else."

GOD WILL NEVER LET YOU DOWN

We are saved by trusting. And trusting means looking forward to getting something we don't yet have—for a man who already has something doesn't need to hope and trust that he will get it. But if we must keep trusting God for something that hasn't happened yet, it teaches us to wait patiently and confidently. And in the same way—by our faith—the Holy Spirit helps us with our daily problems and in our praying. For we don't even know what we should pray for, nor how to pray as we should; but the Holy Spirit prays for us with such feeling that it cannot be expressed in words. And the Father who knows all hearts knows, of course, what the Spirit is saying as He pleads for us in harmony with God's own will.

And we know that all that happens to us is working for our good if we love God and are fitting into His plans. For from the very beginning God decided that those who came to Him—and all along He knew who would—should become like His son, so that His Son would be the First, with many brothers. And having chosen us, He called us to come to Him; and when we came, He declared us "not guilty," filled us with Christ's goodness, gave us right standing with Himself, and promised us His glory.

What can we ever say to such wonderful things as these? If God is on our side, who can ever be against us? Since He did not spare even His own Son for us but gave Him up for us all, won't He also surely give us everything else?

Romans 8:24-32

Under the big top leads television ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbie Benton, flying through the air with the greatest of ease, beat out a Burt Reynolds movie and "20-20" as CBS' "Circus of the Stars" led the Top 10 Nielsen parade for the week ended Aug. 28.

Mickey Rooney was ringmaster of the two-hour, seventh annual circus, originally telecast last December. It finished fifth in the ratings at that time.

CBS was first in the ratings for the fourth straight week, although it was challenged by a sudden upturn in the fortunes of ABC. ABC had four straight weeks in third place. NBC was third, but overall it was a tight race with the three networks separated by only one-half a rating point.

- Here are the top 20 programs:
1. "Circus of the Stars," CBS, a rating of 19.4 or 16.1 million households.
  2. "20-20," ABC, 18.1 or 15.0 million.
  3. Movie—"The End," NBC, 17.8 or 14.8 million.
  4. "The A-Team," NBC, 17.5 or 14.5 million.
  5. "60 Minutes," CBS, 16.8 or 13.9 million.
  6. "Fantasy Island," ABC, 16.5 or 13.7 million.
  7. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 16.3 or 13.5 million.
  8. Tie—"Facts of Life," NBC, 16.3 or 13.5 million.
  9. "Knight Rider," NBC, 16.1 or 13.4 million.
  10. Movie—"The Choir Boys," ABC, 15.8 or 13.1 million.
  11. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 15.7 or 13.0 million.
  12. Tie-Movie—"The Godfather, Part I," NBC, 15.7 or 13.0 million.

Farmers markets lesson in growing cycles

AUSTIN—Farmers markets, an idea whose time has come again, are educating shoppers while selling them fruits and vegetables at lower-than-supermarket prices.

"Some consumers have very little awareness of growing cycles," said John Vleck, administrator of the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) direct marketing program. TDA was instrumental in establishing four new farmers markets this summer at Tyler, Waco, Vernon, and in Grayson County between Sherman and Denison.

"Many people who shop farmers markets go there expecting to find everything they find at the grocery store," said Vleck. "In the big markets like Dallas they can, but not in the smaller and newly established ones which rely on what is raised locally. Locally produced fruits and vegetables are heavily dependent on the growing seasons and on weather patterns."

Shoppers browsing the markets can learn a lesson in Mother Nature's ways often forgotten in a society linked by a transportation system that delivers once-seasonal bounties to American kitchens year-round, frequently at the cost of flavor and nutritional value.

A consumer shopping the Texoma Farmers Market near Denison in mid-August would have found a new crop of local area peaches at a time when most peaches in the state were played out, plenty of watermelons and cantaloupes but few tomatoes and cucumbers, which cannot survive the intense heat of late summer. Come fall the same shopper will find pumpkins and pinto beans right alongside yellow crook-neck squash, a traditional summer vegetable in many parts of the country.

"At the farmers markets you can talk to growers and find out what they're raising and what they'll have two weeks hence," Vleck noted. "They find out what consumers want, and consumers find out about the growing season. Maybe it was a bad year for cucumbers in a particular area, but a great year for eggplants. At the farmers market you can discover why."

The establishment of farmers markets around the state are one aspect of a TDA direct marketing plan to encourage consumers to buy directly from producers. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said another six to 10 markets will open in 1984.

TDA staff, headed by Vleck, provided organization and support to growers and community leaders interested in starting a market. "These aren't Department of Agriculture markets," Hightower stressed. "We sat down with interested local parties, told them the key things they needed to pay attention to, helped them get organized and provided support services. But these markets belong to the local communities."

While locally produced fruits and vegetables are the undisputed stars of farmers markets, shoppers may be offered a wider range of foods to choose from within the next year or two. Baked goods, honey, catfish, and fresh herbs are already supplementing staple sales in some places. This diversity could grow to include fresh seafood from the Texas coast, citrus from the Rio Grande Valley and beef from locally raised and slaughtered cattle.

In addition to fresh flavor, shopping the markets often insures a better buy. A preliminary TDA comparison of prices at local supermarkets and the new farmers markets showed the markets to be cheaper for most products.

At Tyler, for example, when a dozen ears of corn were going for $1 - $2, supermarkets were selling three and four ears for $1. Fresh tomatoes that cost consumers $1 for six to eight, were 79 cents a pound at the grocery store. Watermelons ranging from $1 - $2 at the market were $2.99 - $3.48 at supermarkets. At Texoma shoppers could buy yellow squash for 50 cents a pound compared with 69 cents at the supermarket, tomatoes for 55 cents versus 69 cents, and red potatoes for 25 cents a pound versus 39 - 42 cents.

Vleck said prices at the Dallas Farmers Market have been close to retail when consumers buy by the pound. One reason, he explained, is that the farmer at the Dallas market "is a sophisticated seller. He knows the demand for his product; he knows the consumer wants quality. He also has transportation costs. People come a long way to sell at Dallas. Some come over 100 miles. They come all the way from the Valley sometimes."

One way to save at the Dallas market, Vleck said, is to buy in bulk. Many consumer buying clubs do just that at Dallas and at other markets around the state. Another at the smaller markets is to bargain for produce that is small or blemished. "You still have the capacity at these markets to do your own deals," Vleck said. "You may get an even lower price, and the farmer will still make money."

At local farmers markets produce is sold the day after it is picked. Grocery chain produce often travels across country on a journey that takes more than a week from harvest to retail sale.

Frequently bred to withstand the rigors of travel, a process that reduces flavor, the produce also undergoes stress that results in fewer nutrients.

Vleck said TDA is working with a number of grocery chain stores and their suppliers to encourage them to buy more freshly picked Texas produce.

"Nationwide and in Texas, retailers have been responding to consumer interest in a fresher, more nutritious product grown by local farmers," said Vleck. "If fresher food is healthier food, the best way to obtain it is to eat products grown close to home."

FARMERS MARKET BOUNTY—Watermelons and cantaloupes were among the most abundant items at Texas farmers markets as the summer growing season drew to an end. Fall produce will be available at some markets beginning in late September and early October.

MIDWEST - Steer carcasses were not established at $2.00 for 600-900 lbs. choice 3 Holstein type. Heifers were not established at $2.00 to $2.00 for 550-700 lbs. choice 3.
PORK - Compared to Monday the fresh pork cut trade was very active for fresh pork loins, moderately active on other items. Demand was moderate to good in the Central U.S. Carlot area. All prices are untrimmed unless otherwise noted. Loins were steady to 4.00 higher at $9.50 to $9.60 for 14-17 lbs. Hams were 1.00 to 1.50 lower at 72.50 to 73.00 for 14-17 lbs. And bellies were weak at 68.75 for 14-18 lbs.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 25-year-old female and two years ago I became very sick while on duty at the hospital where I work. I was having severe abdominal pain right under my ribs in the pit of my stomach, in the center. It felt like something was twisting my intestines or a hard gnawing feeling. I went to the emergency room and was hospitalized. My tests showed that I had acute catarrhal pancreatitis. Since I have been out of the hospital I've started having more severe pain. It is not always when I eat but also when I have eaten nothing. The doctors also found two duodenal ulcers and put me on Gaviscon and Tagamet. I quit taking the Tagamet except when I started hurting real bad, but my doctor got mad and said that was the wrong way to do it. Another serum amylase test was done and it was 195. I drink some socially to have a good time but not a lot. The doctor said I was never to drink again. He says I have pancreatitis but how can he say that on the basis of just a serum amylase test? Something else worries me. I've been taking amphetamines such as Ionamin so I can get more work done. Can speed damage my stomach or cause severe pains? Should I have another test to see if my ulcers have reopened or do what my doctor has told me to do thus far?

DEAR READER - I couldn't include all your letter. You are the kind of patient that doctors find most difficult to help. Speed will increase gastric acidity just like caffeine and should be avoided. The gastric acidity may contribute to your pancreatic problems. And your ulcer could be penetrating into the pancreas aggravating the condition. You have a serious illness and would be wise to start cooperating and following directions to the letter. If you want to get well, stop substituting your bad judgment for your doctor's judgment. Pancreatitis is one of those diseases where the doctor does indeed put a lot of reliance on the laboratory test. To give you more information on your disorder I am sending you The Health Letter 11-4, The Pancreas: Your Enzyme Organ. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been in the habit of taking long walks during nice weather. Recently I got a treadmill for days when the weather was not nice. I am disappointed that I can't stay on it for more than eight minutes and even that is difficult. The treadmill is not motorized and has a slight incline and no mileage indicator. Why can I walk 45 minutes to an hour but only stay with the treadmill eight minutes?

DEAR READER - You are making a lot more effort on the treadmill. The incline makes a difference. And you are working against the machine's friction since it is not motorized. Even with a motorized treadmill, because of adjusting the speed and inclination, a well-conditioned athlete doesn't expect to stay on the treadmill a long time. Your letter reminds me to tell people not to try to exercise the same length of time on treadmills as they do when they're walking. That could be far too much exercise.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I want to thank you for your help with my allergies. In one of your columns you had a letter about hay fever and I was able to use your advice. I had not been aware that an antihistamine is more effective before symptoms begin. Since reading your column I have begun taking a 12-hour capsule at about 10 p.m. whether I am sneezing or not. This gets me through the evening and early morning, which are my worst times. Because of this I have been more comfortable than I can remember in years. Thanks.

DEAR READER - I am pleased that your change in the way you take your medications has been a real help to you. This is an important point for hay fever victims. Most of the symptoms are caused by the release of histamine in the allergic reaction. So antihistamines are a major part of treatment in many cases. But for the best results, regardless of what antihistamine you are taking, you should take it regularly as prescribed by your doctor and whether you have symptoms or not. By taking the antihistamine before the histamine is released you can get much better results.

Plainview Air Show
scheduled Sept. 11

Wes Winter, veteran aerobatic pilot from Mesa, Ariz., will be the main attraction at the 15th Annual Plainview Air show on Sunday, Sept. 11, from 2 to 4 P.M. at the Hale County Airport in Plainview.

Flying a Pitts S-2S and a twin engine Partenavia, Winter will perform spine-tingling aerobatics including a triple ribbon pickup, ribbon ballet and various exciting twin engine aerobatics. The air show will include many other aerobatic performers. A U.S. Army Cobra gunship will execute landing and take-off maneuvers and be on display. The Confederate Air Force will fly and display several planes.

Other displays and performances scheduled include skydivers, gliders, hot air balloons, unusual experimental aircraft, and a parade of homebuilts. The show will be sponsored jointly by the Plainview Kiwanis Club and the Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter No. 438 with proceeds going to their various civic and charitable programs.

Admission will be only $3 for adults and $1 for children.

After its long downhill run, U.S. auto production is expected to turn upward during the 1983 model year. Total output for the year, ending in August, is forecast at 5.65 million cars, a 9.5 percent increase over 1982. It is the first annual increase for the industry since 1979, when output was up 3 percent over 1978.

Use that pickle juice

DEAR READERS - Pickled beets, tidy garbage and free tracing paper are just three of the wonderful Pointers in today's round-up. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - When I have a jar of sweet pickle juice, I drain a can of sliced beets and put the beets in the pickle liquid. After a day or so, these beets are delicious. Two or three kinds of beans in the juice also make a nice relish. - MRS. J.M.

DEAR POLLY - If you like to take pictures of the beautiful scenery you see on your vacations, don't hide the pictures away in albums or slide boxes. Have the best ones enlarged, frame them (with or without mats) and create a beautiful picture gallery on your wall. I also give the framed pictures as gifts. - LORRAINE

DEAR POLLY - Here's a Pointer for those of us who have a hard time scrubbing our backs while bathing. Take an old nylon stocking and tie a knot near the center of it. Drop in a bar of soap and tie the other knot on the other side of the soap. Now just take hold of both ends of the stocking and "seesaw" it across your back. Feels good!

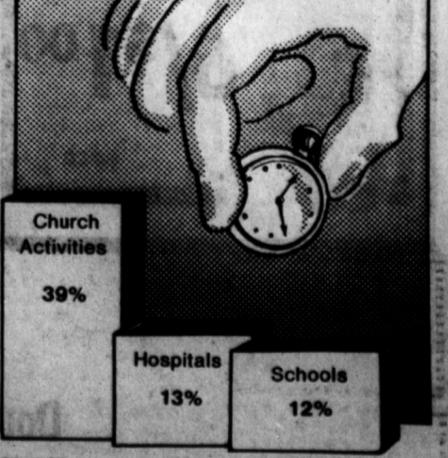

Make your hanging plant baskets or pots lighter in weight. Fill the pot one-fourth to one-half full of plastic foam pellets. Fill the rest of the way with potting soil and then add your plant. You'll have a lightweight plant with excellent drainage. - OLGA

DEAR POLLY - I've just purchased some new rings and lids to use on my canning jars, since some of the previously used rings are rusted. Is there any way to prevent the rings from rusting? Then they could be reused and I'd only have to buy new lids. - MRS. R.P.

DEAR MRS. R.P. - Rings rust most easily when liquid from the jars has bubbled out during processing and gotten trapped between the jar and the ring. The sticky moisture remains (whereas clean water from the processing kettle generally evaporates and dries quickly), so the metal ring rusts. The way to avoid this situation is to be very careful that sufficient head room is left at the top of the jar before sealing.

The best way to avoid rusty rings is simply to remove them after the jars have been sealed and completely cooled. You don't need the ring on the jar once the lid has properly sealed. (The ring's main function is to hold the lid in place during the processing-sealing process.) Unscrew it gently to avoid breaking the seal of the lid (twisting or prying the edge of the lid could break the seal). Then, carefully wipe the outside of the jar clean and store the sealed jars. Wash the rings and dry them thoroughly, then store them rust-free until next year. - POLLY

GIVING AMERICANS
Leading Volunteer Activities

Americans give freely of their time to help their neighbors, friends and communities. A recent survey found that 46 percent of interviews were volunteers, devoting an average 17 hours a month to their chosen activities. At the institutional level, churches, hospitals and schools registered the greatest volunteer participation.
